Analysis: Whatever Happened to the Yukon Queen II?

Holland America's view of the Yukon Oueen II has clearly undergone a seas change. After years of maintaining that the high speed catamaran was absolutely essential to the company's operations in the Yukon (Linda Huston, Director of Southeast Alaska Operations in 2008 and 2010) and hinting strongly that without the boat the company had no future in the territory (Steve Leonard, VP for Sales, 2009), the company has pulled the boat from its operations and will not be bringing it to Dawson City from its winter berth in Eagle, Alaska, this season.

Press reports from two Holland America officials, Paul Goodwin (an executive vicepresident) and Erik Elvejord (Director, Public Relations) have stated clearly that the boat will not be used here in the future.

The YOII has been a bone of contention for the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in since it began its life on the river in 1998, carrying an average of two busloads of passengers each way between Dawson and Eagle every day during the summer season.

The initial complaints were that the boat was damaging the salmon fishery, something that the company originally denied, but came to accept as the evidence mounted. There was a report from the Yukon River Panel as early as 2002. It concluded that the boat needed to slow down, that this would "lessen, though not eliminate, the destruction of small fish between

Dawson City, Yukon, and Eagle, Alaska."

This led to changes in the way the vessel operated which the company said reduced the damage, but did not eliminate it en-

Increasingly, after 2004, objections to the boat's presence began to emphasize complaints that its wake eroding was the riverbank along its 336 kilometre route. Given the nature of the river's seasonal behavior, this was somewhat harder to prove or disprove. The flooding that devastated Eagle in 2009 and scoured the riverbanks from Minto on downsteam have would exceeded any damage the boat might have done over several years.

Eventually the company was advised by the federal fisheries department that it should, in addition to its mitigation activities, apply for a license to allow it to operate in spite of any harm it might be causing, a procedure which is used in a variety of industries that might have an impact on the environment or through the Yukon Environmental and Socio-economic Act by the Dawson Designated Office, which was unable to make a firm recommendation and bumped the assignment upstairs to the executive committee in 2008.

This triggered a hearing

Following that were three seasons which were far from normal for the YQII. In 2009 the YQII arrives - The Yukon Queen II arrived on Dawson last year on May 19, while the remains of breakup ice were still melting on the shoreline. This year it will not arrive, as the company has removed it from the Dawson tour.

Eagle flooding shortened the season by a month or more. In both 2010 and 2011 the Taylor Highway to Eagle was so damaged by flooding and mudslides that it was not considered safe for the two buses led by pilot cars to attempt the route.

For those seasons the YQII was based out of Dawson City and ran a two-hour cruise down and up the river to provide the riverboat component of the cruise package.

The tourism industry generally has been supportive of the company and the boat. In 2009 Rod Taylor, who was then the president of the Tourism Industry Association of the Yukon, stated rather hyperbolically that the boat's departure would "end the tourism industry in > many ways in Yukon. That's how catastrophic that would be."

At that time the YESAB execucommittee tive had just begun to examine submissions related to the case and was expected to take two years to complete the review.

Last summer (two years later) there were numercomplaints ous that the company was slow in filing reports that were required by the YESAB executive committee in order to come up with a final rul-

Not much has been said in media since a year ago, but clearly the company has reached some conclusions of its own, one of them being that there is another way to provide its passengers with a variety of experiences.

The general marketing strategy of companies that use coach tours as part of their operations is that it is desirable to vary the travel experience as much as possible. Holland America, as part of a group of companies that specialize in cruise ship experiences, does land excursions partly to satisfy the states that own the ports at which its ships dock. The company uses rail connections out of Skagway and in Denali, and promoted the river tour on its Dawson run, beginning with the first Yukon Queen back in the 1980s and later moving to the larger Yukon Queen II.

Internal customer satisfaction surveys routinely rated the cruise as one of the most enjoyable parts of the Yukon experience, and so the company was reluctant to give it up.

Logic would suggest that, although company officials have complained about the length of the YESAB regulatory process and the apparently unending opposition to the boat from the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in and the fishing community, the decision to pull it at this time has more to do with the inability to use it as it was intended on the run back and forth to Eagle.

As long as the scenic, but sometimes very narrow, Taylor Highway remains too damaged to be navigable by motor coaches, it seems that the YQII is not as vital a component as it has been said to be in the past.

Instead, the river experience can be provided by the smaller, slower Klondike Spirit, which is already based in Dawson and presents a very attractive alternative to the traveller in search of a frontier style cruise.

OPINIONS

Uffish Thoughts: Are You on Analog or Digital Time?

by Dan Davidson

Resetting all the clocks in the house some weeks back gave me the opportunity to think about the different ways in which we measure the days of our lives. Do you wear a watch? Are you analog or digital? What's the difference anyway?

I'm part of the generation that still wears a wristwatch as a regular, functional part of my daily apparel, not really concerned about it being a piece of jewelry or a status symbol. Casio or Timex are fine for me, along with a couple of simple analog watches that Time magazine used to give away, back when they still had a Canadian edition and I still subscribed.

Lots of people don't wear watches any more, and if you ask many a younger person what the time is, a lot of them will pull out a cell phone. These devices seem to have taken on the role previously held by the pocket watch.

I have one of those too. It is a piece of jewelry that I only wear with my Gold Rush togs when I go to the Commissioner's Ball every other year.

All of my timepieces are battery powered. Wind-up watches don't stay on time as well as I'd like, and my three decades in the classroom meant that I needed to be on time. We both got battery powered watches when we lived in Beaver Creek, where the fluctuations in the Yukon Electrical power plant need to keep. You feel the flow could cause our bedside alarm to gain or lose 10 minutes a night sometimes.

Those were the early digital watches, where you had to press a button every time you wanted to see what time it was. Kind of a nuisance, that, and besides, I missed having hands.

Clocks and watches with hands are called analog time-pieces, whether you wind them up or just change the batteries every year. People who learned to tell time on analog timepieces are used to thinking in terms of 5 to 25 minutes past or to the hour, and in terms of quarter, half and three-quarter hours.

Those who learned on digital watches will give you the exact minute, maybe even the second, if you ask them the time.

Those who learned on analogs will generally round off to the nearest five minutes. I don't think that means they have a more casual sense of the time. Indeed, I think it means they experience it in more depth.

One thing I like about analog timepieces is the sense that they immerse you in time. When you look at moving clock hands you are simultaneously aware of what time it is, how much time has passed and how much is left before the next hour or, for that matter, the appointment you of time.

With a digital timepiece, you are only aware of the now, and you have to do a bit of mental arithmetic to take anything else from the experience of glancing at your watch.

My favorite watches do both; they have hands and a digital display. The latter capability gives me useful things like extra time zones when travelling, alarm settings, a stopwatch and a timer, as well as the date and time display. Generally I leave the digital readout on the date display unless I need to use the other functions.

The average house these days has digital clocks all over the > place. There's a time (and date) stamp on your telephone, your microwave, your stove, on the radio on your counter, on your computers, cell-phones and on whatever recording or playback devices you have hooked up to your television.

Our house is the same, and all of these time keepers have useful functions when it comes to their particular piece of equipment, but when it comes to telling the time, I find my eyes move to the wall clocks with their minute and hour hands imperceptibly ticking off the hours of the day.

The other advantage is that those are the clocks I don't have to reset every time Yukon Energy turns out the lights.

Letter to the Editor:

Nothing Exceptional

by Allen Kelley

The winter has seen me on the road throughout the Yukon and Northwest Territories, nearly 20,000km in 2 months.

Into remote mines, up and down the Dempster Highway, and along the ice roads to Tuk and Aklavik: work has allowed me an experience, both beautiful and precarious.

Dawson became a midpoint between my NWT and Yukon travels, and in more ways than one, it was an oasis. An alluring gem I'd never been to nor heard of months previous, and yet somehow I felt at home.

Perhaps it's the serenity of being nestled in between the mountains and rivers. Or the sense of history one feels while walking through her streets. Maybe it's the seasons, very much an active participant in the ebb and flow of day-to-day life. Or how generosity and compassion for one another conjures a sense of community that is nothing short of inspiring.

There are times when one harmonizes with an environment in such a way that the melody is too much to ignore. As such, I've been seduced.

For anyone whom has spent a day in Dawson City, it becomes apparent; like music, you either feel it, or you don't. There is an energy, and those who've decided to call Dawson home are magnetized by it.

Having returned to Los Angeles, I'll be in California long enough to consolidate my things, say some goodbyes, and then travel northwards, my destination, Dawson.

As Spring gives way to Summer with an urgency I've only encountered in the North, I'm wishing for my time in the states to be brief, for I'm wanting to be able to witness the change as much as possible. Whenever I have left Dawson, my mind has become preoccupied with thoughts of the return, and the days away have only made my preoccupations more commanding.

As I bid farewell to the City of Angels, all that will be separating me is about 5,000 kilometers and 5 days of travel in what some would say could possibly be my car's farewell ride (though my car and I would beg to differ...). I can do nothing but smile as I anticipate my arrival, for it won't be as a traveler passing through: this time I'll be calling Dawson home and with that thought, I'm filled with a tranquility that will sustain me until I step foot back on that muddy ground.

Little Gold Border Crossing Returns to Longer Hours

Story & Photos by Dan Davidson

Member of Parliament Ryan Leef settled into a corner of the Visitor Reception Centre in Dawson City on Monday morning, flanked by a rack of moose antlers and a brochure display rack, with his notes sitting on the hinged wooden top of a trash can enclosure.

He noted that this was so unlike some of the formal settings he's been getting used to since his election as MP.

Such impromptu settings are, he said, "part of the unique character of the Yukon that we all love so much."

It was a small group of about a dozen (including his entourage) that had gathered to hear the good news he had to bring. The hours of operation at the Yukon-Alaska border on the Top of the World/Taylor Highway route were scaled back last year, to the immense annoyance of the business community here and travellers along the circle route.

"I am thrilled to be able to tell the residents of Dawson City, and all of the Yukon," said Leef, "that Little Gold's hours will be reverting to the regular length, which will have a significant positive economic benefit to the region."

The restored hours will be 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., Alaska Time, and 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Yukon Time.

Leef noted that he began to hear the complaints almost immediately on taking office. The change in the hours, made even more complicated by the time zone differences between the Yukon and Alaska, had generated complaints from then-Klondike MLA Steve Nordick, as well as Mayor Peter Jenkins, Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Chief Eddie Taylor and the Dawson City Chamber of Commerce.

"I heard from the representatives of all levels of government, from local businesses, and from the Yukon Chamber of Commerce in respect to the impact the reduced hours at this point of entry would have on the community of Dawson City."

Leef said his success in this matter owed much to being a member of the government rather than sitting on the opposition benches. He also praised the contributions of former Yukon Tourism Minister Elaine Taylor and the current Minister, Mike Nixon.

"What we know in terms of the significance is that's going to allow travellers to stay a little bit longer in Dawson, to enter a little bit earlier, to make long term plans around that kind of border crossing."

The reduction of hours was announced late last year, after travellers had made plans that included the published longer hours. As a result, a number of Dawson's hotels reported that people who had planned to come through Dawson on the loop after driving north on the Alaska Highway did not do so when they were faced with not being able to get to the border before it closed. There were many hotel and RV park cancellations that made direct reference to this.

"The other important note about this is that it's finally an example of how well both the municipal, with your mayor, with the First Nation government, and the territorial, moving up to the MP – how well we were all able to work together to get a federal issue dealt with," Leef said.

"This wasn't just a federal issue that Canada could deal with; it was one that had to involve the United States. For a small community like Dawson to have that level of importance and impact between Alaska and Canada and to be able to resolve that, I think, speaks volumes for the importance of our cooperation, the cooperation that the mayor and I have, that chief and council and I have, the cooperation that the territorial government has.

" It also speaks volumes as to how significant Dawson City is as a community in this territory.

"That's why, today, I felt it was of the utmost importance to come to Dawson. I recognized that, being April, we weren't going to have a huge turnout, but nonetheless, I didn't want to make the announcement from Whitehorse and have the people in Dawson City read that in the paper. I didn't want to try and solve a problem for Dawson City and not bring that news right here."

Many Rivers Asks for Support

by Lisa McKenna

Many Rivers is a support and counseling service that operates out of Dawson City. They are now on strike. Why? Not for more money, not for more benefits or perks. They are striking for their clients. Support and counseling does not just happen between 9 and 5. All Many Rivers is asking for is flexibility.

Like a person in crisis the staff too need to 'take time out' after an especially stressful situation. Flexible work hours have worked for Many Rivers for years and I say 'if it isn't broke don't try to fix it'. So support your support service, sometimes everyone needs help.

AYC Delegates to Gather

PRESS RELEASE

The Association of Yukon Communities (AYC) will stage its annual general meeting from May 3 to 6 in Dawson City.

Delegates representing all of the Yukon's municipalities will be there, as well as members of the government, opposition parties and First Nations.

"This year, we are very excited to have Berry Vrandic, the president of the Federation of Canadian Municipalities (FCM) in attendance for this special event," Mayor Bev Buckway, the AYC's president, said this week.

The FCM is the national organization that provides linkages between the various municipal associations across the country as well as with the federal government.

The meeting's theme is "Engagement".

"We are looking forward to providing the communities with a chance to get together and find ways to continue to work collaboratively together while also working with all orders of government and stakeholders to develop solutions that benefit all Yukoners," said Buckway.

The New Wastewater Plant will Tax Our Town's Financial Resources

The City of Dawson has determined that it will not be able to sustain the operation and maintenance costs of its new Wastewater Treatment Plant (WWTP) over the long term. Since sustainability has been a big part of evaluation of this project since it began several years ago, this is not good news for anyone.

Dawson would like to pass some of this bad news on to the territorial government and has passed a resolution invoking several clauses of the memorandum of agreement regarding the project, which was signed off on July 24, 2009.

Mayor Jenkins reported that in 2011 the actual direct 0&M costs of operating Dawson's sewer were $395,423.

The original projected annual 0&M cost for the WWTP alone was $280,000. That estimate has since been revised by Corix, the company building the plant, upwards to $373,000.

The city has learned that additional insurance for the new facility will run to $44,000, bringing direct costs of the WWTP alone up to $417,000.

This is on top of the existing costs for W&S operations, which will be decreased only slightly when the current screening plant is taken out of the equation.

Annual costs in this range cannot, Jenkins said, be sustained by the town's 581 ratepayers.

This fear is not a new one. Jenkins made these arguments during his first terms as mayor prior to 1995, and they were echoed by concerns from the Webster, Everitt and Steins administrations during the decade and a half when he was out of municipal office.

His personal view of the current WWTP project has always been that the 0&M projections were too low, but he says that his personal estimate of $1 million is not the reason why he has urged his council to pass the resolution he proposed on April 25.

"What is being projected here is based on the information provided, my personal opinion aside. That's the numbers we have."

Article 5.3 of the MOA refers directly to sustainability, and council's resolution declares directly that the project is not financially sustainable, given the numbers available, and the likelihood that estimates will continue to rise.

The sustainability clause in the MOA is vital, given that the town has twice been declared bankrupt, mostly recently in 2004, and is still recovering from that last experience.

Sustainability is also an issue related to the source of the federal funding used to pay for this project, which was promoted as being for sustainable infrastructure projects.

In a letter to the government, Jenkins also notes that the current standards for financial reporting require the town to include amortization for the project in its annual budgets. This will add a million dollars annually to the negative side of the city's books, a fact that "has not been recognized in any Yukon government communiqué with respects to operating costs to date."

Under Article 5.4 of the MOA, the council is requesting now that YTG begin to look at providing it with an additional operating grant to cover these increased costs once the town takes over running the WWTP.

Council also noted that the current expiry date (Article 15.1) of the MOA was based on the original projected startup date of the WWTP, which was

The metal siding going on the new Wastewater Treatment Plant will be covered with wood on all sides when the project is completed to have been last December 2011. Since the revised date is December 2012, council requests that the expiry date be revised to reflect that change.

Some council members felt that it was a bit abrupt of the mayor to expect them to digest his and the administration's concerns in a series of resolutions and a letter that they had not seen until 7 p.m. that night. Discussion of this course of action continued over the next half hour.

Councillors Potoroka and Kendrick asked to see some of the supporting documents which led to the formation of the resolution and the letter, and city manager Jeff Renaud provided those.

"What we're doing," Jenkins said, "is putting the government on notice that, pursuant to the terms of the MOA, it's not sustainable. We are just triggering what is in the MOA.

"It's basically a doubling of our 0&M."

City Manager Jeff Renaud summed up the issue.

"Based on the tax base we have, and the tax rates we have ... I don't think it's sustainable in the long term. No."

He added the fact that taking on the WWTP as an asset was going to double the amortization line item on the city's books. Last year the amortization requirement caused the town to show a $700,000 deficit (even though this is an accounting number that does not reflect the town's actual cash flow position) because of a $1.3 million amortization line.

Taking on the WWTP as an asset in a few years will add $1 million annual to that line, and if it were to happen next year, would cause the town to show $1.7 million deficit.

No Money for Mining Knowledge

A commentary by Josée Bonhomme

An effort to share new government regulations which affect water license or land use permitting was denied funding by the Whitehorse Chamber of Commerce on April 23rd. The proposal did not fit their criteria under the Business Training Fund, which is funded by the Yukon Government.

Brandon Kassbaum, of the Chamber, explains: "The committee determined that your request did not fall under the established policy that training be related to gaining specific employment, building the capacity of SMEs [Small and Medium Enterprise] or the development of skills related to promotion."

The purpose of the training is to address recent changes in how permits are obtained, new conditions set on obtaining permits, and hidden costs to miners the government has not announced before imposing these conditions on permitting this winter.

Such changes are often seen in the dead of winter when miners are away from the Yukon.
Special plans not normally requested for permitting were imposed this winter, under threat of denying permit approvals until certain steps were taken at the YESAB stage of assessment.

Specifically, Yukon Heritage and Environment/Waste (Monitoring and Inspections), changed their methods in the past year. What this means to miners is a possibility of $2,700 plus to hire archaeologists for a desktop exercise termed a Heritage Resources Overview Assessment, as a condition of permitting. This affects especially the Placer Land Use permits.

If it is determined that further field work is required, that costs $7,000+.

On the waste side, new permits are required for disposal, transport and all sorts of activities that are standard for miners since the turn of the century. For example, a miner cannot haul more than five litres of used oil to their friends' used oil burners without a transport permit. The cost of such permitting is $100 at application time, or for any new tanks, fuel storage facilities, etc.

The Department of Heritage are satisfied their published information and visits by their staff to a mine site are sufficient to ensure compliance with all regulations, new or old. The Department of Environment worked with the Klondike Placer Miners to develop their new rules, so some people may be aware of the details.

Without training in these changing and adapting times, it leaves miners in the cold, and exposed to fines, lost time in shut-downs, delayed permitting and obscurity. It would be important for all miners returning this year to contact their Mining Inspector and apprise themselves of all recent changes in mining regulations, waste management, heritage concerns and also for occupational health and safety matters.

The Workers' Compensation Board has opened a new office in Dawson to be closer to their main market.

The Gold Show on May 18-19 will offer a gathering of government agencies where a miner might be able to see the big picture in going from booth to booth. Give yourselves the full two days, and celebrate at Gertie's with your long-lost friends.

A two-day course to address current issues for heritage and fuel spill avoidance and clean-up techniques could be offered on a user-pay basis, if 40 people attended, the fees at $125 per person would cover a banquet and two lunches, plus all required expenses. The banquet was planned to encourage discussion and networking in a congenial Dawson-style hospitality setting.

It appears no one sees the need. Work went on all winter to see which government agency might want to help in informing miners of new costs, hidden costs, and obligations affecting their permitting, but there was no interest.

If anyone thinks this is important enough, and has an opinion, please contact Fast-Track Land Management at (819) 663-6754 or joseeb@bell. net before May 15th. Illegitimus non carborundum.

IODE 100th Anniversary Grant Program

In 2013, IODE Canada will award the IODE 100th Anniversary Grant valued at $25,000 to an agency or individual developing programs or research to prevent and alleviate child abuse and neglect.

This will be the 7th grant awarded. The 100th Anniversary Grant program was created in June 2000 to celebrate IODE's 100th Anniversary. Funds to create this program were raised by IODE members across Canada as a gift to benefit Canada's children.

Winners to date have been agencies introducing innovative programs. programs have been impressive. They include: the mentorship first-time adolescent mothers at risk of isolation; teaching primary school age children about safe and caring relationships; assistance for families with behavioural challenging children; headstart programs specifically for children in high risk situations in need of stimulating, enriching experiences vital to their healthy growth; education and drop in centres to assist parents and family of LGBTQ.

Once again, the application for the grant, now being circulated, will be accepted from 01 September until 31 October 2012. The winner will be announced on IODE Founders Day in February 2013. The application is available on the IODE website at www.iode. ca or via email at iodecanada@bellnet.ca.

Proudly, IODE continues to protect and encourage children so that every child may reach their potential.

IODE Canada is a national women's charitable organization dedicated to enhancing the quality of life for individuals through education support, community service and citizenship programs.

A Tribute to the Latest Member of the Blast from the Past

Story & Illustration by Lisa McKenna

He performed at Woodstock, was on the cover of a 1970 Time magazine, and he played with Bob Dylan!

His band met playing together, back in the late 50's', for rock-a-billy Ronnie Hawkins. They played with Dylan, opened for the Grateful Dead and played back-up for Ringo Starr. He even played with Muddy Waters.

Their influence on rock reached as far as the Dead, the Beatles, Eric Clapton, Led Zeppelin, Elvis Costello, and even Elton John.

They put out 10 studio albums and 3 more with Bob Dylan. They also had three of their own live albums and two more with Dylan again. Noted for having 12 Gold awards and two Platinums they also obtained, in 1970, number one in Canada and the U.S.A.!

He was known as the only drummer that could make you cry. On April 19th of this year he drove Dixie down to a place were a man might get a bed but went up to Cripple Creek instead. That's where Levon Helm, of the Band, had his last waltz. Goodbye and thanks for the music.

Levon succumbed to a long battle with throat cancer and passed on peacefully on April 19th 2012 at the age of 71.

Klondike Development Organization Seeks to Assist Entrepreneurs & Foster Ideas

Submitted by the KDO

A relatively new organization, the Klondike Development Organization, or KDO, is a kind of "supergroup" among local agencies in that it brings together representatives from the City of Dawson, Chief Isaac Incorporated, the Klondike Visitors Association, KIAC and the Dawson City Chamber of Commerce, all organizations which had economic development already in their mandates.

The KDO vision is of a resilient Klondike where highly engaged citizens, networks and organizations collaborate to build a sustainable economy. It launched last spring with a series of information gathering exercises, surveying households and businesses on what they value about the Klondike, and how it could be improved as a place to live, work and do business. Based on this learning, a strategic plan and a housing strategy have been developed. Plans and survey results can be found at www. klondikedevelopment.com.

Since late 2011, the Klondike

Development Organization has been engaged in a variety of projects aimed at filling in service gaps, facilitating dialogue around topics of concern, and generally promoting economic development in our community. These ongoing projects include:

- A free enterprise and investment facilitation service open to all.

- Development of enterprise and investment support tools including a searchable online database of available properties and a new community profile

- An entrepreneur mentoring program.

- Quarterly partnership forums to strengthen communication and partnerships amongst community building stakeholder organizations, businesspeople and residents.

The first forum addressed ground transportation services to and within Dawson, and the second discussed the potential for a multi-unit residential development at the former Korbo Apartments site. More on these to come soon.

The enterprise and investment facilitation service has had a positive response from both entrepreneurs and organizations. The program's purpose is to provide a local information resource, and a starting point for people who wish to explore projects and ideas in the area.

"We'd like to encourage anyone with an enterprising idea who just needs a little information or advice to get going to come and talk to us at KDO. As a first point of contact we can help you through whatever you need to do, or refer you to other services and programs if they better suit you", says Mark Wickham, project manager for KDO.

Another effort, the Klondike Entrepreneur Mentoring Program, provides free mentoring from experienced Klondike businesspeople who can offer business advice, support and encouragement to help both new and active entrepreneurs launch or grow their businesses. Learning from someone who's already been there – a mentor – is a big step forward to success. KDO has a list of several local businesspeople willing to act as mentors, but as yet the organization has not received any interest from potential mentees.

Bill Bowie of Arctic Inland Resources is one local businessman who cites participation in a mentoring program when he was starting out as instrumental in his early successes.

KDO's program will match each entrepreneur with a potential mentor, whose skills and expertise suit the entrepreneur's particular needs. After a first meeting, participants independently develop the working relationship as best suits their needs.

"We've been tackling some of the projects that have been on people's 'good idea' lists for a while, but with all our local governments and non-profits constantly running full tilt, no one has ever had time to really follow up on them ... until now," says Wickham.

If you have one of those good ideas, or are just interested in finding out more about any of KDOs programs, contact Mark Wickham, Project Manager, e-mail: klondikedevelopment@gmail.com, or call (867) 993-2306.

The Klondike Development Office is above the bank at 2nd and Queen - follow the signs up the steps. Website: www. klondikedevelopment.com KDO's activities would not be possible without the financial support of the Yukon Government, Department of Economic Development, and the City of Dawson.

Klondike Spirit is in High Spirits Over New Deal with Holland-America

Keeping in mind that it's an ill wind that blows no one good, the announced departure of the Yukon Queen II from the Dawson City tourism picture is good news for at least one local Brad Whitelaw, owner of the Triple J Hotel and the Klondike Spirit paddlewheeler, is picking up the river tour business that the YQII is leaving behind.

addition to its own evening cruise, which will be moved to a later spot in the evening.

"They've built us into their package so we provide a ride for all of their guests," Whitelaw

"It's a remarkable deal and we're proud to partner up with the good people at Holland-America/Princess. I look forward to a long, prosperous partnership with them.

"We're going to put out the merely cruising the river on the Canadian side since 2010. With 2012 looking to be the same scenario, it is perhaps not surprising that the company, which used to refer to the river cruise as an indispensable part of its Yukon package, has changed its mind about that.

The Klondike Spirit was built in Eagle, Alaska, by Nick Turner and Charlie House, who originally planned to relocate to Dawson and run a river tour

The Klondike Spirit, berthed beside the Yukon River for the winter, is undergoing preparation for the new season and its increased workload

While the Klondike Spirit is a much admired fixture on the Dawson waterfront and has offered a popular sightseeing and dinner cruise for several years now, the ridership has not been what the owners had hoped and an increase in docking fees last year came as a surprise to them at the time.

"It's been a struggle, as any new business looking for a niche in the market might have," Whitelaw said, "so this couldn't come at a better time for us, or from better people."

Holland America/Princess Cruises has contracted with the Spirit to take all of its clientele on a river tour each day. As the Spirit is a smaller vessel than the YQII, it will take up to four trips daily to manage this, in best product we can and I'm sure their guests will be pleased with their experience."

Whitelaw himself found that he enjoyed the rides he had taken on the YQII, which offered free cruises to the community at the end of each season as a thank you for its hospitality. The YQII was under constant assault by people and organizations that complained of the damage they said it did to both fish and the riverbanks. It has been the subject of continual study since 2001, about three years after it began its seasonal life here.

The boat was placed here to maintain a regular run back and forth between Dawson and Eagle, and it has not been able to do that for the last two years due to the road conditions on the Taylor Highway. It has been from here. That proved to be more complicated in terms of licensing and regulations than the two could manage to navigate. They first brought the boat, which was named by the students at the Robert Service School, to Dawson in 2006, but were unable to get the necessary papers to run it and had to take it back to Eagle.

They sold the boat to the Whitelaws (Brad and his father, Robert) in 2008. Brad had seen the potential of the craft in 2006 and determined it would be a good fit with his other operation.

It was easier for Canadian owners to get through the red tape on a boat that was only going to be used in Canadian waters and it has been running annually since then.

Spring is just ducky this year at the Commissioner's Residence. In spite of the malodorous weather 20 or so of these mallards stopped and dabbled awhile in late April.

One Armed Bandits to invade Gerties

by Dan Davidson

Summer will bring the usual crowds of tourists to Diamond Tooth Gerties in Dawson, where they will mingle with the locals at the gaming tables, sip drinks with their friends and watch the floor show. But this year there will be a new sound in Centennial Hall, the click/whir of 52 slot machines, bringing in what the Klondike Visitors Association projects could be close to $250,000.00 in fresh revenue to be poured into its projects around the town.

The KVA membership passed a special resolution on April 9 to borrow $375,000.00 to get this new project off the planning papers and into the building. New project though it may be, KVA board secretary John Wierda says the association has wanted to move in this direction for a number of years. Now, as video slot machines begin to proliferate in eastern Canada and move into the prairies, the time has seemed ripe for the change at Gerties as well.

Wierda says that the territorial government is prepared to grant the association a license to the revenue with the government quarters and loonies into one tions are correct this could net the YTG about $146,638.00 per year out of a total revenue of $576,150.00, leaving the association the rest to make its annual payments on the start-up loan and still make a handsome profit.

This move comes at a time when KVA income, which is still healthy at about $250,000.00 annually, is beginning to drop off. For the last two years people have been drinking a bit less and leaving a bit less at the tables as tastes and social conventions change. Wierda's study of the literature indicates that the same thing has been happening in big gambling centers, where the income from machines has surpassed that of the live action over the last several years.

Perhaps people are in a hurry. Perhaps they don't want to take the time to learn the games. Perhaps the machines remind people of the now common lottery games. Perhaps it simply hurts less to be beaten by a machine. Whatever the reason, people operate the machines and share seem willing to drop lots of armed bandits.

That's the type of machine that will be set up in Gerties, old style slots with the lever to pull and wheels to turn. The newer machines are more like video games and the KVA felt that they would not be in sympathy with the historic recreation intended in the casino.

The actual cost of the 52 machines (41 for quarters and 11 for dollars) will be $312,000.00. The other costs include freight, new wiring, and a machine to roll and count coins. Major items include $25,000.00 for cabinets to house the slot machines in a compatible fashion and the same sum for a new system of security alarms and cameras.

Wierda projects that the machines will generate between $15.00 and $20.00 of revenue for every hour they are running. The KVA may experiment with dif-ferent hours for Gerties in order to get maximum use from them. The association expects to pay off its loan in 5 years if its esti-

Ice Pool winner is local:

Yukon River provides a community show

by Dan Davidson

Many people had been expecting an early break-up for the Yukon River after a mild winter, but the temperatures dropped well below seasonal norms on April 25 and stayed there for the next two weeks. In addition the river was low and the pressure wasn't there to push the ice bridge out of the way.

So it was on Friday at 8:09 P.M., after two relatively sunny days and a false start on Thursday, that the tripod in midriver finally drifted off down the river, tripping the clock in the old C.I.B.C. building. That made Bill Hakonson, who held a ticket for 8:08 P.M., the winner of the Annual I.O.D.E. Ice Pool, with a prize of $2385.68.

Bill first walked across the ice bridge 46 years ago, but this is the first time he has ever won. Oddly enough, his brother's wife won last year.

The prize was down from last year's $3,313.47. I.O.D.E. treasurer Kathy Webster says that this year the group sold 3701 tickets at $1.00 apiece. The local sale was normal but sales were down in Whitehorse this year.

I.O.D.E. used to stand for Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, but Dawson member Lenore Jenkins says the former acronym is just a name these days, after a decision taken by someone in Ottawa about 8 years ago. It's not a change she favours.

Welcome to Gold Show Delegates!

The Sun obtained funding in late 2009 from the City of Dawson, YTG's Heritage Branch and the Community Development Fund to conserve and archive early issues and make them available once again in the public domain. This is a great resource for students, writers and historians, and also for prospective tourists with an interest in Dawson City's life. Each month, we are re-printing our front pages from 20 years ago (seen above) as a souvenir of our lively history.

Salt City Ride Responsibly

All-Terrain Vehicles (ATVs) are great for industrial, commercial and recreational use. While riding, take necessary precautions to ensure the safety of yourself and others who share the trails.

- → Always wear an approved helmet and protective riding gear.
- → Be visible to drivers and other trail users.
- → Ride an ATV built for your height and weight.
- → Only carry a passenger if your ATV is designed for it.
- → Use your ATV to haul and tow the weight it was designed for.
- → Use proper riding techniques to avoid losing control on hills, rough terrain and in turns.
- → Inspect your ATV before each use, as advised in the owner's manual.
- → Adjust your speed to suit the terrain as well as when you encounter other trail users.
- → Get trained by a qualified ATV instructor. ATV education teaches safe vehicle handling techniques, proper trail etiquette and encourages responsible riding behaviour.

Environment

Respect our Environment

Fragile alpine and sub-alpine landscapes damage easily and take years to heal. Damaged habitat can threaten the wellbeing of plant, animal and insect species. ATV noise can also adversely affect animals, especially during sensitive times of year such as lambing/calving or the rut. Responsible ATV use is appreciated by everyone who enjoys the outdoors.

- → Stay only on roads, existing trails or other areas designated for ATV use.
- → Stay in the middle of the trail to avoid widening it.
- → Cross streams slowly and only at designated fording points where the trail crosses the stream at 90 degrees.
- → Avoid roosting around the apex of the turn when climbing or brake-sliding during descent, both of which gouge the trail on switchbacks.
- → Moderate the throttle and use the clutch to gain maximum traction with minimum wheel-spin on slick trails.
- → Avoid muddy trails, save them for future trips when they are dry and less likely to be gouged.
- → Pack out what you pack in. Carry a trash bag on your vehicle and pick up litter left by others.
- → Wash your ATV and support vehicle after each use to prevent the spread of noxious weeds.
- → Observe proper human waste disposal. Bury your waste at least six inches deep and camouflage the hole or pack out your waste.

ATVs are a popular way to access backcountry Yukon. Whether you're hunting, viewing wildlife, or simply enjoying the great outdoors, be sure to respect our environment by using existing trails.

Everyone who enjoys the Yukon wilderness has the responsibility to ensure its preservation.

Young Authors Celebrate Their Own Writing

FH Collins High School Vice-principal Christine Klaassen St. Pierre called for a show of hands at the end of this year's 32nd Young Authors' Conference. Did the delegates learn something from an older or younger author that resonated with them? Did they meet anyone that they wanted to get to know better?

Most of the sixty or so young people – and a few of the older ones – waved a hand for each of those questions.

In a way, making such connections is a lot of what a conference like this is all about. The average high school (Gr. 8 to Gr. 12) class won't have a lot of students in it who really enjoy reading and writing, even fewer who have the writing bug and like to do more than text and tweet.

Terry Burns thought there might be something that could be done for those young people 32 years ago. Joyce Sward picked up the mantle and carried on after he retired a few years later. It has now been passed to Sarah Davidson, also a teacher at FH

Collins, and she's continuing in fine style.

This year's event actually went back to the original concept, by not worrying about the writing awards that have been a feature of the conference since the mid-1980s. This meant that there was more time for the delegates to read some of their own work aloud to the entire group. They needed nearly all of it.

This is an unnerving prospect, hard enough to entice most students to do even before their peers in their home classrooms; a little harder in the 16 member workshop groups over the two days of the conference; and even tougher still when faced with the entire conference of students and teachers while standing behind a microphone.

Nearly two dozen of them took up the challenge of taking their stand behind the mike for two to three minutes. For those who wrote short poems it was a bit easier. Adolescence tends to produce verses about pain, loss, loneliness and longing, but there were also some lovely images of important places and quiet moments.

The short stories seemed to be less likely to veer off into Role Playing Video game territory this year, but there were a handful of dystopias that might have been influenced by the recent popularity of The Hunger Games.

There were also some stories that might have been torn from the pages of recent newspaper and magazine features – tales of dysfunctional families, abused children and suicides. It's harder to pick a page or two out of a story, novel, or graphic novel and convey what it's all about in a brief reading, but the students made a good effort

The afternoon closed with Sward, who had been lured back to serve as conference emcee this year, giving some mementoes to the guest writers. And then there was Klaassen, with her little participatory conference evaluation exercise.

The room emptied quickly after that, with students dropping juice boxes and cans in the appropriate containers and then rushing off to catch the buses that govern so much of high school life in the city.

As sure as there were familiar faces at this year's event, some of them will be back again next year.

Janke Donates MITY

PRESS RELEASE

by the Dawson City Film Festival

The Dawson City International Short Film Festival is pleased to announce that MITY (Made In The Yukon) Award winner Daniel Janke has donated his prize to two filmmakers whose films also played at the festival.

In discussions with the MITY professional jury, Naomi Mark (Just Call) will receive $500 cash and $1000 rental certificate from the Northern Film and Video Industry Association. Aubyn O'Grady (Underdogs, Opening

The Community Chest:Broken, but not Dead) will also receive $500 cash and a $500 rental certificate form the Klondike Institute of Art and Culture.

In his acceptance speech Daniel commented on the strength of all the Yukon films produced films in the festival and that it was a positive sign for the future of a regionally created cinema in the territory.

He hopes that passing on the award will generate more films being created in the Yukon.

The festival thanks Daniel for his generosity.

Eagle had been Expecting a Season with the Yukon Queen II

by Dan Davidson

The village of Eagle knew somewhat before the Yukon that the Yukon Queen II would not be working the Eagle to Dawson run again this year, but John Borg, who is with the Eagle Historical Society, says that Holland-America had been sending out quite different signals until just recently.

'We found out about a week ago," Borg said on Tuesday (Apr. winter long, saying they were 17). "Someone phoned me from Fairbanks to say that the Yukon Queen would not be operating from here this summer, that they were removing the boat."

Borg said he was surprised because that was not the message they'd been hearing from the company during the

"They kept leading us on all planning on being back. And then suddenly one day, we're pulling out."

The person Borg spoke to indicated that a major factor was the cost of insurance for the buses coming over the Taylor Highway to Eagle.

Borg says the road is not as bad as people seem to think.

"I've been here for 45 years and for the most part the road > is in better condition than it's ever been since the work was done here in the last two summers.

"There are a couple of places where there could be a concern, but there's a one lane maker and it's got pylons to keep you from going. They come with a pilot car, so I don't see where the road should have been an issue.

"We have fuel trucks and tankers that come in here with about 20,000 gallons of fuel. They don't come with a pilot car. They're not interested in dropping gasoline or diesel into the Forty Mile River."

He thought that the truck drivers just might be a bit more capable and experienced than some of the bus drivers he's seen over the years.

"They have had some incidents where they've taken the corners a little short and hung up the bus on the edge of the road in places just because they didn't respect the possibility of a soft shoulder."

The two buses that used to arrive from the road, added to the passengers from the Yukon Queen II, gave Eagle a short, but vital tourism injection each day during the summer. Local craftspeople set up what they called "the mall" as an openair market for their wares just across the street from the Courthouse/Museum. The museum and courthouse tour helped to support the work of the society.

The town walking tour that's offered every morning during the summer season includes the remaining buildings from Fort Egbert and takes about three hours. But not many Holland America travellers would see much of that.

Borg says that there were ways in which the bus and boat visitors were just perfect for the small village. They didn't need a place to stay over night. They didn't need to be fed. And they were only there for a couple of hours, after which life returned to normal.

It's been two years now since they've seen them at all and local crafts folk have a considerable stockpile of goodies piled up.

Why Do We Love Bars Even If We Don't Drink?

by Lisa McKenna

People watching is my best reason. I mean why watch T.V. when you can watch live the-

It's a chance to socialize without home invasion; it's a chance to hear music and laughter. There is also dancing, a great form of exercise.

Bars are also used to find employment, make connections to the community, find support (being it talking out your grief or finding someone with a kid who wants to babysit). Bars are very important social links. You don't have to "drink" to go into a bar: there are many non-alcoholic drinks available.

Bars are also places where you can mingle with different cultures (tourists) and glean a lot of information about peoples' different lands. You also pick up smatterings of different languages. All in all, bars are not as bad as the media portray them. Do you recall reading about the "Gentlemen's Clubs" in old England? It was a distinguished honor to belong to one.

Sure there are some real seedy bars but they are kind of reserved for the full-blown, living on the street, alcoholics, and your average Joe does not enter. But all of society cannot be controlled.

You see many a meeting held over a bar room table, the patrons drinking coffee or water and having lunch. The laughter that rolls around this table could not be found in any boardroom, there is a comradely air and this helps to keep the company strong and supportive of each other.

I think bars are wonderful places. If you go to a strange town and want to find out where something is (like the laundromat) all you have to do is go into a local bar and ask the bartender or customers. Bars are a wealth of information. So go visit your favorite watering hole soon, you'll be amazed at what you find.

Leading the Uke Revolution

"Today..." Tim Taylor tells his Grade 4 class at the Robert Service School in Dawson, "we will be beginning our ukulele lessons!"

What follows is the eruption of expression from the 11 children. Most look and sound excited, but there are still a few of them who seem worried. The same worried look on my face when I began taking music lessons as a child.

Taylor shares a common story with many of the people who moved from around the world to make a home in Dawson City. Originally from just outside of Montreal, Taylor attended Bishops University and after graduation decided to start applying to teaching jobs across the country. In fact, both he and his wife, Marie-Eve Owen, originally secured full-time positions in Whitehorse.

"We gave up two full-time positions for two part-time positions in Dawson," he tells me, "something just seemed right about that decision."

Fast-forward five years, and he is now teaching at the school full-time, splitting his lessons between French and Music studies.

Taylor is a musician himself, and has been playing Alto Saxophone on-and-off for the past 20 years.

But it wasn't until he attended a workshop last year that he began playing the ukulele.

"It is so portable, you can take it anywhere," he says enthusiastically, "and is opens up a whole world of possibility."

Once he began playing, he thought it would be a perfect instrument to begin teaching his students, and arranged for the school to purchase 20 sunlight orange uke's through the Mahalo school discount program. Two months ago, the happy sounding four-string ukulele's arrived, were tuned, and placed into their own individual cubbyholes in the music room, a teasing glimpse for the students who noticed them. Taylor's first lesson was on March 23rd, and I was pleased to be able to join in on the class.

Taylor is using James Hill's (Nova Scotia) "Ukulele in the Classroom" program, which teaches music theory by giving the students something simple to play and sing-along with. Hill is a world renowned Ukulele player and teacher, and you can see many of his performances on YouTube.

"I want the students to be taught surrounded by melo-

Tim Taylor leads the Grade 4 class through a tune on the uke dies," says Taylor, "rather than just chords."

He will be choosing traditional material for the kids to play, songs like "Frere Jacques".

Watching the class, I think this method will go over well in the remaining 11 weeks of the school year. I was amazed to see that several of the students already play other instruments, and even the ones who looked worried at the beginning of class began to ease up as they got to hold the uke and strum the strings for the first time. Only playing its open strings sounds beautiful.

"Does anyone know where the ukulele comes from?" he asks the class.

"Hawaii!" shouts one of the students.

"It actually comes from Portugal, but was brought to and made popular in Hawaii," he conveys (to my surprise), "and Mahalo – the maker of the ukuleles – means hello in Hawaiian"

He starts the class off by laying a few ground rules, saying that even though it may look like a cheap guitar – as one of the students stated at the beginning of class– it is still an instrument that needs to be respected.

"Don't slouch, sit up straight, with both feet firmly planted on the floor," he tells the class, "music is also about discipline." He strums the strings, playing each as a quarter note, while singing "E, A, D, G, My Dog Has Fleas" - a popular method of linking words with the tune of each note.

"I'll play it, then you repeat it," he tells the class. This, called echo teaching, is his preferred method in the classroom. It helps the students memorize concepts by having fun with it, and without them even realizing they are learning. Taylor told me it was working wonders in his djembe lessons, and from what I saw, it seemed to be doing the trick.

This year, 36 students between the ages of eight and 10 will have a chance to start learning the ukulele at the Robert Service School. Next fall, Taylor wants to expand the program to include performances at school assemblies, and even family coffee houses.

"Performance is a crucial part of the program," he told me.

So in the future, if you hear the distant sounds of the Hawaiian popularized instrument echoing off of the Slide, it may not be just in your head. Those notes will be coming from somewhere around town, where a child beginning to harness that musical spark

Something for Everyone at DCMF

PRESS RELEASE

DAWSON, YT – Today ten more artist names were announced, rounding out the eclectic lineup of Dawson City's 34th annual Music Festival.

Among the artists announced to play this legendary Northern event are Larry and His Flask, travelling from Oregon; Toronto-based bands, Born Ruffians and Hooded Fang; experimental cellist Cris Derksen, and many others.

"I wanted to have something for everyone, while trying resolutely to avoid tokenism," says the festival's producer, Jenna Roebuck. "I didn't want just a French-Canadian band or just a blues band, I wanted the coolest French band and the coolest blues band, and more importantly, I wanted those artists to complement the Yukon and reflect all the diverse and special people that live and visit here. A soundtrack for a unique place and eternally sunny summer nights."

Today's lineup additions are supplementary to the list of artists released in March, including the raunchy R&B legend, Andre Williams; Pokey Lafarge & the South City Three from St. Louis, MO; and Toronto's Bruce Peninsula. Fans of the Festival can look forward to a few more additions, including the headliners of the 2012 Kid's Fest and additional Yukon Artists, to be added in the coming months.

Weekend Passes for the 34th annual Dawson City Music Festival and to the separately ticketed Ron Sexsmith concert at the Palace Grand Theatre continue to sell well. The Festival takes place July 20-22 in various venues around the small town of Dawson City, Yukon, Canada. The festival has sold out each year since its inception – advance purchase is recommended.

Northern Doll Exhibit Comes to the Dänojà Zho

Submitted by the Dänojà Zho ity that reflects the doll-maker, Cultural Centre a community, and the story of Coming to Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre this summer - Sewing our Traditions: Dolls of Canada's North.

For over a decade Dänojà Zho in Dawson City has produced new seasonal exhibitions in the Gathering Room Gallery that engage and educate our citizens and visitors from around the world. While the Hammerstone Gallery gives visitors the opportunity to learn of the last 120 years of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in story, the Gathering Room exhibits tend to focus on community stories, cultural issues, celebrations, and artist practices.

In the summer of 2012 Dänojà Zho is proud to host Sewing our Traditions: Dolls of Canada's North. This travelling exhibition was produced by the Yukon Arts Centre for the Vancouver 2010 Cultural Olympiad with success and acclaim. The Northern Doll Show will be the second travelling exhibition presented by DZCC in the Gathering Room Gallery. The Where Are the Children? Healing the Legacy of Residential Schools exhibition, produced by the National Archives of Canada, the Aboriginal Healing Fund and the Legacy of Hope Foundation was presented with a community based exhibition, book launch and programming in the 2007.

The Sewing our Traditions exhibit is a collection of over fifty handmade dolls created by Inuit and First Nations artists from across the Canadian North. The dolls represent historical and contemporary perspectives on Northern traditions, fashion, and culture. Each doll has its own character and individual-a community, and the story of our unique northern cultures. One doll on loan to the exhibition was created by Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in citizen and artist Dolores Anderson. Dolores drew inspiration from her daughter Allison's commitment and leadership with the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Hän singing group. Dolores's doll is fashioned in celebration regalia very similar to the full size regalia she created for her daughter to wear. Dolores had an opportunity to travel with the Doll exhibition to Great Britain last spring and is currently planning a collection of dolls.

Dolls have had an important role in traditional First Nation society. For a child, anything can become a doll: a stick, a bit of ragged leather, a peculiarly shaped stone, or tuft of fur. Beneath the delights and good company of a doll, there are lessons to be learned.

For generations First Nations and Inuit women used dolls to teach their daughters the important skills of cutting and sewing hides and furs. Doll in hand, girls imitated their mothers, learning how to feed, dress, and care for a baby and the technical and creative skills needed to make clothes for the family. Doll making, like all sewing gives women and girls an opportunity to express skill, designs and creativity.

Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre will be open for the summer season Monday to Saturday 10am - 6pm May 23- September 21. For more information contact Glenda Bolt at glenda.bolt@trondek.ca, (867) 993-6768.

Hey kids. Want to make a paper doll?

Newsprint tears easily so be gentle! You can photo copy or scan this page first so that is on white extra strong paper. This will help you make more dolls too for a friend.

- 1. Carefully glue the doll to thin cardboard or poster board. A glue stick will be best but white glue will work too. A little goes along way!
- 2. Once the glue has dried cut out the shape.
- 3. Cut out the clothes. Try to follow the line and remember to keep the little tab boxes. Those little tabs fold over the doll to hold the clothes on the doll!
  - 4. Color your doll and clothes with felt pens or pencil crayons
- 5. Play! Why not make a village or a forest for your doll to live in. maybe your doll would like to have a snowy scene and snowshoes!

Pass the Soul Balm

by Lisa McKenna

"I scream out my anguish in pain. There is no balm for my soul."

So let's talk about "I", "I" is me and myself.

"Scream" is merely an expression of me, myself, and I. To go "out" is the opposite of going within.

I have verbally expressed (which is merely a fancy term for formulating ideas through words, or signs, or actions) my anguish (excruciating pain) but there is no relief to be found.

Pain? We all have experienced pain: physical, emotional, spiritual

What is a balm? A balm is a sweet smelling ointment used to heal and sooth the skin, BUT, a balm can be anything that soothes one. So what could be a balm for our soul?

What is a soul? Some say it is the spiritual, immortal element of a person; some say it is a person's inner character. The jury is still out on that one.

So a balm for the immortal, spiritual soul would take the place of religion or meditation. The balm for a person's inner character could include improving oneself, finding an inner character like your own (Is this the basis of Love?), or even just the discovery of one's own inner character.

Peace be with you.

Society's Biggest Secret: Husband Abuse

by Lisa McKenna

Did you know that 23% of women admit to abusing their husbands? This abuse can come in many different forms, all dealing with the idea of control.

Abuse can be withholding approval (or affection) as a means of punishment, or it can be constant criticism/belittling. The spouse can take away your car keys and money, thereby isolating you from friend, family, and events. They can threaten to harm your children and pets. Some actually take their anger out on your loved ones because they know that is the deepest way to hurt you.

They can hit, kick, punch, scratch, bite, spit, throw things at you, and even threaten you with a knife or gun. But what can a man do? A man is self-sufficient; he doesn't need anyone's help. A man is strong; he does not show physical or emotional pain. A 'man' is a protector of women and children and does not need the protection of others. Or so they have been trained to believe.

A man will suffer feelings of deep shame and worthlessness,

not only from the abuse but also from the fact that he "can't control his own wife". No man wants to admit to his friends that his wife abuses him and he lets her. Why does he let it go on? Is it from love? Is it from guilt? I mean, after all, she is sick. How could he walk out on her now? Is it because of his kids? Denial? Fear of arrest? (Most men who call 911 about domestic violence end up being the ones who are arrested). Or is it plain old inertia; they just give up and shut up and "take it like a man".

Only 1% of men ever report abuse, as opposed to 8% of women, but as women grow stronger the abuse towards men is increasing. This is not a good thing. Whereas the man is the protector of woman, a woman is supposed to be the nurturer, the font of life, loving.

What has happened to our society? Does it stem from greed? Or is it a payback from previous suppression? (Once women could not voice their opinions or vote ... only breed). This cycle of abuse MUST STOP or our society is DOOMED. So, gentlemen, speak out! Women and children have told their stories, now it's your turn.

Walnuts are not just fun to crack open and eat but walnuts are actually quite good for you. Remember in the last issue we talked about the importance of vitamins and minerals to make our bodies grow and be healthy, well walnuts are packed with protein and protein is necessary too!

Protein is found in red meat, poultry, fish, eggs, dairy products, NUTS, seeds, and legumes like black beans and lentils.

Protein builds, maintains, and replaces the tissues of your body. As a matter of fact, your muscles, organs, and immune system are mostly made out of protein. Protein also helps in the forming of red blood cells. Remember last issue about vitamins? Vitamin E helped to maintain the red blood cells. All of our bodies work kind of like a machine, or a computer, if we are low on oil we would not run right, if we do not have a power source we will not run at all.

Weather balloons, also called sounding balloons, are used to measure the air at high altitudes. They can measure the atmospheric pressure, the temperature, the humidity (how much moisture is in the air), and wind speed.

The first weather balloon was launched in 1896 by French meteorologist Léon Teisserenc de Bort. A meteorologist studies the atmosphere of our planet.

The weather balloons biggest claim to fame is its status as an indefinable flying object! (U.F.O.). Being made of a bright white heavy plastic, or covered in a silver foil, these balloons reflect the sun and the stars and are seen far above as a flashing of light U.F.O.s.

Oh, by the way, you can buy a weather balloon on e-bay for as little as $6 and a transmitter for as low as $30. BUT why you would want one is beyond me, though it would be rather fun to check out the temperatures and winds.

Walnuts are often used in cooking. Walnuts can be added to Banana Breads, Date Squares, Stuffing and Salads. You can chop them up and add them to your yogurt or oatmeal. You can even make a Walnut Dip by blending walnuts with cooked lentils and the spices that you prefer, like fresh garlic or hot peppers or? Walnuts come in basically three varieties, English (which the one most of us know) that has a thin shell, Black, that has a real thick shell, and White, which is sweeter and oilier than the others.

Did you know that unlike the peanut, which grows underground like a potato, walnuts grow on trees! Wouldn't it be fun to have a walnut tree in your back yard? It would be there for your grandchildren's grandchildren's grandkids because a healthy walnut tree will live several times longer than man.

Walruses are HUGE! A full grown male can weigh up to 1,700kg (3,700lbs). They also have whiskers and two long tusks that can reach up to a meter (3ft.) in length. They use their whiskers to find shellfish (their favorite food) from the bottom of the ocean. They use their tusks for hauling themselves out of the frigid waters and for breaking open breathing holes from under the ice.

They are quite sociable animals that get along great with each other, unless of course it's mating time where the bull (male) walrus can become quite aggressive. Can you imagine a 1,700kg animal mad at you? Eek!

The walrus has other features that help it to survive the extreme cold of its environment. They have a real thick store of blubber (fat) and it even has the ability to slow down its heart rate helping it to survive the cold even more.

There are two sub-species of walruses separated by geographical location (where they live on the world). One species referred to as the Atlantic live in Northeastern Canada and Greenland. The other sub-species known as the Pacific live off the Northern Russia coast to Alaska, with yearly trips into the Bering Sea.

If you're a dog owner, chances are you've had to pick up after your pet when they answered nature's call outdoors. Part of being a responsible pet owner is removing dog waste. Short of being unsightly, dog feces are also a health hazard. If you take time to regularly clean up after your pet, you'll be able to help prevent the spread of disease and do your part to be a better neighbour and keep our community clean. So please be a responsible dog owner and "Scoop when your dog Poops"
