Sprinkler System Failure at the Museum

PRESS RELEASE

(Dawson City)

The Dawson City Museum considers itself to be extraordinarily fortunate as they assess the collection after a pipe in the sprinkler system of the 111 year old building pulled away and dumped an untold number of gallons of water into the east side of the north gallery and the second floor visible storage exhibit.

Laura Mann, Executive Director was alerted by the fire department who responded to a fire alarm which was tripped by the discharge from the sprinkler system. Although it is difficult to know exactly how long the water was discharging, she estimates that it was between 30 and 45 minutes. A triage team was very quickly onsite so that once the water had slowed, artifacts could be moved into dry areas.

The Museum traditionally opens its doors in winter by appointment and opens for the summer season on the May long weekend. "Unfortunately, this year we will be closed to any visits prior to opening on the May long weekend." Laura Mann explains, "In the coming weeks we will be assessing the artifacts and ensuring that they are drying properly to minimize damage. I know that visitors to Dawson look forward to including the Museum on their visit but, at this time, we ask for their understanding as we must place our priorities on first, protecting the artifacts and second being ready for our summer hours in May."

Laura was also very grateful to the fire department for alerting her so quickly so

provided the wet/dry vacuums that helped to begin the 'mopping up' of the water."

In the coming weeks, the Museum and Property Management will be discussing the reason for the problem with the sprinkler system and whether there are steps that can be taken to prevent the problem. For now, Laura remains both optimistic and grateful. "If the sprinkler system had not tripped the fire alarm, had the fire department not known how important it was to begin the salvage process immediately and alerted me, had a triage team not been in place within 10 minutes of the disaster, well, I prefer not to think of what I might have been dealing with."

that the triage team could be assembled and ready to spring into action. She credits these volunteers with substantially reducing the amount of damage done. Since then, Laura has received official and unofficial offers of assistance from both Parks Canada in Dawson and the Museums Unit of YTG. "You always know that you can count on the professional community" she says, "but you can't underestimate our level of appreciation."

Mike Fraser of Property Management was also a valuable resource for the Museum. "I believe that Mike rounded up every towel and fan for at least 5 square miles and

Uffish Thoughts: Bye-bye to the Ice Bridge

by Dan Davidson

Just over a week ago I picked up Tim Falconer, the latest Berton House writer-in-residence, at the Dawson Airport. My routine, when I do this, is to drive the new writer to Berton House to give them an orientation point, and then do a quick ½ hour tour of the major sites in town.

They'll need to know where the Recreation Centre is so they can get a pass for the arena or the weight room; the location of the Health Care Centre, just in case; the two grocery stores and the drug store; the Yukon SOVA/Yukon College complex; the Klondike Institute of Art and Culture (Odd Fellows Hall) Building; City Hall; the Museum; a quick rundown of our historic buildings, etc.

Tim had been in email contact with our last two writers and was curious about West Dawson, so I included a swing across the ice bridge on the Yukon River as part of the tour.

Lots of our visitors find the idea of an ice bridge fascinating and a little intimidating. I don't often have any reason to cross it, and hadn't been on it since the Percy DeWolfe Junior race start. I, too, find it interesting, and make a point of driving it several times during the winter.

It was very solid on April 2; not a sign of water anywhere. The shore ends of the bridge, which are always the first parts to go, were firm and shining in the morning sun.

Today – April 11 – the ice bridge is closed to traffic and the warning sign has been posted.

I knew it was coming. I remarked to Tim at the time that if we had a solid week of the kind of weather we were enjoying on the day I picked him up, the bridge could be compromised by the middle of the month.

The disintegration of snow and ice in the spring follows an interesting pattern. By early April everything has settled and compacted down to a hard surface that will easily support a person, especially if there has been any weight on it. Walking our perimeter fence (to see where our dog was managing to escape) last week I found I was on solid "ground" as long as I didn't step off our dog's well-worn path.

This week, while looking for photo angles to shoot the damage the snow did to our second floor balcony when the slide guards gave way on Sunday morning, I found that there was no secure footing on the lawn and that everything had turned to a granular, sandy sort of texture on its way to becoming slush.

The ice bridge deteriorates in something like this fashion, beginning at the edges where, ironically enough, it first starts to freeze in the fall. Any movement of the water under the ice acts to disconnect the junction of the land and the river, and the shallow areas tend to go first.

On April 9 I noticed that the east bank of the bridge had gone slushy and was laced with puddles, not unlike those that were being formed on the streets by melt water all over the town. I took a few pictures and watched as a couple of pick-up trucks made the crossing. I was in my little KIA sedan that day and I wouldn't have tried it. Already some residents were clearly deciding to park their vehicles on this side and walk across. I wondered how long it would be before Highways decided it should be closed.

I got my answer this morning, just two days later. The more daring – or perhaps desperate – folk will continue to brave the puddles for a while, and skidoos may skip across the wet spots for a time after that, but it probably won't be long before the two parts of Dawson begin their seasonal separation.

Last year it was late April before the bridge was officially closed, and the ice went out on May 7, with the ferry going in the water on May 16. This year – who knows?

Letter to the Editor:

John and Madeleine Memories

Dear Editor,

John and Madeleine Gould welcomed my husband, Martin, and me to Dawson in 2008, and regaled us with plenty of tales of "back then."

We visited them at their home fairly frequently, using the excuse of delivering empties to drop in for a chat. Since then, everytime we pulled out John's book to check a bit of gold-mining history or to show to friends, or when we repeated one of Madeleine's stories, we thought of them fondly.

It seemed strange two years ago to think that Madeleine's brilliant eyes would no longer snap with glee – at least on this side of heaven's gate! And now John's passing means his written word (which he reluctantly autographed!) is even more precious.

We were pleased to have met them.

Thank you to Dan Davidson for keeping us abreast of Dawson news.

Janke Takes His Third MITY film Award

By Dan Davidson

It wasn't any great surprise when Daniel Janke's documentary film "River" won the Made In the Yukon (MITY) professional award at the end of the 13th edition of the Dawson City International Short Film Festival. The film about life on the Yukon River during the steamboat era was well made and quite moving.

What was surprising was Janke's announcement when he came to the microphone to accept the award from Dawson City Arts Society president Peter Menzies.

"I made a decision," Janke said. "I feel like I'm living in privileged times and I'm a very privileged person. I've won this (award) twice; this is the third time. So I decided to give the cash prize to an emerging film maker."

At the time he didn't know which of the MITY emerging artists that might be. Festival producer Dan Sokolowski says there will be some consultation on that subject before a decision is made.

First prize in the professional MITY category includes $1000 cash, a $1000 equipment rental from the Northern Film and Video Industry Association (NFVIA) and a guaranteed screening at the 2013 Tromsø International Film Festival in Norway.

The second prize in the MITY Pro category went to Veronica Verkley and her hilarious film, "The Working Cats Guide to the Klondike". Verkley created a mock documentary using live action, faux interviews and photo-shopped archival photos to reveal the secret history of when cats were used for mushing sleds and what the real "cat trains" were all about.

Second place, offers $500 cash and $500 worth of video equipment rental from the Klondike Institute of Art and Culture (KIAC).

Verkley's film brought down the house during the Friday evening showing and it was no surprise at all when it also took the $500 Audience Choice Award on Sunday night.

Honourable Mention in the MITY pro category went to "Fragments" by Neil MacDonald and David Hamelin. In this eight-minute horror story, a meteorite fragment causes a curious young girl to become ill and transforms her into a zombie.

There is also a MITY Emerging Artist category, First Prize, including $300 in cash and $500 worth of KIAC video equipment rental, went to "The Provider" by Moira Sauer. This was a six-minute entry about one woman's solution to meeting her need for companionship in the midst of a wilderness winter with no company but her sled dogs. Sauer commented that this 48-hour film contest product featured the only time her dogs had ever been indoors.

Second prize, which is $200 in cash and $400 worth of equipment rental, went to "How to make a Marshmallow and Peanut Butter Sandwich" by Kathryn (Kit) Hepburn.

Jay Armitage took honourable mention for his short film "Coming this Fall".

In the MITY Youth category the $100 cash prize went to a group of Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in youth who animated "The Story of Crow" with the assistance of adults Kerry Barber and Chris Clarke. The kids involved were Liberty Anderson, Arianna Rachel, Tay-Lynn Mierau-Charlie and Jaden Anderson.

The Lodestar Award went to "Throat Song" by Miranda de Pencier from Nunavut. In this film, a young Inuit woman seeks to reclaim her voice, which she has lost while living in a toxic relationship in a town that has had its cultural heritage amputated. The horrors she witnesses as a caseworker in the territorial justice department are amplified by the abuse she suffers at the hands of her own partner.

This award features $500 in cash and a Sterling Silver DCISFF pin.

Each year artists compete to create the television public service announcement that will be used by CBC North for this event. Each screening over the weekend begins with one of the entries, but this year's winner for broadcast was created by Moira Sauer.

The weekend also has a number of features besides the screening of over 100 short films. Sokolowski wears a variety of different baseball caps from his collection during the weekend and there is a prize for the person who can list them all in the order they were worn. Meshell Melvin won for the third year in a row, causing Sokolowski to suggest she might be stalking him.

There was the opportunity to make a one-minute film during the weekend, planning and shooting a film "in camera" (no editing allowed) with one of the iPads available for use from KIAC. The results of this challenge will be shown at Gerties on April 14.

Students from the Yukon School of Visual Arts kept the latter part of Sunday evening (while the Audience Choice award was being tabulated) interesting by setting up several tables with a line-up of MacBooks displaying film loops they had created with "found footage".

During the weekend there were master classes in filmmaking offered by Peter Lynch and Guy Édoin, as well as a Street Feast BBQ and Karaoke provided by chef Georgia Hammond and festival guest Curtis Grahauer.

And that ended the awards presentation, at which point it

Ducks Unlimited is a Big Hit

Photos provided by Ducks Unlimited

by Lisa McKenna

Ducks Unlimited has been around for over 7 decades. Founded in 1938 it has made its name as a leader in wetland conservation.

Partnered with government, industry, non-profit organizations and landowners, Ducks Unlimited has completed 8,880 habitat projects to date and they have conserved over 6.2 million acres as well.

In Canada they have over 144,000 supporters and work with other 'Ducks' in the U.S., Mexico, and New Zealand.

On the 31st of March this year Dawson honored the Ducks, (or should I say the Ducks honored Dawson?) with a large gathering and auction (all paintings and carvings etc. were Canadian made) that took place in the K.I.A.C. lounge and raised $44,000! The spin-off to the community was at least $10,000; Spin-off is money coming into the town for things like hotel rooms, meals, and souvenirs.

Several businesses and private people made up trays and trays of h'ordeuvres in lieu of dinner as 4 students from the school served and cleaned up. The students were awarded for their efforts by being presented with a painting by Ducks Unlimited, which they were able to auction of for $350 that they will put towards the school trip to France.

Peter Menzies also raised $1500 and it was donated to K.I.A.C.

Betty Castellarin had won a painting and a beautiful carved bird 10 years previously, and she donated it back to Ducks Unlimited.

According to June Mather it raised the most money ever and they are confident that the next one (set for the fall of 2013) will be even bigger, better, and raise more money for this worthy cause.

A first time attendee, Dwayne, said he would never ever miss another one. So ... I think it was a hit!

Look Out Below!

by Dan Davidson

One sure sign of spring in Dawson is when the taller buildings start roping off the boardwalks with "danger" tape so that people won't walk under the places where large loads of snow might suddenly attack them. The Dawson City General Store roped off its section of boardwalk first this year, followed, not long after, by the Old Post Office.

Our Seasonal Lakes

by Dan Davidson

Rapid spring melting is creating a series of large puddles (or tiny lakes) all over Dawson as the city crews rush about trying to get all the storm drains open. There has been more snow than usual here this winter and council recently discussed how rapidly the snow removal budget had been eaten up. A lot of these occur at the intersection of Fifth Avenue and the side streets. Here we have the perennial puddle at the corner of Fifth and Queen, just beside the Robert Service School, where the boardwalk is also awash.

THE DAWSON WOMEN'S SHELTER

is undergoing a change in direction and vision; seeking to work in accordance with our mandate. For these reasons, as well as expressed concerns about security, as of May 1st 2012, the Dawson Women's Shelter will no longer provide the service of community food bank. We thank the community for helping us to support and facilitate the food bank over the years

Berton House is a Incredible Gift to Canadian Writers

Story & Photo
By Dan Davidson

"Berton House has been fantastic," Lawrence (Larry) Hill said, just a few days before bringing his one-month residency to a close.

"I've always wanted to come up here ... and I managed to get a lot of work done.

"It's an incredible service to Canadian writers to offer this to us, no matter where we're from, whether it's Saint John's or Montreal, or Hamilton, in my case. To be able to bring writers to Dawson City is an incredible gift to those writers."

He finished the first draft of his latest novel, The Illegal, on the day he arrived, and managed to get well into the revisions during his stay.

"That's steaming along. I've also had the chance to collect some really useful material for my next novel, which I'll just call The Highway until I have a real title."

The Highway will deal with the experiences of one of the African American soldiers sent to help build the Alaska Highway. The central character will be from the American Deep South and will have issues of cultural and climate shock to deal with along with the well documented racism prevalent in the US armed forces at that time.

That novel is a couple of years away from being begun as Hill has a non-fiction commission that he is not allowed to discuss to work on first, after he finishes with The Illegal.

In spite of his dedication to craft and a heavy working schedule, Hill also found time to enjoy Dawson.

"Also, it's just been a really great time socially. I've enjoyed Dawson City and its people, met a lot of people in this short period of time and done a lot of stuff."

This includes being part of the third prize winning team in the chili cook-off during Thaw di Gras, dog sledding with Yukon Quest musher Brian Wilmshurst, doing readings at the Dawson Community Library, in a cabin in West Dawson, at the Yukon School of Visual Arts and the Robert Service School.

"It's been nice to engage with people. A few people have shown me their work, their creative work, and it's been nice to read that and just encourage them."

Hill is also keenly interested in art and enjoyed looking at work by local and visiting artists. On the afternoon that we sat for this chat, he had spent the earlier part of the day with John Steins, viewing his work and that of his recently deceased father, Ilgvars.

"It's a great way to connect with a place, to come up here as a writer and kind of step in."

While it is possible for a visitor to become very busy here, Hill never felt like anyone was pressuring him.

"It never felt like an imposition. People asked or suggested things and usually I'd say yes and sometimes I wasn't available. My sense is that people here understand that the writers can sort of carve out their time as they see fit. They can do as little or as much as they want.

"People just seem to let you do what you need to do."

Hill, of course, as the winner of the Commonwealth Literary Prize and with The Book of Negroes so promoted by his publisher that it had a deluxe, oversized, illustrated edition, had a bit more star power than the average visiting writer. When he first went in to the Post Office the clerk recognized him and openly admitted to being a bit star struck. When he had his library public reading, he pulled in three times the audience of any of the recent writers, packing the limited space.

Hill just likes to meet people, both as a writer and a tourist.

"When you travel, you can go to Cuba, stay in a five star hotel and meet the servers in the bars or you can come to a place and kind of settle in for a while, actually meet people and connect with them.

"That's some of the most rewarding kind of travel you can do in life, I feel, is to connect with people, work with them, share time with them, go into their homes, settle in, give them something of you ... and take something of them."

Hill is already plotting how he might return to the Yukon to take in all its seasons. He was here for the Young Authors Conference in late April 2006, but he feels he needs to see all of the territory's seasons in order to write the Highway book, since the story will cover several years. He will try to do this while he's working on other projects.

"I'm the kind of writer who likes to plant the seeds for a book a few years before I have to start working on it, especially if it's a complicated book, which this will be. If I waited until a year from now before I started assembling materials I'd lose six months when I was really ready to go. This way, by the time I start, I'll know exactly who to talk to and to read, and I'll have most of it at my fingertips."

Inspired by his attendance at Ian Tamblyn's house concert, Hill is wondering if he might not be able, in a year or two down the line, to organize a home reading tour that would take him up the length of the Alaska Highway and give him a chance to experience all the communities that might be settings for his novel.

He has some other thoughts about Dawson, as well. His wife, Miranda, has established a charity called Project Bookmark Canada.

"What it does is it sets up plaques in places in Canada where the literature (all fiction) actually took place. There are about ten of these in the ground now, and she's looking to expand it from coast to coast. The first one was from Michael Ondaatje's In the Skin of the Lion. There's a scene where a nun falls from the Bloor Street viaduct and her life is saved by a worker who is building the bridge. There's a plaque on the bridge with 400 words from the book that describe the nun falling, along with some information about the author and the book. Another one features Anne Michael's Fugitive Pieces."

The condition for the plaques is that the place still has to be there and identifiable even if the building or structure isn't any longer. Hill thinks that Dawson, already dotted with non-fiction plaques about historical places, could probably qualify for some of these as well.

Certainly a practice similar to this can be found all over the United Kingdom and Ireland.

Anyone with suggestions about site-specific literature should contact Project Bookmark Canada at its website.

Lucky

Lucky is a six month old pug-terrier-bear dog cross!

He is a really unique, cute, little guy, nearly full grown at around 30lbs.

He has only just arrived at the shelter, but would prefer not to spend any more time here.

Fully house broken and trained, Lucky needs a loving home. Come out to the shelter and fall in love with him today!

Air North Thank You!

The Humane Society Dawson would like to extend a huge thank you to Air North. Air North generously donated flights to the Humane Society so we were able to fly four puppies to the Calgary SPCA. At the Humane Society Dawson, we make every effort possible to find homes for all of our animals, but for these puppies it wouldn't have been possible without the help of Air North.

Thank you again for your support!

Government Announces Decision on Oil and Gas Postings

PRESS RELEASE

WHITEHORSE (April 12, 2012) —Energy, Mines and Resources Minister Brad Cathers has announced that oil and gas exploration rights will not be issued in any of the 12 areas of the Whitehorse Trough requested for posting in January.

The decision comes after the conclusion of a 60-day public review period, which followed a technical review of the 12 areas nominated for consideration by oil and gas companies.

"When the Yukon government received these requests for postings, I noted that it had come as a surprise," Cathers said. "As I said in February, government would need to decide whether to allow bids in all of the areas, some of the areas, or none of the areas, following the technical review and public consultation. What we heard during the public review period is that many Yukoners have concerns and questions about oil and gas exploration and development in the Whitehorse Trough at this time."

This oil and gas disposition process is now concluded. In the coming months, government will consider the issues raised during the public review.

"The recent public review was our first real opportunity to hear from Yukoners on the possibility of oil and gas exploration rights being issued in the Whitehorse Trough and we thank everyone who took part for their participation," Cathers added. "We also want to thank the staff of the oil and gas resources branch, who led the public review, for their hard work and service to the people of Yukon."

For more information on Yukon's oil and gas rights disposition process, visit yukonoilandgas.com.

Holland America to End Yukon Queen II Cruises

CBC News

Posted: Apr. 13, 2012

Cruise ship giant Holland America announced Friday, it will pull the Yukon Queen II out of the Yukon River for good.

The high-speed catamaran takes summer tourists on 164-kilometre river tours between Dawson City and Eagle, Alaska.

"We're not really sure what we're going to do with her, but we will move her out of the river this summer," said Paul Goodwin, an executive vice-president at Holland America. "It's just been a number of issues that have made it difficult to continue to operate and given that, we've just come to the conclusion that we are better off finding another way to give our guests the river experience."

Goodwin said the Yukon Queen may be leaving Dawson City (the boat actually winters in Eagle) but Holland America will continue operating there. However, he said that with the departure of the boat, the company is now less invested in the town.

"Obviously the less assets we have up there, the less invested we are," he said.

This is a somewhat different response that the company has been giving for the last several years, when it basically threatened to pull out of the territory entirely if the boat could not be part of its tour package.

The nervousness this caused amongst the tourism industry was accelerated when the company put its Klondike Inn in Whitehorse up for sale.

The Yukon Environmental and Socio-economic Assessment Board has been reviewing the Yukon Queen II for the past two years.

Actually, it's been longer than that. The initial review was bumped up to YESAB's executive committee after the local office's investigation was inconclusive and did not produce a ruling.

The company has been slow to provide data on issues of concern on how the boat's high-powered wake affects shoreline erosion and salmon habitat.

"Our rules set out that we need to receive that information within a certain amount of time," said Stephen Mills, chair of YESAB.

In fairness to the company it has been three seasons since the boat has been able to make its regular run for a full season. First there was the flood in Eagle, leading to a short season and then two seasons when the coaches could not travel the Taylor Highway to the small Alaskan village. For the last two years the boat component of the tour has been two or three hour cruise down river and back to Dawson.

Goodwin said the assessment process was one of the reasons for the decision to remove the boat.

"We don't necessarily see an end in sight because of course once we get through the YESAB process, assuming we got through the YESAB process, we then have to make application to DFO [the federal Department of Fisheries and Oceans], so it's a long, drawn out, expensive process and the other side of it is we have the road in Eagle," Goodwin said.

Indications from Eagle are that the Taylor Highway, while passable for regular vehicles and even freight and oil trucks, may still not be sufficiently restored for Holland-America's insurance company to allow the company to use it.

Holland America plans to hire a local boat — the Klondike Spirit — to help with its visitors this season.

Yukon River Breakups – A Statistical Breakdown

by Stephen Johnson

Once again, spring is upon us after another long, but not so bad, winter (thankfully). With melting happening in earnest, we begin to think about when the Yukon River is going to break, awarding cash to some lucky person who will guess close enough to the actual day and time of the ice’s demise. The annual graph has been prepared and, mathematically speaking, the river will break at precisely 7:22 p.m. on May 4, 2012. However, as Mark Twain is reported to have said, “There are lies, damned lies and then there are statistics”.

Alas, statistics is exactly what the graph represents. The chance of the ice breaking at 7:22 on May 4 is approximately 1 in 31,680 (22 days * 24 hours/day * 60 min/hour); and that is if we discard May 28, 1964 as an anomaly. Mind you, those are far better odds than Lotto 649 at 1 in about 14,000,000, so have some fun and best of luck with your guess.

For the mathematically minded, the line straight line through the data is called a regression line and is essentially, the average of all the data (sort of). The value R2, is called the regression and would be equal to 1.0 if all the data fell on the line. For this graph, since the data is scattered about the line, it means that there is about a 14.3% chance that the ice will break at 7:22 p.m. on May 4. But remember folks what Mark Twain said about statistics.

The Yukon Order of Pioneers has placed the Tripod and the IODE ladies are busy flogging the annual Ice Pool Tickets. They cost a toonie each and will be on sale until midnight on April 25. The wire from the tripod will trip the clock on the Dänoja Zho Cultural Centre but it is NOT connected to the fire alarm.

Fatherhood

Men wear many different hats, but the one I cherish most is fatherhood. Everyone tells you that children change your life. I was ready for it and believed what people were telling me, but it never really hits home until you’re fully into it.

I have two children as many of you know; Kai who is three years old and Zia Rose, who just turned a year old last week! My wife and the children have been away, visiting family in Montreal, hence my thoughts on fatherhood have come to light. Although, being on my own, no family obligations, no wrestling with sleepless nights, diaper changes and baby routines has been a privilege, I yearn to be back in that great chaotic energy!

Mining: A Hardier, Longer-lived Gold Rush this Time?

by Josée Bonhomme

The Yukon's mining industry is still in a great boom. The 2010-2011x (who knows when?) gold rush will be documented in archives and history. Students and researchers 100 years from now may document what we were doing today. They should have quite a time of it. This story may help them with a small piece of the puzzle.

The numbers are telling, and serve as outstanding statistics. Number of claims staked in 2011 for placer gold mining was 837, for Quartz or hard rock 114,587, from 83,261 in 2010. Active placer claims by region as of the end of the year totalled 14,358 in Dawson, 1,488 in Mayo, 2,625 in Whitehorse (includes Kluane district) and 46 in Watson Lake. The total is an impressive 18,517 "active" placer claims in all five districts. Over 250,000 quartz claims are in good standing throughout the four mining districts.

Water license applications (all sectors) in 2011 at the Water Board were 75, down from 88 in 2010, with 55 placer, and three hard rock applications (from 55 placer, 5 quartz in 2010, including amendments). A total of 165 mining water licenses or land use permits (Class 4) were considered "active" as of Dec. 31, 2011.

Quartz Class 3 land use permits issued by Mining Lands, EM&R totaled 26 in 2011, down from 30 in 2010. These are usually needed for larger exploration camps. Quartz Class 4 land use permits included one in 2010, and four in 2011. Seven Placer Class 3 land permits were issued in 2010, and two in 2011.

The Yukon Environmental and Socio-Economic Assessment Board's offices processed a total of 311 applications in 2011, up from 263 in 2010. Five out of six regions saw an increase, Dawson decreased from 88 to 58 projects from 2010 to 2011.

Interestingly, with such numbers, and so few workers (estimate of 65 directly involved) actually dealing with the "rush", it is a mathematical impossibility. Kudos go to those who soldier on with exponentially magnified tasks. The respect shown the industry with which they work, the dedication imposed and embraced, will be remarkable in its effects. Their role directly affects the economy and long-term performance of what can be a sustainable Yukon industry.

Revenues from all this activity in exploration and mining are difficult to compute as they may come from many sources in fees, royalties, and hidden costs that are changing constantly. According to the Yukon Bureau of Statistics, the Yukon's gross domestic product in 2010 was $1.681 billion dollars (chained 2002 dollars). Oil & gas and mining combined accounted for 9.2% of GDP, or $154.6 million dollars.

These extraction industries are tied with construction in third place of importance behind public administration (21.4%) and Finance, Insurance, Real Estate, Renting and Leasing, Management of Companies and Enterprises (17.4%). The 2011-2012 territorial budget predicts $3.145 million in Quartz mining fees, $30,000 in coal lease-related revenues, and $225,000 in placer mining fees for a total of $3.4 million

This is money that stays in the Territory to create a retail market, a need for restaurants, housing and gas stations. It has a multi-layered impact. To better illustrate this, Yukon's Energy Mines and Resources adds the following: 750 people are currently employed by hard rock mines in the Yukon, with hundreds of others benefitting indirectly from this activity.

Over 2,500 people are occupied at placer mining ventures and mineral exploration projects throughout the Yukon. The total value of placer gold produced in 2011 was $58.5 million. Yukon Zinc's Wolverine Mine saw a capital investment of over $300 million, and will reach full production this year.

In 2008, mineral exploration expenditures totaled $110 million. In 2011, this reached over $300 million. There are currently 107 active exploration companies in the Yukon.

The permit application process, despite being "busy", keeps to its deadlines and the time required for a placer land use permit and water license approval is about eight months. Two levels of environmental or socio-economic assessments are required. Both the YESAB and Water Board processes are public through modern website technologies.

Responsibility to approve permitting rests with the government or responsible agencies depending on the nature of each application. The Water Board is the final review body and approves the licenses and Class 4 placer land use permits.

Emphasis is shifting towards a better understanding of ecology and avoidance of disturbance to wildlife, proper heritage resource management, waste and safety regulations which are in a state of flux.

The Dawson Regional Land Use Planning Commission continues its difficult work with planning decades into the future for a balanced and sustainable community. They include all views and perspectives in their work. Miners' input was represented in 2011 by the Klondike Placer Miners' Association and the Yukon Chamber of Mines, along with some 20 individual miners.

In 1898, life was similar to today. William Ogilvie, DLS, took this photo when things were hopping. This was the second Gold Commissioner's and Mining Recorder's office before it moved to the present Dawson Museum building. In 1899, all Gold Commissioner's staff quit "to a man" on May 1st to work for miners as their Ottawa wages were much too low in the local Dawson economy. "Paris of the North" really did happen.

This is a time when regulatory bodies, approval or assessment offices must react to the "gold rush" as best they can. For those operating in the Yukon today, the best option is to stay informed; inquire of changes that may affect your operation from all agencies you must deal with.

Waste regulations are particularly critical to understand, or how to dispose of all categories of wastes, whether they are domestic, recyclables, scrap metals or hazardous/special wastes. Each region has its own idiosyncrasies.

Fast-Track, with Matrix Research and Seewolf Enterprises, are planning a two-day course in heritage resource conservation and management, and fuel spill avoidance or emergency response. The dates would be June 10-11 with room for 40 participants (miners and regulatory or assessment staff, first nations representatives). Funding has been requested from the Whitehorse Chamber of Commerce through their Private Industry Training Fund.

If the proposal is deemed worthy, the course will be advertised ahead of time in the Klondike Sun, and is planned to be offered as a first in Dawson City. This would be termed a Celebration of Knowledge event.

Editor's note: Josée Bonhomme is the principal of Fast Track Land Management and a former office manager here at the Sun.

Problem Placer Updates

On April 11 CBC North reported that the court case between the City of Dawson and the Slinky Mine (over the miner encroaching on the Dome Road right of way) had progressed to the Yukon Supreme Court. Justice Ron Veale is expected to work on a ruling later this month after he receives final written arguments from the lawyers for the two sides.

The item quotes him as being

"amazed that the legal issues around this case are based on legislation more than 100 years old.

Out on the Dredge Pond Subdivision the local office of the Yuikons Environmental and Socio-economic Assessment Board are indicating that Mike Heisey has dropped his plans to mine the claims he holds across the Klondike River from the subdivision. The Yukon News article indicates that Heisey prefers to give up the mining rights on the property in exchange for getting the deed to the property.

Though Heisey felt that the City of Dawson was backing him in his negotiations with the territorial government on this matter, the town's development officer, Micah Olesh, said this was news to him.

DCAS Survives Changes and Continues to Thrive

by Dan Davidson

It was a year of many changes for the Dawson City Arts Society (DCAS), as executive director Karen Dubois noted in her presentation to the annual general meeting on March 29. Three positions in the main office had turned over within a few months of the last AGM, including the programming and administrative assistant jobs. One of the programmers moved to take over the direction of the ODD Gallery/Artist Residency division, so there were really four changes.

The programmer jobs were redefined to two equal positions, making for more stability in the presentation of two major annual programs, the Yukon River Arts Festival and the Youth Art Enrichment program. One staffer now also manages presentations and special events, while the other looks after community courses, of which there are many.

Emma Tius and Matt Sarty were the new faces in those positions, and they managed a busy eight months after they took over without missing a beat.

Dubois noted that DCAS, which operates in the world through both the gallery and the Klondike Institute of Art and Culture (KIAC), has a new website. It's a bit of a work in progress, but "we're very happy with the functionality and the appearance ..."

Towards the end of the previous year the organization received funding to upgrade its equipment, as a result of which it has a new sound system, film screen, high definition projector, flatscreen monitors, scaffolding and, to the eternal gratitude of its audiences, comfortable chairs and a better system of storage for them after each event.

Last year the executive made an attempt to raise $40,000 in independent funding from DCAS's normal funding sources. Their previous best had been $14,000 and Dubois was pleased to note that they made it up to $23,000 – a good start.

DCAS continued to be a vital member of the board of the Yukon School of Visual Arts, as well as participating in the Klondike Development Organization and the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in regional economic planning exercise.

Looking ahead, the board has been working on plans to deal with the Odd Fellows Hall itself, which is showing some wear after more than a decade of its new life as DCAS central. Repairs are needed to the sprinkler system, the ceiling and the heating system. Last year the ballroom floor was refinished and it is holding up well.

Recently, Dubois made a pitch to Dawson's town council for funding to assist it in applying for Cultural Capitals status for the year 2014. This is a competition for communities of fewer than 50,000 people. She did not know it at the time of the AGM, but the request was viewed favourably by the council and some funding was approved at a special council meeting a day after the AGM.

DCAS members enjoyed a slide show of the organization's events while listening to the evening's business

"Working at KIAC demands the ability to switch between creative visioning for future programs, to making arrangements for elevator repairs, to conducting cross Canada recruitment, to making sure the fuel is delivered on in Dawson City."

Menzies noted the importance of the Economic Impact Study in proving the importance of the arts in the community.

"A parade of visiting dignitaries from Europe, the USA and Canada all marvel at Residence program out of Macaulay House, which is shared during one residency period with the Dawson City Music Festival to bring in a Songwriter in Residence.

Emma Tius and Matt Sarty presented the program report;

DCAS executive director Karen Dubois, president Peter Menzies and board members Lesley Grant and Elaine Corden schedule," Dubois said. "There is an ever revolving cast of characters coming in and out of the doors, from toddlers in their tutus, to artists from across the country, to repairmen, to members and volunteers."

DCAS president Peter Menzies said the organization was celebrating "another successful season, leaving another chapter of fond memories and lasting impact as we continue to grow the 'cultural cluster' here what we have done here."

KIAC has a yearly schedule that keeps spawning annual events: the Dawson International Short Film Festival, the Yukon Riverside Arts Festival, the Youth Art Enrichment Program, Summer Youth Art Camp, the ODD Gallery, and the Gallery's Natural and Manufactured project.

During the last year there have been music lessons (guitar, piano and fiddle), a local orchestra, dance classes, visual art for all ages, several film workshops, another 48 Hour Filmmaking Competition, and the members' art gallery.

The building also plays host to music and drama performances, a winter bi-weekly film night and monthly community coffee houses from September through May. Last summer it sponsored a summer series at the Front Street Gazebo and runs a Kids Art program in the summer.

There is also the Artist in Tara Rudnikas spoke for the ODD Gallery; Dan Sokolowski reported on the short film festival.

The last major item on the program was the election of new directors to a couple of boards, something which never seems to be a problem for this group.

Continuing members on the main DCAS board are Leslie Grant, Lulu Keating, and Georgette McLeod. They are joined by Caili Steel, Rian Loughheed-Smith, Peter Menzies, Elaine Corden, Gail Calder, Pat Habiluk, and Meg Walker.

The ODD Gallery also has a board, and it is comprised of Janice Cliffe, Matt Sarty, Emma Tius, Meg Walker, Kerry Barber, Dan Sokolowski, Aubyn O'Grady, Rain Loughheed-Smith, Eryn Foster and Evan Rensch.

Mooney Wins Bookie Award

Story & Photo
by Dan Davidson

Jacob McArthur Mooney, who spent last fall at Berton House, has won first prize in the Poetry division of CBC's Bookie Awards. Money won for his second poetry collection, Folk (McClelland & Stewart).

Folk is a collection of linked poems in two sections, one rural, the other urban. Moony begins with the 1998 crash of Swissair Flight 111 just off the coast of Nova Scotia, not far from Peggy's Cove and then moves to Toronto's Pearson International Airport for its other setting.

The book is described as "an elaborately composed inquiry into the human need for frames, edges, borders, and a passionate probe of contemporary challenges to identity, whether of individual, neighbourhood, city, or nation."

CBC Books introduced the CBC Bookie Awards last year, as a "people's choice" of Canadian literary awards. Readers across the country cast their votes for their favourite science fiction, mystery books, graphic novels, literary fiction, short story collections and more. This year they added two international categories.

The finalists were chosen by CBC's book-loving producers at CBC Books, Canada Reads, Writers & Company, The

Blast From the Past that Didn't Need to Be

by Lisa McKenna

He was born in November 1949 and he died in 1982 at the young age of 33. Flying home on an Air Canada flight coming back from Texas, where he had played in a music festival, the plane filled with smoke forcing a landing in Cincinnati. He was one of 23 passengers who succumbed to smoke inhalation; some say it was because he kept returning to the plane to help others.

He was born and raised in Ontario, but he also had relatives that he often visited in Nova Scotia. The influence of the Maritimes is revealed through his music. He sang about the farmer, the fisherman and sailor (though according to his younger brother "he could get sea-sick walking across a wet lawn!").

He began to sing just after he learned to talk and when he was 5 his Uncle Lee hand-made him his first guitar. During his high school years he played bass and formed a band called The Hobbits.

His music had a definite Celtic tone, most likely from his DADGAD tuning method over the regular EADGBE that is used by most guitarists.

He was 6'4" and built like a truck, his influence to Canadian Folk Music was deep and lasting. Nancy White, a popular Canadian singer/songwriter, was quoted in the Globe and Mail in July of 1981 as saying that he "had a voice you could take a bath in".

I agree, but I think we have to live in a land 'wild and savage' and 'seek the Northwest Passage' to hear the beautiful baritone of Stanley Allison 'Stan' Rogers again.

Yukon College Graduates Dawson's HACES class

Story & Photos
by Dan Davidson

The graduation feast for the current class of the Heritage and Culture Essential Skills program was held in the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Community Hall on March 21.

Program Coordinator Jodi Beaumont explained that the program, offered by Yukon College and sponsored in

• Heritage Documentation Using Film

• Heritage Communications
The Dawson program was able to add a publication design component.

"All of the Dawson students made a considerable commitment to be part of the program," Beaumont said, "and now we're hoping that we have Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in citizens, as well as some other local people,

"I want to thank all the graduates for sticking it out and getting yourselves through this program," said Jackie Olson, TH Heritage Director. "I know 24 weeks is a long haul is a long haul and some of the topics, I'm sure, were quite challenging, but I think you guys did an amazing job of it. I really look forward to, in the future, working with you in our heritage department."

Heritage and Culture Essential Skills graduates Paul Blanchard, Christine Blanchard, Leanne Mason, Billy Lavigne, Carol McBride, Tish Lindgren, Erika Scheffen, Darwyn Lynn, Kylie VanEvery, and Bo Yeung

Dawson by the college, the TH Heritage Dept. and the Klondike Regional Training Trust Fund, has been run in several other communities, including Ross River, Pelly Crossing and Mayo, over the last several years.

This is its first offering in Dawson.

"It's a program that started back in 2000 when all the First Nations got together and said that we really needed training so that people in our communities could start working in the heritage field."

The program is designed for entry-level students, who study a basic nine-course curriculum over a period of several months. In Dawson the program ran for six months and included:

- Introduction to Heritage Management
- Work Place and Essential Skills
- Research Skills
- Caring for Resources (Archives and Collections Management)
- Traditional Knowledge Management
- Language Management
- Heritage Documentation Using Digital Photography

living in town, who have the skills to join the heritage team at TH, as well as heritage workers at Parks Canada, the Yukon government, the museum and other job opportunities in Dawson."

Beaumont herself, who is the Traditional Knowledge Specialist with TH Heritage, was one of the instructors.

Another was Lue Maxwell, the coordinator of the Dawson campus of Yukon College, now in its first year in its new quarters.

"We really appreciate you using the college," said Maxwell, "and creating a legacy with what you've done. These are things that you'll be looking at and your families will be looking at, in the years to come."

"It's taken years to get this thing off the ground, but this was the right time and you guys were the right people. Well done."

Other instructors included graphic designer and photographer Michael Edwards and film maker Lulu Keating, who were unable to be present for the event as they had other commitments out of town.

"We continue to grow and we will be looking for you people to join us, hopefully sooner than later."

In addition to projects already under way, Olsen mentioned that the Tr'ochëk heritage site is on track for development. This was confirmed last November 30 by the announcement of $202,200 for this project by Leona Aglukkaq, the Minister of the Canadian Northern Economic Development Agency (CanNor) and Minister of Health.

The graduates in the complete program were Christine Blanchard, Paul Blanchard, Leanne Mason, Billy Lavigne, Tish Lindgren, Darwyn Lynn, Carol McBride, Erika Scheffen, Kylie VanEvery, and Bo Yeung. Four other people had taken portions of the program, as time and personal considerations allowed.

The formal part of the ceremony concluded with a showing of the short films that the graduates had collaborated on during the course.

The social part of the evening continued with live music and lots of visiting.

A Nugget from the Emerald Isle

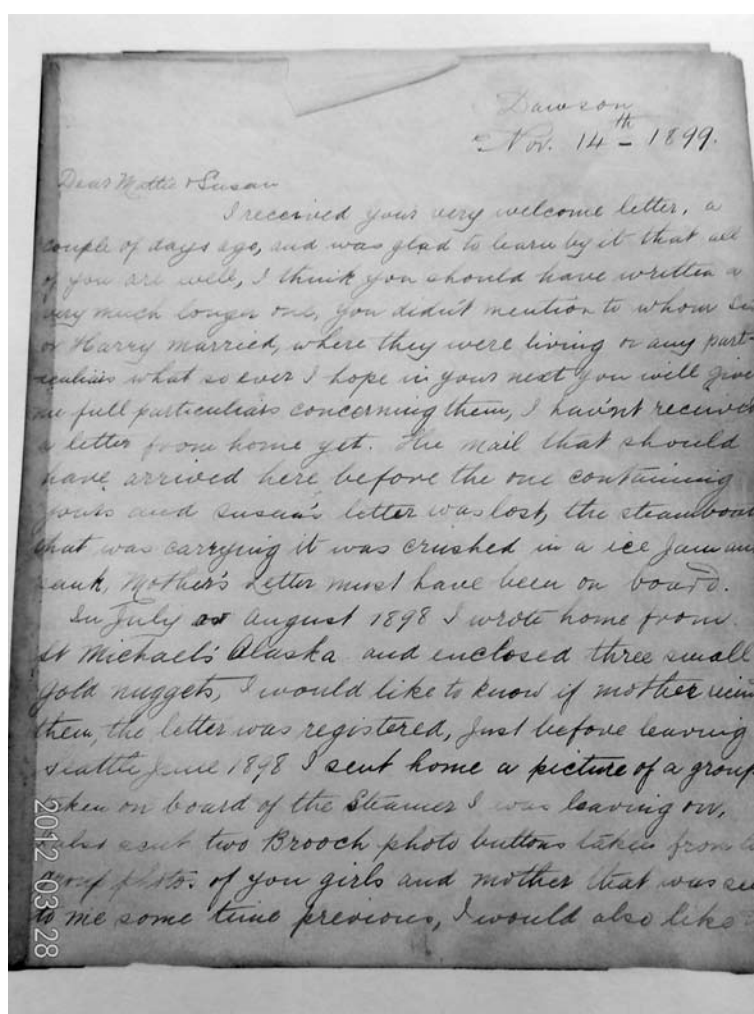

A new book compiled by Walter Phelan, a friend of mine, has just come from the publishing house. The reason I write to your paper is because the latter book is essentially about the Klondyke gold rush. The book, in a nutshell, encompasses a series of pictures and letters sent by one John Lee, an Irishman from County Laois, back to his family and friends in Ireland. He left Ireland in the late 1890's in search of a new life by the Klondyke River. The letters herein detail his exploits during the time of the Klondyke Gold Rush. It is a fascinating insight into the weather, trails, shooting, fishing, mine exploration and a host of other activities carried out by the latter during his time in this rather hostile environment. It is a part of your history as much, if not more, than ours, and this is why I write to you. I would also love to hear from descendants of anybody who knew the latter or any other information you may be able to find.

Enclosed you will also find some extracts together with some pictures to give you, the reader, an insight into what the book is trying to achieve. How the transcripts came to be in the capable hands of Walter is another story in itself. Apparently they were bought by a Laois lady at auction in Dublin due to the fact that John was from her native county. Having read the transcripts she then decided that, due to the nature of the material, Walter would no doubt be interested in it as a museum piece. In case you're wondering, Walter owns and runs the Irish Fly Fishing and Game shooting Museum in Attanagh, Co. Laois.

In conclusion it would be great to hear from anyone who may have something to add to this wonderful story. For those of you who would like to know more you can contact Walter at the above address or myself via e-mail at rupertbutler827@gmail.com.

Thanking you all in advance. Have a great year.

THE COOKSHACK
with Georgia Hammond

Fall-off-the-bone Steamed
Pork Ribs

Preheat oven to 300°C

The first step to making delicious ribs is making a dry rub. Below is what I use, but it's worth experimenting to find what you like.

Mix together:

- 1 cup dark brown sugar
- 1 tbsp garlic powder
- 1 tbsp black pepper
- 1 tsp salt
- 1 tsp chili powder
- 1 tsp paprika
- 1/2 tsp cayenne pepper

Once you have these all mixed together, rub the mixture all over the surface of your ribs. Take your time and work the mixture right into the surface of the meat as much as possible. Some recipes will ask you to remove the membrane from the back of your ribs, I generally do not do this when using the steaming method, as I find it makes the meat actually fall right off the bone completely, making a fork and knife necessary. This way, you get tender ribs that you can still eat with your hands.

Once you have your ribs seasoned with the dry rub, it's time to set up your "steamer". Take a roasting pan or any baking sheet with sides high enough to hold an inch or so of water. Place a wire roasting (or cooling) rack inside the pan and pour water in until you get an inch deep in the bottom of the pan. Place your ribs on top of the rack and wrap the whole thing in foil. Place the ribs in the oven on a low heat (300°C) for about three hours.

After three hours or so, take your ribs out (they should be very tender by this point) and coat them in your favorite BBQ sauce. Then place them on a baking sheet and bake them at 375°C, coating them a couple times over forty minutes or so until the BBQ sauce is nice and sticky. If the urge to grill is upon you (as it should be with the weather we've been having) then skip the last baking and grill the ribs on low heat instead.

Voila! Tender, delicious, melt in your mouth ribs.

Shadows

by Lisa McKenna

What is a shadow? A shadow is an area where light cannot reach due to an obstruction. A shadow becomes larger as the source of light is further away from the obstruction (object). This leads to the conclusion that shadows become smaller as the light source moves closer to the object. At different times of the day shadows outside will become taller or shorter depending on the angle of the Sun, at high noon a shadow is directly under the object.

A shadow on the Moon caused by the Earth is called a Solar eclipse and a shadow on the Earth caused by the Moon is called a Lunar eclipse.

In history there have been what is known as shadow people. Shadow people are seen out of the corners of our eyes (peripheral vision) and are seen as dark humanoid shaped figures often reported to have glowing red eyes. They are thought to be evil and aggressive by most but some think of them as guardian angels. They are NOT ghosts. Ghosts appear as a white mist, decidedly human, and they can appear fully clothed.

Shadow puppetry can come in two forms. The shadow play, originated during the Han Dynasty, 206 B.C. to 220 A.D., and used cut-out figures held between a source of light and a translucent screen to act out plays. The figures are articulated and a good puppeteer can make their puppet run, laugh, dance, or even embrace another figure.

The second form of shadow puppets is hand shadows. Who among us has not made a bunny rabbit on the wall? Hand shadows can also be very intricate. Some can soar like an eagle; some can blink their eyes; bunnies can run and hop and wiggle their tails! Look on the Internet for Hand Shadows and watch the "magical hand shadows show"; it is amazing!

There is also shadow dancing. In shadow dancing a dancer, or several dancers dance between a light source and a translucent screen. This creates an impersonal, unidentified, unknown dancer. With this sense of freedom the dancers can dance without fear of judgement. It is also a joy to watch.

Then we have shadow boxing which is a warm-up exercise for persons involved in combat sports, like boxing. A potential boxer imagines an opponent before him and practises jabs and upper-cuts and combinations until he feels relaxed and comfortable with the moves. His feet never stop moving, he bounces around like a beach ball, this increases his sense of balance and widens their comfort zone.

BUT... the most important shadow is your own. Ever do the Spooky walk on a street? Have you ever walked in a town at night passing underneath the street lamps watching your shadow grow so that your legs look 2 meters long and then shrinking so that your legs are mere centimetres tall?

Shadows are also free! All one needs is a source of light (could be the Sun which is free) and an object (objects can be found that are free as well, like your hand).

The Shadow was an old radio play from the 1930's. It was also a pulp magazine that ran for 385 issues from 1931 to 1949. It starred a crime-fighting vigilante who was a "wealthy young man about town" who apparently had psychic powers for he could 'cloud' one's mind. The Shadow originally wore a black slouch hat, a black long-coat (with crimson lining), and a traditional black suit. By 1964 he had slightly changed his style wearing a black fedora, a crimson scarf, a black long-coat, and of course the traditional black suit. He ended every show with the advice that "The weed of crime bears bitter fruit. Crime does not pay.....the Shadow knows!" But who knows what evil lurks in the hearts of men?

WOMBANIA BY PETER MARINACCI

What is Elder Abuse?

by Lisa McKenna

As our population grows older so do the incidences of elder abuse. Elder abuse can be broken down into several categories.

- Physical abuse
- Sexual abuse
- Domestic violence
- Psychological abuse
- Financial abuse
- Neglect
- Abandonment

It is generally believed that at least 6% of the elderly are abused and neglected, that does not even include self-neglect which would bring up the percentage significantly.

Physical abuse includes hitting, slapping, restraining the person in an inappropriate fashion. It causes bodily harm, pain, or impairment. It is not an uncommon sight to see the elderly being roughly dragged along by the arm.

Sexual abuse is the same as sexual abuse for everyone. It is being forced to do something you don't like to do. Whether this includes sexual intercourse, being forced to expose oneself, being forced to touch yourself or someone else, being inappropriately touched or even being exposed to, it is all abuse.

Domestic abuse could have been going on for a long time or it may have just begun. It could be that the other partner is being abused also, or they could be losing some of their psychological well-being. It is just as hard to figure out the cause for domestic violence in elders as it is in the general population.

Psychological abuse is when the victim suffers mental or emotional anguish. This can be caused by threats, humiliation, willfully confusing them and this can be done both verbally and non-verbally. Psychological abuse can include ignoring the person thereby isolating him or her; frequently the elder will be isolated from friends and activities.

What can be done? Watch for signs of abuse, changes of personality or behavior, bruising, weight loss and regressive behavior (like thumb sucking or rocking).

If you are worried about someone do not stay silent, talk to them, talk to help lines talk to their doctor.

If you witness elder abuse don't be afraid to try and stop it then contact the appropriate authorities.

Elder abuse, as well as all kinds of abuse towards people, and animals, must be STOPPED!

Financial abuse is not confined to only family members and friends misappropriating the elder's bank accounts, cash, and investments. There is a growing amount of fraud towards the elderly. From winning a vacation, or electric scooter, to starting up a college fund for their grandchildren the elderly are especially vulnerable.

Neglect, and self-neglect are harder to define. Neglect is when the caregiver does not provide the necessary care to the patient and self-neglect is when an elder person fails to provide themselves with the care they need. Neglect is the most prevalent form of abuse found against the elderly. It can be found in private homes, private care facilities, and government run facilities, just about everywhere you find elders. Over medicating these elders is also abuse.

Another form of neglect is abandonment. Abandonment is when you take someone to a place they don't want to be and leaving them there, or taking them somewhere they do want to go and leaving them alone for an inappropriate length of time.

Elder abuse has more complications than just the abuse itself. Abuse can cause a decrease in functional abilities, an increase of dependency and a sense of helplessness. Abuse also causes an increase of stress, a worsening of psychological decline, depression, malnutrition, dementia, morbidity, and even DEATH.

V is for VITAMINS

What are Vitamins? Why should we take them? How do we take them?

Vitamins, along with minerals, are found in the foods we eat. Our body needs these vitamins and minerals to grow properly.

There are fat-soluble vitamins can be stored in our fatty tissues for a couple of days or even up to 6 months! Fat-soluble vitamins are A, D, E, and K. Vitamin A, found in carrots, helps you have healthy eyes. Vitamin D, found in fortified milk and SUNSHINE helps strengthen your bones by helping your body to absorb Calcium. Vitamin E, found in vegetable oil (Canola, Olive or Corn), egg yolks, and nuts and seeds is important because it protects your cells and tissues from damages, it also maintains healthy red blood cells.

Vitamin K helps you blood to clot and it can be found in dairy products, broccoli or leafy green vegetables.

Water-soluble vitamins need to be replenished daily because what you don't use you pee out! They include Vitamin C, that is found in all citrus fruits and other things like strawberries, tomatoes and cabbage. It also includes all the B Vitamins, which can be found in a variety of foods ranging from fish and poultry to beans and peas. B's are important in your energy level and they also help in the making of red blood cells, which carry the oxygen into our blood stream.

VIOLETS

Do you know you can eat a violet? Did you know that there are many different flowers that are edible?

Nasturtiums have a peppery flavor and, when pickled, they can replace the far more expensive caper. A caper is an unripe flower of a cactus-like shrub that grows in the Mediterranean and parts of Asia; it's real salty and sour.

Yellow Calendulas can replace the VERY expensive saffron in your recipes (saffron is harvested, by hand, from the inner pistils, or stigmas, of crocuses).

Borage, which is an annual herb and is often called the starflower, has a taste like cucumbers and is often used in cooking.

Miniature pansies are known to taste a mild wintergreen flavor, whereas violets, roses (with the white base of the petal removed) and lavender are known to be sweet.

Carnations are spicy, peppery, and almost clove-like. Chive flowers, of course, have an oniony taste and garlic flowers have (you guessed it!) a garlic flavor.

Even young dandelion buds can be fried and they taste surprisingly like mushrooms!

BUT BEWARE! SOME FLOWERS ARE TOXIC AND CAN MAKE YOU REALLY SICK.

*Down behind the old stone wall
My tears fell on the flowers I wept for loss and sought heart's ease For many sorrowful hours. My Grandmother's quiet, gnarled hands Were crossed with perfect care I kissed her still and silent face And left a violet in her silver hair.*

The fragrant violets grow I pick them in a perfect bunch Because I love them so. My Grandmother's gnarled and busy hands Take the bouquet with gentle care She puts them in the chipped pink glass To perfume her bedroom air. -Written by Jenny Matlock for her Grandmother.

A vulture is a bird of prey but, unlike most other birds of prey, it prefers to feed on dead animals. A vulture has very acute eyesight and can spot a meter long carcass from 6-½ km (4 miles) away!

One vulture was known to hit a plane at 37,000 feet, making it the highest-flying creature on earth (except for man).

There are 22 different types of vultures, 15 from the New World and seven from the Old. The difference between new and old is basically geographical. The "new" is from the Americas, the "old" from Africa and Asia.

Vultures have adapted to their situation. The African White-Backed has a really long neck to allow it to dig deep within the carcasses. The Egyptian vulture, being small, has learned to break open Ostrich eggs with a stone. The Turkey vulture, or Buzzard, has an acute sense of smell, allowing it to find road-kill before anyone else discovers it.

Vultures often have a bad name but their use in cleaning up the environment is great; by removing the dead they help stop the coming of disease and they keep our waters uncontaminated.

So here's a thumbs up to our very, very ugly birds! THE VULTURE!

JUST FOR FUN

Try your hand in making sugar flowers Pansies work best. You rinse your pansies very well and pat them dry with a paper towel. Then you paint them with a light coat of egg white, lay them in a bed of fine sugar, cover with more sugar, pick them out and shake of the excess sugar, lay them to dry on wax paper and... TA DA! Beautiful decorations for cakes, or cupcakes, or even as a garnish for your salad or plate. Check it out.
