Dawson Celebrates May Day With a Breakup

Story & Photos
by Dan Davidson

Break-up on the Yukon River in front of Dawson occurred as 9:42 on a misty May 1 Tuesday morning. This is six days earlier than last year, but well within the range of normal breakup times and about five days from when the Klondike River cleared out at the confluence.

Workers in the Dānojā Zhō Cultural Centre were alerted by Victor Henry when they arrived that he was certain the ice would soon go.

"The first thing I saw," said Glenda Bolt, "was Victor Henry's face in the window with a big smile on his face, saying, 'It's gonna go!'"

He has been walking up and down the dike for hours, and he was sure. Bolt and her co-worker, Kylie Van Every, made tea for few people and then stood on the deck and watched the river.

Bolt phone the IODE's Joyce Caley and told her to be ready for a second call.

She also told her not to bring her ladder, because there was one at the centre.

The octogenarian official timekeeper for the ice pool has been known to cycle down to the centre from her Fifth Avenue home with a ladder strapped to the carrier of her bike.

About a half hour later Victor called out that it as moving.

"It was. It was the whole giant sheet (that the tripod was on). That giant sheet was braking up right to the very foot of the tripod. It was sitting there and sitting there, and then it did the long, slow pull and then snap!"

That was the cable from the tripod tripping the wire that led to the clock mounted on the building where they were standing.

Bolt quickly phoned Caley and then Fire Chief Jim Regimbal, who triggered the fire alarm from city hall.

"We all went out there and we had a good old time calling people and hollering out."

Bolt said she noticed quite a few people either calling or texting on cell phones this year, getting the word around town even before the siren sounded.

Within minutes there were crowds lining the dike from the old CIBC building and down towards the ferry landing.

The excitement lasted for the better part of an hour, and there was some slight concern when it was clear that there was a bit of a jam down towards Moosehide, but the water in the river is low for this time of year and any backwash from a jam seemed unlikely.

Caley arrived and Bolt helped her take down the clock, verifying the time from its stopped hands.

Caley had to wait until she collected the day's mail before making any announcements. The tickets that had been sold in Carmacks had not yet arrived and they needed to be tabulated to see if any one had picked a time closer to the one she already knew about.

It turned out they had not, and so Dawson's Mandy Johnson was the declared the winner of approximately $3700.00 later in the afternoon.

Joyce Caley said it wasn't a very exciting break-up, but agreed that safe is better than dramatic.

Uffish Thoughts: Whatever Happened to Sustainable Wastewater Treatment?

Story & Photo
By Dan Davidson

Word that Dawson City really will not be able to afford to run its new wastewater treatment plant will not have come as a surprise to anyone who has been paying attention for the last quarter century. I've been hearing that since I moved here.

The idea that the effluent created by a ratepayer base of 581 homes, which might account for 1100 people (because not everyone in the Klondike is on the system), should cause the town to be placed on a list of environmental offenders that included places like Victoria, Ottawa, Montreal, Halifax and St. John's, was always one that eluded any non-bureaucratic intelligence.

Nevertheless, that's where we ended up, and the federal departments in charge of pursuing such offenders seemed to delight in going after us, perhaps because we were the smallest target on their list by several orders of magnitude. After all, if it took them 20 years to run us to ground, what hope did they have of ever succeeding with those much larger communities?

A number of them don't even go as far as we have gone for decades in carrying out screening of the waste to remove the solids. That is the definition of primary sewage treatment, after all, though that fact seems to be omitted whenever federal officials want to castigate us for "dumping raw sewage" into the pristine (sorry – it's silt brown) Yukon River.

This is why the edifice being built on Fifth Avenue is called a Secondary Sewage Treatment Facility, though hardly any other member of the news media ever seems to grasp the significance of that fact.

Mayor Peter Jenkins was telling the world we could not afford to have our utility costs double back in 1985, when he was mayor first time around and I was new to reporting on municipal affairs here. His successors, Art Webster, Glen Everitt and John Steins, all sounded the same note, while trying to find ways to deal with the issue, especially after the town came under the threat of a court order.

It's never actually been proven that our effluent is harmful to anything more than 500 metres from the outfall pipe, and there are certainly no fish spawning in the seven knot current in that part of the river's main channel. A former territorial Medical Health Officer, Dr. Timmermans, joined his voice to the City of Dawson's in proposing a multi-year study (about $100,000 annually for three or four years) to determine scientifically if there was a case for insisting that the town move to the next level of sewage treatment. His hypothesis was that this could not be proven and that the money would be better spent of recreation facilities.

The study has never been done.

Other people would probably argue now that the money for the treatment plant would have been better spent on a bridge.

It was during the Everitt administration that council was persuaded by its lawyers that the town should plead guilty to allowing "deleterious" substances to flow into potential fish habitat. This is an offence that will probably cease to exist once the current federal government gets finished rewriting the Fisheries Act to allow oil sands and pipeline developments to dump as much as they need to into the water for the sake of the economy. Unfortunately, that won't allow us to shut down the plant and find another use for the building.

The decision to plead guilty,

which many here now consider to have been a mistake, brought on the court order. Sources within YTG who prefer to remain anonymous have told me several times over the years that they agree with the local opinion.

Our next mistake was probably the population's rejection of the lagoon proposal, a solution which would have cost considerably less to build, and much less to run, in the long term. I don't know that the proposed YTG location was a good choice – there may have been a better location, though the territorial government said there was not – but it appears that this would have been the most sustainable solution.

It was defeated by a petition requiring the town to put the matter to a plebiscite vote, the result of which was that the town was prevented from making the zoning changes that would have allowed construction of the lagoon in the chosen location.

So we move on to the plant Corix is building. It may be a thing of wonder, but we were told originally that it would cost $280,000 a year to run it, and that cost has recently been boosted by an additional one-third to $373,000, with no guarantee that it won't go higher.

Since that's on top of the $395,423.00 that it cost to run the sewer part of the sewer and water system in 2011, the future for Dawson's ratepayers looks decidedly dim.

We want to hear from you!

Letter to the Editor:

Stand and defend these workers, Mr. Leef!

In response to Member of Parliament Ryan Leef's comments in Wednesday's Whitehorse Star (May 9/12) that the cuts to Parks Canada will not affect tourism.

Ah, baloney!

First, I would like to ask you, Mr. Leef: do you have any research to back that up?

Did you perhaps commission an independent study that was published recently, and forgot to mention this?

It seems to me that you just take what your party tells you and go with that.

I am sure that the 27 per cent of Yukon Parks Canada employees would prefer that you would go to bat for them and try to save those jobs.

I wonder if the hotel and restaurant owners are thinking of reducing their staff by a similar percentage? After all, you say it won't affect business.

A guided tour is so much better than a self-guided tour that they shouldn't be mentioned in the same breath.

And for no tour at all, just some signage! Give us a break. And to say this won't affect tourism.

Ha! Ha! Ha!

It's as if I go into a restaurant and I order a cheese burger and when it comes, there's no meat in it. I go, "Hey! Where's the meat?"

The server says, "Sorry 'bout that, but that's our new austerity program.

"That will be $12.95 plus GST. And have a nice day."

I would be really p——d, and never go in that eatery again. Same holds true at Dredge #4 and the SS Klondike.

I remember seeing letters in this paper from people who were talking about the wonderful guided tour that they had on the SS Klondike. They spoke of how the tour guide was so helpful and knowledgeable, and how they were telling all their friends and showing off their photos.

If the tourists don't go to the biggest visitor attractions the Yukon has to offer, who is going to do the best kind of advertising the Yukon can get – word of mouth?

Mr. Leef: I heard that you were a fighter. Well, I think it's about time that we see some of that.

Instead of repeating the official propaganda of your party with regards to everything, I think you should get rid of whoever is feeding you this crap and start thinking for yourself.

I think you should go to bat for the Yukon. Stand up and be counted; don't just repeat the party line!

The Yukon Parks Canada workers need you, and you are turning your back on them.

Have some guts and do what is right, not what your cronies are telling you.

Parks Canada Cuts are a Disaster

By Dan Davidson

The news from Parks Canada two weeks ago could have been worse. Dawson could have been hit like Louisbourg, Cape Breton's crown jewel of Parks restoration and interpretation. There they lost ten full time positions. That might seem better than the twelve we lost in the Klondike, but with it went the announcement that there would be a shorter season for 110 seasonal employees.

Why so many? Well, at Louisbourg they've reconstructed something like a quarter of the old French fort and town, and the interpretation style they use is to have it occupied by people in costume who are doing things that would have been done at the time: carding wool, spinning, carpentry, making things. These are seasonal jobs in an area of high unemployment. They are also student jobs. A shorter season means less chance of qualifying for Employment Insurance in the fall and a smaller bank balance to see a person through the winter, either as a resident or as a student.

In addition, quite a few of these jobs are actually part of the annual maintenance routine that is very much needed at a site that suffers from the same seacoast deterioration that plagued the place when it was new. Repairs are a constant necessity there.

Maintaining artifacts is a constant challenge anywhere, and the Yukon will now be without any specialists in this area as a result of the cutbacks that have been imposed. Parks has the largest collection of material in the territory and there will not be anyone on staff who knows the collection. Institutional memory will be lost.

So far the public statements on this matter have been nothing

After spending vast sums of money to repair Dredge #4 and make it safe for guided tours, Parks Canada will be reducing it to self-guided status with signs in the parking lot starting next summer.

short of fatuous. This distresses me on several levels, not the least of which is that I am acquainted with the people who have made them and have more respect for their intelligence than that.

When Parks Field Unit Superintendent Ann Morin writes to Dawson's town council that recent actions (i.e. – layoffs) have been taken to "improve internal efficiencies, and reduce costs while focusing on agency priorities and quality service delivery to Canadians" I do realize that she is simply trying to make the best of a bad situation. I also realize that she is not in a position to bite the hand that is feeding her. She has been given her orders and has carried them out as instructed.

It does not make the weasel wording any less annoying.

From our MP, Ryan Leef, comes the surprising news that living corporate memory is not important. His comments on the layoffs seem to imply that the various experts in the Parks family have been doing us a disservice by accumulating expertise and experience and, in his words, locking it up in their heads.

Mr. Leef in his various incarnations, from the RCMP to forestry officer to correctional services officer, runner, mixed martial arts contestant, and newly minted Member of Parliament has surely, at some point, run across the notion of mentoring. That's when a living, breathing person who knows more about your subject than you do, takes you in hand and brings you along to make you the next generation of expert.

Mr. Leef says directly that "archiving this information and being able to have it documented" is sufficient; that it avoids the pitfalls of having experts with information locked in their heads and actually improves on the preservation of our heritage.

This is patent nonsense. While documents and records are useful, the last step in transmitting knowledge between the generations of persons entrusted with safeguarding our institutions requires people with experience who are willing and able to pass on what they know about sites, operations and history to those who will carry on when they are gone.

When you wipe out the entire Yukon curatorial staff of Parks Canada you sabotage that process.

When you toe the party line and make implausible excuses for actions which actually harm the territory, you are making the same mistake you accused your predecessor of making in terms of the long gun registry – putting the needs of the party before the needs of your constituents.

Parks Canada cuts are a disaster for the Yukon. Any attempt to explain them away just rubs salt in the wound.

Yukon
Community Services

Engagement was the Theme for the 37th AYC AGM

by Dan Davidson

The 37th Annual General Meeting of the Association of Yukon Communities assembled in Dawson City over the weekend, with 115 delegates in attendance. This year's theme was "Engagement".

Municipal councillors were not the only people taking the event seriously. Spotted at various times over the weekend were Scott Kent, Minister of Education; Wade Istchenko, Minister of Highways & Public Works; and Stacey Hassard, the MLA for Pelly-Nisutlin.

In addition, Minister of Community Services Elaine Taylor addressed the assembly in the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Community Hall and chaired a Minister's Round Table.

Finally, after an absence of four years, a Yukon Premier came to meet the AYC, and Darrell Pasloski addressed the delegates at the Friday night banquet in the Palace Grand Theatre.

The opposition parties were represented as well. The Klondike's MLA (Liberal) Sandy Silver addressed the delegates on Friday, as did Opposition Leader Elizabeth Hansen (NDP) who was in attendance along with Kevin Barr, MLA for Mount Lorne - Southern Lakes.

Most of these territorial politicians were present for much of the agenda on Friday and Saturday.

Some portions of the weekend, like the administrators' forum on Friday and the AYC Board meeting on Saturday, were closed to the public, but most of the rest of the weekend was open.

Delegates met and finalized their registration at the Palace Grand Theatre on Friday evening, heard a brief welcoming speech by President Bev Buckway, and were entertained by local singer/songwriter Ecka Janus.

Friday morning began with welcoming speeches by Buckway, Minister of Community Services Elaine Taylor, Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Deputy Chief Clara Van Bibber and Dawson Mayor Peter Jenkins.

Jenkins indicated to the room that this would likely be his last AYC AGM, "unless somebody really pisses me off."

The morning concluded with speeches by Opposition politicians and Minister Taylor's road table.

Half of the afternoon was given over to community updates, which tended to focus on the positives while making some mention of the challenges. Most communities are experiencing some problems with landfill and recreation issues. Both Dawson and Haines Junction had just lost jobs during the Parks Canada. The Junction is plagued by low population growth and looking for ways to deal with the closure of its grocery store. Mayo is experiencing a bit of a mining boom. Faro is dealing with infrastructure issues peculiar to a town of just over 460 that was built to house over 2000. Watson Lake has challenges in the way of infrastructure, recreation and economic revitalization and would like to increase its council size to seven members.

Various discussions related to the "Our Towns Our Future" Initiative took up most the rest of the afternoon, which concluded with a talk about Asset Management.

The evening banquet at the Palace Grand was the occasion for more speeches, community awards and much socializing.

On Saturday, Golden Predator's chief geologist, Mike Burke, briefed the assembly on the company's long-term objectives, with a particular focus on the Brewery Creek Mine, which should be back in production by the fourth quarter of 2013. The Predator group has a number of other properties in the Yukon and plans a staged activation of any of them that prove to be worthwhile.

Working on behalf of Yukon College, Kristina Craig sought the group's ideas regarding the future of Yukon College. Anything from course offerings to the prospect of evolving into a full university was on the table.

Federation of Canadian Municipalities President Berry Vrbancovic presented greetings and a report from FCM, and Whitehorse Councillor Kirk Cameron reported on a Sustainability Conference he had attended through FCM.

The afternoon was given over to a group building exercises - a sort of scavenger hunt called "Quest for Engagement".

Sunday morning brought the business meeting with a variety of resolutions and the election of new officers. Carmacks' Mayor Elaine Wyatt was chosen as the new president of the organization, with councillors Wayne Potoroka of Dawson and Diana Rogerson of Faro continuing as first and second vice presidents.

Bev Buckway, who will be involved as past president, said it was good to see the rural communities take over the executive posts for a change.

* The new executive is comprised of vice presidents Wayne Potoroka and Diana Rogerson, with President Elaine Wyatt and past president Bev Buckway.

* Mayor Buckway was presented with parting gifts: a certificate of appreciation, a box full of M&Ms and a comfy lawn chair.

* The business of the AYC AGM was carried out in the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Community Hall.

Municipal Fire Services to Receive Additional Funding and Support

Story & Photos
By Dan Davidson

Last year's plan to group all the fire departments in the territory under one territorial office, an announcement that was an unexpected bombshell at the time, is gone. That was the substance of the announcement made by Community Services Minister Elaine Taylor at the Association of Yukon Communities' (AYC) meeting in Dawson on Friday.

local autonomy of their departments and their firefighters' interest in serving their communities as volunteers."

So the plan to have the territorial government take over the provision of service is dead, but Taylor said the need remains, and outlined the steps that her Department of Community Services is taking to make improvements in the provision of municipal fire protection.

"We have heard what you have told us and we've worked pretty hard to come up with a solution that we believe will add value to all fire departments, insure the autonomy of your municipal fire departments, and will improve the ability of your firefighters to do their jobs."

This investment will include:

- hiring two additional deputy fire marshals for the department
- increasing the frequency and effectiveness of life safety inspections
- providing training, oversight, and safety inspections
- obtaining a mobile fire training facility to go with a new training program
- increasing fire fighting budgets through the changes being proposed for the Comprehensive Municipal Grant process.

"We believe in long term municipal sustainability," Minister Taylor said, "and believe that today's investment in municipal fire service will reduce the burden on municipal budgets and help our municipalities to match issues of liability and occupational health and safety."

Dawson's fire chief, Jim Regimbal, who is also the president of the Association of Yukon Fire Chiefs, greeted this set of announcements with some enthusiasm.

"The Association of Yukon Fire Chiefs supports the efforts of the AYC to make all municipalities in the territory a better place for their citizens.

Minister of Community Services Elaine Taylor outlined the governments decision on how to deal with municipal fire services on May 4.

Jim Regimbal welcomed the announcement on behalf to territorial fire chiefs.

"The AYC has supported the AYFC to make our fire departments the best they can be and we appreciate that support.

"The announcement by the Government of Yukon today is a vital infusion into the operation of out fire departments throughout Yukon. Having an injection directly into the fire departments is similar to receiving an inheritance every year. This funding must be considered as being in addition to the funding we are receiving through our normal budgeting process.

"These funds will allow our fire departments to start acquiring much needed equipment that was not possible prior to this. The AYFC will be working with the government of Yukon to ensure that the funding is not used to reduce current budgeting, used to reduce further municipal funding of normal operations of the fire departments, or shifted away from the fire departments to fund other worthy projects."

Friday's announcement dealt specifically with municipalities, without reference to Local Advisory Councils, since LACs are not part of the AYC. A further announcement related to LACs was made on May 8.

"These new regulations have greatly increased costs and the ability of many fire departments to comply with current standards."

AYC Awards Highlight Achievement and Sustainability

The Association of Yukon Communities annual general meeting banquet was also the occasion for the presentation of two of the annual awards the organization gives out.

The Municipal Employee Award of Excellence is presented to “recognize the contribution of an employee of a member community who has demonstrated an exceptional level of professionalism, leadership and innovation in his/her job.”

This year the award went to two Dawson City employees. Chief Administrative Officer Jeff Renaud and Senior Financial Officer Joanne Van Nostrand were cited for many contributions to the town, including:

- implementing the town’s new financial software
- recovering previously unknown revenue charges of approximately $200,000
- creating a new, easy to understand, budgeting system
- working on a redesign of the city’s website
- “Steering this massive project through to a seamless conclusion,” the citation read, “was accomplishment enough, but they pulled off this task without falling behind in the many other expectations that were heaped on them.”
- installing a capital replacement plan
- enhancing the city’s television service, including a launch of digital service and the soon to be launched high definition service
- designing and implementing a municipal workplace safety program
- working to ensure that the local golf course remains available to citizens and visitor alike, while protecting the town from any undue liability
- restarting a review of the town’s bylaws, including the rescinding of some that date back to 1902.

• initiating the long overdue review of the town’s Official Community Plan.

AYC Second Vice-President Councillor Diana Rogerson, of Faro, presented the award.

Joanne Van Nostrand said she began to understand the depth of her task when she discovered that none of the software packages currently in use by the town could communicate with each other and that the backup system for her accounting system was a floppy disk.

“I knew right at that moment that we were way behind the times. If someone emailed me a Word document I’d have to reply to them to ‘please send it in PDF (format) because I cannot open it.”

She praised her working relationship with Renaud and the hard work of the rest of the city staff. Working together they had, she said, taken apart the town’s office operations and basically rebuilt them, a task that would continue in the months ahead.

Yukon Energy President and CEO David Morrison was called upon to present the Yukon Sustainable Community Award. This is given to “recognize leadership in sustainable community development with an award for initiatives that demonstrate practical, innovative solutions that enhance the environmental sustainability of Yukon’s communities.”

“The Sustainable Community Award talks directly to municipalities doing work related to environmental sustainability within their area of jurisdiction,” Morrison said. “There’s a lot of work being done across the territory in this area, and it’s really important, as we go forward, with the growth that the Premier talked about. That growth that we see in the territory also means growth in energy consumption and the requirement for new energy. “We’re seeing some very different trends across communities in the territory over the last number of years, all of which are pointing to increasing usage of electrical energy within all subsectors of the territory. I mean both in the residential sector and in the commercial sector, in the government sector and in the industrial sector.

“This year, the recipient of this award is the City of Whitehorse. The city, this year, is being recognized for a very specific initiative – the city’s development of an energy monitoring database. That database will allow the city to monitor the energy use in its facilities, to compare that use, not just from building to building, but between buildings. It’ll give the city the ability to normalize its data back to weather, which is a very important piece of information. Most of all, I will contribute to the city’s development of an energy plan.”

Mayor Bev Buckway was very surprised to have her city getting this award again after last year. She said the AYC offices had managed to hide this from her. She praised the efforts of her city’s staff and council in working towards sustainability.

“If it wasn’t for council – all of council – who get behind these projects and say that this fits with our fifty year sustainability plan, these projects wouldn’t happen.”

The final award is the Hanseatic Award, which was established in 1997 to provide Yukon municipal politicians an opportunity to recognize the work of their peers. It was not presented at the Dawson meeting, but was given to Doctor Luke Lacasse, the former mayor of Carmacks, at his residence at Copper Ridge Place on Tuesday, May 8.

The award is presented to “A person who has made an outstanding contribution to the advancement of Yukon Municipal Government and furthered the goals of the Association of Yukon Communities.”

Nominations for this award come from all Yukon municipal elected officials and are forwarded to the AYC executive to select a recipient. The criteria for nomination to this award are only that the individual is, or once was, a Yukon municipal politician and that they are not currently sitting on the AYC executive.

Michael Gates explores Dalton's Gold Rush Trail

PRESS RELEASE

Michael Gates, also known as the "History Hunter," is celebrating the release of his third book, Dalton's Gold Rush Trail: Exploring the Route of the Klondike Cattle Drives (Harbour Publishing, $24.95). Mac's Fireweed will be presenting a book launch and evening of entertainment, featuring a reading and talk by Michael Gates. It is from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Tuesday, May 22 at the Old Firehall (1st Avenue and Main Street, Whitehorse). Refreshments will be provided.

Gates will also be signing copies of the book at the Dawson City Gold Show on May 18 and 19. He will have a table set up for the duration of the show.

Dalton's Gold Rush Trail: Exploring the Route of the Klondike Cattle Drives tells the story of one of the first trails into the Klondike that was used as a trading route by the Chilkat Tlingit for centuries. It was taken over by Jack Dalton, a hard-driving, murdering entrepreneurial adventurer. The story of the trail includes women, Mounties, prospectors and surveyors. There are tales of discovery, conflict and tragedy. The rise of the gold rush trail and its eventual demise are described in detail. This is the part of the Klondike saga that Pierre Berton never told.

Yukon historian Michael Gates has made a career of poking around both the archives and the outdoors of the north. Over the years, he has hiked, boated, flown and ridden pack horses in the footsteps of pioneer pathfinder Jack Dalton, while piecing together this story. He was the Curator of Collections for Klondike National Historic Sites in Dawson City and, later, Cultural Resource Manager for the Yukon field unit of Parks Canada in Whitehorse. Gates is also the author of Gold at Fortymile Creek and History Hunting in the Yukon. He writes the "History Hunter" column in the Yukon News and lives in Whitehorse.

For more information about the book launch, please call Mac's Fireweed at 867-668-2434. For more information about the Dawson City Gold Show, go to: www.dawsoncitychamberofcommerce.ca/dawson-city-gold-show/.

Michael Gates is a former Dawsonite and one of the founding volunteers of this newspaper. His History Hunter columns have frequently graced these pages over the years. Mike will be doing a book talk in Dawson at a date which will be announced later this summer.

Cooperation Between AYC and YTG a Major Theme in Premier's Speech

by Dan Davidson

Introducing Premier Darrell Pasloski as guest speaker to the evening banquet session of the Association of Yukon Communities on May 4, AYC President Bev Buckway referred to her long struggle to finally have a Yukon Premier attend an AYC conference. When Mr. Pasloski was running in the fall election and reached her doorstep, she said her first question to him was to extract a commitment to attend the AYC AGM.

"The answer," she said, "was a resounding yes."

"Most of you will know I've been asking the (office of the) Premier to attend this conference since 2008, and now here he is, with a record number of cabinet ministers."

Taking the podium in the Palace Grand Theatre, the Premier was quick to pick up on that theme and make it clear that he considered cooperation between his government and the AYC a matter of great importance.

"I am really excited to be here tonight – and that was the first question when I got to her worship's door, and something she and I started to talk about when I first decided to seek the leadership of the Yukon Party."

Relations between the AYC and former Premier Dennis Fentie were, to say the least, strained. Pasloski seemed dedicated to wiping out that history.

"I think it is very important that the territorial government and this association and all the communities work together," he said.

In a speech heavy with congratulations, Pasloski praised the members of the AYC for "their continued service and dedication to your communities."

In thanking the group and expressing his pleasure at attending the meetings, the Premier also committed himself and his team to attend future annual gatherings.

"Our attendance here today is a show of support for the work that you do as municipal officials and I think it sends a message to you that our doors are open. As president Buckway would say, communication is a two-way street. We need to work together to ensure maximum benefits to our communities and to our citizens.

"We are already collaborating on a number of initiatives, like the Our Town, Our Future review, like the Municipal Act review, the unique challenges that come from a growing and prosperous economy."

Pasloski reserved an extended portion of his speech for comments about the mining sector, which he described as having been "a

and we'll continue to act on other initiatives, like those announced today by Community Services Minister Taylor.

"The leadership and values brought to the table by AYC's elected representatives have created a positive change and a respected working relationship between AYC and the government of Yukon. This is a relationship our government will continue to work to build going forward."

Pasloski continued with a list of projects on which the government is spending money in the communities, naming nearly all of them in the process.

"We look forward to partnering with municipalities to meet the challenges that come with the unprecedented growth our territory is now experiencing. Spending responsibly and investing in areas with strong and sustainable economic potential is a role my government takes very seriously. This requires cooperation with the private sector, with other levels of government and non-government agencies and, of course, the Association of Yukon Communities.

"We are ready to work with your association to meet foundation of our economy from the days of the Gold Rush, and demand for Yukon minerals continues to grow."

There are currently three operating mines in the territory. Placer operations and mineral exploration accounted for 2500 jobs in the territory and current mineral production is estimated at $420 million. Over 600 people – over half of them Yukoners – are employed directly in hard rock mining. In addition, there are five mining projects currently in the assessment stage, Pasloski said.

Closing his speech, the Premier heaped praise on Minister Taylor and the members of her department, referring to them as a great group of people.

"Since I got here today I've had so many people from the communities come and say just what a great, awesome team we have within the Community Services Department."

Pasloski's speech was warmly received by the delegates and is perhaps indicative of a revived and less confrontational relationship between AYC and YTG.

Taylor Announces Reviews of Municipal Act and Municipal Grants

by Dan Davidson

Delegates at the 37th Annual General Meeting of the Association of Yukon Communities over the weekend were pleased to hear from Minister of Community Services Elaine Taylor that the government is moving forward on a number of initiatives that have been high on the AYC agenda and has already acted on several of them.

Municipal Grant Funding, the Municipal Act Review and the Our Towns Our Future (OTOF) initiative were featured in her speech to the organization on Friday.

Coming out of the OTOF discussions, Taylor announced that a Municipal Act Review will begin shortly, and proceed in three phases, beginning with a consultation with all councils and interested First Nations to take stock of the current situation, a distillation of the responses, and revisions to the existing legislation.

Much of phase one will be accomplished before the fall municipal elections and then rechecked with the newly elected councils after that date.

"(This) has been a project in the making for some time and is a great opportunity for citizens and local governments to address a whole range of matters that are important to our communities."

The decision to release all of the Comprehensive Municipal Grant funding, the basis for the budgets of most communities, on April 1 of each year from now on was greeted with relief and enthusiasm by the delegates. The current system of quarterly payments has made budgeting more difficult. At this time the CMG amounts to $16.5 million, of top of which comes an additional $6 million to the eight municipal governments.

$100,000 goes to the support of the AYC.

Starting soon, the government will develop a new five-year CMG program through consultation with the AYC and the communities.

A press release states

"Discussions will also take place with municipal governments in the months ahead on direct funding options to help address rising costs and deficiencies related to municipal fire services, while also preserving the local autonomy of municipal fire departments." (See separate article.)

Taylor announced the formation of a standalone Land Development Branch within Community Services to "refocus and ... redouble its efforts to successfully develop land in partnership with municipalities and unincorporated Yukon."

She announced that land is being made available in Mayo, Klondike, Carmacks, Whitehorse and Watson Lake.

"The Yukon Government is pleased to move forward in collaboration in the AYC on a number of priority projects that will help to ensure Yukon communities remain vibrant, healthy and sustainable over the long term," Taylor said.

Dawson's Contribution To The Blast

"It's dark in here, can't see the light but I look at this blue wing when I close my eyes and I fly away, beyond these walls, up above the clouds, where rain don't fall on a poor mans dreams." -Tom Russell

We all know him and love him, no sense doing a 'Paul Henry' style. His name was Willie Danny Gordon and he was born August 22, 1955. We all called him Willie G. The look on his face when he played his fiddle was entrancing; he entered the soul of his music and had so much joy in playing it and he gave so much joy back. It was amazing and I am so grateful to have experienced it.

Willie was a gentleman, when the love of his life, Nancy, passed on Willie kind of lost his will to continue on BUT his music soothed his soul and kept him alive.

Willie, like many others before, turned to drink. He could not gain back his life, he could not replace what he had loved... and therefore he died.

Willie has now joined the Wendy/Walrus fund so now it has 3 W's, (one is tempted to add .com!) (hee,hee).

Barnacle Bob graced us with his attendance and sang the "Northwest Passage", which brought both laughter and tears. The party/wake continued but I did not, I was tired. Goodnight Willie, and we will see you in the stars or in the "lights". AND we will always listen to your fiddle as we fall into our dreams.

Fiddler and Former CBC Host Dies

PRESS RELEASE

"I was a radio announcer for the CBC. I had my own show. It was called The Lovin', Hurtin', Gamblin', Travellin', Drinkin', Truck-Drivin', and Mom Show. Ten years I did it. Then I got fired. Drinking." -Willy Gordon, speaking to Earl McRae during the Nugget's tour in 1997

Well-known fiddler and former CBC broadcaster Willie Gordon has died.

Gordon was born in Aklavik, N.W.T., into a large Inuvialuit family. He worked as reporter for CBC in Inuvik, N.W.T., in the 1970s and 80s. Northerners also remember him as the original host of the "The Moms Show" — a popular radio request show.

Gordon is remembered as a talented musician. Former bandmate (in the Pointer Brothers and other bands) George McKonkey said he was an accomplished bass and fiddle player.

"I always enjoyed his quiet demeanor. There was just something about him that made you feel like everything was going to be OK," said McKonkey. "No matter what was going on, he just went with the flow."

Yukon Coroner Sharon Hanley said Gordon's body was found in his home in Dawson City, Yukon, by a friend who went to check on him Monday night.

The cause of death has yet to be determined. His body will sent to Vancouver for an autopsy later this week. He was 56.

Robert Service School Takes $6000 in Play Your Part Art Contest

By Dan Davidson

Dwight Redden, the General Manager of the Yukon Electrical Company, Ltd., was on hand at the Robert Service School on May 4 to hand out awards won by the students as part of the company's ATCO Play Your Part Art Contest. This was held to encourage participation in the Arctic Winter Games.

"Thank you very much," he said, "for your part in making the art contest so exciting. Your school, in the cross section of creatively that was sought from all grades, put so much talent and thought into the artwork. It's just beautiful.

"Congratulations to your school and thank you from Yukon Electrical and ATCO for participating."

"We were really, really excited to get your entries," said Laura Carlson, the company's Corporate Communications Advisor.

The school was presented with an award plaque mounted with copies of the six winning pieces from RSS. The pictures were by Riley Elliot (Gr. 1), Eric Morin (Gr. 2), Joy Morin (Gr. 5), Keenan Davis (Gr. 9), Alastair Findlay-Brook (Gr. 11), and Shaheen Baker (Gr. 12).

"You guys won six categories in the contest," Carlson said, "which means your school won $6,000 in prizes."

This was the largest award given out of the $24,000 in prize money spread across the territory.

The winner also received individual prizes (a blue backpack full of goodies) and each of the school's students received a penlight flashlight, which won't be of a whole lot of use here until September.

Redden presented Vice-principal Helen McCullough with the $6,000 cheque.

Only three of the students were present as the others were away on school related trips. Eric Morin picked up the award for his sister. Proud Art teacher Tara McCauley collected the remaining awards for the other two students.

Perogies

Perogies is a beautiful, white, male husky. He has a charming personality, and is very affectionate. He is extremely friendly, and loves playing with other dogs.

He walks well on a leash, but really loves to run off leash as well. Well trained, and obedient, he would be a great fit for any home.

Come out to the shelter to see him for yourself!

Yukon SOVA Celebrates its Fifth Year

Story Dan Davidson

and Katharine Hepburn (KH)

The 2012 Year End Celebration for the latest class of the Foundation Year Program of the Yukon School of Visual Arts (SOVA) took place in the Odd Fellows Ballroom on April 27.

The evening began with Clara Van Bibber, Deputy Chief of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, offering an opening prayer.

Eryn Foster, Yukon SOVA Administrator and emcee for the evening, noted that the fifth year of this one year foundation program has seen students from two years worth of earlier classes competing their fine arts degrees at the several institutions to which SOVA is connected for accreditation.

"That is very exciting for us," she said.

"One of most interesting things about our program is that our students come from all across Canada. This year we have five students who come from the Yukon ... from Toronto, Manitoulin Island, Midland, Saint John, N.B., Dartmouth, N.S., British Columbia. We just have such diversity of students coming from all across the country."

She also indicated that most of the students have already been accepted at one of SOVA's partner institutions, which include Emily Carr University, Vancouver, B.C.; the Alberta College of Art and Design, Calgary; the Ontario College of Art and Design, Toronto; the Nova Scotia College of Art and Design, Halifax, Nova Scotia; and the University of the Fraser Valley.

Foster had words of praise for the staff and faculty at the college who had so much to do with helping the students be successful.

Peter Menzies, the President of the Dawson City Arts Society outlined some of the history of SOVA, which is governed as a joint project by DCAS, Yukon College and the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in.

He thanked the families who had taken a chance on SOVA.

"I know it's different for families to send students up to an arts school at the end of the road in the Yukon Territory. But I think your kids that were part of this program can attest to the fact that this is probably one of the best things that they could have done at this point in their career.

"To you students I would say that you have received one of the best things that this town has done in its 125 year history. It's a unique program and we feel very proud of it. You guys have come in on year five of something that is building in a town that is creating a real synergy around a cultural cluster, and what you have seen as normal, people marvel at."

He encouraged the students, as they travelled away, to talk up their experience here, to "get right in peoples' faces" about it, and to be sure to come back and let people here know what they accomplish after they leave.

The cited the case of Melinda Margeson, a student who graduated from high school here, went to SOVA, and continued on to get her Fine Arts degree from Emily Carr.

"It was huge news that a kid from Dawson had done this. I think a lot of us are still celebrating it. So stay in touch."

Dr. Deb Bartlette, the Dean of Applied Arts at Yukon College, explained to the students the symbolism underlying the regalia that she would be wearing as she handed out their certificates. She described her delighted reaction to the art displayed in the galleries as part of the closing exercises and thanked the students for choosing to study art.

In one of the student's sketchbooks she found a drawing with a title, which became the launch pad for her final remarks.

"I believe it said 'Welcome to the frontier. Be prepared to risk your mind.' Art is a frontier. Whether it's music, dance, visual art, performance art, art is a frontier. And where ever we encounter art, whether we're the artist, or whether we are encountering it as a spectator, an observer, we are risking ourselves; we are risking going places we haven't been before in our own selves; we are risking, as a society, looking at maybe things we don't want to look at; and that's very important.

"So I'd like to thank you all for not being accountants - with apologies to any accountants in the room. I want to thank you all for taking the risk to come to the frontier - not just the frontier of Dawson City, but the frontier of daring to be artists. The world needs more artists."

Jackie Olson, Director of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Heritage Department and artist herself, spoke next.

"By coming to SOVA, you have taken the first steps of stepping out of your comfort zone. From what I have seen in he exhibits ... I have no doubt you will all impress your instructors during your careers. You should be very proud of what you have accomplished in the foundation year program.

"Embrace every event in you life, and learn from it, and bring it into your art work."

Olsen related how setting out to study art administration had tricked her into finding the artist within herself many years ago. At that time she was also terrified of speaking before large groups of people.

"But look at me now, standing in front of you, congratulating you, the new generation of budding artists, so anything is possible."

SOVA Faculty members Charles Stankieveh, Veronica Verkley & Meg Walker took the podium to offer their reflections on the SOVA experience and give best wishes to the students.

Following this, the students and their guest were entertained by keynote speaker Sharon Shorty, in her role as Grandma

Susie.

The evening concluded with the handing out of the foundation year certificates.

DAWSON CITY MUSIC FESTIVAL

Profile: Pokey Lafarge and the South City Three

When listening to the music Pokey Lafarge and the South City Three it is not hard to conjure the image of some prohibition-era speak-easy, where whiskey is being surreptitiously loaded in through the back-door and immodest women wear dresses cut above the knee. And, as Dawson City has a history of playing host to such illicit events it is equally as easy to envision them playing to a packed and raucous crowd at the Palace Grande Theatre. Fortunately for us Dawsonites, we will have the chance to see this vision manifest itself during the 34th edition of the Dawson City Music Festival as Pokey Lafarge and the South City Three are amongst the Festival's list of announced artists.

Their mix of early jazz, string ragtime, country blues and western swing evokes early images of their American homeland and of their native St. Louis, Missouri and if can, if any music can, be described as Americana, as it so clearly portrays elements of the American music tradition. It is at once totally original and modern while drawing inspiration from the musical misfits of yesteryear and exhibiting identifiable tinges of Blind Boy Fuller, Bob Wills and Jimmie Rodgers.

The band is fronted but the well turned-out and appropriately-old-timey Pokey Lafarge, who accompanied by the South City Three, has been making a name for himself since his first album Marmalade debuted in 2007. Pokey and his trio, made up of fellow St. Louis musicians Joey Glynn, Adam Hoskins and Ryan Koenig, have played to audiences throughout the world, making waves at such high profile festivals such as the Big Chill Festival (U.K.), the Tonder Festival (Denmark) and the 2010 Newport Folk Music Festival (USA). SPIN magazine called Pokey Lafarge and the South City Three "Best Discovery" and Bob Boilen of NPR called their performance "simply charming".

The Dawson City Music Festival will be hosting Pokey Lafarge and the South City Three as well as many other renowned Canadian and international artists, many of whom will be featured in upcoming issues of the Klondike Sun. For more information about the 2012 line-up or to purchase tickets visit the Association's website at www.dcmf.com.

Dawson Laurence Bagnell, born Nov. 9, 2011, made his first visit to Dawson City May 3-6, 2012.

Larry, Melissa, and Aurora would like to thank all Klondikers for (as always) your wonderful hospitality .

Facts Science Refuses to Ignore: Pt. 1 of 3

This should be an interesting topic, as it will reveal evidence that is contrary to popular scientific facts which are taught in our schools. This will likely require this article to be in two or more parts, since the evidence which I will present here are actual published discoveries. I will include the sources of this evidence, and the dates this evidence were published. This may add credence to my previous article entitled "What If Science is a Lie?". I suggest those of you with scientific minds prepare yourselves to have your minds blown away. All quotes within this article will be exactly as recorded.

My first piece of evidence comes from "The American Journal of Science and Arts, 2:19:391-96, May 1885. Reprinted in Mysteries of the Unexplained, Readers Digest, p. 34, 1982." and I quote, "A highly detailed footprint, thought to be that of a young boy, was found fossilized in clay stone on the east bank of the Connecticut River, just south of Hadley, Massachusetts, in 1852. also preserved in the clay were tracks of birds, four-footed animals, and snails. Even the impressions of raindrops were preserved "and were not entirely obliterated by the foot of the boy. All the striae and lines upon the sole of the foot appear distinctly . . ." Alongside the boy's footprint were those of a crow, and the pattern of skin on the bird's feet could be seen clearly.

The bed of clay stone bearing these imprints lay under some 20 feet of alluvial sand until it was exposed by the current of streams. It is estimated that these impressions were formed some 20 million years ago."

The next article was published in "The American Antiquarian, 7:39, January, 1885. Reprinted in Mysteries of the Unexplained, Readers Digest, p. 35, 1982" and reads as follows; "At the summit of Big Hill in the Cumberland Mountains in Jackson County, Kentucky, is a layer of carboniferous sandstone. In the 1880's it was crossed by a wagon trail that in time broke up the surface of the rock. When the resulting debris was cleared away, a series of tracks was discovered in this carboniferous layer about 300 million years old. There were imprints of bear, something resembling a large horse, and two tracks of a human being, good sized, toes well spread, and very distinctly marked. The prints were examined by Prof. J. F. Brown of Berea College, Kentucky."

Another article which appeared in "The American Journal of Science and Arts, 1:5:223-31, 1822. Reprinted in Mysteries of the Unexplained, Readers Digest, p. 35, 1982" records the following; "A pair of human footprints once graced a slab of limestone on the west bank of the Mississippi River at St. Louis. In 1816 or 1817 the slab was quarried from its position and removed by a Mr. George Rappe to the village of Harmony (now New Harmony), Indiana.

The prints were 10 ½ inches long and 4 inches wide at the toes, 6 ¼ inches apart at the heels, and 13 ½ inches apart at the toes, reported Henry R. Schoolcraft.

"... the toes being very much spread, and the foot flattened in a manner that happens to those who have been habituated to go a great length of time without shoes. Notwithstanding this circumstance, the prints are strikingly natural, exhibiting every muscular impression, and swell of heels and toes, with a precision and faithfulness to nature, which I have not been able to copy, with perfect exactness, in the present drawing . . .

"Every appearance will warrant the conclusion that these impressions were made at a time when the rock was soft enough to receive them by pressure, and that the marks of feet are natural and genuine.

"In the geologic scheme of things, this limestone hardened about 270 million years ago. Both the rock and the prints in it were said to show the same evidence of wear and aging."

The World's Oldest Flower

by Lisa McKenna

Talk about extinct! This flower is over 30,000 years old! Apparently some 30,000-year-old arctic ground squirrels buried a lot of seeds and nuts. In Siberia over 70 of these ancient 'caches' were found.

One of the seeds contained the pith (kind of like the white stuff you find in peppers) and the scientists were able to grow this seed and cause it to propagate. And, lo and behold, a flower emerged.

Technically it is a Narrow-leaved Campion but it has been also known as the Winter Phoenix or the Arctic Flower.

Before this discovery, in February 2012, the oldest regenerated seed was a 2,000 year old date palm. The claims to growing ancient grains from the pyramids (tombs) from Egypt have long been proven false. Another false claim was made, mistakenly, by a Yukon miner who found some lupin seeds that the terrain suggested were 10,000 years old but after D.N.A. testing they were found to be of a modern strain.

This recent discovery has led the scientific community into grasping the idea that other remnants of the past could also be regenerated. The contents of mammoth stomachs and intestines hold many ancient seeds and grasses ... could these be regrown as well? How about the clovers, etc., that were found in the Yukon horse? Can they be regrown?

Only the future will tell as our abilities in research and science grow. What a wonderful time to be alive!

Andy Cohen Sings and Plays the Blues

by Dan Davidson

Andy Cohen wasn't in the best of voice when he arrived in Dawson to play the last in this season's quota of Home Routes' House Concerts. Nearly two weeks on the road in the Yukon had taken their toll, not to mention the fact that he had been the road from Memphis since March 1 in his quarter century old Volvo.

Fortunately, his musicianship on the staggering number of instruments that he managed to cram into that car was such that he could rest his voice on the solos and even take a break from time to time.

Cohen plays finger style blues guitar, slide guitar, accordion, autoharp and dulciana, which is more or less an oversized autoharp with a keyboard, making it a hammered instrument rather than one which is plucked or strummed. He thinks it must be what Schroeder, the musical prodigy in the Peanuts comic strip, is actually playing.

His promotional material notes that he turned 60 on the same day his car rolled over 300,000 miles, and that he has been more or less on the road for the last 40 or so years, playing old southern music: country blues, ragtime, gospel, old time music and field hollers.

"He actually has an education, but it's in Anthropology, so it's economically useless," says his bio, which shares much of the same sense of humour as his stage patter.

"On the other hand, his fieldwork was extensive, consisting largely of taking old blind guys around to gigs that he set up for them. That he continues to play their music, which he has made his own as best he could, is proof at least of his tenacity, if not the quaint notion that he can pick his antique patootie off."

Among the fellows he escorted around were Jim Brewer, Rev. Dan Smith, Brother Daniel Womack and briefly, Rev. Davis himself. He cites as his influences some of the big names in old time blues music: Willie Walker, Lemon Jefferson, Lead Belly, Big Bill Broonzy, Skip James, Bukka White, Rev. Robert Wilkins, Memphis Minnie and Brownie McGhee.

Cohen, happily perched in a corner with his yarmulke perched back on his head, launched into two hours of music that he refers to as County Blues 101. It's roots music, and the roots have branches that include folk tunes, ragtime, and a touch of early rock and roll. Cohen's repertoire reaches back into the 19th century and generally moves up into the late 1950s, with a few detours along the way.

As a child he was exposed to 78-rpm recordings of Dixieland jazz and a lot of the early blues greats. At sixteen, he saw Rev. Gary Davis playing live, and his course was set.

During the evening his audience was to hear snatches of lyrics that later crept into (or were outright stolen for) the music of such groups as Cream, Led Zeppelin and Canned Heat, and hear Cohen tell the tales behind some of them.

It was a fine evening, and I do hope Cohen had some voice left to take to Old Crow.

With the resonator built into this slide guitar, "I don't need no electrics."

Margaret McCormack, 1915-2012

Margaret "Peggy" McCormack was laid to rest in the Mountain View Memorial Gardens Cemetery in Calgary on Monday morning April 23, 2012. Her large extended family and many friends were in attendance. A Scottish piper played Amazing Grace as people gathered in the Chapel. During the service her daughter-in-law, Judy McCormack sang "In the Garden".

Peggy was born in Galston, Scotland in 1915. At the age of five her family moved to Huxley, Alberta where her father was employed as a CPR station-master. She was one of six children. When it was time for her to attend high-school, she moved to Calgary and stayed with the Strachan family. She studied and worked part-time at a lunch-counter across from the school, where she met James Lee McCormack who was to become her husband. He had been to the Yukon working in the mining industry. He and Peggy were married in 1940 and he returned to the Yukon to work. When Peggy joined him later in the year, they moved into a sod-roofed house in the middle of the Yukon gold-fields, 40 miles up Hunker Creek. Trips to town were made by dog-team.

Peggy gave birth to three children in Hunker before they moved to a house at 7th and Princess in Dawson City so the eldest child could go to school. By this time Jim was employed as an operator of Dredge No. 4. Four more children were born to Peggy and Jim in Dawson. In 1950 a son was delivered in make-shift quarters just after the hospital burned down during the coldest January on record. During this time Jim was an active Mason, was very much involved on the City Council and at one time ran for Mayor.

Jim died accidentally in January of 1955 leaving Peggy with seven children aged eighteen-months to fourteen years old. It was August before the family was able to move to Calgary to live near Peggy's parents. Her mother died soon afterward. Peggy was soon working two jobs to support her family. At first she worked at grocery stores near home or the children's school, which worked well for children and mother. After her oldest daughter, Betty-Jean, began working for the telephone company, AGT, Peggy also started there in 1960. She worked there for 20 years, until her retirement at age 65. As she had done in the Yukon, Peggy grew a large vegetable garden every year until she was 94, when she moved into an assisted-living home.

In spite of all their struggles, all of her children grew up to be very strong, competent, and caring people. Peggy was able to enjoy her senior years, taking delight in her many grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She was eventually able to do a bit of travelling to the States and enjoyed casinos where ever she went. She returned to the Yukon with the Anderson family in 1970, and again in 1983 with her youngest daughter, Carolyn, her sister, Agnes and her husband George Shaw, who had been a gold-smith and jeweller in Dawson City for many years. At that time they placed a head stone on James Lee McCormack's grave in the Old Cemetery in the Mason's area.

Peggy passed away in Calgary on April 13, 2012 after several years of congestive heart failure. She left four daughters: Betty-Jean (Red Deer, Alta.), Vera-Marie (Tumble Ridge, B.C.), Marilyn (Welland, Ontario), and Carolyn (Calgary, Alta.). Two sons survive: Bob (Calgary) and Ken (High River, Alta.). She was pre-deceased by five grand-children and her eldest son, Jimmy in Nelson, B.C. in 2009. She is survived by six of her children, thirteen beautiful grandchildren, fifteen wonderful great grandchildren and one marvellous great great grandson. One who was better, God never made.

Sadie and Paul's Big Adventure: Pt. 1

by Paul Marcotte

POST #19

To all of my blog readers, I must first take a moment to apologize for the fact that there was no blog last week on March 7th. As you will soon be able to tell, I was nowhere near a computer on that, or many other days, until today. So let's get on with the story shall we?

Sunday, March 4th dawned a beautiful spring day here, and I felt like it would be a good day to do a different walk with Sadie the dog. My first few days here we had done a walk out to the end of the road and back, with me throwing the tennis ball and Sadie having great fun chasing it, and then waiting for me to catch up and throw it again. She has boundless energy, so there was no chance, at least from her point of view, that this was ever breakfast, so with that, I said, "Come on Sadie, let's head home shall we?"

She started down the slope with me following. It was very steep at the top and if I were to have to guess I would suggest about 40-45 degrees. However, the slope, being on the west side was dry and was a mix of solid ground with rocky outcrops. I had only taken a couple of steps and was about to take the next one onto a rock and my gut instinct told me that I shouldn't step there, and even though in latter years I have been good I trusting this instinct, this time I didn't and as a result would face some very serious consequences.

As soon as I put my foot down, I knew it was the wrong thing to do, because a split second later I was going forward head over snow. It took me a few moments to try and get a grip on what had just happened to me and again I was mad at myself for not listening to my gut. But there was no turning the clock back now, and as I sat there, the pain began to rise, in many places all over my body but specifically in my right leg. I eased myself over the lip of the snow so that my legs were hanging down and I moved my right leg. Right then I knew that something wasn't right. Instead of moving in unison with my leg, my right foot just flopped around on it's own accord, and just watching that put a very sick feeling in the pit of my stomach.

NOW WHAT? If I don't get back to the house I am in serious trouble here, as nobody knows we're out here.

Sadie was standing beside me with the tennis ball in her going to be boring.

Still on Sunday the 4th, I decided we should trek up the hill that is situated directly south of the property we're on. We hiked up the north-facing slope closest to the house through the snow, and after about 15 minutes or so we found a great spot to sit down and relax and take in the view looking west across the river towards the village of Niagara. This was bliss, sitting in the warmth of the early morning sun, a faithful happy dog at one's side, and surrounded by trees, water and mountains. What a great way to start the day.

I could have remained here for hours, as I was very content, and Sadie seemed to reflect that mood as well, however I decided that it was time to head home and get some oatmeal going for heels plunging down the slope. I do remember thinking right then, "you stupid idiot Paul, you shouldn't have stepped there" but of course by then it was way too late. I continued to bounce down the hill head over heels, sometimes seeing sky, then dirt and rocks, then sky again. I am not sure how many times I tumbled over but my guess would be at least three times but probably up to six. As you can probably imagine, I wasn't concentrating on counting how many. All parts of my body made multiple contacts with the rocks and I do remember hitting my head but only once, and thankfully not hard enough to knock me out. That would be my first blessing.

I came to rest finally near the bottom of the slope in a pile of mouth, and an expression on her face which implied something to the effect, "OK so you've had your fun so can we go back to playing throw the ball now?"

Needless to say, I had more pressing issues on my mind, like how in the hell am I going to get back to the house? Relatively close to where I ended up was an old cabin that the owners have on their property, and so ever so slowly and gently I struggled along the snow covered ground to get to the cabin, where I managed to find a couple of pieces of timber that I could use as makeshift crutches. As the pain level continued to rise, I managed to get myself upright on these sticks and begin the very slow trek up the hill back to the house.

May is Sexual Assault Prevention Month

by the Dawson City Women's Shelter

The month of May is sexual assault prevention month, so we are talking about what sexual assault is, how it happens, and what you can do to help yourself and others when it happens. The Criminal Code states that sexual assault is any form of sexual activity that is forced on someone else without that person's consent. Force can be physical, or through the use of threats, bullying, manipulation, alcohol/drugs or harassment. Any unwanted sexual activity, including kissing, touching, groping, flashing, oral sex, intercourse, photographing, etc., under any circumstances is a sexual assault.

Consent is:

- Obvious. In the simplest context, consent is giving your permission for something to happen or making an agreement to do something.

- Consenting to sexual activity means you are voluntarily agreeing to engage in sexual activity with someone else.
- Consent is about respecting and communicating with the person you intend to engage in sexual activity with.

Consent is NOT:

- Consent does not count when it's gained through pressure, coercion, force, or threats of force (Criminal Code of Canada Section 273.1).
- Consent is not obtained if someone else says 'yes' for you or the other person(s) you're engaging in sexual activity with.
- Consent is not obtained if the accused is in a position of trust, power or authority and the victim is underage (i.e. coach, employer, or guardian).

- Consent is not gained if the person says or implies 'no' through words or behaviours.
- Consent is not obtained if the person is not capable of giving consent (e.g. traumatized, drunk, on drugs, unconscious or sleeping)
- Consent is not obtained if the person changes her or his mind, and a person can change his or her mind at any time

Sexual harassment has been defined as any unwelcome behaviour, sexual in nature, that adversely affects, or threatens to affect directly or indirectly, a person's job security, working conditions or prospects for promotion or earnings; or prevents a person from getting a job, living accommodations or any kind of public service.

Date rape drugs:

The term 'date rape drug' is very familiar, and the North has not been immune to incidents involving these substances. The most common among these substances are GHB (Gamma-hydroxybutyrate), Special K (Ketamine Hydrochloride) and Rohypnol (also called roofies). These substances are odorless and tasteless, and are undetectable. They are slipped into drinks, and within 10 to 15 minutes, an individual can begin to experience the symptoms which can last hours.

Victims experience a range of symptoms that leave them incapable of defending themselves. Symptoms such as slurred speech, weakness staggering, dizziness, confusion, severe drowsiness, hallucinations and loss of memory up to 24 hours. It is never your fault if someone slips drugs into your drink, but it is important to be aware of the danger.

How to get help:

Absolutely no one has the right to harm you, touch where or how you do not want to be touched, to threaten you or to make you feel small, stupid and useless. If this is happening to you, or to someone you know or care about, there is help available, and you can:

- Talk to a trusted adult-parent, doctor, teacher, family friend + call the 24 hour crisis line at the Women's Shelter 993 5086.
- Tell a trusted friend if you aren't ready to tell authorities on your own.

Dawson RCMP Creates a Softer Room for Victims Services

by Dan Davidson

The Dawson City RCMP has officially opened its newly renovated Victims Services Room. An open house on April 23 invited the community to come take a look at the facility, which has been redecorated and painted to have a softer, friendlier feel than the institutional colour scheme in the rest of the building.

"It was a cold room before," said Sgt. Dave Wallace, explaining that the changes were intended to make it a more welcoming place, especially since the interviews which typically took place there were about sensitive subjects.

"It's been used in conjunction with Victim Services Worker Maureen Caley-Verdonk, for when we have victims of crime. It's somewhere they could come and talk, whether it's sudden death and she's counselling, interviews with kids, different offences that may have happened to them. Stuff like that.

"When kids come in, sometimes it takes one or two visits before they get comfortable, so we wanted it to look like something they could relate to a little better.

The room is also a place where such interviews are often video taped, but the presence of a camera on a tripod often inhibits people from talking, so the completed changes will include a camera mounted less intrusively on the wall.

The new décor features cheerful yellow walls covered with stickers of owls and other cartoon characters. There are comfy, overstuffed chairs. Over in the corner a built-in table is covered with reading material, toys and activity books.

Wallace says there are plans to get smaller, child-sized tables and chairs and a throw carpet for the floor.

He says the actual use of the room varies from year to year, but there are certainly a couple of times every year where there's a car crash, a sudden death, or even someone has taken their own life. In such cases it's good, he says, to have a more consoling place to talk.

Aside from the RCMP and Victims Services, the room also gets some use from the folks at the Social Services office.

"We're just trying to make it more comfortable for the victims," Wallace said, "so that they're not feeling extra pressure when they come in here to see the police or social services."

THE COOKSHACK

Yeast Doughnuts

These are a lovely treat any time of year, less sweet than a standard doughnut, but just as comforting!

INGREDIENTS

2 teaspoons instant dry yeast
1 teaspoon sugar
1/2 cup lukewarm water
1 cup milk
1/2 cup shortening or butter
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
3 large eggs, beaten
3 1/2 cups flour
oil for deep-frying
1 cup confectioners' sugar
3 teaspoons water

METHOD

1. In a mixing bowl, combine yeast, sugar and water. Stir to mix. Keep in a warm area for 10 minutes. Scald milk, add shortening, sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm then mix in 3 eggs. Be sure the milk cools or you risk killing your yeast.
2. Now add the yeast mixture to the milk mixture and about 3 1/2 cups flour. Mix thoroughly.
3. Let your dough rise until it has doubled in bulk. Roll it out, cut with donut cutter (or two glasses of different sizes). Place your doughnuts on parchment paper or wax paper. Let them rise, covered, for an hour or until they double in height. Knead the scraps of dough into a ball and let them rest covered for about 20 minutes before rolling out again and making more donuts.
4. Fry the donuts in oil at 360 degrees. Turn to brown both sides. Remove to a rack and brush with confectioner's sugar mixed with water to glaze.

Best served warm.

I have been competing in the Highland Games since 2003. I am entering into my 10th year of competition. I was born and raised in Seattle. I attended college on a football scholarship to Western Washington University from 1994 to 1999. I was captain of the 1999 team and an all conference Guard. I received my B.A. degree in Political Science. I am married and have two daughters ages 2 and 10.

I became interested in the games when I attended the Seattle Highland games and the Tacoma highland games with my father in 2002. At the time I wasn't competing in any venue and I needed a way to fulfill my competitive drive. The games give me a way to focus my energy into setting new goals and challenges and working hard to achieve them. I like the personal and individual nature of the throwing sports. The success of each athlete is determined entirely upon their drive and work ethic. I enjoy competing in all of the events evenly.

I have competed in Alaska, California, Oregon, Washington, British Columbia, Alberta and Scotland.

My personal best throws are as follows:

16 lb open stone = 50' 6"
22 lb Braemar stone = 36'
Heavy WFD = 41'
Light WFD = 76'
Light HMR = 132'
Heavy HMR = 106'
WFH = 14' 6"

The Word on the Street is, "What are Scottish Highland Games?"

by the Top of the World
Highland Games

In 1899, the first Scottish highland games in Dawson City were held on Front Street. After over 100 years Dawson City will once again be flooded with men in kilts. This summer Dawson City will host the Top of the World Scottish Highland Games under the midnight sun June 15th-17th. Be excited. Highland games are events held throughout the year in Scotland and other countries around the world as a way of celebrating Scottish and Celtic culture and heritage. There are hundreds of Highland Games festivals held throughout Canada alone. But by no means do you have to be Scottish to enjoy them. It is a festival where families, athletes and musicians gather to enjoy well known items emblematic to Scotland such as the bagpipes, the kilt and the heavy events such as the caber toss (the tossing of a large wooden pole).

Some of the professional athletes in attendance will include Matthew Doherty, Gregory Bell, Owen Willems & Rob Young. These big burly men can take a pine pole, 19ft long and 175 lbs, twirl it on their fingers and toss it into the air - all the while wearing a skirt. Don't be intimidated. All that snow you shoveled all winter long will have its pay off. You too can have a go at some Scottish sport and tradition. There will be an opening in the games for novice athletes to register. On the Friday night some of the professional athletes will host a clinic to teach you how to finesse your moves and then on Saturday you can compete against other Dawsonites that think they got enough brawn to toss a stone. For many Highland Games festival attendees, the most memorable of all the events at the games is the massing of the pipe bands, where all the pipe bands come together at the end of the day to play a tune. The Red Hackles from Fairbanks and the Midnight Sun Pipe Band from Whitehorse are two to of the pipes and drums bands to look forward to see compete at the Top of the World Highland games. The result will be a thunderous roar of music exploding off the crocus bluff baseball field. Something that will definitely be a must see, and hear, of the summer. While centered on competitions in piping and drumming and Scottish heavy athletics, the games will also continue in to the night with a ceilidh (a Gaelic word meaning good time). Top of the World Highland Games ceilidh will be a BBQ and dance and the arena featuring the celtic rock band St. James Gate. Join us at the Gold Show May 19th to see some of the board members in kilts, sign up to toss a caber and get full details of the Top of the World Highland Games June 15-17th.

X is for

Do you know how hard it is to find a food that starts with the letter X? It's really hard. I did find a Chinese watermelon that is called a "xigua" (pronounced chic-wah or sui-co, depending on where you live) and xocolati is Ancient Aztec for chocolate!

There is also the xoconostle, that is a relative of the prickly pear (tunas); the only thing is that a xoconostle is different in taste. A prickly pear is sweet where as the xoconostle is sour. Xoconstles are mostly used in salsas and meats where as a tunas is usually prepared as a dessert. Xoconstles are also used in the making of candies (sour!) and syrups.

The Chinese language contains many foods that start with the letter x. There is shrimp that they call Xia, dried shrimp is called Xia mi. Xiangjiao is a banana and xiaqnrou is bacon!

A Xantis is a Yak! (Don't know what I will do for a "Y" animal next issue) Yaks are native to Asia, mostly in the Tibetan region. A male Yak can grow up to 2 meters tall (at the shoulders) and they can weigh up to a ton! Their body from head to the base of their tail can be up to 3.4 meters long (11 ft.)! But the female Yak is only a third of his size.

Yaks are very sociable animals and they mostly hang out in herds with the exception of small pods of bachelors. A female Yak begins to have baby yaks at around four years of age. They only have one child that can walk within 10 minutes of its birth! The calf is not weaned for a year and then it becomes independent Yaks are closely related to cattle and bison and like the domestic ox, are used by man as 'Beasts of Burden' as well as supplying wool, and leather, and meat, and even milk and cheese! Their dung was used as fuel or fertilizer. All in all, the Yak, or Xantis, is a walking Wal-Mart!

How do YOU think music started? I think it began with primal man hitting a hollow tree trunk with a stick and it went 'thunk', then this person hit the tree trunk in a different spot and it went 'thunk'. Then they could play rhythms by going thunk, thunk, thonk, thunk, and thonk. In this fashion music was born.

The xylophone is an instrument that, originally, was made of slats of wood in various lengths that were hit by wooden mallets (little hammers). Each different length of wood sounded a different note...so now one could go thunk, thonk, tinkle, bong, bang, thonk!

The first xylophone can be traced back to 2000 B.C. in China, and then the trail goes into Africa in 500 A.D. Xylophones reached England in the 1860's but did not become popular till the vaudeville and early jazz of the 1920's and 30's.

The xylophone is known by many different names across the world. It has been called marimba, a glockenspiel, mbila, dibinda, balafon, akadinda, amadinda, balo...etc...etc.

Lane Swim

Hop in and see how far you can swim! Lane swims enable the public to test and improve their fitness, endurance, and technique in the pool. Please respect the designated speeds in each lane, and feel free to ask our friendly lifeguards for pointers!

Please note that the EARLY BIRD lane swim will not take effect until Monday May 14th

SWIMMING LESSONS

Swimming lesson will commence on June 1st. We will begin advertising them on May 14th, and registration will take place from May 21st to the 30th. We will also be offering additional Private Lesson timeslots in the June schedule. We will begin advertising them on May 14th, and registration from these will take place from May 21st onward throughout the summer.

PARENT & Tot

Some of our lane swims coincide with Parent & Tot swims. The deep end lanes are reserved of lap swimming, while the wading area is sectioned off for parents with children ages 1-4. We have lots of toys and baby boats, so come explore the wonderful world of the water with your child!

Please note that all tots must wear swimming diapers. We have extras available for $2 at the pool office.

Aqua fit

This is a great, fun workout! Aquafit is appropriate for all ages and fitness levels. With little to no impact, you can work out at your own pace and adjust the degree of intensity to your preference. With no swimming skills required, this class is accompanied by music. Hop in with us for a class.

Contact us!

Please feel free to contact the pool with any concerns, questions, and suggestions. Our friendly lifeguards want you to have a great experience, and will attempt to accommodate all requests.
