The Yukon Queen // Sails From Dawson One Last Time

Story & Photos By Dan Davidson

The Yukon Queen II sailed from Eagle to Dawson City for the final time on June 13, arriving to pick up some of the gear that was left behind in September 2011 when no one knew that it had served its last summer on the Yukon River.

"It's a repositioning cruise," said Captain Al Bruce. "We're taking the Queen out of service here in the Yukon, and taking it down to the Seattle Area where it's going to, hopefully, be transferred to one of our other company divisions within the larger corporation (Carnival Cruise Lines)"

It could end up in Australia or in the Bahamas.

"If none those pan out it'll be offered for sale on the market."

Its predecessor, the Yukon Queen I, has been sold several times since it was taken out of service here 13 years ago after a 12 year run. The YQII replaced it in 1999.

Bruce, who captained both boats during his 25 years on the Yukon River, says he is sad to be leaving the Yukon. He's enjoyed his summers here and felt quite at home in the community.

"I won't be back here this way (as a boat captain) again, but I hope to visit a couple of times as a tourist. I love this country. It's phenomenal country. Most of the people are just great.

"We get along with pretty much everybody here. We have some adversaries, but at least we talk to each other."

As far as Bruce knows the upper levels of management at Carnival, a step above the WestmarkandHolland-America executives that had previously been the front line voices on issues related to the Queen, began to reassess options in September, after the boat had returned to its winter berth in Eagle.

While both Queens have been the subject of some debate about river safety, destruction of fish and river bank erosion, complaints ramped considerably when the bigger boat arrived in 1999, and the last ten years have been spent in a series of environmental reviews related to its operations and, more recently, its water license.

When the local office of the Yukon Environmental and Socio-economic Assessment Board was unable to reach a decision about the boat's operations, the file was bumped upstairs to the YESAB executive board in 2008. There was supposed to have been a final decision by now, but it hasn't happened.

Some blame the company for failing to provide required data. Some note that its activity on the river has been anything but normal since the floods of 2009 devastated Eagle, Alaska, and road washouts the next year reduced the boat's cruising range for the next two seasons.

In the end it was a decision by Carnival's risk management teams over the state of the Taylor Highway from the junction to Eagle that told the tale, so the water licence is now a moot point. As far as Bruce knows, the final decision to remove the boat came down in February, though the official announcement reached the Yukon only in April.

And so the Yukon Queen II, fitted out with new ocean going equipment and with one of its washrooms converted back to a shower, has sat in Dawson for a few days, taking on extra water, figuring out where the sleeping bags and air mattresses are going to go at night and getting ready for its long farewell cruise.

"It's a 3500 mile journey," said Bruce, "and it should take about two weeks. We'll leave here on the 20^{th} and we expect to be in Seattle - with ideal conditions around the 4th of July."

He brought the boat up the river in the first place but it's been a dozen years since he's cruised the whole thing and he expects conditions have changed.

Back in the south he will be doing some marine engineering consulting work for a shipbuilder, picking up a few more classes at one of the marine colleges where he has been lecturing as an instructor in the off season, and continuing his volunteer sea scout work with the Boy Scouts. He'll keep

There was a farewell party for the staff on the 18^{th} and an invitation-only open house for locals on the 19th and then the boat sailed away on the 20th. There have been mixed feelings about the boat for years. Some will be sad to see it go. Some will rejoice. Most will admit that its captain was a pretty nice fellow.

Captain Al Bruce in full gear. The hat was seldom worn.

The Yukon Queen II arrives for its final visit and later at the dock during loading and farewell events.

OPINIONS

Uffish Thoughts: What is the federal government afraid of?

by Dan Davidson

As the organization we used to refer to as the Government of Canada gets thrown under the omnibus (bill) by the group that styles itself the "Harper Government", it seems time to ponder what, exactly, the Reformatories are so afraid of.

They did, after all, win the May 2, 2011 election, and they have a legitimate majority government.

Oh, I know they only got 39 per cent of the vote and all that, but whose fault is that? How many people failed to vote and therefore helped to hand victory to them?

Where was the actual strength of opposition that might have prevented that outcome?

Despite the Orange Wave, the NDP was not quite ready for prime time.

The Liberals had yet to get past the post-Chretien hangover to combat a government that was in full campaign mode at all times. (Remember those parliamentary mail-outs and the constant attack ads?)

Grant all of that and you really have to wonder why the Harperites continue to act as if their near-death experience of late 2008/early 2009 was still something they had to fear.

It's as if they were afraid that someone was going to catch them with their hand in the cookie jar and call them on it. (Are you listening, Dean Del Mastro?)

As a result, they work over- this type of censure.

time shutting down any possible trace of opposition – anyone who might contradict the party line.

Got a problem with Atomic Energy of Canada? Fire the person in charge.

Information from Statistics Canada doesn't support the party ideology regarding crime statistics, immigration or any one of a dozen topics?

Eliminate some of the information-gathering tools that the agency needs to work properly, and then trim all the regional offices.

Government scientists might just give people actual facts instead of toeing the party line?

Cancel the speaking engagements, insist on vetting their speeches and articles and, if that doesn't work, fire them.

Express legitimate environmental concerns over the rush to build more pipelines and you get branded a "radical with an agenda".

As if all groups that organize for any reason (especially political parties) don't have agendas.

Be upset over government plans to peek at your e-mail and get told that means you are siding with the pedophiles.

If you are still a government employee (after the most recent round of cuts) and you have any concerns that run counter to the talking points issued by your political masters, keep them to yourself.

Members of Parliament themselves are not immune from this type of censure. David Wilks, a B.C. backbench member of the governing party, discovered that when he permitted himself to be videoed expressing his concerns about the manner in which certain legislation was being brought forward.

His opinions as seen on YouTube were retracted and rephrased within a few days, and it seems clear he is unlikely to express them quite that way again.

The latest group to be muzzled (at this writing, anyway) seems to be Parks Canada employees.

While we all know that recent cutbacks are all about reducing the deficit, people at Parks were issued boilerplate letters with hastily conceived talking points built in.

These aren't reductions; they're reallocations based on a redefinition and repurposing of the mandate.

Parks is simply restructuring its operations in order to serve us better, never mind that it will have to accomplish this miracle with fewer economic and personnel resources.

Oh – and be sure to mention the War of 1812 in all your correspondence for the next two years or so.

That's because, although Canada as we know it did not exist then, and it may not have anything to do with the bit of Canadian history you are charged to interpret, it's part of our redefinition of what Canada is all about, and you need to get on board.

Clear?

OPINIONS: Canadian Economics Made Simple

By Florian Boulais

It is only recently that I started to look into what the link between government and the banks is. My interest was poked by, first off, the happenings in Quebec, the Occupy movement, the cuts in Parks Canada and RSS, and then, my personal mortgage situation.

I sat down in front of my computer and started just following links on Facebook that led me to discover a few links on YouTube and web sites offering an endless well of documentary movies and reports. Here is the sum of what my research led me to

As need arises, government builds infrastructure. Let's take as an example the Dawson City hospital. To get this kind of costly projects on the go, our government needs money. Here comes the choice: should the money come from the government operated Bank of Canada or from a private bank? Either the government issues interest free money, or, goes to the private sector and borrows money at high interest rate. This is where the mind-bending part happens: THE GOVERNMENT BORROWS FROM PRIVATE BANKS!!!! As a consequence, the tax money that should pay off the principal, goes to pay the high interests, without ever touching the principal, and thus, the national debt increases. Of course all interests with private banks are "compounded" interests that increases the amount due, by quite a lot. Eventually the debt becomes so large that the government starts implementing "austerity" measures to save money to try to pay off the now, unpayable debt. The cuts to Parks Canada, the bill C-38 the new laws implemented to weaken environmental policies, the school tuitions going up and all the other cuts to social programs are directly tied to this, very simple, and preposterous relationship.

Even though this seems to be too simple to be true, this relationship is the foundation of the huge national debts almost every country in the world has accumulated. The most astute businessmen among us, the bankers, have quickly figured out that the best and safest way to make money was to lend money to governments because the loans were backed by taxpayers money. When looking through the history of economics, one realizes quickly that international bankers used any means possible to impose to governments to borrow from them instead of nationally owned banks. The most blatant example is the Federal Reserve in the USA: "The Fed" was called this way, to trick the American people into thinking that it is a government run entity. It is not; The Fed is a private entity, run by a group of people for profit. The huge national debt the USA has accumulated is almost only due to that simple fact and the bankers have always found ways to hide behind a thick curtain of "economics" jargon. Did you ever wonder why the bank had always the biggest building in town? Now you know why.

Check those facts for yourself. They are written everywhere; it is not some kind'a conspiracy. How come we never hear about this in the news? Well, considering that a few people, like Rupert Murdoch, own pretty much every TV channel, radio and big newspaper, it is easy to understand why. When we switch to social media or books, the story is very different.

The information in the article has been taken from the following documentaries that can be found on YouTube: Money masters; Oh Canada; How to start a revolution -Learn from Iceland; The house of Rothschild - the Money's prophets; Fall of the Lehman's brothers; In Debt We Trust; Capitalism Is The Crisis; Breaking The Mirror - The Murdoch Effect, and more...

Volunteer Services Show Professionalism

Dear Editor:

On Saturday May 19th there was a horrific accident on the Dome Road, with an impact that could be heard a quarter of a mile away. I happened to receive a phone call, the one no parent ever wants to receive, which got me to the scene prior to the ambulance arriving, how ever there was already one ambulance attendant at the scene.

and how helpless I felt that I is very challenging. could not do much to affect the outcome.

common sense of the first attendant to attend the scene prior to getting geared up probably helped the most basic first aid and continuing nobody will ever realize.

When the rest of the emergency services crew arrived their professionalism allowed them to take control of the scene in getting everybody treated. There was a lot going on at the scene, with everything from severe injuries to shock.

I can not begin to describe the severity of this accident scene, no matter how much After doing a quick it be standard first aid or our small town. primary survey I realized ambulance training, staying the severity of the accident organized, calm and focused

With that being said we would like to thank the The professionalism and Dawson City Ambulance Service for professionalism. Kevin and Kary Hastings for providing severely injured in a way that on with first aid as it is very easy to become complacent once the ambulance crew arrives.

> We would also like to thank the Dawson City Fire Fighters and the RCMP for providing assistance to the Ambulance Crew. As well as the doctors and nurses once the injured were transported to the nursing station and any one else we missed.

We feel very fortunate to training you have, whether have this level of service in

Mysterious Sun Shines on the 37th Annual Commissioner's Tea

Story & Photos By Dan Davidson

One could forgive visitors from Whitehorse for staring at the sky in amazement during the Commissioner's Tea on June 9. Commissioner Phillips himself said he was having trouble concentrating because of that strange yellow ball in the sky - something he said it seemed he had not seen in months.

Indeed, the day contained but a wisp of the clouds so common all over the territory for the last fortnight, and the temperature at noon read 29° C at some homes.

Gabriela Sgaga Emcee welcomed everyone to the 37th Annual Tea, a joint production of the IODE and Parks Canada, put on with the assistance of many volunteer bakers and servers. It recalls the days when Martha Black, wife of then Commissioner George Black, used to hold such teas at the Residence, and also serves to celebrate the Yukon's birthday as a distinct territory.

The actual date is June 13, but tradition has this event and the evening Ball fall on the nearest weekend, which usually seems to be the one before the official day.

On such a day it is appropriate to reflect on history, and David Rohatensky, the Superintendent of the Klondike National Historic Sites, combined past and future in his address. This close to the massive cuts inflicted on Parks Canada by the federal budget, Rohatensky attempted to reassure his audience that KNHS will continue to be the solid corporate citizen that it has been here since the late 1960s, but he conceded that it will be doing so with reduced resources and that it will be more of a struggle.

He praised the spirit of volunteerism that prevails here and helps to make so many events successful, and reminded the crowd that last Myrna Butterworth, president of the Dawson chapter of the IODE, was awarded special recognition for her many volunteer acts on behalf of Parks and in the community. She has been involved in all 37

He took a moment to praise his staff; particularly those who have lost or will soon lose their jobs as a result of the federal cuts.

"To the staff of Parks Canada who will be leaving the organization I express my personal appreciation for the work that you have done to make this historic site and this community a better place."

Spontaneous applause broke out as he spoke these words.

Myrna Butterworth spoke briefly, welcoming people to the event and thanking everyone for helping out. She noted that the donations today were to be presented to REPRISE, a charitable fund set up in memory of Gord Polichuk, Wendy Perry and Willie Gordon, local musicians who have died during the last three years.

Butterworth introduced Anne Dyer, the national IODE President, who has been visiting Dawson this week, and who was the next to take to the podium.

"IODE," said Dyer, "is a Canadian women's charitable organization whose mission is to enhance the quality of life for individualsthrougheducational support, community service, and citizenship programs."

Founded in 1900, the organization grew rapidly across Canada, and eventually shed the words from which it takes its signature letters. The Dawson chapter is one of the oldest, with a 96-year history.

Finally it was time for the Commissioner himself to take to the stage.

"Sitting here ... is always a highlight of Dale's and (my) year. June 13th is the 114th anniversary of the Yukon becoming a territory.

"I can't take credit for the Commissioner's Tea. This is an absolutely wonderful event. All of the work is done by Parks Canada and especially the IODE. They do a superb job."

Phillips noted that the Queen's Diamond Jubilee Year has been a busy and exciting one for him and his wife.

(the Queen) has seen 12 Canadian Prime Ministers, stretching back to Louis St. Laurent, up to our current Prime Minister, Stephen Harper. For our American friends who are with as today, she was the Queen back when Harry S. Truman was the President."

Following the practice he established during his first year in office, Phillips introduced some homegrown musical entertainment, beginning with the Hän Singers from the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in First Nation. They presented a number of traditional songs, including a Hän version of "O Canada", followed by an English rendition.

This year the Commissioner's Award for Public Service was presented by Phillips to Karee Vallevand, who has "shown and interest and tireless dedication to Yukon youth sports" and has been involved in a number of organizations, particularly as a member of the Native Hockey Tournament.

"Her 'no child left behind' policy ensures that many more youth are able to participate in these activities," Sgaga read from the citation.

Phillips and Yukon's Premier Darrell Pasloski handed out seven Diamond Jubilee Medals. They were presented to:

- Gerald Crayford a member 'To put that in perspective of the Dawson City Volunteer Fire Dept. for over 35 years.
 - Ione Christiansen Yukon's first woman Commissioner, a former Senator and promoter of the territory's environment and history.
 - Linda Johnson a Yukon archivist and historian, and author of several books on Yukon political history, the latest of which would be launched at the Ball that night.

- Shelia Rose an educator and promoter of Breakfast for Learning in the Yukon.
- Ted Staffen former Speaker of the Yukon Legislature and sports volunteer, and collaborator with Johnson, on the Yukon Commissioners' book.
- Geraldine Van Bibber the former Commissioner and Yukon Administrator formulated the plan for the Yukon Commissioners' book, and key member of many worthy tourism and cultural organizations.
- David "Buffalo" Taylor -Deputy Chief and a 40-year plus veteran of the Dawson City Volunteer Fire Dept.

After these folks had gathered for a group photo, the second musical treat came from Robyn Guenette, a young flautist from Whitehorse who is currently active in the MADD program at the Wood Street School.

Finally the only remaining formality was the cutting of the Yukon's birthday cakes (one chocolate and one vanilla) by Phillips and Dyer.

For those who lingered (for some people were going to need the next three hours to get ready for the evening's Ball at the Palace Grand Theatre) Parks provided free tours of the Residence.

Highway Closures Prompt Grocery Airlift

Story & Photos By Dan Davidson

The road washouts that shut down the Alaska Highway between Watson Lake and Teslin, and again around Kluane Lake, were experienced rather differently by Dawson's two grocery outlets.

For Paul Derry, at the Bonanza Market, it was pretty much business as usual. His supply truck got through on June 14 before the road washed out early Friday morning and the next one on his schedule was just a day late after the frontier road through the washout area restored service on Monday morning.

"It was pretty much like what we'd have on a holiday weekend," said Derry last week. "Everything was a day late."

For the Mark, June and Carla Mather at the Dawson City General Store the situation was grocery truck that had been scheduled to arrive in Dawson on Saturday morning wasn't going to make it.

Their own experience made them acutely aware of the problem they were likely to be facing. Their truck arrived in Watson Lake well after the road shut down.

"We weren't going to be in a good deal more complicated. Mark Mather and his daughter, Carla, were on their way home from a quick trip up the Alaska Highway about midnight on Thursday when Carla says they watched the road start to vanish in front of them.

"We were the first people on the scene," Carla said, "and the road just kind of washed away."

She has video on her iPad of the water surging across the road beside Kluane Lake where extensive work has been done in the past to prevent just this sort of thing. It's worked pretty well since 2008, but not this

To get home, the Mathers had to back out of the washout area, turn around and go back through Beaver Creek, up to Tetlin Junction and home over the Taylor/Top of the World route, a trip complicated by the fact that Mark didn't have his passport with him. Back in Dawson June faxed a copy to the US border stations and that, along with an explanation, got them through.

By that time the Mathers were aware of the washouts at the southern end of the territory, and knew that the dire need of groceries," Carla said, "but we were going to be in need of fresh produce, milk and meat."

By Saturday morning Mark was looking for information and went to MLA Sandy Silver to get the names of government people he might be able to contact. The amount of time that it was going to take to open a road (with the Campbell Highway also affected) was going to determine what he did next, but he was already thinking in terms of an airlift. Silver got a report from Highway's Minister Wade Ischenko, who said that Premier Pasloski would have a full briefing later that day.

The Premier arrived here for Commissioner's Day events, expressed his concerns and gave some idea of what was happening during informal conversations with this reporter.

Mark Mather was very happy with the cooperation and information he got from the various levels of the government.

Mather, who initially thought he would airlift to Dawson directly from Watson Lake, was advised by Mayor Peter Jenkins to do the thing in two stages, airlifting to Whitehorse and then trucking the groceries to Dawson.

He was grateful for this advice, as it was a considerable saving over his initial plan.

Mather said that Shane Branch, the general manager at Kluane Freightlines, was great, personally arranging for a trailer and driver to be ready at the Air North terminal when the groceries arrived there,

At Air North, Jackie Gabinet and Nigel Cripps at the charters desk sorted out the weight and cost details and began to organize their end, just waiting for a final decision from Mather.

"About 2 o'clock or 2:30 I made the decision that we were going to airlift the product to Whitehorse, deciding that it really made sense if we wanted to keep the community full of perishable foods, not knowing if the road was going to be closed another 24 hours or longer."

Mather was concerned about more than the population of the Klondike. The store also has to assemble bulk orders for 150-170 bush and mining camps. On Saturday June Mather was having trouble assembling those orders, so they needed to get those supplies in town.

"Air North was fabulous," Mather said. "They set up two flights, they gave me times and they met the times, actually, to a tee. They ended up landing the second aircraft in Whitehorse at one o'clock, transferred the product over to the semi trailer and at two o'clock that transport truck left – so it was

It arrived in Dawson on Sunday morning at 8 a.m., with all the product in good shape, more than a day earlier than it could have after the frontier road in the south opened on Monday morning.

The Mathers both indicated that the experience had heightened their awareness of the territory's dependence on its supply lines, as well as giving them appreciation of how well things can be worked out when everyone cooperates for the common good.

Kittens

Here at the Humane Society Dawson, one of our cats has kittens on the way! We are expecting them to be born sometime within three weeks. The mom is "Miss Hissy" (who is also looking for a home.) She is a beautiful, short haired, gray cat. Don't let her name fool you, as Miss Hissy has a wonderful temperament, and is very affectionate.

If you, or someone you know, are interested in adopting a kitten, call or come to the Humane Society today to talk to us!

Music, History, Good Food and Good Times at the Commissioner's Ball

Story & Photos By Dan Davidson

What could possibly be a better time and place than the Commissioner's Ball to launch a book about the Yukon's Commissioners? No place at all, obviously, and so that was one of the main events at this year's Ball, held in the Palace Grand Theatre on the evening of June

This year Commissioner Doug Phillips made good on his pledge, made at last year's Ball, to take over the organization and running of the event. There seems to be a rumour going around that the Klondike Visitors Association pulled out at the last moment, leaving Philips' office to scramble. This is not the case, and the Commissioner offered thanks during his remarks to the KVA for lending their assistance in planning after their many years of running the Ball.

The receiving line began at 7 p.m. but for the "riff-raff" public on the street, watching from the steps of the Old Post Office, as local photographer Janice Cliffe organized the fancy dresses and formal tuxes into an arrangement that would do for the traditional group photo in front of the theatre, the event came to life at 7:50.

The procedure seems to resemble an attempt to herd cats, but Cliffe did manage to produce a stunning tableau once she got the group to stop paying attention to each other and face front.

Inside, the bar, being run by CFYT-fm this year, was open, and the folks in their finery milled about finding seats, snapping each other's pictures and wondering when the assortment of appetizers, being served buffet-style this year by the Culinary Class of Yukon College, would be available.

When emcee Gabriela Sgaga managed to get everyone's attention she introduced introduced Phillips the former Commissioners and members of the Yukon Legislature.

Referencing the Whitehorse weather as a contrast with the gorgeous day June 9 in Dawson had been, Phillips floated a notion that was well received by the Dawsonites in the crowd, and by the visitors who seemed to outnumber them.

"Dale (Stokes, his wife) and I were wondering how the federal government would feel if we made the decision to move the Commissioner's Office back to ... Dawson. I have this little guy that sits on my shoulder that says to do these things that the federal government doesn't enjoy, but I think I might just write and make the suggestion just to see what happens."

Phillips offered special thanks and the presentation of a bouquet of flowers to the key members of his staff, Lindsay Hamilton and Lillian Loponen. While he said they didn't know he was going to do this and he often does little things that surprise them, one of them was heard to say that he'd be surprised how little that actually happens.

Locally, Peggy Amendola, a member of the KVA, was cited as being of great assistance in planning the Ball. It was in fact, thanks to Peggy, and local seamstress Debbie Winston, that the Commissioner actually had legs to stand on at the Ball, for he had forgotten to pack the trousers for his tux when he left Whitehorse.

He spoke of the busy series of events that are ahead of him as Canada continues to celebrate the Queen's Diamond Jubilee. So far he has awarded 29 Jubilee medals to deserving Yukoners and there will be more as the year goes on. Nine recipients were in attendance at the Ball.

"This fall I'm going to be

embarking on a tour of 14 elementary schools from Old Crow to Watson Lake, taking the message of the history of the Queen in Canada to our Yukon children."

Phillips, who has a long association the Rotary Music Festival and vowed to promote youth musical culture during his term, went on to introduce his musical guests for the evening, the Han Singers and Whitehorse flautist Robyn Guenette.

Following this Sgaga turned the room upside down by informing the guests that the floral centerpieces could be taken home by the person at each table who found a tag under their seat. Pandemonium ensued.

The formal part of the concluded evening with the official launch of Linda Johnson's newest history book, At the Heart of Gold: the Yukon Commissioner's Office, 18982010. The book and Johnson were introduced by Speaker of the House David Laxton, along with former Speak Ted Staffen and former Commissioner Geraldine Van Bibber, during whose terms the book was begun.

The evening continued with a dance to tune played by Yukon Jack, and no doubt some of the guests made their way to Diamond Tooth Gertie's after the Ball.

Through the Eyes of a Tourist, No. 1

by Carly Lovett Student Intern

Though as a resident it is easy to scoff at camera-toting tourists wandering the streets of Dawson, the visitors I meet here are often far better informed than I when it comes to the history of this town. This summer, however, will be different. This summer, I will embark on a mission to become better informed about the history of this place and by extension, so will you. My goal is to attend all of the tours offered by Parks Canada and to write about them here.

This is the first in a series of stories describing my experiences on each of the Parks Canada tours of historic Dawson City.

"Strange Things Done In The Midnight Sun"

Guide: Sue Taylor.

The title of this tour, as many of you will recognize, is a quote from the Robert Service poem "The Cremation of Sam McGee." In keeping with this theme, our guide began the tour with the poem, reciting it from memory to the amusement and delight of the crowd. After the applause, we trundled off to our first stop, the Dänojà Zho cultural centre. From the centre we ambled through downtown Dawson, exploring many old buildings, open to the public exclusively on tours such as this one.

We heard many fascinating stories Klondikers who made their way in the north through other means than the gold pan. Among the tales was the story of the first ever tourists to Dawson: two women who came up in 1889 and brought with them, among other things, a portable bowling alley and a canary. In the old Bank of British North America building we learned about two surprising hot commodities of old time Dawson: eggs and kittens! These were sold during the Gold Rush years for hundreds of dollars a pop. We were also educated on the long, and surprisingly almost wholesome history of brothels in Dawson during our pause in front of Ruby's whorehouse.

Sue herded us on, through and past buildings, which I walk by every day, illuminating those familiar surroundings with tales of the people who once created and inhabited them. Our tour finished in the Old Post Office, my personal favorite among the historical structures in Dawson. Inside we were given our final historical tidbit, a tale of one of the biggest scams in advertising history: the Quaker

Oats "Klondike Big Inch".

Overall the tour was a lovely (and very informative) way to spend an afternoon.

As I was leaving, Sue, our guide, handed me a trading card with her face on it. It was part of the "Greatest-Klondike-Canadian" contest, held Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 2:30 in the Palace Grand theatre. In the contest, Parks Canada employees dress up as historical Dawson celebrities and attempt to convince the crowd that they alone are the greatest character from the Klondike gold rush. The picture on the card she gave me is the one shown above. Sue plays Belinda Mulroney.

VISITOR OF THE WEEK

at Goldrush Campground

Visitor Names: John & Colleen Humphreys

Traveling from: Salmon Arm, B.C.

Comments about their visit: "Our five days in Dawson City were absolutely wonderful. We enjoyed all of the attractions and historic sites, expecially Dredge #4. I'll be telling lots of people about the incredibly awesome piece of equipment and its achievements.

"Can't wait to come back, hopefully soon with a bunch of friends. In the meantime, thanks Dawson City for the lasting memories."

Visitor of the Week is brought to you by the Dawson City Chamber of Commerce and the Klondike Sun

Artist Profile at the Dancing Moose Letter to the Editor:

"Third Lesson" The most recent piece by Nathalie Parenteau, was unveiled for the first time at the artist's reception last Saturday at the Dancing Moose. Image: Nathalie Parenteau

by Carly Lovett Student Intern

This past Saturday, the 23rd, the Dancing Moose hosted an artist's reception and artwork signing with Nathalie Parenteau. Refreshments and light snacks were provided and visitors were given a chance to get to know the artist.

Nathalie Parenteau, for those of us who are not yet familiar with her work, is an extremely popular, Whitehorse-based artist who creates soulful, richly colored images depicting captured moments of northern life in the natural environment, including beautifully stylized northern animals, landscapes and people.

In her artist bio, Nathalie is quoted as saying," They [the images] take shape on their own. I just scratch the canvas and there they are."

This free spirited naturalness has provided Nathalie with great success in the northern art world. She has a large following and was recently commissioned to create a huge, five panel piece for the new public safety building in Whitehorse. Nathalie makes an appearance at the Dancing Moose once a year; these are events where those who enjoy her art can meet her in person and even have some of their favorite pieces signed.

Diana Andrew, owner of the Dancing Moose, describes Parenteau's work as having a "mass appeal". To elaborate she explained that they are "paintings of images we all can relate to in the north". Andrew explains that, apart from the appealing style of the work, one of the reasons she enjoys selling these prints is the fact that they are printed on a variety of paper types and in different sizes. This allows Diane to sell the works at price points that are accessible to everyone and it has also created loyal collectors from all walks of life.

The Dancing Moose, located on Front Street between Maximilian's and the Nugget and Ivory store, hosts other artists, as well as art demonstrations throughout the year. Besides the work of Nathalie Parenteau, they showcase pieces by many other local artists and represent a great example of local businesses supporting the local economy and the arts.

Letter to the Editor:About those Highland Games

To Sally, Stephanie and all others involved;

Thank you for making this one of the greatest games experiences I have ever been a part of! The organization, planning and execution was flawless!

I have traveled for games all across the US, and Canada. I have traveled to Scotland and competed in games that have been in existence for over 150 years. I can say without a question of a doubt that you have hosted one of the most unique, exciting and friendly games I have been a part of. The commitment to your community and passion to persist through the challenges of organizing and hosting a new games was evident at every turn.

You live in one of the most incredible places I have ever visited. Beauty and location aside, the town experience was fully realized through the hospitality and welcome of the ENTIRE TOWN!

Thank you for putting this together. I sincerely hope that the organizers and town benefited from this experience to the extent that you will feel compelled to plan, host and grow this event year after year (after, of course, you are all refreshed from a well deserved break!)

Thank you again! I feel honored to have been a part of the 2012 games.

Greg Bell.

Another Blast from the Past

by Lisa McKenna

Living in New Brunswick, the youngest among eleven children, he showed a musical talent as a toddler. Born in 1909 he began playing the fiddle in 1914. By the age of 7 he began playing at barn dances and county fairs. He never received any formal training till the 1920's.

His first group was known as the Backwoods Trio and his partners were Marg Osburne and Charlie Chamberlain.

From the 40's into the 60's he had his own radio show.

Through out the 60's he had a ½ hour T.V. show, he even had Stompin' Tom Connors on his show and I remember watching it with my grandmother when I was a little girl. His show was the second most popular show on television, only out numbered by Hockey Night in Canada!

He passed on in 1973 and in 1985 he was inducted into the Canadian Country Music Association Hall of Honor. In 1989 he was inducted into the Hall of Fame.

You hardly saw him in a close up but his steady fiddling was always there in the background. I would like you

The Mysterious Case of the Dead Legs, Part 2

by Aaron Dewarle

Note: Last issue Aaron Dewarle described his actions in Hawaii when he saw what he thought was a practical joke being played, only to discover, too late, that the legs he saw sticking out of the engine compartment of a nearby boat belonged to a real person and were not fake.

Almost two hours later we returned to the harbor to the bright red glow of a fire truck, half dozen state police cars and a big black hearse type vehicle that said "Wailuku Coroner". An uncanny mix of shock and shame filled me. I debarked the vessel with the other 107 tourists where we were forced to give a wide berth to the area now cordoned off with police tape.

Lost in my thoughts, I heard a female voice say, "there he is". I turned and quickly spotted "the older woman" pointing towards me, as she appeared to be giving a police officer a statement. I saw my three fisherman friends close behind her, also talking with an officer. Dread filled me. I just wanted to leave. I had two options, pretend I didn't hear and get lost in the crowd or attempt to offer my assistance in the investigation. By chance my son began crying as I inquired whether a statement was needed from me. The officer quickly assured me they had what they needed and I could continue on my way. I did not second-guess him.

Guilt is a funny thing. Sometimes it is indisputably valid and perhaps other times it is self-induced. I learned that the man's estimated time of death was 3 PM. I walked by around 3:22. What if the coroner was wrong? What if he was off by 20 minutes? What if I hadn't been so worried about being played the fool?

Nineteenth century Danish philosopher Soren Kierkegaard is quoted saying, "Wherever there is a crowd there is untruth". The idea of mob mentality disassembling the intelligence or common sense of a normally clear thinking person is hardly a new concept. Somehow the thought of the 107 people being mistaken did not seem plausible. In hindsight, even from 100 feet away it was impossible that those legs could have been anything but bona fide legs. The joke was on me. So quick to abandon rational thinking due to the influence of a large group.

Still distressed about not having any answers about the fisherman's plight two weeks later, my father-in law and I returned to the seen of the guilt to investigate what caused the death. He seemed to sense that I was still uneasy about not having closure to the cause of the situation, and my feeling of guilt that I possibly could have saved his life. We finally found out what happened after talking to an officer at the Department of Fisheries and Oceans office at the north end of the harbor. The official explained that the cause of death was trauma to the head and secondary cause was asphyxiation. While leaning down into the engine compartment to fix his engine he likely slipped and banged his head, fell further in, and was quickly overcome by diesel fumes in the small He ended compartment. his answer with explaining that Hawaiians know people spendingthousandsofdollars on a vacation don't want to hear about a tragedy. That is why nothing ever showed up in the local media.

I learned many things over the 2 months we were lucky enough to spend on the Island. Regrettably this situation taught me one of the shameful things about myself and perhaps at least 107 other people in the world. How fickle we humans are.

A pioneer thinker for his day, clergyman Harry Emerson Fosdick advised, "Watch what people are cynical about, and one can often discover what they lack". I've always inwardly $criticized \, those \, feeble \, minded \,$ individuals who get sucked into popular thinking and through it support atrocities such as the Salem Witch Trials, Auschwitz, or Rwanda genocide. On a much less dramatic scale, maybe I'm not so dissimilar as I would like to believe.

THIS IS JUST MY OPINION

with Al Sider

Live and Let Live: Pt. 1 of 4

Europeans, Americans, and Canadians have a very bad habit of interfering in the affairs of other Nations around the world. They seem to be of the opinion that what is right and good for them is good for the entire world. Yet, Canada, the USA, and Europe are the "babies", the youngest, of all the world's nations. Trying to make all of the Nations in the world into one Nation is absurd. The American Government and Activist groups today, seem to want the entire human race to be "American". What's worse is that the Canadian Government appears to agree with this concept.

Trying to impose "Western Democracy" on Nations that do not have a Democracy is offensive. Offensive not just to me, but to the Nations who have had several millennia of old lifestyle, Traditions, Religion, Rituals, and Culture. The world currently has a vast diversity of Cultures and Traditions, Religions and Rituals, and Western Society has deemed these things in error. Who are we to decide for others what is right or wrong? These Nations have survived thousands of years living by their own Traditions, Cultures, Religions and Rituals and seem to be happy in their lives. Happy that is until someone like the USA steps in and tells the people, "There is a better way – Our Way!" Then suddenly the people are no longer happy with their lives.

Imposing Western standards on these people creates calamity. Uprisings, insurgence, wars, famine and pestilence become the familiar trade-offs for reasonable peace and harmony within these Nations, and we can see these occurring in today's news. Brother fights against brother, sister against sister, father against son, mother against daughter. They war amongst each other because some agree with the old traditional ways, and others agree with the new Western ideas.

Now, I am not saying that I personally agree with the way these Nations administer their Laws, or their Traditions, Religions, or Cultures – but those are what make these Nations unique. Who do we think we are to tell them that their Old Ways are wrong? I am a Canadian and thereby live under Canadian Laws, Cultures, Traditions and Religions, and I ask myself "How would I feel if someone came here and told me my way of living is wrong?" Undoubtedly, I would feel confused, confounded, angry, defiant and rebellious. So I wonder, is it any surprise that the people of these independent Nations should feel similarly? No!

Human Rights Activists say that the way these Nations treat their women is an abomination. By Western Standards I would agree, but if I were raised and lived in Arabia, Lebanon, Afghanistan, Iraq, Egypt, India, Thailand among others, I doubt that I would agree with the Activists. I would believe – correctly so – that these Activists were attempting to destroy my Culture, Religion, Traditions, Rituals and even my Laws. What would I do to attempt to preserve these in my Country? I would fight, tooth and nail, with sticks, stones, fists, weapons of any sort in an attempt to preserve my way of life!

And of course Live and Let Live . . . This is just My opinion. To be continued . . .

An Almost Extinct Animal: The Arctic Fox

by Lisa McKenna

An arctic fox has a lush white coat in the winter, turning to a grey or brown in the summer. Their white coat provides warmth and camouflage in the winter while its grey, or brown, coat camouflages them going over the tundra, which, in summer, is covered with lichens, moss, and rocks.

These foxes can survive extreme temperatures as low as -50 C. This is not only from their thick coat but they also possess a thick layer of fat, furry feet, short ears, short legs, and a really small (for a fox) muzzle AND they use their fluffy tails for a nice blanket.

In the cruel winters of the north they follow the Polar Bears to feast off of the scraps of the seals the bears have caught. In the summers they mainly prey on lemmings, (although due to their acute hearing they can even find them under the snow), voles, hares, owls, eggs, and during the months of April and May they attack the ringed seal pups. They also eat berries and seaweed. I guess this makes the Arctic Fox an omnivore.

Though, as yet, only two subspecies of these foxes are in extreme danger of extinction, the warming of the polar caps is putting the rest at risk. The Polar Bear is the "yardstick" of global warming and with no Polar Bears there will be no Arctic Foxes. With the seal population declining and the ice pack shrinking the fate of Arctic animals, like the Arctic Fox and the Polar Bear, is not looking good.

Quirky Things Happen on the Way to Dawson

Story & Photos by Josée Bonhomme

The stalled traffic in Watson Lake was a heart-warming pulse check of Yukon hospitality. The town went out of its way to make sure stranded tourists and truck drivers could stay in contact with the world and let everyone know how friendly the town is.

The Alaska, Stewart-Cassiar and Robert Campbell highways all were closed from June 6-7th to June 11th (Alaska Hwy) beyond Watson Lake. People were trapped in this lovely gateway town of some 1,200 to 1,500 year-round residents, the third largest in the Yukon.

Restaurants stayed open longer hours, and had extra staff and friends helping out. Special meals were put on by groups and the Town just came to life. The Gateway Campground and Tags' were completely full, to the point of straining utilities, as laundry was a popular pastime. Wi-Fi and internet access were and a special Stanley Cup finals party was held as an impromptu welcome at the curling lounge in the new recreation complex. All tourist attractions were going full bore, with the Sign Post Forest being a popular attraction for those with time on their hands, on exploratory hikes.

The drive is so long to the north that a forced stay may be just what people want. The weather was fabulous after relentless downpours, partly responsible for high streams and landslides. A dynamic and warm spring late in the season melted all the snow away at the same time. Wash-outs and landslides ruled over mankind this time. One point for Mother Nature.

Our food trucks loaded with perishables were relayed by Hercules aircraft to Whitehorse on June 9th and 10th, where shipping could resume. Some of these trucks had their ultimate destinations in Fairbanks. Fuel trucks were equally important residents had never seen such high waters reach their fields.

Alternate means of transport were slim to none. A municipal worker, the head of utilities, had been trapped in Whitehorse and flew home in an Alkan Air chartered plane on the 10th. His services were needed, with a high water table in town and such a demand on all services.

An empty plane was then available returning to Whitehorse. That was likely the only way out that day going west and north. The pilot of the tiny Cessna 172, Katie Scorgie, is a passenger and pilot were being packed into the mosquito-sized single-engine light aircraft, the First Air Hercules was landing to pick up three truckloads of food. The one-hour, 45 minute flight was amazing, seemed to take no time at all. The scenery was unspeakable as mountain chains compete with each other for the real Miss Universe contest.

Serendipity leads to more unexpected discoveries. Beez Kneez was always a curiosity for me. I enjoyed their logo and advertising and finally got a chance to stay there with Rambo. They ner, along with her worker bees, does her utmost to accommodate travelers, and explained the highway closure caused many cancellations at the last minute. She chose not to charge a penalty, due to the unusual circumstances. The closures trapped people going in the opposite direction, so it seemed to balance out.

This goodwill will likely bring her many more clients. Reservations are a must. They are located at 408 Hoge, just south of downtown Whitehorse. Their phone number is (867) 456-2333 (BEEE), hostel@klondiker. com. Neat little place, and they are open 365 days a year.

A further discovery on the way to the Klondike was the Husky Bus Service! Jesse Cooke, who taught school at Robert Service till just over a year ago, recognized the dire need for a regular bus service between the capitals. After one year teaching in Nova Scotia, he returned to offer this essential service this summer. He hauls cargo, luggage, packages, people, dogs, friends and families in a rapid and courteous van service. Residents of communities along the way also now enjoy a way into Whitehorse on a dependable and affordable basis.

Great way to come home with no need to worry about the long drive, Jesse is a good driver and stays on track. One-way fare from/to Whitehorse is $89 – to reserve, call (867) 335-8833 or e-mail yukonhuskybus@gmail. ca. Includes obligatory stops at Braeburn Lodge for cinnamon buns and the Pelly Crossing store to admire that beautiful log building.

important to many, with cell phones, tablets, laptops, by folks of all ages. The biggest challenge perhaps at the Gateway park was making sure latecomers who needed it had electrical power, especially senior travelers who must rely on oxygen.

The extra distance the community covered to accommodate nearly 2,000 visitors was beyond exemplary. The locals were patient and kind in offering directions, ideas for hikes around Wye Lake, and just added to the overall warmth under the hot sun and gorgeous weather.

Many RVers were on their way home to Alaska, so turning around wasn't an option. The mood was festive for the entire time I remained a happy hostage. Many friendships developed where none would have been possible otherwise. A feeling of solidarity and cooperation dominated the mood.

The Town decided to open the library for internet access over the weekend of June 9-10, for many communities along the thin and brittle ribbon the Alaska Highway weaves through the Yukon on its way to Alaska.

Yukon Highways re-opened the road late on June 11 after working around the clock to clear one lane of traffic to first let the food, and the fuel and other commercial transport trucks through. Tourists and travelers patiently filed along and were on their way, keeping a good souvenir of this little town in the wilderness.

This example of what happens when the weather gets extreme, highlights the importance and fragility of the Alaska Highway as a vital link to the outside world, for over 750,000 Alaskans and Yukoners.

It was sad for all to learn part of the communities of Lower Post and Upper Liard were evacuated during the night of the 9th to the 10th. Emergency workers stayed up all night to help with rescue efforts. Some homes were completely lost and farms were flooded. Long-time

French Students Find Klondike Gold

by Stuart Leary

On May 7, 11 students and one chaperone arrived from Oyonnax, France, took part in a cultural exchange with students from Robert Service School (RSS).

They stayed with their billets in Dawson for 10 days, taking part in many different activities such as exploring the history of our town, hiking in Tombstone Park, panning for gold, bonding around old fashioned camp fires, and driving ATVs.

While some of these activities might not seem very exciting to locals, it was quite the shock to the French students for whom things like campfires are only done in movies.

Wildlife sightings and snow in May rounded out this truly "Northern" experience.

RSS students will join a larger group with students from Whitehorse and Haines Junction, and will travel to France in February 2013 to complete the exchange.

Yukon's Touring Artist Fund Supports Audience Appreciation

Press Release

WHITEHORSE (June 15, 2012) —Yukon's Touring Artist Fund will provide $23,027 to nine Yukon artists representing the literary and visual arts.

"Artistic excellence is recognized and supported by the Government of Yukon," Tourism and Culture Minister Mike Nixon said. "Through the Touring Artist Fund, established artists are able to expand their reach to new audiences, sharing their own artistic expression with others and inspiring new audience appreciation."

Established visual artist Nicole Bauberger is receiving $1,423 to travel to Alberta to present her series Get There From Here at the Art Gallery in St. Albert. The gallery exhibit consists of 183 paintings created during a road trip from Montreal to Whitehorse and then to Inuvik, N.W.T., and Fairbanks and Anchorage, Alaska.

"When I painted my road series, every 50 kilometres from Montreal to Fairbanks, I did so in the hope of showing the series to people living along its path," Bauberger said. "My artistic vision is not complete until the moment the viewers have the opportunity to see their own often-driven, familiar landscapes. I am grateful for the support through the Yukon government in helping to bring this dream to fruition. Hopefully the show will give Canadians a different way of imagining both the breadth and the connection of our country."

Applications for the Touring Artist Fund are accepted four times per year. The next intake deadline is September 15. Applications and guidelines are available at Tourism and Culture's Arts Funding and Awards website: www.tc.gov.yk.ca/arts_funding.

To speak with the fund administrator, call 867-667-8789 or toll-free 1-800-661-0408, extension 8789 or email artsfund@gov.yk.ca.

Taking a Trip Down Memory Lane Spoken Word at the

Tim Falconer had reached the point, common to most guests at the Berton House Writers' Residence, where he was counting down the days that he had left in Dawson City and wishing there were more.

"I've had a fabulous time here in Dawson," he told the crowd during his reading at the Dawson Community Library. "It's gonna be hard to leave. There'll probably be a lot of tears and a sad, sad parting in 16 days."

He began his reading with an extract from his second book, Drive: A Road Trip through Our Complicated Affair with the Automobile, settling on a sequence in Argentina, where the Ford Falcon was a symbol of reliability, domesticity and oppression at the same time.

At a car club dinner in Argentina he meta man who had more cars (7) than daughters (3) and had, during his lifetime, owned over 100 cars.

One of the men at the dinner complained that wives generally do not appreciate the relationship between men and

"They do not understand the way we take better care of our cars than of our wives."

He admitted that he hasn't done a lot of writing in the two and half months he's been here because he's been too busy soaking up every bit of Dawson he can. He hit the ground blogging for the annual film festival. He's written for What's Up Yukon at the behest of his former student, Alyssa Friesen, who is one of the editors there. He's taken on a weekly radio show at CFYT-fm and has been having a blast organizing that. He's been up the Dempster Highway a couple of times, prowled around sternwheeler graveyard, hiked the trails around Dawson and visited Elsa and Keno City.

This last trip was one down memory lane, for he spent four monthsworking at the mine in Elsa during the summer of 1979 and got to know both communities quite well during those days when the mines were still active before

Going back inspired him to begin working on a memoir, which has the working title of "That Summer in Elsa", and he read some of that first draft of the work to an appreciative audience.

By the time he had taken that summer job, which was very much in line with other summer jobs he had had during those school and college years, he had already decided he was going to switch his university major from mining engineering to English Literature.

While it wasn't the experience in the Yukon that made up his mind, he nevertheless has always seen that summer as marking the line between directions his life might have gone and the way it did go.

He concluded with a piece he's been reworking, a complex bit of work called "Face the Music" about his own experience of being clinically tone-deaf and working hard to overcome it. It's odd, he said for a guy with 10,000 songs on his MacBook, a guy who loves music in many forms, who enjoys hosting a radio show, to be unable to sing on pitch. He said that most people who are really tone-deaf they shut down. Tim Falconer at the Dawson Community Library, explaining that it's hard to get any work done in Dawson.

don't actually like music either. He's been taking vocal lessons, trying to overcome the problem, and feels like he's making some progress.

Turning his personal struggle into the first draft of a book is actually the project he came to Berton House to work on, but "Dawson can be a very hard place to get any work done" he said with a shrug.

Falconer is the author of two other books: Watchdogs and Gadflies: Activism from Marginal to Mainstream; and That Good Night: Ethicists, Euthanasia and End-of-Life Care, all from the Penguin Group (Canada).

Shortly after arriving in Dawson, he had to make a quick trip back to Toronto for the launch of Drop the Worry Ball: How to Parent in the Age of Entitlement (Wiley), which he collaborated on with psychologist and popular parenting expert Alex Russell.

Based in Toronto, Falconer teaches magazine journalism at Ryerson University, conducts writing seminars and is available as a speaker for book clubs and other groups.

Library

Libraries may still be places where a certain amount of peace and quiet is the general rule, but several times during the summer the Dawson Community Library becomes a place where speaking out is the rule rather than the exception.

Spoken Word nights are being organized by student librarian Mary Fraughton again this summer, and the first one took place

Spoken Word happens in the evening, when the daytime patrons have moved on, but it still includes people with a fondness for libraries and for language.

The evening is open to poetry, prose, original material, favorite passages from other peoples' published work and pieces being written on the spot that very night. On this first night there were several poems, some short essays, some "found" poetry, a reading from a book about bread, a couple of items from the work of Shel Silverstein and a memoir in progress.

It was a short evening, with only about an hour's worth of material, but it was fun and a good beginning for the summer program.

Increased Lightning Sparks Eight New Fires Last Week From Bulletins #s10,11 & 12

Lightning triggered six new wildfires in the territory Thursday afternoon (June 21) with the most notable of the new activity being a 25 hectare fire burning in the Dawson district 23 kilometres south of Dawson City.

"Within a short period of time beginning shortly before 3:00 p.m. these six new fires started," said Duty Officer Dave Milne. "We immediately responded to the numerous public calls regarding the significant fire in the Dawson district and the public's support in reporting these fires is much appreciated."

The Dawson fire of note is burning near Bonanza Creek Road. Soon after being reported both air tanker groups were dispatched from Whitehorse and several loads of retardant were dropped on the fire. While there are identified values in the area none are currently at immediate risk. Firefighters will be onsite this evening and return to the fire Friday morning.

The Dawson district saw two other fires Thursday afternoon. A small 0.2 hectares near the Top of the World Highway is now fully contained and expected to be put out Friday, June 22. The third fire reported in the Dawson district Thursday is 0.2 hectares in size and located 17 kilometres north of the Dawson airport. It also received air tanker action. The other three fires reported Thursday are located in the Ross River and Mayo fire districts. All three are located in remote wilderness zones with no values currently threatened. They will continue to be monitored. With the recent activity and more fires expected additional resources have been requested from British Columbia. They could arrive in the territory as early as Friday afternoon.

Two more lightning caused fires started Thursday night in the territory bringing the one day fire total to eight. The district seeing the most fire activity recently is Dawson where four new fires were

"The Dawson and Mayo districts have been seeing warm temperatures for most of May and June and that combined with the recent lightning activity has resulted in these new starts," said Duty Officer Dave Milne. "With the rest of the territory now expected to see hot and dry conditions as well as lightning more fire activity is expected."

Of the two new fires reported Thursday night the most significant is a 0.7 hectare fire burning near Indian River approximately 60 kilometres south of Dawson City. Some mining camps have been identified in the area and as a result airtankers successfully actioned the fire and prevented it from spreading. Today the fire will be further assessed. The second fire reported Thursday night was spot size in a remote part of the Carmacks district near Black Creek and the Yukon River.

Meanwhile, crews are on the ground this morning actioning the 25 hectare fire burning near Bonanza Creek Road approximately 23 kilometres south of Dawson City. Airtankers were able to prevent the fire from spreading last night and several crews are on site today. Given the recent activity and the hot and dry forecast additional firefighters from British Columbia have been requested. They will be arriving in Whitehorse this afternoon where they will be briefed and then relocated the districts with the most

In the Dawson district there were two new fires both burning near identified values on Friday. Both fires are approximately five hectares. One is located north of Henderson Corner approximately five kilometres from nearby residences, while the other is burning near Rock Creek and is seven kilometres north-east of the airport. Helicopters bucketed both these fires Friday evening, with air tanker action also being taken on the fire near Henderson corner. These fires will be further assessed Saturday.

With more lighting and warmer temperatures expected the public is being asked to exercise caution when burning and be aware of any suspicious smoke. If you see a wildfire please report it immediately to 1-888-798-FIRE (3473). The public is reminded that burning permits are now mandatory and will be suspended if the fire danger rating is moderate, high or extreme.

ONE

A unicorn has ONE single horn that sits in the middle of its forehead. It's a mystical beast that was believed to not only have a single horn but to have cloven feet and a goat's beard!

Unicorns were first mentioned by the ancient Greeks; they became more popular during the Renaissance and were thought to be the symbol of Purity and Grace.

Unicorns were believed to exist by scientists, historians, and the general public until the late 1800's. Though there are still people today that think the Unicorn is still alive and just hiding deep in the forests from the sight of man.

Narwhals only have ONE tusk, or horn, which is actually a tooth! They are closely related to the Beluga whale and Dolphins.

Narwhals are small, only reaching a length of 5 meters but they are heavy (1900 kg) Because they live in the Arctic Seas they have quite a huge amount of blubber (or fat) and their tusk, being up to 3 meters long weighs quite a lot.

They live about 90 years, they only have little narwhals once every 10 to 16 months, but little is known about the Narwhal. It is known that they feed on fish, shrimp, and that they swallow them whole because, like the turtle, they have NO TEETH!

There has been several estimates about how many Narwhals exist on earth today; some say as few as 10,000 and others say as many as 80,000. But as I said before, little is known about them.

It is known that they can dive down 800 meters and some even dive down 1500 meters (making them the deepest diving mammal) and they can hold their breath up to 25 minutes!

Humans have only one nose! And one brain! One mouth and one chin!

A bunny rabbit has one tail but I can't think of any creature with two! Can you?
