Parks' Cuts Will Hurt Yukon's Tourism Industry

Press Release

The Tourism Industry Association of Yukon (TIA Yukon) is very concerned with the federal government's decision to cut 30 of the 110 Parks Canada employees in the Yukon – almost 28% of its presence in the territory. TIA Yukon strongly believes that this will have major consequences for Yukon's tourism industry and the Yukon economy.

"The Government of Canada may save a few dollars with these cuts, but by doing so the Yukon will lose millions in direct and indirect revenue that comes from visitor spending associated with Parks Canada sites", says TIA Yukon Chair Neil Hartling. "Think about the business owners who offer accommodations, retail and food services to visitors who go to and from these attractions. If the attractions become less attractive to tourists because there are less services provided, how can this not result in less visitor traffic, and ultimately, less business?"

According to a report compiled by the federal government last year, titled 'The Economic Impacts of Parks Canada', Parks Canada sites in the Yukon produced almost $6.9 million in direct revenue in 2009. The same year, Parks Canada also contributed $10.2 million to the Yukon's GDP, generated $7.5 million in labour income, created the equivalent of 145 full time jobs and brought in $600,000 in tax revenue to the territory.

Many tourism operators who own businesses near Parks Canada sites have expressed their concerns about the impending cuts and believe that the federal government should reconsider its decision.

"Our members have a right to be worried," says TIA Yukon Executive Director Blake Rogers. "Parks Canada handles a huge amount of tourism product in the territory and now all of a sudden, the funding it needs to function properly is being taken away. Who's going to fill this gap? Does the federal government expect the territorial government to pick up the pieces? Will it fall to the private sector? You can't just saw a leg off a table and expect it to stand up as well as it once did. What's the plan here?"

With the recent announcement from the Chamber of Mines that the Yukon can expect close to a 40% downturn in mining exploration from last year, many Yukoners have expressed the need to diversify the economy. As an economic driver, tourism has been proven to provide a strong return on investment, both territorially and nationally. "In the past when commodity prices were low it was the tourism industry that kept the Yukon afloat", says Hartling. "Yukon's MP, has said that these cuts to Parks Canada won't impact tourism in the territory, but the report released by his government last year clearly proves that it does. When many of TIA Yukon's members in communities like Dawson City and Haines Junction who've been operating in the area for years, tell us that they will be affected by the cuts to Parks Canada sites, our MP needs to listen to what they're saying. This is their lifeblood that we're talking about."

On top of the economic impact that the Parks Canada has on many of the Yukon's small businesses and communities, most Yukoners also recognize the cultural and historical significance of the artifacts and sites that Parks Canada oversees.

"How many families have learned about Yukon history and culture by taking a guided tour of Dredge #4 or the SS Klondike over the years?" says Rogers. "How many have had the chance to enjoy a hike in Kluane, knowing that the park would be well maintained and that search and rescue was only a call away if an accident happened? Parks Canada staff work hard to tell the story of the Yukon by preserving and showcasing many of the things that are part of our territory's identity, the things that make the Yukon special. Now many of these staff are being shown the door."

TIA Yukon is encouraging all Yukoners to visit a Parks Canada site over the long weekend, to see how the visitor experience can be enhanced through the services that Parks Canada provides. As things now stand, this will be the last summer for Yukoners and visitors to take part in guided tours of sites like Dredge #4 and the SS Klondike.

Dust to Dawson Sees its Twentieth Year

by Dan Davidson

This year marked the 20th anniversary of the Dust to Dawson ride (which is not a rally and don't dare say it is). Second Avenue and several other streets were crowded with motorcycles for two days last week. On June 21 and 22 bikers cruised the streets looking at the sights, stood around talking with each other about their machines and spent the Friday night doing a bunch of biker related games.

They really enjoy Dawson City and revere Downtown Dick, the former owner of the Downtown Hotel, and post a list of suggestions about what to do while here on their website.

- * Ride up to the Dome
- * Taste the Sourtoe cocktail (only at the Downtown Hotel)
- * Gamble away your child support payment at Diamond Tooth Gerties.
- * Visit the Dredge. (take the tour it's worth the $)
- * Take a walk in the 1800's graveyard.
- * Visit the Robert Service Cabin.
- * Take a walking tour of the town.
- * Spend an hour or two in the Museum.
- * Check out the paddle wheeler.
- * Throw rocks into the Yukon.
- * Go skinny dipping in the Yukon.
- * Meet "Fighter" the Founder of the D2D. (the original name was the Over The Top Hop but D2D fit on the t-shirt better)
- * Or just stand around on the boardwalk and BS with other ADV riders. After all this ain't no (expletive deleted) rally so have fun.

Uffish Thoughts: The Truth About the Commissioner's Ball

by Dan Davidson

The truth about the Commissioner's Ball is that it is a Dawson institution and no one involved with it has any intentions of relocating it to another town.

I write this so bluntly because both a former Commissioner and the present Commissioner have approached me with rumours that have come to them. They are distressed that someone would start such rumours and Commissioner Phillips, in particular, is anxious that they should be corrected.

The Ball came closest to ceasing to exist in the late 1990s, when the cost of putting it on climbed past what the Klondike Visitors Association could afford. At that time the affair was moved out of the Palace Grand Theatre and was held in a massive tent on the grounds behind the Commissioner's Residence. I rather enjoyed the change of venue, but it also served as a wake-up call to people who wanted the Ball to continue.

Ticket prices had to be increased. The full banquet had to be reduced to an array of appetizers and various other cost cutting measures had to be employed, but it was soon back in the theatre and has been there since.

The KVA has fallen on leaner times since then and it did announce, some years ago, during Geraldine van Bibber's tenure, that it would like to retire from the Ball business. Most recently, management approached the new Commissioner, Doug Phillips, and explained their situation to him.

Phillips was responsive, and pledged that he would take over the Ball, but not during his first year in office. The KVA agreed to do it for one more year (2011) and an amicable transition of responsibility was begun.

At the 2011 Ball (and you can look this up in my story at that time) Phillips announced that his office was going to host the 2012 Ball and those thereafter. He was very happy about this development. This is on the record.

Anyone who tries to tell you that the KVA suddenly bailed on the Ball just last spring, leaving Phillips' office to scramble to pull it off, is either mistaken or deliberately spreading a falsehood. Both the Commissioner and the KVA's Executive Director, Gary Parker, are very clear on this matter. The KVA was a behind the scenes advisory group for this year's event and both offices are happy with how it turned out.

Equally false is the rumour that the Commissioner is planning to move the Ball away from Dawson. The Ball and the afternoon Tea go together like peanut butter and jam. The Tea requires the use of the Residence and its grounds and Phillips is adamant that the two affairs are Dawson events, plain and simple.

The only comment made regarding relocation this year was his off the cuff remark that he might petition Ottawa to let him move his office to Dawson.

He likes to shake up the federal mandarins by saying things like that.

He is planning to have some events in communities other than Whitehorse and Dawson, and has requested a budget increase to allow for that. None of this implies a reduction in existing events; it is simply a recognition that the Commissioner is the Yukon's

Commissioner and needs to be seen as such to be more than a rubber stamp for legislation.

All of these developments are very positive and I can see why those who believe in the importance of these events get upset when the facts surrounding them are distorted or misrepresented.

Golden Winners who didn't have to Pan

by Dan Davidson

The McCord family were the surprise winners of both door prizes at the recent Yukon Goldpanning Championships held on July 1. Both baby Georgia and Jesse won gold pendants. They were just as surprised as the event's organizers.

"We weren't even going to stick around," said Georgia's Mom. "We just figured we'd hang out a little bit more and she was patient, so... it worked out."

"We don't usually win anything," she said, "so this was a real surprise."

This was one case where the outcome of the door prize draw was such a pleasant surprise that everyone in the crowd was pleased. That doesn't happen too often.

We want to hear from you!

Canada

Letter to the Editor: Recognize these funding cuts' severity, Mr. Leef

Ed. note: this is a letter to Yukon MP Ryan Leef:

The Government of Canada has recently announced that it plans to make unprecedented cuts to Parks Canada.

Of the 110 individuals that Parks Canada employs in the Yukon, 30 have been put on notice that their jobs may be terminated.

This amounts to almost 28 per cent of Parks Canada's presence here. If this comes to pass, it will greatly harm the Yukon's tourism industry.

Parks Canada has been and always will be a valuable partner to the Yukon's tourism industry.

It manages a considerable portion of the tourism product offered throughout the entire territory and provides much needed support for many of the owners and operators of tourism-related businesses in the Yukon.

With these prospective cuts, Parks Canada will have to restructure itself in a way that will create major gaps in the tourism sector.

Some of these gaps will make travel to the Yukon less convenient and enjoyable.

Some could put tourists in harm's way; others could mean some of our most precious areas will fall into disarray.

With fewer services being offered to visitors, the territory will inevitably have fewer visitors.

This will mean a significant loss of income for not only our tourism operators, but also for the restaurants and stores that depend on the traffic that these special places attract.

This is a major concern, especially for those communities that rely heavily on these businesses for employment and on the money that is generated by tourism that supports their local economies.

These proposed cuts will disrupt the financial stability of these communities and will have major ramifications for Yukon's economy overall.

Over the years, the Yukon has prospered from the expansion of our tourism industry.

To allow for the continued sustainability and growth of the industry, government must approach tourism in the Yukon as an investment.

This is a prudent investment that will continue to yield dividends far into the future as we continue to build our reputation for world class, natural product.

It is puzzling that with the economic boom in the Yukon, Newfoundland, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, and the bountiful revenues that we are told will flow from these bonanzas, the federal government sees fit to cut investments that will yield sustainable returns over the long run.

These cuts contradict the stated priority of the government of which you are a part.

In the words of the Prime Minister, the objective of this current government is "to make jobs, growth and long-term prosperity its major emphasis."

How will taking support away from our tourism sector benefit the territory in these ways?

The Tourism Industry Association of the Yukon (TIAY) understands that it is sometimes necessary for government to implement changes to the public service to ensure operations are as efficient as possible.

However, it is just as essential for government to realize the basic amount needed to provide adequate support to ensure a sustainable foundation for an industry.

These impending cuts suggest that the Government of Canada may not truly understand the vital role that the Parks Canada agency plays in the Yukon's tourism industry or the extent to which these cuts will affect the agency's operations here.

TIAY was hopeful that, as the Member of Parliament for the Yukon, you would recognize the major impact that Parks Canada has on our industry and share our concern of how these cuts will affect the industry and our territory as a whole.

However, your comments in the Whitehorse Star on May 9 on this issue indicate that this is not the case.

We strongly recommend that you take another look at what these proposed changes will do to tourism in the Yukon should they proceed in their present form, and petition your colleagues in the House of Commons to revisit this decision.

We look forward to discussing this with you in more depth at the meeting that has been scheduled for May 22.

This is an issue that will affect many regions of the territory and many Yukon families.

We respectfully ask that you address this matter on behalf of your constituents and our industry that works so hard to showcase the territory and the people whom you represent.

Neil Hartling
Chair
Tourism Industry
Association of the Yukon Whitehorse

Ed. note: This letter is dated May 14. TIAY describes the sequence of events following the May 22 meeting with MP Leef:

During the meeting, the contents of the letter were discussed and Mr. Leef said he was working "to build a case for the local Parks Canada office." It was agreed that a follow-up meeting would take place so that we could learn of the status of Mr. Leef's progress on this important issue. The follow-up meeting was scheduled for June 7 (three weeks ago). Mr. Leef said his office would contact TIAY to set up the June 7 meeting. This never happened. TIAY contacted Mr. Leef's office on May 29 to confirm the meeting would proceed as planned.

We have yet to receive a response.

Falconer Intends to Return to Dawson

By Dan Davidson

Tim Falconer thinks his Berton House experience was probably different from most of the writers who come for a three-month stay. He had, after all, spent the summer of 1979 working at the silver mine in Elsa, had some experience with mining before coming north for that summer and had, at one point, expected to make his career in mining engineering.

While living in the bunkhouse in Elsa, he had often visited Keno City and also come to Dawson during the flood year of 1979 for the Discovery Day weekend. He had a better idea than most just what a Yukon summer could be like. He had been back once since, 29 years later, and it had helped to solidify his determination to apply to Berton House.

Sitting in the afternoon sun on the west-facing porch two days before he had to head back to Toronto, he said that being here in a slightly different season has made him determined that he'd like to see the other seasons as well. He's been looking into the possibility of house sitting in the winter.

One reason for that is he thinks he might get more work done then. While the mandate of the program does not require every writer to churn out tens of thousands of words while he or she is here, Falconer was well aware that both of the writers before him did just that, and he has been feeling a little sheepish about it.

Mind you, they had arrived with works in progress, and he is at the beginning of the book he came here to work on, has been playing around with various possible outlines and narrative styles and hasn't quite decided - between his agent, himself and his publisher - what approach to take. The book will be about the phenomenon of tone deafness, or amusia, which is a problem that afflicts him and about four percent of the population. He delved into the technical aspects of the problem in a recent article called "Face the Music" (in the latest Maisonneuve magazine) but believes he can do more with the subject.

In addition, many of the writers who come here are on leave from their day jobs or their families and luxuriate in the time they have to just write while they are here. Falconer and his wife, who works for Tim Falconer enjoys one of his last days in Dawson - barefoot and in shorts on the porch.

CBC at The National, have no children, and he finds that his academic duties (he teaches at Ryerson) do leave him time to research and write, so his approach to being here was a little different.

Then, of course, there was fact that being in the Yukon made him want to write about the Yukon, stirred up 33 year old memories that turned into a short memoir about life in

Elsa in 1979, caused him to write a piece about Dawson for a paper in his home town of Toronto, blog for the Dawson City International Short Film Festival, and produce a profile piece on Austrian filmmaker Andrews Hovarth for What's Up Yukon.

He also shot the cover for that issue, which was one of number of new experiences for him. He had a radio show on CFYT-fm for two months; he made a one-minute film during the DCISFF. He also taught a short course on non-fiction writing for the Klondike Institute of Art and Culture, but that was not a new thing.

He was surprised not to be simply pigeonholed as the "writer guy," which is how things work back in Toronto. There, he says, his experience is that you are one thing at a time and that's who you are. Here, he felt encouraged to try just about anything - except perhaps singing in public - and let whatever happened, simply happen. He found being in Dawson very liberating.

Falconer arrived in early April, as the season was beginning to move towards spring. He saw lots of snow and a few cold days, and watched all that disappear. He is happy that he got to walk on the frozen Yukon River and then watch the ice dissolve. One of his few disappointments is that he had to be back in Toronto for the launch of his latest book (Drop the Worry Ball: How to Parent in the Age of Entitlement - Wiley) when breakup actually happened on May 1.

He's certain he will be back.

The Games at the Top of the of the World

by Matthias Brennan

Sandra Graham recited the message printed on t-shirts she'd spotted people wearing around Dawson: "Made in Canada by Scottish parents." She is from Inverness, Scotland, but Dawson City is her new home. She and her husband first reached the Top of the World six years ago. For her husband Walker, the Yukon is a familiar land. "If ever we get homesick, my wife and I, we go up to Tombstone Mountains, and we feel real back at home."

Walker Graham headed up the piping and drumming events of this year's Top of The World Highland Games (June 15-17). He knows the Highland Games traditions, roots, and history. "Drawing families together [is] ideally what the games are all about." In fact, one Alaskan band had a whole family performing. The cordial spirit of today's games is ironic; in its early days, the Highland Games reflected family division. The Grahams explained how clan disputes were once settled by means of a little sport by squaring off the youngest fittest men of the land. The games generated such good morale in Scotland that the English prevented the Games during the second half of the 18th Century, banning them in Scotland.

In Scotland, the recorded history of the Highland Games dates back to at least the 11th Century. The Scottish weren't going to be left behind during the gold rush, and so many moved to the Klondike long before the Grahams' pilgrimage. During that time, Dawson hosted its own Highland Games until the turn of the Century. For the first time since 1899, three Fridays ago on June 15th, pipers and drummers rang in the 2012 Highland games on Front St. All the built up Scottish culture began to pour out, more than anyone predicted. Following the opening ceremony, about thirty pipers and drummers serenaded Dawson City from atop the Dome. All four highland bands participating in the Games played together. "To use the Scottish expression, [it was] pure dead brilliant," Walker commented. "It was next to heaven."

Piping and Drumming

Pipe Major Pat Ross led the Midnight Sun Pipe Band to the top of the Dome that Friday night. His band is from Whitehorse, and was the only band from the Yukon at Top of the World Highland Games. His Midnight Sun tartan has many shades. "We feel like we're playing dual roles of competitor-participant and to some degree host," said Ross. "It's nice when we can invite Alaska participants back over the border."

It's the band's fourteenth year in existence, but Ross continues to take any opportunity he can to put on the kilt and sport it around town. "[The Highland Games] brings people out of the woodwork." The Midnight Sun Pipe Band played host to three Alaskan bands on Saturday the 16th. Fairbanks Red Hackle Pipe Band took first place for overall pipe band, followed by the Alaska Celtic Pipes and Drums. Anchorage's Crow Creek Pipes and Drums finished third. Yukon's Midnight Sun clan didn't leave disappointed. They had smaller expectations for their smaller band. Pipe Major Ross points out, "It's a little tougher when you have a smaller group. You hear yourself a little bit more."

Heavy Events

It wouldn't be the highland games without some impressive brutish competition. With Highland music in their ears, some of the best Highland athletes in North America took to the field for caber tossing and hammer throwing. For some of the athletes, Dawson City is familiar. Owen Willems reigns from London Ontario, but his brother lives in Dawson. Another athlete, Rob Young, is from Alberta, but his sister was an artist in residence in Dawson City. Willems and Young rounded out the 5-man pack in the heavy events. Gregory Bell from Washington took third place. The top two finishers are friendly rivals. Matthew Doherty and John Oden were equally ranked in the past. But it was Oden who came out with a consistent performance and the victory. Oden spoke about his Nova Scotian counter-part, "It's nice to actually compete head to head. We'll battle it out again later on in the season too, with my home turf."

First Win on Tour for Oden

Oden's win in Dawson is his first on tour. A back injury last year left him out of competition and in constant self-care. "I've been able to rehab myself along the way." Luckily his background is in sports medicine and physiotherapy. "It's been a lot better, [I'm] throwing right at my personal best level [...] Nice smooth throws, I know I'm doing something right, that's a victory too."

Heavy events require a balance of strength and technique—amazing grace. Amazing Grace was all John Oden could think of during competition. When he joined the pipers playing this song the night before atop the Dome, he recalls witnessing the musical vista, "I've never seen anything like it. I'll never forget it, with the sunset coming down." Music, dance, and sport are complimentary in Scottish competition.

Learning Curve of First Time Games

A town with as rich a Scottish history as Dawson no doubt served as a perfect venue for the most northern Highland Games in North America. Sally Derry is President of the association in charge of the event. Her team spent 18 months preparing the Games. "[We were] looking for a new event here in Dawson. It was a perfect fit, an open weekend."

They planned on hosting 350 people, "I think almost everything came in as predicted," she said. Despite some first time glitches, her team was able to provide a unique entertaining event. She was impressed by the stand-up performances of the athletes in announcing the play-by-play while competing, "I think we really got our money's worth out of these guys." Charming athlete and performer interaction throughout the entire weekend was a clutch surprise for the success of the event. The Top of the World Highland Games simply brought the competition back down to earth.

When the committee began to plan the event 18 months ago, they were all sure it would be a great success, but no one really thought there would be any records broken.

There was one.

Karyn Dallimore broke a world record for the Women Masters (over 50 years) in the Weight for Distance, breaking it by two feet, with a distance of 37 ft.

Cannon Ball Boy Recalls War of 1812

by Lisa McKenna

Nathaniel Van Every was at the office the other day toting a 12-pound cannon ball from the Battle of Queenston Heights, where Sir Isaac Brock was killed in 1812!

1812 ... that was 200 years ago. In fact, the 200th anniversary of this famous battle was on the 19th of June.

Apparently his Great-Great-Grandfather purchased the ball from one of his workers while building the Queen Elizabeth Highway (it was found 5 feet under ground) for $5.00.

This cannon ball has been passed on from a Van Every to a Van Every to yet another Van Every, Nathaniel.

Thirty to fifty Van Everys are buried at St. Catherine's right by the Queen Elizabeth Highway. They are presently fighting the Ontario Government to save the gravesites and so far they are winning the battle.

And Nathaniel, please don't lose the ball and remember to pass it on to your sons (or daughters).

He was born James Newell "Jim" Osterberg in 1947. He was an American singer, songwriter, musician, and an actor.

Raised in a trailer park in Michigan, he began playing the drums and in high school he started a band called the Iguanas.

Known as an innovator of punk, he was also famous for his antics on stage. His best friend was David Bowie but he also hung with Johnny Depp.

Watching a concert of The Doors in 1967 sowed his musical seeds. He was known to say that he liked "music that's offensive", and offensive he became.

He was in 16 different movies, including 'The Color of Money', 'The Crow', and a Spanish Sci-fi movie AND he was in an episode of Star Trek-Deep Space 9!

He was well known for his magnetic personality, though he was disturbing. He has been called "a self-destructing rock'n'roll animal. But he can't be that bad...this year, at the age of 65, he has tours in Sweden, Germany, Bulgaria, Hungary, and Poland!

He was, and is, a "Real Wild Child" and he loved his "China Girl".

HUMANE SOCIETY DAWSON UPDATE

with Katie Pearse, Humane Society Dawson

Thank You!

Humane Society Dawson would like to extend a huge thank you to Sunstroke Musicfest for donating the profits of the festival to us. We were blown away, as this year they raised $10,000!

Humane Society Dawson is building an extension to our existing building so that we have space to house dogs inside during the harsh winter months, space for sick animals, and space for giving vaccinations or other treatment. The money from the festival is going towards the extension, and is helping to make the shelter a better place for our animals.

Elderly Dog Care

Kendall De Menech is the founder of K9H2O located in Abbotsford, BC. K9H2O, a swimming pool for animals, offers a variety of services such as recreational swimming, pre or post surgery rehabilitation programs, and low impact exercise for the senior animal. They have served the Canine Population since 2001.

Kendall has years of experience working with rehabilitating and caring for elderly and disabled dogs, and has offered to share her knowledge during her visit to Dawson City.

Come to KIAC on July 23, 2012 5:00-6:30 to learn more about how to care for your canine friend. Admission will be $5.00, and all proceeds will go toward the Humane Society Dawson.

There will also be a great door prize of a gift basket full of goodies for a Senior dog!

To learn more about Kendall and K9H2O, check out <http://www.k9h2o.net>

Dawson Celebrated a Fine Aboriginal Day

by Dan Davidson

June 21 dawned bright and sunny, helping to create a beautiful setting for the Aboriginal Day celebrations at the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre.

The day began at 11:30 with a chili and bannock lunch, a fundraiser for the Moosehide Gathering, which will be held during the first week in August.

By the time the official part of the day began, shortly after noon, a substantial crowd had gathered at the outdoor amphitheatre and under the canopies.

MC Kris Janus introduced elder and Anglican deacon Percy Henry, who opened the afternoon with a prayer.

"Welcome everybody," he said. "We share together today."

In his prayer he asked the Great Spirit to help all the people come together as one.

Henry then led the Hän Singers to the stage to sing the Welcome Song and several other traditional songs.

Steve Taylor, a member of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in council, greeted the crowd on behalf of the First Nation council.

"The Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in have a long history of welcoming people to our traditional territory and it is my honour to welcome you to our national Aboriginal Day celebration. Aboriginal Day is a chance to share the best of our First Nation's culture. It recognizes the diversity of this country and celebrates the outstanding contributions that First Nations people have made to Canada."

Mayor Peter Jenkins welcomed the crowd to the living historical community that is Dawson City.

"On behalf of my council I'd like to extend, to the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, a great day to celebrate and our thanks for allowing us to join in with you. It's come a long way, the self-government First Nation here. It's taken on a lot of responsibility and has done a magnificent job. The issue is 'for our children tomorrow' and as you can see there are many children here with us today."

Jenkins called on Ron Johnson, the caretaker who is known as the Mayor of Moosehide, to join him at the podium.

"Part of the responsibility of the Mayor of Dawson is to wear a chain of office, which I would like to share with Ron for today. You can't keep it, Ron."

So saying, he transferred the gold nugget laden chain from his neck to Johnson's.

Klondike MLA Sandy Silver (Liberal) used the words of Algonquin spiritual leader William Commanda to talk about the ways in which natives and non-natives are learning to cooperate and work with each other. Commanda was the holder of the Seven Fires Prophecy Belt, which spoke of the tribulations that his people would have to go through before they would see better time following the arrival of European settlers. The seventh fire is to be followed by an eighth, which suggests that if enough people—of all colors and faiths—turn from materialism and instead choose a path of respect, wisdom and spirituality, environmental and social catastrophe can be avoided, and an era of spiritual illumination will unfold.

"The Eighth Fire is warm and inviting here in Dawson City," Silver said, "and it's all thanks to the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in people, a community that is a positive model for the rest of Canada."

The speeches were followed by a couple of hours of music, featuring Ecka Janus, Whoa Bear!, the Crelli family, and the River Bends.

Later in the afternoon the cultural centre opened for tours. In addition to the permanent exhibit on TH history in the Hammerstone Gallery, and local films in the theatre, this summer's offering in the Gathering Room is "Hello Dolly" the acclaimed Cultural Exhibition from the Vancouver 2010 Olympics' "Sewing our Traditions: Dolls of Canada's North" exhibit, featuring hand-crafted dolls from the Yukon, Northwest Territory and Nunavut.

Fine Weather Graced Dawson's Canada Day Weekend

by Dan Davidson

Canada Day celebrations in Dawson City spread themselves over the weekend, beginning with a feast of Sourdough Pancakes on Saturday morning put on by St. Paul's Anglican Church at St. Mary's Catholic Church. For those who had not had quite enough cooked goods, there was the Fourth Annual Bannock Cook-off at the Dänojà 11 a.m., with a good crowd of eager tourists and locals happy to see the short but energetic march.

The parade took about seven minutes to pass any given point on the route and about half an hour to make its way to the Dawson City Museum on Fifth Avenue.

There the crowd assembled for a flag-raising by Diamond Tooth Gertie and her Girls, aided by the Mounties in Red mix. Our history is vibrant, tangible and alive, but we have lived in such close proximity to that, that sometimes we don't see it as being unusual and we don't see how lucky we are. We forget that we are living and working and going about our days in an historic site, a living museum.

"The building behind me is 111 years old. It was built in 1901, the same year that Joseph Ladue and James Wilson registered Lot 14 and christened it the Westminster Hotel."

It hasn't always been a museum, of course. The building originally housed government offices, as well as the territorial legislative assembly. At various times it has also been home to the local post office, a radio station, and the public school, when the original school burned down.

Following the speeches there was the cutting of the two birthday cakes, a country picnic lunch, and games for the kids in Victory Gardens.

Down on Front Street the Yukon Goldpanning Championships took up most of the afternoon, but there was time for a third cake cutting at the Visitor Reception Centre, more swimming at the pool and live music at the Front Street Gazebo, with Barnacle Bob and Friends and Whoa Bear!

MLA Sandy Silver and Mayor Peter Jenkins shared a ride this year.

Zho Cultural Centre later that morning.

The big event of the day was the dedication of a plaque out at Dredge #4 as an Historic Civil Engineering Site, and a free opportunity to roam through the vessel, which will be closed Serge.

As the museum's executive director Laura Mann informed the crowd, this year marks the 50th anniversary of the DCM moving into the Old Territorial Administration Building (or the Big Cabin, as it was known to

to the public after the end of this season due to cutbacks at Parks Canada.

In town, the Dawson Pool was coloured red and open for swimming all afternoon, and for anyone inclined to stroll about there was a Bird-watching Walk along the river and the Ninth Avenue Trail from 3 to 5 p.m.

Bike riders who wanted to decorate and float participants with last minute parade preparations gathered at the Fry Recreation Centre Sunday morning at 10:30, and the RCMP led the parade down King Street to Front St. shortly after old timers in the town) after its original home on Front Street was destroyed by fire.

Mann noted that the fiftieth anniversary seemed to have been marked by a sprinkler system disaster early in the spring.

Mayor Peter Jenkins welcomed locals and guests to Canada Day in Dawson, "the best place to be on Canada Day."

MLA Sandy Silver had a somewhat longer speech, during which he commented on how quickly the tourist season seemed to be advancing.

"Dawson is an interesting

Barnacle Bob and Friends are a parade staple.

Diamond Tooth Gertie and her Girls always ride Dawson's oldest still running fire dept. vehicle.

MLA Sandy Silver cuts the birthday cake, assisted by young Jasmin Stange.

Robitaille Holds on to Goldpanning Crown

By Dan Davidson

Paul Robitaille held onto his first place standing in the Yukon Open class at the 2012 Yukon Goldpanning Championships, held in Dawson City on July 1. Robitaille recovered all six flakes of gold in three minutes and four seconds. He was followed closely by his mentor David Miller with a time of 3:23 and by Ralph Nordling at 3:46. Both of these competitors have been winners in past years.

There were 16 entrants in this contest.

Robitaille took a prize of $2500 to assist him in attending the World Goldpanning Championships, which will be held October 1 to 7 in Pilgrim's Rest, Mpumalanga Province, South Africa at the Mac Mac Panning Club.

Miller also won a cash prize of $1500.

The afternoon was blessed with lots of sunshine and just the occasional cloud to provide a bit of shade, and both the stands and the dike hillside were lined with spectators. While it would be hard to say if the numbers were up or down from previous years, there is no doubt that the crowd remained strong through the four hour event and for once it did not start to rain about the time that the awards were being handed out.

The Klondike Open (14 participants) had a different result with David Miller panning 7 of the 8 flakes in 6:39, brother Dirk Miller also finding 7 in 8:32 and Paul Robitaille coming in a weak third with only 4 of the flakes for a time of 15:05. Fortunately for him, this event came before the Yukon Open, so he could consider a warm-up event. Clearly he was back in form for the Yukon Open later in the afternoon.

In the Sourdough Open (6 contestants in all, 60 or older), with nine flakes to be found, Dianne Schroeder found eight to take first place in 6:15. Coleman Johnson was second at 3:42, and Arthur Sailer found four flakes for a total time of 19:28. The rules stipulate a penalty of three minutes for each missing flake.

There was an abundance of entries (31) the Cheechako Open (for novice panners) this year, so that there had to be two heats. Simon Luca found all 11 flakes in 5:45 to claim first prize. Barry Bouhard captured second with a time of 7:15, and Rachel Ryckman found 10 in 7:46.

There were 28 flakes to be found in the Corporate Challenge (3 teams), which was won by the 98 Drive-in team. They found 26 flakes in a total time of 21 minutes. The Goldbottom Team panned 25 flakes in 29 minutes. The third place Ryan Gold team seemed to indicate they are better at finding soil samples than panning for gold. Their team was plagued by disaster as they dumped part of the dirt pail without panning it and subsequently knocked their gold vial into the panning tank. They could only produce six flakes in the end, with a total time (mostly penalties) of 85 minutes.

The Youth Under 11 Years category had 16 participants looking for 12 flakes. Hudson Huffman found 10 of them for a first place time of 12:55. Makenzie McDonald and Jania Popadynec both found eight, as times of 12:57 and 24:27 respectively.

The Youth 12-15 Years category was the smallest, with only two participants. Michaela DeCook panned 10 of the 12 flakes in a time of 14:27 and Isaac Pope found 7 in a time of 20:49.

The panning venue on Front Street drew a strong crowd.

TWENTY YEARS AGO IN THE SUN

Handing Back Dredge #4

by Kathy Jones-Gates

"It's incredible to see Dredge #4 in its new place; it has just made my year" said longtime Klondike placer miner Mike Stutter. Stutter was one of the invited guests at the June 24 ceremony to hand back the dredge to the Canadian Parks Service by the No. 1 Construction unit of the Royal Canadian Corps of Engineers.

For the past two summers, the No. 1 Construction unit has been prying the old dredge away from its muddy resting place on Claim 17 Bonanza Creek (see Dan Davidson's complete story elsewhere on these pages). Now that the Dredge was settling onto its new foundation, the Unit's task was almost complete.

One hundred fifty or so invited guests and visitors turned up to the Dredge site for the ceremonies with K.N.H.S. superintendent Al Fisk acting as MC. Following the singing of O Canada by 1992 'Miss Diamond Tooth Gertie', the platform guests were introduced. In addition to Stutter and Fisk, the Director General for Prairie and Northern Region of the Canadian Parks Service, Doug Harper, was also on hand, as well as Mayor Peter Jenkins and Major Gareth Jones.

From the various speeches, it became obvious that many people around the country had had their doubts that the Dredge could ever be pried loose from its mucky resting place, let alone re-floated. Much of the credit has been attributed to the project commander, Major Gareth Jones, on loan from the Royal Engineers, U.K., but Jones was quick to acknowledge the tremenout of the 25,000 built. He has travelled throughout Europe and Japan and has now set his sights on the Klondike.

Three years ago Caron and his friend John Wolfe (an amazingly youthful 65 year old) surveyed the Yukon river, then decided to wait until the Al-Can celebrations in '92 before running it. The DUKW's had been used in building the Al-Can, but under severe restrictions that no photos be taken. They were a top secret vehicle and the government was worried that the Axis might find out about this little surprise that was waiting in the wings. They saw their first action in March 1943 during the U.S. landing at New Caledonia.

Amphibious Adventures

by Brent Morrison

When Jean-Paul Caron was seven years old he witnessed the liberation of France from the Nazis first hand. The year was 1944 and the allied troops rolled back the German army assisted by the GMC built DUKW 353, an amphibious vehicle designed to carry troops and supplies from the beaches inland. It was this strange hybrid of a vehicle, nicknamed "the Duck" by the G.I.'s, that captured the young Caron's attention.

Now at age fifty-five he is the proud owner of his own DUKW, one of only 150 still operational Pierre Monfette panned up a trip to Scotland along with all ten flakes of gold at the Yukon Goldpanning Championships on Canada Day.

Pierre Wins Birthday Gold

by Joanie Veitch

July 1 was an eventful day for Pierre Monfette. It's not only Canada's 125th Birthday, it was also his own birthday and his present this year was to become the Yukon Goldpanning Champion after he recovered ten flakes of gold in four minutes, twenty-five seconds.

"This year I got them all," he said, adding that this is his first time winning and he's been trying for years. Monfette has been hand mining in Dawson since he came here 17 years ago.

Monfette will be representing the Yukon in the World Goldpanning Championship in Scotland during the first week of September.

He's excited about going and vows to win it "and bring it to Canada next year".

Second place went to last year's winner Art Sailer, who panned nine flakes of gold in four minutes, twenty-seven seconds. Sailer will now go on to represent the Yukon at Klondike Days in Edmonton.

David Millar placed third, recovering nine flakes of gold with a time of four minutes, forty-seven seconds.

The Cheechako seemed to be the most popular events as 27 newcomers tried their luck with gold.

Germany was well represented with Kurt Stabel of Frankfurt coming in first place, and Stefan Brand of Heidelberg in second. Third place went to Albertan Gary Santa.

The Klondike Open had ten panners with Zeman Herbert claiming first, recovering eight flakes in five minutes. Margaret Erickson was second with four flakes. Mike Craven took third with two flakes in his pan.

The Corporate Challenge winner this year was Ace Placer Mines with nine flakes recovered in a total time of 17.75. Second and third place went to Claim 33

The Sun obtained funding in late 2009 from the City of Dawson, YTG's Heritage Branch and the Community Development Fund to conserve and archive early issues and make them available once again in the public domain. This is a great resource for students, writers and historians, and also for prospective tourists with an interest in Dawson City's life. Each month, we are re-printing our front pages from 20 years ago (seen above) as a souvenir of our lively history.

Dredge No.4 Receives National Honours

By Dan Davidson

Parks Canada may not be able to staff tours of Dredge No. 4 after this summer, but the recent decision by the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers to honour the dredge as a Historic Civil Engineering Site earlier this spring is a further indication that this particular part of the Klondike National Historic Sites will not go unnoticed.

The plaque was unveiled during a special ceremony as part of an afternoon open house on June 30.

About 150 locals and tourists gathered at the dredge site on the Bonanza Creek Road for the three hour event that included free entry to the eight story structure, a chance to view the progress of the restoration project, gold panning on site and an afternoon picnic.

The unveiling was hosted by KNHS Site Manager David Rohatensky, who invited the crowd to make a very personal connection to the site by wandering through the dredge, which is two-thirds the size of a football field, after the ceremony.

"Yukoners know very, very well that Dredge No.4 is an amazing and special place," he said. "As a National Historic Site, it's been recognized by the Government of Canada as being nationally significant. Today's ceremony is very much along a similar theme."

This day's event began about a year ago when Ken Johnson approached Parks about supporting this designation. The process was not a slam-dunk, and was really only successful when it was pointed out how many other things the dredge was symbolic of, including the region's corporate mining era and the Bear Creek Compound.

The plaque reads:

"Canadian Klondyke Mining Company Dredge No. 4

"A tribute to the engineers, and contractors who designed, built, and operated Dredge No. 4 from 1912 to 1959. The all wood dredge was designed to float and support 3000 tons, including a chain of 68 large iron excavating buckets. Gold dredging operations in the Klondyke from 1900 to 1966 also included large hydro electric, water supply, and machine shop facilities. Dredge No. 4 produced 300,000 ounces of gold and mined 65 million cubic yards of gravel."

The dredge ended its active life partially submerged in its own pond and frozen into 18 feet of ice, silt and mud, sitting upright and facing about 90 degrees to the position it sits at today. In 1991-92, when the moving permafrost threatened to begin snapping it in two, it was excavated, floated free of its swampy prison and relocated to where it now sits.

The previously frozen portions of the vessel began to deteriorate once exposed to the air and extensive restorations have been going on ever since.

Pat Habiluk, who worked on plans for the dredge over his many years with Parks Canada, read from a statement prepared by Ken Johnson, on behalf of the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers. He recalled working on the submission for the dedication with members of the recently downsized and eliminated curatorial staff at KNHS.

He said that getting the text for the plaque down to a manageable size that still covered the necessary details had been one of the most difficult tasks.

"The plaque could have been ten times this size if we had our choice."

In the Yukon other dedicated projects include the Alaska Highway and the White Pass and Yukon Route Railway, so Dredge No. 4 is in good company.

Rohatensky called on MLA Sandy Silver, Pat Habiluk, Hugh Copland (a Parks engineer), Carrie Docken (KNHS Interpretation Supervisor), to lift the covering from the plaque, after which Docken read the English text and Senior Interpreter Gaby Sgaga read the French.

Given recent announcements from the federal government regarding the future of Parks Canada, it was inevitable that someone would ask the question that was going through a lot of minds.

"I mean this in a positive way," said Whitehorse visitor David Hawkins-Clarke, "but I'm wondering where one could sign some sort of a petition because this is so ironic. You're commemorating this and by the end of the season this will be padlocked. I think that's very sad. Is there any way that one can focus some kind of a protest?"

There were many voices raised in agreement.

Given recent instructions issued to Parks employees regarding only making supportive statements about

The plaque is unveiled by MLA Sandy Silver, YTG Engineer Pat Habiluk, KNHS supervisor Carrie Docken, Parks engineer Hugh Copland and HNHS Site Manager David Rohatensky

Conservative government policy, there was little that David Rohatensky could say in reply save to note that guided tours will be discontinued at the site next summer.

"Parks Canada, like many arms of government, is struggling to find a way to operate sustainably over the long term," he said. "We will be closing the dredge next year in terms of access. We are putting our modest resources into a few areas and trying to do those well. It's not a decision I enjoy communicating to you, but it's a decision that's been taken."

MLA Sandy Silver was less concerned with giving a politically correct response.

"Our MP is Ryan Leef. I can give you his address and there will be a petition very soon."

Following the formal event most of the crowd toured the dredge.

David Hawkins-Clarke wanted to know where to protest the downsizing of KNHS and the closing of Dredge No.4.

A young visitor makes a personal connection with history in Dredge No.4's control room.

A tour group marvels at the size of the equipment at the stern of the vessel. It's not nearly as impressive from the parking lot.

The Inaugural Art Gate Looks for Inspiration at Bear Creek

By Caitlin Gardner

This July 12-19 marks the launch of the very first Art Gate. Primarily conceived of by Greg Hakonson and developed by the Dawson City Arts Society (DCAS), Art Gate has been envisioned as a creative interchange program between artists from Dawson City partnered with artists from around the world.

This year, there are at least 10-12 participants who call home as close as Dawson and the Yukon and as far as Berlin and Denmark. They will be spending two days at the Bear Creek Compound, collecting photos, sketches, and ideas, which they will use for the next week to create a body of work inspired and informed by Bear Creek.

Bear Creek is a significant component of the Art Gate project and largely responsible for its initial conception. It is hoped that Art Gate will raise local and national awareness of Bear Creek, and eventually serve as a fundraising initiative for its preservation and restoration.

Hakonson feels it is especially important that artwork about Bear Creek be expressed not just by people of the community, for the community, but that visitors be given the chance to interpret and channel its spirit and significance in order to communicate and exchange with locals in a new and alternative light; in other words, to “re-present” Bear Creek.

The plan is to acquire pieces created during Art Gate into a permanent Bear Creek collection, which will be perpetually on tour. In this way, awareness will be raised not only among locals, but on a national scale.

The broad vision for Art Gate in coming years is certainly ambitious, not to mention ambiguous. This inaugural event is intended to act as an introduction and invitation for other cities to follow suit. In the coming years, the idea is that any city from around the world will be encouraged to participate in mutually beneficial artistic partnership. Though it is in its initial stages of development and therefore remains relatively unspecific in terms of process and production, Art Gate will assert the continuation of embracing all forms of art and inclusion wherever possible.

Each city will be free to conduct their events to whatever duration and extent they wish, while maintaining a conceptual parallelism. Art Gate emphasizes overlooked aspects of culture, meaning both physical and conceptual “sites”- such as Bear Creek.

Dawson is undoubtedly well suited and prepared to take on such an initiative. One need only walk down the street any day during the summer months to see that this is an environment primed for artistic innovation on an international stage.

Not only do un-conventional contemporary artistic practices thrive and abound in this small town, but it has also always warmly welcomed a concentrated population of extreme diversity.

It the hopes of increasing the Dawson’s already notable art profile to a prestigious and recognized national scale. For now, we wish our visiting artists an inspiring and productive week in the Klondike.

Rensch and Cordon Win Advanced Artist Awards

WHITEHORSE (July 5, 2012) —Eleven advanced artists will share $37,855 through Yukon’s Advanced Artist Award for their literary, performing or visual arts development.

“We are blessed to have talented individuals who embrace the arts and strive to make a positive impact in Yukon,” Tourism and Culture Minister Mike Nixon said. “Their contributions help to celebrate the territory as a unique jurisdiction within Canada, helping to grow public awareness about northern talent and artistic excellence.”

The Advanced Artist Award supports professional artists looking to advance their practice through their personal artistic development. Artists apply to undertake innovative projects or educational pursuits that may include learning through workshops, courses or working with a mentor. They may also pursue artistic development through critique, collaboration or exploration.

Evan Rensch is receiving $2,500 to create a series of portraits of Keno City residents using a large format camera.

“I am very excited to begin working on a new body of photographic work in Keno City, a town known both for its industrial history and natural beauty,” Rensch said. “With the support of the Advanced Artist Award, I will have the opportunity to spend an extended period of time within the community, engaging with local residents and learning more about the site’s history. It is a privilege to be given a chance to further develop my skills as a photographer and artist in this quintessential Yukon community.”

Elaine Cordon is receiving $2,305 to attend the Sage Hill Writing Experience in Saskatoon where she will receive guidance and feedback on a collection of essays for her first book.

“I’m delighted and grateful for the assistance provided by Yukon government’s Advanced Artist Award,” Cordon said. “It’s a privilege to be part of the rich history of arts and culture in the North, and I’m optimistic that continued public support will allow artists in the Yukon to flourish far into the future.”

The Advanced Artist Award program is funded by Lotteries Yukon and is administered by the Department of Tourism and Culture. Submissions are adjudicated by a jury of professional artists.

The next intake for the Advanced Artist Award is October 1. Artists interested in applying are encouraged to contact the fund administrator at 667-8789 or toll-free at 1-800-661-0408, extension 8789 for assistance with the funding application process.

Letter to the Editor: Setting the Record Straight

For the record, I have to correct several things in your paper's article on Willie Gordon. (Ed. Note - This is in reference to our coverage of the funeral in the May 30 edition.)

Firstly, our band - Willie, Jimmy, Billy and I - are NOT the Pit Band. Matter of fact, Willie and I were fired from the Pit by the Big P., the current proprietor.

You made this mistake before, Dan, and if you'd cared to ask, the name of the band was Jimmy R & the Willies.

(Ed. Note: This is in reference to the photo of the band at the bottom of the article. It had been shot the year before on Aboriginal Day and I was unaware of the change in employment status at that time. I should have got it right this year, though.)

Secondly, Lisa, I did NOT slam the Church door. Matter of fact, all the people who were standing there with me were as shocked as I was.

"C'mon in Willie," I said.

It was mere moments before the service was to begin,. Maybe it was a statement to the institution that led to a life & death of drink. You fill in the blanks.

Barnacle Bob Hilliard

Barnacle Bob,

Your letter didn't get in the paper sooner because, well, it wouldn't. Alyssa typed it out and sent it to me for a ruling and I said, "Sure, we take our lumps."

While I was in the choir that day, the door slamming incident didn't register with me, but it happens when the wind comes through. No one has to do it.

When I came to do my layout chores the letter wasn't in, so I tried placing it - FIVE TIMES. The thing would not go. It broke up into tiny frames and scattered itself all over the layout screen. Every attempt that I made to pull it together, reformat the file or delete all the extra spaces that were determined to be there, failed. Kind of in line with your comment about the door, maybe Willie was trying to tell me something.

Nevertheless, here you are. For this issue I retyped it from scratch.

Dawsonites Are Multiplying!

by Carly Lovett
Student Intern

This past Sunday, the 24th, the Canada Pre-Natal Program put on their annual baby gathering and lunch. The gathering celebrates all of the babies born in the past year. This event, which was sponsored by many local businesses, was held on the lawn behind the commissioner's residence and included a lunch and a draw as well as games for parents and tots. As the parents and babies arrived to the lunch, each baby was given a silk sash with their name and birth date written on it. The lawn was covered in tiny babies and their parents, lounging in the sunshine on the lawn, making friends eating snacks and playing with colorful plastic toys.

Each year, at this event, a representative from the IODE, (a Canadian, women's charitable organization) presents a book to every baby born in Dawson. This year, they gave out Ted Harrison's "A Northern Alphabet". For many years, including this one, the IODE representative responsible for giving out the books has been Joyce Caley, active Dawsonite and Treasurer for the IODE.

In addition to the baby gathering, the CPNP provides many services to growing families. In order to access the services provided by the CPNP, parents must register themselves and their families with the program. This year 22 newborns were registered with the CPNP in Dawson City. The two employees of the program branch based in Dawson provide services, which range from the provision of pre-natal vitamins to home care and respite. The program is open to babies from birth until age one as well as expecting mothers and families trying to have a child. The CPNP is a division of Health Canada and is federally funded.

Gathering Light Celebrates Growth

By Dan Davidson

There are a few notes for Raven Spirit Dance's production of Gathering Light, but I haven't seen them yet on the night of the performance at the Odd Fellows Hall ballroom. Attempting picture taking during any part of the performance seems like a bad idea. While there is a soundtrack to the show, my guess is that listening to it later on will not help when it comes time to write about what I am about to see.

There is enough light to scribble some notes by, and I fill three small notebook pages during the next hour, trying to get some sense of what is going on.

The performance is in the round and the circle holds a special significance for first nations people, as well as presenting interesting challenges for the performers.

There are four women, barefoot, dressed in white, posed on the floor in positions that suggest a kind of binding or restraint. Over the next hour they move around on the floor, stretching out from that cramped position and sometimes returning to it, working their way upwards by degrees until they are standing and moving about freely.

They seem to be discovering elements of themselves – hands, arms, legs. Some of this process seems to be marked by insecurity and even pain.

There are two solo dances as the hour continues. One seems the very essence of pain, confusion and anguish. The other floats free and seems joyful, rushing about the circle.

Towards the end there is a segment which features a determined exhalation of breath and an approach to the audience members in which the dancers' hands unfold as if offering something. They have moved a vast distance from their huddled beginnings.

I check with others later and I am not the only one who sits wondering if the best response to this would not have been to mime acceptance of what was offered.

I know two of the dancers, of course. I first interviewed Kimberly Tuson some 28 years ago when she was dancing at the Diamond Tooth Gerties and later photographed her performances in the late, lamented Gaslight Follies at the Palace Grand. She has been here so often as to almost be a local.

Most recently she danced in a couple of other productions created by Michelle Olson, who is a member of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in First Nation and has been here often. Together, they have danced on the stage at the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre, performing works drawn from local traditions and stories.

Julia Carr and Karissa Barry are new to town, and it is they who had the solo dances in this performance.

Later, I consult the notes linked to Raven Spirit Dance's website.

"Gathering Light is performed in the round, creating a sense of ritual space where transformation is an experience the audience intimately shares with the performers."

Okay – I wasn't too far off.

"From seed to flower, from girl to woman, from structures that do not support our own truths to ceremonies that support our full bloom, Gathering Light explores the impulses rooted in our bodies and that travel through us to find the light."

That causes me to think a little more closely on the contribution of the soundtrack and the shifting spotlights. It makes sense.

In the end, as someone who knows very little about dance and movement, I have to fall back on what spoke to me during the hour. The piece moved from constraint to freedom, from confusion and angst to certainty and joy. I left feeling good about the time I'd spent watching it.

Live and Let Live: Pt. 2 of 4

I was raised with a simple philosophy, or saying, "If you stick your nose into other people's business, you will eventually receive a broken nose." 9-11 was an extreme, though Tragic example of this philosophy being demonstrated. The American Government continues to put its 'Nose' into the business of all other Nations. Someone did not appreciate their interference and retaliated.

This is a common occurrence throughout history. I could continue for numerous pages on this topic, but I will not do that at this time. Perhaps I might continue this with numerous articles to follow.

You might ask yourself, "What has this to do with 'Philosophy'?" The answer is simple; Philosophy is simply an opinion which can be debated while stimulating thought. It is true that Nations will have disputes and even wars among themselves and their neighbours without the involvement of Western influence.

Some of these wars may last from a few days (i.e.: the Seven Days War), to wars that can last centuries (i.e.: The Hundred Years War). Do these conflicts necessitate the influence of Western Society? Not necessarily. Should the attacked Nation be an ally of the West then Yes, but only if requested or needed.

It is also true that individuals within Nations which we consider 'Oppressed' may desire help. Help to leave the country, help to feed the hungry, clothe the naked, and administer medicine to the sick and injured.

We can provide assistance in these areas without getting involved in the political war efforts. We in the "Free World" can make it easier for people in war torn countries to immigrate to the West.

There should be no need for refugee camps lasting longer than a few weeks. We know these refugees would be in danger of death or inhumane prison conditions should they return to their homelands. Yet they are forced to reside in inhumane conditions in these refugee camps because the West makes it extremely difficult for these people to be evacuated.

If these Human Rights groups really want to make a difference, they need to stop trying to change the world and help these people get out of the refugee camps so they can live healthy lives in the West.

Open the floodgates of our Immigration Laws and allow the refugees to live here in Canada, the USA, England, France, Holland, Germany, Greece, Turkey, Italy, Australia, and so on. Stop trying to change Customs, Rituals, Religions, and Traditions, but create change where change is not only needed, but desired.

As I say . . . Live and let Live. To be continued . . .

This is just my opinion.

CKS Summer Update

by the Conservation Klondike Society

Conservation Klondike Society's (CKS) recycling program is in full swing this summer sorting, refunding and shipping recyclables to Whitehorse for further processing.

We have additional recycling bins available to rent. We have a set of reusable dishes and silverware you can rent for your event too. And we operate a paper recycling pickup program for local businesses, every little bit helps to reduce waste.

We are always working to improve the operation and a big thank you is due to Golden Predator, who worked hard recently to fix our deck area and add a waterproof tarpaulin at the downtown depot.

We would also like to remind people to hold on to their hazardous waste items until the next Household Hazardous Waste day held at Quigley Landfill.

Hazardous waste includes Bleach, solvents, motor oil, anti-freeze, brake fluid, paint, rechargeable and vehicle batteries, fluorescent light bulbs, mercury thermometers, pesticides, propane tanks, gasoline, aerosol cans and contaminated containers.

We are not equipped to process these items and have very limited storage space, so please don't drop them off at the depot.

We are also unable to process glass jars and corrugated box cardboard. However, non-corrugated cardboard such as beer boxes can be brought in as mixed paper.

Keep recycling! You're doing a fantastic job! We are very grateful for the effort you are putting in to sorting and counting your recyclables. This support makes it possible for us to continue providing a recycling service that saves resources, landfill, and provides you with refunds.

CKS receives recycling at two locations- the downtown depot at 1067 Second Avenue, and at the Quigley Landfill.

Feel free to drop in with suggestions or fill out one of our feedback forms.

CKS is always happy for community involvement on all levels. We have a mandate to promote the conservation of our resources, educate the public about the environmental and social costs of excessive consumption, develop and operate a recycling depot and promote cultural, educational, recreational and wilderness values of the region.

Hours of operation for the downtown depot are Sun, Mon, Wed and Sat 1-5, and Tue 3-7. Quigley operates Thu, Fri, and Sat 12-7.

For further information and a recycling guide visit the website at www.conservationklondike.org, or call 867-993-6666

Sexual Assault in the Yukon

by The Dawson Women's Shelter

As members of a northern community, we are aware of a specific set of challenges to the well-being of the individual and the family. Despite this, we consider our community to be a safe place. We walk the streets late at night, leave doors and windows unlocked, and live with the reassurance that we are safe from criminal victimization because we know our neighbours. The reality we live with insists that despite our nice, intimate communities, many among us cope with repeated criminal victimization, perpetuated by poverty and hidden homelessness, lack of affordable housing, and seasonal employment, as well as intergenerational violence and substance abuse. We live in conditions which create the perfect storm for violence and sexual abuse. Yukon and the other Territories have the highest crime rates per capita in the country. Most alarming is the sexual assault rate in the Yukon, which is, again, three times higher than the national average. This statistic is the reason we must look introspectively at our attitudes and actions which create an environment that allows for continued sexual assault on members of our communities. In our communities, there are those who are repeatedly criminally victimized, sexually assaulted.

To begin with, there is the issue of gender role expectations; what we assume a man or woman has done or will do in a specific situation. With sexual assault and abuse, women are continually portrayed through language in media, in the courts, and in our conversations as somehow consenting. The language that is used to communicate their experience of an assault is reductive and communicates consent through the victim's actions. The judicial system recounts cases of sexual assault using terms like 'suggestive behaviour', 'flirting', and wording acts as though they were consensual, such as 'kissing', 'touching'. Publicized court cases here in the Yukon document this language and make clear the ongoing struggle for women who have been victimized and are choosing to seek justice for themselves. This struggle is with power, privilege and entitlement, and how credibility is considered before consent in cases of sexual assault. The courts establish the credibility of the defendant before considering consent, which discounts the credibility of the victim in the process.

These actions are not just in the courtroom. They are acted out in classrooms, workplaces, in public and in private. These actions and attitudes are perpetuated; we tell each other that a woman was asking for it because of the way she looked at a man, or the style of dress she wore. We have created a false consent through non-verbal actions and physical attributes. A woman always has the right to accept or refuse a sexual advance. When a woman does refuse, the individual making that sexual advance makes the decision on how they will handle this refusal, of which they accept or ignore. We are all responsible and accountable for our decisions and actions, and ignoring and disrespecting a woman's decision is sexual assault. No means no, and it is her right to say no and have her decision respected. Since 80% of sexual assaults are committed by someone the victim knows, remember that even forced sex in a relationship is sexual assault. Sex can be used as a means to gain and retain control in a relationship. You may be at risk of being sexually assaulted by a partner if that partner is obsessed with being with you, discourages you from being with friends and family, is jealous, discourages you from participating in other social activities, and is aggressive and shows signs of violence behaviour toward you.

Men can be accountable for their actions and their language. Respect the rights of a woman when she refuses a sexual advance, and change your behaviour to accept her decision. Remember, No means No. Acknowledge the power of your words, that using aggressive, violent or sexualized language is also considered sexual assault. Putting a woman down with words, reducing her to an object of desire for your use is absolutely disrespectful and is dismissive of women and their rights. Sexual assault is a very serious offense, and it does not only happen to women. Men are sexually assaulted, and in those cases, it is most common for a man to be sexually assaulted by another man. No matter what your sex, sexualized violence and sexual assault is wrong, and it is against the law.

It is so very important for a community to support a women's shelter; to support a safe and confidential place for a woman to go in a time of need. It is just as important for the community to know that we are here to provide a safe and supportive environment for women, to provide a place to access information about issues like sexual assault, sexualized violence, family abuse etc., and to help sustain a healthy community. Stay safe this summer. Our 24 crisis line is 993 5086. This number can also be used for any questions about your safety, how to get help if you have been sexually assaulted

WOMBANIA BY PETER MARINACCI

This Will Be My Yukon Story, Part 1

by Howard Stearns

Editor's Note: Howard Stearns wandered into the Sun offices during the last fortnight and asked Carly (who has been busy on our archives project) if we would be interested in a memoir of his time in Dawson in the late 1940s. How much of this 3000 word plus work he had already prepared, we don't know, but he apparently sat down in his RV and banged out the rest of it on his laptop. This is part one of three. Enjoy.

At the age of 16 I had worked at several jobs, none of them paid very high wages because they did not require any great talent. I had worked as a truck driver, a logger in different camps and found myself in the early 1947 looking for something that paid better. There used to be several hiring offices down on Cordova Street and one day they were advertising jobs in Dawson City, Yukon Territory, and were offering the enormous sum of one dollar an hour when the highest-paid non-skilled pay was 50 cents for 10 hours a day seven days a week. I was already spending the money.

The journey entailed a flight from Vancouver to Whitehorse and then on to Dawson City and the best part was they paid all expenses so it didn't matter if you were broke. So I signed up and took off in a beautiful Douglas DC3, which was the 737 of its day, and had a wonderful fight to Whitehorse, then a very small Lockheed Lodestar on to Dawson City.

One of my school chums, Ralph Bouiler, had also signed up; unfortunately we were sent to different camps and were to meet later on in the year in unusual circumstances. We were picked up at the airport and had to ride in the back of a pickup truck. The first thing I noticed was it was really cold and I had neglected to bring warm clothing. No problem, the boss said, we have everything you need in the commissary (whatever the hell that was).

The bunkhouse was 50 beds, 25 on each side, with a very thin mattress, so I had to buy blankets, heavy leather boots and warm pants and jacket. By the time I had everything I needed I owed the company store almost $500. The airline fare alone was $169.

Gold mining is called placer mining, starting when they thaw the ground by driving pipes filled with water pressure and then comes a process called sluicing, and they literally remove 10 to 15 feet of topsoil and wash it down the river, an absolute destruction of the whole valley. The mining actually takes place in what they call a barge that sits in a pond with endless shovels and extracts the Gold from the bedrock. The work was very hard mostly - pick and shovel - and I had a very hard time adapting. I finally conned my way into driving a pickup truck back and forth to town.

I had been around adults, truck drivers and loggers who were pretty rough characters but the guys in this mining camp were unbelievable, with foul language, dirty songs and drinking. At the end of each day I was exhausted and had trouble getting to sleep with all the noise and disturbances. The next disappointment was the food. It was absolutely the worst food I've ever eaten, some of it so rotten that they poured curry powder on it to take away the foul taste.

In those days the only way you got to Dawson City was either on a paddle wheeler from Whitehorse or by airplane, so there was very little fresh food. The British Yukon Mining Company had you in complete control because you had no spending money and you were paying off the store. There was no way to get out of there. Many of the men had quit after paying off their bills and some of them had actually walked out 300 miles. So much of the talk around the bunkhouse at night was how we are going to get out of here.

As the weather warmed slightly I would take a walk amongst the Bush in the evening and found there were dozens of huge rabbits or hares as they are often called. I had a small single shot .22 rifle and tried dozens of times to shoot one, without much success. I then adapted the hide in the bush strategy and wait 'till they came bounding down the trail, then stepped out behind them and as they reached the apex of their hop I would shoot them in the back of the head. It took many, many tries before I finally got a few. One of them weighed nearly 16 pounds. I would then take them to the cook and with my two buddies we would have a nice rabbit dinner.

All the garbage from the cookhouse was thrown into a ravine and some evenings the bears would come to scrounge. One of the men had a high-powered hunting rifle and used to shoot them between the eyes. They also supplied some fresh meat although I never developed a taste for bear meat.

The decision to leave the camp was made when after I paid all my bills I got a check for $36, the next morning my two friends and I got in the pickup and drove it to town.

We were convinced that we could walk out and hired a boat to take us across the Yukon River as the ice had just broken and there was a trail that had been there for years. As I was crossing the river I noticed several old paddle wheelers on the shore that had been put there after their jobs were finished. We walked down and noticed a metal boat about 12 feet long on the upper deck, it was a lifeboat and had been shot full of holes with a hunting rifle. In planning my escape I had access to a map and it showed that you could go down the Yukon River and end up in Circle City Alaska. We then pulled the boat off of the upper deck plugged the bullet holes with wooden dowels and proceeded to float down the river. There were no oars so I had some old flat planks that were used. As I am writing this I'm shaking my head at sheer stupidity of my action.

Here we were in a metal boat with holes that we had plugged, no life preservers, no map, and no oars, heading down the river that we knew nothing about.

WHOOPS!!

We have two apologies for you this week.

1) Barnacle Bob tells us there's no way he slammed that church door at Willie Gordon's funeral. We believe him.

2) That photo of Tara MacCauley's bridesmaids should have been labelled Heather Lang's bridesmaids. Tara and her matron of honour were there, but the surprise was actually for Heather.

Inuvik Greenhouse in Full Bloom

by Josée Bonhomme

The prolific Inuvik Community Greenhouse produces an estimated $100,000 of fresh foods and flowers yearly in this northern town of 3,500 residents. Sheena Adams coordinates the not-for-profit commercial growing facility, now in her second full season. She spent a few days of R&R in Dawson in late June after a hectic planting season. It turned out to be a great opportunity to learn about how a greenhouse at latitude 68 degrees North works.

Adams studied in BC and has a combined degree in horticulture and biology with a focus and special interest in genetics. Sheena loves her job. She's found a way to combine many skills and talents in a truly successful formula for a northern social economy flagship example in the NWT.

She relies on "71 to 76 volunteers on the e-mail list, with a new composting team this year. When I send a call for help by e-mail throughout the community, someone always shows up," she beams. She takes direction from a volunteer board of directors, and recoils at the thought she might be toiling away alone. Her priority is the commercial side of the crop production, available to the community at reasonable prices in season.

Inclusively, all charitable community groups are offered a plot free of charge, while families and individuals rent their 10 X 4-foot plots for $100 a year. There are 74 plots available on the lower level. All ages, cultivations and experiments are welcome. Each year, members pay a $25 membership fee and must complete 15 volunteer hours of work.

Elders from the long-term care centre tend their plot regularly, bringing picnics and visiting with other growers from the community. The commercial operation is on the second level, run much like a laboratory, where boots are rinsed and disinfected before entry, under strict controls used in food crop agriculture.

Popular harvests that do well with the 24-hour daylight filtered through the translucent roof include potatoes, beets, carrots, chard, cabbage, leafy greens and herbs, strawberries and many flowering plants. "Our salad greens are being harvested now, one of the first crops of the year," says Adams. "Broccoli and cauliflower also do well, but need more space; lettuce is a denser crop and is preferred with the distance from growers for more fragile produce... Tomatoes, cucumbers, zucchini, peppers and corn are more difficult, possibly because of pollination issues or a lack of air movement. The season may be too short for the warmer climate plants, or the soils may lack calcium. We not only have the challenge of 24-hour sunlight from above, permafrost is below us."

worm composting now (Vermicomposting). Composting is done in two stages, outside and inside the building. In the spring, melting snow is used to moisten the soils, wheel-barrowed from outside. Snow carries more minerals and nutrients than regular surface water or municipal water, an added bonus to conserving water."

Another aspect of waste reduction is eating all nutritious parts of the harvested dybugs feed on aphids and are considered as beneficial insects. As Adams noticed ladybugs while chipping in at the nearby Fort MacPherson community garden, she considers it safe to bring them in from a certified Canadian insect factory. The kids love watching the natural prey-predator relationship on tours. Special wasps may be added to help with pollination as well as pest control.

Adams keeps busy running the gardens as a viable commercial venture. Key factors for success include dedicated volunteers, conserving all resources, reducing wastes and maximizing every potential for rich soils to boost productivity. The difference on average between outdoor and indoor temperatures is 15 degrees Celsius. This provides a growing season from May to late September, or easily two full months more than the outdoor season.

Performance monitoring and research continue, to support other communities in the NWT morally and scientifically. Adams boasts humbly, "I helped build a greenhouse in Tuktoyaktuk, overlooking the ocean, way up there! It'll have great sun exposure, it's totally out in the open. The idea is catching on and we offer tours and workshops for other communities who want to get their plans off the ground."

The 10,000 square foot growing area is housed in a former ice skating rink, part of a long-standing residential school (Grolier Hall). The school was closed, its buildings transferred to Aurora College in 1998. The skating rink was offered to a non-profit group who envisioned a northern greenhouse. The Community Garden Society

Soils in each plot are enriched at the beginning of the year with 10 lbs. of mineral-rich soil, peat moss when available, and rely on compost to achieve a higher organic humus content.

"Everything is composted," explains Adams, "we even collect the unsold spoiling produce from the store. We use aerobic (with oxygen) composting which produces CO₂ for the plants in the greenhouse. Anaerobic (without oxygen) composting produces methane gas, one of the "greenhouse" gases harmful to our atmosphere."

"All our garden wastes are composted along with municipal organic wastes, and we offer plants. Succulent greens often written off as inedible waste such as beet greens, or broccoli leaves, can be used in salads or soups. Carrot-tops are a French ingredient for a healthy soup, Adams discovered through her research.

While admiring our river-front gardens, Adams is quick to point out that pansies and snapdragons make lovely salad additives. "And nasturtiums are so good, spicy too!"

Companion plants, six- to eight-week quarantines for new plants with sticky cards to monitor introduced insects, and imported ladybugs are all methods used in pest control. The la-

Artist Profile: Ron Sexsmith

by Mike Chaulk

Ron Sexsmith is a Canadian legend, a heart-on-the-sleeve songwriter from St. Catherine's, Ontario. His music and songwriting has been praised by such industry icons as Bob Dylan, Paul McCartney, Steve Earle, Lucinda Williams, Ray Davies, and Elvis Costello, who says that Sexsmith has insight into the human heart and a melodic purity unheard since the heyday of Paul McCartney. This might be why Sexsmith won a Juno for Songwriter of the Year for "Whatever It Takes," off his 2004 album, Retriever. Or why, last year, his latest of twelve studio albums, Long Player Late Bloomer, was shortlisted for the 2011 Polaris Prize. Sexsmith has been equally as persistent in his career ambitions, compiling a growing list of albums, awards, and shining collaborations, as in his commitment to prioritize sincerity over all else. Sexsmith's lyrics are seemingly straightforward in their content and delivery, topics often being happiness, sadness, and the many conditions of love, but they surface on a complexity that can be uncovered by joining them with the place they came from: Sexsmith himself. His music carries the artist wholly with it, and the two can never really be separated.

Ron Sexsmith will be kicking off the 34th annual Dawson City Music Festival with an intimate performance at the historic Palace Grand Theatre on the evening of Thursday, July 18. Tickets are still available but few in numbers. Purchase them from the KVA office (993 5575) or online at www.dcmf.com.

workshop is being offered on July 17th entitled Natural Eco Dyeing and Printing on Silk, in using native plants for fabric dyeing. The fee is $125, seats are held for latecomers but good idea to let them know your plans. Visit www.inuvikgreenhouse.com or call (867) 777-3267. Sheena Adams is helping with all workshops at the Festival this year, which runs from July 13th to the 21st, and they can be found at www.gnaf.org.

was then established, in partnership with the College, and proved handily an experiment can turn into proven technology with community support, appropriate technology, and lots of sunshine.

Tours and workshops are offered regularly or on-demand in northern indoor gardening, composting and water conservation, with natural plant dyes and food preserving as added recent themes. "We're really focusing on preserving this year, eight classes are planned for teaching growers how to can safely and properly," says Adams. During the Great Northern Arts Festival, a full-day

Children's tours and workshops are so successful, the kids inspire their grandparents to share in the goodness of fresh food farming in a healing community spirit. Everyone agrees the nutrition value is higher, and locally grown foods balance the high food costs. From a sustainable development perspective, the diversion of organic wastes from the waste stream and landfill to enrich soils amounts to several tonnes a year.

Collecting snow to moisten plots by natural thawing early in the season, and provides freely available minerals. Rainwater is collected and used to water the plots in summer. No hoses are in place, all water is carried to the plots from central collection points, the plants hand-watered carefully one by one.

The society, in its partnership with the college, must maintain the building at its own cost. The translucent polycarbonate roof panels need replacement, having gone beyond their normal life span. With enough success with its commercial "grow-op", Adams is confident that they will be able to get this work done soon. Volunteer help will again be a critical element of covering the gardens for another 10-15 years of success.

When the skating rink structure was first taken over, many recycled materials were salvaged from the building, up to 60% of needed renovation items. In its originality and example, the greenhouse is a celebration of ingenuity and courage at high latitudes. It is one of the world's most northern commercial greenhouses, well worth a visit.

KIDS' CORNER

TWO:

Twos are everywhere. Birds have two legs and two wings. Snakes have two eyes.

Almost everything has only two eyes unless you are a spider, which has eight! (It also has eight legs).

Harley Davidsons (a motorcycle) have two wheels and a two-stroke motor. A two-stroke motor takes only half the time to fire; it can run at higher speeds, for longer, than a four stroke.

α

= 二 β'

"BETA"

The Greek letter for two is called beta and it looks like this , the number one is called alpha and it is written like this. In Chinese it is known as èr and is represented by two bars, the top one being shorter than the bottom one.

Two is also in a lot of songs, like "Tea for Two", "Just the Two of Us", "Two Hearts Beat as One" and "A Bicycle Built For Two".

"It takes two to Tango" is a popular saying and it means that to have an argument with someone, or to have a love affair with someone; it takes both people to agree to have this argument or love affair.

2 plus 2 is 4 and 2 times 2 are 4! Is that weird or what?
