History of Commissioners Reveals a Heart of Pure Gold

Linda Johnson has been busy chronicling the Yukon's political history for the last decade or so, longer if you consider that her first book on this subject, With the People Who Live Here (2009) was, according to its preface, about 20 years in the making. That book was a history of the Yukon legislature from 1909 to 1961.

Here most recent book, At the Heart of Gold (2012) covers a wider range of history, but concentrates on the role of the Commissioner, that office which is unique to the three northern territories and which has undergone such a complete transformation over the last 30 years.

Both books were supported by the office of the Speaker of the Legislature, which was occupied by former MLA Ted Staffen at the time when Commissioner Geraldine Van Bibber first proposed the book. It was her notion to have it be a personal look at the office, structured as a series of interviews with the still living men and women who held the position.

At the time that Johnson began the process the last ten Commissioners were still living. The work of the incumbents before that time occupies the first 65 pages of the book. After that, the text is based on interview transcripts supported by research.

The book was launched officially at this year's Commissioner's Ball in June, at which Johnson and the present Speaker, David Laxton, discussed its origins and purpose.

Laxton credited Van Bibber and Staffen with initiating the project, which he inherited after the most recent territorial election.

The Ball was he felt, a most appropriate place to introduce this particular book.

"Geraldine and Ted shared an interest in Yukon history, particularly the history made by Yukon people. They both are part of our history. Both believe that those stories are uniquely ours to celebrate, to learn from, and to preserve for future generations. The result is this book, At the Heart of Gold: The Yukon Commissioner's Office, 1898-2010.

"Although this book covers a long span of history, the majority of it is about the last 10 Commissioners and their stories. They are, in fact, the superheroes in this story and created the main text of the book. Our ten living Commissioners and their families have shared their personal histories, insights, memories and reflections of their times as Yukon's Commissioner. Sadly, Gordon Cameron was too ill to record his own narrative and passed away during the early months of the project. Happily his four sons ... were able to supply the bulk of the information about their father and mother."

Linda Johnson reflected on the genesis and significance of the book.

"It started as a wonderful idea in the minds and hearts of

Ted Staffen, Commissioner Doug Phillips, Speak David Laxton, Geraldine Van Bibber and Linda Johnson

Geraldine and Ted. It came to life in the personal narratives as the ten living Commissioners and Gordon Cameron's sons, embraced the idea and made it their own. The book is based on oral histories, building on the long standing tradition of Yukon's story tellers."

Many years ago now, Angela Sidney coined the phase, "my stories are my wealth" and for Johnson this concept is at the heart of her latest book.

Johnson provided each of her subjects with a basic outline to follow and gave them time to think before the interviews began. Once completed these were transcribed at Yukon College (the full tapes are in the Yukon Archives) and Johnson sat with her subjects once again to decide what extracts to include in the book, sculpting the chapters from the text.

"The result is a candid, first person window on our Yukon world. Each chapter is as unique as the individuals recording their stories, and together their narratives illuminate the fabric of a place we all love to call

"As you read through the chapters of this book you will journey back and forth through Yukon history, gathering understandings of events from many different points of view. Collectively these men and women have served us now for more than half a century, and the office itself is more than 110 years in the making. During those decades there have been huge changes in the Yukon and in the Commissioner's Office. The position has often been a center of conflict and controversy, as citizens struggled to move from colonial governments, with viceroys appointed from far away, to democratic, responsible government elected by all of the Yukon people, with Yukon people serving as our Commissioner.

"What the Commissioners and their families have shared with us in recording their stories for this book is pure gold, a tremendously valuable legacy or us in the present and for all future generations."

"It ain't gold but it's close!"

OPINIONS

Uffish Thoughts: Travelling on Top of the World

Story & Photos by Dan Davidson

There was a predictable exchange of opinions between two levels of government last week regarding the state of the Top of the World Highway. The opinion of our local council was pretty much like the one I overheard coming from an Australian couple at one of our restaurants a couple of night ago.

They'd ridden the Tetlin Junction to Dawson route on a rainy day and didn't have much nice to say about it.

Mind you, there's been some rain and some wear and tear over there since I drove it during the first week in June, so it may not be as good as it was that day. In addition we had a sunny day and that tends to give you the sort of view that makes up for a lot of other deficiencies.

Fifteen years ago you could say without fear of contradiction that the Top of the World part of the route was in better shape than the American Boundary Spur and Taylor Highway portion. Four years ago I learned that this was no longer the case.

As far as Chicken the Taylor was in pretty good shape in early June, and quite a bit of it has a paved surface. From Chicken to the border the dirt and gravel road isn't really bad, but it's dusty when it's dry and far better shape. can be slick if it rains. There are still a lot of tight corners where creeks run down into gullies. My 51 feet of truck and travel trailer didn't have any problem with it, but I can see where longer, wider vehicles might.

The Top of the World on the Canadian side was more disappointing than bad. The BST treated surface, which I have been told didn't set well due to wet weather after the last application, has had a rough time. It is full of potholes, damaged hardtop and lots of stretches where the surface is simply a patch of gravel on one side of the road or the other. I wouldn't say it was dangerous, but you have to keep adjusting your driving to the road surface, and it certainly slows you down.

We had a nice day and it was pleasant to watch the play of shadows across the forested hills and view the more jagged peaks off in the distance. They had fresh snow on them then, while there were lots of places along the highway where the hard pack left on the sides of the hills by the ploughs just a few weeks earlier still clung to the shadier sides of the road.

That was similar to what I had seen in the high Country on the South Klondike Highway going to Skagway the week before, though that road was in

I was not surprised to learn that Dawson's council had drafted a letter complaining about the state of the road. This is the artery for our rubber tire solo traveler and bus traffic after all, and the fate of Eagle this year is a solemn reminder of what can happen if companies and families decide that your road isn't safe.

The response of the Dept. Of Highways, which was essentially "we're working constantly and as fast as we can" was also what could have been anticipated. In a summer that has included major washouts on every road south of Teslin and another at Kluane Lake, the highway crews have certainly been worked to capacity and beyond this summer, and routes that can still be travelled might just need to wait in the queue for a bit while the urgent needs were met.

We're reminded at times like these, to borrow a phrase from Sting, just how fragile we are.

Shadows dapple the hills as Inuksuks welcome travellers to Canada just above the border station.

Oops!

It has been brought to our attention there are a few corrections that need to be made to the story "Through the Eves of a Tourist, No.1" which appeared in the June 27th issue. We regret the errors.

1. Year of the arrival of the first tourists: 1898 (not 1889)

- 2. Photo credit: Janice Cliff
- 3. The poem at the beginning of the tour was in fact written by Sue Taylor herself and not Robert Service.
- 4. The "Greatest Klondiker" contest was called the "Greatest Klondike Canadian" contest last year but the name was changed this year since many of the contestants are not actually Canadian!

We want to hear from you!

Letters to the Editor

A Thank You From Willie's Sister

Dear Dawson City,

I miss your kindness and generosity but most of all I miss the comfort of your support in our shared grieving of my brother Willie.

On both my visits a bit of my heart was left behind and because I know it's a safe place and will be taken care of I will leave it there until I visit again because you have all become a part of me and my Willie Story.

It heals some of the hurt of losing him knowing that he was living in a community, which showed him such support and love.

I miss him everyday. I miss the loving arms of Dawson City that held me up and gave me the strength to carry on when I didn't believe I could.

To each and every one of you who provided support in organizing the funeral and celebration of life, to each and every one of you who provided food, time, money, hugs, support, kind words and love, THANK YOU. Thank you for taking care of him, thank you for taking care of Nancy, thank you for taking care of me. As much as my heart hurts everyday when I think of him, knowing that he has been well loved and cared for by all of you comforts me and calms my soul.

From My Heart to Yours. Thank You, Melinda Gordon-Dingwall

KDO Continues to Advance Services for Businesses

At the July 11 Dawson Chamber of Commerce meeting Mark Wickham of Across the River Consulting presented an update on the most recent activities of the Klondike Development Orga-

The KDO is a partnership of the City of Dawson, the Dawson City Chamber of Commerce. the Klondike Visitors Association, the Dawson City Arts Society and Chief Isaac Incorporated (the development corporation of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in) and was formed to pursue the building of an increasingly sustainable economy in the Klondike.

Its broad mandate includes:

- devising pro-active strategies and services aimed at retaining and growing a healthy business
- increasing access to equity investment capital
- strengthening economic and social sectors critical to the future of the Klondike
- addressing strategic gaps in services

Wickham indicated that the Regional Economic Development

Plan on which the KDO has been collaborating with the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in is in its final stages and is now awaiting responses from the federal and territorial governments, who were also partners in the process.

"There were 31 different projects identified in the plan and they are themed around investments in people, the place and businesses," he said. It is too soon to actually make the plan available to the community at large, but that will happen some way down the road.

The KDO itself has been developing an online property search engine that will enable people to identify the different types of property available in Dawson just now. The good news from the display is that there are quite a few commercial properties and and the bad news is that there are almost no vacant residential ones. A check at the Post Office will, however, reveal a healthy number of residential properties for sale in both the downtown core and the Dome subdivisions.

Wickham reported that the KDO is looking to update the local business directory and to assist businesses in selling goods both to the local market as well as to the territorial government.

On July 4 the KDO held the latest in its series of partnership forums, this one focussed on the availability of business support services, mostly from outside the community.

"It's amazing who's coming in and out of this town," he said.

What was different about this two-part event - a daytime discussion followed by an evening service fair - was that it brought a lot of these agencies into one place. Participants included the North Yukon Business Advisory Outreach, Dana Naye Ventures, the Business Development Bank of Canada, KDO Enterprise Facilitation, Yukon College, the E-Commerce Yukon Advisor, and Yukon Government advisors from the branches of Regional Economic Development, Business and Industry Development and Tourism Product Development, as well as a representative from the Canadian Northern Economic Development Agency.

It seemed clear to Wickham that many of these people were not necessarily aware of what the other agencies had to offer, and they often make the rounds in Dawson without the bulk of the community that might need to consult with them actually knowing they are available. Having them all in one place for a big event raised their

There were 15 to 20 people at the four-hour discussion forum and 25 to 30 came to the evening

Wickham reported that both sets of meetings were very positive and would certainly be followed up with more such events in the future.

Yukon Government Implements Staking Prohibition Covering most of Whitehorse

Press Release

WHITEHORSE (July 19, 2012) -Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources Brad Cathers announced today that the Yukon government has issued a prohibition order on quartz mineral staking covering 74 per cent of all land within the City of Whitehorse.

"This prohibition on new mineral staking is aimed at reducing the potential for future conflicts between mining claims and other interests such as surface rights, recreational uses, and areas designated as parks or greenbelts," said Cathers. "This withdrawal order preserves all existing rights, while providing more protection for owners of private property."

The Yukon government worked with the City of Whitehorse to determine boundaries of the areas where new mineral staking will not be allowed. The prohibition on new staking is intended to support the City of Whitehorse's Official Community Plan, and to protect existing rights and interests from potential future conflicts. Areas that are no longer open for staking include residential subdivisions, downtown, and the Whitehorse Cross-Country Ski Club

The two areas not covered by the prohibition order retain mineral potential for future opportunities and include areas identified in the City of Whitehorse Official Community Plan for future industrial development and resource extraction.

The prohibition order is in effect for a five year period, and can be extended or adjusted at that time. The order does not affect existing mineral claims that remain in good standing.

For more information about mineral staking in Yukon or this prohibition, visit www.emr.gov.yk.ca.

Local Government Ministers to Meet in Whitehorse Next Year

Press Release

WHITEHORSE (July 12, 2012) - Provincial and territorial ministers responsible for local government today renewed their commitment to support strong and viable communities, placing particular emphasis on the design of a new federal infrastructure plan, incoming chair and Yukon Community Services Minister Elaine Taylor an-

"Across Canada, we recognize that stable, flexible, predictable and long-term infrastructure funding is essential for vibrant, healthy and sustainable communities, not only in the North, but in all of Canada," Taylor said. "We appreciate the recent years of federal support and investment in infrastructure, from coast to coast to coast, and look forward to a new fedbest meets local needs and priorities through a strong base of flexible funds."

At this year's meetings in Kananaskis, Alberta, ministers from across Canada met with federal Minister of State (Transport) Steven Fletcher, to relay the importance of collaboration in the design of a new infrastructure plan for Canada that enables provinces and territories, with the input of local First Nations and municipalities, to determine local priorities and needs in order to support local governments, enable broad economic growth and build foundations for future prosperity.

A new federal infrastructure plan is expected to roll out in 2014 and will replace the Building Canada Fund, which has brought more than $244 million eral infrastructure plan that to Yukon for a range of projects from major highway and bridge improvements, to solid waste, drinking water, and waste water system enhancements in Yukon communities.

> The meetings of provincial and territorial ministers responsible for local government provides an opportunity for ministers and officials from all 13 provinces and territories to share information, hear from working groups and conduct business geared toward supporting the long-term viability of communities.

> The 2013 annual meeting of ministers responsible for local government will be hosted by Yukon and held in Whitehorse from July 9 to 11, 2013, where ministers from across Canada will have the opportunity to see the benefit of joint infrastructure investment firsthand.

What is an Omudsman?

By Lisa McKenna

According to the dictionary an ombudsman is a person, male or female, who is appointed to investigate people's complaints against public organizations.

Now what does this mean you may ask, it means that there is someone, somewhere, out there you will help you to maintain your rights. Their job is to find solutions and "not point fingers" (a quote from Tracey-Anne McPhee, our current Ombudsperson).

Some of the recent cases they have attended to include a man who's well had been contaminated by the flooding of the river. He applied to Yukon Housing under the disaster financial assistance program. He was refunded for his well but not for his water treatment system, which he needed to purify his well water.

Apparently this water treatment system was considered an "enhancement" but some of his neighbors had received financial aid for similar situations. He is awaiting the decision of the YHC (Yukon Housing Corporation).

Another case pertained to a person who was expecting retroactive pay due to a promotion; everyone else got it but him. The Ombudsman stepped in but he still didn't get

The office deals with every thing from day care services, to driver license suspensions, to elder care and employment issues. They look into financial assistance for education and heath care insurance; just about anything that is between the individual and an organization.

Their highest expenditure, from April 2011 to March 2012, ($401,000) was for 'personnel', next comes the office ($153,000). It's nice to know that they are so comfy. After these expenses $7,000 was spent on supplies and services and $5,000 was spent on capital items (what ever they are).

I guess the point I am trying to make is are they worth it?

Shelter from the Storm

By Carly Lovett

For smokers and non-smokers alike, the new, temporary art installation outside of Bombay Peggy's is a must-see!

The installation (part interactive sculpture, part performance art) is a collaboration between Peggy's owner Wendy Cairns and Driftwood Holly, a local sculptor. The piece was conceived and constructed by Holly and financed in part by Cairns.

The sculpture is mixed media, created from both found antique artifacts and lumber.

The piece is constructed as both a shelter for smokers and a non-traditional smokehouse. There are two fish hanging from the ceiling of the shelter and Peggy's patrons are invited to participate in the lengthy task of curing them.

This is where Holly and Cairns pass the reins over to the public, as all those who use the smoke house become a part of the artistic process.

When Cairns was presented with the idea she agreed instantly.

"Smokers are my customers too," she says, adding with a laugh that she thinks the smoke house is "so cute!"

While Cairns supports the legislation that has made it illegal for smokers to smoke inside her establishment, she would rather not see them forced to huddle outside of Peggy's in all weather conditions.

Driftwood Holly and Wendy Cairns christen the smoke house with a rare cigarette.

The project is a manipulation of the meaning of space.

"Space happens anyway, whether you provide it or not, but it can be ugly or it can be nice," says Holly.

Keeping this in mind, Holly and Cairns have decided to use their sculpture to experiment with altering the "smoking space" that exists outside of Bombay Peggy's.

Cairns believes that the project will have both the positive outcome of sheltering shivering smokers and of keeping cigarette butts off the ground outside of her bar.

Inspiration for the piece came to Holly as he passed the winter watching his friends brave the harsh wind and wet in order to smoke a cigarette.

"We all have our drugs," says Holly, listing pot, beer and work as other possible addictions.

It didn't seem fair to him that people should be pushed out into the street just to enjoy a cigarette.

Holly and Cairns, both nonsmokers, are happy to have the chance to reach out to cigarettesmoking friends through their artistic practice.

The inaugural smoke-in featured non-smokers Holly and Cairns lighting the first cigarettes to be smoked in the smoke house. Real-life smoker Ian grins when asked what life was like pre-smoke house.

"It's like you're a pariah in society," he says.

Since the smoke-in, the smoke house has been used regularly to the delight of smokers and non-smokers alike.

As Holly puts it, "the best thing about it is it's for you!"

Minister Tours RCMP Training Centre

Justice Minister Mike Nixon is shown last week during a tour of the RCMP training academy in Regina with Commanding Officer of Depot Roger Brown, Constable Benjamin Kingdon who will be assigned to Yukon, and Chief Superintendent Peter Clark, Commander "M" Division.

Press Release

WHITEHORSE (July 17, 2012) - Justice Minister Mike Nixon and Yukon RCMP commanding officer Peter Clark toured the RCMP training academy in Regina last week. The two met with senior officials and the minister spoke with RCMP cadets, including Constable Benjamin Kingdon, who will be posted in Yukon when his training is finished.

"The RCMP training depot is an amazing place that produces respectable, honourable RCMP constables," Nixon said. "I had the opportunity to meet with the staff and trainees at the academy and talk about the challenges of delivering police services in northern and remote communities."

The RCMP's national recruit training centre, known as depot division, has been in operation since 1885 in Regina. The cadet training program is an extensive 24-week training course. Upon successful completion cadets may be offered employment as members of the RCMP and given peace officer status.

"We were extremely proud to have the opportunity to show Minister Nixon what goes into preparing our recruits for the complex and demanding job of policing," Chief Superintendent Clark said. "This intensive program is just the beginning however. As members, they will maintain, expand and enhance their skills throughout their careers and the communities in which they serve will play a vital role in shaping their skills and experiences."

The tour of depot was part of a four-day visit to Saskatchewan. Minister Nixon also met with Saskatchewan Justice Minister Gordon Wyant and Saskatchewan Minister responsible for Corrections and Police Christine Tell.

Museum Hits 50 Year Milestone

Story & Photos by Torey Ellis

As the Dawson City Museum celebrates its 50th anniversary in its current home, one former director remembers the earlier OTAB days.

"It was cold," says Kathy Jones-Gates over the telephone from her home in Whitehorse, recalling days when a tiny furnace barely touched the May chill in the one-room exhibit.

"But there were lots of highlights to make that cold weather work pretty special."

Jones-Gates worked at the museum from 1972 to 1982, back when it only took up the south wing of the Old Territorial Administration Building. Exhibits were made up of artifacts behind glass barriers and a big book of photographs - a far cry from the three exhibits and two floors the museum now occupies, and the dramatic interpretive performances.

At that point the OTAB was still feeling the effects of the 1979 flood that weakened its foundations and scraping for every government grant it could get.

"The museum has had to fight for its place in the scheme of things and it's done quite well," Jones-Gates says. She was a part of that process; the work she and her team did led to the restoration of the OTAB in in 1980s.

"That to me was the legacy of all our efforts to say yes, this is valuable," she says. Though she says she'd reached the "burn-out phase" by 1982, she still remembers those years fondly.

"I gave it 10 years, I learned a lot, and I take pride that it all contributed to the restoration and to the awesome building we have today," she says.

"I say we, because I still feel like a Dawsonite," she adds.

Jones-Gates and her husband Michael Gates usually come up to Dawson every year, and she makes a point of touring the museum.

"I think it's absolutely amazing and wonderful, what they're doing now," she says, referring to the interpretive programs the museum does throughout each

Laura Mann, the museum's current director, is equally as enamoured with her current staff, often remarking on their talent.

"It's funny, because 50 years old really isn't very old - speaking as someone who's in her 50s," she says. "But in the Yukon, we are among the oldest institutions. We've been in this building for 50 years, we were around a few years before then. It's hard to believe."

The April sprinkler system disaster washed away any plans to celebrate this summer – Canada

Purchase by

Day, for instance, was supposed to be a much bigger celebration. Now, Mann hopes to turn the annual November auction into a joint celebration.

"And you know what? In the end, it's probably just as well. The 50th anniversary should be for the local community, and that makes it a winter event."

"Of course, in the summertime we are all about the Gold Rush; we are all about the visitor who comes to town," she adds. "In the winter we are what the community needs us to be. Then, we show our innovation, we show our ability to think outside the box, and we show our responsiveness to what we see the community needing."

Jones-Gates remembers similar innovation from her day.

"There were lots of creative people then, as Dawson always has," she says. "We survived on a lot of grants, a lot of interest in the museum, and a lot of people donating artifacts and supporting us."

Kristen Lawson, Alex Somerville and Shanta Johnson are three of the anniversary year's interpretive staff.

Randy Bachman and Talking Vinal Tap Stories

Randy Bachman's Vinyl Tap Stories By Randy Bachman Viking Canada 224 pages $32.00

When Randy Bachman sat down to write an autobiography some years ago, he had the assistance of John Einarson. They produced Takin' Care of Business in 2000, a book which some reviewers criticized for being a little too much business and not enough rock and roll. An afterword to this book says that Einarson assisted in its production, though his name isn't on the cover, but this book sounds a lot more like the voice we've been hearing on CBC Radio's Vinyl Tap show since 2005.

The story goes that Randy used to enjoy Finkleman's Forty-Fives on Saturdays and when Danny finally hung up his turntable and shelved his collection of early Rock and Roll 45 rpm records, Bachman thought it would be a great idea to take over that concept and carry it on into the decades beyond those that Finkleman frequented.

Thus was Vinyl Tap (a play on the spoof rock and roll movie title Spinal Tap) born.

The idea was quite simple. Randy, a founding member of both the Guess Who and Bachman-Turner Overdrive, has had a long career, and met a lot of people, including a lot of the stars of the latter half of the 20th century. As a cover band in their early days, the Guess Who played the songs that were famous at the time, and sometimes backed up the groups (especially the girl groups) and individuals who made them.

Later, when he became a member of rock's royalty, his bands played with other bands, sometimes opening for them, sometimes having them open for him and his current band.

There were tales to be told, and Randy, assisted by his wife Denise McCann Bachman, who also had a varied career in the industry, developed into someone who was able to tell them. In the course of a two-hour show Randy spins about two dozen tunes and talks a bit about each of them, sometimes from personal experience, sometimes from research.

It's a good mix, found on both Radio 1 and Radio 2 (on different nights), as well as the Sirius satellite system and online, after the fact. I'm a fan, listen when I can, and have exchanged some correspondence (with answers from Denise) though the show's website.

This book captures the flavour of those shows very nicely in nine chapters. The first one is "Portage and Main" (what else from a guy who grew up and began his career in Winnipeg) and naturally talks a lot about growing up, musical influences, and early band days. It ends, as does every chapter, with a "My Picks" list of songs that he referred to in the chapter and which he felt were important to his development as a musician. Some of them are his own, but he is quite clear that not all of his songs are good.

"What's in a Name" discusses, of course, how the Silvertones became Chad Allen and Expressions and eventually the Guess Who, but it also reveals some the stories behind how other groups were named and how a group called Brave Belt became BTO.

The rest of the chapters follow this pattern: some personal reflections are mixed in with information about other groups and individuals. Two chapters called "Close Encounters of the Six String Kind" deal with Randy's personal encounters with Chet Atkins, Van Morrison, the Who, Dion and the Belmonts, Jefferson Airplane, Frank Zappa, Les Paul, Bobby Curtola (Canada's contribution to the Bobbies craze of the early 60s), the Beach Boys, Cat Stevens, Lawrence Welk, the Pointer Sisters, and Johnny Paycheck, just to name a few of them.

I suppose this could be seen as name-dropping in a big way. If so, other than his band mates Burton Cummings and Fred Turner, no name is dropped more than that of Neil Young. who is two years his junior. Young began his career in Winnipeg with the Squires, before moving on to Toronto as a solo artist and then to the US, where he had a tremendous influence as a member of both Buffalo Springfield and Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young, as well as on his own and when backed by Crazy Horse.

One of the better ideas that this show has come up with is that of theme shows. I'm listening to the first hour of four on the theme of "one hit wonders" as I type this column. But there are many other possible themes: times, seasons, girls' names, death, food, driving, or favorite songs by particular groups or performers.

The book concludes with about a dozen of these lists, a major addition to the "My Picks" list at the end of each chapter.

The Extinct Ground Sloth

By Lisa McKenna

There are basically three different genera of ground sloths. There is the Megalonyx, characterized by its enlarged canine teeth, the Jefferson, and the Old Crow Harrington. A ground sloth could reach heights of 6 meters (20 ft.) and weigh up to 6 tons, making it the largest mammal known. It reached beyond even the African Elephant!

Out of all the Giant Sloth's remains that have been found, over 20 have been found in, or around, the Old Crow Basin.

Though they normally walk on all fours, tracks have been found that show signs of sloths being bipedal (walking on their hind feet).

Giant ground sloths lived in groups although they would often live alone in caves. Mostly vegetarian in diet, they appear to be partly carnivorous.

Was their extinction due to human hunters or climatic changes? They, being the biggest mammal, had no predators. So how did they become extinct?

The jury is still out on that one.

Mason Seeks to Expand His Range

Story & Photos by Dan Davidson

Michael Mason is happy with the way his art has developed over the 16 or so years that he's been working on his one-line style. Using this technique, each painting and each carving begins with a single line that moves through to the end of the work, forming images as it grows.

He says that all his work is really an extension of that line, and one could, in theory set up everything that he's ever done in a display that would be a continuous line from the beginning of the exhibition to the end.

Mason says the images are coming thick and fast these days, faster then ever. He always has close to a dozen or more works on the go, working as he does in painting, carving and jewelry making.

He'd like to be larger in two senses of the word. First, he'd like to have a larger market for his work, which is drawn from his life experiences and the stories on his Hän and Athapascan people, both here in Dawson and in Alaska.

"I'm at the level now where I can create this stuff, all the images, but if I could find someone, a partner, to just grab it and run with it, it's marketable," he says.

To that end he has begun a Facebook page (MichaelMasonArt), just to get his work out into the larger world.

In the other sense of the word, he like to have the freedom to do larger pieces of art, the size that you find on display in public buildings, created to be seen from a distance.

He feels that art rendered at that size would create the kind of public awareness that he feels the native perspective on the world deserves to have for the wider population.

Mason had a show in the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Community Hall on the second weekend in July.

The "True" Tale of Diamond Lil

By Dan Davidson

This column appeared originally, in slightly different form, in What's Up Yukon.

There are, as Robert Service noted, strange things done 'neath the Midnight Sun. There have also been some strange things written, not the least of which would be some of the poet's own verses and a few of the saltier tales of Jack London.

The story told by "Diamond Lil" in her memoir, The Tragedy of the Klondike: This Book of Travels Gives the True Facts of What Took Place in the Goldfields Under British Rule, is one of the strangest things I have read in some time.

While she would later be known as Diamond Lil to the residents of St. Augustine, Florida, where she founded and operated the Fountain of Youth tourist attraction and "fabricated stories to amuse and appall the city's residents", Lil arrived in the Klondike as Dr. Luella Day.

(I should note here that there were a number of "Diamond Lils" scattered about the Yukon and Alaska during the Gold rush period and later.)

She was a practising physician in Chicago when she caught Gold Fever in 1898 and travelled here with her St. Bernard, Prince Napoleon. That she had guts and gumption is certainly indicated by the fact that she was a doctor at a time when colleges were reluctant even to train women as nurses.

About three months into her residency here she married Ed McConnell and they operated the Melbourne Hotel, while she continued her medical practice.

She left here in 1901 or 1904 (sources vary), travelled to Alaska and California and arrived in St. Augustine "with cash and a diamond in her front tooth" (from a marker honouring her legacy in St. Augustine).

Other sources indicate that the acquired the diamond during a side trip to Harare, Zimbabwe, in between California and Florida.

Her memoir, published in 1906 and available through our Public Library system in a facsimile edition, ends with a plea to the American government to intervene and rescue the hard-done-by citizens of the U.S. who were being trampled under corrupt British rule in the Klondike.

Day's book is a litany of complaints and exposes of corruption and malfeasance on the part of criminal minded and bigoted colonial officials who were, in her opinion, taking the territory for everything they could get in collaboration with agents of the American Northern Commercial Company.

She claims to have been prevented from practising medicine and chronicles a variety of attempts made by officialdom

to take her hotel away from her.

Worse still, she claims that agents of the government or the Nothern Commercial Company (NCC) attempted to murder her at least twice, once by introducing arsenic into quinine capsules she was taking for another ailment and the second time by direct injection of Fowler's solution of arsenic while she was semi-conscious.

Oddly, the book never mentions her marriage, as far as I can see, though someone named Eddie is referred to a number of times during one of the attempts on her life. He is not mentioned as part of her harrowing escape down the Yukon River, during which she is pursued by people who were not satisfied with having driven her from town, and harassed by NCC officials.

Day died in St. Augustine in 1927 but her legend lived on. Mae West embellished her as "Diamond Lil" in a play and one source indicates that she has a whole list of things named after her, including a large commemorative Air Force B-24 plane, a well-known wrestler, a redheaded female Marvel Comics cartoon character, a 3.5 star hotel in Montana, a rock band, a American Quarter Horse Association (AQHA) champion cutting horse, a casino in Seattle, and numerous bar/grills in South Dakota, Utah, Idaho and other states.

Of the book, I feel that one of the online antique booksellers has the best description of its contents. While it was fun to read, it cannot be taken seriously as history.

"Known in the Klondike as Mrs. Luella Day McConnell, the author had this book privately printed. Apparently the book was never circulated in the Klondike and there is doubt that it gives a true accounting of matters and may have even related events that never happened. Colourful descriptions and improbable events abound."

After the original appearance of this column my former coeditor here, Kathy Jones-Gates, sent me this note.

I read your article about Luella Day McConnell in What's Up Yukon and had to laugh. I think you summed up that woman very well. Luella Day was certainly "weird"...perhaps she should be part of the 'Colourful 5%'???? However, because of my George Black research, I had to dig up more about the woman as she scampered out of Dawson leaving a trail of debts behind her. George's law company was owed over $2,500 ... we are talking 1903 amounts. She left Dawson at night, allegedly dressed in male attire. Whatever her illness was purported to be, she did not recover with all her marbles, if the news articles are even close to the truth about her ... conveniently she did not comment about her huge debts once she was back in the Lower 48

Luella Day McConnell certainly left many questions behind her, and her book was totally off the wall. I have listed a fair number of clippings from an early Dawson newspaper called The Dawson Record, and you can see that most of the town did not want her around but wanted to get their bills paid.

Scott Rogers in Pepetual Motion

'Twas an odd night at the Odd Gallery...

The theme seemed to be perpetual motion, and it never stopped! Perpetual motion is a basis of power (or motion) that never stops running. He is a Canadian Visual Artist, but he is based in Glasgow, Scotland.

We took a meander through "Meanders Into Nonesuch Place" with Scott Rodgers. As Sarah Rose wrote in her exhibit brochure he "conveys A "Machine" ... a sense of melancholy sometimes bordering on despair". He walks, and talks, with Jan Welzl.

Jan Welzl was a miner, a trader, and a locksmith, an explorer, and a sailor, but he too was in love with the thought of perpetual motion.

In 1868 Jan was born in what today is the Czech Republic, but then was a part of the Austro-Hungarian Empire. After many travels that took him to Alaska, back to his home and then to Canada, he lived in Dawson City in the 30's until his death in 1948. An asteroid was named after him (No. 15425) in 1998.

In the countries that were formerly known as Czechoslovakia, Welzl is a literary hero. His first book of Alaskan tales, Thirty Years in the Golden North, was even a Book of the Month Club bestseller, though he made very little money from it.

Scott believed in Welzl and so he believed in the power of walking. Sarah Rose states that "Walking can be an experience where one is in the world but also apart."

Scott says 'um' a lot but perhaps he was just nervous!

He began his lecture with the strains of Neil Young, from "After the Gold Rush". This is where he "looked at Mother Nature on the run".

He also read from The Long

Live and Let Live: Pt. 3 of 4

Western involvement in International Politics only serves to worsen situations that are already bad. Consider Russia, the former Soviet Union. Prior to Western involvement, none of the Russian people really went hungry. It was unnecessary to have 'Soup Kitchens' or 'Food Banks' and there really was no real division of Classes, with the exception of the political leaders, as every citizen shared in the resources of the Nation. Since the involvement of the USA in the affairs of the Soviet Union, Capitalism has been on the rise. Many in the West would say this is a good thing, but not an average Russian citizen, now separated in Classes. So many of the citizens are so poor now they have need of Soup Kitchens and Food Banks. Greed has spread like a virus among the populace. Yes, the West has made the Soviet Union a Democratic Society, and therefore made Russia a better place. NOT!

Now we cannot forget that the former Soviet Union was in an "Arms Race" with the USA, and was a "Super Power" with almost equal strength as the USA. But this balance of power had a way of keeping the USA in check. While the Soviet Union was a Super Power the USA did not so rapidly get involved in the Politics of other Nations. The USA took great pains to deeply consider all effects and consequences of their possible involvement in another Nations affairs. Since the fall of the Soviet Union, the USA speedily, almost insanely rapidly, and an ever increasing haste gets involved where they have no place in being.

The Fate of these Nations being influenced by Western philosophy and Democracy will be the same as that of the former Soviet Union: extreme division of Classes, extreme poverty, extreme spread of disease, extreme rise in deaths. Yes, we help these Nations - help them destroy themselves.

Historically, Europeans (of which most North Americans are Descendants) attempt to occupy, destroy or control Countries or Continents and their inhabitants assuming that their way is best for all. Of these the British, French, and Germany were among the worst. All of these instilled deeply rooted prejudices towards the inhabitants of the Nations they occupied, ruled, invaded, or controlled.

The British occupied Australia, India, North America, New Zealand, Kenya, Uganda, Tanzania, Zambia, Nigeria, Malawi, Rhodesia, Botswana, Ghana, Sierra Leone, Solomon Islands, British New Guinea, Sarawak, Sabah, Malaya, Guyana, Jamaica, Lebanon, the Falkland Islands, and British Honduras. All of these Nations were and still are inhabited by the native peoples. In each of these Nations the British treated the Natives as non-people. Why could they not simply Live and let Live? To be concluded . . .

This is just my opinion.

Forty Years on the Dalton Trail

By Dan Davidson

But for a chance invitation to leave a boring summer job in Alberta and come to the Yukon to spend a summer doing archeology in the wilds here, Gates might have followed his first plan and spent his career looking for ruins in Mesoamerica. He might never have visited the Yukon at all, and he certainly would not have written Dalton's Gold Rush Trail (Lost Moose), his latest book.

It is dedicated to Allan Innes-Taylor, a fascinating fellow in his own right, who was Gates' mentor on his earliest forays into the Yukon wilderness, beginning in 1971. It was then that he first ran across the name of Jack Dalton and the existence of the Dalton Trail. To a greater or lesser extent, it's been on his mind ever since.

As he told the dozen or so folks who attended his reading and slide show at the Dawson Community Library late in June, "When I write of the Dalton Trail, I have been there. "

He has, too. Whether on foot, on horseback, on the rivers or in the air, Gates has been tracking down the vanished trail for years; a search that intensified after he retired from years spent focusing on the Klondike Gold Rush on behalf of Parks Canada while stationed in both Dawson City and Whitehorse.

It's a mystery to him why the trail has been the forgotten story of the Gold Rush era. Indeed his original choice of title for this book was The Forgotten Klondike Trail. Part of it, he says, is that it was, in many ways, a less demanding route, one where it was possible to guide a herd through and have them, in the right season, actually gain weight along the way.

Attempts to do the same thing over the Chilkoot or White Passes were failures, and it was only the construction of the White Pass and Yukon Route Railway that finally caused the decline of Dalton's toll route.

Because the story is a big one, covering a great deal of territory both in time and space, Gates chose to focus his hour long talk on the book's subtitle: "Exploring the Route of the Klondike Cattle Drives."

In fact, he focussed on one particular cattle drive out of the 65 (at last count) that essayed the route with varying degrees of success. George Tuxford's drive was documented in 250 pages of work by the man himself, an beef to the Klondike was the reinvaluable source for anyone attempting to chronicle this route. Gates had a limited personal experience with rounding up cattle when he was a young man and has an appreciation of the difficulties. For him once was enough

The slides came from pictures taken by others who had used the route, and Gates has established a collection of present day photographs that match these sites.

The call for merchants to bring sult of a near panic that arose between 1896 and 1899, as thousands of stampeders, many of whom were on their way before the Northwest Mounted Police imposed its rules about bringing a year's worth of provisions with them, descended on the place that was just becoming Dawson City. There was a serious concern that starvation would be their fate, as the land did not have the resources to support tens of thousands over the winter.

Dalton had already established his trail, which he basically stole out from under the resident First Nations people, and while he could not charge a toll once anyone crossed the ill-defined boundary between the USA and Canada, he made a fortune on his side of the border, even charging the Natives whose trails he had commandeered.

Gates' enthusiasm for his subject bubbles through whenever he talks about it, and this particular evening was no exception. It is a pleasure to listen to someone who is really caught up in his work and knows it well.

Those who think they may never encounter the Dalton Trial probably already have. Portions of both the Haines Road and the North Klondike Highway run along, or parallel to, the route that Jack Dalton pioneered, and others used, to bring cattle to the Klondike.

Gate's estimates that 1500 to 2000 people used this route during the peak Gold Rush years, but the more significant number is the estimated 10,000 head of cattle and other livestock that came to the Klondike via the trail. Without them the history of the Klondike Gold Rush could have been tragic indeed.

It all started with three brothers, Brian, Carl, and Dennis. They called themselves the "Pendletones" (from Pendleton woolen shirts which were very popular 'back in the day'). Later on it became a band of Brian, Mike, Al, Bruce, and David.

Although being known for their incredible vocal harmonies, they also brought a level of respect to surfing, hot cars, and

Glen Campbell played with them for a while and their first paying gig was with Ike and Tina Turner.

They had over 30 top hits in the U.S.A. and over 50 hot hits, including 4 #1 singles. All in all they have sold 100 MILLION records Worldwide. In June of this year they put out their 29th studio album and it is expected to produce even more top, or hot,

They are presently touring Spain and Italy. It has been over two decades since the remaining original band members have been together.

They have "been laying on [their] back[s] / Like a freight train off a track. / Trying to find a job to fit [their] trade[s]". Rhonda gave them a hand once in awhile when they were dreamin' of California Girls in their Little Deuce Coupe.

Guess them yet? Think sand, surfing, and sunshine. You got it! They may be long in the tooth these days, but they're still the Beach Boys!

This Will Be My Yukon Story: Pt. 2 of 3

By Howard Stearns

Editor's note: At the end of part one, Howard Stern and his buddy decided they had had enough of camp life and decided to escape down the river.

We had no cooking equipment, some canned to matoes and dried spaghetti, some bread and a bit of fruit. The river was running quite fast and at nightfall we managed to get ashore and got a fire going. I never even considered bringing water, thinking that we would drink the river water, unfortunately it's somewhat like the Fraser and is full of silt so we drank muddy water and got sick. The Yukon River water is sometimes described as too thick to drink and to thin to plow.

I forget how long it took us but about noon one day there was a settlement on the left side of the river with some people yelling at us. Unfortunately the boards we used to paddle were not very effective and we landed quite a bit downstream from the settlement, which of course we know now is Eagle, Alaska. We were the first people they had seen since last fall.

There was a fat miserable United States customs officer who screamed that we had entered United States illegally and then preceded to try to take my gun from me, I of course resisted and he took us at gunpoint to a woodshed and locked us up. In retrospect, he probably saved our lives because ahead of us were hundreds of miles of river with unknown dangers. The man who ran the United States Post Office was very nice and convinced the customs officer to let us out.

I have no idea how he figured we could go anywhere. He actually tried to force us pole the boat back up river, saying that the Indians did. Again the post office man intervened. So for the next several days, I can't recall how many, we cut wood every day for our food. The mail boat made its first trip down the river and we were forced to ride back to Dawson city. The company was used to people quitting and was quite forgiving when they showed up asking for their job back. Sure enough, the word had got out that we were back in town and the truck was there to pick us up. My two friends decided to go back as there wasn't really any choice but I steadfastly refused and watched the truck disappear down the road.

I really don't know what I would have done because I had no money and there were absolutely no jobs in Dawson City. I recall sitting on a wooden sidewalk my head in my hands nearly in tears, when an old man came up behind me and said what is the matter sonny? As I turned around to respond I noticed a large red building up in the foothills above Dawson city, and I asked him what it was. His response was that it was St. Mary's Hospital. I suddenly remembered that I was a good Catholic and an ex-altar boy.

I was filthy dirty with the gunnysack of dirty clothes and when I knocked on the door of the hospital, a sharp-nosed older Nun greeted me with what you want? I said I was looking for work and would do anything for a job. She immediately told me to me to get on my way. Then I laid the Catholic altar boy trip on her and she very reluctantly said all right, the job is 10 hours a day 7a.m. to 7 p.m., 6 1/2 days a week, one half-day off Sunday.

The good news was I had all my clothes clean and I was eating good food. There were 18 old men; most of them were leftovers from the Gold Rush in the early 1900s. The job was not hard work and started in the morning with laying out the tables, carrying the food from the kitchen, cleaning up, doing laundry, and sometimes cleaning the men up when they had an accident.

The first few days I was quite intolerant of the old peoples' problems and shortcomings but as I got to know them and listened to their stories I actually started to enjoy the job. I then started to cut their hair and trim their toenails.

Some of the men had left their families, their jobs, and traveled from all over the entire world to find gold in the Yukon. It is an addiction similar to drugs or alcoholism and many of them still had the optimism of getting better soon and finding the bonanza or the mother lode. Several of them swore they knew exactly where it was.

Four or five weeks passed and I started to realize that I wasn't going to spend the rest of my life looking after old men. One of the engineers that worked at the hospital had an old Indian motorcycle and offered it to me to ride on Sunday afternoon. I thought it would be a wonderful event to go out to the tent and boast to all my friends that I didn't have to go back to the company. That the fateful Sunday I decided to go down and look at the paddle wheelers and I ran into my friend Ralph. He had been fired from the boat he was working on. He was accused of theft, which was untrue, so we greeted each other like long-lost brothers.

His plan was to fly back to Whitehorse and get a job. I immediately decided to do the same thing. I went back to the hospital and told the head nun what I was going to do and she freaked out. How could you do that after we helped you so much?

I did feel badly and some of the men came up and hugged me. I could elaborate much more on this but, in short, it was a wonderful experience and I'm sure I became a better person because of it.

I had been paid $60 for a month's work and hadn't spent any of it because there was no need. The airfare from Dawson to Whitehorse was $52 so between the two of us we were on our way. When we arrived in Whitehorse I think we had 10 or $15 between us.

Around the World in Three Years for $10 a Day

By Florian Boulais

A couple of weeks ago, five young people from France – Christopher, Morgan, Siphay, Brian and Bertrand - rolled into town. I got to spend a little time with them and I have been thinking about their endeavor enough that I decided to write a little blurb about it.

Those five young lads have undertaken a rather unique journey: they are going around the world by bicycle. It turns out that a lot of the times they don't even get to spend the $10 a day per person they have as a budget

"People want to hear our story and greet us in their homes" says Christopher.

They were done with the school (three have engineering degrees and the other has a Business Admin. degree) and had already been working for a few years when the idea to go around the world was born.

"We are not athletes. Anybody could do it." says Siphay.

They have put together a quite nice web site that presents a little movie about their journey as well as some very nice pictures. The pinnacle of the web site was undoubtedly a picture gallery

School Lunches are Needed in Tanzania

By Kath Selkirk

This spring three Dawsonites exchanged the gravel roads of Dawson City, pooled with snow-melt, for the rutted, red silt tracks of central Tanzania, slick from rains. Apart from the unpaved state of the roads, the places have little in common. Here, young Maasai warriors rip down the tracks on motorbikes, usually three to a bike, livestock and people scattering out of their way. Their long braids and red robes fly out behind them. They hold their staffs in one hand and brandish their heavy wooden clubs in a friendly wave of the other. They smile broadly as they skim past us, calling out greetings until they round the next corner. Slower commuters on foot, like us, or leading donkeys, or pushing over-laden bikes up the hill, are expected to scramble out of the way when we hear the roar of engines. That doesn't seem unreasonable, though. The road is so rutted there is usually only one narrow track that they can safely follow, so we allow them safe passage rather than assert our right to share the road.

Maureen Abbott, Jim Taggart and I came here as a result of meeting a Maasai man, Emmanuel Ole Kileli, at the short film festival three years ago. He told us about the not-for-profit organization he and group of young Maasai had formed, called Ereto Maasai Youth (EMAYO). We were impressed by their desire to become actively involved in the development of their own community, and volunteered to help.

Yukon links with EMAYO are already well established. We volunteered through The Kesho Trust, a conservation and development organization founded and directed by Canadians from the Yukon and BC. It works through creating partnerships with community-based organizations, like EMAYO, to facilitate and enhance their capacity to achieve long-term sustainability. This supportive relationship started in 2005, when both organizations were newly formed and the shared commitment to conservation and community development made it logical to work together.

Emmanuel's band of Maasai is now permanently based in a settlement area called Elerai, an hour's walk from the village of Kibirashi. Traditionally, the Maasai were pastoralists, moving with their herds of cattle over the savannah lands of Kenya and Tanzania. However, the need for farmland meant that when the Maasai moved on to new pastures, by the time they returned they found their land settled by farmers, fields surrounded by thorn bushes to repel the cattle. And so they now find themselves tied to one location, having to bring in water and food instead of migrating to find it. The culture and traditions which have supported them for centuries must now adapt to new circumstances. It is a hard process for the Maasai who have a strong culture that still directs most of their daily

It is a unique experience to see this community in transition. The motorbikes are the most obvious new addition. The small solar panels propped outside the mud huts are needed to power the cell phones that most warriors wear clipped to their belts next to their machetes. But apart from these notable exceptions, the changes so far to the Maasai lifesyle are few. They are well aware that they need to start planning for change to happen in a controlled way, to be able to hold on to the essential parts of their culture at the same time as joining the modern world. We have set up a community advisory group to work with EMAYO in setting goals for development, and there are quite a few items on the list. High on the list is education.

The elementary school in Elerai attracts students from up to 6 km away. Small figures, dressed carefully in their green and blue uniforms can be seen wending their way along bush trails from as early as 6:30 am. Most carry a small re-used container of water...their daily contribution to the school's lunch. Eager, but shy at the same time, they blurt out a greeting when they see us, then, surprised by their own boldness, they hide their faces and giggle.

Having to set off so early means that will many not have had breakfast. That is why, last year, EMAYO started the school lunch program, which provides nutritious meal for all the students each school day. The principal, Johnson Mwilimela, says that attendance is up 10%. Not surprisingly, the students who are not distracted by hunger perform better in class. All the teachers report an improvement in grades.

To support the program, the community contributes maize, water and wood for cooking. The mamas take turns to volunteer their time preparing the lunch. However, they are dependent upon money donations to make the meal more nutritious with the addition of beans and vegetables. The cost of providing such food? $20 per day. That's right, $20 can buy lunch for 300 children!

By now, you've probably seen this coming... The funds are due to run out at the end of July, just after the students return from their (two week!) summer vacation. If you would like to treat 300 children to lunch one day, please visit http://www.thek- eshotrust.org and follow the links for donating via PayPal and note that the payment is to go to "EMAYO School Lunch Program ".

For more information on The Kesho Trust, EMAYO, and their projects, please visit the Kesho Trust website, above. Power and internet connection permitting, we will keep you updated on the progress of our programs.

AMENDMENTS TO ZONING BYLAW

BYLAW #12-21 ZONING AND HERTIAGE MANAGEMENT BYLAW AMENDMENT NO. 6

Bylaw #12-21 received a first reading to amend the Zoning and Heritage Management Bylaw #09-03 as follows to allow for more residential accommodation within Downtown Dawson City's Commercial Core:

1) Part IV – Zoning Districts, CC – Core Commercial (5) is hereby amended from: "Residential

``Residential

Residential uses are permitted, but a commercial front must be maintained where commercial fronts currently exist and where residential entrances are located in alleys, heritage streetscape regulations will apply to the alley 'frontage'."

Any person who wishes to be heard in favour of, or against, the bylaw may be heard in person, or by agent, as a delegate to a public hearing at the Council meeting on the 8th of August, 2012. All written submissions must be submitted to the Development Officer, 1336 Front St, (City Hall), or by email to molesh@cityofdawson.ca, no later than 12:00 p.m., the 3rd of August, 2012.

Full copies of bylaw #09-03, the present Zoning bylaw, amendments, maps and other documentation are available for review at www.cityofdawson.ca, and at the City Office. For further information please contact Micah Olesh, Development Officer at 993-7400.
