Thoughts on Going Back to School

Story & Photos by Lisa McKenna

I went out the other day interviewing kids. I asked them what they were looking forward to in returning to school, whether they did their homework on a computer or with a pen and paper, what was their favorite subject, what was their favorite school supply, what weren't they looking forward to and who was the happiest about their return to school, themselves, their parents, or their teachers. I got some pretty unique answers.

Jimmy, 14, who was too shy to get his picture taken, wanted to go back to school so he could meet new friends. Jimmy was born and bred in Dawson, he uses a pen and paper to do his homework, his favorite subject is math and he loves his backpack! He's not looking forward to French and he thinks that his parents are relieved.

Lisa, who is also 14, wants to return to see her classmates. Lisa is from Fairview, Alberta, she also uses a pen and paper for her homework and she adores L.A. (which is language/arts for us old folks who don't speak in initials!). She loves new pens. She is not looking forward to her teachers but she thinks she will be the happiest to return to school; after all she is in Grade 9 now.

Amber is entering her first year of University and she will be studying Northern Justice and Criminology. She is looking forward to going to a new school and meeting people from all over the world. Originally from Watson Lake, her favorite subject is psychology. Go figure. At the wonderful, mystical age of 18 she still hates the homework and loves her pencil crayons but she does all her homework on the computer! She believes that her parents are going to be the happiest.

Then there were John, Zack, and Erin. John and Zack are 13 and entering Grade 8, Erin is only 11. (They are accepting auditions to their band "Ostrich Dispute"). Both Erin and Zack love shop class the best but John just loves lunch! All of them like Math the best so their favorite school supply was a calculator!

Lisa's favourite school supply is new pens.

Math is John, Erin and Zack's favourite subject.

When I was in school if we were caught with a calculator we got sent to the principal's office! John didn't like the homework, and Zack wasn't too fond of English but Erin thought that his teachers were the happiest to see his return to school.

Another girl said she loved to see her friends and she lived for gym class. She did her homework half on the computer and half in pen and paper. Her favorite school supply was a brand new empty notebook, but she hates Socials. The happiest person to see her return to school was her Mom! Such is life when you are 14.

OPINIONS

Uffish Thoughts: Farewell to the Kia

Story & Photos by Dan Davidson

Watching the winch slowly haul our crumpled 2002 Kia up the side of the bluff on the Dome Road I wondered once again at how the people who stole our car had managed to get up enough speed going up that hill to get themselves into the mess that they did.

Earlier, both my wife and I, along with the RCMP members and the tow truck operator from Access North Mechanical, had expressed our amazement that there hadn't been two bodies in the car, given the condition it was in.

Both front seat airbags had deployed during the crash, so there must have been at least two people.

The Dome Road was not an easy climb for that little 5-speed manual shift fourcylinder sedan. I've had it up there a number of times and it never was able to make the grade in the top gear. Actually, it's just under a year ago that the transmission failed while I was heading up the hill and I had to turn it around and coast down the hill, judiciously riding the brakes until I could coast it into the pull-out beside the waste and compost pickup bins at the bottom of the hill near the Crocus Buff ballpark.

Then I walked back to town and called the garage to come truck from the Department of Highways that spotted it the

and get it.

I could imagine losing control of the car under those conditions, or really anytime going down that hill if a person wasn't being careful.

But then, when you've stolen a car from someone's back yard in order to go "drifting" (a term betraying too many airings of the "Fast and Furious" movies) I guess it's safe to say you're not concerned about being careful.

Ours wasn't the only car that was bothered that night. The RCMP were fielding one of several reports of cars that had been rifled through, that the owners had found the next morning with the doors open and things disturbed, when I turned up at the detachment to report that ours was missing. Ours just happened to be the one where whoever it was managed to find a spare set of keys.

They took it sometime after 3 or 3:30 in the morning, we think, but we didn't notice it until the next morning around 10:15 when I opened the back door to find out what our dog was barking at and realized the car wasn't in place on our back lane parking pad.

We hunted. The Mounties hunted. A mass emailing and Facebook posting brought in lots of sympathy and one or two clues, but it was a work truck from the Department of Highways that spotted it the next morning while they were driving down from the top of the Midnight Dome while doing some road patching.

The two women checked the wreck for bodies, and called their supervisor, who reported it to the RCMP, who called me. He was at the detachment about to make a statement when we arrived.

The wreck, sitting on its roof, was too far down to see from the road unless you were in a tall vehicle, which is how the Highways people managed to spot it. To see it otherwise, you almost had to know where it was.

They'd begun to lose control on a corner a few hundred feet down the road from where they went across. Heading over the embankment, they should have run right into two trees that were too close together to let the car through. Instead, some combination of velocity and physics caused the car to stand on end, rotate 90 degrees counter-clockwise and slip sideways between the trees, completing the drop by landing pretty much on the passenger's side of the roof, pushing the upper frame sideways, breaking all but two of the windows, and leaving them only the driver's side door to exit by.

It's funny how you can get attached to non-living things. I found myself a bit misty eyed as I watched the poor, old thing scrape up the embankment, get hitched to the tow truck and head slowly off on what must certainly be its penultimate road trip before it finally gets towed to the Quigley landfill.

There seems to be an epidemic of automotive vandalism this week. A contractor had his struck stolen the next night. It was found undamaged on the Bonanza Creek Road, but a number of important items were stolen from it and the sheer inconvenience of the event will resonate in his life, as well as ours, for weeks and months to come.

I'm not a vindictive soul, but I want to see some consequences for this violation of our lives and the disturbance it has brought to our normally peaceful existence.

We want to hear from you!

Wastewater Plant Gets Historic Façade

The tin roof is on and wood siding has begun to be added to the new Wastewater Treatment Plant in Dawson City.

According to the August 3 report to Dawson's council by Superintendent of Public Works Norm Carlson, some of the town's sewage is already being directed into the plant.

Training has begun for the Public Works Operator who will be running the plant and commissioning will continue during the rest of the month of August.

The plant was inspected by YTG Environment Water Resources on July 5. It was noted in the inspector's report that the aging force main that leads to the outflow pipe in the river did not get upgraded as part of the project "and is susceptible to failure." The age and condition of this pipe has been under discussion for portions of the last two councils and the trusteeship's

Council has tried unsuccessfully to make the point that this important piece of infrastructure should have been considered to be part of the wastewater treatment project.

Wooden siding was part of the design for the new Wastewater Treatment Plant in Dawson City.

How Uncle Scrooge Made his Fortune in the Klondike

by no less than Forbes magazine to be on the order of $27 trillion (or five billion quintiplitilion unptuplatillion multuplatillionimpossibidillion fantasticatrillion dollars, according to his creator), began with his discovery of a massive gold nugget the size of goose egg on White Agony Creek, near Dawson, in the Yukon. It enabled him to make his first million.

The story was told by Carl Barks for Dell Comics (licensing WaltDisneyproperties)inMarch 1953 in "Back to the Klondike," and has been reprinted many times, including an oversized edition from Gladstone in 1987 and a limited edition from the same company after it regained the Disney licensing again in the early 1990s, just in time for the Klondike Gold Rush Centennials.

In this tale, Scrooge, Donald and the triplets, Huey, Dewey and Louie, return to Dawson and discover not only a forgotten piece of Scrooge's history, but also the love of his life, Glittering Goldie, still living the cabin he had left 50 years before.

In the nature of comic books in those days, the story was fast and furious, and narrative arcs that would take five of six full length issues to play out now got disposed of in 32 pages, which was actually a really long story in those days of 8 page items.

Fortunately for us, Don Rosa, who is generally considered to be the heir of Barks' informal

Around this time of year I sually devote a few columns to ome of the literary lions who have helped to make Dawson mous since 1898. This year m going to diverge a bit and sually devote a few columns to also took a shine to Scrooge's sojourn in Dawson and made it a major part of his 12 volume series, "The Life and Times of Scrooge McDuck"

He fleshed out the flashback sequence from Barks' tale in a 24 page story called "Hearts of the Yukon" (reprinted in 1995), and then went back to Scrooge's discovery of gold in "King of the Klondike," which became chapter eight of the "official" biography. It can be found in the Boom Kids hardcover edition of The Life and Times of Scrooge McDuck, Volume 2.

Rosa loved the Klondike flavoured stories and did several more that I am aware of, including "The Prisoner of White Agony Creek". In The Life and Times of Scrooge McDuck Companion (Gemstone Publishing), Rosa collected another dozen stories that fit in between the 12 tales in his original plan, and let us know that both "The Prisoner ..." and "Hearts ..." fit in right after "King of the Klondike" in his chronology as chapters 8b and

There is one more story, "The Last Sled to Dawson," which was apparently Rosa's very first attempt at using the Klondike setting in 1988. A portion of that tale can be found in The Companion The Klondike portions of this tale are, as in Barks' original story, a memory flashback within a current events story.

That Rosa sees the Klondike portion of Scrooge's life as being a key to his character is indicated by the way it is used in one final story, "The Dream of a Lifetime," a rather hallucinogenic tale which begins and ends with Scrooge dreaming of Goldie and the Klondike.

All of these stories are a lot of fun, full of slapstick humour and puns. They are well known around the world and there are probably many adults living today who first learned of Klondike gold in the pages of a Walt Disney comic book.

Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in and Golden Predator Sign Socio Economic Accord

A formal Signing Ceremony for the Brewery Creek 2012 Socio Economic Accord, an economic agreement between the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in and Golden Predator mining company. Golden Predator is working towards reopening the gold mine at Brewery Creek, finishing the mining plan outlined by Viceroy Mining in the 1990s and expanding the operation in the years that come.

Approximately 80 people were in attendance for the ceremony, which took place on August 9 at the open-air performance circle outside the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre. Included among the audience were several members of Dawson's town council, and Yukon cabinet ministers Scott Kent and Currie Dixon.

The formal part of the afternoon as opened by Janet Lee, vice-president of Communications and First Nation Relations for Predator.

"We're here today to celebrate the signing of a socio-economic agreement between the

Chief Eddie Taylor and William Sheriff

Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in and Golden Predator," she explained.

Deputy Chief Clara Van Bibber led with an opening prayer, as is the custom at all TH public events of this nature.

Chief Eddie Taylor said that the agreement had been reached after "hours of negotiations and some tense moments."

Clara Van Bibber

No details of the agreement were forthcoming at this ceremony, but Taylor assured the crowd that "at the end of the day we struck a good agreement for both sides. It's good for the community and it will be good for the Yukon Territory. From this day forth, after we sign this agreement, it will be in full effect."

Taylor indicated that this was an update of the agreement the First Nation had previously signed with Viceroy.

'We felt it needed to be modernized and made current. We'll see how the benefits roll out, but there's definitely benefits in there, not only for Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in but for the community of Dawson also. Those will start rolling out in the near future."

Taylor said that both the Yukon government and the City of Dawson had been supportive during the negotiations, as well as TH elders, citizens and youth who had been supportive.

Taylor presented Golden Predator's president, William Sheriff with several gifts to mark the occasion: a drumstick, a friendship feather and a copy of the TH history book, Hammerstones.

Sherriff thanked everyone who had turned out for this ceremony as well as the members of the negotiating teams from both sides of the table.

"These trying negotiations often bear good fruit at the end of the day, like the very positive project here.

"When I first came up here three years ago I said that Golden Predator's way of doing business was to employ a good neighbour strategy. We know this is your community and the First Nation, in particular, has been here for thousands of years, and may be here for thousands more, whereas mines, they come and they go.

"We intend to be here for a very long time; nonetheless we know it's your back yard and it's just common sense, in my opinion, when you move into someone's neighbourhood, you should be good neighbours with them, and I think that's what the real spirit and the letter of this agreement is. We're good neighbours and we're obviously working together to benefit our shareholders and our employees, but just as importantly the members of the community and, in particular, the members of the First Nation.

"I think this is just the beginning step of a very long and fruitful relationship."

In closing he presented Chief Taylor with a pair of framed photographs of the Brewery Creek operation, the first of many that he said will chronicle the history of the mine.

The pair then got down to the serious legal work of signing multiple copies of the agreement.

Currie Dixon, Minister of the Environment Economic Development, spoke briefly in support of the project.

"Let me be the first to congratulate you both on signing this agreement. It's a fantastic achievement for both the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in and for Golden Predator. For companies doing business in the Yukon, we've been making it clear to them, as best as we can, that they have to insure that they develop good relations with the local people they deal with. In all cases that includes the First Nations. I think the example set here between Golden Predator and the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in is a fabulous one.

"I think that the Brewery Creek project will be a tremendous asset to the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in people. As well the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in people will be a tremendous asset to Golden Predator. It's a wonderful partnership and we're very proud to see it happen."

Some of the details of the accord will be revealed during a two-hour open house session at Golden Predator's offices on Friday morning.

The company announced on July 23 that it had "obtained final approval and issuance, from the Yukon Government's Energy, Mines & Resources Department, for a Class 4 Mining Land Use permit (Class 4 Permit) on its flagship Brewery Creek Project. The Class 4 Permit provides for expansion of exploration activities across the more than 180 square kilometer Brewery Creek Project. This exploration permit is in addition to the preexisting Water and Quartz Mining License affecting portions of the Project area."

The signing would have taken place closer to this date except for the death of a respected member of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in.

About 80 people were on hand for the signing.

Benefitsto Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in and Dawson City

By Dan Davidson

The Brewery Creek Mine, located off the Dempster Highway about an hour's drive from Dawson City (about 55 km due east), operated under the control of Viceroy Resource Corporation from 1996 to 2002, when low gold prices and cash flow problems caused it to shut down. The mine is now near the final stages of being

- THFN acquiring an equity interest in the Company, and participating in profit sharing from operations beyond the original mine plan;
- funding for training and scholarships for THFN citizens;
- an annual grant to a community legacy project for the broader community of reopened by Golden Predator Corp., which finally obtained complete control of the claims on the site on February 15, 2012, having taken over from Alexco Resource Corp., which had handled the reclamation of the site after Viceroy shut down.

During the Viceroy years the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in First Nation (THFN) had a socio-economic agreement with the mining company. Both Golden Predator and THFN were anxious to forge their own relationship, but felt that the old accord was a good place to begin.

The signing ceremony for the Amended and Restated Socio Economic Accord took place on August 9. Key aspects of the Socio Economic Accord include: · THFN support for the - Project;

- THFN endorsement for the Company's permitting applications, with a clear process for THFN to review and provide input prior to filing, and a mechanism to expeditiously address and resolve any concerns THFN may have;
- a consistent and clear process for communication on all matters pertaining to the Brewery Creek Project and resolving any disputes that may arise;
- preferential employment and economic development opportunities for THFN businesses and citizens; and the First Nation issued a press release in which their respective leaders spoke about the accord.

"After intense negotiations, the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in are pleased to be forging a beneficial relationship with Golden Predator," said Chief Ed Taylor. "We support their efforts to re-open the Brewery Creek Mine. We believe this mine can operate in an environmentally responsible way, and provide substantial benefits to both the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in and the community of Dawson. We appreciate the open spirit in which Golden Predator is undertaking this task, and our people look forward to the training, employment and contractual opportunities which will be available."

"We are very pleased to have successfully completed negotiations, and I commend the negotiating team for concluding a timely agreement that will benefit both Golden Predator and Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in for many years to come," said William M. Sheriff, Chairman & CEO. "We have found the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in First Nation to be progressive in their approach to exploration and mining, and believe this approach, combined with the modernized Socio Economic Accord, will serve the Project and community well going forward."

Updated Accord Provides MVPA Pauses in Dawson for a Day

Seventy of the original vehicles engaged in the Military Vehicle Preservation Association's 2012 Alaska Highway Convoy began to arrive in Dawson City early on August 13, the ninth day of their trek since leaving Dawson Creek on August 4. Some had arrived two days before, having elected not to take the two-night trip up the Dempster Highway to the Arctic Circle.

Those who made that trek spent one night at Eagle Plains, and then went north to have their photos taken at the Arctic Circle before heading south to overnight at Tombstone Campground. That left them with one of the shortest drives of their planned 26 day journey, a mere 88 miles, in order to get to Dawson.

Dawson was to be a day of rest for everyone in the convoy, which originally included 190 participants, including 46 women and 51 military veterans. During the day on Tuesday, most of the members of the convoy crossed the Yukon River on the George Black ferry at various times during the day in order to avoid having a horrible lineup on Wednesday.

Many of them spent the night at the YTG campground. Everyone assembled at a gravel pit just up the road before continuing on to their next destination, Chicken, Alaska.

The purpose of the convoy is to celebrate the 70th anniversary of the building of the Alaska Highway. The convoy will drive to Fairbanks by way of Anchorage before heading back down the Alaska Highway through Beaver Creek and on to Whitehorse, where they are scheduled to arrive on August 24 and spend a day on the 25 before heading south again.

3rd Annual Free Store Dance Party Set to Cap Off Summer

Society

The third annual Free Store Dance Party will be taking place Thursday August 23rd at the Midnight Sun Bar. The event is a fundraiser put on by the Conservation Klondike Society to raise money and awareness of the organization's mandates and role in conservation in Dawson City. CKS operates the recycling depot in town as well as spearheading a number of other local environmental initiatives.

If you didn't know, the Dawson City Free Store is located at the Quigley Landfill and is a collection of clothes, household obiects and all items in between that people have donated to be claimed by others for free. In a small town with limited places to buy new clothes and wares, the moneyless exchange of goods exhibited by the Free Store is an invaluable resource for many Dawsonites. Although CKS no longer plays an active role in the upkeep of the Free

By the Conservation Klondike Store, the store's creation was originally a CKS initiative.

> The Free Store is a local institution that can be seen as representing the spirit of generosity and exchange. You never know what quirky or useful treasures you will find on a trip to the Quigley Landfill.

> As for what to expect when attending the Free Store Dance Party - expect the unexpected! Attendees are encouraged to wear their most outrageous outfits and costumes. Anything goes! If you don't have anything ridiculous to wear, fear not, for there will be tickle trunks full of Free Store gems for attendees to try on and wear for the evening. You may end up donning a blue velvet gown or colourful knit poncho while you bust a move on the dance floor into the early hours of the morning.

> The evening will be DJ'ed by local dis and guests can expect a mixture of old school, dance and electronic music. Entrance will be by donation, with all donations of $5 or more getting the

When asked why Dawsonites should want to support CKS, Danielle Palmer, the organization's coordinator, responded, "CKS works hard to promote a healthy and sustainable lifestyle in Dawson. This is especially important given our location. It can be easy to forget that we are a non-profit organization and often lose money through our recycling operations. Community support is vital to allow CKS to continue to offer its existing services. With more support we can work to expand our initiatives to better achieve a healthy, sustainable community."

KDO Launches Property Search Tool

By the KDO

Since the beginning, one of the major focuses of the Klondike Development Organization (KDO) has been housing and available property in Dawson City. You may recall the Housing Demand Survey conducted in the spring of 2011, or the well-attended Housing Information Fairs we hosted in March of 2011 and March of 2012. The KDO has also hosted several events for the business community, and it became evident that there was also a need for commercial space and property. In a continued effort to meet the demand for information on all available properties in the area, we are excited to share with you news of a new tool we've recently launched - The Property Search Tool.

The Property Search Tool is a map-based database that allows users to search locations using a number of criteria including zoning, access to utilities, and known availability. You can find the Property Search Tool at www.klondikedevelopment. com/propertysearch. We monitor local property listings and keep an updated list of available properties. There are several properties - both commercial and residential - already posted on the site, and we have already had many visits from people looking for residential and/or development property, and commercial and industrial space. So far, our inventory of properties for sale includes:

21 houses

1 vacant residential lot

5 operating businesses that include properties in the sale

12 vacant commercial proper-

5 vacant commercial buildings 5 private industrial lots

20 government industrial lots

We are not realtors, and we can only post available properties where we have permission by the owner to do so. We invite you to visit and try it out - think of it as one big online bulletin board!

The Klondike Development Organization is a partnership of City of Dawson, Dawson City Chamber of Commerce, Klondike Visitors Association, Dawson City Arts Society and Chief Isaac Incorporated, the development corporation of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in.

For more information on the Property Search Tool, the KDO, or to list your property for free, please contact us by email: klondikedevelopment@gmail. com or by phone: (867)993-2306.

Peter Lourie Loves His Work

Peter Lourie came to Dawson City to gather information about Jack London's time in the Klondike, and so it was fitting that he chose the Jack London Centre for his evening talk about his own work and his life as an author of true adventure books for middle readers.

The Vermont based Lourie spent a major part of his childhood growing up in Burlington, Ontario, but returned to the USA for his college education and has forged his career there.

That's not entirely accurate, of course, since, as his audience of a dozen or so soon learned, his writing career has taken him all over the world. He has spent extensive periods of time to Kenya, Mexico, Bolivia, Brazil, Panama, Peru, and other parts of Africa, as well as to Barrow, Alaska, the place that inspired three of his books: Whaling Season, Arctic Thaw and The Polar Bear Scientists.

"I'm so lucky," he said at the beginning of his slide show and lecture, "because I get to do this for a living and Jack (London) would have understood the fortune that I have."

A high energy performer, Lourie exudes enthusiasm with every new slide, whether he is talking about looking for lost treasures of the Inca, uncovering the secrets of the Aztecs and Mayans, diving with sharks, travelling the Amazon, or rivers closer to home, such as the Hudson, Mississippi, or the Rio Grande.

He has been to the Yukon before, and wrote Yukon River: An Adventure to the Gold Fields of the Klondike, to chronicle his trip back in the 1990s. Like most of his books, it is aimed at the grade 5 to 8 readership. With about 25 books in print, he is benefiting from a renewed interest in adventure nonfiction, especially as part of US education's common ore curriculum.

He feels a kinship with Jack London, who also tried to break into print for a decade before finally succeeding.

"Like Jack, I persisted, but unlike Jack, I'm not a genius."

He's written one novel for kids and a few books for adults, but he's found his niche producing 48 page nonfiction books or historical and scientific subjects, and he assures his audience, "I love my work."

The most

one for adults (River of Mountains: A Canoe Journey down the Hudson), an adventure book for kids (Hudson River: An Adventure from the Mountains to the Seas) and a kids' novel (The Lost Treasure of Captain Kidd).

A good portion of his talk was about the joy of doing school presentations to groups of 250 to 400 kids at a time. Over the years he's been able to move from real slides to computer presentations with a mix of still images and video. While his subject matter is much different, his joie de vivre reminds me a lot of Robert Munsch.

Lourie stuck around town for several days after his lecture, long enough to donate a set of his books to the Dawson Community Library and take in the beginning of the Moosehide Gathering. Dawson was a great place for him to visit and he intends to be back again in the depths of winter to do some more research.

Moosehide Gathering Finds Sunshine for Its Second Half

Moosehide was enlarged with tents and pavilions for the bi-annual Gathering.

Story & Photos by Dan Davidson

While Friday joined Thursday evening by not having ideal weather for an event that needs to take place mostly outdoors or under light pavilions, Saturday and Sunday improved remarkably and had people shedding coats and rain gear all over Moosehide.

The weekend's total tally had not been done by early the next week, but it was known that the Gathering fed 1,500 people on Saturday, August 4.

The boats kept buzzing back and forth from Dawson all weekend bearing people and supplies.

Music was a big part of the weekend, with standout performances by the Kaska Drummers, the Dakhká Khwáan Dancers, the Selkirk Spirit Dancers, the Yu'pik Miracle Drummers and Singers, and evening dances led by James Roberts & Band, Retrospect, Ecka Janus & Band, Bill Stevens, Boyd Benjamin, Allan Benjamin and Kevin Barr.

Some of these folks also staged performances during the afternoons, along with entertainer and Master of the Impossible Tomás Kubinek, Gramma Suzie, Peter Menzies and Simon Crelli and storyteller Tammie Josie.

Throughout the weekend there were sweat lodges and traditional teaching sessions by the elders as well as flute carving (with Vern Swan) and performers' workshops in various disciplines.

Since most evening events ran well past midnight, the daytime schedules didn't begin until 11

On Sunday that meant a church service in the Arbour, led by the Reverend Laurie Munro and Anglican Bishop Larry Robertson, with the assistance of Deacon and TH Elder Percy Henry. This was a service of Holy Communion, during which Henry spoke about the re-dedicated gunhawk and the rebuilding of native traditions, and the Bishop outlined some of the history of the Anglican Church in the Klondike (Story continued from previous that Tanacross elder Larry Jonathan could not explain when it came his turn to speak during the closing remarks.

The Tanacross people are close in spirit to the Tr'ondëk border on Friday for reasons Hwëch'in and have been a great help to the Dawson people in reclaiming their traditional dances and songs.

With his people deprived of their chance to perform here this year, Jonathan turned his closing remarks into a one-man performance which had the audience on its feet and dancing again.

Following speeches Chief Eddie Taylor (Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in), Chief James Allen (Champagne and Aishihik First Nation), Chief Charlie Ekland (White River First Nation), and Chief Rick O'Brien (Kwanlin Dün First Nation), TH Elder Doreen Olsen led in the closing ceremony by the Sacred Fire.

She directed the attendees to form an enormous circle around the entire Moosehide compound and had the four chiefs stand at the cardinal points of the compass for blessing and smudging from the fire and a collection of herbs.

Following this everyone moved around the circle greeting everyone else.

The day concluded with a gift giving ceremony in which presents were presented to all non-TH people in attendance.

From the sounds of the discussions going on around the village, it won't be long before planning begins for the 2014 Gathering.

A wood working workshop was one of the special events.

Visitors gather in an enormous circle at the end of the day.

Face painting is always a favorite kids' activity.

Hate Crimes and Christianity; Part 1 of 3

Hate crimes come in various forms, but Leaders - including the Pope! they all originate unfortunately with so-called Christianity. I find this to be quite ironic, since Christian doctrine teaches Love not Hate. Let us first observe these so-called Christian groups where Hate flourishes. The Klu Klux Klan (KKK), White Supremacists, Nazi-ism, Crusaders, Homophobes, and authors of socalled Holy Wars.

Let us first look at the authors of these Holy Wars. In reality, there is no such thing as a Holy War, only wars based upon Hate and Prejudice. Holy Wars, are in effect, heresy. There is no where recorded in Christian Scripture which states, Love thy enemy by annihilating them, by executing your enemies. Christian Scripture states quite simply, "Love your enemy and pray for them". Since so-called Holy Wars do not follow Christian precepts, I suggest that every Holy War is criminal, every Holy War is a Hate crime.

The Crusades are a clear example of this. Men who went to fight the 'infidels' were supposedly absolved from all possible sin. This gave the crusaders the 'right' to rape, murder, and pillage (all are sinful acts) everywhere they went, and be free from eternal punishment. The crusaders were manipulated by the Church, to go and fight the Muslims at Jerusalem. Since the Church Leaders were supposedly the authority on Christian precepts, and since most of the people who went on these crusades had never read Christian Scripture themselves, they relied on the authority of the Church Leaders to guide them truthfully. In truth the only real infidels were the Church

More recently, following the events of 9-11, President Bush called the war on Iraq a Holy War. Again, another Hate crime. There is never anything Holy about war! Only through deceit and prejudicial tyranny, soldiers went to war against a people and Hate was the fuel for the war. What is Holy about killing people? Nothing at all! Have you not read "Thou shalt not kill."?

Let us now look at these other groups, beginning with the KKK. This group has committed Hate crimes for more than a century. According to this group, any person who is not a white protestant, is deserving of death. This group will use and find any reason to destroy any other group that does not fit their ideologies. They fail to recognize that Jesus was a Jew, that other races were welcomed by Jesus and His followers. As a result, this group, like Hitler, wishes the destruction of all Jewish persons, as well as all non-white persons, all homosexuals and white Catholics. Though they claim they can tolerate white Catholics, simply because they are white.

White Supremacists, though many claim to be agnostic, have their roots in the KKK. Their philosophy is quite similar to the KKK, and they commit Hate crimes. Often identified by their shaved heads and often call themselves "Skinheads" White Supremacy had among their leadership, men who were members of the so-called Christian Church.

A Blast From the Past Returns

The Natural and the Manufactured Artists Get Physical and Personal

By Carly Lovett Student Intern

In The Natural and the Manufactured, an annual artist series curated by the Klondike Institute of Arts and Culture (KIAC) in Dawson City, two artists are exploring physical and imagined spaces, and the meanings associated with them.

Through the years, artists have come from all over to participate in the project, which is a collaboration between the KIAC residency program and the ODD Gallery. Through the program, artists are provided with gallery space and a six-week residency in the Macaulay Residence, where they have access to a studio.

B.j. Vogt of St. Louis, Missouri and Andrew O'Connor of Toronto have taken the theme in two unique and yet complimentary directions.

Vogt, a sculptor by trade has used the idea of natural and manufactured landscape in a literal way. His exhibition Ebb and Flow looks at the natural environment and includes sculptures and video depicting his own fabricated spin on natural physical processes, many of which he has found inspiration for during his time in Dawson.

Among his pieces are a waterfall made of recycled wood scraps and packing foam depicting the polypropylene cycle.

This piece incorporates "nurdles"—small plastic pieces used in the fabrication of all plastic objects. When plastic eventually degrades, it is reduced once again to small plastic particles, also called nurdles, thus linking the cyclic action of the piece to the natural action of a waterfall.

Another project is a video of Dawson's road grader slowed down so much that movement is hardly perceptible. In this way, one can easily see the similarity of the action of the grader to that of the natural movement of glaciers.

Vogt has taken the natural world and recreated it through a new lens. His interpretations of processes that exist in nature allow the viewer to dissolve their mental separation between "natural" and fabricated environments.

"Philosophically we create a divide between what is human and what is natural but humans are natural," Vogt explains.

He says that his pieces aim to create "parallels between human culture and the natural world."

While Vogt has taken cues from the physical environment, O'Connor, whose background is in radio broadcasting, comes at the theme in a very different manner.

"The narrative of this piece

was decided by the people of Dawson," says O'Connor.

Involving himself directly with Dawsonites, O'Connor has managed to record interviews with many of the central figures and best storytellers in the Dawson community landscape. His project, Frequencies: Dawson City, involves installing radio transmitters containing clips of those stories throughout the town.

The themes of the stories include: tourism, the effects of the cuts to Parks Canada, the flood of '79 and, of course, The Westminster Hotel ("The Pit").

He has grouped the clips so that they will be relevant to the area where they can be heard and has mixed them in such a way that each listener will hear a different sequence of stories.

O'Connor's work deals with the mental environment, in a way planning the landscape of stories that listeners will experience, cutting the natural flow of each story, blending it with others and choosing the physical environment where the story will be heard.

By the same token—allowing the stories to be heard at random, in no particular order or sequence—O'Connor is creating the basis for an organic auditory experience that he does not truly control.

"I'm just looking at other ways to tell a story," says O'Connor, explaining that people's personal perceptions will always mean that they will here the story differently from others no matter how it is presented to them.

"I like the idea of things not being the same twice."

The Natural and Manufactured opened during the Riverside Arts Festival last weekend.

The work of B.j. Vogt is on display at the ODD Gallery, and Andrew O'Connor's sound project is- dispersed around town (don't forget to bring your handheld radio!).

Preparing to Go to Art School Produces an Exhibition

Karen Thomas with a street scene from Montreal and a set of puppeteer's controls.

Story & Photos by Dan Davidson

Karen Thomas decided last year that she was going to apply to attend the Yukon School of Visual Arts, and so she spent her winter preparing. Some of the results are now hanging on the walls of the SOVA building in the Confluence Gallery.

The formal description of the exhibit, called Tangled, speaks of different drawing styles being tested to "evoke stories of moments, from the battles and alliances forged on the playgrounds to the comfort felt in a group or the isolation felt in a crowd.

"Tangled (is) a collection of illustrations piecing together glimpses of people in time and place, exploring the ties that bind and form our experience."

Thomas is a little less formal in her description of the pieces, which are rustically framed by old wood and are mostly in black marker, though a few do make use of colour.

"This is my sketchbook from over the winter," she says. "I knew I was going to be applying for SOVA, so I just wanted to practice my drawing.

"What I tried to do was do something every night before I went to sleep. I tried. Maybe three or four nights a week I would actually do it.

"I used marker because I just wanted to learn to trust my lines – so no room for erasing or pencils. That's what I had drawn with before, for sketching and all that, but I was trying to learn to work on my lines."

The subjects came from various sources. Some were straight from photographs; some were bits from different photographs put together.

"Some are from real life - things around the house or people that I know."

There's even a sketch of the Muppets, inspired by a little girl she sometimes babysits.

"She loves that one and I put it in here so that even kids could find something they'd like."

Karen first came to Dawson in 1996 and left for a job in Kamloops in 2005, but she kept coming back in the summer and missing the place, so she moved back in 2010.

"Once the magic of the Yukon hits you, really it's hard to get it out of your blood."

Thomas' is the third exhibit in the Confluence Gallery's summer program and it wrapped up on August 12. It will be followed by a Members' Group Exhibit, which will run through the Riverside Arts Festival and on until the end of the summer season.

The Confluence Members' Gallery is a volunteer-run community gallery operating during the summer months in the Yukon School of Visual Arts. In contrast to the Klondike Institute of Art and Cultures' professional gallery, the ODD Gallery (located in the KIAC building or Oddfellows Hall), this gallery features the work of local and regional artists at all stages of their careers.

Spenser - From the Beginning

The very first book in the omelet throughout Spenser series introduces us to a fellow who is a lot more like Sam Spade, Philip Marlowe and Lew Archer than he would be later in his life. This is Spenser alone, not terribly happy with himself, drinking too much, capable of sleeping with a mother and daughter (not at the same time) within a 24-hour period. There is no Hawk and especially, there is no Susan.

Robert Parker had done his homework, though. He had, after all, written his doctoral thesis on the hard-boiled, mean streets type of private eye that had inhabited Black Mask and other such pulp magazines. Dashiell Hammett, Raymond Chandler and Ross Macdonald were among the best of the lot who wrote this type of story, and Parker's Spenser was originally cut from the same bolt of literary cloth, through he eventually became a much nicer, happier man.

Some things remained constant throughout the next 39 books. Spenser was an ex-cop who left the force because he had authority issues. He was an amateur boxer and had spent time in the military during the Korean War. He is 37 in this book (in 1973) and would age to just a shade under 50 during the 40 years that Parker (who died in 2010) wrote the series. Spenser would remain the master of the dry quip and the quick his career.

Other biographical details did change a bit. In an early book Spenser remembers some advice his mother gave him, but it was later established firmly that he was born by C-section and raised by his father and uncles after she died giving him life.

While this book has a title that immediately recalls the work of Robert Ludlum, the story has the feel of a Chandler novel. Spenser is hired to find a manuscript that has been stolen from a university collection. The university folk come off rather badly in this book and may reflect Dr. Parker's ambivalent feelings about academia. He was a full professor when he quit to write full time after the fifth book in this series.

Following some slender leads brings Spenser to an early 70s radical group called SCACE

(Student Committee Against touch here. Capitalist Exploitation), where he meets Terry Orchard, a poor little rich girl acting out against a sterile home life and disturbed parents. Within 24 hours Terry has her boyfriend murdered in front of her and herself set up to take the fall. Drugged by the killers, she manages to call Spenser for help.

He is hired by her parents to prove her innocence, a job that does not conflict with his original task since Terry doesn't have the manuscript or actually know anything about it, although it turns out that her boyfriend did and that is why he has been killed. That he takes the case and is doggedly determined in his defense of Terry is the bit about this book that seems most Spenser-like to me. In the later books he will do things simply because they are the right thing to do, and there is that

This book gives us a first look at Joe Broz, the mobster who will turn up regularly throughout the series. In a scene very much like one that occurs in Sixkill, the last of the series from Parker's word processor, there is a confrontation in which Spenser demolishes one of Broz's hit men in a demonstration of hand-to-hand combat.

We also meet Spenser's two recurring police characters, Lt. Quirk and Det. Frank Belson. The interaction here is a bit rough edged, as it is their first meeting, but there is definite chemistry before the story ends.

In this book Spenser has only the very beginnings of what will evolve into his personal code of conduct. Most of the later books just talk about sex, and then mostly with Susan. This one is full of it, including the arrangement I mentioned earlier, and one other pairing which closes off the story on a note of prom-

I wasn't keen on the narrator of this book. Michael Prichard's voice has a rather flat affect, and did not lend itself to this type of story as well as that of other readers, particularly Joe Mantegna, who played the character in several A&E TV movies. Still, I got used to it and he did not get in the way of the story.

Spenser novels are not long, generally clocking in at just under 5 ½ hours when read aloud. This is just perfect for the distance from Dawson to Whitehorse.

ROACHE'S CORNER BY MIKE ROACHE

Different trails: Two Dawsonites' Adventures Continue in a Maasai Community in Tanzania

Invitations to visit tend to lead to a very long ramble through the bush. Our roommate and translator, Monica, had a phone call from Mr. Kilimanjaro inviting us to his two day harvest party at his boma (homestead). As Monica was going to be away for the week, she recommended that we try to find someone to take us. As Yukoners well know, giving verbal directions to a location in the bush is not an easy task. "Leave the road by the big rut; turn left at the crooked tree; turn right after a wide candelabra cactus..." is not going to get us where we need to go. All sandy tracks look the same, as do all the thorn trees and cacti.

We decided to call in on the afternoon of the second day, that way we could take daylight photos of the dancers and also head home before nightfall at 6:30 p.m., prompt. After a morning at work, our intention was to call in on our neighbours and hopefully find someone to go to the celebration with. But we had not banked on the fact that by that time, everyone, absolutely everyone, was already at the dance. We wandered around the deserted hillside until we found a neighbour's newest wife (and, therefore, the one who had to stay at home and look after the youngest children). In response to our request for directions, she waved her hand in a direction we took to be angling downhill to the right. So that's the way we set off.

Of course there are lots of distractions in the bush ... especially for bug-lovers. It's the time of year when ants go "on safari", moving en-masse to a new location. The first thing we notice is a seething band of movement across the road. It's a river of worker ants, each carrying an egg bigger than itself. Their busy highway is complete with walled barriers on either side. The organization is incredible, and the soldier ants are in charge. Soldiers line the highway on either side, standing on their two back legs so they can hold their oversized heads in the air, looking out for trouble. As the flow of workers enter a hole in the ground, the soldiers link together to form a living tunnel for the workers to pass through ... to protect them, or to control them? Probably both.

As long as we don't move, they ignore us. As soon as we shuffle our feet, though, the vibrations send them into a frenzy. The workers start to panic: some dashing forward, some turning to struggle against the flow. The nearest soldier takes charge: "You three, get the crowd under control and diverted. The rest of you, come with me."

They storm towards us. It's time for us to move! Now, where's that party?

An almost blind elder comes along the trail. He knows the route well. But he's coming away from the celebration.

"Just follow the tracks", he tells us. Hmm. In a land where herders wander with their cattle and goats, the tracks head off in every direction. A more popular path is just visible in the late afternoon light. We follow it, but that same light, reflecting with a metallic glint, leads to another distraction.

The male dung beetle is gorgeous! His shiny coat is of copper-bronze, with glints of green. He grooms himself frequently to keep looking good. His female companion is dowdy in comparison. She is dull steel and easy to overlook. In fact, his lordship seems to overlook her quite often, rolling their shared ball of dung right over her. She remains clinging to the opposite side holding on in a possessive six-legged hug. They roll and pat and roll and pat until the whole pile is incorporated into a perfectly round baseball. Then off they roll, him doing most of the pushing, her hanging on. Time for us to roll, too.

We can hear the singing and the thud of jumping feet. We arrive just in time for the last dance before dinner break. The men in the young warrior age group (15 to 30) take centre stage, and they, like the male beetle, are gorgeous. Their long hair is carefully braided and decorated with metal and beads. They wear red plaid shukas, beaded straps across their chests and broad beaded cuffs around their wrists and ankles. Each has his own individual style. They glow with health and confidence. They sing with incredibly deep voices, jump high in the air and slap their feet down on landing.

We're embarrassed to admit that we have difficulty telling the girls apart. The warriors' dance partners forms a semi circle opposite the men's. They are all of "marriageable age"

(early to mid teens), and small for their age compared to North Americans. They all have their hair shaved short and wear one plain blue shuka and one plain purple one. They mostly huddle together and move as a group. Their main decoration is a broad, beaded disc around their necks which they make flap by shrugging and shimmying their shoulders. In high voices, they sing their song, different from the men's, but complementing it.

Around the outside of the coral, the older "mamas" are singing their own song and dancing their own dance that includes both the jumping and the neckdisc shimmying. They pull me into the group and I jump along. They laugh at me, but shout approval too.

We get invited to have dinner with the older men. We head off with them into the bush where the goat is butchered on a platform in a tree to keep it away from animals. We eat rice from the communal pot of goat pilau. The sun will set soon, giving us a valid excuse to leave as the host starts the ritual of cutting chunks of meat off a charred leg and presenting it to the guests in order of seniority.

On the trail again, we hurry to get to familiar ground before it gets totally dark. Getting lost a couple of times, we are embarrassed to accept the help of two small boys, taking them away from their boma as night falls. We send them back at the earliest opportunity, when we hear the noise of motorbikes letting us know the road is close by. At least it's too dark to get distracted by the bugs. Ooh, but the stars...

A pentagram is a pointed star that is drawn with only five lines. One of the points is always pointing upwards and it signifies the Spirit. The other four points are Earth, Air, Fire, and Water.

It is a very important religious symbol like the cross...

There is a Pentagram within a circle that is an ancient Wiccan symbol. When they pray they bless the feet, the knees, the womb, the breast, and the lips.

Humans are born with five fingers on each hand, (actually four fingers and a thumb!), five toes on their feet, AND we have five senses... Sight, Hearing, Smell, Touch, and Taste.

Medieval knights had a code of honor that embraced five virtues. These were the virtue of generosity, always giving away to someone in need, courtesy, always behaving like a gentleman with respect and honor, chastity, not fooling around with women, chivalry, which consists of the knight being bold, brave, courteous, heroic, honorable, true and trustworthy. They also practiced piety, as in being deeply religious and acceptable to the laws of God without question.

DAWSON CITY - HEART OF THE KLONDIKE

Dawson City Minor Soccer News...

By DCMS

Dawson City Minor Soccer is well into the summer season with over 65 kids, ages 2 to 14, registered this summer. Since the beginning of the season, DCMS has hosted the 10 year old Yukon Championships and our team attended the 12 year old Yukon Championships in Whitehorse!

The Yukon Soccer Associations U10 Cross-field Championships were held in Dawson over the June 16 & 17 weekend. Four teams from the Territory got together to compete, two teams from Whitehorse and one team from Haines Junction made the journey to join the Dawson City squad. Games were played throughout the day Saturday, with the Top of the World Highland Games surrounding the field, and the bagpipes playing throughout the day.

After the last game Saturday the kids all joined together to participate in a skills competition, testing their dribbling, juggling, hardest shot and ending the competition with a penalty shot shoot out. The participants were very enthusiastic in their efforts, and the competition ended with the following re-

Dribbling, Boys: Dawson Weir (Haines Junction) Dribbling, Girls: Emily Gaw (Dawson City)

Juggling, Boys: Andrew Roberts (Whitehorse) Juggling, Girls: Emily

Gaw (Dawson City) Hardest Shot, Boys: Ben Kischuk (Whitehorse)

Hardest Shot, Girls: Kacie Hastings (Dawson City)

Penalty Shot, Boys: Ole Heath (Haines Junction)

Penalty Shot, Girls: Kacie Hastings (Dawson City)

The Skills Competition was followed by a barbeque which gave the parents, coaches and kids time to get together and enjoy the evening. The day wrapped up with the kids going back out on the field, organizing their own pick-up game, and playing soccer until they were truly done for the day!

The weekend wrapped up with the medal games on Sunday, with Paul Kischuk's Whitehorse team winning gold, the Haines Junction Eagles winning silver and Doug Petriw's Whitehorse team taking the bronze medal. The Dawson City Lions took the 4thplace prize, the vial of Klondike gold.

The Dawson team was made up of Billy Holmes, Kacie Hastings, Rory Duncan, Logan Graf, Emily Gaw, Emma Tom-Tom, Joey Lorenz, Oliver Flegel, Christopher TomTom and Austin Franks.

Thanks to the Yukon Order of Pioneers, the Westmark Dawson, the Eldorado Hotel, Graf Landscaping, the Dawson City Music Festival, Chief Isaac Inc., the Dawson City General Store, the City of Dawson Recreation Dept., Klondike Nugget & Ivory, Ryan-Wood Exploration, the parents, kids and volunteers who helped make the weekend possible.

The following weekend our 12 year old team, Dawson City Local Y026, made the trip to Whitehorse for the full-field championships. There were 4 teams from Whitehorse, plus the Dawson team, to make up the 5 team U12 tourney. The first game Friday night ended in a 2-2 tie, which was a great opener for Dawson, getting used to the full-field game again. A huge contingent of parents and friends enjoyed watching the games on a rare hot weekend in Whitehorse!

Saturday the team played 3 games throughout the day, all games were very close, finishing the round robin with 1 tie,

1 win and 2 losses. This put the team in 4th place, which meant they were in the playoffs on Sunday. The two playoff games Sunday were real nail-biters, the first game ended in a 2-1 loss, which meant Dawson would play for the bronze medal. The bronze medal game went into extra time after Whitehorse tied the game on a penalty shot in the final minutes of regulation time. Whitehorse scored a goal in the second ten minute extra time half to win the bronze medal. The Dawson team, which included some of our 9, 10 and 11 years olds, should be very proud of their excellent play and exciting close games! The squad was made up of John Kolpin, John Dagostin, Sam Crocker, Sam Taylor, Ethan Gaw, Lauren Jenkins, Michael Betts, Jessie Favron, Brandon Kormendy, Kacie Hastings, Billy Holmes, Ben Lorenz, Sarah Nyland and Austin Franks.

Weekly practices take place Saturday mornings, Wednesday and Thursday evenings at the Crocus Bluff Soccer Field. For more information on minor soccer please contact dcminorsoccer@hotmail.com.
