TH Elder Receives Literacy Award for Revitalizing Hän Language

By Palma Berger

Han elder, Doris Roberts was presented with an award for her work in preserving the Hän language over the years. She was the recipient of the Council of the Federation Literacy Award.

The award was presented to her by Minister of Education, Scott Kent, at a ceremony in the Dano-ja Zho Cultural Centre in Dawson. This was followed by a gathering in the centre itself where all met to

A pleased Doris was invited to test it the way the Olympians tested their medals, but she didn't think it was gold.

Education Minister Scott Kent will present Tr'ond'k Hw'ch'in Elder and community educator Doris Roberts with the Council of the Federation Literacy Award today, the day before the United Nations International Literacy Day.

"Ms. Roberts' efforts to re-learn, recover and teach the Hän language over the years are admirable," Kent said. "Because of her commitment to her language and culture, future generations will be able to connect to the history and traditions of her people."

The Council of the Federation Literacy Award is presented annually to one literacy leader in each province and territory. Announced this year in July, the award celebrates outstanding achievement, innovative practice and excellence in literacy.

Upon returning to her family after residential school, Roberts worked hard to re-learn the language she had been forbidden to speak and then teach it to others. She played a pivotal role in recovering HSn language and songs entrusted to the Tanacross of Alaska and, as a result, her teaching now includes stories, songs and performances that the Tr'ond'k Hw'ch'in were missing for 100 years.

"I'd like to thank the people who nominated me for the award," Roberts said. "I appreciate it very much and am proud to represent the Tr'ond'k Hw'ch'in. This was unexpected, but I'm very proud."

Minister Kent is presenting the award on behalf of Premier Darrell Pasloski, who represents Yukon in the Council of the Federation, which comprises all of Canada's premiers.

Previous Council of the Federation Literacy Award winners in Yukon include Claire Derome, Eleanor Millard, Emma Sam, Gordon Hardie, Patty Wiseman, Rock Brisson and George Green.

Uffish Thoughts: Parks Canada Needs Your Help

The news that Parks Canada is concerned about the lack of visitors to Aulavik Park on Banks Island (70 in the last five years) and that they intend to do something to correct this terrible situation, to lure more tourists 1,800 km north of Yellowknife for a two week river trip that can cost $10,000 per person, strikes me as way beyond ironic given the recent round of cuts to the Parks system right across the nation.

One of the actions Parks intends to take, according to spokesperson Diane Wilson, is to perhaps cache canoes in the park so that people who arrive there by plane (the only way they can) won't have to lug their own craft along, thus decreasing the cost of the plane trip to get there.

Gee –maybe they'll double those numbers to 140 in the next five years.

I have nothing against promoting remote northern parks, but when you've just finished gutting the infrastructure that supports the parks the average person can get to without needing a free canoe subsidy, you have to wonder where some people have cached their brains. Clearly they're not actually using them.

Parks employees who still have their jobs have been muzzled from talking about the situation, and even those who are departing with a payout seem to be on some sort of a leash, but I can tell you that Dawson has been having a series of private farewell dinners for downsized staff all summer and it's been quite depressing.

When the Parks unit whose leader won a national award (the CEO's Award of Excellence) for its stellar work on the Revival of the Discovery Claim attraction last summer (2011) is completely shut down and the employees released less than a year later, something is wrong.

When curatorial staff, historians, and maintenance personnel all across the country are let go and only the front of house staff that meet the public and sell the product remain at strength, something is wrong.

Parks has several themes in its mandate and providing a satisfactory visitor experience is only one of them. Preservation, conservation and interpretation are among the others.

Klondike National Historic Sites has about a quarter million artifacts and, thanks to decisions taken in Ottawa, no longer has the in-house capacity to look after them. That includes the other Parks artifacts in the territory, which were managed from here. Two specialists from Ottawa will be flown out from time to time to look things over.

Parks, it appears, will be concentrating on pleasing those visitors.

Not that they're actually going to manage to do that, except in a reduced way. They will put their best public face forward on the sites that they are allowed to maintain, but the loss of tours on attractions such as the S.S. Klondike, the S.S. Keno and Dredge No. 4 cannot do anything but damage the overall Parks experience.

On top of budget slashing it turns out that the money to cover the payouts that go with the layoffs also have to come out of the local operating budgets. That's a double shock to the system.

So Parks management is forced to go cap in hand to other levels of government to find ways to make ends meet, and by this means the public learns some details that we're probably not supposed to know.

The gentleman whose comments I am summarizing here has a name, but I'm not using it in this article. While these comments were part of the council cable TV broadcast that evening, there's nothing to be gained by using his name here.

In Dawson Parks is hooked up to a fire monitoring system for its two dozen or so buildings, insuring that the fire department knows if anything goes wrong in these nationally recognized sites. It costs a little over $11,000 annually to use this service. Parks is asking to be forgiven those costs for up to three years.

Parks hires a security firm to make the rounds and insure that no one is breaking into buildings and doing damage. That contract will probably not be renewed when the season runs down.

Parks has been spending about $6,000 a year on land-scaping fees to maintain the splendid grounds at the Commissioner's Residence. Council was informed that this won't be happening next summer unless somehow the local community steps into the breach and arranges something.

The financial situation at Klondike National Historic Sites was characterized as being "broker than broke" as a combined result of the budget cuts and the cost of payouts. This goes to the extent of management needing to be concerned over whether it has the necessary funds to heat the buildings it is using this winter

The local superintendent made the pitch that while these resources belong to the federal government they are really part of the community as well, and the community may have to take on some of the burden to keeping them going.

It's no reflection on him that this is an absolutely pathetic way to try to run Parks Canada. The current federal government is not the first one of any political stripe to download its responsibilities to lower levels of government, but it is perhaps the most shameless.

The S.S. Keno is just one of the sites on which Parks Canada has spent many millions of dollars, only to close them to public tours at the end of the current season.

To: All potential municipal election candidates Re: Municipal Election advertising

Dear Candidates (whoever you may be):

With Nomination Day coming right up (September 27, 2012) some of you will soon be deciding whether or not you are going to run for council positions. As always, the Sun is anxious to help the community make the decisions necessary to have a healthy municipal

As in the past, we are offering candidates (or a first come, first served basis) to provide the paper with a written statement supporting their campaign, along with a photo. These items should run to about 300 words and need to be submitted to us as computer files in Word or RTF format. The photos should be in JPG format.

There is a catch to all this. To qualify for the free space, you must also be prepared to take out a minimum 2 column (4 inches) by 4 inch campaign ad (PRICE?). We certainly don't want to discourage anyone from taking out a larger ad (we do have the best rates in the Yukon), but we need this as a minimum commitment from you to help us meet our costs.

In summary then, if you chose to do so, you can expect to be able to post your own campaign summary and a photo for free, but to do so, you must be prepared to take out some paid advertising as well.

There are two issues after the nomination date and before the election, October 3 and October 17 so your material will be on display for ay least a fortnight before the voting day. The articles will appear in the paper in the order in which they were received.

The deadlines for getting your material to us (and this is ABSOLUTE, so PAY ATTENTION) is September 28 and October 12. If you don't make that deadline, you are out of luck. We have deadlines we have to meet for layout and printing. Office Manager Alyssa Friesen and I will need all the lead-time we can get.

Sincerely,

Dan Davidson editor - volunteer The Klondike Sun

Letter to the Editor

Dear Klondike Sun,

The annual race to the top of the Midnight Dome has become a fine Dawson City tradition. (We believe this grueling race first started in 1978.)

The Highland Games Society, with Sally Derry at the helm, undertook the task of organizing the race again. Everyone involved should be congratulated for doing a fine job! John Louder and Bruce Duffee set up all the water stations, the finishing chutes, and marked the race course. Kathy Webster and Shirley Pennell operated the first water station again! These fine ladies have volunteered for this job for years!

Catherine MacDougall and her brother Brian handed out the much needed water at the top of Heartbreak Hill. And there was lots of water and oranges at the top.

The volunteer timers were Lynn Bower, Margie Baikie, Chris Hunter and Helen Winton.

Furthermore, John Mitchell and his team of rangers insured every racer was okay as they "swept" the course with their four

Again, we want to thank all the volunteers, including any that have NOT been mentioned.

Sincerely,

Janet Heeton-Johnson and Jeremy Johnson

High Winds Suspected Cause of Power Loss

By Dan Davidson

The transmission line from Takhini north to Faro, Stewart, Mayo and Dawson tripped on the evening of September 5 at 18:14 (6:14 p.m.) according to Janet Patterson, Yukon Energy's Supervisor of Communications.

An email from Guy Morgan at Yukon Energy indicates that it is suspected that high winds knocked a tree onto the line. Certainly there were high winds and evening thunder in the Klondike at about that time of night.

The following areas were blacked out: Faro, Dawson, Mayo, Elsa/Keno (Alexco), Moose Creek, Partridge Creek, Stewart (YECL), Ross River (YECL), Pelly (YECL), Deep Creek (YECL).

Dawson was first back up in from four to six minutes with diesel and a further restoration with the third diesel at 21 minutes.

Mayo was up again in about 30 minutes.

Elsa/Keno/Alexco had power after 1 hr 25 min. Moose Creek and Partridge Creek were a bit quicker at 1 hr 15 min and Faro was last up with diesel at 1 hr and 36 minutes.

Dury Creek / Little Salmon, the Faro Mine and various NWTEL sites were without power all night.

YEC has scheduled an aerial patrol of the line for this morning, as the light last night was too poor for that to be successful.

Dawson Sees Jet Traffic

Air North made company history this morning when it landed its jet in Dawson shortly after 8 a.m. Not long after the place came to a stop company president Joe Sparling was out on the tarmac looking things over, hauling the fuel line over to the plane and generally being way too busy to actually leave the area around the plane.

Passengers were impressed by the smoothness and speed of the flight and expressed enthusiasm about the future of jet service in and out of town.

Quite a few locals turned out to snap photos of the event in the early morning Likely there will be more on hand when the plane makes its return trip later in the day.

Just over an hour after landing the plane was off again, bound for Old Crow and Inuvik.

Yukon Fire Chiefs Meet in Dawson City

Story & Phtos by Dan Davidson

The 20th Annual Association of Yukon Fire Chiefs Symposium and Trade Exhibition was held in Dawson from August 22 to 25.

Wednesday events began with registration and opening ceremonies, as well as a memorial service, that were held at the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre, followed by a reception at the Oddfellows Hall, which was the center for most of the activities.

The next couple of days were filled up with workshops and presentations with titles like "Yukon Fire Service Transition", "Prevention and Training Education", "Critical Incidents and the Volunteer Fire Chief", "Intro. to Aircraft Rescue Fire Fighting", "Hose/Ladder/FIT Testing", and "Forensics and Fire Scene Preservation".

There were also demonstrations of various kinds of equipment and procedures, training exercises and trade show.

Recreationally there as a golf tournament, a reception at Forty Mile Gold, and a closing banquet with lots of speeches and awards. Jack Holesworth, Retired Fire Marshal of Yukon, spoke about his years of service and of the changes he instituted, including encouraging the formation of AYFC in 2002. His introduction, by Whitehorse Fire Chief Clive Sparks, was a bit of a roast, but it was easy to see the affection between the two men.

Holesworth's comments provided the group with something of a condensed history of the fire service in the territory, as it developed under his leadership from 1991 to 2006. He concluded with the thought that firefighters are unique among other service groups in that in the performance of their duties they daily offer their lives to protect their fellow citizens.

Commissioner Doug Phillips has a special connection to the fire service in that his son is a fire fighter in Vancouver. Phillips said he doesn't understand everything that his son has to do, but feels that's best because knowing the details would probably keep him awake at night. He stressed that, as far as he could see, members of the fire service were both a team and a family. He was pleased to see the development of an emphasis on training in all the community fire halls.

"It is that training, that instinct, that saves lives."

Elaine Taylor, Minister of Community Services, spoke of the passion to serve which she sees in the members of the fire service and reiterated her decision to respect the nature and autonomy of the fire fighting community by scrapping the plan to gather all the community departments under one centralized umbrellas organization. She announced that the budget for the service has been increased in order to allow for the addition or replacement of two trucks each year, doubling that budget line.

Klondike MLA Sandy Silver (Lib.) applauded both of those developments but noted a number of areas where there were still improvements needed: 911 service should be extended to the rural communities; steep embankment rescue training is needed; funding needs to match the new requirements stipulated by YTG's changed health and safety regulations; funding for fire departments should be directed straight to the departments and not be subject to the budgetary whims of municipal councils.

Following the speeches came the presentation of awards. The Yukon Long Service Awards were inaugurated to honour those who have served at least 10 years in the fire service, with bars added every five years thereafter.

Ten Year Medals went to:

- Mark Wickham from the Dawson City Fire Department
- Gil Bradet from the Eric Neilson International Airport Fire Department
- Dave Welin, Fire Chief, Carcross Volunteer Fire Depart-

Receiving their first bar for 15 years of service were:

- Jurgen Willms, Fire chief, Marsh Lake Fire and Rescue
- James Paterson, Fire Chief, Eric Neilson International Airport Fire Department
- Claire Desmarais, Mount Lorne Volunteer Fire Depart-
- Jack Holesworth, Retired Fire Marshal of Yukon

Receiving their second bar for 20 years of service were:

- Brian Pope, Tagish Volunteer Fire Department
- Nancy Pope, Tagish Volunteer Fire Department
- Mark Castellarin, Klondike Valley Volunteer Fire Depart-
- Torrie Hunter, Dawson City Fire Department

In addition Yukon Commission Douglas Phillips presented the Queen Elizabeth II Diamond Jubilee Medal to:

- Clive Sparks, Whitehorse Fire Chief
- Jim Regimbal, Dawson Fire

"In the Yukon, with our 36000 citizens, we were given 121 medals to give out to deserving Yukoners," Commissioner Phillips explained. "and tonight I am very pleased to be able to give two of these medals to two exemplary firemen, who have put in a great deal of service into making their communities better, not just as firemen, but as community members."

Sparks' citation referred to his leadership style, his ability to instruct others effectively.

"His incredible poise and style in contributing to the best of his undertakings creates an environment that draws the very best from his colleagues."

Regimbal was cited as a leader who "strives to make the fire service the best it can be.

"Chief Regimbal will always take the high road to ensure that the fire service is respected and moves forward with the changes in technology and equipment. Jim is a respected source of information and knowledge for > the fire Marshall's office and for all members of the Yukon's fire service."

Fire Prevention Week; Have Two Ways Out

By Jim Regimbal CD, CFO, Fire Chief

Fire Prevention Week takes place from October 7th through to October 13th, 2012. The theme for this year is "Have Two Ways Out.©". Fire Prevention Week is recognized every October during the full week – Sunday through Saturday – that October 7th falls on. Despite the fact that fewer fire losses are reported in Canada, still, on average, eight Canadians die from fire every week. Most of these fires are preventable and caused by careless behaviour. That is why it is critical to educate Canadians and incite them to act. During this week, fire departments across the nation will promote public awareness of the dangers of fire and the ways we can protect ourselves from fire.

To this point, Fire Prevention Canada's newly revamped website contains fire prevention and educational material. It is designed for the public to consult at, www.fiprecan.ca

Fire Chief Regimbal says, "This year's theme underscores the importance of making Canadians aware of the simple preventative measures they can take to prevent disaster from occurring to them. Statistics reveal that most fires are caused by careless behavior. An ounce of prevention in this case will save lives, homes and everything that we hold dear. It is the responsibility of every Canadian to educate themselves on the simple fire prevention measures they can take."

Spetz

Spetz is a five year old, medium size, female, husky cross. She is an adorable dog who loves attention! If you let her, she will cuddle right up on your lap, and roll over for a belly rub. Spetz seems to get along great with all of the other dogs at the shelter.

She is very playful for being five. Spetz also has experience and does really well at skijoring.

Spetz has big ears, beautiful eyes, and she is sure to win you over as soon as you meet her.

Getting that Dawson Feeling in a Different Way

By Torey Ellis

They say about Dawson that when you come here you either "get" it or you don't. I didn't think I did: throughout the summer I would say, in a diplomatic way, that although I totally "got" why people "get" it, I myself did not.

And then I tried to leave.

Through a very bizarre series of events, I ended up leaving Dawson two days earlier than planned, rebooking flights in a half-hour flurry. Instead of the 48 hours I thought I had to hike the Crocus Bluff trail and finally see the dredge and say goodbye to the town, I had one evening to pack and clean in a half-tipsy

Half of me was pining for what I instinctively referred to in my head as "civilization." The other half wanted to grab hold of Dawson as hard as I could and never let go.

I loved Dawson while I was living there, of course—don't get me wrong, I had one of the best summers of my life in that little outpost in the North. But I didn't feel that connection everyone talks about, the neartangible link that land ropes around those of us who have the luck to live on it for a little while. I didn't know it was there until I tried to break it.

It's easy to get comfortable in Dawson, tucked away in what can feel just like a little slice of history. All this culture and heritage and "northern-ness" surrounded me until the idea that there were people "Outside" who didn't know about this place seemed surreal. It's that comfort, the ease of knowing exactly what I'll find on any given day on any given street that wore on my big-city mind for four months and then grabbed hold of it in the last few days.

My memories of Dawson will, as so many have been before me. be those of a transient - but I didn't have the mythicized Dawson summer student experience. I stayed with my sister's family, not in student housing; most people in my house were under the age of 10. I spent days off at the Minto Park playground or watching my nieces' homegrown "clown shows." Movie nights were Yogi Bear and Ghostbusters, with marshmallows in the wood stove. That's the experience I came here to have, and I loved every minute.

So I can't speak for my fellow transients, because I didn't know them very well. If faced with a choice between drinks at Gertie's or hiking with the eldest niece, I had to choose the latter—and I don't regret it.

But I would've had a great time either way, I think. Dawson is Dawson, whatever lens you see it through: it's rugged, and it's isolated, and it's intensely beautiful. And the last teary few days I had saying goodbye to everything and everyone is proof that even the ones who don't love Dawson enough to make it their lifelong home leave a little bit of themselves there.

So I don't know if I could say I really "got" Dawson—but you can be sure as hell that Dawson

Soggy Bottoms Best Turdles for Outhouse Glory

The route for this year's edition of the Great International Outhouse Race was a familiar one. From the starting line on Queen Street beside the parking lot at Diamond Tooth Gerties, the teams ran east to Fifth Avenue, then south to Princess Street, where they had to avoid the continuing repairs around the Valve Chamber that have blocked that intersection.

Getting around through the Dominion Petro Express yard, they continued west on Princess to Third Avenue, where they ran north from the Eldorado Hotel to King Street, turning west at Klondike Kate's. Then it was a sprint to Second Avenue, where they turned south to the Downtown Hotel and back east on Queen Street to Gerties.

The big difference this year was that there was no scavenger hunt along the way, no stopping for a wee nip at the bars on each of the corners that marked their

the Queen on the throne above a bejeweled chamber pot pulled by four security agents.

"We are the most regal team with the oldest average age," they announced and then sang "God Save the Queen" as their anthem.

The Dawson City Dung Bats were a team of eight, with four men running and four sitting in their Dug-out house, shaped like a baseball dugout. It was clearly the heaviest entry in the race. "Take me out to the outhouse..." was their theme song. This crew traditionally comes in dead last and has been known to take more than an hour to run/stagger the race.

The Soggy Bottom Boys came from Juliet's Manor. They were six men (four runners and two outliers) in red long johns with

"bear behinds" and Juliet on the throne in pajamas. Their theme song somehow combined the elements of the event: "Ain't nobody gonna break my stride, nobody gonna slow me down; oh no, I got to keep on movin'..."

Bumkin's Pumpkins were a quintet of country ladies. They offered this challenge:

"We're the country bumkins, "we're here to get her done.

"If you try and touch our pumpkins,

"we'll kick you in the bum."

Last to present themselves were the reigning champions, Gertie's Girls, with somewhere between six and eight wins to their credit. This year they arrived as The Turdles, with Donatello, Raphael, Michelangelo and Leonardo pulling and Splinter on the throne. The team actually had actually composed a limerick for their cheer, hearkening back to the days when this was a requirement:

"You know that we're named after artists

"But we're truly professional fartists

"We don't use the bush

"to tinkle and push

"And we'll run this race the hardest."

That effort earned them the pole position in the mass start, but it wasn't enough to give them the race.

As the race began it was clear that the Dung Bats had their own definition of "traditional". For some years now this race has had a scavenger hunt component, with a stop at every bar along the route. This year that was eliminated, but when the other teams headed off down Fifth Avenue, the Bats made the first of their detours and stopped at the Triple J, as they did with every other former stop on the route, guaranteeing a last place finish.

At the finish line as they crashed through the toilet paper ribbon, it was the Soggy Bottom Boys in first place, followed by Royal(e) Duty, and a mere third place finish for the Turdles. The Bumkins pulled in fourth.

Some time later the Dung Bats managed to make it to the finish line. It was probably the fastest time they have ever recorded, and might have been faster if the weight of their dugout and players hadn't broken the left axle of their outhouse. They arrived cheering "We're last! We're last!"

quite lustily.

The Peoples' Choice Award, chosen by level of cheering from the hundred or more spectators, was presented to the Dung Bats, with the Turdles coming second. The Best Overall Entry award by the judges produced same result.

One piece of tradition was missing from this year's race. The fastest team used to receive a specially mounted toilet seat trophy with a fresh roll attached. Apparently the trophy was not returned for this year's race.

Vintage Military Vehicles Bring Back Lots of Memories

Story & Photos by Dan Davidson

Dawson was the target for a different sort of military invasion just a few days before the Discovery Days weekend, when the members of the Military Vehicle Preservation Association hit town for a day's rest along the route of their 2012 Alaska Highway Convoy.

Wendy and Jeff Rowsam, two of the convoy's organizers, were basking in the evening sun at the Goldrush Campground on the evening of August 13. They were happy to discuss the MVPA, this trip, and the goals of the organization.

"Our association, the Military Vehicle Preservation Association, has a plan to do a series of convoys over the next 15 years or so," Wendy Rowsam explained, "and we are doing them on highways that have some military history significance. This was the 70th anniversary of the building of the Alaska Highway, so what better time to take a whole bunch of military vehicles on that highway?

"Military vehicles were so instrumental in the building of the highway... so we have a group of approximately 70 military vehicles that are making this trip. There are 190 people or so in our group."

Entering the Yukon, they took the rough route up the Campbell Highway where they were greeted at both Ross River (where some of them slept in the school) and at the access road to Faro, where a large number of people staged a picnic and greet or them.

"They turned out in force with muffins and coffee. It was great," Wendy said.

Emerging onto the Klondike Highway at Carmacks they headed north to Pelly Crossing (where some stayed in the community center) and then to the Dempster Corner, where most of them took a side trip to the Arctic Circle and back.

One might question what all this has to do with the Alcan, but Wendy and Jeff, who were key organizers of this tour and had scouted the route the year before, explained that the Campbell, the Dempster and the Top of the World/Taylor routes were more reminiscent of the original state of the Alaska Highway than anything else they could find. Besides, doing the Klondike route over to Fairbanks and then heading south on the Alcan made for a better trip with a wider variety of places to see.

The convoy set out to cover 6600 kilometres in about 27 days, generally moving at a speed of about 35 miles (56 km) an hour, the traditional speed of a military convoy.

They dropped a fair amount of money along the way, staying in local campgrounds (and hotels for those not travelling RV style), purchasing food, gasoline and anything else they might need locally.

The convoy members were especially appreciative of the help they received at Fischer Fuels, just south of town, where a number of them enjoyed coffee and goodies provided by Bev and several of them had Wayne working on their antique vehicles.

"They opened their shop to us and anything that we needed they were able to help with," Wendy said. "There was some breakage and a few guys needed to fix tires and things like that, so a place like Fischer's is just great for us."

Convoys like this one typically travel with a bit of a mobile machine shop and Jeff said they carry lots of spare parts on these trips.

"In 2009 we did the Lincoln

Highway across the USA from Washington to San Francisco, reenacting the 1919 Transcontinental Motor Convoy on that road. Coming up, we're dong another one across the southern US on the Bankhead (Washington to San Diego) and eventually Route 66 (Chicago to Los Angeles) and maybe back here for the 75th."

"It's been a great trip," Jeff said. "We've had a little bit or rain and it's maybe a little cooler than we're used to, but it's been beastly hot in the lower 48. This was been a relief for many of us. We have people that have traveled from Florida, Texas, California and Ohio. We're from Wisconsin.

"The vehicles are all vintages," he continued. "We have World War II vehicles. Ours was delivered to the military in April of '42, so it's the correct vintage for the highway."

The convoy also included vehicles from more recent combat history, such as Korea and Desert Storm.

The Rowsams have converted their truck into a camper – not as large as some of the conversions on this trip, but still adequate. They also added doors and a better roof to their truck, as well as finding a Plexiglas solution to protecting their vulnerable flat front windshield.

"As long as it has one rivet hole and one data plate you can call it original. Anything from there is just restoration," Jeff said.

He likens the military vehicle hobby to the antique car hobby, and says that it started because the vehicles were known for being rugged and dependable, especially the larger ones, so they got used by miners and contractors, especially in the North, where a lot of them were left after the highway was finished.

"In the late 70s and early 80s this started to come into its own as a bona fide hobby, just like Corvettes, Mustangs, GTOs and others. The car hobby got to be expensive, and people began to think about old Jeeps and other surplus military stuff. In the 1990s with the 50th anniversary of D-Day and movies like "Saving Private Ryan", it all brought the memory of World War II back to the forefront.

'There used to be a network of surplus parts dealers," Jeff says, "but now it's evolved to ... where you could practically build a WWII jeep from reproduction parts."

Quite a few of the MVPA members are either veterans or related to veterans. The hobby is a way of connecting to their own pasts, or to that of some older relative. Quite often veterans do not talk a lot about their combat experiences, but they will talk about their equipment and the Rowsams have had quite a few conversations that started of with "I used to drive one of those ..." or "My dad used to talk about that kind of truck ..."

Sometimes, if it's a veteran talking, some younger member of the family will approach Jeff or Wendy later to say that they've never heard that particular story before.

The MPVA group greatly enjoyed their brief time in Dawson and were so organized that they managed to get across the river by ferry without completely tying up the George Black Ferry when they left town.

Berton House Provided Her with Inspiration

"I learned about Berton House in Dawson City, which would be different from most of the writers," said Winnipeg based Joan Thomas.

It's true. With nearly sixty alumni from Pictou to Vancouver visiting here since 1996, there's a lot of word-of-mouth advertising across the nation, as well as the Writers' Trust Website, and the word is that Dawson's writers' retreat is becoming one of the most sought after in the country.

But that's not how Thomas first heard of it, and her interest goes back to before it had developed its current reputation.

In 1996, the summer it opened, she was just another of Dawson's many tourist visitors.

"I remember walking by. At that time I was working as freelancer – mainly as a book reviewer – and I hadn't written anything that would have qualified me for the program. I said to myself 'when I do write a book I am going to apply' because we were enjoying the North so much and we thought it would be so fabulous to be up here for three months."

It was another 12 years before Reading by Lightning, her first novel, was published.

"So it did take me a while," she said," after that trip to the Yukon. In the interim I wrote the equivalent of two other books that I never even tried to publish. They were kind of the apprenticeship kind of thing.

Thomas says her desire to write at all came from "just being a reader, loving it and cherishing words.

"I moved into book reviewing as an extension of having done a degree in English and enjoying trying to put my finger on how a piece of literature works. Eventually it just came to the point where I thought, well, I have to try this myself after commenting on other peoples' writing for so long."

Before that, however, she was an educational writer for about five years, creating curriculum documents for the Manitoba Dept. of Education.

"You're writing for a committee. There's no flavour or personality in it at all."

She had thought that working on this material at home would give her the time to write other things as well.

"But of course when you're doing technical writing all day you don't do anything else because you're sick of sitting at the computer."

It was all part of becoming a different kind of writer.

"None of it was irrelevant, because it teaches you a certain discipline with language, a certain process."

Writing is, after all, a job, she says.

"I never have been the sort of writer who just waits for inspiration. I just write in a workmanlike fashion every day.

A lot of people ask how you discipline yourself to do it every day, but it isn't really a matter of discipline if it's want you want to be doing.

"If it's not going well the anxiety of it not going well drives me to stay at it because I can't stand things being in process and hung up there."

Thomas has a complete draft of her third novel, the one she came to Berton House to work on. Unlike her first two, it is a contemporary story with multiple character viewpoints – a woman, her daughter and a male therapist - and she has been struggling to get the voices distinct.

She says this book seems to be coming harder than the first two, probably because this one has characters that are totally invented, while both Reading by Lightning and Curiosity had a basis in real events.

Sixteen years after being inspired by the possibility of staying at Berton House, Thomas says the experience has been fabulous. In spite of losing two members of her family since early spring, Thomas and her husband, Bill, have managed to have a fine time in Dawson. Unlike most Berton House couples, they drove here and have had the opportunity to visit many of the sites within driving range without having to be chauffeured by local volunteers.

"We've done lots of nice driving around and even went over and camped in the campground to have a few quiet nights."

The Thomases enjoyed the Dawson City Music Festival, participated in the Authors on Eighth event (for which Joan was a judge) during Discovery Days and recently held a special open house evening for local writers. They enjoyed the Klondike Spirit cruise and managed a trip to both Skagway and Juneau.

"I love walking and cycling around this town, especially down by the river in the evening. There's something about the way the sky opens up here that's so beautiful.

"Dawson is an interesting town. A lot of northern towns, they're all about industry, but here the arts are so evident on the street. It makes it a very special place to be."

Thomas had a public reading at the Dawson Community Library on September 13 and will be reading at the Whitehorse Public Library on the 20th. Returning to Winnipeg, she will be doing a different style of residency at the Winnipeg Public Library over the winter.

Sewing Our Traditions at Dänojà Zho

If you haven't wandered into the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre this summer to check out the display in the central Gathering Room area, you've missed a treat. This summer the centre was able to import an existing display, one that was featured at the 2010 Winter Olympics in Vancouver.

In spite of the fact that Sewing Our Traditions: Dolls of Canada's North is a pan-Northern exhibition that includes material from all across the three territories, one of the 29 doll makers in the collection is Dawson's own Dolores Anderson and the territory is well represented in the mix.

Wandering about the display in the Gathering Room and just is an experience in itself, but it is greatly enhanced by the 60page exhibition book that identifies all the doll makers, and discusses each piece along with colour photographs.

Doll making is now an art form that has grown out of the very practical needs of the Northern people. The materials may have differed across the North, but the original inspiration was the need for toys that could also serve as training tools for the young, as in other cultures around the world. These days, as the brochure emphasizes, dolls are also a device for preserving the culture of earlier generations by displaying clothing styles and choices of materials and activities.

The exhibit will be on display until September 21.

Blasting, Blasting and Still Blasting

By Lisa McKenna

They were an English heavy metal band from Layton in east London. They formed in 1975 and still perform today.

With 36 albums, 15 studio albums, 10 live albums, 4 EP's (extended play) and 7 compilations (a compilation is an album featuring more than one artist) they influenced such bands as Metalica, Slayer, and Anthrax.

They, as of 2011, have sold 85 MILLION records worldwide!

Trivium singer Matt Healy states without their influence Trivium would not exist. Lady Gaga says that they changed her life.

In 1982 one of their albums caused them to be called 'Satanists' and the public was urged to destroy their records. Originally they burnt them but afraid of the 'evil' fumes they

(the Christians) resorted to smashing them (the records) with hammers.

In 2002 they won the Ivor Novello Award for international achievement (Ivor's awards began in 1955 and have been held annually by the British Academy of Songwriters, Composers and authors). In 2004 the bassist and primary songwriter said that they were "Like Black Sabbath, Deep Purple, and a little bit of Zeppelin". In 2005 they were inducted into Hollywood's Rock Walk on Sunset Boulevard.

They had rather a hard time forming their band. The first vocalist was dismissed because he lacked "energy and charisma on stage", he was replaced by Dennis (who was a big KISS fan and loved to wear make-up and use fake blood on stage), who was later replaced. In1977 Bob was recruited but he embarrassed the band by faking playing the guitar with his teeth! They lost the original drummer from reasons unknown.

They started a new line up but after their first performance, which was really bad, they disbanded... but they tried again, and again, and they finally found the right players.

"Ship of white light in the sky, nobody there has a reason why" you don't recognize (being so craven), IRON MAIDEN!!!!

KIDS' CORNER

Stories and illustrations by Lisa Michelle is for SEVENS!

There are the seven deadly sins.... Greed (an excessive desire for wealth), Gluttony (excess in eating), Wrath (extreme anger), Sloth (laziness and indolence), Envy (being jealous of another's good fortune), Lust, (a passionate desire for something, or someone), and Pride (a high opinion of one's worth).

There were seven dwarfs... Sleepy, Sneezy, Doc, Happy, Grumpy, Bashful, and, of course, Dopey. They lived with Snow White and 'hi ho, hi ho, it was off to work they go'. (Insert picture of dwarfs and snow white) The seven wonders of the world has changed over time. In ancient Greece, believed that the number seven stood for perfection and purity. The seven wonders were the Great Pyramid of Giza (the oldest of the seven is the only one that is still basically intact), the Hanging Gardens of Babylon (which could be the only legendary wonder), the Statue of Zeus (which is the only ancient wonder found in Europe), the Temple of Artemis (also known as the temple of Diana), the Mausoleum of Halicarnassus (located in modern day Turkey), the Coliseum of Rhodes, which was on Rhodes Island off the coast of Greece until an earthquake hit in 226 B.C. destroying it, (until then it was the tallest statue in the Ancient World towering 30 meters(107 ft.)! Finally we have The Lighthouse of Alexandria, which, by the way, was the tallest man-made structure for centuries, it towered an awesome 120-140 meters (393-450 ft.)!

The big dipper has seven stars.

There are also seven days in a week and there is a really old poem about the days.

Monday's child is fair of face,
Tuesday's child is full of grace,
Wednesday's child is full of woe,
Thursday's child has far to go,
Friday's child is loving and giving,
Saturday's child works hard for a living,
And the child born on the Sabbath Day is
Is bonny, blithe and good and gay.

JUST FOR FUN

If you go into DragoArt.com you can find a lesson that will teach you how to draw the seven dwarfs as well as many different art projects.

Then, in the Middle Ages the seven wonders were to be considered as consisting of Stonehenge, the Coliseum, the Catacombs of Kom el Shaqufda (a catacomb is a place of burial), the Great Wall of China (that runs 8,850 km, or 5,500 miles but if you add in all it's side branches the wall would stretch out to be 21,196 km, or 13,171 miles!), the Porcelain Tower of Nanjing, Hagia Sophia (located in Istanbul, Turkey, it was originally an Orthodox Basilica, then it was a Mosque, and now it is a museum), and finally, the Leaning Tower of Pisa.

There are also to be considered the seven natural wonders of the world. These are the Grand Canyon, the Great Barrier Reef, the Harbor at Rio De Janeiro, Mt. Everest, the Northern Lights, the Paricutin Volcano (in Mexico), and Victoria Falls.
