Dawson's New Council Decides on Meeting Times and Some Roles

by Dan Davidson

Dawson's new council met for the first time in formal session on the evening of October 30, having decided that Hallowe'en (which would have been a regular meeting night) would be an inauspicious time to begin the new session.

Chief Administrative Officer Jeff Renaud administered the six point Oath of Office by which each council members swore:

"1. That I am a Canadian citizen;

"2. That I am not in any way disqualified from holding the office of (Mayor or Councillor)

"3. That I have not, nor will I have while holding office, any interest, directly or indirectly, in any contract or services connected with the said municipality, except such as I may lawfully have under the provisions of the Municipal Act;

"4. That I have not, by myself or any other person, knowingly employed any bribery, corruption or intimidation to gain my election;

"5. That I will not, without due authority in that behalf, disclose or make known any matter that comes to my knowledge by reason of my office; and

"6. That I will faithfully perform the duties of my office, and will not allow any private interest to influence my conduct in public matters."

This was followed by the Oath of Allegiance to the Queen, during which each member of council swore to "be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Dawson's new council: Darren Taylor Stephen Johnson, Wayne Potoroka, Kyla MacArthur and Bill Kendrick.

Queen Elizabeth the Second, her heirs and successors according to law. So help me God."

New to this ceremony, and not as contentious as it was three years ago, was the Mayor and Councillors' Code of Conduct, which was agreed to by all members of the new council.

"I ... declare that as a councillor of the City of Dawson I acknowledge and support the City of Dawson Mayor and Councillors' Code of Conduct and thereby commit to undertaking my duties in a manner consistent with the principles of the Code of Conduct at all times and in the best interests of the municipality and its constituents."

So saying, Darren Taylor and Kyla MacArthur joined returning councillors Stephen Johnston and Bill Kendrick and Mayor Wayne Potoroka. Potoroka donned the gold studded chain of office for the remainder of the meeting.

Each of the newly minted councillors took a few moments to make a statement prior to beginning the regular evening business meeting.

Stephen Johnson led the comments, conveying his personal best wishes to those who were no longer at the table. Former mayor, Peter Jenkins, was praised for his wisdom, experience and dedication. Rick Riemer, who was the quiet man on the last council, was praised for his practical and proper comments when they were needed.

"In closing I welcome my new colleagues. I look forward to working with you and carrying out the good work the previous council began."

Darren Taylor offered thanks to past council members who had worked on behalf of the town and thanked "the remaining members for their continued due diligence. I look forward to working with all of you in the best interests of the municipality."

"It's very exciting that we had an election," said Bill Kendrick, referring to the fact that the last two elections have seen first a mayor and then the councillors, elected by acclamation.

"I'm happy to be back and I'm happy that there was an election to bring us here. I'm looking forward to making the City of Dawson an even better place to live."

"I'm really excited to be working with this great team," said Kyla MacArthur, "and I'm looking forward to the next three years."

The new Mayor closed off the comments, speaking to both the dozen people in the gallery and the home audience via cable channel 12.

"I've been waiting to work with this team since 11:35 p.m. on October 18 and I'm so glad that we're finally sworn in and getting down to the business of this town."

Moving into the regular agenda, most of the items in the short meeting that followed were mainly housekeeping.

It has been decided to move regular council meetings back to Tuesday evenings after three years of competing with the Wednesday evening fire department practices. So regular meetings will be on the second and fourth Tuesdays each month.

Committee of the whole meetings will be held and televised on the first Monday and third Tuesday of each month. These are planning meetings and discussion around the table explained them with a food preparation metaphor. They were the meetings at which the ingredients were selected and stuffed into the sausage casings that would be presented for approval at the formal meetings.

Experienced councillors Johnson and Kendrick will take the first two one-month shifts as deputy mayor should the need arise. In the New Year, quarterly appointments will be made.

Uffish Thoughts: An Open Letter to our Member of Parliament

Story & Photo
by Dan Davidson

Dear Mr. Leef:

Something very significant happened last week, and I surely hope you were paying attention because the event in question should determine the tone and content of your public utterances on this subject for the next while.

I should perhaps digress a bit from the topic to mention that it's too bad the event in question upstaged your own public announcement. I don't mean to suggest that your plan to spend three summers circling the border of the territory in order to raise funds for Diabetes Awareness has no merit. There are all manner of worthy causes that use the long distance trek approach to attract attention, and yours is just as worthy.

Your press release on this matter didn't mention a side benefit for the territory, in that press coverage of your run will probably be a bit of free publicity for the Yukon's tourism industry. Given the actions of your government, it may need that little boost.

That brings me back to the real subject of this essay.

Your response to the federal budget cutbacks that shut down a substantial portion of the Parks Canada's guided tours in the territory was nothing short of fatuous. The notion that there was any way this could be seen as a good thing was patent nonsense, as was your assertion that employing people to Youngsters will not be able to make this kind of connection with history at Dredge No. 4 this coming summer due to the impact of federal budget cuts on Parks Canada's guide tour programs. The Dredge is now locked up and cannot be entered.

be experts in the subject matter of our history and environment was somehow handicapping the parks service.

Couple that with the blithe dismissal of the entire service unit that is needed to work in the background to maintain and develop the displays, signs and other materials that would be needed to operate a system with a diminished number of live interpreters, and you have, as my friend Michael Gates has pointed out, a recipe for disaster.

The really important development of the last week was the passage in the Yukon Legislature of a unanimous motion calling on the federal government to rethink and undo the damage that every significant public voice in the Yukon (with the exception of you and Senator Lang) realizes these cuts have done to our economy and to the viability of our tourism offerings to potential visitors from Outside.

It is seldom that our fractious legislature speaks with one voice, but they did so last week in a motion asking the federal government to do a number of vital things, including:

- Ensuring that Dredge # 4 is open to the public with guided tours and no reduction of summer operating hours.
- Opening Bear Creek to the public, with guided tours in the summer season
- Restoring funding for the management of artifacts in Dawson City, including historic buildings
- Providing year-round access to Kluane National Park, including access to emergency medical and search and rescue services, ski trails and winter camping at Kathleen Lake campground
- Ensuring that the SS Klondike is open to the public with guided tours and no reduction in summer operating hours
- Providing year-round services for the Chilkoot Trail National Historic site
- Promoting the development of interpretive and instructional material for Ivvavik National Park and Vuntut National Park.

One might complain that the Yukon Party press release on this subject is a bit one-sided and quotes on only its own members. One might feel that the Liberal and NDP speeches in the Legislature might simply have gotten on with the business of criticizing the senior level of government that has inflicted this damage on us. While I agree that our territorial government took far too long to get into the fight along with those of us who have been complaining from the beginning, they did get there, and they felt it was important enough to issue a press release. It's time to close ranks and march on the common foe.

Mr. Leef, it's time that you and the Senator joined the fight as well. You ran on a platform of never letting your constituents down. You were not going to be like your opponent and simply follow the party line. I submit that it would not be a partisan comment on my part to suggest that you have failed miserably in keeping that pledge. There has not been a single federal announcement that has had a negative impact on the territory where you have not been quick to jump up and cheer or, at best, proffer some half-baked excuse.

The voters in the territory who elected you sent you to Ottawa to represent the Yukon, to stand up for our rights and protect the things we need. In my time here, all of your predecessors have understood this duty and the record of the stands

Letters:

Where's the money for Parks and history?

Ed. Note: The following was addressed as an Open Letter to MP Ryan Leef

Mr. Leef:

I recently received a letter in my mailbox from you telling me what a good job you have done getting money from Ottawa to the Yukon.

So where is the money for Dredge #4 as well as the other monuments to our heritage that are no longer open to the public due to lack of money from Ottawa, Mr. Leef?

Our Government has $30 billion to spend on fighter jets, yet no money to protect our heritage.

What's with that Mr. Leef?

Stop being such a toady to Mr. Harper and stand up in Parliament and demand that funding for Parks Canada be reinstated.

After all, Mr. Leef, if you are so good at getting Ottawa to spend money on the Yukon then this should not be such a difficult task for you.

You have become Harper's man in the Yukon; you are not the Yukon's man in Ottawa.

So the next time your office sends me some more Conservative Party propaganda boasting about your ability to get money from Ottawa to the Yukon, I will be looking for the part where you got the Yukon's branch of Parks Canada the funding required to open Dredge #4, as well as other National Historic sites that have fallen victim to Mr. Harper's axe.

If our Government in Ottawa were to purchase two less fighter jets then we would have more than enough money to protect the Yukon's heritage.

How about you run that one by your boss Mr. Harper the next time you see him Mr. Leef, or are your lobbying efforts more focused on mixed martial arts nowadays?

I find it insulting as a taxpayer and as a passionate student of history that Mr. Harper in Ottawa is willing to spend $30 billion on fighter jets, yet he somehow views CBC Radio and Parks Canada as a drain on the taxpayer.

Stand up for the Yukon Mr. Leef, after all, that's what you promised to do during your election campaign, and yet you will NOT stand up to Mr. Stephen Harper when it comes to decisions he has made that are wrong for the Yukon.

You won your seat by only 127 votes.

I have spoken to more than 127 Yukoners who do not agree with mothballing the Yukon's heritage while giving billions to an American armaments company.

So please remember that during the next federal election Mr. Leef.

"Uffish Thoughts: An Open Letter..."

they have taken on most issues, regardless of the party line, is quite clear.

When it was a situation in which they would lose all possible influence by defying the party bosses, then they sometimes had to bend in order to be able to fight another day. Otherwise they registered their dissent in the ways available to them within the system. You have become a pretzel compared to them.

You weren't elected to change the Criminal Code so that your favorite sport could stage bouts here. However worthy the cause, you weren't elected to circumnavigate the territory except in the advancement of your duty to your constituents. Past members of Parliament have shown us what that kind of travel and dedication looks like.

At this point you and Senator Lang need to review the contents of the Yukon Government Motion No. 240, found in the October 31, 2012 edition of Hansard. The debate begins on page 1284 and carries on to page 1304, followed by a unanimous vote in favour of the motion. There is more than enough material in those pages for you to frame the arguments you need to take back to Ottawa. They contain your marching orders and the purpose of your campaign.

Get on with it gentlemen, or withdraw and make way for people who really have the best interests of the Yukon at heart.

Editor's Note: On the day this piece first appeared in print, November 9, Mr. Leef announced that he and other government members are looking into some amendments to the current situation. We live in hope.

West Dawson Joins the World Again

Story & Photos
by Dan Davidson

There are at least two clear walking trails across the Yukon River between West Dawson and Dawson City and people have been walking across since as early as last Saturday, November 4, just 13 days after the George Black Ferry was pulled out of the water.

There seemed to be lots of ice on October 22, but everything in the main channel flushed away on the Oct. 30, leaving people to wonder what had happened. The next day, October 31, the river was packed with ice and the ice had stopped moving.

Tracks don't become visible until they've been used often. By November 6 that was the case.

35th Annual Museum Auction (and 50th Anniversary of the Museum)

Story by Palma Berger

"Well I spent far more than I should have at the auction," said a relative newcomer to Dawson. "But it was well worth it. It is the most fun I have had since I got here."

That was generally the tone of the evening of the auction held at Dawson's Museum.

There was a good and lively crowd and there was a variety of items offered up in the auction.

But before you went up to the Court Room where the Auction was to be held, you were given a chance to renew your membership and drop your name in a box for a lucky draw. In the room to the left, the figures of Madeleine and John Gould presided over a table with photos from the 60s, as well as another table with artifacts from decades ago. For $2, you could enter the contest to write captions for the photos and write what your guess was for the purposes of each of the artifacts.

1962 was an important part of the theme for this year's Auction. It was 50 years ago that the Museum was officially ensconced in the old Administration building. This writer remembers it because, as a first time tourist to this area of Canada, I paid a visit to the Museum and marvelled at the many Eskimo prints they had on display and for sale. As well as being taken back in time, I tried to imagine a style of life that was so absolutely foreign to me.

The Museum has evolved and is evolving. But because the 1960's was the beginning of the present Museum, all were invited to come in what they wore in the 60s. Hence we had Sylvie and Gary Gammie in their farming duds. Syliva Burkhard in a hat and wearing her grandmother's necklace from that era. There were shoes and other items mostly worn by the ladies, and long blond braids, but the weather dampened a bit of creativity.

Refreshments were served. Nancy Rhyno created some of her Asian specialties while the creative cooks of Dawson brought in plates galore of their own creations. There was so much food, and although obviously diminished in quantity, Laura Mann, the Director, had to encourage people to return to the banquet.

Dick van Nostrand handled the bar. Very well.

Upstairs a gold lame jacketed Christopher Tessier greeted each person and handed out the numbered sticks for the bidding. (The banker protested that he had been typecast.) Chris Collin handled the computer with the new idea of using Skype for telephone bids this year. Handy for our new Mayor, as he had to stay home with his sick family, but could successfully bid on a season's pass for the swimming pool.

The very able auctioneer Paul Robitaille kept the bidding moving and the laughter going. Angie

Bonnici and Allie Winton were the "Vannas" who displayed each item as it was called.

The items for sale ranged from beautiful home furniture, air flights, paintings, jewelry, services from many of the qualified people in Dawson, items or services from businesses, jewelry, home made crafts, and the silent auction had office furniture.

People were bidding eagerly. In fact, Gary Gammie and Sylvie Gammie were bidding against each other at times. Their friends Tina, Shane, Nadia and Sheldon bid against them or urged either Gary or Sylvie to bid higher against the other.

One item on the list raised a few questions and laughs. It was a donation by Dick Van Nostrand for a private plane ride on Air Dick, a company that no one had heard of before. It raised many hilarious questions.

"Does he have insurance?" "Does he have a licence?" And, finally, "Does he have a plane?"

Later a painting showing a lone eagle high in the sky was held up and Peter Jenkins was heard to ask "Air Dick?" More laughter.

In between, Laura announced the winners of the members draw and tossed out small bottles of liquor to the winners of the advertising trivia contest, most of which got to the intended person.

The lucky person who could recognise the figures in the photos was Chuck Barber. Well, would you have recognized Bud and Esther Rogers, School Principal Mary Gartside, Maggie Bremner, or miner Harry Leamon from the 60s? He won a frame and could come to the Museum to pick the photo of his choosing from their several thousands to go into the frame.

The winner who identified the uses of the various artifacts was Dawne Mitchell. She too won a picture frame.

There was one photo of a man in the winch room of the dredge with his hands on the round headed levers, and visitors were invited to give a creative title to this photo. Paul Robitaille wrote "This lever sends my wife flowers."

But the judges' favourite was Dina Grenon's "I work with a bunch of knobs."

So how did the evening go? Laura Mann was ecstatic when she reported to the board the next day that the evening had taken in $20,634.50. A record!! It beat the 2007 record of $17,000. Way to go!!!

Study Shows Dawsonites Feeling Positive About Golden Predator Activities

Story & Photo
By Dan Davidson

As part of its continuing consultation process related to the eventual reopening of the Brewery Creek mine site, officials from Golden Predator were in Dawson on October 17 to hold meetings with the community.

An evening meeting at the Oddfellows Hall focussed on the preliminary results of the Socio-Economic Base-Line Assessment undertaken by Jennifer Herkes on behalf of Ecofor consultants.

Herkes reported to an audience of just over a dozen people following a light supper meal provided on site. She described the research process she has undertaken, including an industry survey of mining impacts on other communities, a profile of the Dawson area, and a comparison of the current situation here with the way things had been during the period when Viceroy Minerals operated the mine in the 1990s.

According to her research, comments and concerns in the region could be gathered under five main themes:

- Economic and Employment Impacts
- Infrastructure and Services
- Health and Well-Being
- Community
- Natural Environment

Comments on the economic and employment impacts of the re-activation were generally positive. The town has already seen benefits even at this stage of the process, with 20 to 45 locals employed at the mine site during the season just concluded.

The revived mine will be a year round operation, even as Golden Predator has been doing exploration year round, but the employment numbers will necessarily be higher during the spring, summer and fall.

The company is seeking permits to have a 120-person camp on site, but would prefer to have its workers living in Dawson. During the construction phase, those numbers would approach 150, and probably drop to 80+ during average normal operations.

Reflecting on the local infrastructure people noted the shortage of housing in the town, but also noted that the area is used to the dealing with business related infrastructure needs that increased activity might bring. The exploration boom of the last several years has already seen local businesses rise to the occasion.

Some concerns about possible impacts on the regional landfill, which is already under stress, were noted.

Under health issues it was noted that more mining activity will mean more need for services. The new hospital is a timely addition to the community in that regard. A camp filled with transient workers can also mean an increase in communicable diseases in the area, as well as an increase in alcohol and drug problems. The RCMP detachment is currently staffed with six members, one less than when Viceroy was active.

More year round employment should lead to an increase in year round population, which fell off after the Viceroy Mine closed in 2002. The population of the Robert Service School has also declined from a peak of over 300 to just over 200 in 2011. The 2011 census identified 1319 people living in Dawson, but Yukon government figures, which include the surrounding settlements, peg it at nearly 1800.

The mine site is located on the North Fork Road, which passes the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in's R22 Camp on the way. TH residents and others are concerned that the reactivated mine should not interfere with recreational, cultural and hunting activities in the area.

The company's phase one plan covers the period from 2012 to 2016, with an initial gold pour in the fourth quarter of 2014. Phase one would essentially complete the mining plan that Viceroy did not complete during its run from 1996 to 2002. Phase 2 of the Golden Predator plan is based on additional ore bodies that have been found during the last several years of exploration and is sketched out as far as 2023.

Nellie

Nellie is a three year old, female, sled dog. She is a real beauty and is pure white. Nellie is trained for mushing and has experience being a lead sled dog.

She is a bit timid right now, but is warming up to the people around the shelter more and more every day. She is currently an outside dog, but could easily become an inside dog as well.

It's rare to have experienced, well-trained sled dogs at the shelter, so come out to meet Nellie today!

Dawson Man Charged After RCMP Destroy Grow-op

PRESS RELEASE

Dawson City RCMP dismantled a marijuana grow operation on November 1.

That afternoon, officers executed a search warrant at a residence in Dawson and dismantled a sophisticated grow operation, police said in a statement Monday.

Seized from the residence were 11 mature plants and approximately 287 grams of marijuana as well as a significant amount of growing equipment.

A 53-year-old Dawson man has been charged with the production of a controlled substance and possession of a controlled substance for the purpose of trafficking.

The man, whose name has not been released, is scheduled to appear in court in Dawson on Dec. 11.

Klondike Entrepreneurs Gather No Moss

by the KDO

The local business community is central to the future of our local economy. Existing businesses represent a major source of local investment and a resource for job creation where there is scope for them to strengthen and expand. The emergence of new businesses also drives job creation, as well as product or service diversification.

During the summer of 2011, the Klondike Development Organization undertook a business survey to gain an understanding of the needs, weaknesses, strengths and capacities of local businesses. Concurrently, KDO surveyed Dawson households to determine what types of spending occur outside the community, and what services were in demand but un- or under-available locally.

One of the outcomes of this research was the identification of opportunities for change or expansion in existing businesses, as well as potential markets for new goods and services.

In some cases the demand may not be sufficient for full-time or stand-alone businesses, while other cases may require unconventional social enterprise models such as cooperatives. Nonetheless, any new business in Dawson (regardless of how small) offers the potential to keep more of our spending within our own local economy, to increase the spectrum of services available locally and enhance our lives in the Klondike region.

Since 2011, KDO has observed changes in available products and services. Local innovators are delivering on a number of the ventures identified by survey participants as missing. That entrepreneurs are recognizing opportunities, and taking the risks necessary to start new ventures reflects positively on our local economic environment.

The following is a list of the top product or service gaps that were identified by respondents to KDO's surveys. In instances where local businesses have filled in gaps we have identified them in brackets. If we have missed any new businesses... please let us know!

• Transportation links including, but not limited to:

Dawson airport shuttle (Husky Bus)

Whitehorse bus (Husky Bus)

Taxi service

Car rental (KDO research indicates that this would be a very marginal business due to Dawson's small size and tourism seasonality)

Housing development and rehabilitation including:

Land development, and rental and home ownership development (Low Impact Development).

Seasonal accommodations

Heritage building rehabilitation

• Miscellaneous services including, but not limited to:

Financial services (insurance etc.)

Professional services (accounting, law, etc.)

Fitness coaching/training (Pursuit of Wellness Personal Training, REAL Fitness & Training)

Website development and maintenance

Trades (electrical, plumbing, etc.)

Gardening (Meld Garden Services)

Small engine repairs (Advance North Mechanical, Endurance Automotive)

Environmental clean-up services

Special events management and tour planning

Large-scale printing (Atlas Expediting)

Animal boarding (Red Canoe Dog Motel and Humane Society Dawson)

Laundromat in downtown core (Monte Carlo Laundromat)

Computer repair (Florian Boulais repairs Macs, we do not know of anyone currently repairing PCs.)

Chimney sweeping

Year-round, full-service coffee shop

• Miscellaneous retail product categories including, but not limited to:

Local foods, including vegetables, eggs and value-added products (demand exceeds supply)

T-shirt printing (Klondike Drawing Company)

Furniture

Toys and electronics (demand exceeds supply/selection)

In a small rural town where one might expect to see little change in terms of local business, what actually emerges is a pattern of lively demand/supply response by entrepreneurs who are creating opportunities out of product and service gaps.

If anyone is interested in discussing ideas about new business ventures, KDO offers free business advisory services through our office upstairs in the CIBC building (access via exterior stairs on 2nd & Queen side of building). Feel free to stop by for a chat or call us at 993-2306.

A Community Greenhouse for Dawson

by Lisa McKenna

In Inuvik there is a community greenhouse that resides 2 degrees north of the Arctic Circle. It is the most northern greenhouse on the planet and the largest of its kind having nearly 1,500 square meters of growing space.

In Iqaluit, the capital of Nunavut, there is a 90 square meter community greenhouse that is one of a kind. It is the only all glass building within the community. The 24-hour sunshine caused the greenhouse to over-heat so an automatic ventilation system was installed. To counter act the cool nights a set of some 20, or so, plastic garbage pails were filled with water and absorbed the daytime heat, which then slowly dispersed through out the evenings, preventing the plants from freezing.

The Conservation Klondike Society says it's time for Dawson to "jump on the band wagon".

Not only will Dawsonites save A LOT of money, they will be able to eat REAL food, food without pesticides or food that has been genetically altered.

Do you realize that the baby formula that you feed your baby contains genetically altered corn, soya, and milk products that have been taken from "altered" cows that also eat "altered" corn and grains? This is especially important because small children have higher metabolic rates, a higher cell turnover due to the speed of their growth, a smaller body mass, and the ability to pass these 'altered' foods into their future children.

The CKS presentation says that North Americans are sicker than their European counterparts, that the infant mortality rate is rising and that chronic diseases are on a steep incline.

There is no food security in Dawson. The stores can run out of necessities within a few weeks. Humans only need four things to survive: (1) Food, (2) Shelter, (3) Security and (4) Meditation or rest. Dawson is missing number one and three, and number two is needed too.

CKS says that in Dawson we have the perfect spot for a community greenhouse: right by the wastewater treatment plant, where it can also be heated by the biomass boiler district heating plant.

A Look at Life in the Mundane World

The Casual Vacancy

By J.K. Rowling
Little, Brown and Co.
501 pages
$35.00

I read this book over about a four-day span. I might not have bought it, but someone gave me a Christmas gift certificate to our local bookstore, and I had not used it yet, so I made myself a present of the book.

I found it quite compelling. There are some very nasty muggles in this novel and several families that make the Dursleys look functional.

Dawson was in the midst of municipal elections, so it seemed a perfect time to read a book in which filling a vacancy on a parish council is the maguffin which sets off the various events in the story.

There are a lot of flawed people in this novel, and most of them don't overcome their flaws, but one or two do, in rather surprising ways.

Okay, that's pretty much got all the obligatory references to the Harry Potter novels out of the way, though I must admit that these thoughts really did run through my head while I was reading about the goings on in Pagford.

Local politics are a bit of a different game in England. The title comes straight out of the handbook for local council administration. A casual vacancy is declared when a seat is vacated by failure to attend, resignation, or death. This could trigger either an appointment or a by-election.

When Barry Fairbrother, who is probably the nicest person in the book (note the name), collapses with an aneurysm in the parking lot at the local golf club where he and his wife have gone to have an anniversary dinner, the game is afoot immediately. This happens on the third page of the novel, so Rowling wastes no time getting things underway.

Unlike her other work there is no straightforward narrative following the life of one individual. She uses multiple viewpoints to follow the affairs of the Mollison, Price, Weedon, Wall and Jawanda families, as well as the dysfunctional couple of Gavin Hughes and Kay Bawden. There are over 30 characters to keep track of, and one London paper published a reader's guide (now available on Wikipedia) to assist people.

A good portion of the time is spent in the minds of the young people from these families. Indeed, it is safe to say that this is a very internal story in which not a lot happens compared to the amount of space given to people's thoughts and reactions about events.

The big issue facing the parish council is what to do about the adjacent cluster of low rent homes called the Fields. Pagford, represented by most of the families in the book, is stolidly middle class – blue to white collar along with some professional people. The Fields, which many Pagfordians feel ought to be an extension of the nearby city of Yarvil, is composed mostly of people on social assistance.

Howard Mollison, chair of the local council, wants his son, Miles, to fill Barry's seat and thus control the local issue, as well as indirectly shutting down a local drug rehabilitation clinic. When various contenders for the seat pop up, this creates the need for an election.

The messy family dynamics create a desire by a number of the children of potential candidates to attempt to sabotage their parents' chances by posting damaging material on the parish website under the name The_Ghost_of_Barry_Fairbrother.

That's not only cybercrime going on. Fats, the adopted son of the local deputy headmaster, is guilty of bullying and cyber bullying one of the Jawanda girls.

There are issues of truancy, teen sex and lots of other un-Potter like behavior in this novel. The lines between good and evil are nowhere near so clearly drawn as in Rowling's fantasy work. Some of the kids are quite bent, as are a number of the adults.

The prize, for those looking to complain about language, will be the Weedon family, whose use of the all-purpose f-word for all parts of speech is epic. The Weedons live in the Fields, where Krystal, who is no pillar of virtue, is trying to raise her little brother in spite of the habits of her drug addicted mother, Terri. Notwithstanding her loose ways, there is something tragically heroic about Krystal, and trying to lift her out of the morass of her life had been one of Barry Fairbrother's pet projects.

Barry elevated himself from the Fields to Pagford by dint of hard work and

by Dan Davidson

some good fortune, and he believed in giving others that chance. Those who were his friends want that work to carry on. The other families don't.

The book is divided into seven parts, the first of which moves us through the various reactions of Barry's death by most of the families in the cast. Then we move into the machinations related to the election and the interplay amongst the various factions, and things just get messier and messier.

This is decidedly not a children's book. It is not uplifting and there are no clear-cut victories of good over evil, though there are clear examples of both kinds of behavior in the story. Confusingly, they often come from the same people. The real world is somewhat grey in moral tone, and Rowling has captured that. It is a thoughtful book dealing with issues of class struggle, family violence, infidelity, politics, drug use, promiscuity and rape.

As I said at the beginning, I found the book compelling even when it was telling me a story that was often depressing.

What About an Ice Bridge Pool?

By Dan Davidson

The Yukon River fascinates Dawsonites at this time of year. Just three weeks ago at this writing people were cruising by daily just to see if the ice was beginning to form – trying to get some idea when the ferry would be pulled.

It wasn't easy to judge. One day there were circular lenses of frazil ice in the river; then they were gone and nothing appeared for several days, although the surface had that glassy appearance that makes you look twice.

When the lenses came back again they were more numerous and they had frosting, but it still seemed as if we might get close to last year's October 26 date before the George Black ferry got pulled out.

The ferry schedule gets chopped back from its 24-hour service once the tourists go home, and it can get extracted from the river any time after Thanksgiving, but that was early this year, so people weren't expecting a great rush. Sure, the cable spools had been placed on the dyke, ready for the block and tackle to be attached and the heavy equipment to move in, but the little ice pans weren't that thick yet.

Even knowing that the crossing service sort of runs on a day to day basis after the first third of the month, people expect the usual 24 hours notice before it actually gets pulled. This year unpredictable Mother Nature only provided about 6 hour's warning – on a Sunday afternoon of all things.

The very next day, Oct. 22, the Highways crew was out with all its equipment, doing the job in quite chilly weather. It took the entire day shift and then some to extract the boat from the river, which seemed destined for a really quick freeze-up this year.

What follows is always the wait for the river to stop flowing completely and the first tentative footpaths to form on the icy frosting. People drop down daily to see how things are progressing. I know that because I do, and I'm never alone for the 5 to 10 minutes that I sit and ponder the floes.

So imagine my wonder on October 30, when the main channel was almost completely clear and I was faced with a glassy mirror in which only the a few glittering ice lenses were floating slowly north. (see page 5). Gone was the mass of heavily frosted pans that had been floating by for days. I was shocked and so were the folks who looked at the 25-second video I posted on Facebook later that afternoon. Six other vehicles arrived while I was there and they left quickly, as if disgusted with the view.

The river is nothing if not a source of drama however. While delivering copies of our bi-weekly newspaper on Hallowe'en I dropped down to the ferry landing again to see what had changed this time.

Only everything. Where there had been open water the day before, there was a solid blanket of icy white from bank to frozen bank (see page 5 again). There were a few small open pools, but none of them were in the path of the traditional ice bridge. More significantly, the surface wasn't moving.

A couple of days before I had jokingly remarked that it was too bad we couldn't figure out some way to have an ice bridge pool to go with the breakup pool we have in the spring. That wouldn't work, of course, because the transition from footpath to ice bridge is gradual and determined by human effort. A pool like this has to have a natural basis, something out of human control.

If we could figure out a way to determine just when the river stopped moving, that might be an option. In the spring it's easy (more or less) as the movement of the ice stops a clock.

Determining the hour and minute when the ice stopped moving would be a trickier proposition. Maybe some kind of video surveillance would do it.

I'm sure I don't have an answer, but I'm throwing the idea out there for comments.

Black-eyed Juncos and Chestnut-backed Chickadees began their symphony of greetings as the gray night awoke to the dawn. The sun would flood the earth with its warmth, but for Holly, her awakening was frigid.

Following last evening's drastic events, nothing could warm her feelings. She lay deathlike in her bed and listened. Slowly she fluttered her eyelids. Jacob's body trapped her right arm. She wanted to extract it, but feared wakening him.

Today she would leave. It would happen. There was no future with Jacob. He was probably still drunk, but she needed to be careful. She had enough of his abuse. She gently pulled her arm free, sat up and flexed her sore shoulder. Looking at her bruised breast, she wondered what surprises she'd find in the mirror. As cool water ran into the bathroom basin, she pulled a dark curl away and placed a damp washcloth on her face. It smelled white and felt crisp. She hoped it would diminish any swelling.

Holly slid into her shoes and quickly dressed in yesterday's clothes. She grabbed her purse and padded into Alex's room. Her eight-year-old son lay peacefully asleep, clutching his favorite stuffed bear.

"Alex. Wake up." She gently moved his shoulder. "We're going on a trip, Alex. Wake up."

"Mom. I'm sleepy. It's dark out."

"I know. Be very quiet and get dressed. We have to leave."

"Where're we going?"

"On a trip far from here. It's going to be a real adventure."

"Can I take my bear?" Alex whispered.

"Of course. Any you like. Where's your animal book? We might see wildlife on the trip."

Holly helped her son dress and Alex grabbed his stuffed black bear, brown moose and polar bear.

As they walked through the kitchen, she threw food in a sack, and got a chair to reach the macaroni container. Removing the five hundred dollars she had cached, she stuffed it into her purse. The two of them walked to her car. Holly had already packed suitcases and placed them in the trunk. She was going to leave yesterday, but then Jacob had shown up.

"Alex, climb into the front and fasten up." She put the food in the back seat.

"Mom it's cold this morning."

"Oh! I'll go grab our coats and blankets. Stay here. I'll be right back."

Holly softly walked into her bedroom. Jacob was in the same position, slightly snoring and unaware of life. Her gaze fastened onto his wallet on the floor. Picking it up, she removed three hundred dollar bills. She almost put it back down and then on second thought took the remaining money and stuffed it into her pocket. Grabbing two blankets from the cupboard, she hurried back to the car.

"Well Alex, we're off now. Off to a new life," she said as she started the car and drove north.

Two weeks before, her boss at the Comfy-Diner had told her he hated to lay her off, but with the bad economy, he couldn't afford to keep all the waitresses. He would write a good letter of recommendation though. Holly wasn't surprised. Over the past month, her tips had dropped way off. She asked at all the restaurants in Watson Lake, but no one was hiring. Holly told her friend Bernice, who lived in another furnished apartment next-door, that she was going to leave for a more basic life if something didn't change soon. Maybe find a place where she could have a garden, like when she was young. Alex would like that. Holly had no other family now, being an only child. Her parents had died. Alex's father never sent any money. He disappeared when he found out she was pregnant. Yesterday, she was ready to leave, and then her old boyfriend Jacob had unexpectedly shown up. Thinking that maybe he'd changed, she shared the evening with him. However, as the night progressed, he got drunk and beat her up just like before.

Holly pushed the gas pedal down, feeling free and in charge of her destiny. She opened her window and enjoyed the fragrance from wild clover as it drifted into the car. The sun rose higher casting morning shadows onto the road.

"Alex, maybe you want to sleep a bit more. I'll wake you if I see anything."

"No, Mom. I want to watch. Maybe we'll see a bear." Alex gripped his stuffed bear near to his tummy.

Shortly, the early morning fulfilled Alex's hopes. They saw a large black object close to the tree line. To Alex it looked like a big garbage can, but then it moved.

"Look Alex, there's a black bear," Holly said while driving into a roadside pullout area.

"Oh! Wow, Mom! That's great. Are we safe?"

Holly laughed and answered, "Sure we're safe. That bear wants breakfast. It's eating clover blooms and old berries on bushes. It's not interested in us. Look Alex, two cubs are behind the bear. Do you see them? They're hiding in the trees."

Holly saw a large grey animal walk from the forest. With furtive steps, it approached the highway.

"Look up ahead, Alex. There's a wolf. It's going to cross the road."

The wolf came to the edge, flexed its ears, looked to the sides and quickly ran across, disappearing into the forest.

"Wow!" Alex exclaimed. "I could even see his yellow eyes!"

Holly pulled back onto the highway, and soon they saw a large brown animal near the roadside. It raised its head and stared at them.

"Mom, is that a caribou? Look at his fuzzy large horns and big feet."

"It is. He's out early too, probably licking salt from the road-edge."

There was no place to pull over. She slowed the car. Holly did not want to have a too-close encounter with the animal. As they neared, the caribou turned and ran. They watched the animal's sideways gait as it disappeared into the trees.

The town of Teslin came into view after they had spotted two more bears feeding along the highway.

"I think it's breakfast time for us also. What do you say?"

"I'm ready. But Mom, I was thinking. Are we ever going to go back home? What about my friends?"

"I'm sorry about your friends, Alex. You'll find new ones. We'll find a new school and you'll meet lots of kids your age. We're going to find a place where we can be happy. Just the two of us. Okay?"

Holly considered her old boyfriend Jacob. She was glad to have left him behind.

Back on the road, Alex asked, "Do you think, maybe we'll see more animals?"

He pointed out a pair of eagles that were soaring high in the sky, riding the thermal winds. The two circled gracefully, skydancing in the clear blue sky, darting towards each other, grabbing, locking talons together and in cartwheels, plummeting towards the ground.

"They're beautiful, aren't they Alex?"

By afternoon, they arrived in Whitehorse. She had been here before, but didn't remember it being this large and busy. Alex was enthralled with the giant statue as they entered the town.

"What's an elephant doing here?" he asked.

"That's a Mammoth. It's extinct. Long ago, they lived in this area. Now, people find skeletons and bone pieces," Holly continued. "Maybe I could find a job here, there's lots of restaurants, but right now, we need a place to stay for the evening."

Holly got gas, paid cash, and asked the clerk about a woman's shelter. He gave her directions to one in downtown Whitehorse, next to the clinic. Walking into the shelter, she noticed a used book store next door.

After registering she said, "Come on Alex. I've got something in mind."

A musty smell assaulted Holly's nose when she entered the bookstore. Asking about books on animals, the aged heavy clerk swung his arm to the left indicating the center aisle. He slid his greasy grey hair to behind his ear with sausage-like fingers. He offered neither words, nor greeting and remained stationary on his stool. She quickly found the book she wanted. The clerk barely moved when she paid. His hands reached for the bills and returned the change. He said nothing. Outside she handed the book to her son.

"This shows the animals of the Yukon, Alex. We've already seen some of them. I had this same book as a child."

The shelter was comfortable, with clean sheets and neat surroundings, but felt foreign to them. Holly used the community bathroom with her issued washcloth to clean Alex and herself. Her face felt better, and the cool water eased the tenderness. I'm almost looking normal again, she thought. Throughout the evening, every time the phone rang, she jumped. Jacob must be very angry about now, but there's no way that he could find me. I told no one where I was going, not even Bernice. Holly felt she had done the right thing by leaving Watson Lake. She had hopes that she would find a suitable place for the two of them to begin life anew.

Swapping Sasquatch Stories

Story by George Filipovic

Wherefrom the Sasquatch came or why, none knew. Many knew that it came. They knew this first-hand. Perhaps even they were surprised to learn how often.

Kylie Van Every hosted what she now calls her "first annual" Sasquatch story-telling session at the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre on October 29, two-nights before Halloween (Sasquatch is another name for "Big Foot" or "Bushman"). It was a huge success, "Many people I knew had Sasquatch encounters spoke up, and some that I didn't know spoke up too." She says locals have since asked she host the same more often.

The inaugural event (inaugural for adults, previous events were held at the school) was attended by nearly 70-people. They huddled in darkness around a mock-campfire; if not for warmth, then support.

The evening began with Van Every regaling a rapt audience with eyewitness accounts from our region that she uncovered through years of research. She spoke for about 40-minutes, after which the floor was opened. Audience members then took turns swapping Sasquatch stories in a circle with the full-group listening for another hour.

Van Every tells the Sun that out of the stories she researched and shared, her favorite was that of Leonard Jack Thomas from Keno City.

Leonard was driving a desolate road with his wife when she asked him to retrieve a thermos from the bed of his pick-up. After he stepped out of his truck, Leonard took a few moments to stretch his legs and walk around a little. That's all it took. He laid eyes on a large-bear: crouching and eating some manner of carcass, not much beyond a skeleton now, with an almost-morbid enthusiasm.

Now, Leonard knew, as we all do, that bears typically eat meat standing up... not crouching. Leonard's wife yelled at him to get back in the truck. The bear heard. It interrupted its feast, raised high on two-legs, and veered its giant head to regard Leonard with considerable, yet simultaneously unknowable interest.

These movements struck Leonard like a thunderbolt: man. Of course, the movements of one man are easily recognized as such by any other. At the same time, Leonard could plainly see this creature was far larger than any man had right to be. Far larger, even, than any bear; and Leonard, Yukoner to the bone, knew bear. More to the point, the hair on its body was all wrong for bear: it was more of a cross between bear and man. The Sasquatch took a step toward Leonard, long arms gesticulating wildly. Leonard panicked, fell, then crawled, then somehow scrambled upright and ran headlong for his truck.

Over the night at the cultural centre, it became clear that Keno has had its fair share of Sasquatch encounters, noteworthy since only 26 brave souls dare name those hills home now. Yet so too has Dawson had its fair-share.

One elder shared a tale that was passed-down of a Moosehide child. The child was stolen by Sasquatch, only to return long after as an adult: a Sasquatch adult, whose mother could still recognise her son's sombre wave from a distance. The group was then warned by several elders that Sasquatch can change voice to sound human, asking for help or committing some other ruse to lure people deeper into the woods. Above all, children are vulnerable to be stolen, especially on the shores of the creek at Moosehide and near Henderson's Corner.

To Van Every, who underscores that she is a "firm believer" and who has heard and told Sas-quatch stories since childhood, none of this is news: "The Hän always had a belief in the Bushman, just like other Athabascans in this area." She concedes such stories are not always so openly swapped, but says this is because the audience at the cultural centre, "Felt comfortable to share their stories, knew they wouldn't be judged."

At the end of the day, though, what are Dawsonites to do about the mysterious Sasquatch? Stay away from the creek at Moosehide, stay away from Henderson's Corner? "I don't know if you necessarily have to stay away from there," says Van Every, "but that's where they've been sighted."

Great Leaders: St. Benedict

by Lisa McKenna

Known as the father of Western monasticism, he ran his religion along the lines of worship, prayer, and labor. 1,500 years later, there are still followers of his rigid routine in communities across the world.

Although he was brought up in a very distinguished family, and spent his youth studying in Rome, he became turned off from the debaucheries of Roman life and he retired to a cave some 60 km (40 miles) out of town. Within this cave he spent three years of solitude.

He tried out his hand as an Abbot but then he decided to gather his own disciples. Strangely enough, he arranged 12 different communities with 12 disciples led by a dean. Like Jesus. It makes one wonder about the significance of the number 12.

Eventually, the Roman aristocrats began to send their sons to be educated by St. Benedict. In 529 Benedict moved to Monte Casino, located between Naples and Rome, bringing most of his monks with him, and there they formed one of the most influential monasteries.

It is also at Monte Cassino where Benedict wrote his Rules, and within these rules he stressed communal living and physical labor, as well as the availability of it to the common man.

It changed the "rule of thumb" from a totally eremitical individualism (isolated hermits) into a communal endeavourer. St. Benedict's rules caused people to join his Benedictine Monasteries, for they were a simple set of rules that were easy to follow. The Church carried on through the Middle Ages and they proceeded to convert the "pagans" of Western Europe. They also taught, and their teaching skills are still apparent in such schools as Ampleforth, Downside, and Worth, which are all located in England.

St. Benedict was a great leader of innovative thinking and he is revered as such.

Porter Creek and FHC pick up DIVT Gold

Story & Photos
by Dan Davidson

The Porter Creek Rams and FH Collins Warriors took the gold medals in the 9/10 and 11/12 divisions of play at the 2012 Dawson Invitational Volleyball Tournament, held at Robert Service School from Thursday evening to Saturday evening between October 25 and 27.

Teams from Vanier Catholic High School took silver in all of the senior matches. Most of these were hard fought games that saw the leads seesaw back and forth a number of times.

The two-court gymnasium was host to 64 volleyball matches in just over 48 hours. Along with teams from RSS, players travelled from Tantalus School in Carmacks, St. Elias Community School in Haines Junction, and FH Collins, Porter Creek Secondary School and Vanier Catholic High School in Whitehorse.

In total over 200 Yukon students played for 24 teams in the tournament.

In the Grade 9/10 Girls Division PCSS defeated Vanier with scores of 25-4 and 25-17.

In the Grade 11/12 Girls Division PCSS defeated Vanier with scores of 25-20 and 25-19.

In the Grade 9/10 Boys Division FH Collins defeated Vanier with scores of 25-23 and 25-19.

In the Grade 11/12 Boys Division FH Collins defeated Vanier with scores of 25-20 and 25-18.

In a Grade 7 Triple Ball contest the Robert Service Green team defeated the Gold 23-25, 25-21 and 15-4.

Students were also able to take a well-deserved break from the gymnasium and attend a Halloween-themed dance in the Oddfellows Hall ballroom on Friday night.

Local volunteer broadcaster CFYT-fm ran both radio and television coverage of the action in the gym throughout the tournament, those 7 a.m. mornings being the earliest the station has ever been on the air.

This event could not be a success without the involvement of a lot of volunteers. Many thanks go out to a long list of people: some teachers, some parents, some RSS alumni and others.

For the pep rally: Janet Leary, Nylan Zalitis, Peter Menzies

For organizing and running the tournament: Liz Woods, Helen McCullough, Steve Laszlo, Marjorie Logue, Sara Stephens, Tara McCauley, Connie Riemer, Helen Dewell, Peter Menzies

For coaching: Nathan Dewell, Tara McCauley, Charlie Taylor, Chris Johnson, Helen McCullough, Georgia Hammond, Liz Woods, Galen Clark, Alastair Findlay-Brook, Jayme Favron

For helping out at various times and in various ways during the tournament: Ann and Mark Moore, Melanie Cole, Kathy Webster, Julia Jennings, Rose Lamb, Jen Fraser, Clair Dragoman, Sue Dragoman, Vera Holmes, Louise Blanchard

For helping out as officials: Casey Parker, Jenelle Favron, Daniel Naef

For our fantastic pizza dough: Jasmin Stange, Clayton Buhler, Lynne Fezette, Nijen Holland

Dance organizers and chaperones: Sam Smith, Julia Jennings, Adonika, Ricky, Emily Jackson, Betsy Sinclair, Lynne Fezette, Brenda Rear, Allison, Waqas Mubashir, Marjorie Logue, Janet Leary, Steve Laszlo, Sara Stephens, Jen Fraser, Ashley Bower-Bramadat, Tara McCauley, Helen McCullough, Ann and Mark Moore, Liz Woods

Reducing the amount of energy we use is common sense.

It saves us money and it reduces greenhouse gas emissions

What makes even more sense is getting cash back:

- Up to $75 when you have an energy assessment done on your house
- Up to $800 when you upgrade your old appliances, heaters and toilets to qualifying, energy-efficient models
- Up to $1200 when you install a solar water heater, or drain water heat recovery system

let's start making sense

Avery and Blake were a Dynamic Duo

Story & Photo
By Dan Davidson

Peter Menzies' living room was crowded once again on November 1 as roots music fans gathered to hear a concert by Robert Sarazin Blake and C. R. Avery. The two of them were travelling, along with Avery's daughter, Dawn, as part of the second Home Routes concert of the season.

Blake's music is described as folk/punk in the literature. He has been touring since 1997 and has released 10 full-length albums at this point in his career. His voice is rough edged and his guitar work is punctuated by rapid fire strumming up and down the neck. There's not much about his approach to a song that could be called subtle, but it's effective. Still, it's no wonder that he managed to break his low E string during one of the tunes that he played with Avery towards the end of the set.

Both performers like to chat between songs, and seen to have picked up a lot of local references to play with as part of their stage patter, as well as comical asides about how some of their songs came to be

Avery plays the only hip-hop harmonica I've ever heard, after first warning the audience that the experience is going to be a bit like Michael J. Fox's guitar work in "Back to the Future". It starts out sounding familiar and wanders off into strange lands before it's done. Combine that with singing at the same time as you produce beat box sound effects and you get an unusual sound.

He is also adept on the keyboards and banjo, but perhaps the biggest surprise of the evening was the amount of spoken word beat style poetry he presented. The longest piece might have been called an "Ode to the Canada of Pierre Trudeau and Where Has it Gone?" but was simply called "Pierre Elliot Trudeau".

Blake and Avery were high-energy performers and the audience took them to its collective heart.

The next house concert will be on Friday, November 30 at the home of Gord Macrae and will feature The Crooked Brothers, whose music is described as "back porch blues and stomping scrap yard funk."

THIS IS JUST MY OPINION

Why Are You Afraid?; Pt.3 of 4

Ed. note: The last column is incorrectly printed as "Part 1 of 4". It should have been "Part 2 of 4". We regret the error.

In Part 1, I listed a number of things people fear, and within the first two parts I have covered Death, ageing, the apocalypse, natural disasters, loneliness and unemployment. I may or may not complete the list in this segment, but I will endeavour to continue my dialogue.

Raising children is another thing that some people fear immensely. They are afraid that they will make serious mistakes, that they will not be good parents, and perhaps the main reason that they fear parenthood, is the fact that they, as was every other parent, are unprepared.

Becoming a parent does not come with an instructors manual, it is simply, learn as you go. New parents will undoubtedly make errors. Even where they had appropriate examples as parents themselves, they will still make mistakes.

The sad fact of this reality, is that new parents do not always have a strong support group. While there are some new parents who may have a strong support group, yet even these will make mistakes as well.

This fear of raising children may begin in childhood, or it may not occur until they are suddenly faced with the prospect of parenting a new child. I believe that every young man and woman comes face to face with this fear at some point in their life.

Some young people attempt to face that fear early, by becoming a parent very young, supposing that they will finally experience unconditional love, not once considering the toll it will have on them personally. They do not consider how they will care for a baby, especially financially. They fail to consider the fact that their lives will be completely changed, that they will give up their own childhood to become a parent.

These "babies having babies" are attempting to grow up too fast. They do not realize the amount of responsibility becoming a parent really holds. Possibly they are trying to become parents because they do not feel important in their family, or perhaps they just do not feel loved.

All of this in an attempt to overcome the fear of raising children, or as in this case, the fear of being a child, they decide to make an attempt to try to prove that they can do a better job than their own parents. They are only masking their fears, and possibly, if they had someone they trusted who could direct them properly, they might make better choices and face their fears differently.

Then there are those who fear the prospect of having children so severely that they choose to never have a child. They envelope themselves in their careers, and the use of birth control so as to prevent an unwanted pregnancy. Some are so afraid of the prospect of a child that they choose alternate lifestyles (I acknowledge that not everyone who lives an alternate lifestyle chooses this, some are born this way, yet I do believe that there are a few individuals who do in fact make this choice), and some choose celibacy.

While not everyone is irrationally afraid of raising children, many persons are so afraid, they go to extreme measures to prevent the fear from becoming reality.

Several other people are afraid of contracting diseases, and right beside that fear is the fear of germs. Some people are so afraid of contacting germs that the slightest amount of dirt on their hands destroys their sanity. But this irrational fear can lead to more severe problems. By attempting to eliminate germs in their life, they make themselves vulnerable to serious issues. By attempting to live germ free, they destroy their own immune system...

This is just my opinion... To be concluded...

Blast From the Past: Hey! Hey! My! My!

by Lisa McKenna

He has had quite the career. His middle name is Percival and he began his career at the age of 12, when he and his mother moved to Winnipeg, Ontario.

His early life was influenced by such greats as Elvis, Chuck Berry, Little Richard, Fats Domino, Jerry Lee Louis, Johnny Cash, as well as a host of others.

After enrolling in Earl Grey Junior High he formed his first band, they were called 'The Jades'. Then upon meeting Ken Koblun they started their first real band known as 'The Squires'.

He recalls plugging in all his coins into the jukebox so it could play Four Strong Winds, by Ian Tyson, over and over.

Both he and Janis Joplin suffered from an attack of polio during its last great outbreak, leaving him with a permanent limp.

He has fathered three children. Zeke and Ben were both diagnosed with Cerebral Palsy, his daughter Amber was diagnosed with epilepsy which he suffered from as well.

He was extremely influenced by the music of Bob Dylan.

He had a band called the 'Mynah Birds' in 1965. Then he joined Buffalo Springfield, and in 1969 he became a member of Crosby, Stills, and Nash. In 1970 he ran solo but in 1971 he started up a band called the Stray Gators, they lasted till 1972.

1973 brought about the Santa Monica Flyers; 1976 was the Stills/Young Band; 1978 it was Devo. This man got around! He even co-wrote and co-directed a film called Human Highway under the alias of Bernard Shakey and it starred such greats as Dean Stockwell and Dennis Hopper.

In 1984, and 1985, he was in a band called the International Harvesters, then he began a band in mid 1987 that he called the Blue Notes, but due to lawsuits the name was changed to Ten Men Working. In 1990 he went alternative, and toured with Social Distortion and Sonic Youth.

Then he was reunited with Linda Ronstadt and James Taylor and it was back to the country and folk.... but.... in 1995 he was up on the stage with Pearl Jam! 1998 he started Farm aid with Phish. In 2009 he played with Booker T. Jones and he also found himself on stage with Paul McCartney.

On August 25th 2012 he was mistakenly declared as dead but it was Neil Armstrong, the astronaut, who had passed on.

Being a heavy spokesman for environmental issues his new project is converting a 1959 Lincoln Continental into a Hybrid and driving it to Washington D.C. in support of the local environmentalists. Pretty cool, eh?

He has an affinity for model trains, won the 2011 Juno, the 2010 and 2011 Grammys, has been inducted into the Canadian Music Hall of Fame, the Rock and Roll Hall of fame (twice! once as a soloist and once as a member of Buffalo Springfield). Oh, did I fail to mention that he was given Canada's highest civilian honor? In 2009 he was appointed to the Order of Canada.

BUT... "After The Gold Rush" there is still Neil Young!

11 is for ELEVEN!

An 11-sided PolyGram is called a hendegram or an undecagom. A loonie is similar to a hendecagonal, but it is not like the Indian two-rupee coin, which a prime example of a perfect 11-sided Hendecagonal.

There are 11 members of a football team. On the defensive line there are two tackles and two ends on the line of scrimmage. A middle linebacker, two outside linebackers and two cornerbacks make the next defensive line, and behind them are two safeties, just incase the ball gets past the defensive line.

On the offensive line (the one's who have the ball) there is one center, two guards, two tackles and two wide receivers. Behind all this we have the fullback/running back, the halfback/running back and, of course, the most important member of the team... the quarterback.

HEY KIDS!

Can you think of anything that is the number 11? Share your stories and artwork! E-mail Lisa at klondikesun@northwestel.net and you could be featured in the next Klondike Sun!

From the Klondike Sun archives...

The Canadian Maple Leaf has exactly 11 points!

There is also what is known as "the eleventh hour". This is a time for a "last chance", the final opportunity to change things around.

BUT, let's not forget the "BIG GULP" and 7-11. Do you realize that there are 46,000 outlets in 16 countries! That beats out McDonald's outlets by 15,000 outlets! (Although, McDonald's is found in 119 countries.)

7-11 was founded in 1927 by John Jefferson Green and has its headquarters in Dallas, Texas where one John began selling milk, eggs and bread out of the back of an ice shack. The convenience store was born. No longer did people in the neighborhood have to walk all the way into town just to buy some milk.

Today 7-11 has 12,925 stores in Japan (1,713 in Tokyo alone), 6,300 in Thailand (with half of them in Bangkok) and 4,820 in Taiwan! They have a slightly different menu and they have phased out the Slurpee and the Big Gulp.

They are also known as the most environmentally-sound chain store with over 1,400 stores being run by solar power and lit by L.E.D.s.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Traffic Bylaw #00-21 states;

8.03 "No person shall stop or park a vehicle upon a highway when it is practical to stop or park the vehicle off highway, and in no event shall a person stop or park a vehicle on a highway unless a clear and unobstructed width is left between the vehicle and the center line of the highway for free passage of other vehicles thereon."

8.06 "Unless required or permitted by this Bylaw, or by a traffic control device erected by the authority of this Bylaw, or by the order of an Officer, or in order to prevent a traffic accident, no person shall stop or park any vehicle:

- (5) within 1.5 meters of an access to a garage, private road or driveway,
- (6) within, upon, alongside or opposite any public works excavation, obstruction, road construction or road repair project,
- (7) within five (5) meters of a fire hydrant,
- (8) within six (6) meters of a stop or yield sign."

8.09 "Where a vehicle or other object is left standing upon a highway for more than twenty four (24) hours without moving, it may be deemed by an Officer to be parked in contravention of this Bylaw."

Starting DECEMBER 10TH, 2012, any vehicles found in contravention of these sections will be towed away at the owner's expense. The City would appreciate all vehicles or other objects that are parked in a way that will impede the snow removal process or the use of a fire hydrant to please move them as soon as possible.
