wson Joins Idle No More

The Idle No More movement came to Dawson City on January 1, with a gathering held outside the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre at 2 p.m.

Organizer Fran Morberg-Green addressed the crowd of some 50 folk, both Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in citizens and others, around the fire at the beginning of the demonstration.

She outlined the origins of the Idle No More movement, which began with four women both aboriginal and non-aboriginal, Saskatoon. Sylvia from McAdam. Jess Gordon, Nina Wilson and Sheelah McLean were moved by the contents of Bill C45, the latest omnibus bill proposed by the Conservative dominated federal government

They saw the changes to the Navigable Waters Protection Act as another step in the devaluing of environmental regulation already begun in other actions taken by Prime Minister Harper's government. First Nations people have a particular interest in the outcomes of such legislative changes, as they believe they violate specific portions of their treaty rights under the Canadian constitution.

The changes in Bill C-45 strip protections from 99% of lakes and rivers in Canada, leaving only 3 oceans, 97 lakes and 62 rivers under the purview of the law. This is a reduction from the old figure of 2.5 million. The act itself is replaced with the Navigation Protection Act, which title certainly suggests an entirely different emphasis from the original 1882 legislation.

Morberg-Green emphasized that gatherings such as this are intended to be a positive alternative to simply complaining about injustices, and that they were a way of making public opinion known to the larger community.

Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in concerns about possible developments in the Peel Watershed are connected, she said, to the larger issue, as is the hunger strike currently being carried on in Ottawa by Chief Theresa Spence of the Attawapiskat First Nation.

carried by Signs demonstratorsincluded mention of Idle No More, support for Spence as well as slogans such as "Save Grandmother Earth. She's Counting on Us!" and "No Water, No Life!"

Morberg told the group to focus their attention on the positive outcome they hoped to achieve.

"I would like to thank Harper," she said, adding that it was the Prime Minister's actions on this issue that had stimulated people to take up a protest that seems to be sweeping across the country and even occurring in foreign lands.

Following her remarks the entire group formed a couple of circles with the drummers inside next to the fire, and joined in several traditional Han songs, as well as a chorus or two of "This Land is Your Land" and one from the Shuswap nation. Then the group was invited to dance around the circle, both to warm up (it was -16° C) and to celebrate the gathering.

Hot coffee, tea, hot chocolate and bannock were waiting inside afterwards.

TH Housing Program Gains National Recognition

DAWSON CITY - The Tr'ond'k Hw'ch'in (TH) are pleased their housing initiatives gained positive attention in the Conference Board of Canada's December 2012 report, "Framing Sustainable Options for Housing in Canada's North."

Unfortunately, many of the innovations resulting from the collaboration between CMHC, Yukon Housing Corporation, and HŠn Construction Ltd. are no longer possible due to changes in policy interpretations by the federal government.

"Our solid and well-managed program is the envy of the North," said Chief Eddie Taylor. "But our waiting list continues to grow."

TH has utilized CHMC support to build homes for many years—a relationship that has yielded quality homes for TH citizens. Utilizing their assistance, however, was made impossible in 2010, when the federal government advised they would no longer provide Ministerial Loan Guarantees (MLG) to First Nations building on land that wasn't once Land Set Aside or Reserve land. The MLG is required to obtain CMHC assistance.

TH subdivisions, like C-4 (the neighbourhood in which the sustainable homes project took place), were never Land Set Aside or Reserve land.

"We are very proud of what our housing program has achieved," said Chief Taylor. "The consultation and cultural elements that went into our homes resulted in homes that met the needs of our people.

"It is unfortunate groundbreaking projects like those described in the Conference Board of Canada's report are no longer possible, but we are hopeful the positive attention this project is receiving will lead to the overturn of the rules that undermine our ability to provide housing to our people."

"It ain't gold but it's close!"

Uffish Thoughts: Here Comes the Sun

Family and friends in the south and east often ask how we deal with the darkness up here. It's true that sun didn't rise today until 11:03 and that it will have set again by 3:44 (according to Environment Canada's website), and it's also true that we keep track of things like that, giving it the kind of attention that I don't recall from my Nova Scotia boyhood.

We take pictures of various degrees of daylight and post them on FaceBook. When a friend posted a 5:30 shot with the moon in the background and headlights coming up the street, I kidded him that he really needed to be a little more patient, but I understood the urge. The photo that goes with this essay was taken for the same reason.

It's also true that those stark numbers don't quite give a real picture of light and dark at this latitude. A lot depends on elevation, for instance. Driving to Whitehorse on December 20 I was constantly blinded by the glare in the high to the top of country, first between here and Stewart, and again between there and Pelly Crossing.

And it's also true that the sun didn't really rise where I could see it today.

Downtown Dawson is kind of in a bowl, with hills all around that cut off what direct sunlight there is. Those who live up on the hills don't completely lose direct sunlight, even on the Solstice, but for the rest of us, Ol' Sol kind of creeps around the hills and glimmers at the south end of town for a bit, passing behind another hill before it can actually hit the streets.

It's there. From the ferry landing you can see that a hill farther down the river is nicely lit for a couple of hours and, as I write this column, the sun would normally be lighting up the east bank of the river. That golden glow used to brighten up my classroom on the west side of the school and these days shines in my living room window at home or the rear window at the Sun office.

From there it slips around the Moosehide Slide, starting as a sliver and then covering the face of the hill and reflectingback down onto Front Street and the north end of town.

today Not though. Today it's overcast, so what we're getting is five hours or so of that indirect lighting beloved by those architects who design large public buildings. This kind of light, filtered through the clouds, does tend to wash out certain parts of the colour spectrum and give the world a ghostly look. On the other hand, there's a lot of snow around here and numerous Berton House writers who hail from Outside have told me that they are constantly surprised by how much light there is due to reflection.

It's going to be a while yet before the sun actually illumines the streets of town again. It will start with Front Street and work its way back toward Eighth Ave., adding a few minutes and a few inches of downtown real estate each

Suddenly our dog will notice that there's a sunbeam coming in through our kitchen window, and she will follow it across the floor, stretching out and basking in its rays until it vanishes. She will become interested in staying outdoors for longer stretches of time, even when it's still cold, and will prefer the back doorstep in the morning and the front porch in the evening.

It's no lighter now than it was in early December, a month ago, but it's different now. Then, every day shaved a little more daylight from our world. Now, every day adds just a sliver, and while the world is still somewhat twilit, it just seems more optimistic.

We want to hear from you!

A Response to Some Uffish Thoughts

Dear Editor:

I always read Dan Davidson's long running Uffish Thoughts column; he is generally entertaining, usually informative and, as befits an opinion piece, always has his own perspective.

I had a particular interest in his recent column on the Peel consultation that took place in Dawson December 4th: I look after the Peel file for the Yukon Conservation Society (YCS). I have a couple of comments on the column that I think are needed to add clarity to the issues it addressed.

The North Yukon Plan was not free from controversy as the column suggests; while it did indeed have considerable swathes of protected areas already, there were and are serious mineral interests including oil and gas in the Eagle Plains area and, some might recall, a major controversy over an iron ore deposit at a place called Rusty Springs to the west of what was then a still contemplated Fishing Branch protected area. The pro-development forces advocated a road allowance through the heart of Fishing Branch Park, an idea that seems quite startling in this day but was nonetheless a serious bone of contention at the time. The North Yukon planning process also overshot its allotted time frame and budget and almost collapsed twice.

Land use planning would be simple if there were no demands on the land by humans; we could just let it manage itself. It is the number and nature of human activities that need to be managed that makes land use planning so complex and the Dawson region has far more activity than either North Yukon or the Peel, thus I should think that land use planning in the Dawson region would be more difficult than in the Peel, not easier as Uffish Thoughts suggests. Perhaps the appearance of serenity is due to our being two thirds of the way through the timeline established for the Dawson planning process and we have had little in the way of community and Commission engagement, most recently a fairly technical meeting about a year ago. Two years into the Peel process, things were similarly quiet as information was also still being gathered. The Teslin region was the first area where regional land use planning was attempted and it fell apart after several years and considerable expense. It has faded from the recollection of most people who are not land use planning nerds. Oh, and it is the Dawson Regional Land Use Plan not the Klondike plan- just saying....

Unsurprisingly, I am uncomfortable with Dan's characterisation of the roles of YCS and CPAWS in the Peel consultation. We are not one of the sides of the debate; rather we are supporting the 80% of Yukoners and the four affected First Nations and the Peel Watershed Regional Planning Commission who endorse the Final Recommended Plan.

Having said that, we do indeed oppose the direction the Yukon Government is taking: one of the biggest problems we see is their dismissive stance towards the UFA. It is unfortunate that the central role of the UFA to this issue is so often ignored; to begin with there would be no land use planning had we not signed onto the UFA. It must be recalled that when the First Nations signed their individual final agreements, they relinquished aboriginal title to their traditional territories. They did so in exchange for a leading role in subsequent land use planning. This is not merely a legal conceit, but a provision of our constitution. If the Yukon government forgets this, the First Nations will remind them at every juncture, all the way to the Supreme Court of Canada. We in Yukon have become so accustomed to our post UFA world that we collectively forget how big a role it plays in our day to day lives, whether we are First Nation citizens or not. The UFA has transformed Yukon in very positive ways and the vast majority of us would be horrified to find ourselves back in the bad old days, even if issues such as consultations with all and sundry did not get in the way of "progress".

Perhaps YCS has not been clear regarding our perspective on the revision protocols for the Final Recommended Plan: we always realised that the use of periodic revisions is critical to the functioning of any plan; we also say that we can always decide to drive a road through wilderness and to build a mine, but we have a terrible track record of removing impacts of development afterwards- look around as you approach Dawson by road. The attitude of the Yukon Government towards the UFA will however have Armageddon like features should it come to pass, certainly those Yukoners who realise how their lives now depend on the UFA see it that way.

YCS takes exception to our characterisation as to our ilk being to blame for Dawson's sewage woes. We have indeed taken the position that piping screened but otherwise untreated sewage into the Yukon River was wrong in Dawson, just as it has been found to be wrong in every other community in Yukon, but we never advocated the current insanely expensive and thus far non-functioning system the courts have saddled us with. The impetus to move from a lagoon to the VERTREAT was a purely local movement, driven by the courts and unsupported by any organisation, certainly not by YCS.

Sincerely,

Sebastian Jones, Dawson City

Preservationists are Out to Steal your Livelihood

Dear Editor:

I send you this letter as an extremely concerned Yukon resident.

I find all this Peel River protection plan very offensive. It is threatening to steal an estimated 10 per cent of the Yukon from everyone who lives here and will ever live here!

I've listened to the "Save the planet" speech from a few organizations. I feel some are jumping on board with it and are misinformed on many environmental issues.

Today's mining and oil drilling are not as harmful to the watershed (this is a scare tactic of environmental groups to get people on board) of the Peel or anywhere else, for that matter!

With the advances in technology and the regulations we have in place, these industries are not as destructive as they are projecting it to be.

We are finally getting some industry coming to the Yukon and a few people want to chase them out. (I have seen the same thing happen with Tombstone Park, but this is just on a larger scale.)

I was asked if I am concerned about global warming (and the answer is yes).

My thought is we should keep industry here where we have control on how it operates, as we have strict operating guidelines.

If we stop them from coming here, it will not stop the world demand for what we have to offer for minerals, oil and gas.

These companies will go to other countries that don't care about the environment, and so, by doing this on a global scale, it will be worse.

Every industry we keep out of the Yukon hurts directly and indirectly most of the businesses of the Yukon.

All Yukon businesses, people employed and seeking employment should say no to the Peel plan all together. They are trying to steal your livelihood from you!

Most of the people pushing the plan drive cars, live in houses, eat with silverware and wear jewellery. (Where do they think this stuff comes from...thin air?)

Most of their food and supplies get hauled in by trucks, which all involves the mining and/or oil industry.

So is it better to get it here, or is it all supposed to get shipped in from some other country? Is that more environmentally friendly?

The Yukon already has approximately 12 per cent of its total mass in protected areas and about another eight per cent in First Nation class A and B lands.

As for the Yukon – I love it! That's why I moved here 24 years ago, and I think it is all beautiful, but we don't need to turn everything into a park to keep it that way!

We all need to make a living, and we can do that! And we can keep the Yukon beautiful!

We all have a voice, so please use it (the environmentalists are). Say no to the Peel project!

A concerned taxpayer, Joe McIntyre, Dawson City

Wonderful Nutcracker / Poor Gov't Decisions

Dear Editor:

How delightful to see the pictures of Nutcracker Lite! It means a lot that the parents pulled together to make this happen. I cannot imagine the weather you live in during the winter. Your summer was lovely when we visited though.

Were it not for the parks system in town and along the highways, there would be no tourism. The government certainly needs to revisit their decision.

Looking for Clippings from a Trip Down Thistle Creek

Dear Editor,

My name is Joe Keenan and in July 1948 I was working on Thistle Creek with Bud Harbottle.

I was working out on the creek one day but I don't remember the exact day.

However when I came back to camp that evening, Bud took me aside and said he had just received word that my sister had past away during chid birth. She was twenty four years old.

There was no boat due till a week later, which would have been too late for me to be at her funeral.

With help of Bud and my brother in-law Gordon McIntyre we built a raft four feet wide and eight feet long.

I started out from Thistle Creek some time about five o-clock that evening and stopped once at a prospectors cabin on the mouth of Stewart Creek. He gave me toast and tea and a small bottle of Drambuie to take with me.

I started down the river again and later got to Dawson, pulled my raft onto the beach and headed for the C.P.A. office.

When I went in the office I was told all the seats were taken. That's when I broke down and cried.

Johnny Hogan and his wife were in the office also waiting to go to Whitehorse.

I knew Johnny he worked for the same Co. as I did, Yukon Gold Placers, he said Joe you can have our seats.

So I did get on the flight out that day and made it home in time for my sister's funeral.

I have written this all down, because I was wondering if you would have a copy of my trip in your archives.

This Regime has Usurped the Democratic Process

Dear Editor:

This is a response to the Uffish Thoughts column by Dan Davidson, "The divisive Peel debate....'

I was delighted to read in your column, Mr. Davidson, that you can see there are "flaws in the Yukon government's handling of the Peel issue."

I'm sorry to hear your expression of ambivalence about the work of the Yukon Conservation Society and the Canadian Parks and Wilderness Society.

In my experience, both societies work hard to not only preserve and facilitate appreciation of special places, but promote wise and respectful use of this beautiful environment we live in.

In fact, I would say they can take a lot of the credit that the public is as informed on the Peel issue as it is. They are conscientious, ethical people who give a damn.

Your column exposed a few inaccuracies that I feel deserve clarification.

First of all, it was not just the First Nations that requested 100 per cent protection for the Peel.

The planning commission's initial results showed 87 per cent of Yukoners, from all walks of life, wanted 100 per cent protection.

You can thank the societies of whom you are so ambivalent for that bit of informa-

They had to use an access to information application to retrieve that data as the previous Yukon Party government didn't want us to know how unified we were in our desires.

I cannot understand why you would feel that a request of 100 per cent protection is "unrealistic."

Many places, such as Kluane Park and the Tatshenshini wilderness here in the north, have been deemed worthy of 100 per cent protection.

Yes, all of these areas have mineralization, which leads me to my main point.

You say that whatever decision we make on the Peel today will likely change in the future, is a reality that you "never hear from either side."

Dan, with due respect, I have to say you haven't been listening.

I am not the only one to have stated in the media that the Peel should be looked at as an investment for the future, not unlike an RRSP.

When one considers the wealth of our resources and our vast, unspoiled wilderness, it's easy to see we are wealthy beyond words.

And to not put some of our good fortune away for a future generation is like squandering a tremendous inheritance, instead of living comfortably (and sustainably) off the interest.

Yes, you are right. Any human-made legislation can change in time.

And 100 per cent protection for the Peel now guarantees a future generation, perhaps a few centuries hence.

The option to extract resources, if they so choose, would undoubtedly be done with environmentally sensitive methods far beyond our imagination.

However, with the unbridled speed at which unbroken wild places are disappearing around the entire planet, the value of a piece of unparalleled wilderness that is the Peel will, hundreds of years from now, weigh heavily into their equation.

Perhaps they will see that wilderness value as priceless, as many of us already do. And in the meantime, while this tremendous investment grows exponentially in value, this gem of wilderness remains, not only for us, but the entire planet.

The other option, however, of the Yukon Party's plan to mine the Peel (let's call it what it is), with roads and mines (for all intents and purposes) throughout, viewscapes spoiled and the likelihood of toxic waters for wildlife and communities downstream to deal with, counters your view that First Nations and environmental groups wrongly see the "battle" for the Peel as "some sort of Armageddon with results that will last forever.".

Sorry, but that scenario is forever. There is no going back from that one.

In conclusion, Dan, I am most reassured that we can agree that the government's approach on this issue is flawed, although I would have to say it goes well beyond a "tremendous tactical error."

I would say that, because they intentionally withheld their true plan for the Peel in order to get elected, and are now knowingly working against the wishes of a vast majority of us, they have usurped the democratic process.

And that is a very serious breach of trust that they should not be allowed to get

I am most sincerely interested in your opinion on this last point, and would greatly appreciate a response.

Dear Editor:

I feel compelled to respond to Joe McIntyre's letter, "Preservationists are out to steal your livelihood!"

In it, he characterizes the Peel Watershed Regional Planning Commission's Final Recommended Plan as a theft of 10 per cent of Yukon.

This is a puzzling accusation.

For one thing, the land will continue to be there, we shall all remain able to go there and even make a living there (in some parts, it will be very difficult to make a

As well, it will continue to belong to all Yukoners. Some of it would be protected from being bought by foreign multinationals.

As a member of the Dawson District Renewable Resource Council, with a mandate from the Umbrella Final Agreement (UFA) to be the "primary instrument of fish and wildlife management in Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Traditional Territory", Joe has to be concerned by the way the Yukon government is setting aside the work of the commission after so much work.

It is the equivalent of his council working on a recommendation on, for example, how domestic sheep should be regulated, for several years, with multiple consultations with the affected First Nations, other councils, the public, all stakeholders and various government departments.

It's equivalent to, at the very end, to have the recommendation distorted beyond recognition with no equivalent work or consultation behind it, all because some people in the present government had a philosophical concern with regulating domestic Perhaps Joe wants to reconsider lumping category A and B land in with protected areas.

As a member of a UFA-mandated body, as is the Peel Watershed Regional Land Use Planning Commission, Joe should be aware that Category A and B First Nation settlement land is not protected for or against anything, but it does belong to the

Christmas Music Closes out the Term at Robert Service School

Story & Photos By Dan Davidson

The gym at the Robert Service School resounded to music on December 19, with a packed audience in attendance in spite of temperatures in the low minus 40s.

The evening began beginning with some not so Christmassy tunes by the Senior Rock Band, who entertained while the rest of the school got ready for the season.

The Grade 7s were accompanied by the Junior Rock

Band in a rendition of "Santa Claus is Coming to Town."

The RSS Junior Choir chimed in with three seasonal tunes.

Grade 1 presented a video production of the Holiday Cookbook and then took to the stage in chef's hats to whip up a "Christmas Soup Figaro".

Grade 2 student were well version of "Ode To Joy." packaged for the holidays as in the poem "Christmas Boxes".

Kindergarten appeared in their antlers to tell the story of "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer," with a little help from members of the RSS Senior Choir.

The Intensive French class presented a video fashion show staged at the Dancing Moose and the Raven's Nook.

Grade 3 tore up the stage with the 'Santa Claus Rock" and then settled down to a recorder

Grade 4 continued the rock spirit with "Jingle Bell Rock".

Grade 5 performed two ukulele tunes. Some fiddlers for a rousing rendition of "Patrick's Reel" joined them.

The senior choir, otherwise know as the Soul Birds, offered "All I Want for Christmas" and "Mistletoe".

The grand finale was a trilingual singing of "Jingle Bells" with the audience asked to contribute in English, French and Han.

First Nation.

I am sure he is aware that the Minto mine is on Selkirk First Nation Category A land.

As a miner, I am sure he is aware that with suitable permits, he can explore on First Nation settlement land. Upon the satisfactory conclusion of negotiations, he can even mine on it.

Joe correctly points out that recent innovations in mining and oil and gas regulations have resulted in lower environmental impacts.

It is not so much the mines and exploration that the Final Recommended Plan makes problematic, but the roads, the surface access, which everyone agrees have the really big longterm impact.

It is the restrictions on new roads that are the starkest differences between the Final Recommended Plan and the new concepts of the Yukon government.

One does indeed hope the government has learned from the past and the mines that have come or are coming into production in the last few years will not leave massive cleanup costs for taxpayers to cover as all the previous ones did.

Joe asks us to say "no" to the Peel project. By this, does he mean we should say "no" to regional land use planning?

Finally, I find fascinating his argument that we should trash the Peel so the evil mining companies do not go elsewhere to trash unsophisticated places even worse!

Toeing the Line at the ODD Gallery

Story & Photos By Dan Davidson

The Sourtoe Cocktail gets a mixed reception in the world abroad. Thousands of people have touched their lips to Captain Dick Stevenson's inventive libation and have swallowed the notion that this is part of Dawson's quaint charm. A few have gone further and swallowed the toe itself, but that's another long

The other side of the reaction could be exemplified by the author Simon Winchester. His wanderings during the research for his book about North America's tectonic plates (A Crack in the Edge of the World: America and the Great California Earthquake of 1906) took him through the Yukon and up past Haines Junction, but he mentions the Toe as the biggest reason why he avoided Dawson. He couldn't stomach the idea of visiting a place where a blackened digit was a tourist attraction.

Adonika Jayne, a fairly recent arrival in Dawson, doesn't specifically reference the Sourtoe in her brief exhibition in the ODD Gallery, but the connection seems to be inevitable.

Titled "I offer you my toe", the exhibition, which was up (or down) from December 18 to 22 filled the floor of the gallery with hundreds and hundreds of toes. There were so many, and so closely spaced together that it would not have been possible to walk through the exhibit. It could only be viewed from the entrance to the gallery.

Jayne had this to say about her project.

"Wherever I find myself, I develop a strong desire to create and foster community around me. The community of Dawson is very strong, which I know is one of the reasons the city captured me so quickly. Since I moved here in May I've found myself creating work based around the individuals who fill the homes, the streets, the bars, and the hotels.

"For my current project, 'I offer you my toe', I've made a mold of my big toe and cast one in plaster for each person who is currently living in Dawson, from Henderson all the way through to West Dawson.

"The project is a gift to this community which I love so dearly; I will be delivering a toe to every person in Dawson after they are displayed all together for short period in the ODD Gallery."

Klondike River Lodge Destroyed by Fire

Story & Photos By Dan Davidson

The Klondike River Lodge, located at the Dempster Corner on the Klondike Highway, has burned to the ground.

Dawson Fire Chief Jim Regimbal says his department got a call from members of the territorial Highways Dept. shortly after 8 a.m. on Sunday morning.

While in transit to the lodge, which is 40 kilometres from Dawson, Regimbal says he raised the Klondike Valley Fire Dept., which had half the distance to travel and got there before Dawson's crew.

By the time both departments reached the scene the main building was beyond saving.

"It was down to the ground when we got there," Regimbal said.

Indeed, by just after noon there was nothing left of the main structure, which had contained the convenience store, restaurant and motel complex, other than the tin roofing sitting on top of the rubble, with faint smoke still rising.

The tire shed and garage to the south of the compound was not damaged, were nor the various outbuildings the property, including the staff housing trailers, both single and double-wide structures.

The above ground fuel tanks, on the far side of the tire shed, were not touched and had been drained.

The lodge had closed for the winter back in September, as it has for the last several years.

The Lodge has been in operation since the early 1970s. Filling up at its station before beginning a trip on the Dempster Highway was advised on most travel websites, as the next gas station was at Eagle Plains, 360 km up the road.

The scene attracted visitors from town and the surrounding area during the day and the compound remained closed off to anyone not involved in the investigation.

"We've turned it over to the RCMP," Regimbal said, "and we'll have to wait on their investigation to determine the origin and cause."

Regimbal said the lodge, which has been through a number of owners during its history, is currently owned by Brian MacCarthy, of Inuvik, who is presently on holidays, but has been contacted.

The fire that destroyed the Klondike River Lodge has been ruled not suspicious. According to Regimbal, quoted in the January 4 Yukon News, the investigation has determined it was possibly an electrical fire.

Community Awards Given at TH Christmas Feast

Story & photos By Dan Davidson

With the roof envelope of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Community Hall still undergoing repairs, the First Nation was once again happy to be holding a major feast in the Robert Service School gymnasium. After an opening prayer by elder Doris Roberts, Chief Eddie Taylor addressed the hall briefly and welcomed everyone, TH members and others, to the Christmas Feast.

"This tradition stretches back as far as our people have been welcoming people to our traditional territory," Taylor said.

"2013 marks the 20^{th} anniversary of our Umbrella Final Agreement and the 40th anniversary of the document Together Today for our Children Tomorrow."

He invited everyone to attend the February celebration with CYFN in Whitehorse.

Taylor joined with Mayor Wayne Potoroka in bringing John Flynn forward for a special award from the First Nation to mark his recent honours at the Yukon Sports Hall of Fame and the proclamation of John Flynn Day by the City of Dawson.

"John was always somebody who made us young kids proud," Taylor said. "He was truly one of our leaders. He has always been more than a great athlete to this community. He is a role model. While he has shown leadership on the sports field he has also shown leadership on the streets, on how to live a decent life, work hard, be your neighbour as well as love your family.

"John, you have made all of Dawson City proud. On behalf of Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in I'd like to congratulate you for your induction into the Yukon Sports Hall of Fame and and Georgette McLeod. for your contributions to our community."

Mayor Potoroka read the proclamation that had been announced the previous week.

"We didn't have it ready for you then, John, but we do tonight."

On John Flynn Day, December 28, there was free skating at the arena for all young people.

As the evening continued, people feasted on turkey, ham, roast beef and a variety of vegetables and salads, and in the pause between the main meal and desert, the TH Community Awards were announced as follows and presented by Deputy Chief Clara Van Bibber

- * Volunteer of the Year: Kylie Van Everv
- * Elder of the Year: Victor Henry
- * Youth of the Year: Sammy Taylor
- * Employee of the Year: Sue Parsons
- * Citizen of the year: Daryn

The evening continued with performances by the Hän Singers, the Robert Service School Elementary Choir and the Little Jiggers. The latter concluded their dance demonstration by rounding up members of the audience to join them in the dancing.

A Dawson CD Sampler

By Connor Matak

Though it may have dipped below -40 several times over the last two weeks of November, the songwriters of Dawson City braved the temperatures to record their art in the theatre of the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre.

"The Dawson CD Sampler project is a collaboration between Jazz Yukon, Music Yukon and the N. Klondyke Highway Music Society. The Yukon Arts Fund provided the majority of funding," says Peter Menzies, who helped facilitate the project in the community.

"The intent is to kick-start some recording with the goal of establishing a bi-annual CD Sampler project produced in Dawson City using local talent."

The three societies enlisted Nathan Tinkham, a musician well-known in the community and nationally for his work alongside the likes of Ian Tyson, Cindy Church, and Diamond Joe White.

Tinkham, who resides on Gabriola Island, BC, had noticed that it was a problem for artists to record in the territory

"I come up here all the time, and I saw a need," Tinkham mentions, "artists in the communities don't have access to studio space ... only those in Whitehorse can access it easily."

And Tinkham feels right at home in Dawson City. He has played around the bars and at the festivals for years, and has already recorded a few records in town–namely George McConkey's "Tin & Bone".

From November 19th to the 29th, Tinkham recorded 11 different songwriters with varying levels of recording experience. Some had released numerous albums, while others hadn't ever stepped foot into a studio before. He was set-up permanently in the generously-donated theatre space of the Cultural Centre during the span of the sessions.

""It was the dream thing... As soon as I got up here, within a day or two everything was settled to work in this place where I could leave everything setup," elaborates Tinkham, "I've got some music here that I really enjoy listening to it. It's better to have that than to not have something because you may say "I won't do something until I can get into a real studio". This is real music. And the people who enjoy it will enjoy it."

One aspect of the project ended up showing participants just that, how easy it is now-a-days to produce music in nearly any kind of room, and with minimal equipment.

"People have not recorded because they think 'Well I don't have the money to go to Whitehorse'. I think this project showed them that you can get enough quality here," he states, "You don't have to give up your ticipants in the project who have lived in Dawson City permanently since 2011. Originally from Peterborough, ON, these solo artists wasted no time in making their musical presence known in the community, and both had the chance to record a few songs with Tinkham.

"I feel so lucky we got to have it here in Dawson ... I think that people were so ready and rehearsed," Nasager speaks on the project,

"Nathan pointed out to me how prepared everyone was . That's the undercurrent of why this will be successful longterm. People saw this is an opportunity and took full advantage of it."

McCallen also commented about the need for a project like this in Dawson.

"I think there a lot of artistically inclined people up here, and there really isn't an outlet for recording."

"I think it's a great idea for this town, and will work out pretty well in the long run."

Nasager and McCallen both experienced how quickly the process can be completed.

""It was cool. Two songs, Half-an-hour, Done. One take, One take, outta there," mentions McCallen, "which is how I like to do it."

Nasager finished 4 songs in an hour-and-a-half, and is positive about the results.

"If anything it's an exercise in patience, in finishing what I've started," she noted. "I'm excited to hear what they do with the mixing and mastering and how everything turns out."

One highlight of the project was the opportunity to record the Hän Singers, a first in Dawson.

"That was a big thing," Tinkham said with calm excitement.

Back on Gabriola Island he'll be at the mixing board and enlisting a few friends to help with the project. This will include adding additional instruments to the tracks, and mastering the final mix.

The next step is to press the album, and to make it available for purchase in local stores. But Tinkham alludes to something bigger:

"Recording has become a grassroots thing again and we have the power. Everybody that has a computer has worldwide distribution," he says, "The immediacy of it is really neat. I could have this stuff flooding down south by the end of the day ... It's not only something that people in New York, L.A., and Nashville can do."

Menzies and the three societies involved hope that this is a jump-off point:

"We hope that other communities will be interested in the project -- the three organizations may be able to help other communities produce their own CD samplers."

All involved seem to agree it is a needed project in the Territory, and can spread into other regions.

Tinkham states it simply:

"I think it's very viable and I hope the project has legs, cause that means I get to come up here again."

Storytelling With Cloth and Thread

Story & Photos by Anna Vogt

Quilting is a popular Dawson activity, but not something I really ever engaged in. That is, until I arrived in Colombia. About six years ago, a Mennonite Central Committee worker arrived in my community of Mampuján and taught the women how to quilt and changed life forever here. However, quilting here is different than simply squares of colorful fabric arranged geometrically. Instead, the women have learnt how to tell the community's story using cloth and thread.

Like many Colombian communities, Mampuján was displaced in 2000 by a paramilitary group as part of Colombia's armed conflict. The entire community was rounded up, gathered in the plaza, and told that they had twenty-fours to leave their land or they would be killed, in a manoeuvre to take over the community's land. Some of the men were kidnapped, and in what many consider a miracle, were later returned to the community.

Although no one was killed and Mampuján managed to stay together as a community, its social fabric was devastated. People lived in fear and no longer trusted those around them and clung tightly to everything that they had left, as they had no idea when the rest could be taken away. Everything had changed and many people suffered emotional trauma, along with a complete change in status and lifestyle.

Therefore, when the women first started gathering and stitching what had happened to them, the displacement was very painful and something they had seldom talked about as a group. They cried and haltingly shared their stories as they cut out cloth figures of themselves during the violence. They were learning to put colours together, but more importantly, learning to piece their lives back together through a process of sharing their stories.

Now, when they meet together, they laugh, gossip and joke with one another and talk about how they want to see the community move forward, as they engage in activities as a community of women, in the same way as the women in Dawson have formed quilting communities. I love sitting and talking with them, hearing their stories of healing and the adventures they have had as a group. The women have travelled to other displaced communities to share their healing techniques with other women, going to places in Colombia they had never even dreamed of visiting before and teaching them how to quilt their trauma as well.

Like many of the towns in this region, my community is Afro-Colombian. The ancestors of my neighbours were brought over from Africa as slaves to work in mines, large plantations and to build military defences in coastal cities against pirates such as Francis Drake. While they remain a very marginalized group within Colombia, they have a powerful story of resistance and rebelling from slavery to form the first free communities within Latin America.

Therefore, besides just documenting their own personal stories, the women of Mampuján have also quilted the story of what it means to be an Afro-Colombian community, first learning their own history from Africa to today, and then putting it all on fabric, developing pride in their heritage and their unique status as Afro-Colombians at the same time.

Before, being Afro was considered shameful even within Mampuján, but things are slowly changing. In fact, the greatest compliment I have received so far is the following "Anna, you are like a tunnel, white on the outside but black on the inside." Many people are now proud of who they are and their identity as Afro.

Currently, we are trying to turn this art form into an income generating project, as well as start a museum where the quilts can be displayed. It can be challenging starting a new project and we have had lots of bumps in the journey, but the group is committed to moving forward and learning together. And maybe I will even eventually, finally, learn how to quilt!

John Flynn Day Proclaimed

Following his induction into the Yukon Sports Hall of Fame, Dawson's municipal council has decided to designate December 28, 2012 as John Flynn Day.

The proclamation, issued at the December 11 council meeting, reads:

"Whereas, Council wishes to recognize the incredible achievement of John Flynn, resident of Dawson City, being inducted into the Yukon Sports Hall of fame, and

"Whereas, Council desires to recognize John Flynn for his sporting successes as an athlete and coach, and

"Whereas Council is pleased to recognize John Flynn for being an amazing role model for our community; now

"Therefore, I, Wayne Potoroka, as Mayor of the City of Dawson, Yukon Territory, do hereby proclaim December 28, 2012 to be JOHN FLYNN DAY."

The proclamation was announced in delegations at that meeting with Flynn and members of his family present.

"John, it's a pleasure to pay tribute to you," Potoroka said, "on your achievement in being inducted into the Yukon Sports Hall of Fame. You are a rare individual, a man with that uncommon mixture of talent and humility. Your incredible accomplishments as a hockey player, coach and biathlete, are eclipsed by the modesty you have shown throughout the time I've known you."

The mayor said that Flynn's accomplishments put him alongside such notable locals as the late Art Fry and the Dawson City Nuggets hockey team of 1905. This was fitting since Flynn was one of the key players in the 1997 reenactment of that Stanley Cup Challenge.

"You are certainly a role model for youth and adults," Potoroka continued. "You are quite obviously a dedicated and loving family Cont'd on p. 20

Calypso Rose is Coming

By Dan Davidson

It's thanks to a working partnership with the Yukon Arts Centre that the Klondike Institute of Arts and Culture will be able to bring Calypso Rose to the Oddfellows Hall ballroom on January 14.

Matt Sarty, KIAC's Events Coordinator, says this is an arrangement that has brought a good many acts to Dawson, both for KIAC and for the Dawson City Music Festival organization.

McArtha Linda Sandy-Lewis (aka Calypso Rose) has been performing for over five decades. She has received more honours and medals than any other living Calypsonian and built an exhaustive musical catalogue that runs the gamut from social and political commentary to party music, inspirational hymns and gospel music, and of course, a myriad of calypso hits.

She has shared stages with the likes of Bob Marley, Tito Puente, Roberta Flack, Mahalia Jackson, Roberta Flack and Michael Jackson.

In 1966, she wrote, "Fire in Meh Wire", which has begun one of the international anthems of Calypso, translated into eight languages. She was the first woman to win the crown of Calypso Monarch in 1977. The yearly competition originally called Calypso King was rebaptised Calypso Monarch after Calypso Rose triumphed in this tradtionally male-dominated musical contest.

Calypso Rose was born in the small island of Tobago in the West Indies. She started singing at the age of 15 and has been at it ever since.

She is the subject of a documentary film directed by Pascale Obolo. "Calypso Rose: Lioness of the Jungle", which will be shown at the Oddfellows Hall on January 11 to get people ready to meet her. The film follows the singer as she travels from Trinidad and Tobago to New York, and Africa. She reveals her personal story, reflects upon her groundbreaking achievements, her musical career, her commitment to women's rights, and her love of life and people.

Sarty says she travels with a seven or eight piece band.

"The idea is that it's a tropical vacation in the middle of January for us Dawsonites who decide to stick it out.

DAWSON CITY, YUKON

Survived the Holidays Issue

Vol. 4, No. 10

Dawson's Council Appalled by MLA's Statements

Whether or not to capitalize the word "appalled" was the only matter up for debate when Dawson's city council discussed MLA David Millar's (Yukon Party -Klondike) recent pronouncements on the need for a new airport for the Klondike capital.

We need to send a letter to our MLA here to straighten him out on this issue," said councillor Tim Gerberding. "I don't know where he's getting his information on this issue, but I think he's getting the wrong signals."

Councillor Shirley Pennell agreed, saying that her first concerns about Millar's lack of enthusiasm for the proposed new airport jumped out at her from his maiden speech in the legislature, where he seemed to be saying that the project was not really necessary and that the existing airport could be upgraded to meet the need, an idea which had definitely been ruled out by the federal Ministry of Transport at public consultation meetings here

Mayor Jenkins too, said that the legislature speech made him "twitch' and that Millar was clearly not in touch with the majority of Klondike residents on this important issue.

Councillor Henry Procyk agreed. Far from getting lots of people telling him the airport isn't needed, Procyk is hearing from people who are waiting for it to happen and are curious, in a positive way, about when things will get under way.

The matter came up again at a meeting which the MLA attended when a number of government officials came to Dawson along with Education Minister Doug Phillips, where, once again, councillors said that Millar indicated that he didn't see the need for a new airport.

Pennell, speaking to the mayor said,"I would second Tim's statement that you should word a very strong letter stating our disbelief at what he said at that meeting.'

Jenkins said that he would write to tell Millar that "council was extremely appalled at his stated position on the need for an airport.

Councillors acknowledged that Millar may have heard of some opposition to the MOT/YTG proposal which would see a jet certified airport with all instrument flight capability constructed somewhere near the Dempster Corner, but that Millar would have to look at a bigger picture than just the complaints of a few of the vocal residents in the Klondike Valley who had spoken up at the public meetings here a year and a half ago.

"We've got to set the record straight on this," Gerberding said, "because I'm afraid that Mr. Millar's painting the wrong picture down in Whitehorse.'

Jenkins reminded the group that both the Ministry of Transport and the federal forestry people who look after the summer fire fighting chores here had looked at expanding and improving the existing airport and concluded that it would be a waste of time and money.

Dawson City didn't have to wait long for the first baby of the year to be born in town. The New Year's baby was Andrew Taylor, born January 4, 1993. He weighed in at 7 lbs, 12 ozs. Proud parents Eddie and Georgina Taylor moved back to Dawson from Old Crow in the

by Brent Morrison

Doug Phillips may not have met directly with the Dawson Chamber of Commerce during his visit to Dawson, January 4-6, but that didn't prevent them from rasing two of their main concerns with him. At a meeting with the Klondike Centennial Society on Tuesday afternoon, Chamber President Denny Kobayashi asked the new Minister of Tourism to look into getting an Automated Teller Machine for Dawson, and to see if changes could be made in the hours of the border crossing near Dawson.

Chamber feels the installation of tion. an ATM is a major priority, it would speed up transactions and free up time for the thousands of tourists that come to Dawson to do things other than stand in bank lines.

Phillips agreed to lend his support to the proposal, and to contact the bank's head offices to discuss the matter.

The problem of the border crossing hours was blatantly obvious during the summer of 1992 when line-ups stretched down most of Front Street, and tourists and residents alike waited Dawson City's C.I.B.C. runs a hours to cross the Yukon River tourist banking operation out of before travelling over sixty miles The Bank of British North Amer- to cross into Alaska. The border ica building across the street from is open from 9:00 a.m. till 9:00 its main location, but line-ups p.m. (Pacific Daylight Time) and during the summer are long and the consensus is that longer hot at both operations. The hours would prevent such conges-

While Phillips agreed to look into that as well, he was concerned about the residents of West Dawson and other residents along the Top of The World Highway that would have to deal with even earlier morning traffic.

So, while there were no real guarantees, he was made aware of these problems that are not going to go away by themselves.

While in town Phillips also met with Dawson First Nation, City Council, the KVA, the Women's Shelter,the Museum and Historical Society, and a group of local artists. Phillips has promised to return in April for more meetings.

Dawson Council Expressed Airport Concerns

While the government's consultation panel on the issue surrounding the Dawson Airport had what its members termed a cordial and productive meeting with municipal council on December 11, the trio did not escape without hearing about a long list of the money that's been put issues.

"It was largely the list Potoroka said. of concerns," said Mayor Wayne Potoroka, "that now is to assess the needs we've been hearing from people for some time: an terminal: overcrowded safety issues for expediters appropriate location. and miners who use the aprons on the north side of the runway; access to the planes to load and unload material onto the airplane.

of refueling.

"We talked about the future of air traffic in Dawson City and possible flow patterns and the numbers that we could expect to see here."

The possibility

relocating either the terminal or the complete airport was discussed, but Yukon council was left with the impression that moving the airport, for all its shortcomings of length and location, was really something that was not likely, even though it has been investigated in the past.

> "That was because of all into the current facility,"

"I believe the concept from that location," said councillor Bill Kendrick, "whether or not it's an

"They're also looking what screening needs there would be for security."

Presently Canada Customs operates out "There was also the issue a small room that used to be used by Alcan Air. Should someone need to be detained, there really isn't any place for that.

> Potoroka said council had made it very clear that the community expected of to hear back from the panel whatever they had gleaned from this consultation phase.

"We recommended to them that it would be in their best interest if they let us know what they think they heard from us," said Potoroka, "because this issue has definitely created a lot of interest in the community, which apparentlyiskindofunique to our community."

"Wetalkedaboutpaving," said councillor Stephen Johnson. "Right now the only 737 that can land here is one with a gravel kit, which is just a big fuel waster. The other thing to consider is the damage to the propellers and skin of other aircraft. I also asked about the possibility of a GPS approach."

Aircraft larger than Air North's big plane would require a longer runway and the airport is hemmed in by hills on both approaches.

"I'm not sure we have the real estate for that," Johnson continued.

Sitting Highlighted the Economy, First Nations

By Sandy Silver Klondike MLA

During the recent fall sitting of the legislature, I used my time to press the government on a number of issues that are important to Yukoners.

I also held meetings with constituents, industry groups, youth interested in climate change and attended the annual Yukon Geoscience Forum.

In question period, my focus was mainly economic development and First Nation relations.

The two issues are tied together, obviously, and I'm concerned the current government isn't doing enough to plan for the future of our economy or to build a long-term economic relationship with First Nation governments.

I also raised concerns about increasing electrical rates, cost overruns at new hospitals, the future of F.H. Collins School, Internet connectivity, the Peel Land Use Plan and the new Whistle Bend subdivision.

On behalf of my constituents in Dawson City, I spoke to the need for more housing and lot development, staffing issues at the new hospital, the need for a new recreation centre and the future of the Top of the World Golf Course.

Another issue that impacts Dawson, and indeed the entire Yukon, is the cuts made by Parks Canada.

It was painfully obvious, after listening to the minister of Tourism, that the Government of Yukon has done very little to try to have this decision reversed.

Their entire lobby campaign has consisted of two letters, one of which said helping the federal government address its financial situation was a top priority.

The tourism industry has expressed the same frustrations.

With regard to legislation that was brought forward, I did not support amendments to the

Access to Information Act that willrestrictpublicaccesstomore government documents.

also voted legislation that would strip the Kaska of a veto over oil and gas development in their traditional territory.

The premier's fight with the Kaska highlights this government's combative, poor relationship with First Nations.

ham-fisted, It's a confrontational approach that has set back relations with First Nations across the Yukon and will not result in economic development in the southeast.

I did support legislation to introduce a new tax credit that will assist families with children involved in music, arts and tutoring.

I also supported changes to the Residential Landlord and Tenant Act.

On Dec. 5, I brought forward a motion urging the minister of Education to adopt the JJ Van Bibber memoir, I was born under a spruce tree, as part of Yukon's education curriculum.

After a friendly amendment from the government side, the motion was unanimously supported in the legislature. The book should be part of the curriculum for the 2013-2014 school year.

This is a great book, a gift to all Yukoners that deserves a wide audience. I'm optimistic we'll see it in all our schools starting next year.

Looking ahead to the spring sitting, there is no reason whistle-blower legislation should not be on the agenda.

whistle-blower committee I was a member of has delivered its report recommending government move ahead on this legislation, and there is no reason to delay it.

It is now a political decision, and we'll see if the Yukon Party lives up to its word or not.

The writer is the MLA for Klondike and the interim leader of the Yukon Liberal Party.

An Elemental Blast from the Past

by Lisa McKenna

"Huddie" born in 1888 in Louisiana, U.S.A. died in New York, New York, U.S.A. He was famous for his talent on the twelve-string guitar but he also excelled on the piano, mandolin, harmonica, violin, and the accordion. As a matter of fact his very first instrument was the accordion.

He sang the blues, gospel blues, and songs about women, liquor, prison life, and racism. He wrote folk songs about cowboys, prison, work, sailors, cattle, and dancing. He would write songs about the 'newsmakers' of the times like Franklin D. Roosevelt. Adolph Hitler, Jean Harlow, Howard Hughes. He even wrote a song about the Titanic!

In and out of prison 5 or 6 times he was always released early for 'good behavior' but between you and me I just think they liked the music! He gained the name of the 'singing convict' as he could, literally, sing his way out of the bars that surrounded him.

He recorded over 30 albums including some for children. In 2008 he was inducted into the Louisiana Music Hall of Fame. He sang with the likes of Woody Guthrie, such diverse people have recorded his music. From the likes of The Beach Boys, C. C. R., Elvis, The Animals, Frank Sinatra, Johnny Cash, and the Grateful Dead!

Klondike Development Organization Studies Dawson Events

The Klondike Development Organization (KDO) held another of its continuing series of issues forums late in December to focus on the subject of events.

The KDO is a partnership issues.

Dawson's diverse offerings of events, from big ones like the Dawson City Music Festival and the Gold Show, to smaller things like the annual Outhouse Race and the Goldpanning Championships, help to build community as well as attract much needed

Dawson its mid-point, the Trek Over the Top has continued spite of international economic turmoil and border issues. Smaller events like the summertime Dust to Dawson Motorcycle gathering (they don't like to call it a rally) and the wintertime Fulda Extreme Sports Competition also help of City of Dawson, Dawson City Chamber of Commerce, Klondike Visitors Association, Dawson City Arts Society and Chief Isaac Incorporated, the development corporation of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in.

The forum attracted about two dozen people to the Downtown Hotel conference room over the three hours.

Generatingideastohelpbuild a more sustainable economy in the Klondike is high on its list of priorities and these meetings have previously focussed on housing and transportation visitors to the town in season.

"Events," said the KDO' issues paper, "add vibrant points of interest into the Dawson calendar in a way that distinguishes us from other Yukon communities as a fun and lively destination."

It is generally accepted that Dawson does a pretty good job of organizing events and finding new ones. Over the yearstheYukonQuesthasmade bring visitors to the region.

Last summer an active group of volunteers added a biannual Highland Games event to the roster.

The forum was called to deal with the fact that while "events are significant contributors to our economy, and to the character and appeal of DawsonCity for visitors and locals alike, it is also true that events can be highly demanding of them, and the community in general."

The focus of the afternoon's discussions, in both small groups and plenary sessions,

- * Broaden the general awareness and understanding of the diverse groups & events across our community.
- * Provide resources and information on anticipated key topics/challenges.
- * Stimulatereflection among participating groups upon their own events, facilitate the exchange of ideas, and consider the potential for collaboration among groups.

After three hours of discussion, brainstorming and griping, a number of suggestions were listed by the focus groups.

It would be useful to have a community calendar, aside from the event calendar already published by the Klondike Visitors Association. would facilitate communications that are important to collaboration in events, for example. avoiding or coordinating overlapping dates.

The creation of a funding resource document, volunteer bank resource could prove valuable.

Some organization – perhaps both the organizations hosting a joint venture between the City of Dawson and the KVA could have a paid staff position that provides support for grant application writing, etc., since the people who want to develop events often have not the skill or experience to do that kind of paperwork.

The Klondike needs to work more on promoting the venues we do have and the event support equipment we do have.

Insurance for events is often an issue for small groups. Someone should investigate options that might produce some sort of blanket insurance policy every group could buy

Some of these ideas have been tried before. Others, such as encouraging the City of Dawson to be more proactive in event recruitment, were tried in the late 1990s and just over the turn of the century and were slammed as being outside the town council's mandate and authority during the territorial government reports and the forensic audit that led to the two year trusteeship.

Still, there are some strong possibilities on the list of suggestions and previous forums have produced some partial solutions to issues raised at them

A Hunting Trip Becomes a Rescue Mission s

Rutting Season
By Roy Ness
CreateSpace

While the title of Roy Ness' novel is suggestive of a number of things, it's really not THAT kind of a story. Not that there aren't couples and there isn't coupling but with the exception of David Hellman, most of the people in the book are quite a bit more serious about their liaisons.

There are several plot threads that weave their way through this book, and most of them do involve couples in some way. Three of them intersect directly, while two others are connected, but play out at a distance.

Ness doesn't start out with couples though. He starts out with apparently disconnected vignettes about people who seem to have nothing to do with each other, so many of them on September 13 (the chapters have dates) that I was initially afraid I was going to have to make a list. Not to worry. They sort themselves out into several distinct clumps and keeping track turns out not to be a problem.

We begin with Hannah, an eco-warrior who is out to prove that grizzly bear trophy hunters are evil. She's out with a two-person film crew in the wilderness of the Macmilllan River, north of Ross River. When she gets separated from them in a storm at night she expects to be able to cope, but the wind, water and cold wear her down quickly and she is pretty much done in by the time Dan MacKay, a half-breed hunter from Ross River, finds her, naked and delirious, two days later.

MacKay is on a hunting trip, but he's also avoiding a custody hearing in Whitehorse because he honestly doesn't know if he's up to winning the battle for his preteen daughter, Starla, who is currently living with her mother, Tara. He rescues Hannah and they carry on down the river, having a variety of adventures with wildlife along the way, during which Hannah has to reevaluate her dedication to a vegetarian diet, along with some other things.

Among the wildlife we can count a bear, which has been shot by some very sloppy hunters and will turn up later in the story. Some of the chapter sections are from his point of view. Others feature a curious and hungry raven, whose comments on the activities of the "bobbleheads" are among the most amusing sections of the book.

Hannah's husband, the aforementioned David, gets his act together when he realizes his wife is missing, and comes north to find her, hiring the services of Jim Giller and his daughter, Jessica, as guides to get him to the bush. Father and daughter haven't been getting along well since Jim opted for a trophy wife over her mother a while back, but this trip seems to be good for them.

The mother is Susan Field, who happens to be Dan's lawyer in the custody case, and she is deeply suspicious of Tara's latest flame, Gary, who she suspects has a possible history of pedophilia, and may only be hanging out with Tara in order to get close to Dan's daughter. We also spend some time with Starla, Tara and Gary, and we know there's a problem well before Susan is able to prove it.

BOOKENDS

by Dan Davidson

With some help from Owen Orser, her former law partner, who now works for the government, Susan confirms her suspicions and triesher best to do something about them, but the dénouement for this particular plot thread is not like anything she was expecting.

We rotate through these groups many times in the 13 days covered by the book, leaving us with a succession of cliffhangers and several different climactic events along the journey. While the endings provided here are perfectly satisfactory within the framework of this book, there are lots of loose ends and it would be entirely possible to carry on the stories of most of these people in a sequel.

Rutting Season has recently received a starred review from the Kirkus Reviews Best of 2012 in the Indie Book category, which should encourage a lot of libraries to pick up a copy.

Her Berton House Experience Was Encouraging

Sherry MacDonald had had Berton House on her mind as a residency to apply to for a few years before her children finally grew up and left the nest. As a single mother the playwright had seldom been able to take advantage of any residencies of this type. However, she is acquainted with a number of writers who have been here and both the house and the town have been a subject of writers' conversations over the years.

"It's quite a well advertised opportunity."

Berton House hasn't drawn a lot of playwrights in its 16 years of operation, perhaps because one of the prerequisites for acceptance is having a book in print.

"The main focus for a playwright," MacDonald says, "is production rather than publication."

She has one book, the script for her play, The Stone Face, from Anvil Press. She has also written The Duchess of Alba and a short film, Blindspot, has been screened at festivals in Iran, Italy, the US and Canada, and is distributed by Moving Images.

In addition, her short play, Iraqi Karaoke, was made into a film and is published as part of an anthology by Anvil Press.

"I think this place is a great opportunity for anyone wanting to write historical fiction or nonfiction," she says, "but I didn't come here specifically to write something about the North, though I do find that location informs my work. It makes its way in and then it makes its way out again, and you never know just when it's going to show up.

"I wanted to get a feeling of the community here and experience the landscape. The freezing of the river was interesting."

The play of light, even as it diminished during her three-month stay, was also interesting, and she rearranged the study so as to face the window there and take advantage of the view while working on her laptop computer.

From tha room, as well as from the kitchen of Berton House, there is a good view across the top of the town to the west bank of the Yukon River, which lights up golden at certain times of day as the low arcing sun touches it a few weeks before and after Solstice.

Just two days before leaving town on December 21, she expressed regret at not getting to see the days begin to get longer again.

"Just yesterday I was saying to Jim (her partner), oh look, there's a strip of light. Come and watch it."

Her drama project in Dawson was to work on couple of plays. Much of her work so far has been historical in nature, and her one-woman project on the life of Mary Shelley (noted fiction," she says, "but I didn't 19th century feminist and also come here specifically to write author of Frankenstein) follows something about the North, that pattern.

She is also working on a contemporary play about life in the foothills of Alberta, where she lived for a time and where her children were born. She says she hasn't done a lot of work previously that directly related to her own life's experiences.

This seems to have opened up a new form of creative expression for her, and she has found herself writing chapters of a prose memoir about her early adult life, finding a sort of wry humour and whimsy in events that seemed very trying at the time she was in the middle of them.

"I guess I needed to get that distance from them. At the time I was too busy living those events."

Her writing life has had a number of interruptions.

"For about five years I had two out of three kids in diapers and was busy being mom."

Subsequent to that she returned to working at her parents' insurance company and ended up taking on more and more of the business when her father became ill.

After a few years of that she decided to continue her interrupted education, eventually scoring a full scholarship to work on her Masters of Fine Arts in Creative Writing from the University of British Columbia, where she now teaches Creative Writing.

She has concentrated her writing efforts on drama over the years. Only recently has she attempted prose fiction and memoir.

"I wanted to see what that would feel like."

She's finding narrative/reflective prose both interesting and challenging, and having the opportunity to try that work out in readings with audiences in both Whitehorse and Dawson was extremely valuable to her. In addition to working on her plays she revised two chapters of her memoir, (working title: "We Don't Even Have Any Pickles") and finished a third while she was here.

"Those are turning out to be quite fun to write. I'll be spending a bit more time on those, I think, not as a diversion exactly, but it's just another way of writing. I feel it's a bit of a different process, so it's nice to switch it up and try something new."

Since her ability to write about places she's lived in seems to take time to mature, it may be a while before anything related to Dawson City bubbles to the top of her mind.

"It's interesting that both of the pieces I've been working on here go back 20 years, so it may be a while before Dawson comes up. If an idea occurs to me after I leave here I would definitely come back – provided I could find a place to stay."

Yukon Wildlife

By Debra Kennedy

In the Yukon, the animals were shy, Unlike the brazen bison and bears Posing by the rocky roadside in northern BC, And the black-tipped fox trotting beside our truck Carefully carrying its rodent prize between its teeth On the dusty North West Territory road.

In the Yukon, the brush and stunted trees teemed With reticent, elusive wildlife, Caught in fleeting, enticing glimpses: Caribou, antlers like tundra trees, moving east then west In unison away from our approach, Speckled ptarmigan and ground squirrels Flitting over the crunchy brown gravel and slippery mud,

The copper flash of a fox leaping through the low shrubs, Even the enigmatic hoary-tipped grizzly Slipping silently, furtively into the profusion of arctic

Nature

What is Your Threshold?

Story and Graphic by Florian Boulais

As we were conceived in the womb of our mother, the sperm met the egg. We start up as a mono cellular organism. We start up in life the same way life started up 3.5 billion years a go: as a mono cellular organism. Then, within 9 months, we go through 3.5 billions years of evolution: after one cell, we become multi-cellular, then we start to look like a fish, then we look like a mammal, then we look like a monkey. Then, once we shed our in utero fur, we start to look like a human.

We are not born naked. We are not just a person; we are the final link of a multitude of women and men that loved each other, an unbroken chain of life that led us to us: a fully grown modern human being. We know this. Sometimes, we can feel it too. Some times, when we are relaxed enough, when our mind has room to wander instead of being distracted by moving pictures or stimulated by crowds or dazed by substances, we can experience the age old lineage; some might call it our ancestors, others the collective unconscious or others god. It is all about language at that point.

Language and culture shape our worldview. We are not prisoners of the worldview that we have had handed down by our culture, even though it is sometimes hard to see through.

The corporate culture is something that has been handed down to us and we are told, every minute of our life that it is the way to go: the economy needs to keep on growing.

What would you say if a new government that is a merger between political and corporate power was illegally put in place? What if that government had a marketing machine that was brainwashing people into believing that the natural world is only there to be used up to make the rich ones even richer? What if any action against that government was met with violent repression such as sometimes lethal tasers and tear gas, would you fight back?

Would you fight back if the new government poisoned food supplies, made rivers unfit for swimming, made them so filthy that you would not even dream about drinking from them any more? If that new government did systemically deforest and leave behind only sterile land would you fight back? Give me a threshold; give me a specific point at which you would finally take a stand. If you can't give me that threshold, why not?

I'm Getting Old and I Don't Like It! (Or Maybe I Do)

by Lisa McKenna

My breasts droop and I can't poop! BUT as my body fails ... my mind grows, and grows, and grows. It's quite a wonderful experience to age.

My Grandma told me when I was only 20 that I had to learn to 'grow old gracefully'. This meant, to her, to never dye your hair because you earned every one of those white ones! You could NOT get a 'tummy-tuck' or new bosoms. You weren't even allowed a perm. I love her.

Human beings age physically, psychologically, and socially. Some aging brings about an increase in cultural knowledge but it can also bring about a decrease in reaction times and memory recall.

Aging has been a natural phenomenon forever and I suppose it will continue! There are different sorts of aging. There is individual, chronological age, which is tallied by the number of days you have been alive.

There is Universal aging, which all people share, as our earth grows older. There is population aging when the older members of our society, due to migration, longer life expectancy (because of better medical knowledge), and a lower birth rate, increase in percentage compared to the rest of the population.

Aging has been discussed since 1582 when Muhammud ibn Yusaf al-Harawi wrote a book about aging. Within it he discusses the effects of diet, housing conditions, environment, and some drugs that increase, or decrease, life expectancy.

BUT humans are not the only things that age. Our earth has gone through ages, as in the Bronze Age and the Iron Age and the Industrial Age. Our Solar System is aging. Our Sun is aging. My cat is aging. The meat hanging in my garage is aging. Even a good whiskey needs time to age! Age ... what a funny word. In the dictionary it is said to be "a length of time that a person or thing has existed or is likely to exist".

This brings us in to the concept of time but that is a very controversial subject and it will have to wait till the next issue!

KIDS' CORNER

Stories and illustrations by Lisa Michelle

isfor CRCLES

WE have done the alphabet from A to Z; WE have done our numbers from 1 to 13! NOW, in the New Year WE are going to start on shapes! Pretty cool, eh?

I think we'll start with a circle. The word 'circle' comes from the Greek word 'kirkos', where the 'ker' part means to turn or to bend.

"The world is a circle without no beginning and nobody knows where it really ends." (The Pajama Game, 1954)

Actually the World looks like a circle but it's a little wider around the middle. The Moon is also seen as a circle, as well as the Sun.

Did you know that the Sun burns at 5,530 C°!!! AND it is also 109 times bigger than Earth. AND it was formed about 4.6 Billion years ago. AND it takes 8 minutes and 16 seconds for it's light to hit the Earth!

There are circles all through nature. A flower has a circle in the middle, our eyes are circular, our hair can grow in circles, tree trunks are circular, (most of the time), and jellyfish look like circles. Circles are everywhere!

Circles helped mankind to event the WHEEL! And GEARS!

Medieval scholars thought that the circle represented perfection. They also discovered that a triangle could make a perfect circle! (But that's for the next issue!) See you then...

HEY KIDS!

Can you find circles in Dawson? E-mail Lisa at klondikesun@ northwestel.net with your stories and pictures and you could be in the next Klondike Sun!
