Old CIBC Building to be Declared a Municipal Historic Site

The purchase of the Old CIBC Building on Front Street by the City of Dawson at the end of January was just the first step in the town's plan to save the place from further decay and end years of complaints from both locals and visitors about the state of the building.

The price tag of $170,000 was a bit startling, but this resolution to a problem that has been festering on Front Street since 1989 when the bank moved out and sold it to a private landowner, is welcome here.

The next step is to declare it a Municipal Historic Site. One might expect this to be a forgone conclusion, since the building has been a National Historic Site (with a Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada plaque to prove it) since 1988, but that fact didn't stop the national bank from deserting the site it had occupied since the Gold Rush the very next year and moving to the Dawson Plaza, which was then owned by the company that bought the bank building.

The Bank of Commerce (before the merger with the Imperial Bank of Can. In 1961), arrived in Dawson at the behest of the Dominion Government (as it was often called then) to set up banking in 1898 and the present building came into being in 1901.

As the plaque mounted on the boulder says, "this Renaissance Revival building is one of Canada's finest surviving structures clad in decorative pressed metal." The metal is shaped and painted to look like the stone buildings that the style imitates.

There aren't very many of these buildings left in Canada - and Dawson has two of them, the other one being the Masonic Lodge four blocks up Queen Street. It started out as a Carnegie Library.

Another reason people look at it can be found written on a second plaque near the boarded up front door.

"Robert Service was among the clerks who worked here, before his poetry earned him financial independence and the honorary title 'Bard of the Yukon'."

Less than a fortnight after the purchase the town made its first $moves \, towards \, designating \, the \, building, \, having \, already \, consulted$ with a structural engineer to make sure the building was worth trying to save.

The private owner didn't let it fall apart. It had sunk into the ground somewhat after the flood of 1979 and it now has a full basement foundation that it did not have when the bank owned it. But the paint has peeled, some of the tin has blown off (and apparently been salvaged) and all the windows were broken out and boarded up years ago.

Old CIBC Building

The bylaw to formalize the designation process received first reading on February 12 and the public hearing took place on May 6.

Attendance at this meeting was not large, and there were no objections to the proposal. This was not at all unexpected after the outpouring of positive comments on social media immediately after the purchase. The discussion was polite and there were merely expressions of concern that whatever plans the town might have for renovations be thoroughly discussed with locals, particularly those with some expertise in restoring derelict buildings.

A restoration architect, John Key, has been contracted to prepare a plan for the next phase of the project, which will include cosmetic repairs to the exterior of the building and sealing up the various leaks in the structure.

There is still quite a bit of junk inside the building and city manager Jeff Renaud reported that the Dawson Firefighters Assoc. will be hosting a clean-up day there in the near future, in time to allow the building to be opened during Parks Canada's planned Doors Open Dawson event which will take place during Gold Show Weekend.

Just what the future for the building might be is still an open question, but Renaud did say he has had some conversations with upper management of the CIBC, as well as many other suggestions.

The bylaw designating the building as a Municipal Historic Site will receive second and third reading at the council meeting on May 14.

Tourism Remains Strong, Data Suggests

Press Release

Data captured in the Yukon Visitor Tracking Program carried out last summer has confirmed the importance and growth potential of the tourism industry to the territory's economy.

Key findings from the 2012 program were released at the recent Tourism Industry Association of Yukon's annual general meeting and spring conference held in Haines, Alaska.

Data collected reflect travel between June 1 and Sept. 30, 2012, and include non-Yukon travelers only.

Results show that the number of visitors to the Yukon rose by 25 per cent since 2004, a three per cent growth rate per year, with visitor spending up by 29 per cent.

Annual revenue for the tourism industry exceeds $200 million each year.

Increases were also experienced in length of stay and visitor arrivals by air. Visitation from other Canadian jurisdictions and overseas markets showed strong growth.

The findings also provided information on pre-trip planning and booking, trip profiles that included length of stay, and demographics.

The survey was completed by 3,844 people.

The last comprehensive visitor exit survey was undertaken in 2004.

The Yukon received 63,000 more visitors in the summer of 2012 compared to the same time period in 2004.

There was a 45 per cent increase in visitors flying in, while highway travel expanded by 21 per cent.

Twenty-seven per cent of visitors were between the ages of 45 and 54; and 24 per cent were aged between 55 and 64.

Wildlife viewing opportunities were the number one attraction at 58 per cent, with satisfaction rated at 73 per cent.

The Klondike Gold Rush history was another draw, with 40 per cent of visitors stating it was important to them, with a 73 per cent satisfaction rate.

The 2012 visitor exit survey was available to visitors last summer through kiosks, tablets and paper surveys at locations across Yukon.

The survey results will help tourism operators and businesses make informed business decisions related to their client base, the type of visitor experience their clients are seeking, and how to maximize tourism revenue.

"Yukon is attracting growing numbers of visitors from around the world and the industry is very strong," Tourism and Culture Minister Mike Nixon said Tuesday.

"This data provides industry and government with valuable information about our visitors and insights into the industry growth that is occurring."

Funding for the two-year study was provided by the Departments of Tourism and Culture and Economic Development, and the Canadian Northern Economic Development Agency's Strategic Investments in Northern Economic Development fund.

Uffish Thoughts: Dawson is the Land of Volunteers

By Dan Davidson

Chatting with Dawson International Short Film Festival producer Dan Sokolowski at the end of a busy weekend in late March, he made the point that there were about 80 volunteers involved in putting the festival on and that they contributed something like 800 hours of their time between last year's festival and this.

That's true, to some degree, of all the events that take place under the umbrella of the Dawson City Arts Society, of which the Klondike Institute of Arts and Culture is the program arm. KIAC has several staff positions, but depends heavily on the willingness of people connected to the arts community to make things work.

It's also true of major programs that run under the banner of the Klondike Visitors Association. The KVA also has some permanent employees, and hires a lot of summer staff to run Diamond Tooth Gerties, but many of the special events it puts on during the year could not happen if people were not willing to turn out and give their time.

This winter's Trek Over the Top was a success because of the cooperation between and new ones have begun, but is another group providing Dawgs, the local snowmobile association.

Our winter events would be pretty thin without the volunteers who staff the Yukon Quest checkpoint. Organizer Gaby Sgaga was surprised by the high number of people who turned out for this event this year. Many of the same people later made sure the Percy DeWolfe Memorial Mail Race ran smoothly.

The Klondike Sun newspaper, my own volunteer activity, employs two part time office people, a bookkeeper, but many hours of volunteer time, by a core group of about five persons, goes into distribution and subscriptions, while a number of people other than me produce the copy and photographs that fill up the space around the advertising.

Recently while I was out of town, both my wife, Betty, and my good friend, Shirley Pennell, acted as my eyes and ears so I could eventually cover both the Yukon School of Visual Arts graduation and the piano conservator's lecture at the museum.

Here at the Sun we did a survey a few years ago to find out how many organizations there were in town. It's out of date now, as some have folded 40, and I'd wager it's still about like that. Not bad at all for a town of under 2000 people.

The local Chamber of Commerce sometimes has an office manager and sometimes doesn't, but it chugs along on the efforts of a number of dedicated business owners who see it as filling a need. This year's Gold Show, coming up at the end of the week, is a tribute to that hard work.

The Dawson City Music Festival has one year round employee and one or two summer workers, but literally dozens of people give up their time to billet and feed performers, set up the venue and staff the security, merchandizingandconcession booths.

CFYT-fm has a program manager, but runs with many volunteer DJs and a membership of two dozen or Recycling in the town would hardly exist at all without the efforts of the Conservation Klondike Society, which operates the recycling centre in town. It does employ some workers, but when things get out of hand, as they often do, volunteers pitch in to make it work.

The Dawson Humane Society

the KVA and the Dawson Sled the number then was around a much needed service in served since then. the community, operating the animal shelter and cooperating with the town's bylaw department to look after strays and abandoned animals.

> The Dawson Women's Shelter has been providing a needed service for many years and has recently been able to expand into the other half of the Yukon Housing duplex they occupy.

> The newly minted Dawson Food Bank group, now operating out of the Dawson Community Chapel, has been very busy since they formed last fall, with over 400 bags of food (each good for two days)

Volunteers have likewise taken on the task of putting on the Tuesday night Summer Workers' Suppers that are a feature of the month of May.

Most of the organizations I've mentioned have governing boards that are completely volunteer based, of course, and some people serve on more than one of them.

Whether you're talking about events or services, Dawson runs on volunteer effort, and without people willing to give of their time and talents, the place would not be the effective community that

Submitted

Stuart Leary has been selected to attend Lester B. Pearson United World College of the Pacific (Pearson College) for two years starting in the fall of 2013.

Lester B. Pearson United World College of the Pacific is one of twelve United World Colleges (UWC) around the world, and the only one in North America. It bears the name of the late Canadian Prime Minister Lester Bowles Pearson, winner of the 1957 Nobel Peace Prize. The mission of UWC and Pearson College is to make education a force to unite people, nations and cultures for peace and a sustainable future. Pearson College follows the International Baccalaureate curriculum, covering the final year of high school and a pre-university gap year. The College is located on the shores of Pedder Bay, near Victoria, British Columbia.

Twenty five Canadian students and seventy five foreign students are selected each year. Stuart Leary is the second student from Dawson City to attend Pearson College since the College was established in 1974 and the second in the last five years. All Pearson students attend on a full scholarship that includes tuition, room and board.

From Friends of Bear Creek Society

Press Release

The Friends of Bear Creek Society was formed on March 6th, 2013 to ensure the ongoing and future well being of the Historic Yukon Consolidated Gold Corporation's Bear Creek compound.

Our goal is to bring together those people that are interested and concerned about the future of Bear Creek and to take on whatever work and responsibility that may be required to achieve that end.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank Parks Canada for protecting Bear Creek to this point and look forward to working with them finding solutions going forward to ensure that this valuable Heritage site has the attention and the stage it greatly deserves.

Our guiding principles are:

- 1. Make Bear Creeks buildings and artifacts accessible while ensuring their long term protection.
- 2. Promoting a deeper understanding and appreciation of Bear Creek and YCGC.
- 3. And to work with other societies, museums, organizations and community institutions in a concerted effort to protection and preserve and showcase Bear Creek.

HILKER, Robert George (Bob)

August 7, 1929 - April 23, 2013

Bob Hilker passed away peacefully on Tuesday. April 23, 2013 at the age of 83 years. Bob is lovingly remembered by his amazing wife Roxanne; daughters Anne (Jan), Susan (Chris), Roberta (Dustin) and Rhonda: grandchildren Jordan, Rebecca, Andie, Erin, Russell, Caitlin and Michael; and his sister Joyce (Romeo). Bob was born August 7, 1929 in Stettler, Alberta. Bob was a geologist, receiving his degree at Michigan Technology in 1961. He started his own geological consulting business in 1969 in Whitehorse, Yukon. In addition to hard rock mineral exploration, he was also a specialist in placer gold mining. Bob had many experiences in his field of work, travelling across Canada, the U.S., and even as far as China and Bolivia. Since 1991, Bob has been an active member of the Al Azhar Shriners Air Corps. He loved reading, time with his grandchildren, jelly beans, scotch whiskey, rocks, ice cream in Cochrane, coffee, cooking, walks and warm sweaters. A celebration of Bob's life was held in Calgary April 27, 2013. If friends so desire, memorial tributes may be made to Al Azhar Shriners Transportation Fund (5225 -101 Street N.W., Calgary, Alberta T3L 1S4). In living memory of Bob Hilker, a tree will be planted at Big Hill Springs Park, Cochrane.

Yukon School of Visual Arts Graduates Fourteen this Spring

It was fitting that the opening minutes of the graduation ceremony for the 2012-13 class at the Yukon School of Visual Arts (SOVA) should be filled with a Piano and Projections Prelude by a talented student, Suzanne Roberts. There had already been displays of finished art in the Confluence Gallery and of video based art in the ODD Gallery.

The graduation exercises took place in the Oddfellows Hall, more generally known these days as the Klondike Institute of Art and Culture (KIAC).

Following Roberts' recital Dr. Curtis Collins, the college's Program Director, introduced Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Deputy Chief Clara Van Bibber, who offered an opening prayer and congratulations to the graduates.

Collins then took a moment to honour the three SOVA staffers who he described as being the "mechanics of the place": Kit Hepburn, Library Technician; John Steins, Studio Technician; and Kyla MacArthur, Administrative Officer.

Next up the podium was trio, another speakers representing Yukon College, the Dawson City Arts Society (DCAS) and the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, the three organizations whose partnership has made YSOVA possible.

Dr. Deborah Bartlette, the Dean of Applied Arts at Yukon College, was in full academic regalia.

"I wear it for the students," she explained. 'Once you've earned a doctorate you get to wear this ... to honour the academic achievement of the students. You only wear it at events like this, so I only get to wear it twice a year, but I'm wearing it to honour your students and what you've achieved this year. Congratulations to you all.

"I want to thank you all for having the courage to study art at a time when business schools are full and everyone admires those good, solid, kinds of program that are going to get you jobs when you graduate.

"But the world needs artists, and you took a leap of faith in deciding to study art, whether you go on to complete a degree or go on to earn your living through art, or simply have an art practice throughout your lives.

"Artists blow open our minds, and a world without art is a world without soul, so thank you all, and congratulations again."

Gail Calder, vice president of DCAS, spoke next.

"We are very proud of what we've accomplished here in the last few years, since 2007, leading to this graduating class of 2013. As our grads move forward I hope you will reflect back to this year and return to share your future successes with us one day. More so, I'd like to thank each and every one of you for your contribution to this community while you were here; your involvement through the arts has certainly enriched our lives in the past ten months."

Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in's Director of Heritage, Jackie Olsen, herself an artist, spoke last.

"The Yukon School of Visual Arts and its students have turned Dawson City into Canada's northern capital for art education. As an artist myself, I am proud that my home community has recognized the value of nurturing your talent. As the Trondek Hwëch'in representative on the SOVA governance council, I'm pleased so many ... artists have chosen our town to advance their skills. Congratulations to every student here tonight. Your achievements honour our town. I wish you all the best in your next steps as artists.'

Olsen made special mention of two TH citizens, young and old. Tamika Knutson was a member of the class this year and Elder Percy Henry was to be presented with an Honorary Diploma for Northern Studies later in the evening.

Following these speeches the three representatives sat down to sign the documents that would renew the tripartite partnership for another year.

Faculty members Bill Burns, Nicole Rayburn and Meg Walker each made brief speeches about their experiences during the year, concluding that it had been both challenging and fun. Walker concluded with a quotation from Douglas Adams' Life, the Universe and Everything, which contains an almanac called The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy: "The Guide says there's an art to flying – or rather a knack to flying. The knack lies in learning how to throw yourself at the ground - and miss."

Tamika Knutson spoke of her experience at the college, where she applied late last year while being at lose ends after months of travelling abroad. The year had, she said, given her a direction for her life and she going to continue her studies in Nova Scotia next year.

Collin Curtis introduced TH Elder Percy Henry, who was presented with the first Honorary Diploma that Yukon College has given out to a Yukoner in some time.

Yukon College Vice-Chair Patti Balsillie presented the diploma.

MLA Sandy Silver sent greetings from Whitehorse, where he was in attendance at the Legislature.

"Our artistic community is a precious defining characteristic in Dawson and it has a positive effect on our image on the national and international stage. I am happy to report that the Yukon Hospital Corporation will finally allow local art in the new hospital. Also, I am working on housing solutions for students and staff that will hopefully be announced in the very near future. It is of great importance to me that potential students are not turned away because they have no place to live."

Silver noted that the class contained friends of his as well a former student from his years at Robert Service School.

Mayor Wayne Potoroka, who once served on the governance board as part of his day job with TH, was the keynote speaker for the evening, and so the audience learned of some of the alternative names that had been bruited about for the school.

"(If) memory serves, we spent an excessive amount of time on what to call the school. In fact, you students were close to being graduates of the Blackstone School of Art or the Dawson City School of Fine Arts—SOFA , which, in retrospect, is not a good acronym to hang on any post-secondary institution."

"So thank you, students, for allowing this town to share in the pride of your success because it feels just a little bit like our own.

"But thank you, most of all, for the impact you've had on our community. Dawson City improves when creatives hone their craft in our town: our worldview expands through your art and fresh ideas; our understanding of ourselves develops when we see our culture reflected in your creations; our community is enriched with your enthusiasm and energy. Our lives are better because you're here.

"Whether you're from Dawson, the Yukon, or Outside, we're honoured you chose our town in which to grow, both as artists and people. On behalf of Dawson City residents and City of Dawson Council, thank you and congratulations on your achievement.

"If next year finds you in a southern art school, I hope you leave with good memories of the place where your arts education began. And if you stick around and make your life here in Dawson, and there are always a few that do, welcome. We're happy to have you."

Presentation of the diplomas was in no particular order, as the students, according to Collins, had refused to sit down in alphabetical order. The class included Andree Belanger, Bernhardt, Darcie Derian Blake, Adonika Clark, Isabel Ford, Tamika Knutson, Vivian McIntosh, Sarah Jo O'Neil, Robert Paul, Suzanne Roberts, Dustin Sheldon, Colleen Smith, Karen Thomas and Sean Warnick.

Piano Restoration is a Tricky Business

by Dan Davidson

On April 29 conservator Greg Kelly gave a slide lecture on his work in general and his work on the Dawson City Museum's damaged Grow & Christopher Box Grand Piano in particular.

Kelly is one of two furniture conservators in private practice in Canada, and agreed to take on the restoration of the finish on the museum's piano which was damaged during the Easter weekend of 2012 when a pipe in the sprinkler system pulled apart and dumped untold gallons of water into the east end of the north gallery as well as the visible storage exhibit on the 2nd floor of the museum.

Kelly arrived in Dawson on April 15 to begin a two-week process of treating the piano. The work involved lifting areas of the original finish and softening them so that they could be spread and blended into the areas of loss. This process is critical in order that as much of the original finish be preserved as possible.

The Victorian Square [Box] Grand Piano at the Museum was purchased by the donor from the Flora Dora Dance Hall and subsequently donated to the Dawson City Museum. It was of a type that the New York firm of Grow & Christopher produced in 1855, in the middle of a ten year partnership that lasted from 1847 to 1857, when they went out of business.

Kelley estimates that the piano would have cost a comfortably wealthy family around $440.00 at the time that it was purchased new. That would have been the equivalent of a year's pay at the time.

Slideshow of various restorations he had done on a variety of types of furniture, including an antique piano from 1777.

He and Museum Director Laura Mann led a discussion of the intricacies of selling personal items that are considered to be of national historic significance. Kelly discussed the various types of wood that have been used historically and how he identifies them when there is a need to replace a section of a piece.

For the piano he had to determine what kind of finish there was on the piano and then figure out how to work with it.

Both he and Mann said there is a difference between conserving an object and restoring it.

"As a conservator," Kelly said, "I'm looking at each little part of it and trying to treat different areas as sensitively as I can; and trying to preserve as much of the original material and working out a way to do it.

"A restorer might sort of apply one system to the whole thing. They might go, ok, we're going to strip this and refinish it, or we're going to wax it or whatever. Part of my job is to keep it looking historic and preserve what I can."

There were some parts of the piano where the finish had been too badly damaged to be conserved, but most of it received the conservator's style treatment.

"Acknowledging the Past. Celebrating the Present. Moving Forward in Unity."

Story & Photos by Dan Davidson

April 30 marked an important day for both the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in and the Robert Service School. A mid-morning assembly was called to jointly celebrate the installation of the Statement of Apology to Former Students of Indian Residential Schools, on behalf of the Government of Canada, which was originally delivered in Parliament on June 11, 2008, in the school. The assembly honoured the community's former residential school students.

The secondary purpose of the assembly was to celebrate the amount of First Nation teachings and activities that have been incorporated into the classrooms of this school, beginning some 15 years ago with Hän Language classes, and exploding into a variety of cultural events over the last five years.

Thus the title of the assembly: "Acknowledging the Past. Celebrating the Present. Moving Forward in Unity."

Emcee Glenda Bolt, Manager of the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre, introduced TH Elder Angie Joseph Rear, who gave an opening prayer in Hän. Madeleine de Repentigny explained the significance of the circle seating arrangement.

"In the circle there is no beginning and no end. All is equal and balanced... When in the circle you should respect and acknowledge all creation holistically."

Because some of the subject matter of the assembly held great emotional import for some people, Bolt announced that there were counselors in attendance to offer support if it was needed.

Bolt delivered a brief summary of the history of Residential Schools, a program established by successive governments and run often by the established churches, a program rooted in the belief that the indigenous people on British North America were somehow culturally and racially inferior to the newly settler arrived European culture. The state set out to integrate the local population with the new arrivals by a policy of assimilation, a policy that involved raising aboriginal children in residential schools and depriving them of their parents, language and cultural heritage.

"The children were raised," Bolt said, "without the support of their families, and they were taught to be ashamed of being First Nations."

The policy has had long ranging intergenerational consequences that are still being worked on.

Bolt read from a portion of Prime Minister Harper's speech on the day of the apology.

the approximately "To 80,000 living former students, and all family members and communities, the Government of Canada now recognizes that it was wrong to forcibly remove children from their homes and we apologize for having done this. We now recognize that it was wrong to separate children from rich and vibrant cultures and traditions, that it created a void in many lives and communities, and we apologize for having done this. We now recognize that, in separating children from their families, we undermined the ability of many to adequately parent their own children and sowed the seeds for generations to follow, and we apologize for having done

Roy Johnson was one of the former students who were in attendance in Ottawa when the apology was delivered.

"Every survivor has their own story across Canada," he told the assembly. "In some places, their language is dying; so I say to you young students, don't let it.

"At the apology, when the Prime Minister said 'I apologize' the people in the audience had tears of joy; there was hooting and hollering and crying, including me. It was something to witness what happened in the Parliament Hall. For 150 years we lived under the suppression of the government and the churches, so the suffering today still continues and the survivors will always remember what happened."

Johnson was assisted by Leilani Sharp-Chan in unveiling the famed copy of the Apology, which will hang in the front foyer of the school. This is one of the recommendations of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission for all schools across the nation.

The emphasis of the assembly shifted as Bolt introduced an 11 minute slide and video produced by the school to show all the ways in which RSS and TH have worked together over the years to bring TH culture into the education of Dawson's children. These include lessons in native history, field trips onto the land, art activities and special events such as First Hunt, Moose Hunt, First Fish and Spring Camp that teach elements of First Nations culture to all the school's students.

Georgette McLeod, TH's Cultural Education Coordinator, spoke about all these elements and how the last five years have seen a rapid growth in this area of education.

"TH is also now partnering with Yukon Government Education to have the culture camps accredited, to offer credit to high school students to participate in the camps," she said.

"There has been jointly organized cultural programming such as the Myth and Medium series, the Justice production, and the jigging club. TH staff have made strong efforts to be guest lecturers and classroom support people for the school. TH has been building a library of resources for the school (as well as) curriculum resources to be used throughout the school. One of the ones we're working on now is for the Känächá scrapbook project."

This is the group that produced the book Tr'ëhuch'in Näwtr'udäh'a (Finding Our Way Home), a 116-page coffee table sized book of Residential School survivor memories from the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in.

"The Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in and the Robert Service School have been working hard together," McLeod said, "to bring all ages and all cultures together to share."

Along with the plaque, the school will also now display the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in flag, with its distinctive center crest of moose head, snowshoe and salmon within an open rope and flower circle. It was designed 20 years ago, in 1993, by Jenny Christianson, whose grandchildren now attend the school.

In celebration of the presentation, the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Singers sang the "Flag Song" to bring the ceremony to a close.

The event was attended by all the school's students, many of their parents and other members of the community, as well as members of the TH council, Mayor Wayne Potoroka and members of the municipal council and MLA Sandy Silver, formerly a teacher at RSS.

The day continued with a feast held at the TH Community Hall, where entertainment was provided by the Jigging Club performing a number of different dances.

Great Leaders: Simón Bolívar Territorial Premiers Drive Canadian Future with Northern Vision

Press Release

Canada's three northern premiers have renewed their commitment to work together to build a strong vibrant North for the benefit of all northerners and Canadians.

Yukon Premier Darrell Pasloski held discussions with Northwest Territories Premier Bob McLeod and Nunavut Premier Eva Aariak at the 11th annual Northern Premiers' Forum in Whitehorse on May 9 and 10.

Premiers agreed to renew the 2007 pan-territorial document, A Northern Vision: A Stronger North and a Better Canada to help set strategic direction and reflect increasing national and international interests in the North.

"Our joint goal as premiers is to continue to work together to create healthy, sustainable communities," Pasloski said. "We had positive and productive discussions under this year's theme of Driving the Canadian Future with a Northern Vision. We made progress on topics that have a direct impact on northerners - infrastructure, including roads, energy telecommunications; housing; access to the Arctic coast; and training and skills development."

Premier McLeod said: "A strong North is good for Canada. The prime minister has often talked about the importance of the North to the economic future of the country. As northern premiers we are working together to ensure that the North's economic and energy potential is realized."

Participating in the forum by telephone because weather conditions prevented her from travelling, Nunavut Premier Eva Aariak said: "Economic development for the North is still the top priority among northern premiers. My colleagues and I discussed developing our northern Aboriginal workforce through skills and job training, as well as sustainable sources of energy for our growing economies."

Pasloskiadded: "Development for the people of the North is a theme for us, as Canada becomes chair of the Arctic Council. We discussed how the territories can contribute our northern perspectives and expertise to Canada's efforts at this important international forum and look forward to playing a key role in helping the federal government achieve concrete results for northerners."

The federal government commences its two-year term as chair of the Arctic Council on May 15.

Inspiration Brought Youthful Music to the Stage Once Again

Story & Photos by Dan Davidson

The ballroom at the Oddfellows Hall was packed twice on April 27 as parents and locals crowded in to see young Jack Amos' production of "Jellicle Cats", a kids only presentation of 10 out of the 21 songs from Sir Andrew Lloyd Webber's hugely successful musical. "Cats".

Lloyd Webber was inspired by the poetry in T.S. Elliot's Old Possums' Book of Practical Cats. Amos was inspired by seeing the musical in Victoria. Since there > hasn't been a musical production for children's voices here since Betty Davidson (who staged a couple dozen of them) retired from Robert Service School five years ago, 12 year old Jack could be forgiven for thinking that this sort of thing has hardly ever happened in Dawson. For certain, anyway, it has been too long since the days of "Oliver!", "Toad of Toad Hall", "Aladdin", "Treasure Island" and "Oz", just to name a few.

What was surprising – or maybe not so much when you get to know Jack – is that he decided to form a company (It's Going to Happen), scale Lloyd Webber's production down to something that Dawson could handle, and persuade several dozen adults and 14 youngsters to help him put the whole thing together over a period of a couple of months.

The result was a tremendous lot of fun.

Robin Miller came up with an effective and attractive set design. Perry Kolpin helped to build them, along with Bo Yeung and several parents. Sandra Hall and Yukon School of Visual Arts student Joey O'Neil coached the young voices to the point where most of the lyrics were on pitch and loud enough to carry to the very back row. Katie Pearse worked with the group on choreography and assisted Jack, who was both the director and the producer of the show (though Jack's mom, Bridget probably didn't get her name in large enough type in the program).

Finally, and essentially, there was YSOVA student Suzanne Roberts, who not only played the tunes that were being sung, but managed to fill up the spaces in between with appropriate bridging music along with Clive Betts on drums.

The program isn't clear on exactly who came up with the make-up and the costumes, but it seems to have been the parents, with the assistance and advice of Mary Gartshore.

The actors and their parts were as follows: Michael Betts (McCavity the Mystery Cat), Paige Forester (Rumpleteaser), Emma Tom Tom (Mungojerrie), Frazer Graham (Gus, the Theatre Cat), Devin Forester (Bustopher Jones), Madison Betts (Demeter), Lochlan Hnetka (Growltiger), Jack Amos (Shimbleshanks, the Railway Cat), Elizabeth Caws Geick (Jemima), Alysha Soliguen (Griddlebone), Oliver Flagel (Alonzo), Jesse Amos (Bombalurina), Christopher Tom Tom (Magical Mister Mistofelees).

Contributors to the event, which needed both money and help, included the Klondike Institute of Art and Culture, the City of Dawson, Skookum Brand, the Downtown Hotel, Arctic Inland Resources, the Robert Service School, St. Paul's Anglican Church, The Dawson Gospel Chapel, and Bombay Peggy's.

People, aside from parents, who helped out included Daisy Maguire, Marjorie Logue, Carol MacBride, Peggy Kolpin, David Curtis, Bo Yeung, Mick, Robin Miller, Colleen Booth, Mary Gartshore, Louise Drugan and Ian Nyland.

Can I Take Your Picture?

By Dan Davidson

When Michael Markowsky set out to draw the faces of everyone in Dawson during his stay as Artist in Residence at Maccaulay House through the Klondike Institute of Art and Culture's program, he hadn't completely thought it through.

The mechanics were simple enough. He would take a person's picture with his iPad and then, using a combination of the tablet and his laptop computer, turn that photo into a drawing.

"When you do the math it works out to about 25 portraits a day," he said in a press release early in the project, but he has since realized that may not be possible.

When we chatted a few weeks later, he was a bit chagrined.

"I didn't realize how complex a project like this would be. There's so much of the administrative part of things - managing all that contact information – the whole workflow is quite complex."

I first met Markowsky during an event in the Oddfellows Hall ballroom, and mine is one of the first pictures that he took. He shot a number of people that night, and entered their basic contact information in a database, but those were quick interviews and since then his methodology has changed.

In an attempt to get to most of the people living in the core of Dawson, he's taken to going door to door, explaining the project and then having a chat with his latest subject. He's finding that everyone in Dawson has a bit of a story, and getting one picture can mean a cup of tea or coffee and an hour long conversation, not far off the length of this interview.

"People here are so open that you hear so many interesting things."

Whether at a public event, in one of the town's watering holes, or on the doorstep, he's found that people are quite willing to participate in the project and seem to think that it's a neat idea. However, the idea that he can get from photo to portrait in 20 to 30 minutes hasn't worked out as planned.

The result is that he's done about 200 finished drawings, has 100 photos waiting to be worked on, and will be hard pressed to manage the remaining 1000 or so people in the time he has left before June 3 when his residency ends.

A few of the familiar Dawson faces that have been captured so far. Can you name them all?

Markowsky likes to work fast, and is known for creating very quick sketches while riding inside or on top of moving cars, buses, boats, trains and airplanes. Later he uses the small sketches to produce much larger finished works.

He has worked in a number of extreme settings, including a two week stint at the North Pole a year ago where, on an assignment for the Dept. of Defense, He spent two weeks making "plein-air" landscape paintings, outside in the minus 35°C weather.

He is best known for his landscape work, but he

His current portrait work is a further development of his earlier practice, which used a combination of camera obscura and computer technology to do live paintings.

This, in turn, is a bit of throwback to his childhood fascination with tracing comic book art.

While some people might think that tracing from a photo or projected image is cheating, there's considerable evidence that the many of the best known realist painters did exactly that historically for parts of their work just as soon the technology for projecting images was available after the 15th century.

And it's not quite a simple as just tracing the image, he expains.

"When you enlarge a photo to work on it the actual features are quite blurred. It's much more subjective than people imagine as to where those lines go."

If you have been one of Markow-sky's subjects you will eventually receive an email copy of your portrait. If you haven't take part, or if you want to see the entire set, he will be donating copies of them to the Dawson City Museum for archiving or later display.

North 60 Petro Launches Riverbank Restoration

Press Release

Whitehorse, Yukon - North 60 Petro Ltd. is pleased to announce that the first phase of their multi-million dollar project to protect the Yukon River from historical contamination will begin this May, 2013.

North 60 has been working with all levels of government and stakeholders for a number of years to address historical petroleum contamination at their 146 Industrial Road site. The contamination dates back to the Canol refinery in World War II. A detailed plan of restoration has now been approved to proceed through various processes (YESAB, Yukon Government, Yukon Transport Canada, Water Board and DFO). North 60 has committed to rigorous environmental protection standards and reporting to ensure the long-term protection of the Yukon River.

The first phase in Spring 2013 will be a pilot project to excavate, remediate and reconstruct an initial section of the Yukon River foreshore. The works have been planned to avoid sensitive fisheriesperiodswhilemanaging for safety of boaters on the river. The engineered design includes the placement of a temporary sheet-pile barrier a few meters into the river to isolate the excavation area and prevent silty water from entering the river during the works. The riverbank will be excavated and then reconstructed based on an engineered design using clean soil and rock to prevent any future erosion of contaminated soil into the river. The remediation works also include the construction of onsite soil and water treatment infrastructure to manage the soil and water encountered during the works.

Experienced contractors will undertake the work standard using practices under the supervision of fulltime environmental monitors to ensure environmental protection. Information from this initial pilot phase will be used to improve the restoration plan for the rest of the impacted foreshore in Spring 2014.

Boating on the Yukon River should not be affected. For safety reasons, North 60 requests that boaters avoid the foreshore work area. There will be warning lights set up on the upstream and downstream sections of the temporary sheet-pile barrier placed into the river.

The worksite is subject to a strict health and safety program to protect onsite personnel and the general public. The public is requested to keep a safe distance from the site. Any required visitors will need to register with a site representative for a safety orientation. Please direct any questions or inquiries to: North60@pggroup.com.

The Gold Yukon

The Gold of the Yukon
By Jim Lotz
Pottersfield Press
224 pages
$21.95

There's something about the Yukon that makes people write memoirs about their stay here after they've spent time in the territory and have moved on. I have two of them for you this week.

Back in 1961 Jim Lotz was working for what was then called the Department of Northern Affairs, and he got sent to Dawson City to find out how the locals were reacting to the Federal government's BIG IDEA to drop a Stratford style theatre festival into their midst. He found out that most people were pretty skeptical about the whole thing, but that everyone realized they would simply have to roll with it and do the best they could.

The plan failed, of course, but it did give us the rebuilt Palace Grand, where the Klondike Visitors Association managed to put on the Gaslight Follies for over 30 years before the terrorist attacks on the Twin Towers in 2001 caused Holland America to reduce its tour prices by taking the show off the package and removing the audience.

What Lotz realized as he returned to the territory many times over the years, was that Tom Patterson's crazy dream created a pivotal event in the history of Dawson. The Introduction (The City That Would Not Die) and chapter 1 (The Rise and Fall and Rise of Dawson City) comprise the largest single portion of the book and trace the history of the town, as Lotz understands it. One may quibble with some of his ideas, but it's an engaging summary.

I can't accept the notion that my town is, in Lotz's terms, a Potemkin Village (i.e.: like a Soviet Era show town), but I can understand why he might think it.

The Yukon and the Art of the Memoir

The remainder of the book talks about the gold industry, and gives us side trips to some of the other places that were created by the initial Gold Rush.

Lotz has fond memories of the territory and a number of its people. He dedicated the book to Flo Whyard. He spends quite a bit of ink on the Bertons, both Pierre and his mother, Laura.

He spends part of a chapter travelling the Klondike Gold Fields with my late neighbour, John Gould, and picking John's brains about all the old settlements and operations. He visits Miller Creek Atlin and compares their experiences to Dawson. He travels up the Dempster Highway to as far as it went in those days (Mile 73). He recalls going over the Chilkoot Pass in 1963.

His final chapter reflects on some of the changes he is aware have happened here since the 1960 to 1965 period when he knew it best. He's been drawn back a number of times since, most recently in 2002, but at 84 he doubts he'll be there again. I don't think I'd agree with all of his projections and conclusions, but he was writing before the price of gold began to drop again, and some things change very quickly here.

The book has extensive footnoting and a good bibliography. The only thing it's missing that I would have appreciated is an index. As memoirs go, it's an engaging and interesting read that shines a light on a particular era and does so with a great deal of affection.

Four Years in the Yukon
By Robert Damm
Self-published
Printed by St Peter's Press
158 pages

The second type of memoir is the self-published type. Bob Damm's is about the four years he spent as principal of the school in Elsa; a place I was never able to visit while the mine was still running and the town was active. We drove through the gated community last summer on our way home from Keno City, and were pulled up short by some Alexco employees wondering if we were lost. No. Just curious.

There are 30 short chapters in this book, with simple titles such as "The Move", "My Students", "Our Band", "The Mine", "The Bears", and so on.

Damm worked in the school building that you can still see on the road outside the town site, and lived in a trailer next to the school. His school bell was a twin to the one I used in Beaver Creek five years later, but the school was much larger.

Among his students are a few names of people I know, including Peter Grundmanis, Bill Bennett and Mike Mancini, who is still there, running the café. Gord Yakimow was on his staff for a time.

I don't see that this little book has a great deal to say about teaching in the Yukon, but it does paint an effective picture of life in rural Yukon in the early 1970s.

I ended up with this book because Bob sent it along to our publisher and she passed it on to me. There's no price on it, and no indication where you could buy it, but Bob can be contacted at bobdamm@sasktel.net if you're interested in a copy. Anyone who lived in Elsa, Keno or Mayo between 1971 and 1975 should find this interesting.

New Programming at Parks this Summer

by Theresa Conkin, on behalf of Parks Canada

Dawson's own Klondike National Historic Sites are becoming more unique and unforgettable this season! Visitors of every stripe will find new programs to pique their interest... and dirty their hands. Dawsonites? Well Dawsonites will find some fun surprises awaiting them this season!

This year, as soon as conditions allow, you can Hike the hills accompanied by the poetry of Dawson's own Bard, Robert Service. Or, in answer to our interpreters' most often asked question, visitors will get to hear all about how life in Dawson has changed, or hasn't changed in the new Then and Now walking tour. Later in the summer, stay tuned for an exciting new hands-on program over in Fort Herchmer... stay tuned for more details on that

A re-vamped Greatest Klondiker Contest at the Palace Grand Theatre launches on May 26th, with new characters and fun new surprises! Our interpreters are currently in training with Yukon comedian George Maratos – so expect to hear laughter bubbling from the PG between 3:30 and 4:30pm five days a week this summer!

For those who prefer to go it on their own, the *Explora – Dredge No.4 and the Goldfields*Smartphone app will be available for download in a few weeks; see the sights of Bonanza Creek Road in a whole new way through historic photos, stories and quizzes.

Families with younger kids can grab an Xplorer's booklet at the Visitor's Centre, (or at Parks Canada's Gold Show booth) and get your family doing some fun hands-on activities all along Bonanza Creek Road. Complete at least 4 activities and come get your prize back at the Visitor's Centre!

There's something new for everyone this summer at the Klondike National Historic Sites, and to make sure all Dawsonites get a chance to see our great new programs for themselves, Parks Canada is offering one free program ticket when you pick up your Gertie's annual pass. We look forward to seeing you!

The Sun obtained funding in late 2009 from the City of Dawson, YTG's Heritage Branch and the Community Development Fund to conserve and archive early issues and make them available once again in the public domain. This is a great resource for students, writers and historians, and also for prospective tourists with an interest in Dawson City's life. Each month, we are re-printing our front pages from 20 years ago (seen above) as a souvenir of our lively history. If you want to see page 2 and beyond, check out our website. Past issues are available there for download. Go to http://klondikesun.com. More will be added periodically (heh) when we have time!

justly crowned Oueen of Rockabilly, recorded "Let's Have A Party," a tune she made into a hit of her own in 1958 even after one-time boyfriend Elvis Presley had released a version of it, her delivery of the chorus wasn't so much a suggestion as a command.

As the title - and, more importantly, the contents - of her latest album, The Party Ain't Over, indicates, this feisty septuagenarian artist is as galvanizing as ever.

Jackson was recently inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame, honored with a longtime-coming, Early Influence accolade for her pivotal role in the evolution of popular music, especially where female artists were concerned.

As a teenager in the mid-50s, the diminutive Jackson was the first woman to perform unadulterated rock and roll and she one-upped the boys defining this new genre, Presley included, with her exhilaratingly forthright approach. The young Jackson, an Oklahoma native, came across as both gritty and glamorous; a playfully suggestive growl to her voice matched the daring, handmade outfits she wore, short skirts and fringed dresses that have inspired would-be bad girls for decades to come.

A tireless touring artist for more than 50 years, Jackson continues to win over new, young fans, including guitaristvocalist-White Stripes founder Jack White. On her debut for

When Wanda Jackson, the Third Man/Nonesuch Records, produced and arranged by White at his Nashville studio, the spirited Jackson proves that brash rock and roll attitude need not have an age limit.

> Her trademark growl remains intact on rockers like "Rip It Up" and "Nervous Breakdown;" she opens the set with an echo-laden sneer on a rollicking version of "Shakin' All Over" and ends it ten songs later with a plaintive take on Jimmie Rodgers' "Yodel #6," along the way gamely tackling country, gospel, densely worded Bob Dylan, and a little bit of Tin Pan Alley.

Jackson and White are a remarkably simpatico pairing; their collaboration together quickly, serendipitously. White and Jackson came up with inspired and wide-ranging song choices that reflect Jackson's long history with country, gospel, and even the big-band music she remembers from her childhood as well as with rock and roll: Harlan Howard's woozy lament "Busted"; the Andrew Sisters' kitschy tropical travelogue, "Rum and Coca Cola", a fitting companion to her own "Fujiyama Mama"; Dylan's rockabilly fever dream, "Thunder On The Mountain".

They also recorded a cover of contemporary badgirl Amy Winehouse's "You Know That I'm No Good," which White first released as a single in 2009, paired with "Shakin All Over." The Winehouse song suits her, Jackson says, but she's careful to draw the line between life and art: "On the one hand, I'm good, on the other hand, I'm bad. That especially large now in Europe seems to be the image this new generation of fans that I have has given me.

"It's like the title of the documentary about my life that recently came out: The Sweet Lady With the Nasty Voice. Maybe that says that I become a different person, a different persona, when I sing those songs.

"I have a good reputation, always have had, and respect from everyone as a lady, and that pleases me very much. But the young girls think I'm this hard gal that gets her way and storms in.

"It's just because of the material I've sung and the way I've sung it. And that's okay. That's cute."

Jackson remains too busy to look back - her legend looms and Japan, where she is always in demand as a concert performer - but she does allow herself a moment to reflect: "I can't think of anyone who could be any luckier or any happier than me. I think it's a blessing from the Lord.

"I had wonderful parents who gave up so much so that I could have my dreams come true. I was an only child so I had all the love and attention that anyone could ask for.

"My mother made my stage clothes and a lot of my street clothes too. Dad traveled with me and drove me to all those early dates so I didn't have to be alone.

"You couldn't ask for more, to make your living doing what you love to do, to sing and travel and entertain people all your life. I can't think of any life that could be better than that."

And, as she notes, the party ain't over.

For her Dawson City debut Ms. Jackson will be accompanied by 2013 Festival artists, Daniel Romano and the Trilliums. The evening will also feature an opening performance by Dawson City's own Drea and the Naysayers.

Thisone-timeonly performance is separately ticketed from the Festival and is subject to capacity. Buy early to avoid disappointment.

Role within the Festival: Beer Garden, Baby!

Why do you volunteer for DCMF? I want to contribute to my community and DCMF is the biggest community event and it really brings most of the town together. Plus it is a great chance to hear new music, meet new friends and have a few drinks.

Why is the DCMF important? Because it's about community, music and having a fun time. Everyone works so hard year-round; DCMF is a time to celebrate the great community we live in.

What is your favourite DCMF memory? There are so many. I am usually too eyeballs deep in beer to really see what is going on around me but, having the Silver brothers sling beer, any sort of Beer Garden mini-crisis (I love the drama), and Sunday potluck in the big tent.

THIS IS JUST MY OPINION

Tourist Season Has Returned, Once Again

Following a longer winter than normal, it is time to put on our smiling, happy faces and greet the influx of strangers coming to spend a few days, and a few dollars, in our humble town. In my few years as a resident of Dawson, I have noticed a few things that just seem wrong (at least to me). It is not at all uncommon, that some locals feel "put out" and some even feel threatened by these strangers which appear from everywhere, and seemingly invade our quiet community. Still, they realize that these strangers, coming from every corner of the planet, are the ones who keep our community alive, especially during our lean months. (The following is not directed at all residents, or locals, only at those to whom it truly applies).

Yet I often-times hear complaints from numerous locals, complaints about "tipping", about "discourteous guests", just to name a couple of the most common.

I often wonder why people complain, especially when it comes to those who freely support our community? Perhaps, the complaints reveal a sense of dissatisfaction with their own lives? Perhaps, they just feel that these strangers are invaders, disrupting their normal way of life? Perhaps, they feel hostility towards these newcomers, because in their opinion, they do not "drop enough cash" in their establishment, and in some manner are cheating them? But still, each day they arrive at their place of business, or employment, greet each stranger with a pasted on smile, while in their hearts they hold them with contempt, and grumble behind their backs.

Why do you choose to live and work in a community that is filled every season with thousands of strangers, if you hold such resentment towards them? Is it any wonder that you might suffer from anxiety disorders, ulcers, stress, or worse illnesses?

I suggest a couple of possibilities for you, for your benefit, for your health, and for the good of our community, and the best experience which our guests can possibly find. First, no matter what your circumstance, or your contact with these guests, be content and genuine. Stop worrying about how much money they will put into your cash drawer, or how much they will tip you. If you do your job with all excellence, the best tip you can ever receive is the fact that you made their experience a little better—you did your best and you are satisfied and happy with your performance.

If you must complain about any particular tourist, or tour group, please, do it in the privacy of your own home—you never know how many ears might hear you—and how many of those ears might be our guests.

Finally, remember, tourists are your guests, you are their host. Treat each of them, with the respect and dignity that you would offer to a guest you might invite into your private home. In essence, you should see that Dawson is your private home, and each tourist is your own personal guest. All of us have had private guests that abuse our hospitality, and yes, it tries our patience deeply, but we endure it because we know, the abuse will be short lived, as our private guests will be leaving after a short period of time.

It is no different with our touring guests, treat each one of them as you would your private guests (even if you feel it is not deserved) realizing that you will not have to endure hostility or abuse for very long. But do not ever, return abuse or hostility for the abuse or hostility you may receive. Some guests undoubtedly, will be extremely overbearing, trying you at every occasion, but they are your guests, and only for a short period of time

If you cannot follow the above, very simple, but straight-forward advice, then you should not be employed in the tourism industry. If you cannot deal with living in a tourist town, you should not remain there. It is your choice, treat people well and respectfully, at all times (even when it is difficult for you) or leave our community, as it is individuals like you, that leave our guests feeling unappreciated, and unwelcome, and giving them a bad impression of our community. The choice is yours, but do not damage the reputation of my community with your poor attitudes, and poor choices of words in public places.

As always, this is just my opinion

Dredge Buckets are Blooming

In this most unusual month of May, Pat and Diane Brooks arrived to find their Goldrush Campground so full of snow that the dredge buckets that mark their RV parking stalls could not be seen and the place where they normally park the 5th wheel which is their summer home was inaccesssible.

Over the next week they watched as the tops of the buckets appeared, disappeared and then appeared again, finally for good.

This weird weather has meant they could take their time getting the place ready for business and thank the stars there wasn't an early caravan booking this year.

is for...

E is for endive!

What is an endive I would like to know? Is it an onion, a chive, or garlic? Or is it something else?

I had to look it up and do you know what I found? An endive is just a fancy piece of lettuce!

Seriously now, endives are used in salads.

They have quite a bitter taste. Endives can be even steamed or fried! Put in soups or stews, almost anything.

There are two main types of endives. There is the curly one, which has narrow leaves and quite a bitter taste (it's called frisée in French).

Escarole is the other type of endive, but it has very broad leaves and is not quite so bitter.

If you take an endive and sauté it in real butter, and lemon, and salt, it is to die for. It makes an incredible sweet vegetable out of a bitter one.

This is what you do:

First of all you melt your butter, then you lay out your endives in a single layer, squirt lemon juice on them, a sprinkle of salt, a sprinkle of sugar, then pour a bit of water around the edge, cover the pan (tightly), and put it on low for about half an hour.

NOW you have the sweetest veggie ever known. COOL!

E is also for Egrets!

Do you know what an egret is? I didn't, so I looked it up. Do you know what I found? An Egret is a bird!!!!!

An egret is either white or buff colored. They are often confused with herons but there is a difference.

An egret has long white feathers that drape off their backs during the mating season. A heron usually has a black head.

In the 19th and early 20th century egrets were almost destroyed. They were hunted for their beautiful white feathers to decorate ladies hats! These beautiful birds almost became extinct!

AND that is Einstein's famous equation. I don't really understand it, but it means energy is equal to mass times the speed of light.

So guess what.... I looked it up (in a book).

What it means is this: energy changes with a body in motion, somehow energy is dependant on what we weigh and how fast we are traveling. If you can figger out what that means then you can have all our prizes!

But back to Einstein... he was born in 1879 and he passed on in 1955, which made him 76 years old. Can you imagine what he could of discovered if he had lived to be 90?

Einstein changed the world of modern day physics through four great papers. One was about photo electrics g (this is about a object that uses light to generate electricity), one was about atomic theory (helping man to make the atomic bomb which was always one of his regrets), One was about magnetism and electricity (did you know that gravity can 'bend' light?), and finally he wrote his paper on  $e = mc^2$ .

Young Einstein

Einstein, later

Einstein was not only a famous physicist he was also an accomplished violinist! He loved the strains of Mozart.

Oh, did I mention that he also won the Nobel Prize in physics?
