Authors visit the settings of their stories

Story by Samantha Elmsley

Like many of the characters they write about, Vicki Delaney and Barbara Fradkin finally made it to Dawson City.

The two authors, whose crime/mystery fiction is set in the Yukon and NWT, were on tour from Ontario when they stopped in at the Dawson City Museum on June 13. A dedicated group of local readers showed up for the lecture, followed by a question and answer period.

Barbara, remarking that she is "overwhelmed and in awe of the North", explained her reasons for setting her fiction here.

"There's a sense of being put in your place [by nature] in the North," she said. It's a great force against which, in the novel, her characters must reckon. Vicki, whose novels are set in Dawson City itself during the Gold Rush era, agreed, expanding on Barbara's point to comment upon the character of those who chose to take it on.

"I think they believed, with hard work and a little bit of luck, they could really achieve something. And I think that's a feeling we've lost in the 21st century," she observed. Vicki aims to recapture this sense of promise in her writing.

Both authors expressed their love of legends, and the sense of magic they lend to stories. "I'm always interested in old secrets," Barbara admitted. Vicki agreed. "There's nothing funner for a writer than legends, and the people who go around chasing them."

Discussion touched upon research methods and tools—a helpful topic for any aspiring writers in the audience. "Google Streetview is one of the writer's greatest friends for research," Barbara insisted. With Streetview, authors are able to see the places they're writing about without having to physically travel there, which can be an expensive endeavor when you're talking about the Yukon.

Vicki's advice also focused on the visual. "Pictures are just invaluable for a writer," she said. Particularly for those writing historical fiction, photos are essential to getting a sense of the times.

The talk concluded with a reading from each of the author's latest work.

Barbara Fradkin's latest novel, The Whisper of Legends, is part of the Inspector Green mystery series. It was reviewed in the Klondike Sun in our June 12 issue. Vicki Delaney's most recent novel, Gold Fever, is the latest in the Klondike Mystery series and was reviewed here in May. Both books are available at the Dawson City Museum gift store.

Yukoners are reminded of health effects from forest fire smoke

WHITEHORSE (June 21, 2013) —With a number of active forest fires in Yukon, and one in Alaska close to the Alaska/Yukon border, Acting Yukon Medical Officer of Health (MOH) Dr. Sally McDonald reminds Yukoners with asthma or other respiratory conditions to take special care during forest fire season.

Smoke from forest fires can irritate throats and sinuses, cause headaches and coughing, a runny nose and itchy eyes in most individuals. Individuals who have asthma or chronic conditions can have more serious reactions.

"If you have a condition that affects your respiratory system, stay inside with the windows closed during smoky days," McDonald said. "Minimize your physical activities, make sure you have your medications on hand and take them as prescribed."

People with allergies or sensitivity to smoke should also stay indoors and limit exertion.

Most Yukoners will experience minimal effects from breathing in the smoke. Anyone with concerns can call the Yukon HealthLine at 811, or contact their health care provider or community health centre.

Uffish Thoughts: Reflecting on our past leads to thoughts of our future

by Dan Davidson

As I recall, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau was ambivalent about the political future of the Yukon. On the one hand, both he and Jean Chretien, who served as Minister of DIAND for some time, said that it was possible for the Yukon to become a province.

As former commissioner Ken McKinnon recalls their phrasing, they always included something to the effect that it could happen when Yukoners were ready for it to happen.

On the other hand, Trudeau was also heard to say that he thought it would not happen in his lifetime, a comment that upset a number of public personalities at the time.

Turns out he was right about that. He's gone and it didn't happen.

At the time that he was speaking we were still ruled according to the antiquated rubric of the old Yukon Act.

The gathering at the Yukon Arts Centre on June 11 – sparsely attended for such a large room – was to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the passage of the current Yukon Act.

As might have been expected, given the composition of the panel, much of the evening was given over to a review of past history.

Patrick Michael, the former clerk of the Yukon legislature, was the emcee for the evening's event, riding herd on a loquacious group of political and legal luminaries that included Kirk Cameron, who worked in the constitutional field before becoming a city councillor; Bob Nault, a minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development under former Prime Minister Jean Chretien; former Liberal Senator Ione Christensen; lawyer Daryn Leas; and former Yukon commissioners Ken McKinnon and Jack Cable.

Sitting about mid-way back in the room, I spotted the Whitehorse Star's pwn Vince Federoff snapping photos and Ainsie Cruickshank studiously taking notes for her article the next day. I was relieved, as I did not have a notepad or pen in the jacket I was wearing, and my iPhone's pictures were not going to be good for anything other than my personal use. On the other hand, the voice-recording feature worked just fine, given the good acoustics in the room.

So yes, that was me who shouted out "boo" when Cameron mentioned the relocation of the capital from Dawson to Whitehorse. I confess that I didn't actually mean it, but it seemed to be called for so I answered the cue. In actuality, my 37 years living in rural Yukon have made me appreciate that line from "Fiddler on the Roof" where someone (was it the Rabbi or Tevye?) says "God bless and keep the Czar... far away from us."

Much of rural Yukon views the territorial government

(regardless of the party in power) in much the same way that Whitehorse views Ottawa, as autocratic, ill-informed on local issues and overbearing.

Much of the panel discussion was reflective in nature. It was a discussion of where we used to be in terms of our political development and how we got to be where we are. This is a story you can read about in more detail in Linda Johnson's two books about the Legislature (With the people who live here: the history of the Yukon Legislature, 1909 – 1961) and the Commissioners (At the Heart of Gold: The Yukon Commissioner's Office 1898-2010).

"What a long strange trip it's been," to borrow a phrase from the Grateful Dead.

It was interesting to hear McKinnon talk about his relationship with Chretien. Christensen spoke about the reasons why she resigned as Commissioner when she did, and her role in the Senate later on when it came time to shepherd the new Yukon Act through Parliament. Nault was candid about his part in the process, but also noted that he was the minister who refused the same deal for Nunavut when it was first requested, because he was sure it was too soon for it to happen there.

That might seem a paternalistic reaction, but it also seems to me to have been a correct one. I am reacting that way partly because of just having been immersed in a celebration of the 20-year anniversary for the passage of the Umbrella Final Agreement which, as lawyer Daryn Leas pointed out, is still working its way through the implementation stage and will be for years yet to come.

McKinnon pointed out that the various First Nations in the territory are all involved in the invention of forms of self-governance, and that none of them have the sort of Westminster template that the territory has been able to adapt to work from.

The latter part of the evening, when a few previously nodding heads around me snapped back to alertness, came with Kirk Cameron's suggestion that provincehood might well come within his lifetime. Kirk's younger than I am, but if my maternal genetic heritage runs true, I could have another 20 years to go, and I really don't think it'll happen in my lifetime.

My immediate reaction was that he was delusional, but then it hit me that he was simply trying to push the discussion in a new direction – forward. He confirmed this to me during a Facebook exchange the next day. As such, it was a good move and certainly enlivened the panel, most of whom trotted out what seemed to me to be very cogent arguments against trying to do too much too quickly.

While our economy is so heavily dependent on federal transfers, our population is less than a quarter of the smallest province (PEI, with approximately 140,000) and nearly 70 percent of that population is clustered in one community, it seems unlikely that provincehood would be of great benefit.

Indeed, as the UFA and the various self-government agreements have shown, the adjustment phase is probably longer and more arduous than the original struggle.

One old proverb, used to good effect in W.W. Jacob's classic horror story The Monkey's Paw is "Be careful what you wish for – you may receive it."

We want to hear from you!

Why is this local area plan being delayed?

This is an open letter to Energy, Mines and Resources Minister Brad Cathers regarding the West Dawson and Sunnydale local area plan.

Much of the public's attention has been focused on the Peel watershed.

Another land use exercise, however, has quietly been unfolding in Dawson City, where the West Dawson and Sunnydale local area plan has been stalled for two years by your government.

Local area planning is a type of land use planning that is done in unincorporated communities for private land and Yukon land.

It can also include First Nation settlement land if it is done jointly with First Nations.

Local area plans include policies and maps that designate different areas for different uses.

They are developed with the help of a steering committee usually made up of residents from the area being planned.

Planning helps to define a community's vision for the future and how it can move forward in that direction.

A local area plan provides guidelines and policies to minimize land use conflicts, and to make sure that future development and growth occur in an orderly manner.

A draft local area plan has been prepared for West Dawson and Sunnydale (2011).

In the fall of 2012, and again the spring of 2013, we exchanged letters regarding the plan.

Your letter of Nov. 28, 2012 confirmed that the Tr'ondek Hwech'in First Nation is prepared to support the plan as recommended and the last remaining step is for the Government of Yukon to sign off.

Residents I have spoken with are concerned about the long delay in this plan becoming finalized.

They fear the government does not support the plan and wants changes made.

Similar to the Peel situation, residents have spoken. They worry the Yukon Party does not like what it has heard and may want to go another way.

Why is your government delaying this local area plan?

And what are the reasons behind your refusal to sign off on it?

Yukon Wildland Fire
Activity Report 2013

Current as of June 21 @ 1100 hr

NEW FIRE ACTIVITY: 14 new fires were discovered Thursday. 7 of the fires were in the Dawson district while the other 7 were reported in the Old Crow district. A 60 hectare fire in the Dawson district near Dominion Creek approximately 37 kilometres southeast of Dawson City was the most significant of the new activity due to the fire's proximity to Dawson City. WFM immediately actioned this fire with airtankers, helicopters and firefighters and work continues today. It remains active but fortunately there has been some rain (8mm) on the fire which has limited the fire behavior. Another notable new fire in the Dawson district is burning south of Australia Mountain, approximately 88 kilometres southeast of Dawson City and is an estimated 20 hectares in size. The remaining 5 Dawson fires are located in remote areas and are currently not threatening any values. 6 of the 7 new fires in the Old Crow district were reported in the wilderness zone and none of the Old Crow fires are impacting the community at this time. Reality mining in the Klondike

by Josee Bonhomme

Amidst our up and down, roller-coaster ride with the commodity prices this year, the placer miners plod on. The Quartz miners with real deposits also plod on.

The big companies are cutting back on capital expenses (buying equipment, building camps, etc.), the little guys are being very careful.

The figures from the Water Board for the last three years are interesting.

For placer operations: In 2010, there were 31 new applications, 14 renewals and 15 amendments. In 2011, 31 new applications were filed, with 10 amendments. In 2012, there were 40 new applications, seven renewals and 15 amendments. In 2013 so far, we have 12 new applications, including amendments (more coming).

For hard rock operations: In 2010, there were one new application and two amendments. In 2011, there were two new applications and three amendments. In 2012, there were four amendments filed. In 2013, so far, there is one renewal and one amendment filed.

Those are the numbers at the Water Board level of assessment.

At the present time, there are 357 active placer licenses, and 13 hard rock licenses throughout the Yukon.

We are pleased to report the Mining Recorder's office has now caught up to its duties and is now up-to-date with placer workings (assessment work, transfers, etc.).

Small miners do it in White Channel Gravels.

Old Crow fires are believed to be lightning-caused, and no values are at risk at this time. Fires will be reassessed Friday throughout the day.

See last night's bulletin (#13) for more information.

CAMPFIRE AND BURNING RESTRICTIONS: Permits are currently suspended across most of the territory due to the current danger ratings. The exception is Beaver Creek, Carmacks and Dawson where the danger rating is currently low.

Sunshine, goodies and awards were features at this year's Commissioner's Tea

by Dan Davidson

Gabriela Sgaga began this year's Commissioner's Tea on high note.

"What a lovely day. I think we should applaud the weather," said the afternoon's emcee.

And it was no surprise when a lot of the folks on the balcony and lawn of the Commissioner's Residence took up her suggestion.

The first speaker of the afternoon was Ann Morin, Yukon Field Unit Superintendent for Parks Canada, which, along with the Dawson IODE, has been putting on the Tea for several decades. Since all the goodies served at the tea are local donations, this was not one of those events that Parks was forced to trim from its budget this year. The flower gardens may have been newly planted this week due to the late spring, but the plants were in place.

"This is a particularly enjoyable event," she said, "because this Commissioner's Tea sees people coming from all over the Yukon and visitors also coming, and lots and lots of local community support and participation."

"For Parks Canada it is our pleasure to present this special area of the world to all visitors and this summer, in particular, we have a very incredible team and they're truly enthusiastic to provide you with new tours throughout Klondike National Historic Site.

"We have a wonderful staff who I think everyone knows in the past year have had some difficulties because of some of the cutbacks we have experienced, but it's so incredible to see the enthusiasm that they all have in presenting this very special place to everybody."

Morin mentioned that three companies – two local to Dawson – has taken on the task of presenting Dredge No. 4 to the world after the federal budget cut the staff for those tours.

"They have been able to help us keep that historic site open for everyone to see."

Myrna Butterworth, president of the IODE explained the significance of the day's events.

"We are celebrating the 115th anniversary of the Yukon and the 38th annual Commissioner's Tea."

The tea, she explained was founded two years after the

Commissioner's Ball, which was started by the Klondike Visitors Association in 1973, in order to give visitors and guests something to do in the afternoon, but also to do homage to the teas that were held on these grounds in the days of Martha Louise Black, the most as Commissioner, he said he has never seen bad weather for this day.

"On June 13th in 1898, the Yukon was established as a territory of Canada," Phillips said. "Next week is the 115th birthday of the Yukon and there's no better place in the Yukon to cellimate that birthday than here, at the Commissioner's Residence, in Dawson City."

The Tea is always a time of presentations, and this year's was no exception. Continuing the tradition of celebrating the office itself, Phillips has had special commemorative medals commissioned for each of the living former Commissioners. He presented pins to Ken McKinnon (1989-1995), Jack Cable (2000-2005) and Geraldine Van Bibber (2005-2010).

"When I took office ... (I noticed) that we didn't do anything really special for the commissioners that left, so I thought it would be appropriate to start a tradition that I hope will carry on forever. The pin was designed and hand made by Yukon goldsmiths David Ashley and Cheryl Rivest."

Each pin is individually engraved with the office title and dates of each person's term.

The last award of the day was a commemorative plaque presented to the Venerable Ken Snider, retired priest, archdeacon and dean of the Anglican Church, marking the 45th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood after he had already spent a number of years in the north in the service of the Church Army (now called Threshold Ministries), beginning in 1954. Since 1956 Ken has served in Cambridge Bay, Whitehorse, Mayo, Dawson City, Inuvik, Pelly Crossing, Hay River, Clinton Creek, Elsa, Keno, Carmacks, Stewart Crossing and points in between.

"But it was in June, 1968, 45 years ago, that he was ordained a priest here in Dawson City."

And it was here that he and Aldene chose to move when he retired from full time service in 1998, continuing his ministry as part of the team at St. Paul's.

Phillips read the inscription on the plaque.

"To the Venerable Ken Snider. May I extend to you my sincere congratulations and best wishes on the occasion of your 45th anniversary of your ordination into the Anglican Church."

Continuing his tradition of showcasing young Yukon talent, Phillips brought with him Ellen Thompson and Kayleigh Poelman, two young musicians from Whitehorse. Each of them presented three songs at various points in the program and were well received in spite of some difficulties with the sound system.

Also much appreciated was Parks interpreter Sue Taylor's recitation of "The Creation of Sam Magee" which she did almost completely without reference to the printed text.

The afternoon concluded with the cutting of the birthday cake by Phillips and Butterworth.

The Tea is always a time of presentations, and this year's was no exception. Continuing the tradition of celebrating the office itself, Phillips has had special commemorative medals commissioned for each of the living former Commissioners. He presented pins to Ken McKinnon (1989-1995), Jack Cable (2000-2005) and Geraldine Van Bibber (2005-2010).

"When I took office ... (I noticed) that we didn't do anything really special for the commissioners that left, so I thought it would be appropriate to start a tradition that I hope will carry on forever. The pin was designed and hand made by Yukon goldsmiths Da-

History and anniversaries shaped the theme of the 2013 Commissioner's Ball

By Dan Davidson

For the public at large, the locals and tourists who haven't bought tickets to the Commissioner's Ball, the highlight of the evening is probably the opportunity to see about 100 guests in their period and fancy formal wear lined up in front of the Palace Grand Theatre, which is a grand backdrop for any sort of photograph.

This year the posing was a little more complicated, as CBC North was on hand to record everyone yelling out "Happy Canada Day" for broadcast a few weeks later.

There were several takes of the group at large, and then Commissioner Phillips took three tries to get his lines out properly, leaving him fair game for emcee Gabriela Sgaga after everyone had settled down inside for the formal part of the evening.

"The host of this Ball is the Commissioner, the Honourable Doug Phillips, who I want to compliment on his acting skills. You did very well out there. We have a bloop reel now."

There was wild applause.

The Commissioner had a number of special guests, introduced by both Sgaga and himself at various points during the evening. There was Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Deputy Chief Clara Van Bibber; Dawson Mayor Wayne Potoroka; Mr. Bob Cameron, Administrator of the Yukon, and his wife Lois Cameron; Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, the Honourable Dave Laxton; former Commissioners of Yukon: Geraldine Van Bibber, Jack Cable and Ken McKinnon; Chief Superintendent of the RCMP, Peter Clark and wife Jody; 2013 Rendezvous Queen Kim Solonick and her husband; 2013 Mr. and Mrs. Yukon, Wilf and Hilda Tuck; the Commissioner's sister, Normalee Craig and husband Jim; the Commissioner's daughter, Natasha, and husband Al Hammond; the Commissioner's daughter-in-law Cathy Stokes, and grandson Joe.

Also singled out for mention were members of the Finton family - Andrew and Heather Finton, Andrew's mother Merlene Sparry (who was celebrating her 80th birthday) and her 4 other children, 6 grandchildren, 2 daughters-in-law, 1 son-in-law and 1 granddaughter in law. Merlene was attending her first ever Ball.

This is the second year that the Commissioner's office has planned and run the Ball, though he acknowledged the participation of the Klondike Visitors Association, the organization that founded the event back in 1973.

Phillips noted that this year is a big one for anniversaries:

the 50th anniversary of the establishment of Yukon College; the 40th anniversary of the presentation of Together Today for Our Children Tomorrow in Ottawa; the 30th anniversary of the Yukon Quest, the 25th anniversary of the Yukon Languages Act, the 20th anniversary of the signing of the Umbrella Final Agreement and the 10th anniversary of the Devolution Transfer Agreement and the New Yukon Act.

"It's a great year to celebrate them all," he concluded, adding, "The scary thing about all those anniversaries that go way back is that I was here for all of them."

"These anniversaries are evidence of some of the huge strides that Yukoners have taken together since we became a territory 115 years ago. Those who came before us built the territory that we enjoy today, just as now Yukoners are helping build the Yukon of tomorrow."

Phillips has been showcasing young musical talent since he took office, and this Ball featured vocal and piano performances by Ellen Thompson and Kayleigh Poelman. Young people for the Commissioner's Youth Showcase are recommended by a volunteer committee comprised of Michele Emslie, Jessica Vellenga, Edith Belanger and Kaylee Steele.

"Kayleigh and Ellen," said Phillips as they concluded, "you have made Yukon so proud."

He presented them with a specially designed certificate and "a small token of appreciation which will help you pursue your musical careers."

The formal highlight of the evening was the presentation of the very last Queen Elizabeth Diamond Jubilee Medal in the Yukon to Claire Festel, who came to the Yukon in 1977 to live in Keno City and eventually moved to Whitehorse. Working at a variety of jobs over the years, she came to be Executive Director of the Tourism Industry Association of the Yukon and worked with the YKnet operating society that spearheaded internet use in the territory.

"She's been a Yukon booster wherever she went. She's always been interested in Yukon's amazing history and along with local artist, Val Hodgson, produced Remarkable Yukon Women."

Following this the Commissioner made a number of small presentations to his staff, Lindsey Hamilton and Lillian Lopenon and to emcee Gabriela Sgaga, who had also assisted with the Tea earlier in the day.

everyone was invited to the buffet tables in the lobby for a selection of 18 different hors d'oeuvres and a variety of assorted sweets. The Ball was catered by the Yukon College Food Services group.

Music for the dance was provided by Dawson's own River Bends band.

Going Green: Eating local in Dawson City

Story by Samantha Elmsley

In Anja Hoehle's living room on a breezy Sunday, discussion raged about the power of the consumer. I was there with two other workers to help move the laying chickens at Kerrsdale Heritage Farm. Local food was the topic of the day: the reason we were here, and the centre of our conversation.

Dawson City has a taste for local food—and it's growing. In August 2011, the Conservation Klondike Society (CKS) published a report surveying 18 per cent of the permanent Dawson community population. The aim of the report, entitled "Dawson Community Food Survey and Market Expansion Strategy", was to determine whether the supply of local, sustainable food matched the demand from household buyers and other markets. It found that in the household market, demand greatly outstripped supply—but that existing local farmers were uninterested in expanding their production to match it, viewing the effort as a high-risk venture. The report concluded that efforts would have to be made to recruit new farmers, in addition to the reliable growers already in place in the community.

In the two years following publication, the Dawson community has added Anja Hoehle at Kerrsdale Heritage Farm to its ranks. Raising pigs, meat hens and laying hens by herself is no small task, but it is much appreciated in the community: in the first year, every animal on the farm was sold within four weeks of advertising. Working to move the laying hens into a new home, the mountains at my back and the rush of the river in my ears, it was easy to understand why going local is so important to so many people. These animals actually have a life. They're not raised by the thousands in animal factories; they run around, pecking curiously at everything, and (in the pigs' case) getting belly rubs from willing volunteers.

Florian Boulais, Vice President of CKS, was also volunteering at the farm that day. CKS remains active in the local food community, hosting meetings to talk about issues in food sovereignty. The Dawson City Food Secure Advocacy Group has a number of short, medium and long-term projects on the go, working toward building more sustainable eating habits in the community. The group hopes to cellars, among other projects.

These ongoing projects largely target a do-it-yourself approach to local food, which seems to be a high priority in the community. The survey indicated that while self-producing currently sat at the fourth most common means of acquiring local food, surveyed residents ranked it as the number one desired method.

Self-production becomes a reality in a number of different strategies in the community. Foraging during the summer, and hunting in season, are popular options for locals. Resources are plenty: the community library has an entire shelf, about 75 books, Dawson Community Garden had its first work party on May 26 this season.

When it comes to taking food into its own hands, Dawson City is not afraid to step up. In my time here so far, I've met a great number of people who aren't waiting for the food industry to change, who are not taking part in huge protests. Instead, they're quietly raising their own animals, growing their own vegetables, refusing to buy genetically modified or processed food. Growing or raising your own food is not glamorous, or easy, but is satisfying, calming—and healthy. And from what I've seen, Dawson City is up to the

Balsam Range Concert heralds a summer of Palace Grand activity

By Dan Davidson

When the Dawson City Arts Society was assigned the task of finding ways to bring regular shows back to the Palace Grand Theatre, it's likely that no one thought the first one would be so soon.

Balsam Range is a bluegrass quintet with its musical fingers in everything from pure bluegrass ("The Steamlined Cannonball") and gospel ("Wide River to Cross") to jazzy George Gershwin ("Summertime") and adaptations of work by the Allman Brothers Band (Elmo James' "One Way Out"). They were slated to play at the Kluane Bluegrass Festival in Whitehorse, but they made their Yukon debut here in Dawson, playing their eclectic mixture of bluegrass, folk, gospel jazz and county-rock to a good sized audience on June 5.

Balsam Range features Marc Pruett on banjo, Buddy Melton on stand-up bass and dobro, Tim Surret on fiddle and bass, Darren Nicholson on mandolin, and Caleb Smith on guitar. Their vocals range from soulful solos to two, three, four and five part harmonies.

Beyond question, they were a big hit, and proof positive that it is possible to fill the Palace with something other than Gold Rush melodrama.

DCAS's program arm, the Klondike Institute of Art and Culture, has hired a PG Producer for the summer and Emily Farrell will be lining up a series of shows between between July 4 and the traditional end of the peak summer season.

KIAC is also seeking a Front of House Manager for the season and has put out a call for people willing to volunteer time as ushers for the season.

Details are still in development, but something is definitely happening here.

Off the tracks

Story & Photo
by Samantha Elmsley

This summer marks the hundredth year since a Klondike Mines Railway (KMR) train chugged down a track.

Forging a link between the many gold creeks in the Klondike, the railway only saw seven years of service before the slowdown of the rush rendered it obsolete in 1913. In 1961, almost half a century following the company's derailment, a dedicated group of Dawson citizens successfully organized to move the trains from Klondike City to Dawson City. All that remains of the KMR's rolling stock is housed in the Dawson City Museum's train shelter, built in 1987.

The trains are "great artifacts" of the steam era, says Alex Somerville, Senior Bilingual Interpreter at the Dawson City Museum. "You have the second-oldest Brooks locomotive left in the world. You have one of the very, very few compound engines made by Baldwin in that time."

The Museum houses four trains, including a particularly rare specimen called the Vulclain Compound Engine, named after the president of Baldwin Locomotive Works, the company by which the train was made. The only one of its kind in Canada and one of five in North America, the Vulclain is a relic of a failed experiment. In an attempt to save fuel and water, engineers installed two pistons rather than the usual one. While this technology was standard practice in shipbuilding, on a train the unequal strengths of the pistons warped the crosshead, requiring enormous amounts of maintenance that outweighed the intended benefits of the system.

When it was clear that ship technology wasn't translating to train, most Vulclain operators shipped their specimens back to Baldwin to be converted to a more traditional train technology. Luckily for train history, the Yukon's geographic isolation meant that this was not a financial option for the KMR, so the Vulclain remained in its original form.

"It's a big draw," says Alex. "Lots of visitors...love trains. They love trains. They grew up with railways, their parents or they worked on railways. There's a great nostalgia for the steam era that these trains are a part of."

Running from Sulphur Springs, with its terminus in Klondike City, the KMR serviced some gold mines more thoroughly than others. The railway was spearheaded by the entrepreneurial Thomas O'Brien, who also founded a successful brewery in April 1905. As Klondike City was his home base, O'Brien made sure his region was thoroughly serviced, while Dawson City had to make do with a single track, with the trains backing in from Klondike City in order to move freight or passengers by railroad. The first voyage made by a KMR train in 1904 was carrying a shipment of beer from O'Brien's establishment.

This year, the Museum has expanded its presentation of the trains for visitors. The hope is to encourage more active engagement with the exhibit, which captures a unique era of Klondike history.

"[The KMR] was an excellent testament to the perseverance of businessmen who helped build Dawson City into what it is," says Alex.

As a testament to Canada's railway history and heritage, it's invaluable."

Siebert is a poet/guide to wild and stressful places

Story & Photo
By Dan Davidson

Melanie Siebert has spent 10 to 15 years as a river guide, working all over the North, including the Tatshenshini in British Columbia, the Nahanni in the NWT, and the Soper on Baffin Island.

Her 2010 book of poems, Deepwater Vee, was a finalist for the Governor General's Award in Literature for its year.

It features a suite of river poems subtitled with the GPS coordinates of some of her most memorable spots on the rivers she loves — the Nahanni, the Tat/Alsek, the Burnside, the Thelon.

In the winter, when not guiding, she teaches creative writing at the University of Victoria and works as a volunteer counsellor at Citizens' Counselling. She has a Masters in Fine Arts from U Vic.

Combined with this are imaginings inspired by the journals and life of Alexander Mackenzie, poems described as "the dreamworld wanderings of a grandmother who returns to inhabit the earth" and the life of a down and out busker.

Siebert attracted an audience of some 20 poetry lovers to her public reading at the Dawson Community Library, and began by thanking everyone for coming out on what was a lovely Klondike evening on June 18.

"Thank you to everyone in Dawson. You guys have just been amazing. It's been just such a friendly atmosphere. Everyone here has been so generous — so supportive — not to mention hell-bent on having fun.

"I've heard there's a vortex here that it's hard to get out of, but I do have a plane ticket for next week, so we'll see if I

In which we find out what made Jack Reacher hit the road

The Affair

By Lee Child

I was worried. Would I be able to read a Jack Reacher novel once I had seen the Tom Cruise movie? Tom was too short and not bulky enough to play the part, but it turned out that he managed to sell the role on attitude and by letting his physical flaws show to a greater extent. The movie was based on the book One Shot, which, while it had a fair amount of action in it, stressed Reacher's military police investigative skills.

See, there's my segue into The Affair, which is all about Reacher as a military cop.

Somewhere Child must have a timeline chart for the Reacher novels, but they are being presented to us in no particular order. We've seen him as a vagabond and we've seen him in the Army. In this book we get the pivot point, Reacher's last case, the one that decides him he needs to quit.

Child must also make definite decisions about how to tell these stories. Some stories are third person narratives, which allow him to use multiple viewpoints and spend some time with the bad guys, as he did in One Shot.

The Affair is a first person narrative, set in 1997, and told almost as if Reacher is talking to someone, telling us how it all began. The advantage, for what is not really a complicated story, is that we only know what he knows when he knows it, and we get the inside track on all his misgivings.

Reacher is sent to be the undercover cop in Carter Crossing, Mississippi. There has been a murder, and there's a possible connection to the military base there. The base is low profile because it is the place from which two units are rotating back and forth from the problems in Kosovo. Reacher's task is to be back up for the official investigator who has been sent to check out the base.

It is made very clear to both men that they are supposed to discover that this is a civilian problem. Reacher has never been one to cover the Army's backside, as we know from the background events in One Shot, so he's not entirely happy with this assignment. He goes as a former soldier, hitchhiking, or taking the bus, arriving with nothing by a toothbrush and enough cash for cheap lodgings, discarding his dirty clothes for fresh ones when he needs to. We know we're looking at exactly the pattern he will follow when he leaves the army.

The excuse he gives for leaving is partly true. It's a big country. He grew up and served in bases all over the world and hardly knows the place where he is a citizen, so he figured it was time to find out more about it.

The cover lasts barely a few hours. It turns out that Sheriff Elizabeth Deveraux is an ex-Marine and she spots him right away. Deveraux is good at her job, but not trained to it the way Reacher is, and after they tip-toe around each other for a while, she decides to treat him as an ally in the case, which, it turns out, actually involves the deaths of three local beauties, not just one. A journalist and a 16 year old boy get added to the list as the story grows, and the mother of the boy and one of the young women suicides on the nearby railway track in her grief.

It's a mess, for sure, and someone is trying to set up Deveraux as the perp, while covering for some member of one of the two squads on the base. For Reacher this is made more complicated by his attraction to the Sheriff and hers for him. I'd check back through the Reacher novels I've read to see if there's more of less sex depending on the narrative voice, but I can't.

Lee Child is one of the few authors I have read only in e-book editions. This points up one of the flaws of this medium. My early copies were all through either Fictionwise or E-Reader, which eventually joined together and then were scooped by Barnes/Noble. Those earlier files can only be opened with the original software, and that is no longer available. That never happens with real books.

Reacher has to deal with a bunch of local roughnecks who don't like soldiers and are looking for an excuse to pick a fight. Their mistake. Then there's a group of out of state private militia who someone in a high place has assigned the highly illegal task of guarding the base perimeter - hence the two additional murders. Reacher has to track them down and chase them away.

Then, it appears that there's a fairly high level person back at the Pentagon who is prepared to kill Reacher in order to keep him from finding out and revealing what has really been happening in Carter Crossing.

It is, in fact, left to Reacher to mete out justice for all the nastiness that has been going on, and he does so in a direct and final manner, totally illegal, but thoroughly deserved.

All through the book you can see him coming to the conclusion that he reaches at the end, when he mails in his resignation and leaves the service.

BOOKENDS

by Dan Davidson

"I picked a road at random, and I put one foot on the curb and one in the traffic lane, and I stuck out my thumb."

But wait, as the commercials always say, there's more. Included in this book is a short story that shows you just how early the teenage Jack Reacher displayed an aptitude for detection and for violence. It's not a long story, set in Japan, but it hits all the important points and it's rather fun instead of being about life and death.

Siebert is a Poet/Guide

actually do get on that plane."

Aside from communing with the Yukon River, which she visited daily during her stay at Berton House, beginning in April, Siebert has spent some time with Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in elders, especially Percy Henry.

The river poems in Deepwater Vee are identified with precise GPS coordinates, and are what Siebert describes as being almost field notes, verbal snapshots, of particular rivers and experiences.

The poems diverge from the precision of the satellite coordinates in that "they are a little more wobbly, a little more dreamworld, crazy some might say."

Siebert displayed maps showing the geographical locations of the actual poems some of which depict stressed environments in the same way that the Mackenzie and grandmother poems deal with individual stress.

The busker poems were written with her brother in mind. "During the time I was writing this, my brother was really sick in a way that the book itself is just interested in, like the broken down, the stranded and the wounded."

While in Dawson Siebert has been working of three different projects, bouncing back and forth as the spirit moves her.

"One of them is a book on caregivers of people with mental health problems ... with a focus on family members who take up that burden in so many cases. Then there's one little secret project that I was working on that I'm not going to talk about yet. And then the other thing was just the Yukon River."

She has seen the river from its frozen state, through breakup and high water.

"It's been really neat seeing the changes. It changes every day."

The short poems that have come out of that daily visitation are in the literary form known as the apostrophe, a one-sided dialogue in which the other side is a someone or something that is not present, dead, or unable to respond.

"I was lonely, so I started talking to the river," she said with a laugh, and read several of them to the group. "It's different for me, not actually travelling on the river, but visiting the same place over and over."

Some day, these may make it into another book.

Them Thar Hills came to the ODD Gallery

Story & Photos
By Dan Davidson

The ODD Gallery has been invaded by a menagerie of real and fanciful animals in an exhibit called Them Thar Hills: A Backwoods Alphabestiary. This is the creation of Yukon School of Visual Arts instructor Veronica Verkley.

Veronica’s work is founded in a wide-ranging, exploratory approach, which spans regularly between sculpture, drawing, and animatronics, as well as frequent collaborations in feature film, theatre, and animation. Her projects have been exhibited and staged extensively in Canada, including most recently at Video Pool (Winnipeg) and the McMaster Museum of Art (Hamilton), The Natural and the Manufactured at ODD Gallery (Dawson) and design for Nakai Theatre (Whitehorse) and Soulepper Theatre (Toronto).

Verkley’s short film A Working Cat’s Guide to the Klondike was the Audience Choice Award Winner at the 2012 Dawson International Short Film Festival and was also shown at the 2013 Tromso International Film Festival in Norway as well as at the Percy DeWolfe Mail Race banquet.

Her present work is comprised of 26 roughly framed dioramas, featuring animals in the natural (or unnatural) settings and running from A to Z around the walls after you walk through the faux forest at the entrance.

You can pick up one of the booklets at the A end of the show, or simply read the exhibit cards poster beside each entry, in typefaces similar to those found in old fashioned small town museums. Each diorama also bears a small caption.

“Beaver skookumizes the renovations,” reads one, while the card beside it tells, in mock scientific tones, about the animals iconic place in Northern exploration and development.

Some scenes have a bit of social commentary attached. “Caribou discovers a new thing,” is tacked to a diorama of a caribou confronting a pipeline. The card beside it is more factual.

“Elk takes a nap” shows a beast lying beside a highway, suggesting a more permanent sleep caused by a roadside hunter.

The bestiary also has a number of fanciful entries, including sasquatches, ice worms and No-See-Ums.

In one interesting combination of fact and fancy a mammoth skeleton is shown compressed between geological layers with the caption “Mammoth sifts through pay dirt,” a reference to the number of bones and tusks that have been uncovered by placer miners over the last 115 years.

Great Leaders: Caesar Augustus

By Lisa McKenna

Caesar Augustus (born Gaius Octavius) 63 B.C. to A.D. 14

Augustus was unusually handsome, making him the perfect subject for Roman sculpture.

Julius Caesar was his great-uncle, and when Caesar was assassinated it was found out that he had named Augustus as his successor. Augustus succeeded for 41 years, making his the longest reign in Roman History.

He was a great builder with kilometers of roads laid down at his request. He was an avid patron of the arts and held them in high regard.

His title gave him supreme control over all military power and absolute rule over the Roman Empire. He aided the poor by raising the standard of living, he reformed the tax laws to make them more honest and he reformed the legal system allowing them to deal with non-citizens.

Augustus helped to develop the Julian calendar with the exception that their calendar starts with the rise of Rome not the birth of Jesus Christ. The month names of the Julian calendar are still in use today in the revised, or Gregorian Calendar (since 1582), and the month of August is a tribute to Augustus.

Augustus’ reign is referred to the Augustan Golden Age. It was an age of order, plenty, architecture, art and literature.

Augustus is said to have uttered on his death bed, “I found Rome of bricks; I leave it to you of marble.”

Augustus was the Great Leader of Rome.

LETTER

Are Dawson's wooden sidewalks safe?

Wooden sidewalks... in front of some of our historic buildings... are falling apart!

Just minutes ago, my partner ended up face first on the boardwalk in front of the Kissing Buildings because she stepped on two boards where the old nails have rusted through and are no longer holding the boards down.

With so many visitors... many of them seniors... is the town ready for a lawsuit? No wonder that they mostly walk on the road... it’s safer!

Dawson Daycare Writes!

On June 12, Dawson Daycare paid a visit to the Klondike Sun office! We showed them how we put the paper together, let them browse the archives and assigned them to write a story for us, along with an illustration. Great work, kids! There are sure signs of up-and-coming writers here. Special thanks to Tyrell Warren for coordinating this activity.

The Cheese-Shaped Rock and the Heart-Shaped Rock

By Mena Saunders, age 7

Yesterday I went to my Grandma's house in my pajamas. This is true.
I went to pick rocks and the golden retrievers went for a swim. I found lots of beautiful rocks!
I found a heart-shaped rock that my Grandma really liked. And then I found a cheese-shaped rock with a pointy end.
And then my Grandma took me home to put all the rocks around her flower bed.

The Missing Tooth

By Alexis Brodeur, age 7

Once there was a tooth. He came out of a person's mouth. Then, he fell out.
He fell to the ground and got lost. He was under a bedroom crack. Then, he met another tooth – they were both lost.
They had lots of cavities. They were thinking to brush themselves because they were teeth.
They found some toothbrushes and they brushed themselves. All the cavities were gone.
Then the teeth went outside. They got pretty dirty.
Then, they heard a bear and the Northern Lights came out. The bear was gone because he doesn't like lights at all.
So, the teeth found a little leaf and they sailed out to sea. They landed on a beach – they landed on Tooth Island and all the teeth cheered to see them there and they lived happily ever after.

The Two Heart-Shaped Rocks

By Leonie Brousseau, age 6

One Wednesday I went to the beach across my road. And, I found two heart-shaped coloured rocks and I put them beside the knife place.
One was purple, blue, yellow and orange, and one was blue, green-blue, pink and dark pink.
One of the heart-shaped rocks my sister threw in the water, and my brother accidentally threw a big rock right on my cheek.
I started crying and I started going home, and when I was going home I found another heart-shaped rock and that was the greenish-blue and dark pink one.
Then, I kept on going home to tell my Dad.

The Two Heart-Shaped Rocks, illustration by Leonie Brousseau

The Dirt King

By Ryan Alexander Aiken, age 5

The Dirt King is a major monster truck. He can go through big mud bogs. He has really big monster truck wheels. He lives in a major monster truck shed with a sign on top that says "Dirt King".

The White Wolf

By Vivianne Brousseau, age 8

The white wolf lives in a den. Its name is Winter.
Winter's mom is silver – her name is Light. Her father's name is Blacky – he is black.
One day Winter went to find some food. While she was out she met a coyote. Its name was Yellow – it was a boy.
He was a good hunter. He could catch a moose in two minutes. The coyote ran really fast - he ran home.
Winter was lost. She tried to go home but it was in the fall so all the leaves were the same.
Finally, she got home, but her dad wasn't there. She asked her mom – she said he was asleep.
She was sleepy too so she went to sleep.

RSS AWARDS DAY CEREMONY - MAY 30, 2013

Submitted by the Robert Service School
Photos by Wayne Potoroka

The MC for this event was Mr. Steve Laszlo. His remarks are in italics.

Principal Ann Moore and Admin. Asst. Sonja Stephenson handed out certificates.

Welcome to AWARDS DAY 2013 an opportunity to celebrate Robert Service School students for all they do.

To start us off in a wonderful way I'd like to call upon Angie Joseph-Rear to give the opening prayer.

Now, I ask you to please join us in singing "O Canada". Ms. Tara McCauley and students will lead the song in Han, French and English.

It is our privilege to welcome you to Robert Service School's Awards Ceremony. Today is a special time in the school year. It is a time when we gather to recognize RSS students and their accomplishments. This year we are again gathering all students from Kindergarten to Grade 12, in front of their families and friends, so that we have a truly school-wide awards ceremony.

This means it may be a little long, so before we get started there are a few housekeeping issues. If anyone needs to use the washrooms please use the ones to my left near the school's side entrance. We also ask your help in keeping us on time - please hold your applause until each group of awards students are assembled at the front. We promise to give you time then to applaud and take photographs. So, without further adieu... let us begin.....

Introducing the Grad Class: For 8 of our students this was their last year at Robert Service School. It is now my pleasure to introduce the Class of 2013: Francis Bouffard, Alastair Findlay-Brook, Wesley Gillespie, Larissa Hebert, Alicyn Hunter, Waylin Nagano, Axel Riemer, and Jared Stephenson.

Comments about their visit: "Love the town. Like being back in Gold Rush time. Very enjoyable. People friendly and helpful. While sitting in park by river a female mouse came up out of the river about 10 feet away from us. Love the way the buildings have been restored but still have their original character and charm."

The student we are about to recognize has all the

For Athlete of the Year the Certificate and Trophy goes to: Alastair Findlay-Brook

Merit Award

Like the Citizenship Award and Athlete of the Year, all awards aren't about the final mark received in a class. We've created a new award called the Merit Award for students in grades 7-12. Each Reporting Period teachers must not only give a grade but also judge a student's work habits. In order to receive this award students needed to receive either a GOOD or an EXCELLENT in all of their classes. Teachers looked at responsibility, cooperation and independence of a student in the classroom.

Grade 7 - Lulu Bartholomeus, Michael Betts, Derek Chung, Emma Davis, Kyla Frangetti-Haines, Frazer Graham, Erin Hilliard, Lauren Jenkins, Dré Lacosse, Leilani Sharp-Chan.

Grade 8 - Zack Bartholomeus, John Dagostin, Connor Fellers, Olivia Holmes, Keziah Panaligan, Devon Dubois, Nylan Zalitis, Madison Betts, Nicole Favron.

Grade 9 - Emma Morin.

Grade 10 - Heeyoung Chung, Bailey Favron, Emily Hume, Christina Strutton, Melissa Naef.

Grade 11 - Natalja Blanchard, Clayton Buhler, Victoria Holmes, Spencer Wallace, Stuart Leary, Jayme Favron, Christina McIntyre, Jelene Panaligan.

Grade 12 - Axel Riemer, Jared Stephenson, Alicyn Hunter.

Community/STAFF APPRECIATION and congratulations

Community Volunteers help create an enriching atmosphere at Robert Service School. Without the many volunteers that come to RSS we wouldn't be able to do the many splendid things we do. So a great big thank you to all of you who have given any time to enhance our students lives at RSS. The volunteer of the Year Award for 2013 goes to two worthy gentlemen who put in hundreds of hours of volunteer time coaching volleyball. I'd like to ask CHARLIE TAYLOR and NATHAN DEWELL to come up and accept their Award.

Lester B. Pearson Selection: I would now like to call upon STUART LEARY. Stuart was recently awarded the Lester B. Pearson United World College Scholarship of $40,000. Stuart will be attending the International Baccalaureate program in Victoria, BC for the next two school years. One student from the Yukon is chosen yearly for this scholarship. Stuart is now the second RSS student to ever be chosen to attend. We are certainly going to miss him here, but what an opportunity. Congratulations, Stuart!!

Staff Appreciation: Would the following staff members please come to the front: Mr. Clive Betts, Mrs. Laurel Betts, Ms. Sara Stephens, Ms. Erika Scheffen, Mrs. Connie Riemer, Mr. Tim Taylor, Ms. Carol McBride

For these staff members, like our graduates, this, too, is their last day at RSS. All are all moving on from Robert Service School for various reasons. Some will hopefully be returning soon. We would like to say a great thank-you to all of them for their dedication and service that they gave the students and community of Dawson.

Would all our educators and support staff here at RSS please stand?

We thank you all for your dedication and hard work on behalf of the students of Robert Service School.

YACWI meeting raises critical issues

By Samantha Elmsley

On June 13, thirteen women met in the KIAC ballroom to discuss ongoing issues pertaining to women in the Yukon. Hosted by the Yukon Advisory Council on Women's Issues (YACWI), the meeting provided a forum for local women to voice their concerns and celebrate successes in their community. Though many attendees were community representatives of YACWI, the meeting was open to the public and anyone was welcome to join for snacks and discussion.

Moving around the circle of chairs, representatives from Whitehorse, Dawson City, Mayo, Teslin and Watson Lake took turns bringing the group up to speed on relevant issues. Issues in mental health care, problems resulting from lateral violence, and lack of housing dominated the agenda.

Mental Health

"Mental health is the ugly cousin in the health community," says Kim Solonick, representing Yukon Women in Trade and Technology (YWITT). "No one wants to talk about it."

In general agreement, the women expressed a need for social, rather than purely medical support.

"I think [success] would look like... if someone in the community was distressed, they would have someone to go to for help," says Diane Schroeder, representing Dawson City.

One community member from Dawson City, who wishes to remain anonymous, agreed. They are concerned that those responsible for health care are too quick to medicalize mental health patients. Rather than turning to medicine right away, simply having someone to talk to about their trials would benefit those struggling to maintain mental health, this community member feels. Many women spoke of the strength of support groups in their own communities, and the centrality of such groups in staying healthy.

No plans for such a group in Dawson have been formed as of yet.

Lateral Violence

"We [the Tlingit] are a matriarchal people... but for whatever reason, we're really lacking women in power," says Karen Keenan, representing Teslin. Explaining that narrow perceptions of a woman's role was limiting female empowerment in her community, Keenan told the group of a three-day workshop the Teslin Tlingit Council (TTC) recently held to deal with lateral violence in their own workplace.

Lateral violence occurs when a victim of violence deals with their experience by taking it out on others, who may have no idea of the victim's history.

Lack of Housing

Lack of housing, particularly social-assisted housing, is a major problem throughout the Yukon.

"Housing is the biggest issue," says Betty Irwin, Chair of the YACWI. The stress of homelessness, in combination with the obvious physical risks, was perceived to take a huge toll on those living the experience. The bureaucracy often involved in acquiring assisted housing was agreed to be a major roadblock to getting assistance in this area. Currently, the YACWI is working on a ten-year plan to attack the housing problem in the Yukon, the details of which have not yet been revealed.

After a respectful and supportive two hours of discussion, the group of women ended the night.

A punk blast

by Lisa McKenna

They began in London in 1975 and began the Punk movement.

What is Punk? According to the dictionary it's a youth movement of the late 70's characterized by loud aggressive rock music, confrontational attitudes, body piercing, unconventional hairstyles, make-up, and clothing. What the dictionary failed to report is to be punk you must be totally tone-deaf and have no musical skills whatsoever. Having a really rude name is a good option.

This particular punk band was one of the first. They started out as 'The Strand' and they were just working class teenagers. London in the 70's was not a good place to be. There was no hope of getting ahead in life, there was garbage on the streets, rats in the cellars and anger everywhere.

Not all was bad though, many great musicians (like Billy Idol) came out of the punk movement. The band I am talking about only lasted for two and a half years, put out only 4 singles, and had 1 studio album. Yet they changed the face of music. I am talking about the power of a song, the power of music, the power of the Sex Pistols!

Comment: What, no spring this year?

Story by Lisa McKenna

I guess Dawson doesn't want to have spring this year. I mean come on... no Dwayne Kelly pouring out his joy to the tourists (and locals) that stop to listen, no strains of the piano dancing through the sunshine... that spells out 'no spring' for me.

Dwayne is the "Yukon

He has played for the Prime Minister (Joe Clark at the time), every M.L.A. from every province and territory, he's been a regular player at the Calgary Stampeder's Games but he has chosen Dawson to spend out the last of his days.

Just the other day a by-law officer tried to impose a fine upon Dwayne for not having a hundred dollar business license. (this law requiring Dwayne Kelly helping visitors beat the heat at the Gazebo on June 20, when Dawson was the hottest place in the nation, according to the National Post. Dwayne powers his keyboard with a large battery, so he's completely portable.

Dwayne", not your run-of-the-mill busker with a broken down case and an out-of-tune guitar.

Dwayne began piano at three or four years of age and by the time he was in his early teens he knew he had found his calling. Did you know that he can play 5 hours non-stop, by memory? I think if he really dug out the old archives he could do 6 or 7 hours!

buskers to have licenses has not yet passed). The R.C.M.P. were called, locals were witnessing, people were offering to pay the $100 and tourists were asking the by-law officer to just leave him alone.

All in all it wasn't very good P.R. for Dawson.

Take care when preparing summer meals

WHITEHORSE (June 12, 2013) —Yukon residents are reminded to take some common sense precautions when barbecuing or picnicking this summer to avoid hazards that cause food poisoning. Chief Medical Officer of Health Dr. Brendan Hanley issued the reminder today. "We all need to ensure that what we eat, or the way we prepare our food doesn't make us sick," Hanley said. "Food borne illnesses can range from mild, to serious lifetime dialysis, to deadly. High risk groups such as infants and young children, adults over 60, pregnant women and people with weakened immune systems are especially vulnerable."

It is always important for people to pay attention to how food is prepared and stored in order to keep everyone safe and healthy. Summer time can be especially challenging with barbecues and picnics as there is sometimes no way to keep foods cold or out of the sun. Preparing meats for the barbecue can be risky especially for certain kinds of food poisoning including the infection caused by E. coli when consuming undercooked beef. "Food can be contaminated by bacteria, viruses or parasites that can cause illness. Depending on the type and amount of foodborne pathogens, people can become ill within hours or days, or sometimes even months after consuming contaminated food or drink," Hanley added. Food that is prepared by manufacturers, along with local grocery stores and restaurants, is generally safe because they take pride in following standards and Health Officers verify that current food safety practices are followed. However, these Health Officers do not inspect your home and it is important for you to follow these same food safe practices. Yukoners should focus on four basic tips to help prevent food poisoning:

- Keep raw foods separate from cooked foods to avoid cross-contamination.
- Wash hands and surfaces often to avoid the spread of bacteria.
- Chill: Keep cold food cold. Letting food sit at unsafe temperatures puts you at risk of food-borne illnesses.
- Cook: Make sure that you kill harmful bacteria by cooking food to proper temperature.

For more information on foodborne pathogens and how to prevent them, visit www.hss.gov.yk.ca/10leastwanted.php or e-mail hss@gov.yk.ca for your copy of the foodborne illness brochure, "10 Least Wanted".

THIS IS JUST MY OPINION

by Al Sider

What is there to do in Dawson?

Locals of Dawson usually have some idea about what things are available to do during the summer months in Dawson. Yet, there are a few who really have no idea about what is available to them as well as to the numerous visitors to our locale. This is intended to provide insight for locals and visitors alike, to provide everyone with the opportunity to enjoy the sights and scenes which our beautiful city/town has to offer. Often, locals feel that tours are only for the tourists, but these are available to everyone equally. It is the purpose of this article to provide for everyone a brief list about what is currently available to be enjoyed, by one and all, and the various distributors of these excursions.

The largest provider of land excursions in Dawson is Holland America. They offer a gentle float down the Klondike River, a tour of Tombstone Territorial Park, a couple of hikes within Tombstone, with varying levels of difficulty, a city tour, and a trip up to the Midnight Dome. In addition to these, they also are vendors with Gold Bottom Mines, and Slow Rush Kennels—both of which also vendor their own tours. Each and every one of these tours is enjoyable and informative. The guides are well informed, and knowledgeable, and some are extremely passionate about what they intend to show the visitor or local. It may also be possible to take a ride on the Yukon River upon a real paddlewheeler called the Klondike Spirit; just go to the Triple J to obtain your tickets.

We also have a vendor called Husky Bus, which, besides offering transportation to and from Whitehorse, also provides tours for anyone interested. Some of the tours offered by Husky Bus are tours of the Gold Fields, a tour of Dredge Number 4, and a trip to the Dome. Gold Bottom Mines also offers a tour of the Dredge.

Parks Canada also has a variety of tours or sights worth taking in. You could take a walking tour of our fair city; sit in on readings of poems by Robert Service, who once briefly lived here in Dawson City; visit the cabin of Jack London who gained notoriety with his novels, White Fang and The Call of the Wild. You could take a tour of the S.S. Keno, one of the last paddlewheelers to come up the Yukon River, or tour the Palace Grand Theatre, among several others.

You could visit our museum, and while there, search the archives to see if you might find some information of long lost relatives who may have visited, lived, mined and possibly died here in the Klondike. Of course, the most popular place to visit in town is Diamond Tooth Gerties. You could try your luck at the various game tables, or with the "One Armed Bandits", or take in one of the three shows, which are wonderful to observe and often call for viewer participation.

Let us not forget the most infamous thing to do while visiting Dawson, joining the world-wide Sour Toe Cocktail Club. To become a member of this club, it is necessary to have a drink (commonly something which is 40 percent or stronger) and a captain will place a real, severed human toe into your drink, and it (the toe) must touch your lips. It seems gross, but be assured it is quite safe and quite sterile (it is sterilized in every drink containing alcohol).

Of course, you have the option of doing nothing, sitting on a bench or a blanket, overlooking our magnificent and mighty Yukon River. It is the third largest river in North America, following the Mississippi, and the Mackenzie Rivers.

Whatever method you choose to enjoy our beautiful town, may it always be most memorable to you all. This article is not a complete list of things to do in Dawson and it provides no prices. It is only designed to show what is available to everyone. I hope that you will choose to take in any one of these things, in an attempt to make your visit to our fair town the most pleasant experience you might ever encounter.

But as always, this is only my opinion

G is for...

G is for geckos!

Geckos are different from other lizards because they 'chirp' and 'bark' at each other. They also have NO eyelids. They can't blink so they keep their eyes clean by licking them with their tongue (yuck!).

Geckos also shed their skin a few times a year. They speed up the shedding process by peeling their skin off and EATING it. (Double yuck!)

Geckos are found in every warm climate around the world, from deserts to swamps. There are over 1,500 different species of Geckos. The smallest one is only 1.6 cm long (just over half an inch) and the largest Gecko is 60 cm (that's two feet!). Geckos are also the most colorful lizards in the world ranging from blues, to reds, to yellows and browns, purples, oranges, all the colors of the rainbow.

A Gecko's vision is 350X more sensitive to light than humans giving them excellent night vision aiding in their nocturnal jaunts.

Their feet are very specialized, their toes are covered with thousands of little 'suction cups' allowing them to stick to glass or cross interior ceilings with ease. They also bend in the opposite direction of our toes allowing the Gecko to 'peel' off its feet from the toes inward leaving more final contact with the surface.

Geckos live on insects and vegetation although some larger Geckos will eat mice, small birds, and even small snakes.

G is for guavas!

Guavas are a tropical fruit that is native to Mexico and Central and Northern South America. Now they have been 'naturalized' to Africa, South and Southeast Asia, the Caribbean, tropical North America, Hawaii, New Zealand and Australia. For a plant or an animal to become 'naturalized', means to move a plant or animal to an area where it is not normally found. This can be a good thing but sometimes the alien plants or animals can take over from the natural flora and fauna.

Guavas are usually eaten raw or in a juice form. Guavas are about 4-12cm long (the size of lemons) and the trees hit heights of 4 meters but in extremely fertile areas like the Amazon Guava trees can grow up to 20 meters tall and have fruit the size of softballs!

The wood from the Guava tree is popular for smoking and barbecuing meat. In Cuba and Mexico they use the leaves from the Guava trees to cook with.

Guavas also have many medicinal qualities, from curing diarrhea and mouth sores to healing eye injuries and relieving sore throats.

G is for gyroscopes!

What is a gyroscope? Well it's a device that can tell the orientation of things and to help keep them level.

Commonly sold as toys Gyroscopes are used for many activities. Cruise ships use gyroscopes to keep their automatic/self-levering pool tables level! Airplanes use them for keeping the plane level. Nintendo Wii uses gyroscopes within its console and controller in order that the machine knows where your arm is.

The gyroscope originated as a simple top. Tops have been made throughout the world and history for such uses as toys, spindles for making wool, even to tell futures.

In 1792 John Sersor decided it was time for the top to work for a living and he came up with the 'Whirling Spectrum'. The Whirling Spectrum was used on boats to enable the Captain to know where the horizon was during misty or foggy periods.

By 1817 Johann Bohnenberger created what he called "the Machine". The machine was based on a massive rotating sphere. By 1832 Walter R. Johnson replaced the sphere with a disc.

It wasn't till 1952 that the gyroscope was taken seriously with Leon Foucault experimenting with the rotation of the earth. As a matter of fact it was Leon who came up with the modern name of gyroscope.

The growth of the gyroscope continued with the birth of the gyrocompass in 1904 by Hermann Anschütz-Kaempfe. Their use in the War was of great importance.
