Bring on the parade!

Story by Lisa McKenna

There was a wonderful turnout for this year's parade. There were the R.C.M.P. all dressed in their reds, fire trucks, antique cars, the notorious Can-can dancers and a traveling band!

But my favorite part is the kids. There were over 20 bicycles, Jack Amos (11) was on his unicycle AND Macy (8) and her horse Sadie (10). Then there were the big kids (ages unknown) on their motorcycles led by 5 year old girl who rode better than them! (She didn't put her foot down once.

Dawson City would like to thank everyone for coming out.

Uffish Thoughts: Attacking the Civil Service is Just Another Diversion

By Dan Davidson

The masterminds behind the ascension of the Reform/Alliance party to power have been much lauded over the last decade for being canny strategists, uniting the right, and dethroning the long ruling Liberal party domination at the federal level. They were supposed to bring us a new age of government, one free from the arrogance of the Liberals, the scent of corruption which blew off the sponsorship scandal, and the lack of transparency at the federal level.

Lately however, it seems that the only thing transparent about the Harper Government, as it continues to brand itself, is its determination to deflect the public's attention from its own shortcomings by issuing daily talking points about the shortcomings of its opponents or creating a straw man target out of the civil service.

I'm not completely informed just how the civil service sick leave provisions work, but I'm fairly certain that they don't get to bank and claim every sick day that they don't use during their term of employment. Under the Yukon government plan (which was a federal plan) I did end up with a fair number of unused sick leave credits after my 30+ years as a teacher, and I got to take some of them with me as a bonus for not having needed to use them all, but there was a cap on the total, and it amounted to less than half of what I had accumulated.

The feds seem to want it both ways. On the one hand they complain that sick leave provisions are too generous and on the other they complain about unused credits as if these had the same taint as improper living allowances or fudged senatorial travel expenses.

If the Minister Tony (see my new gazebo) Clement was correct in his figuring, 19,000 civil servants are sick on any given day. This would include people on long-term disability, people with the flu or whooping cough (where a doctor will tell you to stay home for the good of yourself and your workmates) and those who need a day to get over the worst part of a cold, a back sprain, or some minor injury. That's about 7% of the total federal workforce, which numbered just over 278,000 in 2012, though it's less than that after the last budget.

I strongly suspect that you could come up with the same percentage or higher in any community of a quarter million people.

Then there's the question of severance pay, which is usually a function of the length of time you've worked for an employer, and is seen as a long service bonus that is earned annually. Early retirement is sometimes offered to individuals as a way of pruning the long-serving (and therefore higher paid) employees to make way for younger, lower salaried workers. Once past the severance package, the pension being paid to retirees is considerably less than it would have cost to keep them on as full time workers.

At least, something along those lines was the excuse being offered when all those Parks Canada workers were laid off at the end of last summer.

None of this was aired for public discussion by the minister when he began making his media rounds earlier this month. All we heard was that public servants were getting a benefit that the rest of the working public wasn't ("And why not?" no one was heard to ask), that everyone else should be offended by this, and that the way to make everyone else feel better was to take those benefits away.

Another option might be to legislate that such provisions ought to be part of everyone's pay packet, but that sounds too much like the guaranteed annual income that was once proposed by Progressive Conservative Party Leader Robert Stanfield.

Me, I'm offended when the people who propose such pernicious nonsense vote to give themselves raises in both basic salary and expense accounts. But that was a minor news item two months ago, and one that we really weren't supposed to have noticed.

Concerned about drilling near Eagle Plains

Dear Editor:

This is my opinion about Northern Crosses' Seismic Project 2013-0067, which closed for commenting on the YESAB website last week. The project covers a large piece of ground, located in the traditional territories of some of the First Nations Peoples in the Yukon.

First, I thank the First Nations Peoples for sharing this beautiful country that has made such a profound impact on my own life. In the 1980's, after travelling the Dempster Highway up to the Richardson Mountains, I decided to live here. I love this land and its people dearly.

As for this seismic project, I don't think it should proceed, because I see no benefits, only difficulties and destruction.

Thousands of test holes are to be dug and more than a few thousands kilometres of cut lines are planned to cross this land. This will destroy habitat and also has the potential of destroying heritage sites, as well.

Habitat destruction will have a negative impact on birds and wildlife, particularly caribou and moose. Caribou are animals already stressed by climate change, and will be impacted by blasting. Don't animals matter? This wilderness is their home.

As well, in the plan, heritage sites are to be left undisturbed, but if there are additional sites in this area that are unnoticed, these could be accidentally destroyed by blasting, equipment or cut lines. I was surprised to see only one grave listed on a project map for this area, when in the late 19th and 20th centuries, many people died in the Yukon during the influenza and measles epidemics.

Another of my concerns is by allowing the project, this action will result in this land being fracked or drilled, and thereby being polluted if mining is performed in this sensitive area. There is, of course a purpose to seismic testing and no company will spend millions of dollars to do testing without the intent of mining the area! It is unclear to me, even after reading the material presented by YESAB, the plan Northern Cross has for this ground "if" mineable quantities of gas and oil are discovered.

Water quality will be an issue if fracking or drilling will occur. Fracking procedure creates copious amounts of polluted water. Also this land would take ages to recover from oil spills and maybe never recover.

It is a fact the thawing arctic is releasing vast quantities of natural methane, contributing to greenhouse gas emissions. So the fracking process leaks yet more methane, where the drilling tubes sometimes fracture or will eventually degrade, and in a permafrost area as well!

Oil companies should be reorganizing themselves and investigating other sources of energy, instead of mining the old fossil fuels. Gas is often touted as a "clean energy", but not if it pollutes groundwater or its extraction creates other problems.

Centuries from now, this area should still be useable for our future generations, should still contain plenty of vigorous wildlife, have healthy, clean rivers, sturdy forests and steppes, and still retain the heritage sites that are even yet to be discovered.

YCOD opens new office

Karolina Rietzler, in the new YCOD Dawson office. Open Mon-Fri, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Story & photo
by Samantha Elmsley

There's a new office in town: the Yukon Council on disABILITY (YCOD) has just opened its first satellite office in Dawson City.

Karolina Rietzler will be working out of an accessible office in the Chief Isaac Inc. building, providing employment services for anyone who self-identifies as having a disability. Support will also be available for employers looking to hire, or already working with, employees with a disability.

Lisa Rawlings Bird joined us via Skype from the YCOD office in Whitehorse.

"Over the last three years we've been engaged with a number of stakeholders to develop and coordinate a disability employment strategy," says Lisa. "What we were hearing was that there was a need for this service in Dawson." Though YCOD extends its services to every community in the Yukon, this is the first time it has established a physical office outside Whitehorse.

The service is run through the Government of Canada's Employment Opportunity Fund, which has financed 17 months in Dawson. Lisa hopes that as the Dawson office starts to see results, funding will continue past that date.

Employment services include help with career research, résumé building and interview skills. A computer with accessible software will be available to clients for employment-related use. Karolina also identified education and training as an area in which YCOD can assist.

"Sometimes a barrier to employment—for anyone, not just for people with a disability—is that they're lacking some certificates or training," says Karolina. She is already in touch with Yukon College to discuss options for further education. Those in need of financial aid to go back to school can also use YCOD for help determining available funding.

In addition to supporting workers with a disability, Karolina expressed that services will be extended to employers.

"There's two sides to it: not just the employee but the employer as well."

Lisa agreed. "It's not that employers didn't want to be hiring people with disabilities, in many cases they were already hiring them, but maybe they don't have all the tools or they didn't really know where to go to get information." This is where YCOD comes in.

Lisa emphasized that YCOD services a wide range of people with a disability, from people with a drug or alcohol addiction to those recovering from a stroke, to workers who use a wheelchair.

An information session with a light dinner will be held July 10 at 6 p.m. at Yukon College. Anyone wishing to learn more about the services offered by YCOD, or those interested in learning more about the progress made under the Yukon disABILITY Employment Strategy, are welcome to attend. Karolina Rietzler is also available by email at dec.ycod@northwestel.net to answer any questions. The YCOD Dawson office is open Monday to Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Iconic Palace Grand Theatre in Dawson City to Host Live Performances this Summer

The doors of Dawson City's iconic Palace Grand Theatre will be wide open this summer, welcoming audiences to a variety of performances within a season titled Live at the Palace Grand. Presented by the Klondike Institute of Art & Culture (KIAC) in partnership with Parks Canada, Live at the Palace Grand will provide locals and tourists with the opportunity to experience and enjoy the treasured venue throughout the summer.

KIAC has announced the season's lineup of performances, which kicks off this week with Country Queens on July 4th and 5th, when celebrity imposter Bonnie Kilroe graces the stage as your favourite female stars of country.

The season continues with Klondike Songwriters on July 7th, featuring a roster of Dawson City musicians who recently recorded a compilation album.

Tomás Kubínek presents his whimsical, vaudevillian antics to delight fans of all ages from July 10th to 14th, followed by Al Simmons' equally family-friendly songs, puns, and bizarre gadgets on July 23rd and 24th.

Thought Control promises to pique curiosity on July 25th and 26th as Thomas Baxter presents a new form of entertainment that isn't quite hypnosis, magic, or mind reading, but is certainly something unique to experience.

Whitehorse-based musicians Declan O'Donovan and Claire Ness share a double-bill on August 2nd, bringing their Yukon love songs to Dawson City.

Local filmmakers will be in the spotlight on August 4th, when Dawson on Screen showcases a selection of short films.

Gillian Campbell closes the season as her famous incarnation of Klondike Kate in the Gold Rush Review, an evening of humour, audience involvement, music, and sheer fun in an ode to the glory days of 1898 on August 9th and 10th.

Says Emily Farrell, Producer of Live at the Palace Grand

"KIAC is thrilled to partner with Parks Canada this season, and give audiences from near and far the opportunity to enjoy the stunning Palace Grand Theatre as it was meant to be experienced – during live performances!"

All shows are at 7pm, and tickets can be purchased in Dawson City at the Visitors' Information Centre, KIAC, and nightly at the Palace Grand Theatre prior to performances.

This Palace Grand Pilot Series is one of nine community-based projects resulting from regional economic development planning identified in the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Final Agreement.

Over-budget hospital is shedding its siding

By Ainslie Cruickshank in the Whitehorse Star on July 2, 2013

The saga of the Yukon's new hospitals continues.

The siding on the new Dawson City hospital will have to be replaced because the specially designed product has begun falling off.

The cement product had been chosen because it met the requirements of Dawson's heritage advisory committee and is non-combustible, Val Pike, a spokesperson for the Yukon Hospital Corp., said today.

"Once we started putting the siding on the building, it was discovered that the product wasn't suitable for the fluctuations in climate in Dawson and the product started to fall off once it was installed," Pike told the Star.

The product is now being removed. The corporation, in collaboration with the heritage advisory committee, is looking at replacement options.

Pike said the corporation hopes to have the new product installed in the next month, and it shouldn't impact the opening of the hospital in the fall.

The corporation doesn't know at this point how much the debacle will cost; officials are looking into what may be covered under the product warranty, Pike said.

The new hospitals in Dawson and Watson Lake have been the subject of continued controversy since a scathing report by the Auditor General highlighted shoddy planning that resulted in cost overruns and delays.

The Dawson hospital was originally set to cost $26.5 million, an estimate that has since risen to $31.8 million now, including equipment and interest costs.

The hospital was originally scheduled to open in the fall of 2012. It is now expected to open in the fall of 2013.

Sandy Silver, the Liberal MLA for the Klondike, said today he'd been hearing rumours about issues with the siding for some time.

"From the beginning, the two hospital projects were politically motivated," he said.

"When you have something politically motivated to start, you're not going to have proper planning through a needs assessment.

"We know this as well through the Auditor General of Canada's report," Silver said.

"Now, unfortunately, what we're seeing is proof of this.

"It just doesn't make any sense that a properly planned project would have a siding type that A) doesn't fit the climate or maybe B) fit the heritage bylaws," he said.

These issues will continue to come up, he predicted, and it's because politicians were permitted to make decisions on a political whim.

"Hopefully, moving forward, we can now focus in on a community needs assessment and actually get a hospital that fits our community, which would be great.

"But also, I hope we learn our lesson here for those larger projects."

Workers were busy stripping cracked siding off the west side of the building, having already stripped it from the east and south sides. The cracks were easy to see with the naked eye from the street.

The 13th Yukon Riverside Arts Festival is coming August 15-18

Submitted

The Yukon Riverside Arts Festival in Dawson City celebrates 13 years with its most eclectic and exciting schedule yet, featuring workshops, live music, guest lectures, artist talks, exhibitions, special events, and public art projects.

The weekend kicks off on Thursday night with an expanded gallery hop throughout the downtown core. This popular tour features art exhibitions, performances, and interactive projects in galleries, local businesses, and other public spaces, culminating with two very special 'The Natural & The Manufactured' exhibition openings. The ODD Gallery hosts an exhibition by Paul Griffin of New Brunswick, while a special installation project at Bear Creek by Alberta's Sarah Fuller will be accessible via a shuttle service from the ODD Gallery.

Other Festival highlights include two evening events at the Palace Grand Theatre. On Saturday, August 17th, singer-songwriter, visual artist, and general reclusive outsider Chad VanGalen will perform a live headline concert. On Sunday, August 18th, last year's sold out Grand Ole Soapbox event will return with a new roster of local speakers and live music.

Our Gazebo Live Music Stage will continue all weekend, along with a brand new downtown Experimental Music & Sound Performance Stage on the Yukon School of Visual Arts Balcony.

The Dawson City Community Library, Parks Canada, and KIAC will present the Print & Publishing Symposium's 2nd edition with a kick-off event Friday, August 16th at the historic Dawson Daily News building. Guest artists and writers from across Canada will present a series of workshops, demonstrations, and special projects throughout the weekend.

Stay tuned for more announcements, including a very special local artist workshop series, installations, interactive projects, guest lectures, artist talks, events, kids programming, and more.

Dawson Celebrates the Nation's Past, Present and Future

Story & Photos
By Dan Davidson

July 1 began with a hearty sourdough pancake breakfast at St. Mary's Hall, served up by the congregation of St. Paul's Anglican Church as a fundraiser for work being done on the chapel and thrift store foundation this summer. Once again, the rush was greater than anticipated and they ran out of food about 40 minutes early.

Next door, at the Fry Recreation Centre, a horde of bicycles could be seen getting ready for the parade, which marched off down King Street shortly after 11, led by a full contingent of Mounties, a band on the Van Every truck, and augmented by a group of motorcycles and a second group of vintage cars that travelled here from the Northern Lights Antique Auto club in Fairbanks.

The bicycle riders, marchers from the Dawson City Museum and Parks Canada, Fire Dept., EMA and Wildland Fire trucks made their way down King, south on Front, east on Princess and south on Fifth until they reached Victory Gardens and the Dawson City Museum, where the formal part of the morning began with the singing of "O Canada" at the Cenotaph.

Clara Van Bibber, Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Deputy Chief, was the first speaker.

"It's a pleasure to be here. It's the first time I've ever done the July 1st speech; I've never had the honour and I'm very grateful. It's my honour to wish Canada a happy birthday on behalf of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in government. This year we are celebrating our 15th year as a self-governing First Nation."

She remarked that the experience of implementing self-government has given her an appreciation of the struggles the founders of Confederation must have had in their day.

"As we strive to attain the cultural, social and political goals of our people, we recognize that there is no better country in which to do so. Canada's cultural strength comes from our acceptance of one another.

Jackie Olsen, head of TH Heritage, spent much of her speech talking about the latest effort to organize the community as a whole behind the idea of seeking World Heritage Status for the Klondike, a nomination first proposed by the late Pierre Berton in 1997.

"The story of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in is one of the reasons the Klondike has been short listed as a possible UNESCO World Heritage Site, a place that is so special that it has value to all humanity. This idea has been around for many years, but now there is a new momentum and a group of community partners is coming together to explore what World Heritage status could mean for everyone in Dawson.

"The Klondike has a rich past going back thousands of years. It is a story of extraordinary adaptation and change of people and the land. World Heritage Status could help people recognize the full spectrum of our history, the Gold Rush and mining, Dawson City and the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in way of life."

The group will be preparing a report during the next year, and the results should determine whether to launch into the complex nomination procedure.

"As a child I leaned to celebrate Canada Day on a fairly basic level," said Mayor Wayne Potoroka, "but the day's significance has grown as I've aged. I've acquired an appreciation for how the nation nurtured my ancestors who moved here to realize this country's promise and I've developed a respect for the contributions of Canada's First Nations, the first people to call this place home. And I've learned that what defines us most as Canadians is our diversity, our tolerance, our resourcefulness and respect for others. It's for these reasons that Canada Day has a deeper meaning for me these days.

"There's no where else I'd rather celebrate this day than Dawson City, where the finest of our nation is displayed daily by the best Canadians you're going to find anywhere."

Gertie and her Girls mingle with the Mounties as the flag goes up.

"The town is filling up as it does normally at this time of year," said MLA Sandy Silver. "You can't drive along (Third Avenue) these days without passing a half dozen of local tourists posing in front of the old log Blacksmith's shop or pointing their cameras up to our gorgeous Moosehide Slide."

Silver noted that locals are used to these sights and often come to take them for granted.

"We forget that we are living and working and going about our days in a ... living historic site."

He spoke for a few minutes of the history of the Museum (glancing for confirmation at executive director Laura Mann as he mentioned significant dates in the building's past).

"The building celebrates and preserves its history while still engaging in the present day.

"As we celebrate Canada Day here today, folks, we celebrate the people of Dawson, past, present and future. Dawson City is vibrant; it's tangible; it's alive. It is a merging of history, culture and progress and, although I might be biased, nowhere in the north is that mix more evident than here in Dawson City."

Speeches were followed by the cutting of the birthday cake (in two flavours), a country picnic BBQ, kids' games on the museum and gardens lawns and a concert by the Blackjack Rubies.

By 1 o'clock it was time to wander down to Front Street to take in the four hour Yukon Gold Panning Championships, stroll over to Diamond Tooth Gerties, walk down to the Visitor Information Centre for another piece of birthday cake, take the two hour Birdwatching Walk along the river and Ninth Avenue Trail (bring your bug repellent), swim at the pool for the low price of a toonie, pop into the Palace Grand for the all-Canadian edition of the Greatest Klondiker Contest or hang around the Gazebo for more live music by the Blackjack Rubies.

The only thing that doesn't happen in Dawson on Canada is fireworks, which would be absolutely pointless in the Land of the Midnight Sun.

Forum Envisions the Klondike's Future Economic Development

Story & Photo
By Dan Davidson

Do Dawsonites have any ideas or concerns about the future of business and development opportunities in the Klondike Region? It seems they do. Given the opportunity to brainstorm, the 16 or so folks at the latest Klondike Development Organization (KDO) forum (number 9 in a quarterly series) filled half the wall in the Downtown Hotel's conference room.

Prior to that, however, there had been an extensive overview of the nine projects already under way as a result of the regional economic development plan sketched out by the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in as part of Chapter 22 of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Final Agreement.

The overall goals of this plan are to encourage

- sustainable population growth
- a diverse economic base
- local benefits from major development projects
- available and affordable housing
- quality infrastructure
- sustainable, well-paying jobs

• attractive quality of life

From the TH process and KDO discussions 31 potential initiatives were identified, 20 of which were items that might be tackled or encouraged locally.

This three-hour forum, Envisioning Future Community Economic Development, began with reports on ten of these.

The Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in have hired Dan Beaulieu, through Cottongrass Consulting Group, to work with organizations and individuals as a business advisor and to offer cultural tourism support.

The Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in have employed Paul Hassard (formerly with Parks Canada) to head up a new steering group to investigate the potential for Dawson to be declared a UNESCO World Heritage Site. This idea was first proposed by Pierre Berton and Jacques Dalibard (former executive director of Heritage Canada, a non-profit group) in 1997, and has been the subject of much study and discussion since that time. Dawson was added to Canada's short list of possible sites in 2004.

Parks Canada was spearheading the project at that time, but its activity has stalled since the beginning of budget cuts and the First Nation has taken up the cause, combining its cultural heritage with the Gold Rush and industrial mining themes already under discussion.

Hassard will be preparing a report during the next year and a decision will be taken as to how to proceed from there.

The Klondike Visitors Association has prepared a new Dawson Regional Marketing Plan intended to increase the Klondike's visitor share from 30% to 40%, focussing on non-tour travellers.

"Tourism Yukon has identified six areas that visitors are most attracted to in the Yukon," said KVA's Justine Hobbs. These are iconic drives, the Klondike Gold Rush, wilderness, mid-night sun, heritage and culture.

"Dawson City has all of these in one place."

Additionally, they can all be reached from a town with lots of comfortable palaces to stay. The KVA's plan is to focus its marketing on these things.

The Palace Grand Theatre has been moribund since Holland America's cutbacks after 2001 took away its core audience of bus travellers. The Klondike Institute of Art and Culture has been handed the task of reviving summer attractions in the theatre, and is working with Parks Canada to put on 16 shows with 11 different performers over the summer, beginning on July 4 and 5 with Bonnie Kilroe's Country Queens show and continuing until August 9 and 10 when Gillian Campbell will put on two shows to close out the season.

KIAC has hired Emily Farrell to program the Palace. In between those dates there will be performances by local Klondike Songwriters, as well as Tomáš Kubínek, Al Simmons, Thomas Baxter (Thought Control), Declan O'Donovan and Claire Ness, as well as an evening of locally produced films called Dawson on Screen.

KIAC is also developing a Saturday Art Market project, led by Elaine Cordon, which will feature craft sales during the summer months. This will launch on July 6 in the town's picnic shelter in tandem with the weekly Farmers' Market and continue through the season.

The KDO is working on three of the more technical projects. Two of these, local procurement initiatives and local labour market development are long range and were initially brought up when it was thought that the current exploration and mining surge might last longer than it has. Mark Wickham and Evelyn Pollock indicated that some of this investigation is being retooled to see how the original thinking might still be applied to the current economic situation.

KDO has had an abiding interest in developing more affordable local housing. One plan, for small sized individual units, ran into trouble about a year ago and another, a non-profit apartment building, is currently being developed. Unfortunately, one of the best sites for such a project, the site of the former Korbo Apartments, will not be available for a number of

Great Leaders: Mao

By Lisa McKenna

Mao Zedong, Mao Tse-Tung, or Chairman Mao...who was this man?

Most praised Mao's modernization of China making it into a World Power. Mao raised the standard of living by increasing the status of women, increasing education and health care, and raising the life expectancy of the Chinese and doubling the population during his reign.

Some called him a Dictator who abused basic human rights and caused 40 to 70 million people into forced labor, starvation, and executions.

I suppose it's any man's judgment call.

Mao was born in 1893, the son of an industrious farmer who became one of the wealthiest farmers around. He believed in education and did his best to provide Mao with one. Mao was then a poor student, more into reading the novels of the times than the classics like Confucius. Mao ran away at ten only to be brought back home.

When Mao was 17 he was made to marry Luo Yigu but he refused to accept the marriage, moved into a fellow student's apartment, Luo fell into social disgrace and died shortly thereafter.

Mao became the Founding father of the People's Republic of China in 1949. Politically, Mao was a Marxist-Leninist (An expanded form of Marxism that emphasizes Lenin's concept of imperialism as the final stage in capitalism and it shifts the focus of struggle from developed countries to undeveloped ones.) and he ruled as the Chairman of the Communist Party until his death in 1976.

Mao's greatness comes from his ability to have led China into a single-party socialistic state single-handedly.

years yet, due to extensive soil contamination.

Following this part of the agenda there was a discussion and update of the SWOT (strength, weakness, opportunities and threats) analysis that was prepared back in March 2012, with some adjustments, additions and reevaluations suggested; though most of the three dozen items remained on the page, some of them were re-defined and relocated.

Among the greatest of the threats or weaknesses, the lack of housing continued to be near the top of the list, while the strength of the town's volunteer base remained a great asset.

It was after all this that the brainstorming session took place. Across the River Consulting will be compiling, organizing and distributing the results of that exercise over the next little while.

More Tales from that Yukon in the Mind of David Thompson

Haines Junction

By David Thompson

Caitlin Press

208 pages

$19.95

Just as David Thompson's first book, a collection of short stories called Talking at the Woodpile (2011) told us tales of a Yukon (especially Dawson City and Rock Creek) that never quite was, but sounded and felt like it could have been, somewhere. Haines Junction (where about one-third of this book is set) has that kind of mythical feel to it.

It's rather timeless in tone, and it's a little hard to pin down exactly when some of it is supposed to have happened, but we do know that it starts in 1946, when Joshua Waldo Lake Shackelton is born in New Mexico, not too far from Roswell.

Joshua (because it's so much easier to type than Shackelton) left home the year he was to enter grade 10, the death of his mother having left his father a sodden wreck who could not support him, and went to live with his grandparents in California. Shortly after graduation he was drafted, and then rejected due to colour blindness.

For some reason, he decided to go to Canada and hike his way up to Alaska. His father warned him to watch out for blackflies and communists and wished him well.

So began a life that saw him working in a logging camp on Vancouver Island, living in isolation in the bush, and eventually hiking his way up the west coast into the Yukon. There are stops along the way to keep body and soul together, marketing his skills as a carpenter, discovering a downed DC-3 with apparent connections to the Kennedy Assassination, and assorted other adventures.

Occasionally there are diversions from Joshua's tale, little side trips that allow us to find out what happened to some of the strange people he met along his journey.

By page 54 he has arrived in Haines Junction, and might have stayed there for the rest of the book, because Thompson's version of the place has just as many strange and wonderful characters as his Klondike. It's here that Joshua stalks the mythical wolfbear, rediscovers a lost Russian mine, and seeks out the raft that a group of Japanese monks left high on a mountain some time in the 19th century.

There is a clue to the timing of some of these stories in that Joshua loves Hungry Man TV dinners, and Swanson didn't start making those until 1973, at least in this dimension. Having watched all five seasons of "Fringe" I'm open to the idea of alternative timelines.

In addition, there's a bit of a story connected to that DC-3 I mentioned a while back. It's not too long after Joshua realizes where it finally got to (you've seen it - guess where) that his life in Haines Junction approached its conclusion.

What happens is that one day there is a knock on his front door and he finds an Angel (just her name - no wings) standing there. She is writing an article for National Geographic and wants to pick his brains. She also gets his heart. Eventually, after he gets to know her and she leaves, he just has to follow. All of which brings him to Dawson City and into contact with the cast of characters from Thompson's first book.

From that point, the book's center of gravity (or perhaps center of chaos would be more appropriate) is dominated by the Halloo family, that odd bunch who live in Rock Creek in a sort of commune arrangement. Joshua marries Missy Halloo and finds his life inextricably entwined with theirs, although he becomes more a recorder of their doings than of his own from then on.

A lot of it is dominated by the interaction and confusion generated by the relationship between the Halloos and the McKans. The latter were a solidly rooted clan from Ontario, where generations of them had run a store and more or less run the community. At least they were solidly rooted until they visited the Yukon, caught the spell, and uprooted their entire immediate family to move to Rock Creek from sedate Kemptville.

This relocation is the source of much friction, including overcrowding (they live with the Halloos for months), cabin fever, adultery and some nasty business with gold fever. Along

Dawson Passes its 2012 Audit

By Dan Davidson

A review of the Auditor's Report for 2012 was the main event at the June 25 meeting of Dawson's council. In the past these consultations with the firm of Hawkings EPP Dumont have been on paper or over a speaker phone, but this one was done over the internet via a Skype connection, a process that seemed to be satisfactory for all concerned.

Stephen Johnson, Wayne Potoroka,

The purpose of this kind of year-end audit is not to investigate city practices or uncover any nefarious doings. A year-end audit is not like the forensic audit, which the City of Dawson has had to undergo in the past, or that certain Senators are going through now.

The auditing firm examines the financial statements of the community which, as the covering letter says, "comprise the statement of financial position as at December 31, 2012, and the statements of operations and accumulated surplus, changes in net financial assets and cash flows for the year then ended, and a summary of significant accounting policies and other explanatory information."

The papers themselves have been prepared by the town's management team, whose dearest desire is to read the kind of statement of opinion which Philip J. Dirks signed off on at the end of the covering letter.

"In our opinion, the financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the City of Dawson as at December 31, 2012 and the results of its operations, the change in its net financial assets and its cash flows for the year then ended in accordance with Canadian public sector accounting standards."

In other words, the town is keeping its books properly and appears to be exercising prudent fiscal management.

It showed assets of $3,800,362.00, as against liabilities of $1,755,351.00. Revenue during the year was $6,305,553.00, about $83,000 less than anticipated in the budget, but just over $470,000 more than in 2011.

The amortization deduction required by Canadian public sector accounting rules causes the books to show a negative balance of $1,026,523, but the auditor commented during the briefing that this can be ignored in terms of cash flow, leaving a positive balance of around $68,000.

"The City's in good shape as far as its financial position goes," Dirks commented more than once during the session, having enough funds in its various resources (nearly $3 million) to run for up to half a year without a further cash infusion if there were a need to do so.

Amortization of assets is also the reason for seeing a decline in the town's accumulated surplus from $17,230,248 to $16,914,828.

Council had a few questions related to dealing with long term debt and some other technical matters related to language used by the auditors.

Miller Regains Title for 8th Time

By Dan Davidson

David Miller gained back his Yukon Open championship title for the 8th time, beating his rivals of several decades and his former apprentice Paul Robitaille, who has won the contest for the last two years. Miller panned the 10 flakes in his bucket of pay dirt in 4 minutes and 18 seconds, well ahead of James Archibald and Art Sailer, both of whom have won this event in years past. There were six experienced panners in this year's contest. Aside from his name on the trophy (again), Miller won $2500 to help cover his expenses if he should choose to go to Italy for the World Goldpanning Contest in August. Archibald won $1500 if he should chose to go.

The sun beamed down on the 2013 edition of the Yukon Goldpanning Championships, with just enough cloud cover to keep it from being oppressive, and enough of a breeze to keep the faint whiff of forest fire smoke from becoming annoying.

The stands and the hillside along the dike were lined with folks eager to see what goldpanning was all about.

While most of the contestants were locals, there were people from Inuvik, Chicago, Finland, Whitehorse, Alaska, British Columbia, Ontario, Texas, Alberta, Czech Republic, and Belgium who signed up to try their luck.

In the Sourdough Open, 10 contestants searched for 5 flakes of gold. Ralph Nordling found all 5 in 4 minutes, with Jim Archibald and Mike Bethers finding 4 and 2 respectively.

Nordling also took the Klondike Open, finding all 6 flakes of gold in 6:22. Paul Robitaille was a close second and Dirk Miller was about 2 minutes off the pace. Nordling's prize was a shiny new High Banker Sluice Box.

In the Cheechako Open, the beginner's class, 19 people sought the elusive 9 flakes of gold. Belinda Baker found them all in 13:09, while Erik Schiminger and Antii Perala scored a bit slower.

The Youth Under 11 category had 13 competitors looking for 6 flakes. Bodhan Sharp-Chan found 4 of them in 14:48, beating Kierra McDonald and Nuan Robbins, who actually did find 5, but in a slower time of 17:47.

In the Youth 12-15 category there were just two contestants looking for 6 flakes. Mackenzie McDonald found 5 in 20:16, and Rylin Soyчук found 3.

The penultimate contest of the day was the politically incorrect Four Man Relay though it happened that this year the former corporate challenge category was all male. Dave Miller's team from Gold Bottom Mining found 10 of the 12 flakes in 20:48 and Jim Archibald's French Hill team found 9.

In between events, Simon Mason-Wood put on a gold pouring demonstration, pouring a bar worth about $20,000.

The final event of the day was a draw for a gold necklace from Fortymile Gold. Getting a number took several attempts, but finally it was won by Mark Leinberger from Alaska.

A Taste of Dawson wraps up the Yukon Culinary Festival

By Dan Davidson

Generally speaking the tables only come out on the lawn at the Commissioner's residence once a year, for the official Tea in early June, but this year the Yukon Culinary Festival visited Dawson as part of its inaugural annual event, and the residence was just the place to be on a June 24 evening when Dawson was one of the hottest places in Canada.

Brian Stethem, chair of the Klondike Visitors Association, introduced the guests for the evening event, Blake Rogers (executive director of the Tourism Association of the Yukon) and Toronto based chef Christian Pritchard

Stethem explained that they had been dashing around Dawson all day, including taking in the related "Of Land and Sky" presentation at the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre, Uncle Berwyn's Birch Syrup, Klondike Vodka, Up River Fisheries, Klondike Nurseries, Roger Mendelssohn, Dowdell Farms, and Klondike Kate's.

"It's been an interesting day," Stethem told the approximately 100 people who turned out that evening. "We've had a lot of fun."

Rogers explained that this was the final event in a series that had begun in Whitehorse on June 21.

"We really recognize that there's a lot going on in the Yukon in terms of culinary and we want to build off that. This year we started off with a festival – we want it to be the first annual, and we've already been told that there are ideas for next year. We want it to get bigger and bigger and we've already had national media coverage for this event."

"It's been an amazing week to have Christian here, to meet local chefs and local farmers – so it's something that we're really proud of."

"The reason I'm here is because of Brian," Pritchard said. "Brian told me 'You can't come to the Yukon and not come to Dawson.'"

He lamented the fact that he only had a day to be here.

"It's certainly not enough time. Absolutely."

Having visited the territory last year to do a fundraiser for the MRI machine he was impressed with the Yukon's culinary potential.

"There's so much here already. But why not embrace areas of culinary tourism that are amazing?"

"I'm fortunate that I do culinary tourism in France.... and Italy ... but to me the Yukon is just as important as Tuscany."

So saying, he introduced the menu for the evening to the folks already drinking Yukon Brewery beer and martinis made with local Klondike

Vodka.

The main course was a bison ragout, followed by a selection of appetizers: elk, moose or bison crostinis (with baguettes from Cheechako's Bake Shop), smoked salmon with zucchini and high bush cranberries, a salad with a birch syrup and cranberry dressing and goat cheese, pickled grayling, caribou pinwheels sprinkled with gold, and fruit tarts.

"It's all about using local and embracing those great local ingredients that you have," Pritchard said. "Keep it simple."

Review of the Environment Act Permitting System

The Government of Yukon seeks public comment on its plans for updating how permits are issued under the Environment Act. The proposed changes would modernize the regime so that it fairly reflects the technical issues, costs and risks to public and environmental health.

Permits affected deal with air emissions, contaminated sites, designated materials, ozone-depleting substances and other halocarbons, pesticides, solid waste, special waste and storage tanks. You can provide comments online or by email, fax or mail.

The deadline for comments is August 31, 2013.

Psst. Where can I get a music festival ticket?

by Brent Morrison

Tickets for the Dawson Music Festival were sold out 10 minutes after going on sale June 19.

Maximilian's drew the largest line-up, but many were unable to get tickets and had to scramble to the ElDorado or Downtown hotels where tickets were also being sold.

In the end many Dawsonites were unable to get tickets and none were too pleased about it.

Paula Hassard, a member of the Music Festival Board, stated that, "We have a fairly restricted amount we can sell because of the liquor regulations. It's just kind of unfortunate that this year it seems that they sold out a lot more quickly than it ever has before."

The annual festival is held in a double circus-type tent holding a maximum of 750 people. 700 tickets went on sale. In Dawson, 320 were available, but some of those were allotted to volunteers and board members. Tickets sold by mail numbered 260 and 120 were sold in Whitehorse.

The other 50 tickets must go to all band members, lighting and sound crews and anyone else involved in the show so that the Festival Board can keep track of the numbers.

Hassard also explained that, "We've got complimentary tickets that we're kind of obligated to give out, we try to keep that down to a minimum too." These tickets include press passes and courtesy tickets to certain VIP's such as mayors, members of parliament and others.

Sales were limited to four per person and Hassard maintains that, "We're doing our best, and in terms of numbers there were actually more tickets for sale in Dawson this year than there were last year. What it says is that it's a really sought after event."

While a common complaint is that the festival should be bigger, the logistics and costs associated with such a move are another matter. "We've got a big crowd there and we want to make sure we're really well organized. The festival is sort of in a maintenance mode. Let's not get any bigger until we're sure we can handle this."

The festival's board met the Wednesday after the tickets had sold out and there was talk of some changes being made, "We're definitely going to handle the tickets differently," Hassard stated. But exactly what those changes would be are still undetermined, although having them sold from one site next year is a probability.

Volunteers are allowed a ticket after a certain number of hours are put in, and board members, "Have the privilege of reserving two tickets," up to a certain date.

But as to, "Some people suspecting that tickets are sold ahead of time, or whatever, you hear lots of those stories but it isn't our policy to do that. If we sell out of the office we'll have a lot more control over it next year."

The size of the festival is also an attraction Hassard states, because bands like the intimacy the tents provide. Numerous workshops throughout the town give those who didn't get tickets a chance to catch the bands up close.

Tickets may also come available if it appears people haven't made it or have left the festival.

Hassard also pointed out that memberships are available to anyone. The Board plans to advertise more this year, probably during the fall or winter when memberships would most likely go to residents, "Every organization wants to increase it's membership," she adds.

As to selling all the tickets in Dawson, Hassard explains that there are people in Whitehorse who have been coming to every festival for the past 14 years and buy their tickets there. There is also the matter of grants which help to fund the festival and are granted based on the festival's territorial appeal.

Accused returns to Dawson

by Liza Sardi

A 30-year-old British Columbia man who has been charged with sexually assaulting a Yukon woman in Dawson on June 28 returned to town on July 7.

He was scheduled to appear at the District Court in the Dawson City Museum. The circuit court comes to Dawson approximately every month.

Brian Michael Priske, a recently unemployed seasonal worker, has been charged with sexual assault with a weapon, engaging in anal intercourse and uttering a threat. He was in Territorial Court in Whitehorse on June 30 but did not enter a plea at that time.

RCMP Constable Eric Zalitis had called the assault "one of the most violent we've had for some time."

The sexual assault occurred in the early morning of June 28. A 29-year-old woman had gone to a local bar with the alleged attacker. They returned back to her campsite in west Dawson in the squatters camp across the Yukon River after the bar closed. The attacker had left his knapsack at her site when they went to the bar.

The woman reported to the RCMP approximately 6 a.m. on June 28. She submitted a statement and was taken to the Father Judge Memorial nursing station for examination. She is now in the care of the local woman's shelter.

Both the accused and the victim were in Dawson for summer employment. Both were camping across the river, but not at the government campsite.

The accused did appear briefly before Justice of the Peace Joanne Smith on June 28 at 4:30 p.m. where he was remanded into custody for three days until he could be sent to Whitehorse. He did not enter a plea at that time either.

The accused had asked the Justice of the Peace to be set free to pick up his last paycheck. But Smith said she believed that the victim and the community would not be safe. She also said that the accused had no roots of significance in Dawson and had recently lost his job as a cook at the Westmark. He was fired on his birthday, June 27.

Yukon Culinary Festival showcases local food

by Samantha Elmsley

The smells of summer cooking wafted over Dawson City two weekends ago, courtesy of the Yukon Culinary Festival (YCF).

Local food was the focus of the event, which was hosted by the Tourism Industry Association of the Yukon (TIA Yukon). Visiting TV chef Christian Pritchard made the rounds between Whitehorse and Dawson at a number of food-focused events.

In Dawson, activities included the aptly-named "Midnight Sun Food Crawl" on June 21, as well as "Of Land and Sky" at the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre and "Taste of Dawson" at the Commissioner's Residence on June 24.

Roughly 20 food lovers made it out to the Cultural Centre's program, hosted by Fran Morbery-Green.

"Birch bark is like long-ago Tupperware," Fran smiled as she held up a beautifully carved box filled with dandelion tops for the audience to see.

Prior to taking our first sips of dandelion tea, Fran instructed us to "give your gratitude and a prayer" before this and every meal. The program took a holistic approach to food and eating, with Fran explaining that in addition to physical nourishment, food provides spiritual and emotional sustenance as well.

From dandelion tea we moved to dandelion leaf tea, dandelion root tea, bannock with butter, blueberry and dandelion jam, spruce tip iced tea, and finally high bush cranberry juice. Fran had harvested and made almost the whole spread herself—a testament to the interest in self-production here in Dawson.

Fran emphasized that eating locally puts the eater in touch with their immediate environment, a crucial concern in the climate-change era.

"They say the plants that grow around you are the ones that you need," said Fran, "and what grows more consistently than the dandelion?"

Containing three times the amount of iron than spinach, these plants deserve a second look.

The festival was a chance for visitors to tap into the variety and splendor of Yukon local food. It's an area of specialty for many Dawsonites, and it made for a delicious weekend.

Fran Morbery-Green gives thanks before cutting into a huge spread of local food.

Top Overall Team – #19 Round Side Down (free entry for captain and team members in 2014 YRQ and name on permanent trophy) first to finish at 7:02 p.m. Friday.

RACE NOTES

- 62 teams started the race (67 were registered; 5 teams withdrew or did not start)
- 49 finished; there were 13 scratches (1 end of lake, 11 at Carmacks, 1 at Minto)
- A tandem canoe won the overall title for the first time since 2004.

• Lake Laberge was very calm for second straight year (unusual) and river was high but these conditions did not result in faster times. No records were broken for the first time in many years. The heat this year (plus-30 on Thursday and Friday) slowed all teams, as did thunder and lightning on all parts of the river, and smoke from forest fires. Racers watched one strike a hillside just before the rapids on Thursday night, and others watched fire bombers put it out. Another fire was reported by teams before they arrived at Kirkman Creek. Many teams also encountered rain on Saturday.

• Two teams overturned in the rapids, and two others (1 before Little Salmon, 1 before Fort Selkirk); all carried on after getting to shore and being checked by safety boats. There were no major incidents.

Blasting From the Country

By Lisa McKenna

Known as the Texas Troubadour he was a pioneer of American country music.

Born in 1914 in Crisp, Texas (now a ghost town), just outside of Ellis County, he grew up working on farms. Inspired by Jimmy Rodgers (The singing brakeman) his boy would spend all his spare time singing, yodeling, and playing the guitar.

In 1947 he opened up the first all-country music store in Nashville, now there are several.

He helped to 'mark the rise' of Honky Tonk music. He sang with a young Loretta Lynne. He sung "Blue Christmas" in 1948 years before Elvis. He is in the Country Hall of Fame. But he'll walk "the floor over you" because he is Ernest Tubbs!

Gallery hopping

by Samantha Elmsley

For the local arts scene, June 27 was a night of gallery-hopping. With the Confluence Gallery opening at 7 p.m., closely followed by an artists' talk and opening at the ODD gallery at 8 pm, art lovers and artists were out in force.

Titled After the Breakup and featuring artwork by 2011 SOVA alumni, the Confluence Gallery is showcasing a wide range of artistic endeavor in this exhibit. From watercolor to video to sculpting, SOVA alumni demonstrated their skill in a variety of mediums.

I was particularly captivated by Aubyn O'Grady's piece, "We Didn't Think it Would Kill Him", in the Confluence Gallery. O'Grady arranged their work on three levels: a comic-style drawing of three young men, one saying "We didn't think it would kill him". Below the drawing, a shelf supporting a miniature of a broken fence was hammered into the wall. Directly underneath the shelf on the floor sat two skeletons dressed as the living, one lying as if dead and the other poking it with a stick, surrounded by bushes.

This piece forces the viewer to ask questions about the story. Though the three levels are arranged in linear fashion (top-middle-bottom) the viewer does not have a purely chronological sense of events. Did the broken fence come first, or the skeletons? Is the comic a depiction of the characters reflecting on past events, or are the three sequences related at all?

By asking questions about the story, the viewer is also forced to interrogate the nature of storytelling. What falls outside the realm of authorship in this piece? Is the faint red mark on the shelf part of the artist's intent, or was it already part of the shelf they found to use? What is part of the story, and what isn't?

Leaving these questions unanswered, I made my way to the ODD Gallery for the artists' talk. Kerri Reid and Tyler Brett are a married, artistic couple who both studied at Emily Carr College University of Art. Their talk presented an overview of their individual projects, virtually since graduation. Reid demonstrated an interest in objects that have been broken and forgotten, apparently useless to the world. One of her first projects in this vein was to create multiple ceramic replications of a broken teapot found in Toronto.

In the ODD Gallery exhibit, titled Signs of Life, Reid's interest in brokenness and repetition comes through in her video piece (untitled). In this work, Reid placed one object (broken and/ or found) on a table exposed to daylight through a window, and set up a camera to take photos throughout the day. The result is a fascinating video of perspectives on these objects as they exist through time and space.

Brett's work is often inspired by the creativity with which people approach their living spaces. He cited the boats of the squatters he had seen in the Vancouver harbor as a particularly strong example of this. Much of Brett's current work focuses on incorporating this spirit of resourcefulness into his constructed pieces, many of which have an ecological bent to them. One of his pieces in the exhibit is a kind of watering machine that uses the mechanisms of an old record player to flick water onto a strategically placed plant every few seconds. As noted in his talk, this piece has an apocryphal feel to it—it functions as a prediction of how humanity will make use of their gadgets once climate change renders current practices unlivable.

Both the Confluence and ODD galleries are well worth a visit. After the Breakup will run to July 14, and Signs of Life until July 27.

"We didn't think it would kill him", by Aubyn O'Grady. Questions of authorship and brokenness arise at the Confluence and ODD galleries this July.

Van Bibber Legacy to assist with film and music projects

By Dan Davidson

While there was initially some concern among the members of the Van Bibber family about raising enough money to publish J.J. Van Bibber's memoir, I Was Born Under a Spruce Tree, the book has proven to be a tremendous success financially as well as critically, and the Van Bibber family has found itself in the enviable position of having profits from the sales.

Shannon Van Bibber, who stick handled the project through to completion, says that the sales during the official book launch last August removed any fears about not being able to afford the printing costs.

The family has decided to donate some of the profits to a variety of worthy cultural causes. Nearly thirty members of the extended clan gathered in the ballroom at the Oddfellows Hall on June 28 to make the first presentations.

The family presented a cheque for $2000 to the Klondike Institute of Art and Culture in recognition of KIAC's ongoing support for the completion of a documentary film about the life of J.J. Van Bibber. Lulu Keating, who prepared a short pitch version of the project last year, is producing the final film this summer.

"We've been able to help with (this project)," said KIAC executive director Karen Dubois, "which we're very happy to do."

Peter Menzies, the president of KIAC's parent group, the Dawson City Arts Society, received the cheque from Shannon and Alex Van Bibber (J.J.'s brother).

The entertainment for this event was most appropriate. Menzies, along with young Jack and Jessie Amos, provided several fiddle tunes, and Menzies talked a bit about the fiddling symposium that will take place at the Robert Service School in September.

This initiative can be traced back to the beginnings of the North Klondike Highway Music Society, which Menzies has been shepherding since his years teaching in Carmacks.

Little did he know that the Van Bibbers were set to present the society with a cheque for $5,000 to help the work of the group.

"We've been keeping this one a secret all this time," Dubois explained. "Because of J.J.'s love of music the Van Bibber family also wanted to make a presentation to the North Klondike Highway Music Society for the work that they've been doing with kids. And Peter's also the president of that society."

Steve Van Bibber handed the cheque to a stunned Menzies, who was left momentarily speechless and wiping the happy tears from his eyes.

"You have no idea what we can do with $5,000," he said when he regained his voice.

Menzies recalled when a First Nation elder donated 15 fiddles to the Carmacks group out of his enthusiasm for keeping the project going there.

"Elders have played such a key role in saying that what we do is important. So for JJ and his brothers (to do this) – this is huge – this is like (winning) a lottery."

Peter Menzies, Steve Van Bibber, Karen Dubois, Shannon, Alex and Pat Van Bibber.

Members of the Van Bibber clan were on hand for the cheque presentation as well as to get read for Shannon's wedding the next day.

Dawson City Minor Soccer wins silver

submitted by DCMS

On the weekend of June 14 the local U11 team, Dawson City Tr'ondek Hwech'in, headed to Haines Junction to participate in the Yukon Cross-field Soccer Championships. The two day event included two teams from Whitehorse, a team from Haines Junction as well as the Dawson City team. The weather was hot and sunny, and the Dawson participants enjoyed spectacular views of the mountains in the distance from the soccer pitch. The Dawson squad was made up of Austin Franks, Emily Gaw, Emma TomTom, Logan Graf, Christopher TomTom, Joey Lorenz and new friends Kaelen Lewis and Rhys Faragher from Whitehorse. The team played some great soccer over the weekend winning all but one of their games, and lost the gold medal game to one of the Whitehorse teams, to win the silver medal! Some highlights of the weekend included the skills competition (in which Emily Gaw and Emma TomTom won prizes for fastest dribbling and ball juggling), the barbeque put on by the community of Haines Junction, swimming in Pine Lake, and visits to the local ice cream shop! Thank you to the parents who made the long drive to get the kids to Haines Junction.

The following weekend DCMS was back in Whitehorse with the U13 team, Dawson City Ryan Wood Exploration, to compete in the seven team Yukon Full-field Championships. Our team was comprised of Will Connellan, Ethan Gaw, Lauren Jenkins, Lulu Bartholemeus, Sarah Nyland, Kacie

Hastings, Teresa Procee, Aliyah Nyland, Austin Franks, Joey Lorenz with the addition of Haines Junction players Trevor Jones, Dawson Weir, Joshua Dulac and Whitehorse player Rhys Faragher. The six games over the weekend were full of exciting moments and hard battles won on the pitch, while these amazing athletes wowed the spectators! One of the most exciting games was the match Sunday morning that sent the Dawson team to the gold medal final. The game was tied 2-2 after 60 minutes, and after 10 minutes of extra time, the game went into a shootout. Haines Junction's Dawson Weir was stellar in net, while Austin Franks scored the final goal to win the game for Dawson City! The team went into the gold medal game later that morning without mid-fielder Ethan Gaw, who suffered a knee injury. The team fought a great battle, but ended up losing to undefeated Whitehorse Adorna Landscaping, capturing the silver medal. Thank you to the parents and supporters who came out to cheer on the team!

Dawson & Tombstone Events Benefit from Arts Fund

Whitehorse (June 21, 2013) - Eleven arts organizations will share more than $102,000 from the Arts Fund, the Yukon government announced Tuesday.

The money will support artistic development, cultural diversity and community participation.

The Teslin Tlingit Council is receiving $20,000 for the Ha Kus Teyea Celebration taking place this summer.

Since 2009, the gathering has brought together Inland and Coastal Tlingit to celebrate shared traditions and family connections that strengthen Tlingit culture.

"The third bi-annual celebration is a unique opportunity in which visitors can experience the Tlingit language and traditions via the visual arts, performance art, demonstrations/workshops, storytelling and First Nation dance and song," said Melaina Sheldon, the Teslin Tlingit Council's community arts co-ordinator.

"From our colourful opening ceremony to our heartfelt farewell, we hope to build and strengthen relationships through celebration and experience."

The Lorne Mountain Community Association is receiving $5,740 for the Sunshine Art series this summer.

Two outdoor events and one indoor event will showcase and develop the skills of established and emerging artists in the Mount Lorne community.

"This funding helps us nurture youth in the creative pursuits of music, circus and culinary arts," said Sharon Hickey, the association's president.

"Our youth will learn new skills as well as the discipline to plan, focus, work in teams and celebrate their accomplishments."

"By participating in these artistic programs, they will also be contributing to our community and building on their sense of belonging, which will add to their résumés as citizens of tomorrow."

Here are the other March 15, 2013 intake recipients:

- Northern Opry Project Group, Grand Ole Northern Opry two-night concert event, $20,000;

- Dawson City Community Library Board, Dawson Daily News print and publishing symposium, $12,000;

- Extremely Moving Youth Society, Choreographic Connections dance project, $11,000;

- Whitehorse Photography Club, Whitehorse Photography Club fall workshop, $7,100;

- Northern Impact Dance Ensemble, Northern Vibe three-day dance intensive workshop, $7,000;

- Association théâtre Art'lequin, On n'est pas des grenouilles - cabaret théâtre, $6,475;

- Friends of the Dempster Country Society, Art Magic in Tombstone, local artists interacting with visiting public, $6,000;

- Association franco-yukonnaise, cultural and artistic celebrations for St-Jean Baptiste Day (this Monday), $5,000;

- Haines Junction Campus and Yukon College, "Build your own Djembe and learn how to play it".

The Arts Fund is available to art collectives, organizations, industry associations and other eligible groups for projects related to the literary, visual or performing arts. There are four application intake deadlines per year: March 15, June 15, Sept. 15 and Dec. 15.

"The Arts Fund supports events and projects that foster cultural connections and community development through participation in the arts," said Tourism and Culture Minister Mike Nixon.

"This group of recipients reflects a variety of art forms, cultures and regions of Yukon, and we are pleased to support their work."

A Message for All the World

"Who is wise, and he shall understand these things? Prudent, and he shall know them? For the ways of the Lord are right, and the just shall walk in them: but the transgressor shall fall therein." Hosea 14:9.

The words quoted above were initially directed to the people of Israel and Judah more than 2500 years ago. So the question arises, what relevance do they hold for us today? Do they even remotely apply to the people of the entire world today in a world where many believe that "God is Dead" or "God does not exist" or even, "God is love and therefore no one will be punished"?

Depending on an individual's perspective and personal believe, these ideas are all correct, but only for them. To those that read and understand Scripture correctly, all of these ideas are grossly inaccurate.

As I re-read the Book of Hosea today, I realized that this entire Biblical book applies to every nation, every individual person on the planet earth today. It speaks of how, both Israel and Judah turned away from their God, and followed the ways that were acceptable to their neighbours and the progression of times. The God of their father's was an out-dated God - His rules (Laws) too difficult to abide by. They chose to live their lives the way they wanted to, without God interfering in their plans. They chose to be "respecters of people" rather than followers of God—they chose to please the people around them instead of causing strife with their neighbours. The God of our fathers will not punish us! We will worship our idols! We will be rich among our brothers! But this would lead to their ultimate demise.

You may be stating, "What demise? Is not Israel a recognized state today?" Yes, Israel is a recognized state today, but Israel today is really Judah, not Israel. One must remember that Israel and Judah consisted of twelve tribes, two belonging to Judah, and ten belonging to Israel. What exists as Israel today, are comprised of only the two tribes of Judah. The ten tribes which made up Israel, are today an unknown group of people, spread, or intermingled among all nations of the earth, or also known as the "ten lost tribes of Israel".

So how does this apply today to our world? Simple, take a good solid look at the world around us. Each nation is forsaking God more and more each day, as God and His Laws are too out-dated, His Bible is an out of date book of fairy tales and myths, God is Dead, God is Love—He will not punish His children—We want to live our lives according to our own sets of rules—rules that can be adjusted according to the slightest whim. We do not need God in our lives any more! We want to serve gods of our own choosing—of our own design—which may even include ourselves as our own god. We do not want a God interfering with our lives, our fun, our choices, our lifestyles.

We choose to live our lives today in a manner very drastically similar to the people of Israel 2500 years ago. We take God out of our schools, Christian symbolism, is strongly opposed by those who do not wish any Christian symbols during Christmas and Easter, especially if it is placed upon governmental properties. We choose as a human race, to move further and further away from the God of the Bible and closer to any god of our own design.

Still, this is not where the similarity of 2500 years ago and today ends. Hosea warns Israel of what will occur to them. They would be dispersed among all nations of the earth. They would not return to their homeland until the very end of time. They would be plagued by pestilence, famine, and wars. They would become childless and barren—but for the sake of the promise to Abraham they would not be completely destroyed—only forgotten. Today, not one person alive can trace their roots to one of those ten tribes of Israel, yet they are still here. Perhaps it is because they chose to forget God that they have been forgotten—and they have forgotten themselves.

All of the warnings, Hosea gave to Israel 2500 years ago, apply to the people of the world today! God does not change and His Laws do not change nor can be altered! But there is still some good news in this, turn away from the evil lives we choose to live and we can be forgiven, Hosea even records these words, "I will heal their backsliding, I will Love them freely: for mine anger is turned away from him. I will be as dew unto Israel: he shall grow as the lily, and cast forth his roots in Lebanon." Hosea 14:4,5. These words are not for Israel only Today, but for all people, of every nation, of every class. What will you choose?

But as always, this is just my opinion.

H is for...

H is for hares!

The hare, also known as the Snowshoe rabbit or Jackrabbit, has never been domesticated like the common rabbit was. They are completely wild animals.

Hares are born above ground in a nest of flattened grasses called a 'form'.

Unlike rabbits baby hares (called leverets for their first year) come complete with fur and their eyes open enabling them to 'fend for themselves' from just after birth.

Hares are loners only coming together to mate but unlike the rabbits there are no fights for dominance, they just pair off.

Hares are larger than rabbits, have longer ears, bigger feet, stronger legs and black markings.

Hares are very fast animals. European Brown hares can run 56 km (35 mph) and American hares can run 64 km (40 mph) and leap up to 3 meters (10 feet). I wonder if the Americans can run faster because they have more room to run and long ways to go or is it because the predators in America are faster? Makes one stop and wonder.

Hares prefer tougher food like bark, rinds, buds, small twigs and shoots. A rabbit prefers softer food like grasses, soft stems and vegetables.

Both the hare and the rabbit molt but the rabbits come back the same color an arctic hare will come back white for winter.

AND we cannot forget the famous Jackalope. The Jackalope is a mythical creature that is supposed to be half rabbit and half antelope. They are known as 'fearsome critters' and 'killer rabbits'. In Douglas, Wyoming, known as the home of the Jackalope, hunting licenses can be bought for hunting the elusive Jackalope. There are only a couple of rules:

1. Licenses are only good for one day...June 31st from midnight till 2 a.m. (there is no 31st of June)
2. Hunters may not have an I.Q. of over 72!

H is for horseradish!

In Ancient Greece horseradish as worth its weight in gold and the roots and the leaves were used for medicinal reasons in the Middle Ages The roots then began to be used as a condiment for meats in Germany, Scandinavia, and Britain. It was not brought into North America till the Colonial times.

Horseradishes are harvest grown their bulb (or tubers). A horseradish can grow up to 5 meters (15 feet) tall and contain roots of several kilos of which the largest (unless they are way to big and woody, then they are split up) is harvested (with the big woody ones being separated and replanted for next season).

An oracle told Apollo the horseradish was worth its weight in gold.

I think radishes were compared to silver and potatoes were equal to lead. But don't quote me; it's something I heard long ago.

Now horseradish is served mixed with vinegar and used as a condiment for roast beef or pork. BUT BEWARE FOR IT, horseradish, CAN BE VERY, VERY HOT AND STRONG.

H is for helium!

Helium is gas that is lighter than air. You probably are all aware of helium balloons that float? They float because they are filled with Helium! Just like oil floats on water the helium floats on the air.

You are probably all aware of people inhaling helium to make their voices like a munchkin. DO NOT DO THIS !!!!!!! IT CAN BE FATAL BECAUSE HELIUM ROBS THE LUNGS OF OXYGEN.

Helium is rare on earth but next to hydrogen it is the biggest element in the known universe.

70 percent of Hydrogen is found in the United States.

Hydrogens effect on the War was vast. In the WWI hydrogen was used for lifting, by WWII hydrogen was used in large balloons and for shielding arc welding. Hydrogen does not catch fire making it far superior to helium.

Helium even plays a part in making rocket fuel. SO...DON'T INHALE IT!

JUST FOR FUN:

Dare your friend to take a bite of horseradish! How did it taste? What type of face did they make? Did they like it?

DAWSON CITY - HEART OF THE KLONDIKE

How hot was it?

by Dan Davidson

How hot was it in June? After the National Post asked me for a hot weather photo during the third week, I started to wonder if it would get hotter than the 29° C it was on that day.

The answer is that it depends on just where the sun is shining. On June 24 it was pretty much into the rising 20s by mid morning, 24 at my back door where the sun was shining right on the sensor.

Typically, if it doesn't get cloudy, the real heat comes out in the evening. That was the case on this day.

By about 8:30 when we came home from a walk, the back door was reading about 14, because the sun was on the other side of the house.

The digital readout shows it was 33.2° C in the shade on our front porch, where the sun was not directly hitting the sensor.

On a whim, I placed an old-style thermometer directly in the sunlight on the porch railing and waited five minutes. While I do not for a moment believe a reading of 48°C, it is interesting, after those days last winter when we were the coldest place in the inhabited world, to see that number on the other side of the zero point.
