New hospital will probably get tin siding

Story & photo
by Dan Davidson

Barring the sudden, last minute discovery of some non-flammable siding material suitable for a Category B2 building, it appears that the Dawson City Community Hospital will, in fact, be clad in some type of corrugated tin material.

"We got a report back from our hired gun on the practicality of non-combustible wood siding material," Mayor Potoroka said on August 13. "He advised that it wasn't feasible or practical."

The discussion following that report was neither quick nor simple, he said, but in the end the three members of council at the meeting voted 2 to 1 to allow the Yukon Hospital Corp. to go ahead.

The need to discuss metal siding on the building arose after it was found that the CertainTeed that had been used failed to hold up during the winter after it was installed, cracking and falling off the building in chunks.

CertainTeed was not the brand of imitation wood that had been approved by the town's Heritage Advisory Committee (HAC), but it was substituted for the preferred brand, Hardiplank, when that brand dropped their warrantee for the Yukon.

Council and its HAC had taken the position that every possible avenue must be examined to make certain that there were no alternatives to the corrugated tin solution put forth by the Yukon Hospital Corporation (YHC) when it was clear that the CertainTeed had failed.

"I believe there is one final material that they're going to look into," Potoroka said during question period, "but other than that they seem to have run out of options. It's not a situation that anyone's really happy with, but that's where it's at."

Council had passed a resolution back in July granting the YHC the ability to use the proposed tin as a last resort subject "to receiving a report that there is no wood or wood imitation wood product that could meet the building code requirement and working with the Heritage Advisory Committee to mitigate the non-historic nature of the building."

Council retained the services of a consultant to make such a search.

The decision taken on August 8 was that the search for alternatives had gone as far as it could go.

Discussions in the minutes of the HAC have already begun to deal with ways of somehow ameliorating the look of the tin hospital, which is located directly behind one of the most iconic buildings in town, the Old Territorial Administration Building, which houses the Dawson City Museum.

Uffish Thoughts: Our Mounties face enough reality without reality TV

By Dan Davidson

I'm so happy to read that the RCMP has suspended its participation in a reality-type television show after some initial negative reaction from the Yukon public. I hope that after a thorough review of the idea, they will walk away from it altogether.

So-called Reality Shows really are the bottom feeders of the television entertainment industry, the broadcast equivalent of the "geek" shows that used to be at the low end of the travelling circus circuit. The RCMP have to realize that, no matter what the stated intentions of the show may be, the actual focus will be on the people who are having a really bad day. That's just how these shows work.

That there is an appetite for watching people self-destruct in public is clear from the prevalence and popularity of a certain species of American talk shows, but it appears that the people who wish to parade themselves on these shows do so voluntarily, lusting after Andy Warhol's legendary 15 minutes of fame.

The same really can't possibly be said for those people who get captured by bounty hunters or actual police officers. They will be in the midst of what is already a very bad situation, made worse by the lights and cameras. While there's an outside chance that being exposed to all of this attention might have the impact of a high voltage intervention, and be a life-changing event, that probably won't be the most common outcome.

"Survivor" and its many thematic clones are a poor blend of traditional story telling and kids style let's pretend.

Any writer will tell you that the author is the worst enemy any of his or her characters can possibly have. The most common type of story introduces you to a sympathetic character and then places that person in an untenable situation (sometimes called the "test to destruction" scenario), leaving them to somehow acquire the strength and fortitude to make their way to safety, solve the problem, or defeat the bad people who caused the problem.

It's a sad fact that reality seldom turns out as positively and neatly as fiction.

In the case of reality television shows we, the viewers, are the bad people. The motivation to watch these geek shows is at about the same level as the one that causes us to slow down and look more closely when passing a traffic accident. But the fact that a lot of us will do that, and thus enable the networks to sell advertising while paying less for production than a fully scripted show with actors would cost, is the only reason why these things exist.

The last thing any police force needs is to become involved with one of these shows. They are bound to look for what passes for drama in such productions, and no one's going to come out of that type of situation looking good. There's a show that I see advertised out of Boston, which would seem to be the sort of thing the production company had in mind for here, and nothing about the cringe worthy promos makes me want to watch that show.

If the production company and the Mounties wanted to portray policing in the Yukon, an actual documentary might not be a bad idea at all, but there's nothing that real in reality television.

We all know that the "real" Canadian video footage of policing most of us can remember involves large canisters of pepper spray at a demonstration in Vancouver, the tasing of Robert Dziekański at the Vancouver Airport and the recent shooting of 18-year-old Sammy Yatim on that streetcar in Toronto.

In the USA, where the production company ironically named True Entertainment hangs its hat, there are lots more examples, going back to the Rodney King affair in Los Angeles in 1992. In that day and age it took the accidental presence of someone with a video camera to record the deed, but these days half the population has a smart phone with a camera application that will do the job.

Given that this is the case, it would probably be wise for our officers to always behave as if they were on candid camera, but I can't see why they would ever want to do that on purpose unless it was for a high quality documentary style production.

Expression of Gratitude

To the people of Dawson City,

I would like to express my gratitude to everyone during my husband, Karl's illness and death. As everyone knew, Karl was the love of my life and I will miss him greatly.

All of the meals and help I received during this time made it a little less stressful and gave me more time to spend with him. I cannot thank everyone personally, but I wanted you to know how much it was appreciated.

I am writing this letter of thanks and gratitude in lieu of a public memorial service and I am so happy I live in a community full of love and support. Again, thank you all.

A Migration Story from Berton House

Hi Dan,

The three months I spent in the Berton House in 2003 happened to coincide with the spring bird migration, which was wonderful since I've been an avid birder for many years. I was particularly amazed that Wilson's warblers, a species that winters as far south as Panama, but nests as far north as the Arctic Ocean, appeared in town a full 10 days earlier than their brethren arrived in southern Ontario. I know this because my birding friends in Toronto were searching for Wilson's warblers since we have a homemade trophy (tomato-paste can with fake yellow bird glued on top) that's awarded for the first sighting of the year.

Long story short, though it's taken 10 years, Is This Panama?: A Migration Story (Owlkids), the picture book I was inspired to write by those tiny warblers and the awesome journey they make twice a year, will finally be released September 15!

It's the story of Sammy, a young Wilson's warbler, who wakes up one frosty morning near the Arctic Circle and instinctively knows that it's time to make his first migratory journey south to Panama. But there's one problem — where's Panama? All the other warblers seem to have left without him, so Sammy sets off on his journey by himself, stopping to ask for advice from different animals that he meets along the way.

From a willow ptarmigan to a caribou to sandhill cranes to monarch butterflies, every animal has different advice for Sammy on how to find his way. Finally, a flock of his warbler cousins shows Sammy that finding Panama is as easy as following the stars.

Soyeon Kim has, I think, done a gorgeous job illustrating the book, particularly in evoking the colours and landscapes of the Yukon in the first pages.

Cheers!

Jan Thornhill

An open letter to Music Yukon, Arts in the Park, Steve Slade, Art Johns and Nola Lamken:

Please accept my thanks and appreciation for the kind support and generous donation of $1086 to the Dawson City Orff program. This donation will ensure that Orff can continue to provide a pre-school music program in 2013-2014 season. There are many worthy recipients for funding assistance, and so it is an honour to be chosen, and recognized by the Arts in the Park and Music Yukon.

Many thanks to Steve Slade, the Arts in the Park artists, the public who attended the August 9th concert, and in particular, I am especially grateful to Art Johns and Nola Lamken, who donated the proceeds from their Arts in the Park performance. Thank you!

The formal, pre-school Orff music education system is a relatively new program in Dawson City. Named after its originator, German composer Carl Orff, our aim is to make music education a priority for our youngest citizens. Using song, drama, movement, speech and instruments, the program creates opportunities to explore imagination, develop language and motor skills, and self-confidence. In our vibrant arts community, exposure to music and the arts in general could never come too soon.

Children are at the heart of our community. This significant donation will enhance the transition to public school programming, and contribute to children's overall learning and development, which is an investment in the future.

Thank you once again for the generous financial assistance and the opportunity to continue the Dawson City Orff Music Program.

Sincerely,

Tiss Clark, Orff Music Program Instructor

Our new plant fails some June and July Waste Water Standards tests

Story & photo
by Dan Davidson

In the opinion of Dawson's town council the new Wastewater Treatment Plant built by Corix has not managed to pass muster this summer.

In the words of Mayor Wayne Potoroka, "Clearly this plant's not quite ready for prime time."

The comments came after discussion of the latest report from Super of Public Works Norm Carlson.

While the effluent samples from June and July have passed their toxicity tests, "testing results have indicated failures in the 'fecal coliform', 'biological oxygen demand', and 'total suspended solids' parameters we are supposed to meet in our water licence."

"In my view," Carlson offered, the above failures are attributed to the sewage strength changed from dilute winter strength and the plant's inability to adapt."

Historically this is not much different than in the past. Dawson has traditionally passed all its licencing requirements from September through May and had failed some of its summer sample tests.

Carlson notes that Corix, the contractor, has "been trying various plant operational changes so that the plant can meet the parameters set out in the Water Licence. To date, more work is needed in this regard."

"In my opinion, there is not enough time left this summer to be confident that any changes made will work, before fall and winter occur and sewage strengths drop to the low winter levels where passing Water Board criteria is much easier."

Where this gets sticky is that the town is supposed to be taking over the plant on August 22, unless there is a critical failure during the last three months of the one-year trial operation.

Carlson and Dawson's council are suggesting strongly that these results constitute a critical failure.

Carlson's report goes on to make the obvious point that the three month extension mentioned in the contact and the Memorandum of Understanding will not be enough time, since "the plant will pass three months of winter operation regardless of the level of sewage treatment."

Dawson's new Wastewater Treatment Plant seems to be having some trouble adjusting to the summer flows.

Since it was able to do so when the effluent was merely screened and the solids removed to the landfill (primary treatment) during many decades of operation, it would appear that Carlson's analysis is correct.

Council has said on several occasions that the trial period should be interpreted to be a year of successful operation, not a year of continual tweaking the process and sorting out the problems.

The latest results will, of course, be forwarded to the Water Board, and Carlson is curious to know how its members will view this degree of non-compliance.

"We will not," he concludes, "be able to be confident that the plant can adequately treat summer strength wastewater until next summer."

Summer effluent in Dawson includes the output in human waste and laundry waste from a number of hotels and campgrounds that do not operate year round here. The population using the sewage system in the summer is double or perhaps triple that in the winter, not to mention the dumping of wastewater from the recreational vehicles in the campgrounds.

Foraging: a delicious trend

by Samantha Elmsley

For those who live here, it's no secret that the Yukon is a land you can thrive on.

In the spring and summer months, the forests around town fill up with everything from spruce tips to dandelions, high bush cranberries to blueberries, and foraging becomes a real means of filling a dinner plate.

Traditionally, foraging was an important source of sustenance for Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in people living in this area. In the spring and summer, the Hwëch'in people would gather berries, storing them in multiple underground caches that preserved the fruit for later consumption. Later, caches were largely replaced by storehouses in the trees, to prevent animals from reaching the reserves. This allowed the Hwëch'in people to remain mobile, by ensuring a source of food along common travel routes.

Foraging remains a part of Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in culture today, and was highlighted during the Yukon Culinary Festival through a tea, juice and jam tasting session, almost all of which were made from locally gathered ingredients. A current display at the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre, Trees of Life, sheds light on these practices.

Today, foraging is a growing trend. Even urbanites are getting in on it: a CBC article wrote about its popularity this June, highlighting a foraging company who pick their food in Toronto, as well as a couple of restaurants serving foraged food from across Canada. Foraging is also going strong in Halifax, as detailed in a Halifax Media Co-op article that also includes urban farming and dumpster diving under the label.

In the Yukon, foraging is present on a much larger scale. A 1996 Yukon Territorial Government (YTG) study on Morel mushrooms took a look at the culture of foraging surrounding what many consider to be a delicacy, and which grows in abundance in the wake of forest fires. "Average 1995 prices paid to pickers in the Yukon were four dollars per pound wet, and up to fifty dollars per pound dried," the press release for the study stated. When it comes to mushrooms, there is money to be made for those able to spend a summer in the bush.

For those who prefer to return to the comfort of home at night, options are still available. In Dawson, raspberries grow in abundance as close as 9th Avenue Trail, as my partner and I discovered when in need of a good dinner party contribution. For those with a car and an evening to spare, rumor has it that blueberries are plentiful up the Top of the World highway this summer. (Take bear mace.) When you're ready to cook it all up, Michele Genest's The Boreal Gourmet: Adventures in Northern Cooking, a cookbook with many Yukon-based recipes, has you covered.

Foraging can make food and eating an activity, an opportunity to spend time with friends and family while enjoying the summer and spring. As always, if you do decide to experiment in foraging, be careful to know what you're eating: not every plant is edible. Take a guide with you, and check out the Dawson City Public Library for more information—they have a huge collection of books on this and similar subjects.

Leaving Dawson? Tips for driving home

by Samantha Elmsley

It's almost the end of August, and this inevitably means a mass exodus of summer workers from Dawson City to southern Canada. The highways will be clogged with cars carrying restless young people back to their place of origin, ready to start another school year/ new contract/ travel adventure. Below are some tips for fun the road, and not killing anyone as you speed toward your destination.

1. STOCK UP ON AUDIOBOOKS. So, so much better than CD's. Audiobooks give you something to focus on without demanding your attention. They let you concentrate on the road while getting to listen to a great story.

2. GET ORGANIZED. Get separate boxes for food, dishes, and camping gear. Keep your day bag packed with the stuff you need for a night. Put the stuff you need access to in the trunk, and throw everything else on the back seat. It's amazing what a clean space can do for the morale.

3. SHARE THE DRIVING. This seems obvious, because who wants to be the only driver on a 7000 km trip back to Ontario? Besides making the miles more bearable, having a second driver means having a second person ordering you to pull over when you're tired.

4. DRIVE A DIFFERENT ROUTE THAN THE ONE YOU DROVE IN. Which is to say, if you came through Edmonton, try Calgary this time.

5. TAKE BREAKS AT HILARIOUS PLACES. The sign post forest. The world's biggest axe. The world's smallest covered bridge. Spice up the journey with these roadside gems.

6. STOP TO SLEEP. Your judgment, motor skills and fellow passengers will thank you for it. No one likes to be stuck in a car with a grumpy traveler low on sleep, and no one wants to share the road with that person, either.

7. WHEN POSSIBLE, SPEND THE NIGHT IN CLOSE PROXIMITY TO A COFFEE SHOP. This means you can wake up at 6 am and grab a cuppa and muffin to go, instead of taking the time to brew it yourself.

8. FILL UP YOUR WATERBOTTLE EVERY TIME YOU STOP FOR GAS. Staying well hydrated may mean more bathroom breaks, but it also means less headaches and feelings of nausea. This is a good tradeoff.

9. HAVE CAA. Seriously. In case you haven't noticed, Canada is *massive*, and Highway One often runs through isolated areas. If you need a 200 km emergency tow, it's best to do it on someone else's dime.

10. STOP AT ALL OF THE HOT SPRINGS. Because what else are you driving across Canada for?

HUMANE SOCIETY DAWSON UPDATE

with Katie Pearce, Humane Society Dawson

Dog Park

The Humane Society Dawson is now starting to build our dog park in the north end of Dawson City. Our goal is to provide a safe and contained area for dogs to play and train off-leash. We will have an open grassy area, a walking trail around the perimeter of the park, agility equipment, benches, and a natural landscape. The park is located just past the Mudbogs, right beside the 9th ave trail. Come and look at the progress in the next two months and see what we are up to. We are hoping to have our project completed by the end of October. HSD is still looking for donations to help cover the cost of the park. We have recently been approved for a Community Development Fund Grant that will cover the majority of the cost, but we still need additional funding. Smaller donations will be recognized on a sign displayed at the entrance of the park. Businesses, groups, or people that donate an amount larger than $1,000.00 will also have their name engraved onto a plaque on one of our park benches.

If you or your business is interested in make a donation, or if you have any questions about the dog park, please call the shelter at 993-6900.

Trees of Life display takes a look at Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in culture

by Samantha Elmsley

Interested in learning more about the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in? This is the exhibit for you.

The 'Trees of Life' display at the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre uses the spruce and the birch tree as a point of departure into the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in First Nation culture. The display walks the visitor through the traditional Hwëch'in lifestyle, and some of the Nation's history. It covers a range of topics, including shelter, fishing, medicine, spirit, travel, harvesting, and caches.

Photographs and stories of contemporary Hwëch'in people hunting and canoeing are featured alongside historical photographs, emphasizing the continuing presence of these values and activities today. Carved and handmade hunting tools, including a birch moose caller, a ceremonial fish spear and a path of snowshoes walking their way up the wall, are displayed around the room.

This display insightfully portrays the social history of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, while highlighting the ways in which these traditions and culture are practiced today. Check it out for yourself—it runs at the Cultural Centre until mid-September.

Reflections from a personal gold rush

By Samantha Elmsley

I don't want to confuse you, but this is the truth: summer is pretty much over. As such, it's time for some post-holiday reflections.

I drove up to Dawson with a partner I had barely spent one month with, in a used car that he had just bought, with no job, nowhere to live, and no map-reading skills. My dad thought I was crazy. I thought I was free.

And I was, for three weeks, as we made our way across the country from Ontario in a yellow Ford Focus. Highlights included being west of Ontario for the first time, discovering that Calgary is actually a nice city, soaking in hot springs, and seeing bears, mountain sheep, elk, moose, marmots, and deer.

When we arrived in Dawson, I must confess that my first thought was, "Well, we could always go back to Whitehorse." I'm sorry. I was tired. And I'm glad we didn't. I'm glad that on Monday, we split up after breakfast to look for jobs and met up for lunch, employed and contractually obligated to stick it out.

Over the course of the summer, I got used to living in a tent. I also adjusted to Dawson, which was more isolated than I had anticipated. Restlessness set in sometimes, at which point Samuel and I would go for a drive up the Top of the World, just far enough to feel like we were going somewhere, or we would talk about our plans for the future, or watch a movie.

We peppered our calendar with things to look forward to: hiking the Dome, a visit from Samuel's parents, a trip to Vancouver, board game nights with friends. The free claim, the music festival, and most of all, the library, also kept us busy. Failing everything, we drank: Peggy's will forever be one of my favourite pubs, and the hostel sun deck the best place to share a bottle of wine and a good conversation.

It turns out that there's nothing like a 7000 kilometre car ride, and living in a tent for four months, to learn how to love someone well. It turns out that used cars actually hold up pretty reliably, if you can ignore that rattling noise, and breakdowns are only disastrous when you don't have CAA. As it happens, Dawson has plenty of jobs in early May—the bigger problem is deciding which ones to turn down. And you're always home when your home can be stuffed into a drawstring sack.

Don't worry: the map reading skills come with time. I'm hoping mine arrive before August 20, when it's time to make that drive back home.

Sam tries her luck at the Free Claim

Yukon musicians head to the studio with help from the Yukon Sound Recording Program

WHITEHORSE (August 8, 2013) —Seven Yukon musicians are receiving more than $25,000 to record new music from the Yukon Film & Sound Commission's Sound Recording Program.

"Yukon has a growing base of musicians and sound recording professionals who are increasingly garnering attention beyond Yukon's borders," Economic Development Minister Currie Dixon said. "We are pleased to provide opportunities for Yukon musicians to develop sound products and to support the continued growth of Yukon's sound recording industry, which contributes to the diversification of our territory's economy."

Sarah MacDougall is one of the musicians receiving a Professional Sound Recording Award. MacDougall, who previously received a Professional Demo Award from the Sound Recording Program, won the 2012 Western Canadian Music Award for Best Roots Solo Recording of the Year for her album Greatest Ones Alive.

"The Yukon Film & Sound Commission's Sound Recording Program enables me to record my next album at Old Crow Recording Studio with Bob Hamilton," MacDougall said. "I am planning a release of the album in the new year, and a world tour to follow. The Sound Recording Program is instrumental in enabling me to get my new music out on record and to people outside of Yukon."

MacDougall is currently on tour across Canada playing various music festivals and will be touring Ontario in October. She will also person tour across Canada playing various music festivals

Maintaining Eligibility for Publicly Funded Yukon Health Care

It is important that Yukoners have fair access to publicly-funded health care coverage. And as our health care costs grow, it is essential we spend our collective health care dollars wisely.

The Yukon government is reviewing health care insurance laws and would like to hear what you have to say about the future of our health care.

You need to have lived in Yukon for three months to be eligible for health care coverage. This requirement is standard across Canada and will not change. What we are looking to clarify are the requirements for coverage while Yukoners are away from the territory.

A short survey is being circulated to mail boxes throughout Yukon, but you can also provide your input online at www.hss.gov.yk.ca/hcinsurancesurvey.php. As part of the survey, you will find an overview of how other jurisdictions deal with maintaining eligibility for publicly-funded health care and a list of frequently asked questions to provide you with more information. Please share your thoughts about a subject that is important to all of us.

For more information, or to fill out the survey, please go to www.hss.gov.yk.ca/hcinsurancesurvey.php by August 30.

Maintien de l'admissibilité au régime public d'assurance-santé du Yukon

Il est important que les Yukonnais aient un accès équitable au régime public d'assurance-santé du Yukon. Les frais liés aux soins de santé ne cessent d'augmenter et il est par conséquent essentiel de planifier judicieusement les dépenses publiques en soins de santé.

Le gouvernement du Yukon entreprend un examen des dispositions législatives qui régissent le régime d'assurance-santé et il vous invite à faire part de votre opinion quant à l'avenir de notre système de soins de santé.

Vous devez avoir vécu au moins trois mois dans le territoire avant de devenir admissible au régime d'assurance-santé. Cette condition est la même partout au Canada et nous n'avons pas l'intention de la modifier. Nous désirons toutefois clarifier les exigences auxquelles les Yukonnais qui s'absentent du territoire devront satisfaire pour maintenir leur admissibilité au régime.

Nous avons préparé un court sondage que vous recevrez bientôt par la poste. Vous pourrez aussi remplir le sondage en ligne, à l'adresse www.hss.gov.yk.ca/fr/hcinsurancesurvey.php. À titre d'information, nous vous présentons en annexe au sondage une liste de questions et de réponses et un sommaire des conditions prévues par les autres administrations canadiennes en ce qui concerne le maintien de l'admissibilité au régime public d'assurance-santé.

N'hésitez pas à soumettre votre avis sur un sujet qui nous tient tous à cœur. Pour obtenir de plus amples renseignements ou pour remplir le sondage en ligne, visitez le site www.hss.gov.yk.ca/fr/hcinsurancesurvey.php au plus tard le 30 août 2013.

A trail of death leads from the Beaufort Sea to the Yukon River

The Yukon Grieves for No One

By Lynn M. Berk
CreateSpace
Independent
Publishing Platform
270 pages
$16.50

A current fashion in mystery novels is to have them begin with an event that does not immediately seem to link up with the rest of the story. In this case we begin with the murder of nameless Inuit hunter, an old man out on the Beaufort Sea. He is shot by someone he identifies as a white man, just before he tumbles out of his boat into the frigid waters.

The death scene is memorable.

"He knew he was going to die. But the sensation was not unpleasant. As he slowly sank into the black water, a great sense of calm and peace came over him. His mind emptied, his muscles relaxed, and for the first time in years there was no ache in his knees."

The remainder of the book is from the viewpoint of Lydia Falkner, formerly an English teacher at Mountainview Community College in Colorado. She's been downsized due to budget cuts and is coming back to the Yukon, where her father left her a cabin and where she has spent quite a bit of time, to decide what to do next with her life.

The cabin is on the Yukon River, several hours by boat south of Dawson. Berk's Dawson City is not quite the real thing, though it is a place that is clearly based on our little town, and has fictionalized versions, with changed names, of some of our major landmarks. The same would be true, I suppose, of Eagle Plains, Inuvik and Fairbanks, where parts of the story take place.

Lynn meets an old family friend, Frank Johnson, who is very upset about her plans to sell her Yukon cabin as a means of financing her future. Their one conversation ended on a bad note and after Lynn settles in at her place, she heads up river to visit him and make up, only to find that he has been murdered.

Frank has a long history as an environmental activist and she naturally assumes that his death has something to do with his life. The first Mountie on the scene after she reports the killing botches everything badly. Fortunately there is a better specimen of the breed at the local detachment and Corporal Al Cerwinski turns out to be just the man for Lydia, in several senses of the phrase.

Simply tracking down some of the folks who need to be told what has happened to Frank is enough to put her on the trail of some bad people. The actual motive for the murder is more complex than the one she first thinks of. There are layers to the plot that led to Frank's death and that of the old man in the prologue, and the bungling of Sergeant West eventually endangers the lives of Lydia and her friend Ann in a plot twist that I barely managed to spot before it happened.

This is very readable mystery, reminding me a little bit of the work of both Dana Stabenow and Sue Henry, but with a flavour all its own. The title, by the way, refers to the river itself, not the territory.

Lynn Berk is apparently a professor in the English Dept. at Florida International University. The book itself contains no information about her, but the biographical note on Amazon.ca says that she "splits her time between South Florida and the Colorado mountains. Her real passion, however, is the Far North, where she has spent many summers canoeing, rafting, hiking, and just hanging out in Dawson City, Yukon Territory; Inuvik, Northwest Territories; and Fairbanks, Alaska."

The book does read like she's been here enough to get the flavour of the place, but I've never met her.

This is her first novel, though not her first book. That appears to have been a rather scholarly sounding tome called English Syntax: From Word to Discourse, published by no less than Oxford University Press in 1999.

She's chosen to self-publish her first novel, using Amazon's CreateSpace publishing platform. Except for some awkward cutting trim on the cover, I'd have to say they did a pretty good job for her. Additionally, the mystery is available as an e-book and distributed through all the major platforms: Kindle, Kobo, iBooks and Nook.

Latitude Wireless launches new flexible plans

August 12th, 2013 - Latitude Wireless is leading the national carriers by launching the first truly flexible wireless plans in Canada, in addition to offering handsets at the lowest prices in its operating area.

The new plans are designed with customers in mind and give subscribers the ability to use their phone in the way that best fits their needs. If a customer goes over their package allotments, they are automatically bumped up to the next tier for that month, giving them the freedom to keep talking at flexible rates.

In addition to the new flexible plans, Latitude Wireless eliminated three-year contracts, introduced handset discounts on one-year contracts and launched new standard rate plans.

"We're very happy with our new offerings and we hope our customers will be equally impressed," said Curtis Shaw, General Manager of Latitude Wireless. "Our new flexible plans are competitively priced to offer the best value in the North and we anticipate that they will be very well received."

Latitude Wireless' new wireless plans also allow customers to roam on third-party networks across Canada at no extra cost.

"There has been a lot of demand from customers to be able to use their phones seamlessly across the North and beyond our operating area," said Shaw. "Our new plans build on our pre-existing roaming agreements by passing along even more benefits to customers."

In addition to Latitude Wireless' new offerings, Northwestel Mobility also launched wireless service in Yellowknife and Whiti, NWT.

About Latitude Wireless:

Latitude Wireless is a partnership between Northwestel and the Dakwakada Development Corporation, the business arm of the Champagne Aishihik First Nations. Launched in 2006, this successful joint venture provides digital cellular service across Yukon Territory. The company launched 4G service in Dawson City, Watson Lake, Marsh Lake late last year as well as Haines Junction this year.

Prize winners delighted by Peel Watershed horseback trip

Submitted by the Yukon Conservation Society

Margrit and Ken Sylvestre have just returned from Widrig's Goz Lake Outfitting Camp in the Peel watershed. The retired couple won the three day horseback trip as a door prize at February's Peel Watershed Wildlands Concert in Whitehorse.

"It was a wonderful experience from start to finish," said Ken Sylvestre. "The views from the airplane were spectacular. We flew over the Bonnet Plume. And Goz Lake is a really scenic spot on a lake with mountains rising sharply from the camp."

"The horses hadn't arrived yet when we got there," said Margrit. "The arrival of the horses that evening was a real highlight: twenty-seven strong horses, mostly Norwegian Fjords, galloping into camp with the five guides. I said to myself - I'm supposed to be getting on one of those tomorrow?"

The horses turned out to be well-trained, which the couple appreciated considering that they rode for seven hours through rough terrain to the Snake River and back the next day. "There were no sheep at the salt lick, but we saw a caribou, wolf tracks and bear sign and there were lots of blueberries and bearberries," said Margrit.

"I really liked the family feeling of Chris Widrig's business," said Ken. "The guides ate with the family and guests, and regaled us with stories. Chris' twenty-one year old son Ryan guided us - I think he has spent many summers up there since he was a little boy."

"The Peel watershed is a truly amazing, but fragile alpine environment and we felt privileged to experience it first hand," said Margrit.

Widrig's Guiding and Outfitting donated the guided trip, while the Yukon Conservation Society and proceeds from the Wildlands Concert paid for the flights. Goz Lake is nestled in the mountains near the headwaters of the Snake and Bonnet Plume Rivers. Goz Lake flows into Goz Creek, which is a tributary of the Bonnet Plume River. Like most of the Peel watershed it can only be accessed by air.

Klondike Kate closes the Palace Grand's summer season

by Dan Davidson

The Palace Grand Theatre and Gillian Campbell go together like peanut butter and jam, or to choose a simile more in line with the Klondike Kate era tunes she favours, like a horse and carriage.

Small wonder. After some years of doing small time stuff, talent shows and advertising stints in England (yes, she comes by that accent naturally) and Canada, Campbell got her big break when impresario Fran Dowie picked her to headline as Klondike Kate in Dawson City in 1967. Coincidentally, she lived that summer in the building that is now Klondike Kate's Restaurant.

Her role as Kate took her to the Frantic Follies in Whitehorse and then back to Dawson again, where she played that other famous chanteuse, Diamond Tooth Gertie, at the casino.

She did summer gigs in the Yukon until 1976 when she found the dislocation of the tourist season life was getting in the way of her sons' education, but she's always been ready to come back for more limited engagements, including many performances at the Sourdough Rendezvous, and her recent two shows at the Palace Grand were her second Dawson engagement this year.

Her travelling show here is Klondike Kate "lite" in a sense, since her entire show features a bigger band and a cast of dancers. The two person version of Motherlode features her eldest son, Richard, on drums and vocals, and Bill Costin (formerly of the Gaslight Follies) on piano.

Richard and Bill provide musical interludes while Gillian changes costumes in the middle of each act of her show. Richard favours old fifties rockers and Bill (admitting he once wanted to be Billy Joel) offered up "Piano Man" and a song of his own that he wrote here some years ago.

Gillian (she's too personal for the last name conventions of journalism) enters in a blaze of colour in four different outfits, only one of which is actually safe for the audience, since it keeps her from wandering off the stage and finding ways to "interact" with (mostly) the men in some way.

Audience participation

includes singing along with her at the microphone as she wanders the hall, being coaxed onto the stage to dance (costumed or in street clothes), recite tongue twisters, or become part of a larger sketch involving red long johns and a dancing partner.

Hubby Edward ("He's my second husband, who's much better than my first.") gazes fondly from the ground floor and springs to assist her when it is time to prowls the ground floor. He's another gift from Dawson, where they first met when he was a bank manager here. Some time after she left her abusive first husband, she met Edward again in Vancouver and it wasn't too long before they got together.

In her time she's played Barkerville, Skagway, Edmonton, cruise ships, and all the big hotels on the lower mainland as well as putting on shows for visiting royalty.

Gillian has been performing for 46 years now, and remains coy about her age. Back in 2005 I had the nerve to ask her and her response was "I'm as old as my tongue and a little bit older than my teeth."

For the audience, it's not really a question. When she swirls onto the stage, all feather boas, sequins, plunging necklines, slit skirts and enormous hats, the audience acceptance is immediate.

We're in another, kinder time, where double entendres were merely verbal fun, and every flirtation didn't have to lead to a climax. The songs are all of another century now, as are the jokes and the body language.

It all comes to an end with bags of balloons tossed at the audience, who are expected to keep them in the air while Gillian concludes the show with "I'm forever blowing bubbles."

There's just no way you don't leave the show feeling good after batting balloons around for ten minutes.

The two nights of the Klondike Kate show were the last two evenings of this summer's Live at the Palace Grand series produced by the Dawson City Arts Society as a result of regional economic development planning identified in the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Final Agreement, with funding by CanNor and the Yukon Government.

18 Writers tried their luck during Authors on Eighth

by Dan Davidson

In a reverse of the usual pattern, audience numbers for this year's edition of the Authors on Eighth tour along Writers' Block (otherwise known as 8th Avenue between Hanson and Firth Streets) actually grew from close to 50 to well over 60 by the time the tour reached the final stop at Berton House.

This afternoon is a splendid example of cooperation between Parks Canada, which owns and operates Service's Cabin, and the Klondike Visitors Association, which owns and operates the London Museum. The KVA is also a partner, with the Writers' Trust of Canada and the Dawson Community Library Board, in the Berton House Writers' Retreat program.

The afternoon began at close to 2 o'clock when the last guests filed into the free program at the Jack London Centre, where Dawn Mitchell recounted a short version of Jack London's time in the Yukon and an abridged version of how author Dick North tracked all the information down, including the cabin outside the centre, the carved graffiti on its wall and the only known photo of London in the North.

Guests were also invited to contribute to a progressive writing exercise that produced a seriously crazy bit of mixed poetry and prose during the 20-minute session.

Then it was on to the Robert Service Cabin, managed by Parks Canada, where Dylan Meyerhoffer gave a brief outline of the life and career of Dawson's most famous poet and read some of his Klondike verse as well as an amusing piece from his years in France.

Just across the street is Berton House, the home of the Berton House Writers'

Retreat program, where the now larger audience was briefed on Berton's career and the development of the retreat program, which has been running now since 1996 and is currently hosting its 64th resident, dramatist and filmmaker Colleen Murphy.

Murphy gave a dramatic reading from her libretto in progress, The Breathing Hole, which deals, in part, with the misadventures of the Lost Franklin Expedition.

The annual writing contest asks that contestants submit work in the style of one of the four writers. It can be prose, fiction, non-fiction or poetry. Some sort of theme is suggested. Last year it was animals. This year the subject was luck, and there were 18 entries from all over Canada and the USA, including one from England and another from Italy. In addition, some came from people who have entered numerous times in last years. The winner for prose was Erika Rauguth-Treleven of Port Alberni for "The Best Bad Luck". Erika won the writing contest in 2011 as well!

The poetry winner was Terry Hynes of Grand Forks for "Klondike Luck".

The winners, who could not manage to get here for the event, will be sent a gold nugget and a selection of books by our authors.

The winners, and the other 16 entries, will all be published in the Klondike Sun, beginning in September.

World Heritage Advisory Committee launched

DAWSON CITY (August 7, 2013) - A community-based group has been formed to explore World Heritage status for the Klondike Region.

"I'm really pleased to see the level of interest in this advisory committee," spokesperson Jackie Olson said. "It's exciting to be moving the World Heritage project forward."

A World Heritage site is so exceptional that it is important for all humanity. The project will research the cultural, social and economic feasibility of potential designation, but the main goal is bringing the community together to recognize and celebrate their shared heritage values.

The current Advisory Committee consists of community partners from the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in (Jackie Olson, Lee Whalen), Klondike Visitors Association (Paul Robitaille, Evelyn Pollock), Chamber of Commerce (Dan Davidson, Dan Beaulieu), City of Dawson (Micah Olesh, Jeff Renaud), Dawson City Museum (Laura Mann, Allie Winton), Parks Canada-Klondike National Historic Sites (David Rohatensky, Elaine Rohatensky), and Yukon Government-Tourism and Culture (Rick Lemaire, Barbara Hogan).

Community residents on the committee are Dick Van Nostrand, Molly Shore and Greg Hakonson. An Expression of Interest is posted for a resident Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in citizen.

While Klondike World Heritage has been discussed for many years, it has recently taken on new momentum. The idea was prioritized by the community as a result of regional economic development planning, identified in the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Final Agreement.

Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in is managing the project with funds from the Canadian Northern Economic Development Agency and Yukon Department of Economic Development.

Now called "Tr'ondëk/Klondike World Heritage Project," it is the flagship of nine current projects that could have far-reaching benefits for the whole community.

Project Manager Paula Hassard has been hired to work with a core team consisting of Lee Whalen, Heritage Officer for Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, and Barbara Hogan, Manager of Historic Sites for Yukon Cultural Services Branch. They will be forging ahead with engaging the community and heritage professionals over the next few months.

"Although TH is taking the driver's seat to get us through to the next stage of approval, it is still a community-driven process," said Olson, "and I'm looking forward to everyone's input."

future world heritage status?

CALL FOR EXPRESSION OF INTEREST

To assist in drafting a World Heritage Statement of Outstanding Universal Value for the Tr'ondëk/Klondike region The Project Manager of the feasibility assessment for World Heritage status for the Tr'ondëk/Klondike area is seeking expressions of interest from people willing to contribute their knowledge and expertise towards drafting a Statement of Outstanding Universal Value (OUV).

Interested persons may be invited to work under the lead of the Chair of the OUV Working Group to define the OUV. The OUV is why a place is significant enough to be recognized as a World Heritage Site. It describes the values that make a place outstanding on an international scale.

People who can contribute will have knowledge and expertise in one or more areas of the heritage of Tr'ondëk/Klondike. These areas could include local community and traditional knowledge, cultural history, mining history, natural history or a range of other relevant topics.

If you would like to help and are available this fall/winter, please contact Paula Hassard at:

Getting ready to raft the Yukon from “awesome Dawson” north to Alaska

by Dan Davidson

Just a short stroll down the river bank from the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre, “Team Vaykayshun”, otherwise known as Mike Manrosh and Eric Toole, have been busy for the couple of months building “somethin’ of nuthin’”. The “somethin’” is a raft which they intend to take down river before freeze-up.

“Dawsome to Fort Yukon” is the motto on their sign, which, like everything else about the project, is made of whatever they have been able to scrounge around town or at the landfill.

The base will be second-hand timber affixed to a dozen or so 45 gallon drums. Their shelter will be a yurt-like structure with a roof assembled from one of those large old mesh style satellite dishes.

“It’ll be a sun roof when it’s nice and we can throw a tarp over it when it’s not,” said Erik.

Mike and Erik got the Yukon River bug two summers ago when they arrived here just after the music festival and spent four or five days in town. At that point they were on their way to Alaska, intending to have that be their jumping off place for a trip to Hawaii.

They had won the trip to the islands by taking the prize in a US National Parks photo contest. Mike caught a shot of Eric leaping off a ledge and it became the photo image on all the parks passes that summer. Part of the prize was a free trip to any park in the system, so they picked Hawaii, never having been there. The tickets were open ended, so they spent the winter.

They both love the fact that, though you can’t see it because of the angle of the picture, Erik was wearing one of those Canadian Maple Leaf shaped red hats at the time he jumped. It just looks like a red toque, but that’s their private joke.

They fell in love with Dawson on their first visit, though it’s a long way from their respective boyhood homes in Cape Cod, Mass. and New York, so they came back intending to raft the river and be here for the music festival.

People have been kind. They bunked for a few weeks with the Klondike Sun’s Lisa McKenna, who was known for taking in stray visitors, and were at the house when it was discovered that she had passed on in her sleep.

“She was a great person,” Mike said.

Holly Haustein, or “Driftwood Holly” as they call him, has also been a big help.

If they can get to Fort Yukon, or even just to Eagle, before it’s too cold to continue this year, then they will store the raft on shore and come back to finish the trip to the Bering Sea in about two years time.

In the meantime, when they are not working on the raft they’ve been taking in the sights, supporting themselves by doing odd jobs around town and even by turning in bottles and cans at the Recycling Centre. For recreation they have been regulars at the Dawson Community Library’s Spoken Word nights, both as listeners and readers of their own work.

Eric Toole and Mike Manrosh are planning to sail the river to Fort Yukon this fall.

This sign spells out their intentions.

Motivation for success at school

(NC) For a child to become motivated about school, they need to see learning as an enjoyable experience and believe that it is a sound investment in their future. Here are three steps parents can take to help children be more successful at school:

- Set attainable goals: Teach or help your children to establish many goals within projects, both in school and with respect to everyday activities, such as cleaning their room and getting dressed in the morning.
- Celebrate when your child has achieved a goal: Recognition and praise are powerful factors that encourage motivation. Reward your child with your time and attention. These are more important than anything else you could possibly offer.
- Be specific with your praise: Saying “you did a great job” is not clear enough. Tell your child specifically what you think is wonderful about them and what you liked about what they did. This will highlight the behaviours that you would like to see again and again and again.

“Enrolling your child in an after-school program can help develop their excitement about school and learning,” says Jasmina Zurovac, director of corporate donations at RBC. “We’ve seen thousands of children who participate in these programs develop self-esteem and an increased motivation to excel in school.”

Zurovac points out that the tips above were initiated by the RBC employee assistance provider, Ceridian Canada. Since 1999, she added, the RBC After School Project has provided more than $30 million in grants to 248 community-based after school programs in Canada, helping almost 31,000 children learn, grow and reach their full potential. More information is available online at www.rbc.com/afterschool.

Five tips to spark the joy of reading in kids

(NC) Reading is a gift – it takes you on a journey, opens your eyes, poses questions and exposes you to new thoughts and ideas. With the following tips, you can encourage your child to develop a love of reading and make it an enjoyable experience:

- Daily reading time with your child is a great way to motivate him or her to read more and is sure to become a favourite pastime.
- Learn a new word in an encyclopedia, or have your child flip to a random page and select a word with his or her finger. They can then study the word and learn the spelling and meaning behind it.
- Audio books, learning songs and trivia challenges help build comprehension skills and vocabulary. With more than 150 books and activities, the LeapReader (by LeapFrog) is a complete learn to read and write solution for kids ranging in age from 4 to 8 years.
- A journal is a great way to bolster your child's creativity and enhance reading and writing skills. Even a short daily journal entry will do the trick.
- Organize a book club amongst your children's friends. Host a get-together once a month, where they can discuss the latest book they are reading.

These five tips will not only make reading more fun for your child, it will also become an experience that you and your child will treasure for years to come.

How parents need to support post-secondary students

(NC) Most students measure time and achievements by the academic year, not the calendar year. This means New Year’s Day is always in September.

They arrive on campus for the big celebration and soon after, they’re expected to settle down and apply themselves to the standard resolutions, like: This year I’m going to find the right balance, eat healthy food, get more sleep, and not leave assignments until the last minute.

But just as in the real world, things don’t always go as planned. What then? Why is it that some students have the resilience to bounce back with renewed determination, or with a new plan, while others find it difficult to cope?

The difference may lie in what parenting expert and best-selling author Barbara Coloroso calls “tragic optimism”. In an exclusive interview on the website, Labatt Family Talk About Drinking, the author explained it as possessing the knowledge that there’s nothing we can’t get through. This is something kids and young adults can learn from the examples set by their parents, points out the author of Kids are Worth It!, and The Bully, the Bullied and the Bystander.

It’s important for parents to demonstrate their own ability to carry on through life’s upsets and challenges, even with such simple actions as getting up and making breakfast for the family the day after something goes wrong. “They need to know that nothing is so big that it can’t be improved,” said Coloroso.

She goes on to explain that parents can help their kids and young adults develop resilience by giving them six critical life messages:

- I believe in you
- I trust in you
- I know you can handle this
- You’re listened to
- You’re cared for
- You’re very important to me

These same messages are the basis of Coloroso’s bestselling book, Kids are Worth It! “The foundation of this messaging is saying I believe you are worth the time, energy and resources it takes to help you become all you can become,” she points out. “But also say to your kids: If you ever find yourself in a mess, call.”

“We have to say, we’re there for you and we will help you get through this,” she continued. “But hold them accountable. It gives them the sense that, mom and dad think I can handle this.”

OBITUARY

Judith Chilton Adams

April 22, 1923 - August 5, 2013

Judith Chilton Adams, 90, died August 5, 2013, in Mountain View, California. She was born April 22, 1923, in Frazee, Minnesota to Edward and Martha Chilton and was raised in Detroit Lakes, Minnesota. She and her family enjoyed hiking, camping, picnicking, boating and swimming. She swam like a dolphin and was a lifeguard during summers between college years.

Judy attended University of Minnesota and Moorhead State Teacher's College, graduating with a teaching degree and a minor in art. She accepted a teaching position in Ketchikan, Alaska, where she met and married Keldon (Kelly) Adams and took in his two daughters, Sandra and Judi. She had Martha shortly before Kelly and his partner, Don Ross, discovered uranium in 1955. The family moved to Grants Pass, Oregon, in 1956 into a big, old house surrounded by shade trees that had previously been (unbeknownst to them) a house of ill repute. Daughter Grace was born in Grants Pass.

Her family moved to Medford, Oregon, a few years later and Judy taught at a junior high school there before buying and teaching in her own kindergarten for several years. The family returned to Alaska in 1967/68, and Judy resumed teaching--at White Cliff School. She used to supply the kitchen staff with pancake flour so they would make pancakes for some of her students who came to school hungry. She also had a deal with an optometrist in town—students of hers who couldn't afford glasses were provided glasses by the optometrist at cost and paid for by Judy. She was always willing to tutor anyone who needed help with reading, either after school or at her home.

During summers, the family prospected and mined everywhere from Oregon and Idaho to Alaska and the Yukon. She loved to be out in the country and was happy to cook, man the machinery, do the laundry and help with everything from gold panning and clean up or using turkey basters to suck up recovered mercury from bedrock in an Idaho ghost town.

When she retired from teaching after 26 years, Judy and her beloved Kelly moved to Oregon and continued to fly, prospect and mine gold in the Yukon until Kelly could no longer do so.

She was predeceased by Keldon, a son, Steven Keldon, who died after only 3 days, and daughter Judi McKay. She is survived by siblings Dan and Edward Chilton and Nancy Johnston, daughters Sandra Watts, Martha Cohn and Grace Adams, and by grandchildren Kevin, Amber, Katherine, Julie, Marion, Shannon, Melissa, Martin, Keldon and Rebecca as well as 9 great grandchildren and numerous cousins, nieces and nephews.

Her memorial will be September 8 in Gold Hill, Oregon. Donations in her memory can be made to St. Joseph's Indian School, P. O. Box 300, Chamberlain, SD 57325
