

Still not much ice, but the Ferry is done

Relatively small amounts of ice appeared in front of Dawson last week, but not enough to bother the George Black, and after two days of increasing pans, there seemed to be less on Friday than on Wednesday and Thursday. By Saturday the Highways Dept. had made its decision, shown here, which was amended to read "NOON" by Monday morning. It's later than last year though, and it sure beats the six-hour panic of 2012. Hospital gets new siding

Photo & story
by Dan Davidson

Beige-coloured, vertical metal siding covered the top section of one wing of the new Dawson City Community Hospital on October 21. This material, as noted at the community hospital meeting here on October 3, was the final solution for replacing the original CertainTeed imitation wood siding that failed so badly after it was installed last fall.

According to the Yukon Hospital Corporation a thorough search was made to find some sort of non-metal alternative, but in the end council and the Heritage Advisory Committee were persuaded that nothing more suitable could be found.

The delay, like many associated with the design and finishing of the building's exterior, had a great deal to do with its location, directly behind the national historic site which is the Old Territorial Administration Building that now houses the Dawson City Museum.

At the poorly attended public meeting, locals were assured that the new hospital would finally be opening, about a year late around the end of November, with a grand opening and facility tour planned for about a fortnight after the YHC receives the occupancy permit.

In an open letter to be published in the local newspaper YHC's CEO Jason Bilsky indicates that the building will be open to the public on Saturday, December 7. At that time there will be a ribbon cutting, tours and refreshments.

Metal siding is being installed on the new hospital.

Council's Dick North Tribute

Text & photo
by Mayor Wayne Potoroka

Dawson City and the Yukon lost a special person recently.

Mr. Dick North advanced our understanding of territorial history with several well-researched books, including The Mad Trapper of Rat River, The Lost Patrol and Sailor on Snowshoes: Tracking Jack London's Northern Trail.

It's with the latter subject that Mr. North made the largest impression in our town. He was widely regarded as a top shelf Jack London historian (he was also instrumental in establishing the Jack London museum up on Writers' Row) and even at an advanced age was making significant discoveries about Jack London's life in the Klondike. (His research unearthed what is understood to be an until-then-unknown picture of London in the book En Route to the Klondike.)

Mr. North is possibly best-known for leading the crew that found and recovered Jack London's cabin from the wilderness. For writers, that's a little like finding William Shakespeare's inkwell or Charles Bukowski's favourite bar stool. Without a doubt, much of Mr. London's world-changing fictions were imagined in that cabin. Mr. North's curiosity and determination are the only reason we can visit it today.

Mr. North was later honoured on becoming a member of the Order of Canada "for his ongoing commitment to the preservation and promotion of the history of the Yukon territory" and received the highest of municipal and community-driven honours. Like Pierre Berton and Robert Service, Mr. North has a Dawson street named after him. Up until his passing, Dick North was the only living person who could make that claim.

On behalf of Dawson City Council and all residents of town, I'd like to salute Mr. North for a life well-lived and extend our condolences to his family.

Dick North stands next to the street sign that bears his name. You won't find one there at the present time. It seems to have been "liberated" and installed at the Signpost Forest in Watson Lake. We need a new sign.

Uffish Thoughts: Dick North's life and legacy remembered in Dawson

by Dan Davidson

Dick North's final resting place may be in Whitehorse, but Dawson City is probably the place where he made the most profound impact during his years in the Yukon, and locals decided to mark his passing with a Tribute to Dick North evening on October 18. While I was responsible for suggesting the idea, a whole lot of other people jumped on board very quickly, so the success of the event is a credit to everyone involved.

As Dick was a member of the Yukon Order of Pioneers, the hall was made available for the event, which turned into a "come as you are and remember Dick" sort of evening with about two dozen people in attendance and a pot luck assortment of goodies to munch on along with tea, coffee and juice.

Brenda Caley and Gordie arrived early, along with Sylvie Burkhard, and organized the first plates of goodies, which were soon added to by half the people who arrived later on. At the end of the evening there was so much stuff left over that everyone got to take a plate of cookies and squares home with them.

The evening began with a showing of Richard Lawrence and Rachel Grantham's "Lost Cabin - Jack London's Home in the Klondike", the story of how North was instrumental in locating and authenticating the cabin in which Jack London spent a good part of his Yukon winter here in 1897. Dawn Mitchell, the current keeper of the flame at the Jack London Centre, provided the VHS video and television.

There was a display of Dick's books, along with two posters made up of pictures and articles that appeared in the Yukon's papers after his passing, and a number of photos that had marked significant years in his life.

Dick loved to walk the hills as long as he was able to do so, and Barb Hanulik recalled the first time she met him. She and her husband, Henry, were visiting some friends out on the creeks at the time, and Barb was still a city girl at heart in those days.

"Henry's talking to this fellow, and I'm looking around, and all of a sudden, out of the bushes and trees, a guy is walkin'. In the middle of nowhere! Well, to me, especially, a citified girl. My God, here's a guy walking out of the bush. He walks across the creek, up into the bushes and up over the hills into the Eldorado area.

"I said to Henry, 'What the heck is goin' on?' and he said, 'Oh, that's Dick North.'" Henry wasn't the least bit surprised to see him.

Dawn Mitchell read a letter from Dick's friend Tom Byrne, who did his Robert Service Show at the Service Cabin and later at the Westmark Hotel for nearly 30 years while Dick was holding forth at the London Centre. The pair of raconteurs used to have breakfast together in one of the local restaurants every day during the tourist season.

"I shall miss him greatly," Byrne wrote. "He was a true friend. Dick and I had a lot in common. We loved the North and, in particular, Dawson City. We spent a lifetime together, promoting and educating people, him about Jack London and me about the life of Robert W. Service."

Together they discussed and posed solutions to the problems of the world, and once hatched a scheme to have Father Judge declared a saint.

Mitchell continued with her own memories of working with North, with whom she shared the London centre as his understudy for many years until ill health forced his retirement after 2008. From her many conversations with him she came to believe that he fell in love with Dawson the first time he came here, on that memorable river trip in 1964, the trip that would lead him to find and authenticate the cabin that now sits in Dawson's own version of Jack London Square.

While ill health eventually forced him and his wife, Andree, to relocate to Whitehorse, Mitchell recalled her last visit

Barb Hanulik describes the first time she saw Dick North, many years ago, walking in the bush on the gold rush creeks.

with him, just last spring, when he said, "I think we pulled out of Dawson too soon."

Klondike Visitors Association executive director Gary Parker reflected on the nature of mortality.

"People like Dick ... he'll never die. He'll live on through his literature, and through the legacy of his relationships and how we've been affected by his vision. In many ways, I'm thinking that we talk about the Jack London Cabin at the KVA - that's important to us and it keeps Jack London's memory alive in a real way - but it's probably more accurate to describe that as Dick North's cabin."

Joann Vriend, who acts as one of the relief interpreters at the centre, recalled how relentless Dick was when he had an idea about something.

"If there was any tiny little lead he would just go to the ends of the earth to find out if that was true or not."

Wayne Potoroka, wearing his journalist's hat, recalled preparing a profile of Dick for Up Here magazine, visiting Dick in the Fairview Place apartment where he was living at the time. It was packed with boxes and shelves of his research, along with a card table and hardly any furniture at all.

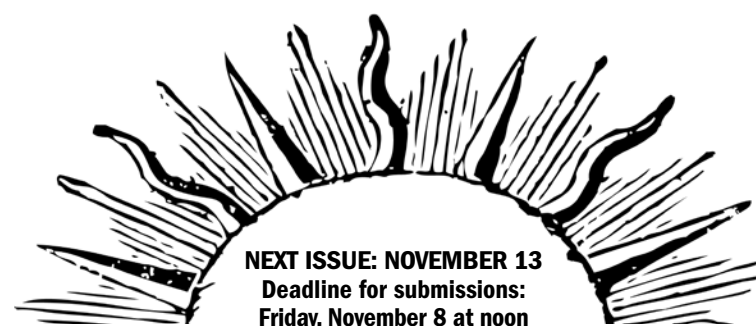

"That's what this guy was all about. His curiosity was off the charts and his analytical approach to all things was just exceptional."

Since Dick's retirement part of the standard presentation at the centre has been to celebrate his work as well as that of his idol, London. Gary Parker indicated that the KVA will be considering something more in terms of a memorial over the next few months.

The family has indicated that they would like to see Dick's memory live on in the town to which he gave so much of his professional and personal attention over the decades.

YHC Answers Local Questions

Open Letter to the Editor,

I wish to take this opportunity to respond to specific questions raised at a recent town hall meeting held in Dawson City the evening of Thursday, October 3, 2013. I wish to thank you in advance for publishing this information to support effective information flow to the citizens of Dawson City. I also wish to thank the citizens of Dawson City for their ongoing active engagement in this important project.

The Yukon Hospital Corporation (YHC) is committed to being a strong corporate citizen in the Dawson City community. We were very pleased and excited at this recent meeting to have had the opportunity to introduce the new Facilities Administer, Vivian Painter, who has become a permanent resident of Dawson City.

Several questions were raised concerning the external siding and underlying foam insulation of the building. Obviously this was prompted from the fact residents could see the failure of the siding evidenced by cracking and gaps, followed by the removal of all the installed siding and some pieces of the foam insulation.

The reasons for the failure of the siding have not been definitely determined. However, once removed it revealed deficiencies in the foam insulation. These deficiencies have been repaired and preparation work is under way to install a different metal exterior cladding. This new siding was reviewed by the Dawson City Heritage Advisory Committee and approved by Council.

At this point of construction, the interior is virtually complete and in the commissioning stages to bring the building equipment to full operational status. Our main focus is completion of all elements of the building so that we may occupy and treat patients late this year.

The costs for these repairs and replacement have not been determined nor has liability been assigned to any party. Therefore, we are unable to provide information regarding additional cost, if any, to the project.

It is important to note the YHC's prime relationship in construction of this building is with the general contractor. YHC does not interact with or manage the sub-trades and suppliers with regards to the construction. Therefore, the use any sub-trade or supplier, local or otherwise is determined and managed by the general contractor. Also of note, the original general contractor, Dowland Contracting Limited, defaulted on the construction contract in February of this year. This has caused delays and difficulties however the bonding company, Intact.

Insurance Company has committed to completion of the building for the amount remaining in the contract at the time of default, including correcting deficiencies and maintaining the warranty. This bond was an important risk management requirement by YHC in contracting with the general contractor. Since that time, Intact Insurance Company has enlisted TSL Contractors Ltd. to manage the final stages of construction, who has done an excellent job of working to bring the project back on track.

Unfortunately, landscaping had been completed around the building before the failure of the exterior siding occurred. Absent any action, removing siding, repairing the foam insulation and reinstalling siding there would be significant damage to the landscaping due to placement and movement of construction equipment. To mitigate the loss of shrubs and plants as best we could, we asked other government agencies to reclaim as many as could be used. Subsequent to this we asked local nursery companies to bid on reclaiming the remainder.

Lastly, with regards to staffing the hospital, YHC will open the Dawson City Community Hospital with an engaged and enthusiastic staff complement. There will be a combination of Registered Nurses (RN's) and Licensed Practical Nurses (LPN's) on staff, 24/7. When people present at the hospital, RNs will assess them and contact a physician as required. Physicians will be available on-call around the clock, although they may not necessarily be in the hospital.

As noted above, YHC has recently hired a Facility Administrator, with a strong nursing background, to manage the hospital. She now lives in Dawson City and is committed to ensuring the hospital best serves the needs of the community.

Other support positions include: Lab/x-ray Tech, Engineer, Custodians, Administrative Assistant, and Health Records/Admitting and Discharge Clerks. Future programs will include Therapies, First Nations Health and Dietetic Counseling.

Yukon Government's Community Nursing continues to provide acute care services through the Dawson City Health Centre until the new facility is able to admit patients. The Health Centre is staffed by expanded practice RNs otherwise known as Primary Care Nurses. They assess, diagnose and provide intervention for patients in Dawson City as required. Once the new health facility is open, the Health Centre will provide public health functions but not acute care. The nurses working at the Health Centre were offered positions with YHC. Some will remain, some will transfer to the new facility, and others will leave the community.

However, to clarify some comments made by certain residents, there were no LPN's at the Health Centre. Nor were the RN's practicing as Nurse Practitioners. Legislation was only recently finalized in the Yukon in 2011 and regulations being finalized in December 2012, which permits the Nurse Practitioners (NP's) to register and practice in the Yukon.

As healthcare evolves, YHC will continue to evaluate the provision of patient care, while ensuring the most efficient and effective staffing model is in place.

We look forward to welcoming all residents of Dawson City and the surrounding area at the grand opening of the building. Details of the date and time of this celebration will be coming out soon.

Jason Bilsky, CEO
Yukon Hospital Corporation

Community questions to the Yukon Hospital Corporation

Questions from the Thursday, October 3 meeting at the Downtown Hotel

Costs:

What is the projected hospital overhead and Maintenance projected cost?

What is the actual cost versus the projected cost?

This is the third insulation installation; what is that additional cost?

The original cement board siding has all been removed; what is that additional cost?

What siding is going to be used on the hospital? What will the cost of that be?

Staffing:

In the other provinces doctor and Licensed Practical Nurses teams are the direction the medical field is going.

We have had these Dr. and LPN teams for over 40 years; it has been a very successful arrangement. We were way ahead of the times.

Why is the Yukon Hospital Corporation going backwards by eliminating the Dr./ LPN teams?

(Ed. Note - The discussion related to this question referenced Primary Care Health Nurses and Nurse Practitioners, terms which have been used interchangeably here for some years although they seem to be separate classifications under the new Yukon regulations. Oddly, nurses studying for this level of certification in Ontario take a course called "Primary Care Nurse Practitioner", which does lead to some confusion.)

This has been very costly to Dawsonites; we have seen LPNs and nurse practitioner, one after the other, leave town to avoid this situation. These people had purchased homes here, had children in our school; these were families well settled here.

Name:

I object strongly to the current "Dawson City Hospital" name for the following reasons:

This so-called "hospital" will not offer the services of a real hospital only those of a health centre so why call it a hospital?

This is very misleading for specialists and clients not familiar with the services offered by this "hospital". During my last consultation with a neuro-surgeon after he prescribed an epidural injection to relieve my back pain I had to explain to him the name "Dawson City Hospital" is a misnomer. I had to explain to him this procedure could not be done in Dawson because of the limited services offered by the Dawson City "Hospital"; such as the absence of an anesthetist or a surgical theatre.

Furthermore Father Judge is the founder of the very first hospital in Dawson City so his name is most appropriate in naming this "hospital" centre.

The "Father Judge" name has been in use for over 40 years and should be grandfathered in.

Why are you not using a local landscape architect? Dawson City resident, Mike Crelli, is a qualified landscape architect.

Why are local nurseries not used? Lucy Vogt for annuals, John Lenart and Marian Davies for trees and shrubs.

Explain what happened this summer with the landscaping and the disposal of plants this year.

Looking forward to hearing from you soon.

Thank you for love and support

When Bill died I thought there was nothing that would ease the pain in my heart. I was wrong. It seemed as if everyone in this town was feeling the same loss and everywhere the family turned there were people there to help with Bill's burial and celebration of life. As well, to the people that were so generous in helping to establish the scholarship in Bill's name. Thank you! To all the people who helped say goodbye to a very special man.

Your love and support have brought some comfort throughout this painful period and saying thank you does not seem adequate. I am so fortunate to live where I do and to share this community with such special people. Once again, thank you!

Hi,

We are from the Findery Floral & Gift in Yakima, WA. Belinda Mulrooney Carbonneau built the building we have our flower shop in.

We have read a few books & articles about Belinda but we are looking for some newspaper articles or first person stories about Belinda (we realize that they would be 2nd or 3rd person stories as Belinda died at 95 years old in 1967). We know she was prominent in Dawson City & Grand Forks.

Is there any chance that you have archived articles about her while she was in Alaska or just after she left there? We have a lot of people who are curious about her and her life that come into our store.

I am attaching a picture of the home she had built here in 1908-1910.

We would appreciate any help you could give us or direct us to. Thank you very much for your time.

Sincerely,
Judy & Sue

Remembrance Day, Branch 1

The mission of the Royal Canadian Legion is to serve Canadian Veterans—including those who served in the Canadian Forces and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and their families—promote Remembrance, and serve local communities across Canada.

Dawson City has a proud history of responding to the call of duty that started in 1900, when Captain Henry J. Woodside, Canadian Calvary Division, Dawson City, wired " ... inform government I can raise fifty or more rough riders and police here to serve South Africa" to join the forces of Lord Strathcona of Montreal and serve in the Boer War, Transvaal, South Africa.

World War I, 1914 to 1918, saw more volunteers head upriver. Two large contingents left Dawson, one under Commissioner George Black. The other was the Boyle Yukon Machine Gun Company formed with 50 men signed up under Joseph W. Boyle's Klondike Mining Company. They went on to become the most highly decorated company in the British Empire in WWI.

In April 1923, a committee was formed in Dawson City, the territorial capital, to raise money to erect a permanent memorial to the Yukon soldiers who fell in the Great War. It was unveiled in September 1924, placed between two captured enemy guns, and still stands today in Minto Park Victory Gardens.

The year 1939 saw another World War start in Europe. Canada was soon sending men and materials for the Allies offensive. Approximately 70-80 men left Dawson for the European theatre. Perhaps some of these names sound familiar: Gould, Nordling, Bunberry, Butterworth, Dewolfe, Van Bibber, Kormendy, Davis, Walters, and Harper. Many of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, who knew this land best, enlisted with the Pacific Coast Militia Rangers and patrolled our borders at home: Semple, Wood, Roberts, Van Bibber, and Joseph to name a few. And let us not forget the sacrifice made by wives, children, and friends as loved ones disappeared into the war, many not to return.

Today, the boots on the ground might be yours or your neighbour's. The Canadian Rangers, Dawson Patrol, are the local Canadian Armed Forces Reserve charged with helping maintain Canadian Sovereignty in the North. There are currently 38 Rangers and 24 Junior Rangers. With a motto of "Vigilans" (The Watchers), they combine their traditional knowledge of land, climate, and community with military objectives. Though we might hear only of their search and rescue parties on land and river, they also do sovereignty patrols in all seasons, the latest being a border-to-border river transport from Atlin to the Alaska-U.S. border (2,300 km). And some of us have family members in the RCMP and Canadian Forces who deliver aid and keep the peace across the nation and around the world.

As our World War veterans pass on, both the national Royal Canadian Legion and your local chapter seek ways to remain relevant in our contemporary world. A new Legion logo, partnerships with First Responders, an RCL Motorcycle Club, and the One-by-One Membership Campaign are some of the initiatives coming out of Dominion and BC/Yukon Command.

Certainly Remembrance Day is our raison d'être. Providing the venue where all may participate in the Act of Remembrance, families teach their children of history, duty, and sacrifice, perhaps remembering family members. Legion members go into school classrooms and share stories, providing material for discussion and posters, and supplying poppies and wreaths—this we do every year. Service within the community has included donations to the Dawson City Food Bank; assuring delivery of Meal's on Wheels; providing bursaries to Dawson students traveling to Europe and the Vimy Ridge Memorial; and cash awards to poster participants.

If you would like to support the tradition, aims, and objectives of the Royal Canadian Legion nationally and locally, you are invited to become a member of Branch 1, Dawson City. The annual fee is $50.00. $35.00 goes to Dominion Command; $15.00 stays here to help keep the lights on and stove going in the local Legion Hall. The money taken in the Poppy Trays stays here to distribute through community service.

Please join us at the reception at the Legion Hall following the Remembrance Day Ceremony at the school. Refreshments, membership applications (with help filling them out), and a viewing of the Ranger Honour Wall will all be available. Perhaps you have an idea to share on Royal Canadian Legion community service needs. All are welcome.

The Royal Canadian Legion has chosen to recognize Canada's Aboriginal Veterans and the significant contribution they have made through our long history and continue to make today. This commemorative pin acknowledges the efforts and sacrifices of Veterans from all of our Aboriginal communities. We will give the pin to the first 10 new members who sign up.

For more information on the Royal Canadian Legion, you can view their website at www.legion.ca or www.legionbcyukon.ca. Local contacts are Myrna Butterworth, 993-5353; Chris Collin, 993-6060; and Diane Baumgartner, 993-2423. Monthly meetings are held the second Thursday of the month, 7:30 p.m. at the Legion Hall.

Klondike tourism season started late and ended too soon

by Dan Davidson

The combination of a late start to the tourist season and an early end meant that the visitor season in Dawson City was not as good as it might have been, but it wasn't bad either, according to most of the 30 people who attended the Klondike Visitors Association's Tourism Roundup on October 17.

The late start could be attributed to the foul May weather, which kept the George Black Ferry out of the water until two weeks later than the year before and provided the Klondike with a snow storm on May 18.

The early ending was generally blamed on the federal decision to have Parks Canada roll up its seasonal operations the day after Labour Day, eight days earlier than in 2012, and 13 days earlier than the year before that.

KVA executive director Gary Parker and KVA chair Brian Stethem noted both events during their opening remarks as the two-hour meeting got under way in the Downtown Hotel conference room.

Paul Robitaille and Justine Hobbs reported for the KVA, which has developed its new marketing plan and is intending to focus its efforts more on non-tour consumers, emphasizing the "six pillars" that Tourism Yukon has identified as essential to the visitor experience.

These are iconic drives, the Klondike Gold Rush, wilderness, midnight sun/aurora, heritage and culture, and it so happens, said Robitaille, that Dawson has all of them within the immediate area, or within a relatively short driving distance.

The KVA spends $100 thousand annually on various forms of advertising and marketing and intends to focus that spending on increasing the Klondike's share of the Yukon market from 30 percent to 40 percent.

David Rohatensky, superintendent of Klondike National Historic Sites for Parks Canada, said that his organization had a "highly successful season" recording 17,000 paid customers at its various programs. He was happy that Parks had won a Green Thumb award and pleased with several new programs introduced this year, including the daily Doors Open (of normally closed Parks' buildings) option and the Robert Service Hike. Rohatensky indicated that KNHS is working on providing evening programming, something which it has become obvious is needed in the town.

In partnership with the Dawson City Arts Society and the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, Parks made the Palace Grand available for what he deemed to have been a successful run of summer evening entertainment from June through August, as well as opening the Dawson Daily News building for a second annual Printmaking Symposium, and making Bear Creek available for "The Homecoming" exhibition as part of the Riverside Arts Festival.

Thanks to the private sector there were tours of Dredge No. 4 last summer, and Parks has determined to offer that opportunity as a three-year concession for which a Request for Proposals has recently been released.

"There is no doubt," said Gary Parker, "that Parks is a corner piece of Dawson's summer offering."

Several people at the meeting observed that the early shut down of Parks' activity coincided with a rapid decline in the number of visitors to the town. There were other things to do and see, even major venues like the Dawson Museum and the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre, but the travelling public seemed to take its cues from the Parks' closure.

Paula Hassard, World Heritage Project Manager for the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, presented a slide show on the progress made by this project during the summer and early fall. At this point a local advisory committee is working to establish whether there is enough community support to proceed with a nomination process, and a specialist group is preparing drafts of a "statement of universal value", which is an essential part of the process.

Tourism Yukon had three representatives at the meeting: Denny Kobayashi (Senior Manager, Global Marketing), Cindy Billington (Marketing Fund Administrator) and Jennifer Gehmeir (Manager, Visitor Services). They presented visitor statistics that showed an upward trend in overall numbers.

According to Gehmeir, statistics from the Dawson Visitor Information Centre (VIC) showed that 33,000 people checked in there this year, up 28 percent in spite of the short season. Overall, Kobayashi said that visitors to the territory had risen by 6 percent at the end of July, but that the August numbers were not analyzed yet.

The only hotel owners present were from the Aurora Inn and Bombay Peggy's, both of whom reported having good seasons.

Husky Bus's Jesse Cook reported making three runs a week to and from Whitehorse, with over 100 trips in all during his second year. He has been unable to find a financially feasible solution for running an airport shuttle.

Both Cook and David Miller of Goldbottom Tours reported that the Dredge No. 4 operation was not really a financial winner from their points of view, but it was a first year for a private operation, the advertising was really late getting out, and neither owner was willing to write it off completely.

Miller, who runs a tour operation in conjunction with his mine, said he was busier than ever this summer and substantially increased his staff to cope with the tourism side of his business. He noted that this particular round-up meeting seemed to be very calm and almost content compared to some he has attended in years past.

Several people mentioned that the two reality television shows, Yukon Gold and Gold Rush, have been good advertising for the region. Miller noted that his visitors are coming to see an operating mine in addition to being interested in the gold rush history.

Karen Dubois, with the Klondike Institute of Art and Culture, said that her organization had taken on several new projects this summer as part of the TH Economic Development Plan. Both the Live and the Palace shows and the weekly Art Fair were successful events in terms of satisfaction, but the PG (financed as it was by a grant from CanNor as a pilot project) didn't make money and would require some form of sponsorship to be able to continue. In addition, the extra projects taxed the relatively small staff at KIAC and Dubois didn't see any way to maintain that pace on an annual basis.

Earlier indications from the VIC were that event weekends in town were so crowded that there were no hotel rooms to be had, but there were other times when rooms went begging to be filled. There was some discussion around this topic, and whether it might not be possible to coordinate events so that evenings and weekends were not double and triple booked with competing activities. Full schedules, it was noted, were fine, as long as the different events appealed to different groups of people.

HUMANE SOCIETY DAWSON UPDATE

with Katie Pearce, Humane Society Dawson

Off-Leash Dog Park

The Humane Society Dawson has been dreaming of an off-leash dog park in Dawson City for quite some time now, as we recognized the need for a place to be able to walk and exercise dogs off-leash. When the City of Dawson generously told us we could have space in the north end to make the dream of a dog park come true, we wasted no time getting things started. We knew that we could not build the park we wanted with fund raising and donations alone, so we applied for a Community Development Fund Grant and eagerly awaited to hear if we were able to receive assistance with our project. We were lucky enough to receive funding and without their support we wouldn't be here today.

There are so many other people responsible for how great this park turned out. Right from the beginning Mayor Wayne Potoroka and council members Stephen Johnson, Bill Kendrick, Kyla MacArthur and Darren Taylor were supportive of the idea and designated land for the park area. Heather Favron, Jeff Renaud and Micah Olesh answered countless questions to get everything in place. Liz Foubister (bylaw enforcement) was able to take on enforcing the rules of the park. In fact, everyone who works at the City contributed in some way. We are very fortunate to have such wonderful staff there!

We were fortunate enough to get to work with wonderful contractors. Happy Marmot Landscaping, Vogt Enterprises, KATTS, Spruce Gerberding and Inkspirations were all extremely helpful and flexible as we worked with turning our vision into a reality. Everyone did exceptional work, and we are so thrilled with how it turned out.

We are also very grateful for businesses in town that sponsored the project: Cheechakos' Bake Shop, The Eldorado Hotel, Westmark Hotels and the Dawson City Recreation Board.

The Dawson City Dog Park is going to be maintained by the Humane Society Dawson and other volunteers. If anyone is interested in being a volunteer contact, please call the Humane Society Dawson to sign up. The more help we have the better. There will be small things to do on a regular basis such as empty the garbage bins, fill up the rain barrel in the summer, minor landscaping, etc.

It is our wish at the Humane Society Dawson that the park is used and enjoyed by all members of the community. Please remember to be safe, follow the park guidelines and most importantly, have fun!

CKS is going through changes

The Conservation Klondike Society has seen many changes over the past few months, changes in staff, changes in board members and changes in services.

As many of you have noticed our downtown and Quigley Landfill Depots have not been accepting recyclables in the last month. It was a necessary decision that had to be made due to a couple of different factors.

As you may or may not have heard, The Yukon Government had put a halt on the shipping out of recyclables from all the depots across the territory. This was so that they could put a new tender out for the shipping contract. However this was a very lengthy process and left us in a very tough position, overflowing with recyclables that could not be shipped out. We pleaded with them to take away a couple of shipments so we could have the ability to walk on our back deck again. This exception was made for us and we were able ship out some of the bags. However this was a very special exception and they wanted us to wait until everything was finalized before allowing any more shipments.

Not only did we have the issue of not being able to ship we also lost a lot of very valuable employees. The hard workers of the summer had moved on to other places and other adventures. Our coordinator who also worked hard over the busy summer to keep the place running smoothly had to say goodbye to us as he moved on to new aspirations. So we have been in a tough position, understaffed, and undershipped. But there is some light on the other side of the tunnel. The government has finalized the contract and will begin shipping our recyclables again; we have a new coordinator and one amazingly hard working depot attendant. We are looking to re-staff and get this place back up and running for the winter. Please bear with us just a little longer, because of the shortages in staff we will not be fully operational as of yet. We will only be accepting recyclables at the downtown depot until we hire attendants for the dump. With our one amazing depot attendant we will do our best to serve you. We are sorry for any inconvenience that this has caused our community who we care about so much. We want to do our best at providing these services to you. To all of the recycling club participants you still have time to collect your points. The deadline for this is November 16.

We thank you all for your patience and we are looking forward to serving you.

We would also like to take this time to thank Gammie Trucking who donated gravel to us so we could put in a new oil tank to keep us warm for the winter.

Sincerely,
The Conservation Klondike Society

Northwestel Wireless moves to Bell Mobility

Press release

(Whitehorse, October 21)

Northwestel today announced the transfer of its wireless business to Bell Mobility, offering northern consumers and businesses better access to the best wireless products and services available in Canada. Northwestel and Bell Mobility are subsidiaries of Bell Canada.

"We are very pleased that Northwestel and Latitude wireless customers are gaining access to Bell Mobility's world-beating products and services," said Paul Flaherty, President and Chief Executive Officer of Northwestel. "Increased access to advanced wireless services is an important part of our Modernization Plan for the North, and we're working closely with Bell Mobility to meet all of our commitments. With its national scale, Bell Mobility is well positioned to deliver on the capital investments required to bring new mobile technologies to the North while Northwestel remains focused on expanding the availability and capabilities of our wireless services that we know are extremely important to northerners."

The transfer is expected to take effect in the first quarter of 2014 and be seamless for all post-paid and pre-paid Northwestel and Latitude wireless customers. Existing customers will retain their current cell phones and phone numbers, and contracts, including current rates and charges, and will simply be transferred to a Bell Mobility account.

"The Bell Mobility team is thrilled to welcome wireless customers in Canada's North and we look forward to investing in new mobile networks and services to make service across the region even better," said Wade Oosterman, President of Bell Mobility. "Bell is acknowledged in Canada and globally for our network investment and innovation, delivering the best mobile products the world has to offer to both consumers and business users. We're bringing that same focus and energy to northern Canada and to meeting the targets set out in Northwestel's Modernization Plan."

As part of the transition, Northwestel has acquired from the Dakwakada Development Corporation (DDC) its interest in Latitude Wireless, a partnership originally formed by Northwestel and DDC to provide digital cellular service across the Yukon.

"We are extremely thankful to our customers and proud of what we've accomplished with Northwestel over the past seven years," said Brian MacDonald, Chair of DDC. "While we've successfully rolled out advanced cell phone technology to many communities, we believe the scale and expertise of a world leader like Bell Mobility is necessary if consumers and businesses in the North are to keep pace with the global evolution in wireless services. DD looks forward to new business opportunities that will foster growth in the Yukon."

Northwestel and Latitude wireless customers will receive more information in the coming weeks and months, including details about the transition of their accounts to Bell Mobility. Information is also available at www.nwtel.ca or www.latitudewireless.ca.

New experiential education model premieres for rural students

by Dan Davidson

During the last week in September, 86 students from seven rural communities were in Dawson City for a week of experiential learning as part of the new Northern Rural Experiential Model (REM).

"This new model is a unique approach to expanding options and opportunities for rural students," Minister of Education Elaine Taylor said. "Students are engaged in cutting edge experiential learning during the day and have the opportunity to participate in additional activities in the evenings."

Taylor was in Dawson City for a day taking part in the experiential learning week. She observed the sessions in progress and met with participating students.

Each student chose one of eight different sessions to attend for the experiential learning week.

On the Land, with Jesse Jewell and George Bahm, focused on increasing student knowledge and understanding of the natural environment through field studies.

Wood Shop, with Gerry Quarton, had the students making their own skateboards.

Guitar and Song Writing, with Steve Slade, learned basic guitar and/or harmonica, as well as song writing and how to run an audio system. They provided the musical entertainment for the REM final assembly.

FEAST (Foods Education and Service Training) was led by Tara McCauley. This group worked on their Food Safe certification and gained hands-on experience by preparing great meals for REM participants throughout the week.

Hair and Esthetics, with Megan Easter, gave the students hands-on experience learning to style hair, paint nails and various other esthetic skills.

First Nations Fine Art, with Vernon Asp, has students designing First Nations art and learning basic carving techniques by creating paddles.

Digital Art and Film, with Peter Menzies, trained students in film production, including planning, shooting and editing video presentations about the REM workshops.

Yukon SOVA students mount a transformational exhibit

Instructor Veronica Verkley and Dan Sokolowski check out an oversized mug, which is also a tub.

by Dan Davidson

Gigantic corrugated cardboard representations of real objects have always been part of the training regime at the Yukon School of Visual Arts, but this year returning 2D & 3D Studies instructor Veronica Verkley decided to change things up a little – or a lot.

The results were on display in the Confluence Gallery at the SOVA building on October 17 for the exhibit called Oversized and Hybrid-ized.

“In previous years we just made oversized objects,” Verkley explained. “This year I amped it up a little bit by saying ‘oversized object and then hybridize it with something else’. So everything is a hybrid with something else.”

A giant pair of scissors looks mostly normal until you realize that one blade is a woman’s leg. A CD player has ear bud arms and legs, so that the overall effect is that it’s a spaceman of some sort. Outside on the landing, a cheese grater is also an outhouse.

In the past this portion of the work has been displayed as part of the pre-Christmas season open house, but this year SOVA is doing things a little differently.

“The students do this all the time anyway,” Verkley explained. “With every project we set it up in the gallery. We don’t normally officially invite anybody to come by, but we’re always setting things up. So I thought, wouldn’t it be nice, every time we set something up in the gallery, to invite people over.”

She said this kind of exhibit can be expected to happen almost every week now as the students get busier and the assignments accumulate.

This cheese grater is also an outhouse.

These scissors can cut a rug.

The Kids Recreation Fund comes to Dawson City!

Submitted by Britta Andreas at Sport Yukon

The Kids Recreation Fund (KRF) provides families with a lower income an opportunity to apply for funding for their children to participate in sport and recreational activities. The program is administered by Sport Yukon, a non-profit society with a mandate to enhance opportunities for all Yukon people in their pursuit of excellence, and in their enjoyment of participation in sport and recreation.

This initiative, established in April of 1999, helps children and youth whose families are experiencing financial hardship so that they may actively participate in sport, art, cultural, social and recreational programs.

The KRF is for families in a certain yearly net income (after taxes) bracket:

- $40,494 (with 1 or more children)
- $46,163 (with 2 or more children)
- $50,626 (with 3 or more children)
- $56,993 (with 4 or more children)

These are just guidelines. The KRF committee wouldn’t turn families away who are making $1,000 more as indicated.

The KRF funds programming fees for sport and recreation such as swimming, soccer, softball, school trips, pool fees, music lessons and ski passes. As well we cover cost for equipment: bikes, swing sets, soccer shoes, strollers (up to $200), swim suits, music instruments, art supplies and more - actually everything what keeps children/youth creative, active and involved.

Each child (aged 0 to 19 years) is eligible for $400 each funding year (April 1st - March 23rd). Families can apply through out the year.

What I need to apply:

- The 2012 Notice of Assessment for each revenue earner in your family (including your spouse or common law partner)
- Valid Child’s Yukon Health Care Card
- Proof of Marital Status (if not married or common-law)
- Canada Child Tax Benefit (CCTB) / Yukon Child Benefit (YCB) 2012 Statement (comes out every year in July)

At this time of a year the easiest way for families to get approval for the fund is a copy of the Canada Child Tax benefit (CCTB)/ Yukon Child benefit (YCB) Statement. All information we need is stated on this piece of paper: net income, names of children, marital status.

Each child (aged 0 to 19 years) is eligible for $ 400 each funding year (April 1st - March 23rd). Families can apply through out the year.

The Yukon Government’s Health and Social Services and Community Services are sponsoring a large portion of the program but local businesses, community clubs, groups and individuals also play an important role in supporting this initiative.

Where to get the forms and information in town:

- Tro’ndëk Hwëch’in
- City of Dawson (Recreation Department)
- Health & Social Services
- CPNP Dawson City
- Many Rivers
- Robert Service School
- Yukon College Dawson City Campus

The fund is constantly growing and improving. Its 14th year of existence more than 6,000 children/youth from across the Territory has accessed this fund.

The committee is asking for your much-needed support in the investment of our youth, so they may achieve mental, physical, social, and personal development through participation in active living.

If you would like to support your community please contact Sport Yukon and we can have something set up for you. We will make sure to recognize you. For an example in the newspaper and having your business logo visible on our website, application forms, etc.

The Kids Recreation Fund Outreach Coordinator Britta Andreas will be in Dawson City from November 5-8 for information sessions and to meet with parents on one to one.

Where you can meet her:

- Wednesday, November 6, 1:30-5 p.m. at the Health and Social Services Office
- Thursday, November 7, 8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m. in the Dawson City College Campus building
- Friday, November 8, 12-2 p.m. at the Canadian Prenatal Nutrition Program in Dawson City

Faceless Killers

By Henning Mankell
Translation by Steven T. Murray
The New Press
Norton & Co.
400 Pages
$8.99

For Kurt Wallander the Lovgrens' double murder came at exactly the wrong time in his life. It was worse for their next-door neighbours, the Nystroms, who discovered both the break in and the murders at the farmhouse on that January night. The old man, Johannes, had been so brutally assaulted that the medical examiner could not say with any confidence just what violent act had actually ended his life. His wife, Maria, had also been badly beaten and left tied to a chair with a peculiar strangling knot about her throat. She would die in the hospital, days later, her enigmatic hoarse whisper of "foreign" triggering a possible epidemic of xenophobic killings that simply muddled the waters of an already murky investigation.

Wallander was already distracted. His wife had left him just three months earlier and he had still not come to terms with that. She was pretty clear that it wasn't exactly his fault, and that there wasn't another man at the time that she left (though there was now) but that their marriage had gone toxic and she simply had to start finding her own life. She wanted to keep in contact, but the marriage was over.

Wallander is not coping with this blow by eating too much of the wrong food, gaining weight, drinking too much and getting far too little sleep.

On top of that, his relationship with his late teenage daughter, Linda, seemed to have gone to pieces since she was about 15. This is distressing because they had once been so very close.

Finally, his father, who had somehow managed to support the family with a commercial art career that involved endless iterations (with minor differences) of exactly the same painting, appears to be on a downhill slide into senility.

This novel, the first in the Wallander series, spends about an equal amount of space on the detective's personal issues and the quest for a solution to the double murder and the racially themed fire bombing, random slaughter and terrorist threats that follow.

The murder investigation is further complicated by the discovery that Nystrom was secretly a wealthy man, with resources he and his father had amassed by war profiteering during WW II. His wife didn't know about this, nor had she ever known that Johannes had sired a son during an affair 30 years earlier.

The several investigations that flow from the events of that January night take some eight months to reach their conclusions, and they don't all come in sequence, nor are they all connected, save that some disparate groups of people have used the original murder as their excuse for mayhem.

Red herring investigations are a typical thread in all detective stories, and there are plenty in this, all fostered by the necessary need to create some sort of narrative that will link the essential elements of means, motive and opportunity. Without some kind of story it is difficult to assemble a chain of events and a time line that will account for the scanty clues. How did Johannes get to the bank to take out the cash that seems to have been the reason he and his wife were killed? How did anyone manage to find out that he had it when he had kept his wealth secret for decades? What was the significance of Maria's last words? Perhaps most puzzling of all: why did the killers take time to feed the old horse in the barn?

Some of the confusion comes from the Ystad detachment's desire to minimize the possibility of the original killing having been racially motivated. It isn't until they learn about Johannes' hidden money and the regular payments he's been making to the mother of his bastard son that they begin to make any progress on the original murder. The subsequent murder of the Somali refugee turns out to be easier to solve, but is not without its moments of difficulty.

I've been watching the most recent TV movie adaptations of these books, starring Kenneth Branagh as Wallander and David Warner as his dad. While this is the first of the books, they didn't film it first. Given the amount of physical damage that Wallander sustains in this book, I am curious to see how they handled the facial make-up.

The novel was excellent, and once I had begun reading it, it moved right to the top of my list, pushing several others to a lower spot in the queue.

SOVA announces new entrance scholarships

Press release

(Dawson City) - The Yukon School of Visual Art (SOVA) has two new reasons why young artists across North America should consider the only art school north of 60 for their foundation year. The School has announced two new entrance scholarships of $1,000 each - one for full-time students applying from within Yukon, and another for full-time students applying from anywhere else in North America.

"Our location, our faculty of practicing artists, our small class size, our connections with local First Nations culture, together provide an attractive and compelling package for prospective students. The introduction of these entrance scholarships enables us to more directly compete with bigger schools across Canada and the US, all of whom offer financial incentives to promising applicants," said Dr. Curtis Collins, SOVA chair and program director.

The scholarships will be offered for the first time in 2014, with a March 31 deadline for applications. Prospective students will need to answer an essay question and submit a portfolio of 10 images. The successful students must maintain a B average during the year-long program to receive the full amount of the scholarship.

Collins is heading out on the road to promote SOVA and the new scholarships. In the coming weeks he will be visiting high schools and participating in portfolio days in Vancouver, Toronto, and Los Angeles.

"We are looking to expand our outreach and ensure that those students thinking about heading to art school are aware of SOVA. I'm pitching them a fantastic northern and Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in cultural experience which, along with the calibre of visiting professional artists they will have access to, creates an incredible learning environment and life experience for young artists," said Collins.

"Plus, after SOVA they can transfer into the second year of a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree program at Emily Carr University of Art + Design in Vancouver, OCAD University in Toronto, NSCAD University in Halifax, and ACAD in Calgary."

For more information about the entrance scholarships please contact SOVA at 867.993.6390 or info@yukon-sova.ca.

It's a big world

by Anna Vogt

When I think of the 10 million other people also living in Colombia's capital of Bogota, I feel claustrophobic. The city is so different from my tiny town on the coast! It helps to break the city down into manageable worlds: apartment building, neighborhood, office.

I already know some of the people in my building or at least about them. The lady on the second floor goes out for a walk in the morning at the same time as I leave for a run. The elderly couple next door has a beautiful new grandbaby. There was a scandal about whether or not the top floor was stealing all the building's waters (they weren't).

Another world consists of my daily walk to the office, down a tree lined avenue filled with joggers, students, nuns, early-risers walking coat-wearing dogs, shoe shiners, acrobats, a man selling muffins on Sunday and couples kissing on benches. I pass coffee shops, a supermarket, hotels and office buildings, and a beautiful church. Horse drawn wooden carts full of scrap metal and cardboard compete for street space with overcrowded buses and taxis.

My smallest world is the green and tan walls of my cubicle in my new office. I work for Justapaz (Justice and Peace), a Mennonite organization that works on themes of justice, peace and nonviolent action carried out through specific projects. One team documents human rights violations while another advocates for conscientious objection from obligatory military service. Another works on small development projects in marginalized areas of the city. My job is the ambiguous communication for political advocacy, where I attempt to somehow tie all of the various projects together and communicate about them.

One of my projects is an annual event called Bread and Peace that coincides with the International Day of Peace, Nonviolence and Cease Fire declared by the United Nations in 2002. It is a collective effort of individuals, churches and organizations to publicly promote sustainable peace. If people cannot access the basic needs of life, such as bread, peace will only remain an ideal. In the past, activities have included marches and bread distribution, and cultural activities among others. This year, we are working on a new activity: a radio program where people from around the country can call in to share about their daily work for peace.

Colombia is a regionalized country. Each of the five regions has its own culture, food, strengths and experiences of armed conflict. There is not much communication between the regions, and even less with the capital Bogota where decisions appear to be made without a thought about the impact on the rest of the country. Many people work for social change throughout the country; regionalism can lead some to feel alone in their work. A radio show where people share their struggles and achievements with each other is a great way to not only showcase what is happening in the country as a whole, but also to encourage people that they are not alone.

A pastor shares about the rice cooperative in his region. A processing plant allows farmers to directly sell the processed crops, thereby cutting out a middle man and getting a better price. They can earn enough with rice that they do not have to subsist with the coca crops (the raw ingredient in cocaine) they would have grown before to help make ends meet. Another leader talks about her experiences working with urban violence in the warring neighborhoods of Medellin and the daily acts of mediation this work requires. On the Caribbean coast, small farmers engage in nonviolent actions to demand government attention to their dying avocado crops. I may not be directly working on any of these projects, but I have the best job of all: I get to help draw lines of connections and solidarity between them all.

The city may be big and scary, but in each of my small worlds, I see people who love their country and are working for peace. And that does not make me claustrophobic at all, but rather opens doors to a world full of possibilities which I look forward to sharing with you.

The Berton House experience is a perfect blend of solitude and community

Story & Photo
By Dan Davidson

For Colleen Murphy the Berton House experience divides into two parts: what she was able to accomplish while she was working there, and what she was able to do other than that.

"To see the land and meet the people was great because it (gave me) a really strong sense of place," she said on her last day. "I felt extremely comfortable in Berton House. There was the solitude, but the solitude is also something that comes with the land."

"To have this place, for which there was no other responsibility - which I have to say is amazing - that all you have to do is write. Whatever you are there to do - think, write - that's what you do; that's what is so exquisite about this place. But if you took that house and put it in the middle of the city, it wouldn't be the same experience."

So while there are separate components of the experience, she says they are really one and the same.

"The experience of Berton House is the experience of living and being with people in Dawson - going out and seeing the surround - seeing why Dawson City is Dawson City."

Murphy refers to herself as being not a terribly social person ("I only ate out once."), but there were events that she attended and people that she met who were interested in writing. She went to and participated in all the Spoken Word nights organized by summer library assistant Mary Fraughton, and she met weekly with a little group of writers who have continued to meet since her departure.

She got to do a bit of sightseeing, and has hilarious memories of a night she spent curled up in a vehicle on the Dempster Highway because she was too disturbed by the night noises outside her tent. She thanks (no - really) Joanne Bell for that adventure.

Except for some frustration with Northwestel's spotty Internet service during her last week in town she had no negative comments to make about being connected to the Outside world, where there were several projects that she had to keep an eye on, since plays were opening on several cities.

Colleen Murphy on her last day at Berton House.

"I was able to watch rehearsals in London (UK) on Skype," Murphy said, "so there's nothing lacking. You can be completely in communication if you need to be, and completely solitary if you need to be. It's hard to feel like you're isolated. I mean, you are, but in a kind of special way. You have all the options."

Murphy's first choice as a career was to be a downhill skier, but an accident put paid to that. Still, she says that many of the things she learned as an athlete have served her well as a writer.

"Discipline, not being afraid of competing. You know, when you're racing, you're racing against other people, but always against yourself and the elements. It's like writing. You're always pushing yourself, trying to top yourself ... create something better. It's not that I regret (not skiing) but it's never really left me."

Some writers say that writing is like sculpting, except that you have to make the rock first. Murphy turns that analogy over in her mind when I offer it and then runs with it.

"Writing is a difficult process and a different process for everyone. It's kind of elusive. Sometimes things come in a flash, very, very much in its shape.

"Sometimes the rock is delivered to your door and it's as if someone has already carved out the shape. That happens. And then there's - the rock is inside the mountain and you have to dig it out. You have to find the mountain and then find the rock."

Murphy doesn't believe in writer's block at all, refuses to be tortured by a blank screen. There's a lot of unconscious work that goes into writing, she says, and we agree that sometimes when one particular project isn't working you just have to leave it in the slow cooker and go do something else.

She also offers the notion that writing is like mining. It's work and you have to treat it that way.

Berton House gave her a chance to do that and also experience a very special place, one to which she is very certain she will return. Her first plan is to drive up from Edmonton next summer with her adult son.

You just never know what will prompt an idea.

"Look at that dog," she says, as we bundle her bags into the airport terminal in late September. "He smells sleds in the distance."

Out-of-town students stayed at Robert Service School, while local students are following their normal home routines.

"By bringing rural students together and presenting them with these opportunities, they are getting exposure to specialized learning they wouldn't otherwise receive," Taylor said. "This experiential model will allow students to follow their interests as well as help expand the size of their high school peer group."

This REM session was aimed at students in Grades 10 to 12 from Old Crow, Mayo, Pelly Crossing, Carmacks, Ross River and Faro.

The next northern REM session will be geared towards students in Grades 7 to 9 and will be held in Carmacks next May.

And so it began! A package arrived in the mail and there would be no turning back. It had been ordered under duress but now that it had been delivered the recipient had no intention of sending it back. This was her ticket to a new life in another country where no one knew her.

The package contained a passport with the name Katherine Lisa Oliver, born in San Francisco in 1880. The photo showed a young woman with short hair and large eyes. It was similar enough to the woman that she was confident that no one would suspect that she was not Katherine Lisa Oliver! Now she could pack her bags and leave for Dawson City in Canada's far north. She had heard that there was gold to be had and all one had to do was get there and gather it up! What a prospect after living in dire poverty with a man who was unloving and unkind. Tonight she would slip out while he was sleeping and escape to her new life. The year was 1898 and it was spring.

She had kept what little money she could from her housekeeping account and had it safely tucked in the hem of her dress. She packed her few belongings and left in the middle of the night. She knew the man would sleep late into the next day and by then the steamship would be gone. He would never suspect her daring to venture so far away. On the boat she would make friends and blend in with a family perhaps who could use a nanny. She was skilled at managing children.

The trip was an adventure on its own with scenery that was breathtaking. She had never known the world could be so beautiful! The mountains rose into the heavens and the sky was blue and went on forever. She saw dolphins and eagles and knew for sure that she was on her way to a better life.

Well, it took over a week to get to Dawson City and when she had arrived she set out to find a room. She had met one family who could use her services once they got settled but until then she was on her own. She wandered around the town and wondered where all the gold was! The homes looked fairly shabby and the people looked worn and tired. But there was excitement in the air and it seemed that there was an optimistic expectation that any day would be the day of the big discovery! There was a boarding house offering rooms for rent and she procured one. She agreed to help with the housework and laundry and immediately began to wash sheets and scrub floors. After a few weeks she realized that it was going to take longer for her to get rich than she had foreseen! The price of food was sky high and her savings were dwindling and her wages barely covered the cost of her room. The family that she met on the boat finally sought her services and she moved into their home where she shared her room with a child. She was expected to be a nanny during the day while the parents worked. In the evening she sought more work and ended up at the dance hall.

There she learned to entertain the men along with all the other young women who sought a new life in the north. It wasn't what she had envisioned but she wasn't starving and she had a roof over her head.

The summer passed quickly and the long days of endless sunshine began to shorten. The temperatures began to cool and she realized that she was not prepared for a cold winter. She would have to acquire warmer clothes and more blankets. There were people leaving for the south and so there were used winter coats and hats that she was able to buy. It was from one such purchase that her life would significantly change!

The winter months with so little daylight were a whole new experience for Katherine. It seemed that they were constantly waiting for the light and it was very cold. It was during one such winter day that the family wanted Katherine to take the child skating. They bundled up and set out with the borrowed skates for the frozen rink. The skating turned out to be a lot of fun and when they returned home there was delicious hot chocolate to drink. What a treat!

Well the skating trips became a weekly event and during one such outing Katherine met a man named John. He took an interest in her and the child and they became friends. It appeared that he had had a wife but she had refused to spend the winter in Dawson and had left on the last boat in the fall. He didn't really expect her to return. He had kept her winter clothing and offered it to Katherine. She was delighted to receive such fashionable wear and accepted them graciously.

Sometime later Katherine decided to make a winter vest for John from the coat she had first purchased for herself. She was sure she could make him a warm, sleeveless vest from it. As she was cutting off the sleeves something fell to the floor. She could not believe her eyes! There on the floor were several gold nuggets! She scooped them up and wondered what to do. She decided that she would keep this a secret until she needed to cash them in. Secure in the knowledge that she would never be desperately poor again, she carried on her life as usual. She made the vest for John and never told him of her lucky discovery. He accepted the vest and they continued their friendship throughout the winter months.

Finally spring arrived and Katherine marked her first full year in Dawson. She had indeed reinvented herself and felt such a sense of accomplishment and peace with the world. She had found her niche in life. Her past became more and more distant so that she truly became Katherine and even forgot her former name. The gold nuggets enabled her to buy a home in Dawson and she became one of the long-time residents there. She lived there until she died and her children never knew she had had a different life so long ago. Her secrets died with her.

I am a Canadian, with pride of the present as well as of my past.

I crossed the uncharted and storm blown oceans of the world to be the first human to set foot on this new land.

My colour is white as well as black, brown, and golden yellow. I speak Cree, Ojibwa, English, French. Italian and Chinese and the many other tongues from other countries, but first and foremost, I AM A CANADIAN.

I am the native Indian, the mountain man, the trapper, who set out across this land, not really knowing what I was seeking or what I would find.

I am the Viking that sailed down from the north and saw the riches of this land before the history of this great land was ever recorded

I am the man who returned to my native land to tell the people of a rich and promised land across the seas that the explorers then set out to discover for themselves.

I am the explorer who set out for this Promised Land in search for gold and to build a new empire. I am the man who found riches far greater than from which I came.

I am the native Indian who settled the interior. I am the trapper who opened many of the waterway routes, the mountain man who searched for riches and left my trail across this great nation's mountains and forests so others might follow.

Proud to be a Canadian

I am the farmer who stripped the forests - the virgin forests - to hew out farm lands and plant a pledge and a hope for this great nation.

I am the person who fought with spears, bows and arrows, rifles and cannons and then with politics and pen to fulfil a pledge and promise of self determination for Canada and Canadians.

I am the man who walked from shore to shore, who took a canoe and opened to the world the pathways across this great land. I survived the seasons of heat, rain and cold as well as blinding snow storms and found a country that was abundant with riches, wildness and beauty.

I came before the explorers and I continue to come because of all the countries in the world to seek a new life of fulfilment. Canada was then, and remains even now, the number one choice of such a promise.

I was born here but also came here by choice rather than by force and to my gratitude and pleasure, this country has filled me with a pride and freedom that other countries can only dream of.

I am a Canadian who is not forced to bow to anyone, nor as a Canadian do I command any other human to bow to me. My freedom as a Canadian has made me proud to tell the people of the world that I am a Canadian and this is my greatest pride and glory.

We are Canadians because it is our choice, not placed on us by some decree. We are Canadians, and yet we remain individuals with the freedom of rights, of speech and the choice to follow what ever religion we so choose.

Together as Canadians we have the best of all nations and we must never allow anyone to divide or take that away. One Canada, one Country, One Nation, One pledge, to always be proud to say "I AM A CANADIAN!"

Wrestling with Lady Luck

by Joann Vriend,
Dawson City

Luck is a bitch and there's always a hitch
In every perfect scheme;
You follow the plan and find it's a scam
And there goes your lifelong dream.

But before you despair and pull out your hair,
Remember this bit of advice:
If luck shows her face and you're in that place
Grab your chance, trust the roll of the dice.

Take a chair and sit down, get rid of that frown,
There's a tale I'm dying to tell;
It's about Lady Luck, about making a buck--
Do not fear, for it all turns out well.

There was a boy named Jack whose nanny was black
And he asked her for help one day,
"I need money right now for a small fishing scow.
You can trust me, so what do you say?"

So she gave him the cash and he made a dash
For the harbour where he spotted the boat;
French Frank took the gold,
The skiff was soon sold,
And Jack made sure it would float.

He went out in the bay in his indomitable way
And stole oysters out of the nets;
He hated his job so decided to rob
And paid off all of his debts.

His mother was cross and she was the boss
So he joined the state fish patrol;
He was shot at and cursed but his career was reversed,
And his pockets were always full.

The job didn't last and he was back pretty fast
To work on the factory floor;
He toiled and he thought, "A slave I am not,
I'll be damned, but I'll do this no more."

The luck of the rich raised his mind to a pitch
He would travel, and then he would see;
Got a job on a ship, it was a great trip
From Japan to the Bering Sea.

When he got back, he grabbed his rucksack
And headed for the open road;
Learned to jump trains and weather the rains:
Crossed the country and back in this mode.

He wanted to write but in his dire plight
He decided he was no fool;
He'd stop drinking with crooks and start hitting the books:
Jack went and enrolled in school.

School wasn't much fun and soon Jack was done--
He would learn to write by himself;
He stayed up all night after learning to type,
Rejection slips stacked on the shelf.

He was just twenty with energy a-plenty
Wasting it in drinking and strife
So he went forth to find gold in the north--
He wanted a much better life.

Eliza his sister, oh how he missed her!
Had mortgaged her house for his plan;
Carried hundred pound packs, yes, those are the facts,
He was young, but he was a man.

His partners were older, but Jack was much bolder
So he did the lion's share;
Lindeman Lake was the destination to make--
By the end of a month they were there.

Great sights they saw, it had them in awe
There were boats that were made out of trees;
But Jack was a pro, let me tell you, I know--
The project to him was a breeze.

It didn't take long, now don't get me wrong--
They sweated and cursed like the rest,
But they did the job well, built the Yukon Belle--
Their boat was one of the best.

So they sailed away, for a month and a day
Till their muscles and bones felt real weak.
Through wind and through rain, through hardship and pain,
And they landed at Henderson Creek.

They panned out some gold and then they were told
That mining was an unlucky game
So they staked while they could, on the creek where they stood,
And put the ground in their name.

Then they went down to see Dawson town
With the bars, the girls, and the light;
Jack loved it all, enjoyed it that fall
In December he got out of sight.

Back to his claims to make some small gains--
He felt he had to get rich;
So he dug and he panned, and said I'll be damned
But I see Lady Luck is a bitch.

The winter was rough, there wasn't enough--
The food didn't make them feel healthy;
Jack's teeth all fell out, he had scurvy no doubt
Still he hoped one day to be wealthy.

Jack and the doc, they had a short talk
Decided to get out of there quick
Put on some speed, said "Yes, indeed,
Lady Luck is playing a trick."

So they cut some trees down, made a raft, went to town
Jack needed to eat some good food;
Father Judge fed them there, and he sent out a prayer--
They were both in a much better mood.

Jack, he said, you look good, but in your case I would Head home, you can always come back--
With rest and good feeding you'll get what you're needing.
We've got you on the right track.

He bought a boat then, and took up his pen,
He started to write on that trip--
About the dogs and the gold, the dark and the cold,
That had them all in its grip.

His mother was glad to see her good lad
But his father had died in that time;
Jack said, "I will work, you won't see me shirk,
This family will live on my dime.

"I'll deliver the mail, come rain, snow or hail,
It's clear that I need a job;
So dry up your tears and give up your fears--
You don't need to cry and to sob."

So Jack wrote a test, and they said it was best
That he wait for a month or two;
They'd call him they said," Just use your head,
Be patient, this job is for you."

He had lots of time and scarcely a dime
So he wrote by day and by night,
He remembered it well, that dark living hell,
He recalled the return of the light.

The dogs and the gold, the snow and the cold
The beauty of the frozen land,
The mountains and trees, the lights that one sees
And the feel of frost on your hand.

He sent his tales out, with trepidation no doubt;
He was excited as well, like a kid--
They paid him to write, it was a delight
To get cash in the mail, and he did.

So he talked to his mother and said he would rather Write than do anything else;
She said, "Do it, Jack", and never look back--
Your books will soon fill a shelf."

He wrote and he sailed, and his pen never failed,
A thousand words every day;
Lady Luck smiled, he wrote Call of the Wild,
He was paid two thousand they say.

Jack's early life was one of great strife,
You'll have to admit it was tough;
No one would shame him or eventually blame him
If he laid down his pen and gave up.

Lady Luck looked askance, and she wouldn't dance
So Jack had to go on his way--
He wasn't a fool, he just played it cool,
He knew he would change it one day.

What I'm trying to say, in a roundabout way
Is that Jack seized his chance when it came;
When he didn't find gold, and his books weren't sold
He kept up his hopes all the same.

And then by his pluck he turned Lady Luck
And forced her to look his way;
She couldn't refuse him, or even confuse him
And we're reading Jack's books to this day.

Like I said at the start, luck's a bitch, do your part
You really don't need to look back
Its your life, you live it, its your luck, you give it
The best that you've got, stay on track.

And then if you alter, your path and you falter
You'll know you gave your best shot,
You'll feel like a fighter, your sun will shine brighter,
Whether riches follow or not.

While I'm ending this tale, I know I would fail,
If I didn't give Jack the last word,
So I'll paraphrase, the words that he says
Though Jack might find this absurd.

He said, don't complain if your life is a pain
And all that is left is the shards
It isn't the hand, you should understand
But what you do with the cards.

The function of man is to live, and to give,
Not just to exist, so, God damn it
I'd rather be, a meteor you see
Than a sleepy and a permanent planet.

So I'll sing a wild song, if you like, come along,
And don't be afraid to sing loudly
Every muscle and joint will feel joy, that's the point--
Live life to the hilt, do it proudly."

Jack died too young, before he was done,
He was still writing books at the end,
But I know what he'd say if I asked him today--
He'd say Lady Luck was his friend.

THIS IS JUST MY OPINION

God... Man's Creation or Created Man?

In the Twentieth and Twenty-First Centuries, an idea sprang forth that the concept of God is nothing more than the creation of man. The purpose of this paper is not to prove or disprove the existence of God, but rather to look at the origins of these ideas, and where they have led us today.

Those who are proponents of the concept that God is the creation of man, propose that it was designed as a method of controlling the populace. But let us look at this concept a little more deeply, and as we do, we need to ask ourselves how, and when, did this idea begin? What purpose does it serve? Who would most benefit from this concept? Can we see the precept continuing even today? What strength is there in the concept of God?

How and when did this idea begin? The answer can only be speculated, even by archaeology and mainstream sciences. The concept of God may have been introduced by our earliest ancestors, perhaps following the death of a loved one, a parent, a mate, or perhaps even a child, thereby leaving the survivors with the question, "What happens next?" It is possible that the idea of an after-life, spirit world, and God began here—but this is not where it ended. Generation after generation would build upon this concept, building religious rituals and sacrificial rites which rapidly spread across the earth, with an increasing number of gods for every purpose, and rituals and sacrifices to go with each. There arose a god of fertility, a god for the rains, a god for planting time, a god for harvest time, the sun and moon both were deemed gods, and this only names a few.

Every culture, every race of people had their own concepts, rituals and sacrifices regarding these same gods, though called by differing names. The strongest in the communities often became lords (whether it be kings or chiefs) over the populace, while the weakest appearing men, and most beautiful and delicate of their women, became their priests and priestesses. It would be the latter that set out the moral laws for the populace, while the lords would set out the punishments (most resulted in death by sacrifice or ritual stoning) for offences against these laws. It can clearly be viewed as being a method to control a group of citizens, and perhaps was implemented for just that purpose.

Who would most benefit from this concept of God? Firstly, the priests and priestesses would be the ones who would benefit most by a God concept, followed closely by those who were the lords over the populace. The priests and priestesses would have the finest jewels, gold, and foods, the lords next, while the people usually get the left-overs (that which was second best). This, was commonly designed to control the people to do the bidding (wilfully) of the lords or priests. Throughout our history, this has indeed proved to have been quite successful. It has been so successful that it has indeed continued right up to our present day.

Judaism, had a differing concept of God, in that there is only One True God, while all others are false. Still, this had the ability of controlling the populace, but, it was difficult to maintain that control when those who were kings and lords over the people chose not to follow the messages given them. In this, it is similar to all religions, and what we need to understand is that "Religion" is indeed man's creation, but I still wonder if the concept of God is? Then arose that powerful faith, Christianity. At the beginning of this movement, it was never used as a "Religion" or as a method of controlling the populace. It became a "Religion" under the guidance of one who was considered "Lord of the World" the Emperor Constantine. It was at this moment that Christianity became a Religion, and began to be used as a method of control.

Had the "Religion" lost its false gods to serve the One True God? Sadly, No!

Religion, created by man as a means and method to first control the people, and second, as an attempt for men to find God. Sadly, in this do men and Religion gravely err. The God of Heaven, if He truly exists, is the Creator of all things, including man, and required no Religion in order to find Him. The God of Heaven, only requires that man trusts in Him for everything, and to follow His ordinances and laws. According to Biblical texts, in the beginning, God had only one ordinance, and only one law—"Do not eat of the fruit of the tree of knowledge." Simple enough to make a choice, and contained within that law and ordinance was not a single element of control.

To conclude, Religion is a creation of man, as a method of control, power and influence, but man did not and could not create God, or even the concept of God. Human beings are genetically made to have a relationship with God, so the idea of God is already inside each of us, and the desire to seek Him out. God created man, of this I have no doubt, though I can neither prove or disprove this, it must be taken as a matter of Faith, not a matter of Religion

But, as always... this is just my opinion.
