

Evening comes earlier now and the river is icing up

There was no ice to be seen on the day the George Black came out of the water on October 30. Temperatures remained moderate and the river glassy clear for days after the event. Just past the next weekend small floes began to appear, but the temperatures remained in the minus single digits for several days.

Cooling began about the middle of the week. At this writing, it hit -30 in Henderson Corner on Friday and was about -27 in town. The floes have thickened substantially as the week draws to a close, but the river is still steaming on Friday. Photos by Dan Davidson

Chamber looks to be better connected in the community

It was quite clear from the beginning of the annual general meeting on October 30 that one of the chief priorities of the Dawson City Chamber of Commerce was to get a full board in place.

If it had not been clear from the opening remarks by chair Carla Mather, the strategic planning report that took up the first half hour of the meeting underlined it several times.

That report, prepared and presented by Patti Balsillie, indicated that while the chamber is valued by the business community, and while its primary event, the annual Gold Show, is seen as a major success, the chamber faces problems.

Balsillie heard people in her survey say that they felt disconnected from the chamber, that they didn't know what was going on, that membership renewals were down to 40%, that there was too much strategic navel gazing going on and not enough action taking place.

Over the last year the chamber has been plagued with staffing issues and has operated, for the most part, with a bare bones board of just three people. In spite of a series of informative guest presentations at the monthly meetings, attendance has not been strong at these noon hour events.

Attendance was not a problem at the AGM, with 39 people filling the chairs around the tables and the extra chairs brought in for later arrivals. By contrast last year's meeting drew 26 people.

The new board will be attempting to address all of these issues. Already, under the direction of new 3/4-time manager Diego Martin, quite a bit has been done to improve the dissemination of information via the weekly e-mail newsletter and the improved website.

And there is a new board, for when it came time for elections, all the necessary positions were filled in short order. The new board adopted the Klondike Visitors Association's convention of deciding amongst themselves who would fill what roles during a short meeting after the AGM, and released the following lineup later that week: Carla Mather (Chair), Martin Gehrig (Vice Chair), Dan Beaulieu (Treasurer), Margaret Kormendy (Director), Lue Maxwell (Director), and Diego Martin (Manager).

Also at the AGM the annual chamber awards were announced. None of the recipients were present at the meeting as two were working and one was a posthumous award.

Member of the Year recipient Bill Bowie received a standing ovation. Bowie, the main shareholder in Arctic Inland Resources, passed away late in August. Martin reported that 95 percent of the votes for this award were for Bowie this year.

New Business of the Year was presented to the new Pan of Gold pizza parlor.

Business of the Year went to Husky Bus, now in its second year of operation, providing summer season transport between Dawson and Whitehorse, as well as being one of the tour operators at Dredge No. 4. Jesse Cook's operation was last year's New Business winner.

Uffish Thoughts: It's No Use Pussyfooting Around

There's no doubt about it. Cats have been getting some bad press lately. Recent reports in all sorts of places, iinj allo media, have damned them for everything from hairballs to the possible extinction of all manner of birdlife.

They are killers, plain and simple, we are told, and that's all we need to know.

Cats don't have much of a chance in Dawson City. Our old friend Pete had crossed the country with us in 1976, survived 3 years in Beaver Creek and another 6 in Faro, but it was Dawson that did him in at the age of 12.

He'd been a trooper until then. He even got lost for several weeks one year and eventually came back home with a slight limp and his foot pads worn down to the pink. We think he hopped in the back of a parked truck to keep warm and got ditched somewhere a few kilometers from town. From the small bare patch on one leg he got injured and had to heal up before he could make his way home. He was hungry when he got here, but he hadn't starved, so he must have been able to hunt some kind of game.

Cats are independent critters. They come around when they want something from you, be it food or a scratch behind the ears. They let you know that you're living with them, rather than the other way around. They can be made to live strictly indoors, but none of our cats wanted to do that. I know measure energy. people who do keep their cats from going outside, but it's a bit of a struggle.

On the other hand, unlike a dog, you can leave a cat in the house with a supply of water and food, and go away for several days at a time without really needing to worry about them, as long as you freshen the kitty litter before you leave. We'd get people to look in on Pete every couple of days and he'd be fine.

Even at his advanced age, he was a match for any single dog that might come around, but the pack that ran him down on our front lawn one summer turned out to be more than he could handle. The young woman (a former student of mine) who was house sitting while we were vacationing in Nova Scotia, was devastated when she had to call us with the news

We had several kittens after that, but none of them seemed to last more than a couple of years, and they were with us so briefly I can't even remember all their names. There was Orphan (for his parentage), Oreo (for his colour) and a couple more.

They simply vanished and were never seen again. Most of them disappeared during the winters. Dog packs? Foxes? Lynx? Maybe a bear?

Sixteen years ago we gave in and got a dog. She was called Jewel and she was full of energy, so the kids, who were studying high school science at the time, decided she should be called Joule, for the unit used to

Dogs are different than cats - lovable but needy. Not really able to fend for themselves; certainly not animals you can leave alone in a house for several days and not be very sorry when you come home.

Joule lasted 12 years too, and then vanished mysteriously one November evening in 2009. We never found out what happened.

Betty lasted about a month and then Shadow came to live with us. She's still around, nearly four years later, but we had to fix fences and add gates to our yard because she will roam if she can.

Shadow would probably get along with a cat if we brought another one home, but one pet at a time is enough. In recent months however, a fluffy orange visitor of indeterminate age has been visiting our yard, walking around the top of our fence and even having naps in various corners. He/She/It has shown no inclination to get to know the resident humans, but seems to like to tease Shadow.

Now Shadow was born at the Humane Society and her early puppy weeks were spent in the company of both dogs and cats, so she's never been upset by felines, but she's puzzled by this one, and never more so than a couple of weeks back when I caught her staring at the strange site of our visitor, perched on top of the T-pole that holds the far end of our clotheslines.

Me, I was delighted. I've never seen a cat go up there before and I thought it was quite a the issue; this cat is welcome to sight. I won't pussyfoot around visit us anytime.

A note of gratitude

"In the night of death hope sees a star, and listening love can hear the rustle of the wing." -Robert G. Ingersoll

My precious Dad, Kenneth Cober Snider, has crossed over. He died peacefully in his sleep early this morning (Oct. 29), around 6:30 a.m. I felt the rustle - a feeling akin to the fluttering of a butterfly's wings - in my heart near the time that my Dad's spirit was taking flight. I now imagine him reunited with his voice, his mobility and with many, many loved ones. The coffee pot is on and many conversations are brewing. Where there is Dad, there is conversation and laughter and I can almost hear it!

Yesterday my brother, John, and I went for a quick trip across the Yukon River on the ferry. The ferry's last trip of the season is tonight and we wanted to cross over one last time. John and I were sitting waiting for the ferry and I began to have a heightened sense of emotion and anxiety thinking that if something happened to my Dad, and if I was on the other side of the river, I wouldn't be able to help him. I explored this feeling more and realized that, other side or not, I would NOT be able to prevent my father's death. So, we drove onto the ferry and my curious mind played with this 'crossing over' metaphor for my Dad and for his crossing over. After my initial hesitation and worry about being on the other side, when we landed, I began to truly relax and to enjoy the experience. The view was unique and offered a not often seen perspective. I like looking at things in a different way; it adds to the wonder and beauty that is life.

CBC Radio just phoned requesting an interview. I'm trying to muster my moxie as it would be a great honour, as well as a great gift to my Dad. I asked if the interview could be pre-recorded. I MIGHT be able to do it that way so they can erase my tears and sniffles. I'll save my tears and sniffles for all other times.

Dear Ones, thank you for bearing witness and for buoying all of us up with your love and support during this transitional time for my Dad, and for us. When my Dad was diagnosed with terminal pancreatic cancer in mid-July, he adamantly stated his wish of wanting to die in Dawson. Well, our family granted him that wish, through much humour and tears and hard labour, that labour of love. We were all put to the test on numerous occasions and just when we thought that we couldn't do it anymore, help arrived. The medical support here in Dawson has been beyond our expectations.

Yes, Dad, you were right. Dawson is a good place to live. And, yes, it is also a good place to die.

As well as seeing Dad's dying wish come true, we each have received many gifts from accompanying him to his death. I know that my life will never be the same. It will be deeper and fuller and richer. For that I am grateful to my Dad.

With love and gratitude,

Grace Snider, Whitehorse

Thieves and victims

This is a story of thieves and their victims.

Recently my son and seven other young'uns went to Edmonton to a youth empowerment conference. These kids worked hard to raise they money to go on this fine project by the Youth Centre.

By all reports the conference was a real success and much shopping was done. Alas, on the way out of town they stopped at a family restaurant to have breakfast before catching the plane. Thieves broke into their rental van and stole all their luggage.

Me, I had three microphones stolen out of my car at Arctic Inland while we were up the hill burying Bill.

So, if you're offered a "deal" on somthin' and you know it's "hot" remember: your gain does not equal the victim's loss.

Museum raises $13,000 at its Auction

Paul Robitaille clowns around as auctioneer during the 2013 Dawson City Museum Auction.

The 36th Annual Dawson City Museum Auction wasn't quite the blowout that the 35th event was, but then last year was the museum's 50th anniversary and it would have been hard to beat.

This year's event, held on November 2, embraced a Hallowe'en theme for the evening, and a number of people came dressed for the occasion, including auctioneer Paul Robitaille, who held forth all evening in a clown's wig and a big red nose (that was sometimes a chin).

"Vannas" for the evening, busy showing off the sixty items on the auction table, were Maria Sol and the cross-dressing Andrew Roebuck.

As executive director Laura Mann noted, the evening is always more than merely an auction. With food and drink available in the gift shop on the main floor, it becomes a social event with time built in for refreshments and a break at the halfway mark.

Mann reports that over $13,000 was raised during the course of the evening.

Bidding was brisk on items that included a voucher for screened gravel, a 20 minute heli-tour, art work of various kinds, handcrafted items, gift certificates from various shops, a family pass at the pool, jewelry, clothing, income tax preparation and a half-hour massage.

The auction took place in the courtroom on the second floor and most of the seats were full most of the time.

Humane Society opens an off-leash Dog Park

Story & photos by Dan Davidson

While a substantial number of the dog owners in Dawson City seem to treat the town as it if were one large leash free zone, it really isn't, and even on the dike trail, one of the most popular canine walkways, dogs are still supposed to be leashed.

It's a bylaw much more honoured in the breach than in the observance, and several councils have discussed the possibility of creating an actual dog

Last Saturday (October 26) the Humane Society Dawson cut the ribbon – er ... leash – on a brand new 1.25 acre dog park in the north end of town. Located just below the Moosehide Slide and above the area where the annual mud bog takes place, the fenced, gently sloped area has been outfitted with a walking trail, benches and places to dispose of collected dog drop-

As humane society director Katie Pearse said, some of the features of the Off Leash Dog Park have been not yet been installed, but all the vital things are in place and the group wanted to have the grand opening before the weather turned colder. As it happened it was a lovely sunny afternoon with a view of the mountainside in one direction and the still icefree Yukon River in the other.

Support for the project has come from the City of Dawson's recreation department, the Yukon government's Community Development Fund, the Eldorado and Westmark Hotels and Cheechakos Bakeshop.

The rules for dog park etiquette will be clearly posted and include being with your dog and having a leash with you at all times, making sure that aggressive dogs or females in heat are not in the park, as well as dogs that are too young or injured, being careful with children and dogs, scooping up droppings and filling in holes.

The park will have some agility equipment installed by next spring and there will be classes on how to use it properly.

Mayor Wayne Potoroka was on hand to congratulate the society on the work.

"I hadn't actually seen this until I came right into the area," he said. "It's an incredible addition to this part of town. The community has been asking for a dog park ad we really do have the Humane Society to thank for being such loud advocates and hard workers to make this

The municipal council did their job by carving out a spot for the dog park to go, and then doing what it sometimes does best, which is getting out of the way of a good idea."

Pearse said it was the CDF money that really made the entire project a reality and thanked the city council and administration for its support and guidance.

Much of the work was done by local contractors: Klondike Active Trails and Transport, Happy Marmot Landscaping, Vogt Enterprises and Spruce Gerberding. Inkspirationz

The Home Routes series of house concerts continued here in late October with Darryl Poulsen and Adrian Gross playing to a crowded living room of close to two dozen people at Peter Menzies' home.

Poulsen and Gross are one half of the bluegrass quartet called the Slocan Ramblers and have been playing together for longer than they have been with the larger band. In this configuration Poulsen plays a six string crafted by his father and Gross sticks to the mandolin.

It was a largely instrumental evening of bluegrass standards, though the pair did sing on a number of the tunes, and deviated from the traditional style by adapting a few folk/rock tunes. They were particularly fond of Tom Petty numbers, which they don't get to play when working with the rest of the band.

Aside from traditional tunes and covers, the pair also presented a selection of material they had composed themselves. This music was available on their own CD, which they had for sale along with the disc from the Slocan Ramblers.

The audience was particularly impressed by the seemingly effortless way the pair traded off solos and the way their fingers danced over the frets of their instruments.

Home Routes puts together a list of available artists and looks for regional support to place them in homes on designated routes. There are thirteen such routes across Canada. Ours is called the Yukon Trail but it also includes Atlin along with Whitehorse, Crag Lake, Marsh Lake, Haines Junction, Mendenhall, Mary Lake, Mayo, Pelly Crossing, Dawson City and Old Crow.

The pair reported having a great time on their Yukon Trail tour. They hope to be able to return with the rest of the band, perhaps to play at one or more of the territorial music festi-

DAWSON CITY, YT, (Nov. 8, 2013) Ryan Leef, Member of Parliament (Yukon), on behalf of the Honourable Shelly Glover, Minister of Canadian Heritage and Official Languages, today announced support for the Dawson City Arts Society, presenter of the Dawson City International Short Film Festival.

"The Government of Canada is pleased to support the Dawson City International Short Film Festival," said Mr. Leef. "This much anticipated annual festival is an important part of the local community. It provides residents and visitors with greater access to films of all genres from around the world, as well as those made in Yukon."

With this funding, the Dawson City Arts Society will present the 15th edition of the Dawson City International Short Film Festival, which will take place from April 17-20, 2014. The Festival will present a diverse array of films by international and local filmmakers. A series of instructional workshops, information sessions, and panel discussions on filmmaking will also be offered at multiple venues in the community.

"Investing in culture encourages innovation and creativity, and provides opportunities for Canadians to enjoy the artistic diversity that is characteristic of our country," said Minister Glover. "Our Government is proud to fund events that contribute to the development, growth and vitality of our communities."

"The Dawson City International Short Film Festival is grateful for the support of the Building Communities Through Arts and Heritage program," said Dan Sokolowski, Producer at the Dawson City Arts Society. "In particular, we appreciate the program's focus on showcasing the works of local artists to our community, and rewarding the volunteerism that is required to present our festival."

The Dawson City Arts Society, formed in 1998, is a volunteer-based non-profit organization whose mandate is to create an environment for the enhancement of the arts in the Yukon, and in particular, the community of Dawson City. In addition to the Dawson City International Short Film Festival, the Society also operates the Klondike Institute of Arts and Culture, the ODD Gallery, and the Yukon Riverside Arts Festival.

The Government of Canada has provided funding of $2,000 through the through the Building Communities Through Arts and Heritage program of the Department of Canadian Heritage. This program provides Canadians with more opportunities to take part in activities that present local arts and culture and celebrate local history and heritage.

Government supports 10 Yukoners pursuing health related studies

Press release

WHITEHORSE—Ten Yukon students will receive financial support from the Yukon government through three separate health education bursaries.

"I am pleased we are able to support these 10 individuals in achieving their educational goals in pursuing careers in health and social fields," Minister of Health and Social Services Doug Graham said. "Given that many of them will return to Yukon to live and work, these bursaries are also an investment in Yukon's future."

The Medical Education Bursary has been awarded to Brittany Craigen and Zoe Zimmerman who will each receive $10,000 per year over four years.

Sarah Balsam, Shelby Fulton, Samantha Hombert and Jaime Whitty will each receive $5,000 per year over four years as recipients of the Yukon Nursing Bursary.

The Health Education Bursary of $5,000 per year over four years has been awarded to four Yukoners. Tanner Cassidy and Brad Holm are studying physical therapy; Marie Maratos is studying occupational therapy; and Shauna Kormendy is pursuing a degree in social work.

The bursary programs have supported 89 students since 2006.

A tribute to our First Nations' veterans

By Don Marks www.troymedia.com

WINNIPEG, MB/ Troy Media/ -First Nations always show respect for veterans at any Gatherings year round. Those who have gone before, and who have made the greatest sacrifices, always lead the Grand Entry at pow wows, and at conferences where First Nations and Metis people gather to celebrate history and culture or to discuss matters of vital interest and make important decisions. The contributions which are made by First Nations and Metis veterans are recognized and saluted for the protection, the provisions and the peace which the veterans have sacrificed themselves for the sake of others.

"A warrior does not judge his or her greatness by the achievements they have made but by the obstacles which they have overcome. Those obstacles provide an opportunity for a warrior to prove greatness and they are welcomed as a test to prove that one is worthy of being a warrior."

The Band Halls of many First Nations in Manitoba, the Hall at the Indian and Metis Friendship Centre in Winnipeg, and many other gathering places throughout this province are adorned by the portraitsthe veterans of World Wars, the Korean War and other conflicts which required First Nations and Metis people to serve the country of Canada and its freedoms. Names like Sgt. Tommy Prince, and his fellow soldiers who readily went off to serve our freedoms and safety which line the walls of the Board Room in the Brokenhead Ojibway Nations Band Office provide just one example of the honour and respect which First Nations pay tribute to on a daily basis.

First Nations people have always remembered the tremendous contributions and sacrifices which have been made by these great leaders, but this has not always been the manner in which this greatness has been perceived by the mainstream of Canadian society. Not that many of us are familiar with the deep disappointment and hurt that Sgt. Tommy Prince felt when he was turned away from shopping at "the white store" near his Reserve just days after returning home from receiving the highest honour the British Empire can bestow on a soldier.

First Nations people feel deep passion and loss for those First Nations veterans who returned home from the Second World War and the Korean War and were forced to relinquish their "Indian Treaty status" because it made them ineligible to enjoy the same rights as other GIs who could, for example, receive enormous assistance for housing that was denied to native veterans because "Indians received free housing under the Indian Act" (with their 30-year waiting lists, sigh!). Many First Nations veterans gave up their status as Indians in order to provide a home for their families who had been anxiously waiting for their safe return.

Times are changing and Bill C-31 restored status to many of these veterans, but public recognition of the contribution of First Nations and Metis veterans has always lagged far behind the testament we bestow on other Canadian veterans, who, to a man, agree that the native soldiers and seamen and airmen they fought alongside were just as worthy. The federal government is negotiating with native veterans groups to come up with compensation for remaining veterans and their survivors.

Remembrance Day is that special one day when it gets personal and I think of Dave Nanowin, a friend I made, a veteran from Norway House First Nation who lost his eyesight during the Second World War. David has long since passed away, but he is most remembered by his family and their memories, as most veterans are. Children and grandchildren like my friends Ray, who is a Probation Officer, Dennis, a bus driver, Valerie, a school teacher, Ron a writer/musician and Corrine, an immigration of-

Dave Nanowin went off to war when he was called and he returned home to a country where he wasn't allowed to vote and required a pass to leave his home on the Reserve. But the freedoms that Dave Nanowin was fighting for eventually came to him, and he was able to vote and shop wherever he wanted by the time he was 50.

The fact he was a native Elder able to lead the way for five off-spring to find the success they were able to find is testament to the provider that he was.

And we are all grateful to Dave, and all other Canadian veterans, who protected us and kept the peace.

Mine revival project going ahead, executive says

By Chuck Tobin, Whitehorse Star, on November 8, 2013 Reprinted with permission

The proposal to revive the Brewery Creek gold mine east of Dawson City is going forward, says the president of the company in control of the property.

Bill Sheriff of Americas Bullion Royalty Corp. – formerly

Golden Predator – says the company has committed $1 million to prepare an application for the Yukon Environmental and Socio-economic Assessment Board (YESAB).

Americas Bullion has contracted Access Consulting of Whitehorse to do the work, he said in an interview last week.

Sheriff added the company hopes to have the material submitted to YESAB's executive committee by the end of 2014 or early in 2015.

The company would like to see a recommendation coming out of YESAB by late 2015 or mid-2016, he said.

Sheriff said additional exploration work this year has returned very favourable results

Bringing the wild things home

By Grace Snider

A feast for your eyes! Here's a photo from last evening's five hour 'chasing caribou' expedition up the Dempster Highway. (Can't believe that I've spent the last two evenings running wild up the Dempster...one of my fall dreams come true!)

The tundra landscape is putting on its winter coat and these caribou from the Fortymile Herd are on the move within this changing landscape. There are approximately 50,000 caribou and they haven't been in this country for nearly 50 years, making it a very special occurrence. As I recently learned, the Fortymile caribou are actually barren ground caribou (not woodland caribou) and are the same species as the Porcupine Caribou Herd found across the Arctic. The Fortymile Herd is moving into the home territory of the Hart River Caribou Herd, woodland caribou.

After the Tombstone Campground, we began to notice white specks moving across the hummocky land, and I was quite surprised that these majestic caribou were spread out (and not grouped up) along the eastern side of the Dempster Highway. We spotted the caribou in groups of 4-12 animals, I'm guessing there were about 100 in total, beginning at km 90 and ending at km 110, just past Two Moose Lake. Only three more hours of driving north and we'd have crossed the Arctic Circle!

What an experience tonight was, and I tell you, it was all I could do to not pull a Farley Mowat, strip down to my birthday suit, and run wild across the tundra, being caribou! At one point we got out of the vehicle and bushwhacked to get a closer vantage point, being stopped in our tracks by an uninviting icing-over creek.

Immediately upon our return home, I transferred my photos onto the computer to show everyone, especially Dad (Ken Snider), who can no longer travel out of the house to see such wonders. Dad really enjoyed the images and our stories and was naming the locations along the Dempster Highway, a roadway he has traveled too many times to count. My gift to Dad is to get OUT and to bring the wild things home.

which have been recorded in official stock-market documentation.

As Americas Bullion moves the application to the assessment board, it will also be looking for a joint-venture partner to bring the mine into production, he said.

Sheriff said his company has no interest in selling the Brewery Creek project.

But as Americas Bullion is a company primarily focused on exploration and development, it wants to find a partner that has the expertise to manage the mining operation, he said.

The grade of gold at the Brewery Creek property is as good as any in the world for a project that size, he said.

"We do not want to sell it," he said. "We have a future in the ahead with work required for Yukon, and we are committed to staying there.

"We still have the full support of the Tr'ondek Hwechin who are eager to see the project advance."

Brewery Creek operated successfully under another company from 1997 and 2002, when it closed amid slumping gold

A YESAB application last year to dust off the project and begin mining again under previous regulatory approvals which was no need for a new assesswere still valid was rejected by the assessment board.

The board ruled last February the company's proposal was not simply a matter of kickstarting an old mining project. Rather, the company's proposal amounted to a brand new project requiring a brand new environmental and socio-economic assessment, YESAB decided.

The decision raised the ire of Sheriff and Chief Eddie Taylor of the Tr'ondek Hwech'in. The First Nation was focused on the Brewery Creek revival as a significant economic development opportunity.

Even the Yukon government wrote YESAB suggesting there ment, as the proposal was not substantially different than the previous mining operation.

In the end, the assessment board disagreed.

Sheriff said Americas Bullion remains committed to the Yukon, and still holds other mining interests in the territory in addition to Brewery Creek.

With the new exploration results for the property, the project is now much more economically robust than it was just a year ago, Sheriff said.

The company president, however, offered a word of caution to Yukoners, suggesting the territory has lost the glitter it had a few short years ago as a place to invest in the mining in-

The entire world has been hit by the instability in the financial markest, including the Yukon, he said.

The territory, however, has lost the reputation as a solid place to invest even when times are good, he added.

When the markets rebound, the territory will no longer be on the top of the list, he said.

"There has been a major exodus of capital from the Yukon," Sheriff said.

He said the Yukon as a whole needs to be pro-active and clearly support the mining industry if it wants to regain the ground it's lost.

Wainwright and company please the Dawson audience

Story & photos by Dan Davidson

Martha Wainwright likes to move on the stage as she sings and plays. She lunges at the microphone, stamps her feet, throws her head back, and kicks up her heels. All of that's getting to be a little harder to do as her second pregnancy advances.

"This is not an abscess," she told her Oddfellows Hall audience on November 5. "It's a baby growing inside of me."

She was explaining why she was holding her guitar to one side of her body and that it wasn't because she didn't like the folks sitting in the seats at stage right.

Wainwright can be a bit of a clown. As part of her over the top Vegas lounge style rendition of "Stormy Weather" during her encore she fell to her knees, looked beseechingly at the audience and said, "I don't know if I can get up."

There were echoes of several different divas in that performance, a hint at the many influences in Wainwright's background.

When we spoke a month ago, she was very open about that.

"I have a very eclectic taste and a very eclectic sound that sometimes makes it difficult to market and to sell as an artist - to not be very definable," she said.

"It's certainly been maybe not the best business choice, but I just can't help it. I was so influenced by so many different kinds of music growing up. Then when I got older I listened to punk rock and edgier music, and I just can't seem to throw any of those influences away, so I move through them like a bit of a chameleon."

Wainwright is, of course, the daughter of the late Kate McGarrigle and Loudon Wainwright III. Kate and her sister, Anna, are major influences in Canadian folk music circles. Her older brother Rufus, with whom she started her adult career as a backup singer, is equally eclectic in his musical choices.

She has a clear opinion of her own style and its appeal.

"It's usually a little bit subversive, very exposed ... uncomfortable, but revealing in an interesting way that people can identify with it."

You don't get a whole lot edgier than her closing tune, which begins with the line "Poetry is no place for a heart that's a whore" and has a title that begins with the word "bloody" and finishes off with three other words I can't even use in a family paper, but which start with "m", "f" and "a".

Then, of course, there's her opening song, "Can You Believe it?" which begins "I really like the makeup sex / It's the only kind I ever get." It's got a peppy beat that sees Martha bouncing around happily while her husband assumes a bit of a poker face and plucks the strings on his bass guitar at stage left.

Wainwright was in Dawson with her husband, Brad Albetta, on bass and piano and Yuval Lion on drum kit and percussion programming.

Albetta and Wainwright engage in quite a bit of stage banter. She introduced one solo number this way.

"This is kind of like a nicer love song. My husband, Brad, actually likes this one. That's why I sing it." Long pause, then she whispered, "It's not about him."

While her 90 minute performance had an emphasis on songs from her latest CD, Come Home to Momma, she included material from past recordings as well, and made special mention of the work of her mother, the late Kate McGarrigle, singing songs from a recently released double CD tribute album, Sing Me the Songs: Celebrating the Works of Kate McGarrigle.

While a lot of the evening was with the full band, Wainwright also did a number of tunes solo and a couple of pieces with just her husband accompanying her on piano. Particularly moving was her rendition of "Proserpina", the last song her mother wrote, based on the Greek/Roman legend of Persephone.

Wainwright also sang some songs in French, including "Adieu Mon Cœur" from her Edith Piaf tribute live album, Sans Fusils, Ni Souliers, à Paris: Martha Wainwright's Piaf Record, and "Cette Vie", a song recorded in French for the Quebec TV show, Trauma. It was a tremendous evening and Wainwright and her band got the standing ovation they deserved. Of course, Dawson audiences usually give standing ovations. How else can you tease another song or two out of a performer? Still, it wasn't just a ruse.

The Dawson City Museum's 36th Annual Auction may just be a pleasant memory, but we have a lot of people to thank. With the community's outstanding support we raised over $13,000 to support the Museum's operations. Thank you, Dawson City! We couldn't have done it without you!!

The War on Science: Muzzled Scientists and Wilful Blindness in Stephen Harper's Canada

By Chris Turner Greystone Books 176 pages $14.40

As a journalist covering technological environmental stories, Chris Turner found himself wanting to look for the positive side of these topics. It was not that there wasn't any bad news to cover, or that he didn't provide surveys of just what the bad news was. It was that he wanted to focus on possible solutions to problems, and that he was able to find them in various places all around the world. It seemed to him that a good many nations were taking the issue of climate change quite seriously and were making efforts to deal with it.

0ur country, own previously seen as being a supporter of such efforts, now seems to be the poster child for denial.

That is perhaps the biggest reason wh, after producing two good news books - The Geography of Hope: A Tour of the World We Need (2007) and The Leap: How to Survive and Thrive in the Sustainable Economy (2011) - Turner's most recent book is an angry study of how Canada's formerly progressive stance on a number of issues has undergone a 180 degree reversal that sees marching backwards into the future.

Turner's basic thesis is that the Harper Government (as it styles itself) is anti-science in nearly all of its activities, and seems intent on turning back to the clock to a way of thinking that predates the prime ministership of Robert Borden.

Turner and a number of other writers have picked Borden's term of office (1911-1920) as the beginning of the modern era for several reasons. It was under Borden that the professional civil service, positioned at arms length from the elected government, began to take shape. Its role evolved over the decades to become the advisory body to the government, providing it with the best,

The dangers of gagging scientists and other public servants most objectively verifiable, advice available on a variety of topics.

Today, as we have seen repeatedly over the last several years, the job of the civil service is to prooftext reality and selectively report those facts which will support the conclusions the governing party has already committed itself to. The first job of public servants is no longer seen to be service to the public, but rather service to the party in power.

It was under Borden that the National Research Council began to take shape, a body dedicated to innovative scientific endeavors from the esoteric to the practical. The views of the scientists employed by the government in various departments were once respected around the world. Now they travel to conferences (when allowed to) with government media minders in attendance and are not permitted to speak or write freely about the results of their investigations.

One is reminded of the political commissars that once were a feature of the various Soviet Socialist Republics. Only data that supports government positions is to be made public.

NRC has been downgraded to a "concierge" agency dispensing solutions tailor made for the needs of the business and industrial sectors.

Not satisfied with ignoring the science that might contradict its ideology, the present government has, through measures bundled within the pages of massive omnibus bills, selectively reduced its own ability to collect such information or to monitor for problems.

The Experimental Lakes Area was responsible for questions like algae bloom and acid rain contamination, and the science carried out there shaped legislation and policy around the world. The current government shut it down, and it was only saved by the efforts of provincial governments and NGOs.

In spite of tons of evidence indicating that criminal activity is falling off, the government passes omnibus crime bill, enacting just about every sort of punishment that the experts had advised against.

While good data relating to social issues across the nation is essential for good governance, the Conservatives eliminated the mandatory Long Form Census, replacing it with a much less accurate voluntary document.

In spite of the PM's annual Northern Tours and continued rhetoric about the importance of the North, the High Arctic research station known as PEARL was shut down in the winter of 2012-13 due to budget cuts. Funding was restored in May of 2013, but it seems much vital research on the government's main interest is in a newer facility, much further south, that will not cover the same range of environmental reporting.

> There are more examples, but perhaps it is best to note the place where Turner begins, with the Death of Evidence protest march staged by many of Canada's scientists in July 2012. The rallying cry of the lab-coated marchers is significant:

'What do we want?"

"Science!"

'When do we want it?"

"After peer review!"

Without the freedom of government agencies to follow the science to where it leads and give that advice to the government free from political interference, what we will get is more disasters like the collapse of the cod fishery off the Atlantic seas coast, where the advice provided by the scientists was overruled by bureaucrats too closely plugged in to the political agenda. The short term pain of prudently reduced catch quotas became instead the long-term pain of the total ban on fishing and the destruction of the fishery.

This thin volume is one of the books Turner was working on last winter while staying at Berton which House, Turner acknowledges in his notes as "incomparable ... for providing a comfortable and endlessly fascinating retreat for the writing of a portion of this book."

The ODD Gallery hosts "Unearthly, Uprising"

"Revenant"

Story & photos by Dan Davidson

Throughout the month of October the ODD Gallery was dominated by four large canvases by Montreal based artist Marigold Santos. The two smaller works were six feet (1.8 metres) square, while the others were considerably larger.

Such imposing sizes demanded the viewer's attention and somehow made the room seem smaller.

"Liminal" showed blackened shards and shreds of some sort of constructs spiraling down into crater or vortex in the ground.

metres) square, while the others were considerably larger. Were these the remains of what appeared to be an assortment of kites set against a cloudy blue sky in "Flight"?

Was there a connection with the spooky, somewhat Escherlike hands that seemed to be grappling with each other in the silver/black clouds (or was it water?) of "Hoax"?

The last of the four items was "Revenant", a bleached face with the mouth area removed to reveal the teeth, and dressed from the shoulders in some sort of red floral/white lace garment.

Santos' artist's statement offers no clear explanation for any of these images.

"In most recent works, the fragmented and multiple self is investigated through a hybridization of Filipino and Western folklore, pop culture of the 80s and 90s, geological processes, weather systems, North American landscapes ...

"(These) coincide with references to childhood games that attempt to connect and communicate with the supernatural to bring what is not of the home, into what is the home – suggesting boundaries crossed in favor of testing limits and gauging what to fear and believe, and how to make sense of the unknowable.

"Narratives of past and present; in their re-telling and reconfiguration, transform into personal myth whose imagery functions in the fantastical and otherworldly, unfixed, plural, and boundless."

In an interesting essay on the program brochure, Elaine Cordon contrasts Santos' work with that of on Margaret Atwood, in particular her novel Cats Eye, in which Elaine Risley is "a protagonist coming to terms with the relationship between the social and physical landscape."

The curtain rings down on this exhibit on November 1, but a trip to Santos' website (http://www.marigoldsantos.com) will reveal some of the other ways in which this artist explores unusual themes.

City Council seeks inquiry into Mayor's actions

by Brent Morrison

By a vote of four to one Dawson City Councillors passed a resolu- read, "Council requests a full public further involvement in the project of tion on October 21 asking for a public inquiry, "Into the events surrounding the installation of the new sewer system on Front Street between Duke and York". Mayor Peter Jenkins voted against the reso-

The requested inquiry centres around the installation of new sewer lines to Dawson First Nation commercial properties in that block.

New manholes and sewer lines were installed along Front Street during the first week of October. The work, including resurfacing and grading of the street was completed on October 8.

According to Councillor Tim area on October 10 under an ultimatum from the Mayor.

The First Nation buildings were disconnected from the new lines and reconnected to the old ones, a process which apparently included severe leaking and compromised the system.

On October 19, Councillor Glen Everitt went to the City's manager Carol Murray and requested an addition to the October 21 Council Meeting. The item "Water and Sewer replacement project, reference to be given to Block D" was added to the agenda.

Also on October 21, allegedly under the direction of the Mayor again, work began to reconnect the buildings back to the new lines.

According to conversations Gerberding had with an on-site Shiltec's employee, the lines had leaked continuously since being reconnected to the old system. This was considered not only an environmental hazard (raw sewage apparently being one of the things leaking) but a hazard to the system. The leakage had the "potential" of washing out the footings which the sewer lines rested on.

Council's main concerns are the authority used in directing the actions, and the costs involved

Councillors were not consulted about the actions taking place and feel the mayor, "Exceeded his authority on numerous occasions". The costs involved and the threat to the sewer lines are also a concern.

The resolution passed by council inquiry into the events surrounding all individuals involved in the inthe installation of the new sewer system on Front St. between Duke and York, and the connecting, disconnecting, and subsequent reconnection of the Dawson First Nation commercial properties to the new system. Council requests YTG Municipal Services Department to coordinate the inquiry, and to obtain, among other things, full reports from Norm Carlson, Dawson Superintendent of Public works, Ken Brierly, Shiltec project engineer, and See related stories Mike Church, project contractor. pages 2 and 3

Council requests that all decisions regarding the employment and/or quiry be referred to Council for determination."

The City is owed more than $300,000 for Grant in Lieu, Frontage, Water and Sewer charges for the properties.

The Department of Indian and Northern Affairs and Dawson First Nation each claim the other should pay the bill, which has resulted in the bill not being paid for 10 years.

Mayor's supporters accuse Gerberding work resumed in the Gerberding and Everitt of conflict of interest

The November 4 Council meeting saw Councillors Tim Gerberding and Glen Everitt repeatedly accused of Conflict of Interest in the matter, and the City's position supported.

The Chamber's Past-President Denny Kobayashi told Council he supported cutting services to those who had not paid their bill, "Anyone never followed up. else would have had it done," he pointed out.

While Kobayashi indicated that it is, "Incumbent that the City do Chamber's November 3 meeting whatever is necessary to recover the costs," he was quick to add that, "Driving a wedge between the City and Dawson First Nation would be disastrous.'

Everitt argued that he was more concerned with the way the events were handled than the events themselves. "This was done without consultation," he stated, "I should Gerberding was absent from the have been apprised of what was

> Everitt indicated that three years ago Dawson First Nation Chief Steve Taylor approached the City to develop a Municipal Services Agreement but those negotiations were

Jenkins stated that such an agreement required more than just water and sewer, it also involved garbage lieved both Gerberding and Everitt pick-up, fire protection and other

The Sun obtained funding in late 2009 from the City of Dawson, YTG's Heritage Branch and the Community Development Fund to conserve and archive early issues and make them available once again in the public domain. This is a great resource for students, writers and historians, and also for prospective tourists with an interest in Dawson City's life. Each month, we are re-printing our front pages from 20 years ago (seen above) as a souvenir of our lively history. If you want to see page 2 and beyond, check out our website. ## Eulogy for Kenneth Cober Snider: Archdeacon of the Klondike

July 26, 1933 – October 29, 2013

by Grace Snider

My Dad, Kenneth Cober Snider, was the youngest of three children. He was born on July 26, 1933 on a farm in Etobicoke Township near Toronto, Ontario. Dad called it 'Thistletown'. He was a boy full of curiosity, wonder, and mischief. He had a natural enthusiasm and passion for life; much the 'boy' we saw in the 'grown-up' man. As a child, Dad played hockey with his friends using Sears catalogues as shin pads because his family couldn't afford to buy him proper equipment. In high school Dad received a proficiency award in Motor Mechanics. After high school he apprenticed at a garage and got his Ontario Motor Vehicle Mechanics License. These mechanical skills, plus numerous other practical and hands-on skills, would serve him well in his future in the north.

Dad's call to the Christian ministry began with a driving incident. He was travelling to his uncle's home when the brakes failed and he began careening helplessly down a steep and winding road. Frightened, and in a panic, he asked God to save his life. His prayer was answered. Soon after, a second calling came when he was moose hunting in Northern Ontario and was chased up a tree by an angry bull moose. Armed with only a shotgun and a .22 calibre rifle, he asked God to spare his life; his prayer was again answered. He responded to the Calling by seeking out the Christian Youth Group with which his sister, Shirley, was actively involved. Dad was intensely curious about their activities but didn't want to express that interest too keenly to his sister. He managed to participate in some of her youth group activities, and felt that this was where he belonged; soon he asked Jesus to come into his life.

In September 1954, in Toronto, Dad entered the Church Army. During his time at the Anglican Bible College, he shared a class with a woman named Aldene Gadsby. Little did they know they would meet again in later years. In May, two years later, he was commissioned as a Church Army Captain and he and another Captain went on a mission in the Diocese of Saskatoon.

In July 1956, Dad went north to Cambridge Bay in the Diocese of the Arctic, under Bishop Donald Marsh. He helped build the mission house. He travelled back and forth across the Distant Early Warning (DEW) line sites, which were being completed. At that time, people were living in igloos. Dad appreciated the opportunity to learn some of the 'Eskimo' language. He was a witness to the change of era - from people subsisting off the land to high tech DEW line sites.

In October 1956, Dad was transferred to Hay River to be in charge of two churches: St. Andrew's in the 'white town on the island at the mouth of the Hay River, and St. Peter's in the 'Indian village'. As God would have it, Mom, Aldene Gadsby, was in Hay River; in charge of the Nursing Station in the 'Indian village'. It was here that Mom and Dad formed their lifelong relationship.

During his time in Hay River, Dad learned a thing or two about walking on water. While the Hay River was frozen, he walked across it for evening prayer meetings, Bible study sessions, Sunday afternoon church services, and to spend time with Mom.

The ministerial work there was being taken over by an ordained person so in June, 1957, Dad was transferred to 'East 3', which would later become Inuvik.

One year later, in Aklavik, on July 5, 1958, 55 years ago, Mom and Dad somehow found time to be married. No Ontario family members were able to attend their celebration due to the complexity of travelling into Aklavik during that time. Mom tells of knowing only one person present at her wedding Dad - her groom. But Mom knew how to make a Cinderella connection with their wedding and while still nursing in Hav River, she foresaw the need to mail a special dress to the hospital in Aklavik. Whoever fit the dress would, she reasoned, become her Maid of Honour. Fortunately, a nursing associate fit the dress.

Dad, and the love of his life, Aldene, continued to minister in Inuvik for three more years. Their first son, John, was born in 1959, in Aklavik (Inuvik didn't yet have a hospital.) and, in 1960, Peter was born in Inuvik. The Sniders left the north in 1961, to stay with family in Ontario awaiting a new posting – and their third child, Hope.

Late in 1961, Dad was posted to a four-point parish in the Diocese of Saskatoon under Bishop Speer, and the family moved to Colonsay, Saskatchewan. In 1963, in Watrous, Saskatchewan, Grace joined the Snider clan.

After prayerful contemplation, Dad decided to study for ordination and in 1964 he entered Emmanuel & St. Chad's School of Theology in Saskatoon. While Dad was undertaking his theological training, Paul was born in 1964. The family grew to five children in a six year time span.

In 1967, our family drove from Saskatoon to Toronto starting a long-standing and continuing tradition of driving across 90% of this country in both directions. It was very important to my parents that our family stop and visit historical sites along the way to learn more about Canadian history. In Toronto, Dad was ordained Deacon in his home church, St. Andrew's, by Bishop Henry Marsh of the Diocese of Yukon. Charged with new responsibilities, we drove from Toronto to Elsa for a few months waiting for our new house in Dawson City to be completed. In Dawson we temporarily lived upstairs in the former Parish Hall until our new house was available.

That year, 1967, brought my family to the beginning of what would be our long-standing connection with Dawson City. Dad started his eleven-year ministry at St. Paul's and Clinton Creek, a mining community west of Dawson. In 1968, Dad was ordained priest by the newly elected Bishop, John Frame, in Dawson. Moose appeared in Dad's life again. Following his ordination, there was a picnic lunch on the edge of a glacier on the Dempster Highway, and, on the trip back, four moose crossed the road, teasing him on the edge of hunting season.

In the Fall of 1967, Dad initiated the first Kindergarten program here in Dawson. With the generosity and kindness of the volunteer teacher, Palma Berger, children were given the opportunity to have this enriching primary school year.

Child number six – Richard – arrived in 1972. Richard was named after a blind Gwitch'in Deacon, Richard Martin, and was baptized by him. Dad always considered Richard Martin to be a father figure.

During their time in Dawson, Dad began the 'St. Paul's Restoration Fund', as a means to restore the deteriorating church structure, originally built in 1902. He was also able to secure funding to purchase and restore Bishop Stringer's Residence.

While in Dawson City, Peter and John had the opportunity to expand Snider's Mowing Service and acquired a derelict house and cabin on the corner of Craig and 7th Street for $100. As they were too young, Dad had to underwrite their loan and be the land title holder. At one time, the house had been a saloon and a hotel, known as the 'Ferry Hotel and Saloon'. Part of Dad's attraction to this property may have been the risqué nature of the business which allegedly was conducted

Although the house itself was not livable, the cabin behind was habitable when Mom and Dad would later take on the monumental task of restoring the heritage house. The two used summer vacations, help from family and friends, and even paid help when funds permitted to create their retirement home where they reside.

The 1970s was a pivotal time for Dad on a more father/sons level as he watched John and Peter playing shinny hockey and decided that it would be good to have 'organized' hockey in Dawson. Not being one to shy away from an opportunity - or a challenge - he pulled together and coached a group of boys, teaching them skills through drills, spending long, cold hours at the unheated rink. and driving the team for games and tournaments in other communities. Dad even bought a large van, the seats for which outnumbered the needs of our family, but were well suited to the hockey team's needs.

Dad was made a Canon of the Diocese of Yukon in 1975.

The Sniders were transferred from Dawson City to Whitehorse and Christ Church Cathedral in 1978. Dad was later made Dean of this Cathedral by Bishop Ron Ferris.

Four years later, in 1982, Mom and Dad found themselves headed back to the Diocese of the Arctic in Inuvik, where they had the privilege to once again be ministering to long-time friends. As the rest of their children had already graduated from high school, Richard was our only sibling to live with them in Inuvik. Inuvialuit friends gave Dad the name 'Okalisuk' - talkative one. Not be outdone, Mom and Dad's dear friend, Charlotte Vehus, said that Dad also needed a Gwich'in name, 'Idiginjii', meaning 'talks lots'.

After six wonderful years in Inuvik, in July 1988, Mom and Dad were transferred back to Elsa, Yukon, under Bishop Ron Ferris. Dad was given the title 'Archdeacon of the Klondike' and the opportunity to spend even more hours of driving as he was in charge of Elsa, Mayo, and Pelly Crossing. To everyone's disappointment, Elsa's lead-zinc-silver mine closed abruptly right after Christmas. Mom and Dad moved to Mayo; first living in government housing and then in a house which Dad found for the Diocese to buy. Richard chose to live with his brothers and sisters in Whitehorse to complete his high school academic (and social) education. One Thanksgiving weekend while in Mayo, the entire Snider family gathered to have a garageworkshop-office-raising to add to the Rectory. At this time Dad's parishes included Mayo and Pelly Crossing: Carmacks was soon added. By now, only the drivers of the 'big grey dog' were spending more time on Canadian roads than Dad. Mom and Dad acquired funding to open the run the Western Arctic Visitors' Centre in Dawson. Dad was working in Mayo and Mom lived in Dawson during the summer months to work at the Centre.

In July 1998, after ten years ministering in Mayo, Keno, Elsa, Pelly Crossing, Stewart Crossing, Carmacks and all parts in between, Mom and Dad 'retired' and moved to the home in Dawson they had put

by Beverly Brazier, Whitehorse

We've all come from over the water; the question not whether, but when. Now me - I am new to the fire weed and gold and haven't a claim to "back then"

It's luck that I am here north of sixty, convergence of chance and intent. I wonder – is this what I'm made for? Is this how my life will be spent?

The colours my spirit inhabits, the spectrum that's home to my soul gives way for aurora, the way that they dance 'til blind, I'm convinced that I'm whole.

"Back then" is what many are seeking, when newly we land on this shore; unpacking our southern fried notions and dreams that still reek of the past we deplore.

The stream of our hopes fed by rivers that flow with the gold and the sun, and many would voice the illusion of choice: that we're free from the past, and I'm one.

Illusion's deceptive and daring. It's easy, up here, to succumb. It lurks and it hunkers down, biding its time in the voices that ask "where ya from?"

And that is the question explicit and that is the quest once you're here. Where IS it you're from, have you left it behind? Are you settled? A season? A year?

They say there's a voice and I've heard it and many will swear it is so. "I came here" they'll say, "for one season, not long and that was three decades ago"

The voice that compels may be silent, or a raven-like cluck, croak and caw. The hills, autumn-rusted, are loud in the way that they sing to the newcomers' awe.

> We've all come from over some water. We've carried packs over some trail. It's merely a question of chance and of time what dreams and what vision prevail.

Gold in the Friend of Mine

by Suzanne Roberts Grafton, ON

There's a banjo outside my window at 3:00 o'clock a.m., mixing with the sound of men gathering under the sun.

Light dances along the horizon, clearing slanted eyes as the northern muse strums its haunting tune. Grubby fingers gripping wide, chipping away at the permafrost, black spruce and pride.

To moil gold from the hearts of men, where dust and dirt collect. Shovel away the grit till peace and future collide. Walk the streets in disbelief at the richness kept inside. I'm going to moil the heart of gold in the friend of mine.

Play me that song the ancients wrote; tap your feet into the wilderness. Strike rich by bowing low; open wide the hearts of men who gather under the rising sun. The streets creak with the sound of luck found once again. Held in their hands, uplifted and unafraid.

Each part of the people I meet has portions of it all. Under frozen shells lies gold like a northern well. For there is a lucky sort that sees right through their sides, I want to be that lucky sort that finds the treasure kept inside.

To moil gold from the hearts of men, enter their withered souls, releasing the gem from inside.

Bring that smile up to the surface; gather their faces' with real pride.

As the sun rises upon the earth, the fingers of music fade. The banjo outside my window waits for this lucky sort to hold its neck again. For gold lies like a northern well in the friend of mine, I want to be the lucky sort who will play and see that smile glimmer again.

The Authors on Eighth annual writing contest asks contestants submit to work in the style of one of four writers: Jack London, Robert Service, Pierre Berton or Dick North. It can be prose, fiction, non-fiction or poetry. This year the subject was luck.

Dawson City's Leash-Free Dog Park

Dawson City, like all major cities and towns in Canada, has a leash law. I wonder, firstly, is that a good or bad thing for Dawson City and all Dawsonites—especially our four-footed friends?

Essentially, a leash law is a good thing for everyone. It matters not if your dog is friendly to everyone, including other dogs, or if you have a vicious dog, or a dog which is somewhere between the to extremes. The idea of a leash law is so the owners have a means to control their four-footed friends.

Typically, no leash equals no control, but this is not true 100 percent of the time. Dog owners eventually requested a "leash-free zone" for their animals to get out and have a place to run and exercise. As a result, the Dawson City leash-free Dog Park was commissioned, and constructed below the slide at the North End of the City.

This is an ideal location for such a park, but after viewing the completed Dog Park, I am disappointed and appalled by it.

There is simply not enough room for two dogs to exercise and run about, never mind trying to get twenty or thirty dogs in there—it would be utter chaos!

The Dog Park is just too small—it is possibly equal to the size of a good back yard at some of the homes around here. In fact, it is likely smaller than most back yards.

This Dog Park is an insult to loyal dog owners, who like to ensure that their dogs get good, healthy exercise and lots of running about. These dog owners will not likely utilize this insulting place. The only dogs that would benefit from this dog park would be the ones that are often called "ankle biters". These include all of the small breeds of dogs, as this park will be adequate for only small dogs to exercise.

There are no places for larger dogs to play Frisbee or fetch, this dog park simply is not of adequate size. The dog owners who wish their dog(s) to get proper, adequate exercise will continue to utilize the methods they have used for years. The numerous trails along the hillsides, running and playing beside the river, utilize places just across the bridge where their dogs can run freely, play games with their owners, and continue to be healthy and fit.

The Dawson City Dog Park is a joke! Unless it can be made at least three times larger than it already is, incorporate a doggy playground, (i.e. climbing blocks, see-saw, tubing for dogs to crawl through), items used in professionally training dogs for police, military and even movie performances. Then, we might just have a Dog Park to be proud of. Until that occurs, I, for one, will continue using the trails, and riverside to walk and play with my dogs.

It was not until recently, that I discovered that I was not alone in my feelings toward the Dog Park. Recently, I had the opportunity to talk with a few different people, each of whom brought up the subject of the Dog Park and their concerns. All of these people are aware that I also have dogs, and I am able to encounter them (the people) on almost a daily basis, through the course of my work. My work enables me to spend time with numerous residents daily, most of whom are dog owners, and several of them at least attempted to use this dog park, leaving with a fractured spirit, and not very exercised dogs. All of these dog owners have stated that they will no longer be using the local Dog Park, as they feel insulted by its nominal size, lack of space and freedom, and the absence of any "playground equipment" for their extended family—the dogs.

I would suggest a few things to improve this Dog Park, besides those suggestions listed above. Obtain a licensed Dog Trainer, who can teach dogs not only in obedience training, but in all higher levels of Dog training, including home protection, police dog training, to name a few. The Dog Trainer should be obtained by the city, and paid for their training services by the dog owners. Dog owners should be encouraged to have their dogs successfully complete any of the training courses by a discount on their licensing. Perhaps, should a dog successfully complete numerous training courses, upon the owner showing certification of such successful completions, that one-year licensing should be provided free.

But as always . . . this is just my opinion.

Debbie Algotsson caught this interesting shot of migrating birds earlier in the fall. It is unusual in that there seem to be two different species travelling together, the darker feathered birds above and the white ones lower down. Photo by Debbie Algotsson
