Wastewater Plant turnover extended by another fortnight

The failure of the new wastewater treatment plant to meet water licence requirements in December means that the date that the town will have to take over the plant has been extended by another two weeks to March 16, at the earliest.

The plant has not met the lines. required standard since it went online over 16 months

City manager Jeff Renaud told council on February 11 that the spilling incident at the plant late in January is still under investigation and no final decision has been reached as to what impact that will have of future dead-

In the meantime the plant has still not been cleared by Corix to accept educted effluent from households in the catchment area that are not hooked up to the town's sewer and water system.

The town is arguing that the plant is not fully functional until that requirement has been met.

Uffish Thoughts: Some modest proposals for Senate reform

By Dan Davidson

If you give the matter more than a knee jerk's response time worth of thought you must be forced to concede that there is little to be gained by spending much energy on debates about abolishing the Senate.

The simple truth is that the amending formula for our patriated constitution makes it certain that nearly every suggestion that has been made would never make it through the process. There are just too many players with too many agendas for it to be easy or even possible.

You doubt me? Cast your mind back to (or look up) the Meech Lake and Charlottetown Accord experiences. They were long debates, carried out in good faith across the nation, and they failed.

Here in the Yukon the debate is even more pointless. It's the provinces that get to call the shots on this issue. We don't even have a seat at that table.

That said, it was the NDP's annoyance when the Yukon Party government refused to debate the issue of Senate abolition that started me making notes for this essay many weeks ago. Little did I know then that Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau was peeking over my shoulder and would announce that he was implementing one of my conclusions before I could finish the piece.

Many commentators beside myself have mentioned the constitutional impossibility of actually abolishing the Senate. There are, however, some things that could be done to change how it works.

The Conservative Party of Canada has toyed with the idea of an elected Senate and one province, Alberta, has gone so far as to have elections for its posts.

I'm not sure that an elected Senate would be a good idea. I like the notion of "sober second thought", though admittedly we haven't seen a lot of it recently. I don't like the idea of a hung Parliament similar to what we have been seeing lately in our neighbour to the south.

Elections would increase the power of the Senate to the point where it could lead to that. I'm happy if the Red Chamber just makes everyone take a second or third look at dicey legislation. Quite often more time for clear thinking is all a problem needs.

As it stands right now, of course, we don't have any real impediments to bad legislation and omnibus bills slip by the Senate just as slickly as oil through a pipeline.

Worrying about Senate elections went out the window as far as the Conservative party was concerned when Mr. Harper nearly lost his job to a (perfectly legal and constitutionally appropriate) coalition while he was still a minority Prime Minister. He had not actually appointed any senators up to that point, and had said he never would, but he's been busy since, and at least three of those 2008-09 appointments showed a distinct lack of forethought on his part.

The constitution says that the PM gets to appoint Senators, but what if he (or she) agreed (because a lot of our governance is still unwritten) to appoint only those persons who were recommended to them by the provinces and territories? That is, essentially, something that has been done in the case of Alberta.

Just how the regions would pick people is still taking shape in my mind, but I would like to see it be a selection made by a non-partisan group of citizens from that area looking at a pool of candidates noted for their service to the community at large rather than to a political party. Bagmen and failed candidates for office need not apply, but municipal leaders who have served with distinction would be acceptable.

This brings me to the point that Mr. Trudeau made so forcefully on January 29. While there is nothing to prevent such persons from belonging to political parties if they so chose, when they are in the Senate they should sit as Independents, owning no allegiance to party whips from the House of Commons or, as has so often been demonstrated to be the case over the last year, the Prime Minister's Office.

In my view, Senators should represent the welfare of their regions, and not that of the parties. Members of Parliament ought to have that as their uppermost duty but, let's face it, they don't. Even the best of them eventually have to bow to whipped votes and some happily roll over and wait for their tummies to be tickled.

Mr. Harper has already managed to get his new appointees to agree to term limits rather than the old "to death do they depart" rule, thus proving that some things can be done without heading down the well trod Constitutional Laneway.

Believe it not, I created this particular file in notes to myself on my iPhone (paragaphs 1 through 4) while sitting at a meeting of Dawson's town council last December. It's been growing paragraph by paragraph ever since.

I thought I'd better finish it this week before anyone else decides to make an unexpected announcement.

Tom Byrne reaches his 90th milestone

By Dan Davidson

Tom Byrne, known for nearly 30 years as the voice of Robert Service at the little cabin on 8th Avenue, and later on Front Street and at the Westmark Hotel, celebrated his 90th birthday on January 10 in Robert Creek, B.C. on the Sunshine Coast, north of Vancouver.

Born in Dublin, Ireland, Byrne came to Canada with his family in 1956 and moved North in the early 1970s when he was hired to work for the NWT's Housing corporation in Inuvik. There is some traffic between there and Dawson City, and Tom, who had started an amateur theatre troop in his new home, brought the group to the Klondike's Break-up Drama Festival in 1979.

While in town he recited a bit of Robert Service and was asked if he would consider reciting regularly at the cabin during the summer seasons. "The Robert Service Show", as it became known, ran at the cabin for the next 28 years, with one season's absence to stage it in Vancouver during Expo 86.

Byrne acquired a cabin in the North End of town and spent his summers and parts of some winters here for many years. In the off-season it became his stock in trade to take the words of his favorite poet on tour to schools all over the lower mainland.

During his time in Dawson his performance became nearly as well known as the poet he had set out to honour, and spread through the creation of audio and videotapes. He became a national figure of sorts, and was featured on Wayne Rostad's "On the Road Again" in 1998.

In 1999 he severed his relationship with Parks Canada over a contract dispute and moved his show, first to a storefront on Front Street and later, by request, into the Westmark Hotel. The initial move made the national news and was featured as an article in the monthly Saturday Night magazine.

By 2004 the breech had healed and Byrne was presented with a memorial Jim Robb print of the cabin by Parks Canada in a ceremony at the place where he had held forth for so many years.

His daughter, Christine Byrne, who has been living with him for the last three years, says that Tom is in fair health for a man his age. A life-long asthmatic, he has lung problems caused by his 85 years of battling for proper breath, but he takes a long walk every day.

There were two birthday celebrations, one on the $10^{\rm th}$ and another the next weekend. There are about forty people in Byrne's extended family, including the recent addition of a greatgranddaughter a week or so prior to his own birthday.

Though he hasn't done a regular show for about five years now Byrne still recites Service at the drop of a hat and his daughter says he still has the verses by heart.

Christine Byrne says that she and her dad would like to plan a trip to Dawson this coming summer, to touch bases with old haunts and friends and perhaps to do something about selling Byrne's cabin, which has been unoccupied for a number of years now.

Sandy Silver becomes Liberal leader

Press release

Whitehorse - Sandy Silver is the leader of the Yukon Liberal Party.

"I want to congratulate Sandy," said Devin Bailey, Party president. "He has represented his constituents and the Liberal Party well since his election in October, 2011. Now, as the Liberal leader, he's going to expand his efforts, representing all Yukoners in the lead up to the next election. And, of course, beyond it."

With Liberals throughout the territory united, Silver will enter the legislative session with a fresh mandate.

"Sandy Silver is focused. The party is focused. And the issues facing the territory are real and many," said Bailey. "The present government is pandering to its narrow base and has forgotten its obligation to represent the interest of all Yukoners.

"Aboriginal leaders, conservationists, miners, teachers, students, doctors, francophones, contractors and many others have been betrayed by the divisive, wasteful and litigious Pasloski crew.

"Liberals, united behind Sandy Silver, will provide a solid, broad-based alternative for all Yukon citizens."

The Klondike MLA will formally accept the leadership with a stump speech at the Gold Rush Inn on March 1. The event starts at 7 p.m. and will be open to the public. Additional information will be provided on the Party's website at www. ylp.ca.

Silver said he is honoured to be Liberal leader, but noted his authority comes from the people who placed their trust in him, not from the title.

He plans to continue engaging Yukoners, listening to their priorities and acting on their behalf.

"I have my thoughts on where to take the territory, as do my Liberal colleagues," said Silver. "But politics is about leading people where they want to go, it isn't about telling people where to go - we've seen too much of that lately.

"I want to serve all Yukoners, not just a narrow segment that bought admission. This 'government of the few serving the needs of the fewest' must end. And we're the only party that can actually do it."

"So listening to Yukoners will be my focus for the next year. It will guide my new team going into the next election, and will help us set priorities once we form government a government Yukon people can be proud of, will because they involved in it," said Silver.

Silver received the highest numbers of votes of any candidate in the 2011 general election.

Dawson Regional Draft Final Report intended to be out at the end of April

Story & photos by Dan Davidson

Between 50 and 60 people turned out to view and discuss the Dawson Regional Land Use Plan during sessions that ran from mid-morning to early evening on February 12. Attendance was heaviest during the two forum style sessions at noon and at 5 o'clock, but there was a trickle of people in to look at the displays and ask short one member after questions about the various charts during the day.

Acting Senior Planner Monica Krieger pronounced herself pleased with the turnout and the tone of the meetings.

The set up was rather a mixture of an open house and forum. Chart sized versions of pages from the book were on display at the rear of the Yukon Order of Pioneers Hall, while the sit-down portion of the meeting, including slide shows and discussion, took place at the other end.

The formal presentations, led by Krieger and Planning Technician Kathy Burden, took the audience on a walk through the main sections of the 85 page report "See Yourself in the Dawson Regional Land Use Plan".

This detailed document Protected Area. laid out the timeline, showing what part of the planning process have taken place and asking people to make comments on the presentation between February 3 and March 2.

It was originally intended that the plan, which began development in 2010 with the appointment of the commission members, would have been finished next month, but a draft final pick one" kind of offering. report is now expected on It is not anticipated that April 30, with reviews of that extending out to June 30.

A final recommended plan is proposed to be released on September 19, with the closure of the office taking place at the end of that month.

Just how all this will be accomplished in the absence of a Senior Planner, the position having been left vacant when Jeff Hamm resigned in November 2013, is uncertain. The commission has decided not to replace him on the theory that it would take too long to bring someone else up to speed, but surely hiring consultants to assist in preparing the final document will have that same problem.

The commission remains the death of Bill Bowie late last summer. Bowie was the second of its members to pass away during the process. Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Heritage Manager Debbie Nagano was appointed to replace Steve Taylor, joining chair Scott Casselman, Ellis, Roger Chester Kelly and Will Fellers. A replacement for Bowie has yet to be announced but is said to be imminent.

The meat of the document is to be found in the Land use Designation System Table on page 27 and on through page 43. It defines the three Integrated Management Areas (IMA Zones II, III and IV) and the remaining four designations: Yukon Corridor, River Traditional Economy Area, Conservation Area and Five plan alternatives (Maps A to E) have been generated, with these seven designations applied to different clusters of the 29 regions found within the area. The proposals do not include prescriptions for either Tombstone Park or the City of Dawson.

It should also understood that this is not a "here are five alternatives, any one of these plans will necessarily be the shape of the final recommended plan when it is produced.

Their purpose is to demonstrate the impact of any particular alternative when compared to all the others. Twenty performance measures are shown on a chart that goes with each of the maps. These list various types of mineral, cultural, historical environmental measures and indicate whether they perform better, worse or the same when compared with the selection for that particular set of choices.

People at the 5 o'clock meeting had a few questions environmental about details, answers to most of which cannot be found in this document but rather in the 331 page Resource Assessment Report, which was released last October Commission members Scott Casselman, Chester Kelly, Debbie Nagano and Will Fellers.

2013 and can be downloaded from the website at http:// dawson.planyukon.ca.

Nacho Nyäk Dun elder Jimmy Johnny spoke of abusive exploration and mining practices he has witnessed in his region, related to drilling near wild animal mineral licks and leaving fuel barrels on Bonnet Plume Lake. He was concerned that such things ought not to happen in the Dawson Region.

Frank Patterson stated plainly that he had no faith either the territorial federal governments follow through with what he considered to be safe land use planning decisions. Echoing the title of the landmark land claims document, he said that First Nations had to be "fighting today for our children tomorrow".

He added, "We're not against mining it's our economy. But there are concerns about trapping and about water."

Tim Gerberding, Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in's Director of Implementation for Land Claims wanted to know if the commission was considering withdrawing the Yukon River Corridor from development activity.

Scott Casselman said it was not being considered at this time due to the many overlapping uses along the river, but Debbie Nagano added that the commission should not rule out the possibility.

YWEC travellers got a lot of value from their trip

Story by Dan Davidson Photos by Liz Woods

The idea of having Grade 12 students at Robert Service School take a trip to explore educational options Outside is not a new one, but the program had lain dormant for several years before the current crop of girls made the decision, back in October 2011, to revive it.

As the program usually seems to involve girls, it is known as Young Women Exploring Careers, or YWEC. It's not that the boys in the class could not participate, but the present group decided that the 10 day trip would be too big an interruption of the welding course they were planning to take, so it was an all female group once again.

This year's group was made up of Christina McIntyre, Jelene Panaligan, Natalja Blanchard, and Victoria Holmes. They were accompanied by their high school science teacher, Ms. Liz Woods.

With some years of experience at leading these trips, the students were unanimous that Ms Woods was great at organizing them, getting the best rates, booking hotels and making sure they raised the money they needed.

In a draft report on the project, the group put forward the following goals:

- to encourage, assist, and support young women from Dawson City to pursue postsecondary school education;
- to increase employment and educational opportunities for these young women;

- to promote the development of professional and technical women for potential employment in the Yukon;
- to build partnerships among these young women and adult mentors;
- to work on the life skills required to live and study in a major centre;
- to promote self-esteem and a positive self-image among these young women by involving them in the organization of the project.

Two years worth of planning fund raising saw them on a preexcursion trip to Yukon College in Whitehorse in November and then off to the BC lower mainland on January 5.

For recent immigrant Jelene Panaligan the trip was an eye opener to the differences between Canadian systems and those in the Philippines.

"It's really helped me to have an idea of what it's like to be in a college or university in Canada. I think I will be ready."

For Christina McIntyre the trip was a revelation.

"It kind of changed my life plan. I didn't originally plan to go to university right out of high school. I was going to take a year off and travel. The university tour showed me that it's better not to wait ... So now I've applied to two universities."

Victoria Holmes has felt university bound since the age when she was aware they existed and has always wanted to go to UBC. Her experience has been that adults seem to assume that students will know what to do and what programs to follow to achieve their goals. She said that hasn't been the case for her.

"(On this trip) it was explained to us where we had to go and what to do, not just at the university we visited, but to whatever university."

Any trip like this has a social aspect as well. Three of the four girls have been together since daycare years and are well aware that at the end of this school year they might not see each other again for a while.

"I'm really glad that I got to spend two weeks with my best friends in Vancouver as a last memory trip," said Torie Holmes, "because there are just three months left that we're going to be able to spend every day together. After we graduate I'm not going to see them every single day and that's kind of sad."

Among the surprises of the YWEC experience was their discovery that it was worth looking at Yukon College for academic courses. They had thought of it as being mainly a trade school.

Other schools on the trip included the University of British Columbia, Simon Fraser University, a day working with the automotive cohort at the British Columbia Institute of Technology, a studio day with the make-up artistry cohort at Blanche MacDonald Centre, and the smaller campuses and classes at University of Victoria and Vancouver Island Univer-

At each school the group got a complete tour of the campus and facilities, including residences. In their group report they note, "We met with the admissions/recruiting team to find out about their programs, admission requirements, application process, and student support. We were privileged to be to audit a class at each school in the area of study that was of interest to us."

In Whitehorse they also had a session with the people in Student Financial Aid.

They are producing a CD photo album and DVD in order to share their experience and it will be on display during the Dawson City Career Fair.

Brian Wilmshurst last musher to finish Yukon Quest

Adapted from CBC News Posted: Feb 14, 2014 6:36 PM

Dawson City musher Brian Wilmshurst was the last musher to cross the finish line in the 2014 Yukon Quest, late Friday afternoon, February 14.

Wilmshurst won't have the longest race time, however. Jerry Joinsen, who came in about half an hour before Wilmshurst, was assessed an eight-hour penalty to his final time after he brought in a new sled to replace a damaged one, earlier in the race. Joinsen takes the Red Lantern Award.

This year's Quest was won on Monday, February 10 by last year's champion, Allen Moore. This year the finish line was moved to Takhini Hot Springs, 30 kilometres north of Whitehorse, due to poor trail conditions heading into the traditional finish line in Whitehorse. Likewise, the starting line in Fairbanks had to be moved from the traditional Chena River spot to Second Avenue due to the possible danger of having spectators fall through the ice.

Seven mushers were withdrawn or scratched from this year's Quest. Wilmshurst was the only Yukoner remaining in the race after Jean-Denis Britten, from Dawson City, and Normand Casavant, from Whitehorse, scratched on the second day.

A cool evening with Karyn Ellis

Karyn Elis just happened to pick the night that Dawson City was the coldest inhabited place on the planet to hold a house concert, but close to two dozen people turned out anyway, and the evening was a delight.

Ellis did not manage to get here without a few problems. After a school concert in Pelly Crossing it turned out that the block heater in her rental car was not working and she was stranded there for a bit while various heroic and unconventional (to her) methods were employed to get her on her way to Mayo.

She said she had never seen space heaters used quite that way before. In her experience they were rigged to turn themselves off when you tipped them over backwards.

The fun of part of waiting was that two dog teams from the Yukon Quest arrived while she was waiting and she got to see that unique sight, quite different than life in downtown Toronto, or even from the two years she spent in central British Columbia. She was tempted to ask for a ride, but settled for patting a dog.

Dawson was the next to last stop on her tour, which included concerts in Whitehorse, Marsh Lake, Atlin, Mary Lake, Pelly Crossing, Mayo and Old Crow, between February 2 and 13. A couple of planned dates had to be cancelled while she dealt with a nasty cold and one host had to cancel for similar reasons.

While she was pretty sure this was the coldest place she had ever been, that didn't stop her, bundled in many layers and without a parka, from taking a walk after she got here. She revelled in the sensation of feeling her nose hairs freeze, she said.

Ellis writes about relationships, and most of her songs seem to be about things crashing and burning. Both of her sets were full of angst and disappointment, which instantly gained her a 12-16 female fandom when one of her songs, "Be My Girl", was picked for soundtrack material on De-Grassi, the Next Generation.

Despite the melancholy, Ellis, a bit of a pixie, is a delightful performer, dancing with her guitar in kinetic appreciation of her own rhythms. Her repertoire was full of sad songs that did not leave you feeling sad, delivered with a voice that had lots of power in both lower and higher ranges. One was left with the feeling that she was holding back, and that proved to be true when she really wanted to belt out a line.

Ellis also encourages audience participation, and coaxed the audience into singing along on three or four of her tunes, some with words and some with simple vocal effects.

Ellis travelled with her two latest CDs to sell. Both of these were crowdfunded and she says that these days she wouldn't record any other way. More than a Hero, her latest, had 125 supporters. She has travelled extensively over the last few years and will heading off to Europe for a tour in March and April.

She was delighted to discover that Air North's schedule meant that she would have a free Saturday in the Klondike after returning from Old Crow.

Air North's new flight route applauded by tourism industry

Press release

(February 6) - The Tourism Industry Association of the Yukon (TIA Yukon) is applauding Air North, Yukon's Airline on the launch of its Whitehorse-Yellowknife-Ottawa route this week.

"The effort by Air North to open a gateway in eastern Canada shows the kind of leadership and innovation that the Yukon's tourism industry is known for" says Neil Hartling, Chair of TIA Yukon. "The need to open this new route also shows just how strong the domestic market is for Yukon visitation."

To kick off its inaugural flight this week, Air North held a number of receptions and meetings in Ottawa to promote the Yukon to more organizations in the National Capital Region.

"An eastern gateway will provide a huge incentive for attracting MICE travel (meetings, incentives conference and exhibition), especially for government and national organizations based in the Ottawa area," says Blake Rogers, TIA Yukon's Executive Director, who attended the kick off events in Ottawa this week. "Ottawa is a city with a lot of travel potential for the Yukon and we expect to see this bold move pay off this year."

The return of direct air service between the two territorial capitals will save travelers a considerable amount of time. Previously, flights between Whitehorse and Yellowknife offered by other airlines would involve lengthy stopovers and an indirect route, often taking more than six hours to reach the destination. Air North's new direct flight will take less than two hours.

TIA Yukon hopes its efforts to advocate for a national television campaign to promote the Yukon will help boost Air North's efforts in Ontario as well.

"We hope that the government will approve the tourism industry's recent request for a T.V. marketing campaign, as this will make the Canadian public more aware of what the Yukon has to offer and start thinking about traveling to the territory", says Hartling. "As the only airline connecting Whitehorse and Yellow-knife to Ottawa, increasing awareness of the Yukon in domestic markets would encourage more Canadians to fly Air North."

Yukon family provides generous donation to Peel legal case

Whitehorse (February 6) – A Yukon family has given the fund for the Peel Watershed legal case a huge boost. This case was filed against the Yukon Government by the First Nation of Na Cho Nyak Dun, Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, Canadian Parks and Wilderness Society (CPAWS) Yukon Chapter, and the Yukon Conservation Society on January 27th.

Mike Martin and his three children Jasper, Foreste and Kestrel have made a $5300 donation to support the case.

"When I had children, I made a vow to myself that I would always strive to do what is best for them," Martin explains. "There is a direct correlation between the health of our environment and the health of my children...all of our children." He adds, "I believe that many moral and social violations have been committed against the people of the Yukon which threaten the future health of my children. So with the support of my family I am doing what I can for what I believe very strongly in. How could I not act? If I sit back and do nothing for what I so strongly believe in then I feel like I am committing an intergenerational injustice to my children...all our children."

Jasper Martin, Mike's son, is a fourth year Natural Science major at the University of Calgary. He says, "I feel like a donation to this campaign is necessary for anyone who can afford a few extra dollars. Obviously people don't need to give as much as we did, but even if you can only give a few dollars it will make a difference – as clichéd as it sounds, every little bit helps." He adds, "I really feel this legal case is important, I'm studying environmental science in school right now and I strongly believe that we need to buy some time for policy to catch up to science - we can't keep drawing exponentially on the environment in the way the current Yukon Government business model suggests."

Mike Martin has repeatedly tried to contact the Premier to voice about his concerns regarding the Peel Land Use Plan. "I basically felt very deceived by our current government as to the way things went down with regards to the Peel Watershed Plan," he says, "I have called a few times and have gone to the Government building twice now to schedule a time to meet with the Premier to get his side of the story regarding the issue. I have been waiting nine days and I have received nothing from him, his assistant, or his secretary. Not even a message to say that he is too busy. I feel his silence speaks volumes of his character and intentions."

Gill Cracknell, Executive Director of CPAWS-Yukon, on behalf of all the parties involved in the legal case, wishes to offer heartfelt thanks to the Martin family. "We find the Martin family's generous donation inspiring," says Cracknell, "It reinforces for us how much the public is behind us in this action."

Dawsonites consider what Tr'ondëk-Klondike means to them

What does the notion of Tr'ondëk-Klondike mean to you?

That was the question posed during the February 6 evening assembled by the committee formed to discuss promoting World Heritage Status for the region.

The Odd Fellows Hall was host to nine slide/talk presentations and about an hour of light jazz stylings.

Barnacle Bob Hilliard on the Bechstein Piano and Jesse Cooke on drums provided the music during the opening half hour of the evening and were the soundtrack for singers Sandra Hall, Tiss Clark and Lue Maxwell during the half-time intermission.

The purpose of the evening was spelled out by co-hosts Paula Hassard, the World Heritage Project Manager for the Tr'ondëk

Lulu Keating

Paula Hassard and Trina Buhler organized this TED Talk style evening.

Hwëch'in, and Trina Buhler, a member of the Outstanding Universal Value Working Group subcommittee.

Hassard described the evening as a Dawson-style TED Talk.

"This is to increase awareness about the World Heritage Project. The purpose (of this project) is to explore what UNESCO designation might mean for the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in and for Dawson. (The discussion) is still in progress, but it's looking pretty positive so far."

Aside from potential economic benefits, Hassard felt that one of the major benefits would be bringing "recognition" and respect for the shared story that we have here in a living community today and tell that to the world at an international level."

To qualify a case must be made that the region has something called "outstanding universal value". In order to encourage the local discussion along these lines, Hassard and Buhler organized this evening to often the give some locals a chance on paper to talk about what they the act think makes the Klondike history. Karen

With one exception the presenters had twenty slides to show with time limit of twenty second per slide to talk, making each presentation a bit over six and a half minutes.

Kylie Van Every and Kim Joseph gave a shortened version of the talks they give at the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre. They called it "Tr'ondëk Means the River".

Filmmaker Lulu Keating spoke of "A Newcomer's Gradual Awareness", to some extent the story she uses to tell people in her home province of Nova Scotia why she has chosen to settle here and continue her career from this base.

Jen Laliberté, a sometime instructor at the Yukon School of Visual Arts and a new mom, talked about "Maps. Borders and Boundaries" and how often the things that are on paper fail to deal with the actual terrain and history.

Karen MacKay, who splits her life between Dawson winters and Ottawa summers, spoke about her forays "Off the Beaten Path: Trails and Cabins" in a humorous dissertation on the options open to house hunters here.

Peggy Kormendy and Debbie Nagano spoke as a mother-daughter pair. "A Peek at Our Trapping

Molly MacDonald

Life with Q&A" had them talking about life out in the bush as they have known it over several generations. Theirs was the longest piece of the evening.

After the intermission Molly MacDonald, who worked until last summer at the Dawson City Museum, spoke about "A View from Outside" and all the ways the Klondike

Veronica Verkley, YSOVA instructor, artist and filmmaker, provided a comical look at somewhat the same subject, but from a different angle.

Historian David Neufeld wrapped up the presentations with his look at "A Century of Conversation between Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in and locals", during which he outlined some of the narratives that have been used to explain the region and hinted at the one that has been developing in more recent years.

There were about 50 people at the meeting and, unlike many gatherings, this one had a mix of TH and other locals.

Government and industry consider improving broadband

Press release

Whitehorse (February 12) — Members of the Northern Communications and Information Systems Working Group and the telecommunications industry are convening in Whitehorse this week to discuss ways to improve connectivity in the North.

"Without access to fast, reliable and affordable broadband, northern businesses and residents will miss out on the full potential of telecommunications and information technologies," Minister of Economic Development Currie Dixon said. "The Government of Yukon is pleased to host this forum to continue the work already underway on behalf of a better-connected North."

In 2010, the Northern Communications and Information Systems Working Group was formed with the mandate to create more robust communications capabilities. It includes representatives from the three territorial governments, Industry Canada, Department of National Defense/Joint Task Force North, CanNor, and Public Safety Canada.

In January the working group released Northern Connectivity: Ensuring Quality Communications. The report defines a minimum standard for broadband connectivity, outlines the socio-economic benefits of achieving that standard, and compares implementation scenarios.

The report's development was led by Yukon's new Technology and Telecommunications Development Directorate, which was formed in 2013 to explore options for improving Yukon's telecommunications environment.

During the two-day forum, working group and private sector delegates will discuss the report's findings, as well as other communications and regulatory developments in the three northern territories. Learn more at northernconnectivity.ca.

Date: February 21, 2014 to March 7, 2014; Time: Between 12:22 and 1:00 PM Mountain Standard Time; Services Affected: Satellite related services

Situation: Please note that Northwestel satellite facilities will be experiencing sun related service degradations as a result of the alignment of the sun with the telecommunications satellite and our ground stations.

Sun transit is a natural phenomenon that occurs twice a year, when the sun crosses the earth's equatorial plane during the spring and fall equinoxes.

This year's spring equinox disruptions are expected to occur in the North between February 21st and March 7th when the satellite will pass directly between the satellite dish on earth and the sun. Radio frequency noise from the sun is stronger than the desired signal from the satellite resulting in a brief service interruption.

Customers may experience noise or service degradation between 12:22 and 1:00 P.M. MST during these days.

Myth and Medium to be held next week

The 2014 edition of the biannual Myth and Medium symposium will take place between February 24 and 28 this year, with a focus on the arts.

The early bird talk on the 24th will feature the Royal Ontario Museum's Ken Lister speaking about the work of 19th century artist Paul Kane, who specialized in paintings said to represent Native Canadian culture. The evening will continue that theme with presentations by Ukjese Van Kampen, Mathew Nuqingaq and Dennis Shorty.

Later in the week this trio will host a day and a half of intensive workshops in painting (Van Kampen), jewelry smithing (Nuqingaq) and carving (Shorty).

The week will also provide an opportunity for heritage professionals to talk with each other about aspects of cultural language education, working together.

On Tuesday evening Ken Lister will speak on cultural appropriation in a lecture called "That's Not a Kayak" and historian Ken Coates will talk about "Precious Lands: Territory, Resources and Values in the Klondike River Valley".

While most events will take place at the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre and the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Community Hall, there will also be presentations at the Robert Service School and the Yukon School of Visual

Tourism statistics see new record set in 2013

Press release

Whitehorse (January 28)

-Yukon tourism statistics for 2013 broke the record for the number of border crossings into the territory with an increase of eight per cent over 2012, Minister of Tourism and Culture Minister Mike Nixon said today.

2013 "The visitation numbers are exceptional and speak to the work being done by the Yukon tourism industry," Nixon said. "The experiences and services being offered by tourism businesses and organizations continue to be second to none and position the territory as a premier travel destination."

In 2013, 345,510 visitors traveling in private vehicles and motorcoaches crossed the border into Yukon. This is an increase of 24,270 or eight per cent over 2012. The statistics show a seven per cent increase in the number of visitors from the United States, a 17 per cent increase from Canada and an eight per cent increase from overseas. There has also been a seven per cent increase in visitors signed in at the Yukon Visitor Information Centre in Whitehorse.

"The strong upward trend in visitors to Yukon is excellent news for the industry and the economy and we are optimistic about the tourism outlook for 2014," Nixon added.

News & Happenings from the Community Library

In the Library this month

Fans of mysteries and legal thrillers will be able to delve into a host of brand new arrivals to the Library. They include a pair by John Grisham (Bleachers and The King of Torts), plus works by Joy Fielding (Good Intentions), Juliet Blackwell (Home for the Haunting), Dorothy Gilman (Mrs. Pollifax and the Golden Triangle), and Sue Grafton (Q is for Quarry). Look for them upstairs in the fiction section's New Arrivals display. We also have the complete trilogy of Girl With the Dragon Tattoo films newly available on DVD.

February is Black History Month in both Canada and the U.S. The Library has a special display featuring the works of four renowned African-Canadian writers Lawrence Hill, Cecil Foster, Esi Edugyan, and Austin Clarke. Hill's featured works include his acclaimed international bestseller Book of Negroes. A television miniseries based on the book is currently in production in South Africa and Canada.

Of course, February is also the month when the Yukon Quest International Sled Dog Race was run, and passed through Dawson City. To commemorate this legendary Northern event, you'll find special displays of books in the Library paying tribute to mushers – from tales of the Quest and Iditarod races, to guides for the would-be dog driver, to children's stories starring those doggedly determined canine athletes.

A date has been set for the reading by current Berton House Writer-In-Residence Clem Martini. It will take place on Monday, March 10 at 7 p.m. Admittance is free to everyone, and refreshments will be served. While ensconced here, Clem is hard at work on a new novel about playwrights set in Roman times, and has been actively involved with Dawson's Writers Circle.

The glacier closes the road to the Dome again

It's that time of year again, when folks who live at the top of Mary MacLeod Road will have to take the long way around via the Dome Road to access their homes at the top of that road.

Residents living the Dome subdivisions named for Pierre Berton, Robert Service, Jack London and Dick North lose the option of heading up the hill from downtown's King Street.

The RCMP and Canadian Rangers have confirmed they have made contact with Strathe at 11:55 A.M.. Both Cody Strathe and the team of dogs suffer no health issues will continue moving towards Braeburn escorted by the mobilization team.

This action of activating the help button on his race tracking device will result in Cody Strathe being withdrawn from the race however this is a good example of the importance having a device like a SPOT while travelling in a remote area and the teamwork demonstrated by both the RCMP and Canadian Rangers.

The Lincoln Lawyer rights an old wrong

The Lincoln Lawyer By Michael Connelly Grand Central Publishing 544 pages $10.99

My main acquaintance with Michael Connelly's work has been through the Harry Bosch novels, which are a sort of hard-boiled police procedural type. I picked up two omnibus volumes as e-books through the now defunct distributor Fictionwise, which has since been absorbed by Barnes and Noble. It later turned out there was a time limit on reacquiring the books in B&N's home format (Nook) and now I can't open them any more. Just mentioning this as another disadvantage of dealing with e-books instead of paper books.

When I decided to try one of Connelly's other series, the Michael Haller books, I wanted to start at the beginning. The Lincoln Lawyer came out in 2005 so I'm a few years behind.

The title was intriguing. Was Mickey called that because he fought for freedom and justice, like old Abe? Not at all. It's because he doesn't have an actual physical office other than a desk at home, and he conducts most of his business from the back seat of a series of Lincoln town cars.

Haller is the son of a famous lawyer who died when he was young, so most of what he knows about his old man comes from the books he wrote and stories about his cases. Haller senior believed that everyone deserves a good defense and that the job of a lawyer is to provide it, whether the client is innocent or not. Haller junior subscribes to that credo, and so has a long list of ne'er do well clients who keep the cash flow going but don't make him rich.

He would like to be rich, so when the Louis Ross Roulet case comes knocking, he takes it. because the Roulet family is very wealthy, the retainer is huge and it looks very much like it might become what they call a franchise, a case that stretches out over a long period of time. Also, it seems at the time that Roulet is innocent.

Haller has no permanent relationship attachments, but he has two ex-wives. Maggie McPherson, the first ex, is also the mother of his daughter and a prosecutor, the latter occupation being part of what put a strain on their marriage.

The other ex-wife is Lorna Taylor, who acts as his secretary and answering service.

Both his exes are still very fond of him and seem to believe that he's a better man than he thinks he is. His daughter loves him too, but he doesn't manage to spend enough time with her. He's married to his work. He and Maggie argue about that a lot.

There's something kinky about the Roulet case right from the outset, but Haller is blinded by the money. At least he is until he realizes that the facts of the Roulet case - the assault on the hooker and the physical details - are a lot like an incomplete version of a case he worked on a few years earlier, a case where the assailant finished the job and killed the woman.

He'd managed to save his client's life on that one, but only by persuading Menendez that the evidence against him was so good his only chance was to plead guilty to a lesser charge and serve a lot of time. They guy's still in there, and as the coincidences pile up, Haller begins to try to figure out how to work the present case so that he doesn't violate his lawyer/client obligations but still repairs the harm.

About then Haller's detective, Raul Levin, is murdered, and Haller is quite positive, without being able to prove it, that he knows why, and who did it. It turns out he's only partly correct, but it's enough to make him even more determined to make things right.

Haller is a re-imagined Perry Mason sort of lawyer, just as likely as not to pull a shady deal and skate right up to the edge of the law, but careful not to get caught. Those books had a lot of dialogue and excelled in their courtroom scenes, and Connelly has the same knack, though with more of a noir edge to his style.

Aside from the main case, we see Haller act in several lesser cases, and it becomes clear that he will play hardball with a client to get his money when it's due and that he doesn't much care how his client made that money. On the other hand, there are several cases where he acts pro bono, much to Lorna's disgust, but does it anyway because it feels right. One of those cases turns out to be of some assistance to him in turning the tables on the Roulet family, but the trick is cleverly concealed from us until the epilogue.

There are two connected things that scare Haller about how this case worked out. His father wrote that one of the greatest fears a lawyer might have is to lose the ability to tell whether his client really deserves him, the ability to see innocence when it is in front of him. The flip side of this is the ability to spot the guilty. Haller has reached that cynical point in his life where the client deserves him if he can pay the bills, and at the end of this story that is no longer enough for him. I look forward to seeing how this governs his actions in future stories.

HANK & FRIENDS

Local Psychic News & Advising by Hank

February 2014

Hank is a local psychic adviser whose visionary gifts will help guide you to uncovering the mysteries of life. Ask him anything! Life, love, money, anything! Just remember - the truth hurts!

Hank's General Psychic Forecast (February 19 - March 4): As Pluto moves forward into the final week of February (is Pluto even a planet anymore?), the media will expose information about either employment, health issues, military deployment, taxation, privacy issues, or some other secret, that will challenge the nation to question what is really happening. I just hope it doesn't affect our new panda friends, otherwise someone won't be happy.

The weather will also be very frozen, with periods of slightly less frozen.

Celebrity Birthdays (February 19 - March 4): John Travolta, Vanna White, John Steinbeck, Steve Irwin, Steven Jobbs, Michael Bolton, Johnny Cash, Justin Bieber, Frederic Chopin, George Washington, Dr. Seuss, Lou Reed, Mikhail Gorbachev, and Alexander Graham Bell. Apparently interesting women were born in other months. And for some reason, Nicholas Copernicus and Abraham Lincoln were on page four of the famous-people birthday list, while the Olsen twins and Paris Hilton were on page one. Who I looked up, btw, and I still don't know what they do.

Hank's Special Birthday Horoscope: Pisces (February 20 - March 20): Pisces - it's not looking great, but hopefully no one will notice. But in reality, you must have something in common with all of these folks that are more famous than you. So try to pull the Wheel of Fortune tarot card - Vanna -I'd like to solve the puzzle! (I'd also like to know how it is you still look like its 1985.)

Hank's Singles Romance Reading: At least Valentine's Day is over for another year! But after assessing the alignments of the sun and various auras/aromas around town, I realize that the romance forecast can be summed up with a single reading spanning from November to March: the term is "February Cute", and it applies. Just try not to think about it too much and you'll be fine.

Hank's Lucky Number Forecast: You can try 3, or maybe 5... but it's really not looking good.

Special Psychic Forecast for Dan: Your cup will overfloweth, despite your best efforts.

Disclaimer: Please be advised that Hank does not necessarily believe anything he says. Hank does not necessarily answer questions he doesn't like or finds insignificant. Although Hank will give readings to people he doesn't like, the people receiving them might not like them. As a general rule, Hank tends to give better psychic fortunes after payment and tips have been received.

Please be further advised that Hank is not responsible for anything. Particularly with regards to anything he says or does or how those actions are interpreted. Or anything.

For those interested in Hank's special Tyromancy Readings, which is the forgotten psychic art of divining fortunes through the observation of cheese, (basically you bring Hank some cheese and he will tell you your fortune from it), all cheese can be dropped off at either the Klondike Sun office or at the Westminster Tavern.
