The 21st Trek is arriving this week

The 21st running of the Trek Over the Top will be either smaller or about the same as last year's event, depending on how you look at it

The big difference is that there will be only one trek weekend this year. Riders will leave Tok, Alaska, between 6 and 11 a.m. on Thursday, March 6 and arrive in Dawson after their 200 mile (382 km) trek later that afternoon. They will return home on Sunday.

There will be about the same amount of trekkers as last year, except that they won't be divided over two runs. Traditionally the first run has been during the last week in February. Last year the second run had about twice as many participants as the first one, so the Klondike Visitors Association, which is now in its third year of running the event, decided that one run would meet the demand.

With locals noting that the Trek has declined from when it used to run over three weekends and attract close to 200 riders for each run, there has been speculation that the KVA might be planning to phase out the event as it declines.

Nothing could be farther from the truth says KVA Marketing and Events Manager Paul Robitaille. The event attracted around 150 riders last year and it looks to have nearly that many on just the one run this year. It's simply better use of volunteer time on both sides of the border to do it in one run at this point.

Trek peaked in numbers just before 9/11. A lot of the staunch trekkers at that time were American military personnel and US commitments in the Middle East had an impact, as did complications with passports at the border after the creation of Homeland Security. In addition, the strength of the Loonie against Greenback in recent years has made the US$525 price tag for the basic trip less attractive.

Robitaille is hoping the shift in dollar value will make a difference this year, as should the word of mouth reviews from last year's Trek, which had brilliant weather for both long trips.

The ride itself is the major attraction of the Trek, but Dawsonites do their best to show the visitors a good time during the two days they are here. There's a Poker Run, which will cover a lot of historic sites this year, events at the curling rink and tours at the Museum. That said, there are some trekkers who can be found just checking out each others' machines, chatting with old friends (many of them have done this trip 15 or more times) or just resting with a good book (e-readers were increasingly popular last year) before the trip home on Sunday.

The Snowshoe Shufflers will be back again this year to help liven up the evening dinners at Diamond Tooth Gerties.

The KVA is very happy to report that Tourism Yukon is finally, after two decades, showing some interest in the Trek and lending it some media support, as well as pledging to help promote the event at the Alaska State Fair.

In Alaska the Trek is organized by the Alaska Trailblazers. On this side it could not be managed without the volunteer work of the Dawson Sled Dawgs.

OPINIONS

Uffish Thoughts: How not to deal with election fraud

By Dan Davidson

With all the bread and circuses going on in Sochi in February it wouldn't be surprising if we were all just a bit slack in noticing what "reforms" our current rulers are making to our governance processes.

As an opening aside, I'm getting really tired of governments at all levels using the word "reform" to describe changes that they intend to make to legislation and procedures. That word implies that something terrible has been going on, that they've just figured it out, and that they're going to fix it.

That's almost never what is actually going on. The words "reform", "fair" and "balanced" pretty much always mean that someone has a nice piece of swampland they're trying to sell you. Red flags should begin to wave and alarm bells to ring the moment you read or hear them.

Take the newly proposed Fair Elections Act. Among the many things it will change is the elimination of the right of voters who don't have officially approved identification to have someone who knows them vouch that they are residents in that particular polling district. Without that procedure, tens of thousands of people will be unable to vote.

participation is dropping like the Titanic after it met the ice berg, the Conservative Party of Canada would like to make it harder for some people not their base, but others - to vote. Voter fraud, they say, is a big problem and pernicious individuals need to be stopped from marking ballots.

I think it is well known that the greatest incidents of voter fraud have never been perpetrated by individuals. It has been party machines of all stripes who have made sure that deceased voters have risen from the grave to cast ballots, or that people who don't actually qualify for local residency get their vote in before they head south for the winter to places where they actually spend most of their year.

It has been party machines that have used robo-call disinformation campaigns to direct voters to the wrong polls, or have historically bought votes with booze and other inducements.

Recently it has been the ReformaTories who have been mostly publicly found overspending on campaigns, practicing creative accounting (the famous in-out scam) and misdirecting voters.

Senators Wallin and Duffy were recruited specifically to hit the campaign trail during general and by-elections and, if they are telling the truth,

In a time when voter were permitted to double-dip on their travelling expenses (having us taxpayers cover the bill for electioneering) until it got to be too embarrassing and, just like in the Mission Impossible scenario, Powers That Be (being the PMO in this case) "disavowed any knowledge of their actions".

> In most cases we would never have known about any of this flimfammery except for the work done by the independent parliamentary office known as Elections Canada, the body which was created to be at arm's length from the government and from any of the political parties, so that the rules for elections and the oversight of the process would be neutral.

> It should be said at this point that Mr. Harper's followers are not the only ones that have been caught breaking the rules, but recently more of them have been caught, more of them have denied it vociferously and subsequently been found to have been less than truthful (are you there Dean Del Mastro?) than on the other benches.

With this new bill it appears that the government's answer to this continuing problem is to muzzle and castrate the watchdog that has been catching its members. The new rules will remove the ability of Elections Canada to investigate election fraud and report on its findings.

The minister in charge of this change, Pierre Poilievre, who has the extremely Orwellian title of Minister for Democratic Reform (or Minister of State [Democratic Reform]) has done the usual Harperite verbal shuffle that involves shifting the blame for his party's shortcomings to someone else. We've seen this before with the former Parliamentary Budget Officer and also with the Auditor General.

"The referee should not be wearing a team jersey," the Minister is recorded as saying at his press conference, implying – no, stating outright – that the office of Elections Canada has not been neutral and has been working with the Opposition parties.

Keeping to the same metaphor, Marc Mayrand, the current head of the office, responded that the referee should be and has been wearing a striped jersey all along and that the current changes (for this is NOT a reform) will simply mean that "The referee is no longer on the ice."

This move is part and parcel of the current government's obsession with eliminating or hamstringing any agency that might generate facts it would like to ignore. It's as silly as removing the monitoring of fish habitat from the Department of Fisheries and Oceans and giving it to Energy, Mines and Resources.

Oh - wait! They did that already.

Dawson regional land use plan takes all the gold away

Has anybody been able to inform themselves?

By Josée Bonhomme

Anybody been able to inform themselves? You need to hack your way through a website to get the information (of The Dawson Regional Land use Plan). Wait patiently for big files to download, and you have to understand statistics and odds (poker or bridge players can do this). Include a dose of computer modeling and magic. Yes, magic. And there are only three weeks or so to review and comment, in the dead of winter. You only need to crunch through 85 pages of highly sophisticated modernism.

You have till March 2 people. This is what is referred to as "democracy."

Since when is magic part of the tools a serious, dependable and accountable land use planner would use? They didn't teach us that in school. Land use planning and resource management in the North. Yukon College stopped offering it by 2004. It was a very excellent course, very Yukoncentered. very aboriginal culture-sensitive. with first nations and us uncultured sorts in a melting pot, and it didn't matter.

We had to work in teams, we had no problems understanding each other. We basically got all goo-goo eyed and fell in love, learned from each other, supported each other, produced great work together, but this is lost now. We focused on common interests, used science, traditional knowledge, and had no trouble at all. We functioned well, in a "total respect" system.

That positive energy died in 2003. We bonded as fellow students and victims, saw the future coming and worked hard at learning creative techniques and solutions to work together. We actually built pretty strong bonds from our cooperation back then, we're all still friends. Solid.

We chose with glee to include everyone, to offer all a chance to feed their children regardless of creed, colour, race, sex or (what else) species. We had no problems in sorting out the priorities and coming up with the solutions. We were humble students and were going to suffer terribly if we didn't pass our course(s). We were all at risk if we didn't demonstrate sound sensible thinking that included all interests, without distortion.

The curriculum was cut in 2003, killing the brilliance and future hope.

The Dawson Planning Commission was established in 2010. There were other moribund plans produced in between, the Peel River watershed plan being an example of the quagmire the plans now create.

Is it possible that if Yukon College had continued with its cross-cultural and successful efforts, that the sordid state of affairs today could have been avoided? Making students of all races sweat through their sessional papers and exams, forcing people to create happy solutions in groups, that was utopia.

But they severed the opportunities.

Long-term Yukoners know this draft plan is a cynical twist on reality, that it can't possibly come from local yokels. This plan will prevent all from raising and feeding their children within 10 years. Everyone at every echelon of society.

We let the Alaskans (not all, let's not generalize) hunt our wildlife, fish our fish, but Yukoners, no. You are excluded and forced to starve under Big Brother's new rules: Yukon devolution government and parks department; compliance monitoring and inspections departments.

Who is doing this? For what? The government apparently, or their employees and appointees?

When the head planner on a long-term important plan for a broad region of the Yukon bails out, you need to put that on the radar. Upon investigation, I am not surprised at how few people, who are affected by this plan, realize what is going on.

We actually built pretty strong bonds from our cooperation back then, we're all still friends. Solid.

We chose with glee to include everyone, to offer all a chance to feed their children regardless of creed, colour, race, sex or (what else) species. We had veers

The painful plan needs to be open to public scrutiny, absorption, understanding, and comment for six months minimum. As usual, this is being slipped in, predator-like in the dead of winter, given three weeks for comments, when no one is home. The summer and long-term residents are resting. They are getting their Vitamin D. They work very very hard all spring, summer and fall. Many are elderly pioneers. The population is aging, which is obvious in the Klondike and Mayo districts especially.

The small miners have millions invested in You-con to support an economy and a government that wants to kill them. We do not get it. We've read 1984 twice – Nineteen Eighty-Four, by George Orwell.

Please extend the feedback period to a respectable humanscale length in light of the impact of the plan on all Yukoners. The Dawson region kept Youcon going for a quite a while now, and merits appreciation, and understanding. No magic, please.

The Yukon, and Dawson region, need better planning skills overall and more serious actuarial skills, demographics and market studies than what we see in this draft plan. The plan is disrespectful and hazardous to future generations. The mapping's good, the colours, the quality, but what about the social fabric into the future.

I was sent to a dead valley in B.C. where people can't live anymore. Some are taking their lives.

I cannot warn you loudly and honestly enough about the hazards this planning exercise is adding to the sustainability of human life on this planet, and in the North.

As a French-Canadian writer, I had to look up foreign funereal words I never use in my writings, this time they were relevant. Those words regrettably include: Orwellian, dystopia, totalitarian, authoritarian, tyranny, domineering. It's scary. Look them up on the net or get an Oxford dictionary if you can find one.

Refrain from watching sports on TV, drop what you are doing, do your planet a favour. Respond to the draft plan before March 2 if possible. Take part in what matters to your children, and their children. Do the research, do the math and remain alert in the winter.

Ed. note: The plan is available in printed form at the Regional Plan Office on 2nd Avenue. It is not the final version, so get your comments in. Late is better than not at all.

Yukon 2025: A Dempster Highway Fantasy

by Ron Ryant

Dempster Highway about 100 Km. South of Eagle Plains

"I used to come here when I was your Father's age. I often came here to drop off or pick up people that went on canoe trips in this area. That doesn't happen much anymore; the magic is gone. It may be hard for you to imagine, looking around now, but this country, even at the beginning of your life, was incredibly beautiful and unspoiled. All these roads and cut lines that you see every mile or so, with drill sites and pump stations didn't exist when you were a baby.

"It makes me sad that you never had the opportunity to see it before all this. Just 15 years ago you could stand right where we are standing now and imagine that you were the first person ever to set foot on this spot. Caribou used to migrate through this area in the tens of thousands; it was an absolutely awe inspiring sight.

"Depending on the season you could smell the life on the land, the flowering plants and the berries.

"That rotten egg smell that you smell now, wherever you go, is hydrogen sulphide, deadly to humans and other animals. It is incredible to realize that this area had remained unchanged since the last ice age over 10,000 years ago and then, in just the last 10 years...this."

"How did this happen?" his grandson asked.

"The government of the day, corrupted by the money and power of the huge multi-national energy companies, ignored the wishes of the people and allowed this to occur. They promised jobs and money. Now the jobs are gone, the money has migrated outside, and we are left with this."

"Grandpa, how could you have allowed this to happen?"

The old man had no reply.

Myth and Medium set to explore art and culture

Story & photos by Dan Davidson

2014 is the first year that the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Heritage Departments Myth and Medium event can live up to its promotion and actually be biennial. Prior to the last gathering in 2012, there had been two annual events in 2004 and 2005, and then a long hiatus. During her introductions on the evening of February 24, the department's traditional knowledge specialist, Jody Beaumont, gave credit to TH CEO Jackie Olsen, who was the Heritage Dept, director when Myth & Medium was relaunched after its long break.

This evening began with a prayer and a short address by 86 year old Percy Henry, who described himself as being a young elder. He said he got that idea from his father, Joe. Joe was born in 1898 and when Percy used to ask him questions about things, Joe would often say that he himself was too young to know that.

Percy, who was chief of the Dawson Indian Band (as it was then known) when Together Today for Our Children Tomorrow was taken to Ottawa to become the beginning of the Land Claims process, has been talking with and advising young people for some time now.

The youth, he told the packed auditorium at the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre, want to know where they're going to find their grassroots knowledge, and who will teach them.

"Today there's very few elders left. I guess I'm just about the oldest one left," he said, "but I was born in 1927. My dad was born in '98 and when I asked him some questions he would say 'Too young – I can't tell you much.'

"We tell stories," he said.
"We don't write it. We just keep it (pointing to his head). It's what we try and carry on with. The young people are moving, and they want to know who's going to teach them."

'We have a beautiful town, the tourists tell me," he concluded, getting a warm round of applause.

Jackie Olsen welcomed everyone to the gathering, especially the elders and the artists. She had been determined, when Myth and Medium was rebooted in 2012, to have something about art in it, but it filled up with heritage and stories. This time around she pushed for art again.

the beginning of the Land "Heritage is good, but Claims process, has been I'm all about art," she said, raising laughter from the audience.

'When I started in heritage one of my goals was to really get our heritage back out into the community, sharing. One of the things that was very successful in the past was Myth and Medium. Getting together and talking about things on a casual level, sharing things and talking about how we are doing things in our heritage department and what we're doing in the community as a member.

"I think art is really connected to heritage and culture, and as we're trying to regain that culture and regain our knowledge it's really important to look at what inspires us around us, using our environment.

"As an artist myself, I really use the land and what it provides to come up with my inspiration and creativity and I'm really hoping that our creative members in the community will be able to do that as well."

Olsen issued an invitation to other communities to hold similar conferences and said she'd certainly be happy to attend them if they did, but if it didn't happen, she thought it likely that 2016 would see another event here.

As part of the TH economic development plan, the First Nation has been working with both the City of Dawson and the Dawson City Arts Society on a number of projects. Olsen mentioned the pilot project weekly artists market that was held in the town's picnic shelter on Front Street last summer on Saturdays, and thanked everyone who was involved with making that work.

"Let's build up some of the skills in the community and really look at what Dawson can offer our visitors that is unique and you can only get it here." With that said, and a welcome from Deputy Chief Jay Farr, the evening kicked off the week with a book launch and two artists' talks, carrying on until well past 10 p.m.

The Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre was packed for the Myth and Medium opening night.

Paul Kane and the struggle between authenticity and art

Story & photos by Dan Davidson

During his lifetime and for many years after, the paintings and sketches of Paul Kane were thought to be the epitome of first hand, authentic, objective evidence about the life of First Nations people during the middle portion of the 19th century.

The First Brush: Paul Kane and Infrared Reflectography is a recent exhibit at the Royal Ontario Museum which demonstrates that Kane's finished work was not quite so true to life as everyone thought it was at the time.

Ken Lister, who has responsibility for the Kane collection at the ROM, spoke to this topic at the Yukon School of Visual Arts as an "early bird talk" for the Myth and Medium week on February 24.

Entitled "Ghosts and Metamorphoses: Paul Kane's First Brush" the illustrated lecture showed the results of using a combination of high tech and low tech means to study Kane's work.

His most significant body of work is a collection of 100 finished paintings developed in his Toronto studio during the 1950s and based on more than 600 graphite sketches, water colours and oil sketches on paper that he made during several trips across Canada earlier.

Comparison of the sketches to the paintings shows that he often combined elements from different years and places in order to make a finished piece, but the changes can even be more significant than that.

Infrared reflectography

is a photographic technique that enables researches to get beneath the finished surface of the art and take somewhat ghostly pictures of the artist's original intentions – the "first brush" as it were.

In Kane's case he can be seen to have substituted canoes for the more commonly used bateau in one painting. In others, figures were deleted, teepees shifted, details rearranged. In some cases, it seems likely these things were done for compositional reasons, Kane being influenced by the prevailing styles of the era, which tended towards prettying scenes up and striving for balance rather than actual realism. In other cases, he may have succumbed to romantic notions that caused many other artists to paint what they felt should be there rather than what was actually in view.

In his book, Wanderings of an Artist, Kane clearly made a case for himself as a careful observer and recorder of the actual facts, but the research shows that he wasn't quite as truthful as everyone, without exception, believed him to be.

Lister sees Kane's art as having continued significance in the fields of both art and ethnography, but says that these more detailed studies, using methods previously unavailable to scholars, continues to inform our history in new ways.

In this painting the more utilitarian bateaux were painted over to become the more romantic canoes.

Intensive French Final Decision

Robert Service School Council would like to thank all of the people involved in assisting us with the review of the Intensive French Program. This review was very in depth and time consuming. Many people were involved in the gathering and processing of information.

The Council looked at many sources of information, including: YAT and FSA scores, Dawson and Yukon wide; current levels of French achievement; academic comparisons for impact on current studies; focus group results of students who had completed the program; survey results from parents and students over the past three years; community consultation; the program's impact on First Nation studies, and the positive/negative differences between Core French and Intensive French methods of teaching.

At this time, RSS Council would like to inform you that we have voted to continue using the Intensive French Model in the Grade 5 year to provide our students with the French programming required through the Education Act.

Administration will now begin making decisions on how this process will continue. If you have ideas, feedback and suggestions for this program please feel free to contact the school or any of your school council members.

Thank you again for all the responses and participation.

Update on Brewery Creek Project February 2014

Americas Bullion Royalty Corp. (Americas Bullion - formerly known as Golden Predator Corp.) has proposed to transfer ownership of its flagship Brewery Creek project to a separate corporate entity that will remain under its control. In connection with this transaction, Americas Bullion will transfer all of its Yukon assets to a company to be known as Golden Predator Mines Corp. If approved, the new Golden Predator will be the resulting company of the merger between Northern Tiger Resources Inc. and Redtail Metals Corp. (a Predator Group company) and will be funded initially through a private placement of $2.3 million from Americas Bullion.

The purpose of this reorganization is to create a focused company to advance the Yukon projects formerly owned outright by Americas Bullion Royalty (Brewery Creek being the priority) along with the key advanced projects of both Northern Tiger (3 Aces Project) and Redtail Metals Corp. (Marg Project).

Greg Hayes will be the Chief Executive Officer and a Director of Golden Predator, Blair Shilleto will serve as Chairman of the Board with William Sheriff, Piers Mc-Donald, Jesse Duke, Brad Thiele and Toby Pierce rounding out the Board. Mike Burke will remain the Chief Geologist with Golden Predator and Janet Lee-Sheriff will continue in her role with First Nation Relations.

Americas Bullion will remain the controlling shareholder (over 50% of the shares) of the new Golden Predator and will be making a substantial financial commitment to its future. Consolidation of the key projects of three companies into the new Golden Predator will provide a more stable base for the concentrated advancement of several premier Yukon projects. Americas Bullion has a very significant investment in Brewery Creek and the Yukon and fully expects to realize on its value for not only its shareholders but also the shareholders of the new Golden Predator.

While the proposed transactions have been approved by the shareholders of both Northern Tiger and Redtail, it remains dependent upon the outcome of the shareholder vote to restructure Americas Bullion. This vote is anticipated to occur on or about March 28, 2014.

Americas Bullion's information circular and proxies will be mailed to all share-holders as of the record date of February 21, 2014. The Board of Directors of Americas Bullion, through the independent directors of AMB, has unanimously voted to recommend the restructuring of the company. Full details can be found in the information circular as posted on SEDAR at www.sedar.com. A copy of the circular and or proxy for shareholders of record can be obtained directly from the company by request by email at info@aubullion.com or by calling Investor and Community Relations at 208-635-5415. If you are an Americas Bullion shareholder it is important you vote on the transaction and we are available to help you with the proxy process. A successful vote is essential to the transaction going forward.

The Brewery Creek Project, located outside of Dawson City, is a past producing heap leach gold mining operation that operated from 1996 through 2002 and shut down primarily due to low gold prices. Brewery Creek is in receipt of all necessary permits required to conduct additional exploration. The Brewery Creek Project holds a Type A Water License with an expiry date of December 31, 2021, subject to the restrictions and conditions contained in the Yukon Water Act and Regulations. The Project also holds a Quartz Mining License (QML) with an expiry date of December 31, 2021.

Americas Bullion has retained Access Consulting which is working on a project proposal submission to the Executive Committee of the Yukon Environmental and Socio-economic Assessment Board for their review which will lead to an updated Quartz Mining and Water Licenses for renewed mining and processing at Brewery Creek. It is anticipated the proposal will be submitted in the Fall of 2014.

Americas Bullion remains committed to effective and open communications with the community and holds its relationship with the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, the Kaska Nation and all First Nations in high regard. All our actions have been conducted in the best interests of finding the most effective means to advance Brewery Creek and our other assets in an economic and environmentally responsible manner that serves our shareholders and the Yukon. We believe the model we proposed for advancing Brewery Creek through a Yukon-focused company we control will help secure a joint venture partner as the project is advanced through permitting. We look forward to the day we see the Brewery Creek project back in production, people working at site, businesses prospering and revenues being forwarded to the Yukon government, Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in and our shareholders.

On Behalf of the Board of Directors

William M. Sheriff, Chairman & Chief Executive Officer Americas Bullion Royalty Corp.

This reorganization is dependent on the completion of the transaction as described. The transaction is subject to Americas Bullion receiving necessary approvals, including approvals from the shareholders of Americas Bullion, the TSX Venture Exchange, the Bermuda Monetary Authority and the Supreme Court of British Columbia

A progress report from the Yukon Legislative Assembly Select Committee regarding the risks and benefits of hydraulic fracturing

Press release

Whitehorse (February 28, 2014) - On May 6, 2013 the Yukon Legislative Assembly adopted Motion #433, thereby establishing the Select Committee Regarding the Risks and Benefits of Hydraulic Fracturing. The Committee's purpose, or mandate, is set out in the motion and it specifies that the Committee is to report to the Legislative Assembly its findings and recommendations on a policy approach to hydraulic fracturing in Yukon.

The all-party Committee's mandate is broad includes a number of interconnected responsibilities. The Committee has decided to fulfill its mandate in a phased approach. The first priority is for the Committee to begin to gain a science-based understanding of the technical, environmental, economic, and regulatory aspects of hydraulic fracturing, as well as Yukon's current legislation and regulations relevant to the oil and gas industry.

Secondly, the Committee is pursuing its mandate to facilitate an informed public dialogue for the purpose of sharing information on the potential risks and benefits of hydraulic fracturing. The third stage of the Committee's work is gathering input from the Yukon public, First Nations, stakeholders, and stakeholder groups. The Committee will continue to increase its knowledge about hydraulic fracturing during the period of public dialogue and gathering input from community members. The Committee will then be in a position to report its findings and recommendations to the Legislative Assembly.

1. Gaining an understanding of hydraulic fracturing

To date the Committee has spent over 40 hours in meetings, learning about the process of hydraulic fracturing and the context of the legislative and regulatory regime for oil and gas in Yukon. During these meetings, the Committee has heard briefings from a number of individuals and groups, including: Department of Environment, Department of Justice, Department of Energy, Mines and Resources, Yukon Environmental and Socio-economic Assessment Board, Yukon Water Board, Yukon Chamber of Commerce Energy Committee, Yukoners Concerned About Oil and Gas

Exploration and Development, Yukon Conservation Society, and, Dr. Brendan Hanley, Chief Medical Officer of Health, Yukon.

In January the Committee traveled to Alberta to tour an active hydraulic fracturing site and to learn about the process further from industry representatives, regulators and community organizations. While in Red Deer and Calgary, the Committee met with representatives from the following organizations: Alberta Energy Regulator, Sundre Petroleum Operators Group, Alberta Surface Rights Group, Shlumberger, ConocoPhillips, Alberta Health Services, Alberta Environment and Sustainable Resource Canadian Development, Association of Petroleum Producers, and Cochrane Area Under Siege Coalition (CAUS-C)

All of the presentation materials from the briefings, both in Whitehorse and Alberta, are available at http://www.legassembly.gov.yk.ca/rbhf_briefings.html

2. Facilitating an informed public dialogue

The Committee recently held public proceedings in the Legislative Assembly Chamber with the intention of sharing information on the potential risks and benefits of hydraulic fracturing with the public. Interested Yukoners were invited to observe the proceedings from the public gallery and the audio was broadcast live over the radio and online for anyone who was not able to attend in person.

Over the course of two days, the Committee heard eight presentations from groups and individuals who were invited share their knowledge and perspectives: Gilles Wendling, Hydrogeologist, BC Oil and Gas Commission, Pembina Institute, Industry representatives from EFLO Energy, Inc., Northern Cross (Yukon) Limited and Canadian Association Petroleum Producers. Bernhard Mayer, Professor, Geoscience, Rick Chalaturnyk, Professor, Geotechnical Engineering, Fort Nelson First Nation, and, National Energy Board.

During the presentations, visitors in the public gallery had the opportunity to submit written questions and, after a few questions from members of the Committee, written questions from the gallery were randomly selected for the presenters to answer.

Transcripts of the proceedings, as well as audio and video recordings of each presentation and question session, are available at http://www.legassembly.gov.yk.ca/rbhf_presentation_materials.html

The Committee will endeavor to provide answers to the remaining questions which were submitted by the public but not asked during the proceedings due to time restrictions.

While the Committee has decided to hold additional public proceedings in Whitehorse, the dates and presenters have not yet been scheduled.

3. Gathering input from the Yukon public, First Nations, and stakeholders

In order to hear the opinions of Yukoners, the Committee will be holding public hearings in Whitehorse, in addition to Watson Lake and Old Crow, the two communities most likely to be affected by oil and gas development. The Committee may choose to hold hearings in other communities if Yukoners submit expressions of interest for such hearings taking place. Individuals who would like to request a hearing in their community may submit their request in writing to the Committee or use the form provided through the Committee's website at http:// www.legassembly.gov.yk.ca/ rbhf_hearings_survey.html, by May 1, 2014.The schedule for the public hearings has not yet been determined.

The Committee is currently publishing submissions from the public on the Committee's webpage. If Yukoners would like to submit their comments they may do so at http://www.legassembly.gov.yk.ca/rbhf_form.html Submissions may also be sent by email to rbhf@gov.yk.ca

Ed. Note: On Feb. 25, Dawson' council resolved to request that this committee hold a meeting here in Dawson.

The Yukon government promotes carbon monoxide safety

Press release

Whitehorse (February 28)—Government of Yukon has launched seriouslysimple.ca—a website designed to increase awareness of the life threatening risk of carbon monoxide in homes as well as to provide simple solutions to prevent this risk.

"Carbon monoxide poisoning is a serious issue, but the solutions preventing carbon monoxide-related illnesses and deaths are simple," Minister responsible for the Yukon Housing Corporation Brad Cathers said. "The Yukon government committed to supporting the safety of Yukoners, in this case by providing information about how to properly manage fuelburning appliances."

Seriously simple.ca provides information on how to avoid carbon monoxide poisoning caused by home fuel-burning appliances such as stoves, furnaces or boilers that burn oil, gas or wood to create heat. It also has information on maintenance and installation of fuelburning appliances, installation of carbon monoxide detectors and signs of carbon monoxide poisoning.

"This website is one initiative in a comprehensive approach that the Yukon government is taking to ensure a safe home environment for all Yukoners," Cathers said. "We are also offering financial support to homeowners and landlords through Yukon Housing Corporation's lowinterest home improvement loans to assist with replacing or repairing improperly installed or maintained heating systems."

As part of a larger Yukon government effort, the seriouslysimple.ca website supports and enhances the carbon monoxide public awareness campaign already underway.

Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in history celebrates the publication of a new chapter

That the original impetus behind the creation of the first edition of Hammerstones: A History of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in came from a mining dispute, is something that wasn't emphasized a whole lot when the first edition came out in 2003, but 10 years later, with the second expanded edition making its debut during the 2014 Myth and Medium gathering, Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre manager Glenda Bolt and author Helene Dobrowolsky gave the packed hall a bit of history.

"Tr'ochëk is the ancestral home of the Hän people and it was under threat," Bolt said. "People saw this as unacceptable and undertook the option to do something positive about it. The original Hammerstones book was a result of commitment and passion to see balance in the perspective of the history that happened here in this area."

When the land rights case was settled, and the mining claims in Lousetown/Klondike City extinguished, the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in made sure that the land was part of their land claim. Redesignated Tr'ochëk ("the place at the mouth of the river"), it was declared a national Historic Site of Canada in 2002.

"Last summer, we sold our second last copy," Bolt said, waving the sole remaining copy in the air. "We knew that we had to republish. This book is used as a resource for schools, for citizens, for research. It's given away as gifts by our chief and council to dignitaries and visitors to our traditional territory. It's a book that stands as part of our support system."

The second edition has tidied up some errors in the original printing and has added a chapter to cover some of the major events of the last decade.

"For those of you in the heritage world," said Bolt, "you'll find it quite humorous that it's called chapter 13."

Chapter 13 of the Umbrella Final Agreement, the basis for all the Land Claims, is the chapter that deals with heritage.

To highlight the new edition, four of Bolt's coworkers in the Heritage Dept. – Debbie Nagano, Erika Scheffen, Georgette McLeod, Sue Parsons and Kylie Van Every – each read a short extract from the book's new chapter.

Helene Dobrowolsky, the author of the book, was the last to speak. She gave a great deal of creditto graphic designer Patricia Halliday, who worked on both editions of Hammerstones and was unable to be in Dawson for this event due to a cold weather plumbing emergency in Whitehorse.

Dobrowolsky was originally commissioned by the Yukon Historical and Museums Society towriteahistory of Tr'ochëk/Klondike City/Lousetown during the time of the mining claim dispute.

"It was to share with people the many stories, photos and values of this site," she said.

"This was all happening before the signing of the final agreement. Eventually the site was preserved - the federal government came through and did the right thing - and by that time this project had kind of morphed over more to Parks Canada and the folks at Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in.

"They said, 'Let's kind of expand this story. Talk more about the Hän people at Tr'ochëk and Moosehide and Dawson and their important relationship with the Yukon River.'"

A local conference called "Life on the River" and the stories that Dobrowolsky heard there were very inspiring to her and the nascent growth of the TH Heritage Department led to an oral history project that provided still more knowledge for the first edition of the book.

Dobrowolsky also paid special thanks to the Klondike Sun organization for "putting all their editions on line so that people like me could go digging out all the stories being reported about what was happening with a lot of good community perspective."

"It's really hard for me to believe that this all started back in 1995. This makes me feel very old, but I feel like I, in a very tiny way, am a little bit of Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in history too.

"It's been so wonderful to be your pen, working on interpretive manuals, working on the historic site, working on the fabulous interpretive centre at Tombstone Territorial Park and the Aboriginal Headstart Program (she attempted the Han, but couldn't manage it)."

Her final praise went to the Heritage Department, which she said always gave her a little shot when she came to Dawson and was, she felt, "a model for the world as to how heritage should be interpreted and managed."

Looking at the expansion of TH cultural activities and knowledge into the curriculum at the Robert Service School over the last decade, Dobrowolsky said she felt hopeful about opportunities for TH young people and others to learn about the local culture.

"Thank you to the elders and the citizens and other Dawson City residents who have allowed me to share your stories. It has been a great honour working with you – and what a wonderful way to launch this."

TH hosts Traditional Economy Workshop

Press release

Dawson City (February 28) - Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in is hosting a two-day workshop on the "Traditional Economy," Mar. 4 & 5, in Dawson City. This event will explore the traditional economy concept and how it may be incorporated into regional land use planning.

There will be a public presentation and discussion on Tues., Mar. 4, at 7 p.m., in the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre. Refreshments will be served. There will also be a door prize of a new Husqvarna chain saw, donated by the Dawson District Renewable Resources Council.

The Dawson Regional Land Use Planning Commission has released its Plan Alternatives and many of the conceptual maps include a Traditional Economy Area.

The proposed traditional economy area designation is close to Dawson City. The traditional economy concept joins together community development objectives like recreation, local harvesting opportunities, learning and social well-being and is intended to create a space for compatible land use activities.

The Traditional Economy Area would foster sustainable economic development and presents an opportunity for the whole community to engage in traditional practices within natural settings.

Affordable housing RFQ attracts interest from private and non-profit sectors

Press release

Whitehorse (February 26)—Nine proponents with projects based in four communities have advanced to the Request for Proposal phase of Yukon Housing Corporation's affordable rental housing development competition.

Twenty-two private contractors and non-governmental organizations (NGOs) responded to the Yukon Housing Corporation's affordable housing request for qualifications (RFQ).

"The number of submissions was very encouraging," Minister responsible for the Yukon Housing Corporation Brad Cathers said. "We appreciate the interest from stakeholders in working together to increase the availability of affordable rental housing."

All of the proposals received have been evaluated. Nine applicants with a total of 11 projects have been selected to complete Request for Proposals (RFP). Due to the number and diversity of submitted proposals, a fairness monitor—former Ombudsman Hank Moorlag—was engaged to ensure consistent methods and values were applied to evaluate the proposals. The fairness monitor ensures that the consideration process is objective, fair and equitable. The monitor will continue to participate in the process through the RFP phase.

Under this affordable rental development process, the government will match eligible costs of private and non-government organization investments, leveraging $13 million from the Northern Housing Trust funding into at least $26 million in affordable rental construction. Non-government organizations and social agencies are encouraged to work together and share expertise and skills through this initiative.

Projects funded under this process will carry guarantees that rental rates remain affordable for at least 10 years. For the purposes of this project, the definition of affordable stipulates that rental rates remain at or below 95 per cent of median rates. The median rent for Whitehorse in June 2013 was $875 per month.

The eleven qualifying projects will be detailed and submitted for final evaluation under the RFP criteria. Announcements on the successful proponents and their projects are anticipated in April.

Our Olympic Task

The final draft of our Outstanding Universal Values Statement will be done by the end of March! We're checking with advisors in Ottawa to see whether we're on the right track. We need to balance what the community thinks is important with criteria set by UNESCO.

As I explained to someone the other day, World Heritage is like the Olympics. It's an international contest you can choose to enter. First you qualify to compete, and then you have to prove you're worth a gold medal! Once the award is given there are no new restrictions.

The boundaries of a possible designation are just starting to take shape. We're trying to connect places that are already protected and managed—so people can keep on doing what they're doing!

Aedes feels she has won the lottery

Dr. Aedes Scheer sits back comfortably in the family room at the new Dawson City Community Hospital and Health Services Facility. She's been back at home for just over a vear now, after beginning six years of medical studies at the age of 42.

"It's been really nice to be back working in the community," she says, "and I've been pretty well received by the community."

She says it's surprising how much of a turnover the town has had in six years and how many people don't know her personally as a long term resident.

It's been a long trek from her initial impulse to go into medicine. It has included a career as a veterinary technician, an education degree, a term and a half as a town councillor, a run at the MLA's seat, a master's degree in life sciences (specializing in parasites), 13 years as an Emergency Medical Services (ambulance) volunteer and several seasons as a mosquito control tech.

The latter occupation seems ironic, given her nickname. Nancy Scheer is best known as "Aedes", the genus name of a type of mosquito.

The vet-tech detour she blames on Leonard McCoy.

"My favorite television show when I was in grade 3 was Star Trek and I was looking at Bones (McCoy) and thinking, 'I want his job.' And I thought that if he was Yukon government. That had treating all these aliens, why be a human doctor? As a vet you can work on all these different species."

McCoy's signature lines in the original series was "Dammit, Iim, I'm a doctor, not a veterinarian!"

Scheer describes herself as a late bloomer, and admits to having been only a soso student in high school, low achiever to the point where she was advised that university was not for her. That didn't stop her from getting certificate as an animal health tech.

Later on she added a B.Sc. and a teaching certificate to her résumé and eventually made her way to the Yukon, where she spent some time teaching Mathematics in Whitehorse before moving on to Dawson in 1994.

She wasn't long joining the ambulance crew, founding the Dawson Humane Society, working as a substitute and occasional contract teacher at Robert Service School, and doing a lot of veterinary work in the years before Dr. John Overell settled here. She served time on town council, ran for territorial office, taught courses at Yukon College and got married during those years. She made Dawson City her home.

It's been slightly over six years since she was last a full time resident here, having begun her late bloomer's start at a medical degree in 2006, with the help of a generous grant from the come as a surprise, since she had several times failed to gain a grant to study for full status as a veterinarian, but Never mind that one of the territory was looking for people interested in serving in rural communities as general practitioners, and that was exactly what all those years volunteering on the ambulance crew had helped her decide she wanted to do next.

The program she was in had her studying through the Northern Medical Program at Prince George's UNBC, but touching down at various places across the nation for parts of her training (Terrace, Red Deer) and her practicum work. For the latter part of the program she picked as many different rural and more or less isolated places as she could fit into her schedule. because that was her focus. It also had her away from town and spouse for months at a time.

"I went to pretty much corner of every the county from Inuvik to Newfoundland. I knew I wanted to really hone in on rural and remote medicine. I also did emergency medicine in Fort McMurray - it was scary there."

She made an attempt to keep the town informed of her progress, writing long letters to the Klondike Sun two or three times a year when time permitted. She got back whenever it was possible, even it was only a week or so at a time.

She's ever so happy to have that long struggle behind her. Not, she says, that she's ever going to be able to stop studying. Things she was taught five years ago have already proven to be out of date and life-long learning is going to be more than just a cliché for her.

She began work in Dawson with the Dawson Medical Clinic in the old Dawson City Health Care Centre just over a year ago on January 13 and was involved in the transition to the clinic within the new building.

"It's good to be on the ground floor of team building in this new facility," she says. "Aside from my regular shifts, I'm one day in three on call. I've got a lot of support. I even get to pull a tooth from time to time and sew up the odd dog or pull quills.

"There were some people in my classes who would have run screaming from the building if they had thought that was part of what they would be asked to do, but I think it's just perfect. I feel like I've won the lottery."

Yukon research critical to circumpolar network of scientists

Press release

Bird biologist Dave Mossop has put another feather in his

His research on Arctic birds over the past 40 years has become a valuable asset to a newly-established circumpolar monitoring network, the Tundra Conservation Network, says a press release issued by Yukon College.

The Network was created in response to research that suggests a perceived decline in Arctic bird populations in the circumpolar North. Mossop represents Canada in a network that includes all eight nations in the Arctic region.

Mossop has collected data on the gyrfalcon and ptarmigan for nearly four decades. In the late 1990s, he began to see stresses in their populations and upon reaching out to the circumpolar research community, discovered there were similar results around the globe.

"We know the decline of these bird populations is a sign of something bad, and we are hoping a circumpolar network will help us to figure out what that is," said Mossop, professor emeritus, Yukon Research Centre.

In Mossop's 2013 gyrfalcon survey, not one nest in his sample produced any young, the lowest level of productivity in 30 years of data collection. These results are important to the Network, but equally as important is having the capacity to process the data in a meaningful way. The Network is not only made up of experts on birds and vegetation, but modelers who can interpret and anticipate what is happening.

"Dave Mossop has one of the longest-term datasets on gyrfalcons ever, and this is an invaluable resource that will help us to reconstruct past trends to predict future events," said David Anderson, Director, Gyrfalcon Conservation Project, Peregrine Fund. "The success of the Network largely depends on a range of partners at different career levels and Mossop's leadership and expertise benefits the Network immensely."

The gyrfalcon and ptarmigan are considered ideal species to determine the health of the Arctic ecosystem. The predatory gyrfalcon sits at the top of the food chain and the ptarmigan is a food source that many Arctic animals depend upon. Monitoring these two species and using climate modeling techniques, scientists can forecast the future for the Arctic ecosystem and its inhabitants.

Mossop and a summer student, in partnership with the Yukon government, will continue yearly gyrfalcon and ptarmigan surveys in Yukon in order to keep a finger on the pulse of Arctic health. He hopes the 2014 survey produces more hopeful results.

Looking for the roots of Yukon First Nations' art

Story & photos by Dan Davidson

Ukjese Van Kampen began his studies in to the history of Yukon First Nations art as part of his rediscovery of his own heritage, spurred on partly by the discovery, in 1982, that "I was an Athapascan Northern Chilkat Tlingit Indian, as I had always thought."

Part of the confusion that he had lived with until he was 23 was created by the preponderance of coastal Tlingit visual culture among the First Nations people in his part of the Yukon. This curiosity would eventually lead him, after gaining his Bachelor of Fine Art and Master of Art in Cultural Studies degrees, to pursue his Ph.D. with a dissertation entitled "The History of Yukon First Nations Art".

idea that there were no original Yukon Native art forms, but accepts the idea that the remnants of the older forms are subtle. He breaks First Nations art into three historic periods.

The Geometric Period lasted from 7000 BP (before the present) until World War II, but there were other Tutchone Indian and not a influences that crept in, starting in the 19th century. Geometric Period features a lot of simple line designs on portable cultural artifacts such as tools. Van Kampen's lecture dealt with the relationship between art and traditional stories. In both cases, the details vary from region to region, but many of the major themes remain the same.

Van Kampen feels that he began his own studies too late to be able to uncover as much as he would have liked. Many of the stories and much of the culture have been lost, and the unique nature of the imagery has often only been clear to the creator of the art and his or her immediate audience.

"We can only hope we can save what is still known," he concluded.

School Expansion Issues Debated

by Dan Davidson

The future expansion of either the Robert Service School, or the in the interim. school's playground, were the subject of a great deal of discussion at the February 4 meeting of city coun-

the school council, might involve the school and the extension of the now. present playing field, which council chair Fletcher Hunston says in one of the smallest in the Yukon, across that street and on to two lots already owned by the government behind the Eldorado Hotel.

Hunston appeared before city behalf of a proposal to explore this at all. possibility as one way of solving some of the space problems presently being experienced by the school.

There are many potential problems with this proposal, and these were outlined at some length by Mayor Peter Jenkins.

They include fire engine movement, access to a hydrant, the existence of buried utility lines and the need for a cul-de-sac to turn the school busses in should they continue to load and unload on that Hunston denied none of this, but continued to press for the support of the city council to explore the concept's feasibility.

This was endorsed by councillors Gerberding, Procyk, Pennell and Everitt, who felt that the only way the territorial government would take the idea in the least seriously was if both councils approached in in a positive manner.

This led naturally to a discussion about what shape the expansion of educational facilities in Dawson should take.

While the mayor and the Planning Board have both indicated a preference for a second school over an expansion of the present one, Gerberding noted that this was not an official city council position.

but that something had to be done to solve the overcrowding problem

The first choice for the council was the temporary conversion of the old liquor store to classrooms, this move predicated on the immediate Either scheme, in the thinking of commitment to begin work on a second school. He said the YTG was the closure of Fourth Avenue behind looking into the cost of that option

> Failing that, the infamous portable classroom debate would be reopened.

Hunston says everyone recognizes them as a bad solution and one that might haunt the town for years to come (as they have in Mayo), but council at this meeting to speak on they would be better than nothing

> "We have a commitment, absolutely - it's no doubt - if we want modelers we can have them. That's a given," he told council.

> And if they are brought in, the school staff and the council would want to see them located in the present school parking lot, so that they could be integrated with the instructional and organizational needs of the school.

> Mayor Jenkins sees that placement as a bad idea, one which would prolong the delay in building a second school.

If portables must be used, he would want them placed across Forth Avenue from the present playground area.

He maintains that the building usage of the present school property has reached its maximum.

In addition, Jenkins believes that any modular classrooms placed next to the school would be there forever.

There's not too many places in the Yukon...in fact I couldn't find nity planner (Anne MacDonald), any...where modelers were brought in and (later) moved out," the mayor

Dawson Women's Shelter receives $10,000 grant from the Mary Kay Ash Charitable Foundation

Press release

Dawson City (February 4)

– The Mary Kay Ash Charitable Foundation has awarded $100,000 in grants to 10 domestic violence shelters or outreach programs in provinces and territories across Canada. The Women's Shelter in Dawson City, Yukon received one of the $10,000 unrestricted grants to maintain critical services and programs for individuals who are survivors of domestic abuse.

The Dawson Women's Shelter provides confidential shelter. support and information to women and children fleeing abuse, or needing emergency shelter, on a 24 hour basis. We work to end violence against women and children.

Mary Kay Ash foundation has played a huge part in our ability to expand the physical size of the Shelter. We have changed from occupying one side of a Yukon housing duplex with 3 beds to combining both sides of the duplex to double the space with 9 beds available for women and children staying at the shelter. In 2013 we used funding through Mary Kay Ash Foundation to furnish the new side of the shelter. In 2014, we will use funding through the Mary Kay Ash Foundation to finish our renovation project by building a privacy fence around the exterior of the combined property and planting large trees to further enhance security and privacy for the women and children accessing the Shelter.

"Mary Kay Foundations has had a huge positive impact on improving the services we can offer to women and children accessing the Shelter," said Diane Schroeder, Executive Director for the Dawson Women's Shelter. "Our staff, Board of Trustees and clients are so thankful for this grant from the Mary Kay Ash Foundation. We've provided a safe haven for women fleeing abuse since 1987 and this grant will go a long way in helping us serve the growing needs of Dawson City and surrounding communities."

For 13 years, The Mary Kay Ash Charitable Foundation has supported the prevention and elimination of domestic violence, an epidemic that touches one in every four women in her lifetime. Through the Foundation's annual shelter grant program, over $1,010,000 has been granted to domestic violence organizations since 2002.

"The Mary Kay Ash Charitable Foundation is proud to support local shelters that are on the front lines of helping the thousands of women and children who seek shelter and support from abuse," said Lynda Rose, a Mary Kay Ash

Charitable Foundation board member and Vice-President of Sales & Marketing of Mary Kay Cosmetics Ltd. "The shelter grants are a signature program The Foundation and represent just one of the ways we are committed to breaking the cycle of domestic violence."

Look up http://www. marykay.ca/company/marykay ashcharitablefoundation/ default.aspx for a full list of 2013 grant recipients or visit marykay.ca for additional information.

About the Dawson Women's Shelter

Since 1987, The Dawson Women's Shelter has been providing confidential emergency shelter to women fleeing abuse and/or women needing emergency shelter. The staff at the Women Shelter are dedicated and professionally trained. We assist women with drop-in and outreach services, 24 hour crisis line and advocacy. Our Shelter is dedicated to working toward ending violence against women. For additional information call, 867 9935086, fax 867 993-6235, email shelterdirector@northwestel. net or visit the Dawson Women's Shelter on Facebook.

About The Mary Kay Ash Charitable Foundation

The Mary Kay Ash Charitable Foundation was established in Canada in 2001, and its mission is two-fold: to support women living with cancer through the Look Good Feel Better® program and to help end violence against women by providing grants to women's shelters and community outreach programs. Since then, it has awarded over $1,051,000 to shelters and programs addressing domestic violence and $434,000 to help women going through cancer treatment throughout Canada. From every dollar raised, 97 cents goes to these two important causes. To learn more about the Mary Kay Ash Charitable Foundation, visit www.Marykay.Ca.

HANK & FRIENDS

Local Psychic News & Advising by Hank

Hank is a local psychic adviser whose visionary gifts will help guide you to uncovering the mysteries of life. Ask him anything! Life, love, money, anything! Just remember - the truth hurts!

Hank's Special Birthday Horoscope: Pisces (February 20 - March 20)

Again, Pisces - it's not looking good. Plow on.

Hank's Singles' Romance Reading:

Unfortunately 'February Cute' still applies. Corey Hart had the right idea - try sunglasses at night.

Celebrity Birthdays (March 5 - March 18):

Michelangelo, Chuck Norris, Jack Kerouac, Osama bin Laden, Albert Einstein, and, the only one who made the famous birthday front page, Bow Wow.

Hank's Lucky Number Forecast:

Nothing lucky this week.

Next Issue: Cleromancy Readings:

Psychic readings derived from the casting or tossing of small, meaningless objects.

Disclaimer:

Please be advised that Hank does not necessarily believe anything he says. Hank does not necessarily answer questions he doesn't like or finds insignificant. Although Hank will give readings to people he doesn't like, the people receiving them might not like them. As a general rule, Hank tends to give better psychic fortunes after payment has been received. Please be further advised that Hank is not responsible for anything. Particularly with regards to anything he says or does or how those actions are interpreted. Or anything.

Ask Hank:

If you have questions requiring psychic answers, just ask Hank! Everything welcome. See disclaimer below.

Will my thick waistline ever return to its svelte, youthful dimension?

John

Dear John,

If this is truly your wish, Hank foresees no fun for you. There are some obscure although potentially useful diet trends, such as Fruitarianism, who are the crazies who eat only fallen fruit. Apparently Steve Jobs named his company Apple while experimenting with a Fruitarian diet. There are no other notable fruitarians. Then there are the Breatharians, whose diet consists solely of air and sunlight. Apparently some saints were able to live for extended periods without food. But let's face it, John - you are no saint! Hank actually suggests to just not look down.

Dear Hank, Will spring come early this year? Leah

Dear Leah, xo Hank

Tyromancy Reading:

First, Hank would like to stress his interest in Tyromancy Readings, which is fortune telling using cheese. Bring Hank cheese and he will tell you your fortune from it. Cheese can be dropped off at either The Klondike Sun or the Westminster

Secondly, although Hank was very pleased to receive two cheese deliveries for fortune readings, he cannot help but comment on the quality of some of the cheese received, particularly the Safeway brand Marble Cheese. Hank's favorite type of cheese is actually Limburger, but if that is unavailable, he is also amenable to most deli cheeses, such as Smoked Gouda or Roquefort. He will give readings from generic brand cheese, albeit reluctantly.

Tyromancy Reading for Deborah: TreStella 100% Parmesan Grated Cheese

Dear Deborah,

The large lump in contrast to the fine crumble of the parmesan tells me many things about you. Most of which I cannot repeat. The spread of the cheese indicates that in your past life, you were a Social Reformer. This means you need to let the beast out and vocalize what you think is right and wrong. The chunks say to avoid self-help books. And to not drop the ball. Your inner animal crane is irritable and wants to stretch its neck. The cheese also thinks that something or someone may get out of the way to allow something else to happen.

Winter's Delight Hot Chocolate

Rv Iania

(Recipe adapted from allrecipes.com)

INGREDIENTS:

3 cups milk

1/3 cup semisweet chocolate chips, grated

1 tablespoon white sugar

1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon

1 egg

DIRECTIONS:

1. Put milk into a microwavesafe container and cook on High in microwave for 2 minutes. Mix in chocolate, sugar, and cinnamon. In a small bowl, whisk an egg until smooth, then mix it into the chocolate mixture.

2. Return to microwave and cook on High for 3 to 4 minutes or until foamy (be careful not to let it boil.) Whisk until smooth and pour into 3 mugs. Garnish with a sprinkle of cinnamon if desired.

I made two different kinds of hot chocolate and this was the best! This is a great drink for after sledding.
