Arena improvements to be planned

The Art and Margaret Fry Arena has ice, and winter time ice time has begun. The arena opened for business on November 27, aided by a cold snap during the week before. Dawson does not yet have artificial ice, although the council intends to change that for next year.

It also intends to finish the second floor of the building, which has languished unused since the building was opened nearly a decade and a half ago.

Council made its intentions clear in a resolution passed on November 12.

"WHEREAS long-term planning for the eventual replacement of recreation facilities is an important municipal function, but should not come at the cost of dealing with today's issues;

"WHEREAS there is money that may be used towards the refurbishment of the current Rec. Centre that will enhance that facility's function:

"BE IT RESOLVED that Council endorse focussing efforts and resources on the current Rec. Centre for the foreseeable future:

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that administration investigate costs associated with renovating the second floor and installing an ice mat system in 2015."

Problems related to the costs for the building of this facility were at the root of the territorial government's removal of the council of the day back in 2004, leading to a trusteeship that all territorial leaders outside the government eventually decided went on longer than it should have.

Since the revelation that there were structural problems, beginning with the curling rink and including the roof system, there has been talk about what the future of recreation in Dawson might be. The council prior to this one seemed to be convinced that the only answer was to build a new facility, and went so far as to endorse a Yukon Party promise made prior to the last territorial election, complete with a shovel ceremony beside the Dome Road, to begin that process.

As has been noted recently in the Legislature and numerous times in Dawson's council discussions, nothing ever came of that promise.

What money there is to work on the centre came as a result of the territorial government's admission that it had to share some of the blame for the financial debacle, and therefore a fund, administered at arm's length, was established to deal with repairs, maintenance and upgrading of the present facility.

At one point an attempt was made to divert this money to a new rec centre project, but that was rejected.

The current council commissioned a study that was reported on a few months back. It indicated that the majority of the building, except for the curling rink, is serviceable and could have an extended future. The final solution for curling would be to relocate that facility elsewhere before the drag on that side of the whole structure begins to affect the arena.

One proposal is to build a new curling rink on the north side of the current building.

Meanwhile, the large second floor of the Fry Arena has never been completed since the place was built. There were a number of proposals for its use

From right to left at the Art and Margaret Frye Rec. Centre: the Curling Rink is the area with the most problems. It probably cannot be salvaged. The report says that movement in the other parts of the building is seasonal and within Dawson norms. The large middle section is the arena, where the ice mat system may be installed. The north end of the building contains the admin offices, the canteen, change rooms and the unfinished second floor.

at the time, including meeting rooms, exercise space and a location for CFYT-fm, which was displaced when the old Bonanza Centre was demolished. It has been determined that doing upgrading work on this part of the arena fits within the mandate of the designated funds

In addition, the lack of artificial ice has been one of the major complaints about the arena. Council is investigating the installation of an ice mat type system that would make that possible for the 2015-16 year.

In a Facebook note on this subject from Mayor Potoroka, he wrote, "It has taken a lot of homework and discussion to ensure we're moving in the right direction. But making sure you have it right before moving forward is often a decision folks never regret—especially with a multi-million dollar project."

RSS trims tree for the Hospital

The Kindergarten class poses with the Christmas tree decked with ornaments created by the students during the previous week of school. A special assembly was held on December 5 to decorate the tree.

Harmony Hunter (herself an RSS grad) was on hand for the Yukon Hospital Corporation to accept the decorations and thank the students.

The tree will be on display at the hospital throughout the holiday season.

OPINION

Uffish Thoughts: Concerning the importance of planning

When the Yukon Chamber of Mines says that it doesn't "recognize the importance of planning" it's hard to disagree with them if the type of planning they're talking about is the mess we've been seeing lately.

According to Justice Veale, the current government doesn't actually recognize the importance, or the process, of planning either.

This is not entirely a surprising discovery when one is dealing with a government whose idea of consultation has usually, in my experience, been a case of holding a public meeting to tell the public what it is that it has already decided to do.

Had the Yukon Party government participated fully in the development of the Peel Commission's plan, as it was obligated to do under the terms of the Umbrella Final Agreement, it is quite likely that the amount of land slated for protection would have been bargained down to less than the somewhat unrealistic 80% that the Final Report recommended. Percentages way closer to half have been mentioned.

Instead the government disregarded the work that had been done and produced a report of its own that flipped the percentages. Justice Veale agreed with the First Nations this was a betrayal of the spirit of the laws related to the Land Claims process.

It didn't have to turn out the way it has, but more realistic compromise outcomes could only have been accomplished through actual discussion and negotiation, and because that didn't happen, 80% is what it appears we will see protected in the Peel region.

It needs to be understood that the government's behavior, so soundly criticized in Justice Veale's ruling, is the main reason for the 80%.

That's not to say that the First Nations/environmentalist side of this public debate has been entirely rational at all times. The 100% signs that were waved around and planted in the snow banks at rallies over the last two winters were clear evidence of the number of people who didn't understand that protecting the entire region had not been on the table for a long time.

The suspension and announced archiving of the Dawson Regional Plan process (see page 8) is just another indication of how poorly this matter has been handled, It's as if someone in authority thinks that if they just keep mucking up this requirement long enough and seriously enough it will somehow go away.

The Dawson planning office has been understaffed most of the time since it was and environmental groups that established, operating with two of the three persons needed to do the work. Since senior planner Jeff Hamm resigned (apparently having read the writing on the wall) over a year ago, his position has not been filled and his assistant has been left with the task of completing a process that really does need a more expert person in charge.

At various times the office has been down to one person, who has then been tasked with doing everything that three people were needed to do, according to the group's specifications.

Why it was assumed that the Dawson plan could be completed within a fixed (and shorter) time frame when every other attempt to produce a plan has failed to meet its original deadline is strange to me. There have been some extensions to contracts and budgets, but both of the individuals currently in the office have known for some time that their contracts were to expire at the end of December.

In fact, the senior person is already out of the office, using up some of the accrued leave time she accumulated while trying to clone herself before her assistant was hired two months ago. That leaves the most recently hired staffer to pack up the office and make sure, as the press release says, that "the valuable work done to date by the Dawson Regional

Now that the Dawson Regional Planning Commission's activity has been suspended, this office will soon be closed for good.

Land Use Planning Commission is preserved so that work can be resumed when all parties are confident in the process."

If all parties – and especially the government – had been confident of the process from the beginning, the Dawson plan would still be on track and on its way to being finished.

When and if it does reboot, the current committee is probably toxic enough that a new group will be needed, and Dawson will no doubt have to once again fight, as the late Bill Bowie did, to make sure that the planning office is located here.

Many thanks from the Food Bank

The past year has been a busy one at the Dawson City Food Bank to meet the community's need for food assistance. To elucidate, there has noticeably been a peaked increase by those who utilize the service provided, showing that there is ever the demand. None of this would be possible without the grants received from the Dawson City Council and of course the institutions and Members of the Community who take it upon themselves to generously donate food for the cause. We would like to thank and applaud the following donors in alphabetical order:

Valcourt says YESAA amendments came from the Yukon Party

The Premier has some explaining to do after Federal Aboriginal Affairs Minister Bernard Valcourt said Monday it was the Cathers/Pasloski government that insisted on controversial amendments to Bill S-6.

The Premier has had months to be up front with Yukoners and take ownership of the controversial changes.

It's a sad day when Yukoners have to find out from Ottawa that it is their own territorial government that is behind these regressive changes to Yukon Environmental and Socio-economic Assessment Act.

The Premier's contention that there was adequate consultation was also called into question by his federal colleague.

The federal minister himself admitted the new amendments from the Government of Yukon came after the five-year review was already complete.

It's very troubling to see the Premier insist there was adequate consultation when he knew that wasn't the case.

I call on the premier to ask his federal colleagues to withdraw the amendments in order to avoid another costly court case with Yukon First Nations.

It is not too late to fix this mess, and the premier could simply request these amendments be withdrawn.

More lawsuits certainly don't contribute to a positive working relationship between different levels of government.

I am encouraged by the recent request from Yukon MP Ryan Leef to have the Standing Committee for Aboriginal Affairs hold public consultations on S-6 in the Yukon (Star letters, Nov. 28).

I have been calling on both the Government of Yukon and the Government of Canada to hold public consultations on this bill since January of this year.

I'm pleased to see our MP has finally recognized the value of hearing what Yukoners have to say about this bill.

Second reading of Bill S-6 occurred Monday (Dec. 1) in the House of Commons.

The bill is opposed by the Federal Liberal caucus.

Sandy Silver, Klondike MLA

Editor's note: News reports have MP Ryan Leef also confirming that the amendments in question came from the Yukon Government.

Alex VanBibber passes; "He was surrounded by people who loved him"

Submitted by the Champagne and Aishihik First Nations.

The Champagne and Aishihik First Nations (CAFN) are mourning the loss of our eldest citizen, Alex VanBibber (98), who passed away Wednesday morning surrounded by family and close friends in a Calgary hospital (Star, Nov. 26).

"We are truly saddened to lose our eldest citizen, Alex VanBibber," said Chief Steve Smith.

"For 98 years, Alex has helped shape the history of the Yukon and enriched our community and all of Yukon with this experience and knowledge.

"The Champagne and Aishihik First Nations is very proud of Alex's many achievements and feels his loss deeply. Our condolences go to his family and loved ones."

Alexander "Alex" VanBibber was born April 4, 1916 in Pelly Crossing, Yukon, and lived life to the fullest every day of his 98 years.

One of 14 children born to Eliza and Ira VanBibber, Alex is best known for his skills on the land and prowess as a trapper and hunter, but is also known for many other accomplishments.

Alex's service to his country is commendable and was recognized in 1992 when he received the Order of Canada.

One of Yukon's last surviving aboriginal veterans, he served in the Canadian military during World War II, was an active member of the Canadian Rangers from 1947 to the present, and was a founding member of the Assembly of First Nations Veterans Roundtable. He was also honoured with the Queen's Jubilee medals (both gold and silver).

Over a lifetime trapping and guiding, Alex shared his skills with countless students and trappers through his work as a trapping instructor for the Yukon government for 37 years.

Alex and his wife, Sue VanBibber, managed outfitting operations for decades and were founding members of the Yukon Outfitters Association and Yukon Fish and Game Association.

He was known to say that he was proudest of receiving the Clay Pugh Memorial Award for Sportsman of the Year from the Yukon Fish and Game Association in recognition of his work with youth. Over the years, Alex crossed paths with well-known figures like the late U.S. senator Robert Kennedy and his son, Robert Kennedy Jr., Prime Minister Stephen Harper, and U.S. secretary of state Hilary Clinton.

Alex was also featured in several movies, including Yukon Safari (1954), Arrow for a Grizzly Bear (1956), Challenge to be Free (1975) and The Last Trapper (2004).

Alex's large family with his late wife, Sue VanBibber, is his greatest legacy. Alex and Sue celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary before she passed away at age 99 in 2011.

Alex is survived by his brother, Pat VanBibber, sisters Lynch Curry, Kathleen Thorpe and Lucy Fulton, daughter Kathy VanBibber, and more than 150 grandchildren, great grandchildren and great-great grandchildren.

"When we heard Grampa Daddy (Alex's family nickname) wasn't going to recover, 17 members of our family got on a plane to be with him in Calgary, plus the five who were already with him," said Alex's granddaughter Denise Beattie.

"We were fortunate to spend his last two days with him. He was surrounded by people who loved him."

Wastewater Treatment Plant performance remains unsatisfactory

It's been eight months since the last time that Dawson City was supposed to take over the ownership of the Fifth Avenue Wastewater Treatment Plant (WWTP, as it says on the side of the building). Prior to that it had been 16 months since the plant went into operation for what was supposed to have been a year long trial period during which all possible bugs in the system would be dealt with and local personnel would be trained to run the place.

At no time since then has the plant performed to the specifications that were promised by the contractor, Corix, when the project was pitched to the territorial government and the town in the beginning. It continued to underperform during the most recent set of tests conducted in late October.

Just why the plant is not managing to meet a significant number of the required test results is not clear. There are many tests that it does pass, according to Catherine Harwood, the territorial government's project manager on this file, but she concedes that the regular failures are enough to be of concern.

Dawson's effluent has always posed problems for any of the secondary treatment methods that have been proposed. To begin with the water from the wells is so cold that it has to be warmed up before being sent through the pipes to residences and businesses. Bleeders have to be used from the early fall through to the late spring in order to keep it flowing. Sewage and water lines have been known to freeze in the middle of the summer.

The earliest proposals for a mechanical treatment system stalled over costs and the theoretical possibility that the water was too cold for the microbes used in treating the effluent to work properly.

As the government ministers never seem to tire of reminding Liberal or NDP members when they ask questions about the plant, it came about as a result of the cash strapped (and eventually bankrupt) City of Dawson's inability to contest the court case levied against the town some 14 years ago, with the result the town pleaded guilty to dumping the vaguely worded "deleterious substances" into the Yukon River, an act which somehow managed to get it on the same national Sierra Club offenders' list as Halifax, Montreal, Victoria and St. Johns.

Unable to contest the case, the town pleaded guilty, triggering a long drawn out series of court hearings and regular reports that ran through several options. One of these was a sewage lagoon, which many residents, and particularly the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, felt should not have been placed more or less across the highway from the Tr'ondëk (or C4) Subdivision. A plebiscite forbade the town from granting the government a development permit for this project.

Then came Corix, promising what was pitched as a vertical lagoon with some mechanical additions at the far end of the process. The resulting plant, somewhat delayed in construction by the surprise discovery of four coffins and the remains of individuals who had been executed by the Northwest Mounted Police, has never achieved the success that was promised.

No one sees to know quite why, and questions in the legislature skirt the issue by going back to the history and ending with some version of Minister Cathers' response to the NDP's Kevin Barr on November 6:

"The Government of Yukon and the City of Dawson are working together to ensure that the Dawson waste-water treatment plant meets the contract terms and conditions. We remain committed to ensuring the operation and maintenance costs are manageable for this plant as well. In fact, government — both the Department of Community Services and the Department of Highways and Public Works have worked closely, and will continue to do so, with the City of Dawson, both at the elected level and at the administrative level, to ensure that together, we are holding Corix to the terms of the contract and are doing everything within our power to ensure that the plant performs as it is supposed to by holding the contractor to the terms of the contract."

Until the plant works properly it continues to be run by Corix under the supervision of the territorial government. The Dawson Public Works Dept. is assisting with some matters, as it did with the plant flooded out the rear doors during the winter of 2013. At another time the plant was found to contain unacceptable levels of mould. At still other times it simply fails to meet some of the requirements of the town's water licence.

What has exceeded expectations is the estimate of the continuing cost of running the facility once the city takes ownership of it.

Most recently this has been cited at $360,000 annually, but that is about one-third more than the original estimates, and Dawson CAO Jeff Renaud informed council on November 12 that the overall numbers "are significantly above the previously advertised amount."

Renaud also indicated then that Yukon Government representatives would be coming to town to meet with council and administration later in November.

Interviewed on December 2, Renaud indicated that the meeting had been held, but that nothing beyond continuing reassurances emerged from the discussions.

CPAWS, YCS and First Nations claim victory for the Peel Watershed

Press release

(December WHITEHORSE 2, 2014) - Earlier today Mr. Justice Ron Veale of the Supreme Court of Yukon announced his decision in The First Nation of Nacho Nyak Dun et. al. v The Government of Yukon, the lawsuit concerning the Peel Watershed launched by the First Nation of Nacho Nyak Dun, Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, Canadian Parks and Wilderness Society Yukon Chapter (CPAWS Yukon) and the Yukon Conservation Society (YCS).

In his reasons for judgment, Justice Veale agreed with the plaintiffs that Yukon Government violated the land use planning process laid out in the Umbrella Final Agreement (UFA) with respect to the Peel Watershed Land Use Plan. The planning process will now return to the stage where Yukon Government ran it off the rails - the final round of consultation with First Nations and the public. The court order constrains Yukon Government the modifications they previously proposed but the question of the amount of land protected and the question of access are off limits.

Upon hearing today's news Chief Ed Champion of the First Nation of Nacho Nyak Dun said, "We are very happy to see the courts honour and uphold the integrity of the Umbrella Final Agreement and Yukon First Nation agreements. We want to thank Justice Veale for all of his hard work and the thought and time he put into this decision."

"We're thrilled with the decision," says CPAWS Yukon Executive Director Gill Cracknell, "This is not just a victory for the plaintiffs, but for everyone who has given generously of their time, money, and voices to see the Peel Watershed protected."

The plaintiffs launched the legal proceedings on January 27, 2014, alleging that Yukon Government broke with the land use planning process laid out in the UFA, and incorporated in all the First Nations Final Agreements in Yukon. The plaintiffs sought to have the process set out in the UFA upheld and to see the planning through to a conclusion that would protect more than 54,000 square kilometres of wilderness in northern Yukon's Peel River Watershed from mining and other industrial development. The week of July 7 – 10th renowned lawyer Thomas R. Berger argued the landmark constitutional case in Yukon Supreme Court in front of a packed house. The case was then continued on October 24th to accommodate a deeper discussion focused on remedy.

Christina Macdonald, Executive Director of the Yukon Conservation Society, explained, "This is not just a victory for the Peel, but for land use planning across the Territory."

Chief Roberta Joseph of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in added, "The Peel River Watershed is as sacred to our people as it was to our ancestors, and through this decision today we have ensured it will remain so for our grandchildren."

The details of a community celebration to honour this historic victory will announced by the plaintiffs in the near future.

Statement prepared Thomas Berger, Q.C. Reasons for Judgement -The First Nation of Nacho Nyak Dun et al. v. Government of

This is a remarkable judgment. The land use planning process in the Umbrella Final Agreement signed by Canada, Yukon First Nations and the Yukon Government in 1993, and entrenched in the Constitution has been vindicated.

The collaborative process for long-term land use planning provided for in the UFA is unique in that it does not allow the Yukon Government to exercise complete authority over land use planning. Instead, it enables First Nations and Yukoners to 216 "the Government of Yukon use planning.

The decade-long land use planning process for the Peel Watershed began with the work of the Peel Watershed Planning Commission. In 2009, the Commission recommended that 80% of the Peel Watershed (over 68,000 square kilometres in extent, situate in the traditional territories of the First Nation of Nacho Nyak Dun, the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, the Vuntut Gwitchin, and the Tetlit Gwich'in) be protected, with 20% open to industrial development. This balance was struck by the Commission after years of study and consultation with all parties and with Yukoners.

The Government of Yukon Recommended Plan came out, to consider its position. In 2011, the Yukon Government advised that it did not dispute the main recommendations of the Recommended Plan. As the Court has found, the Yukon Government offered "criticism", but did not identify any specific changes to the Commission's detailed Recommended Plan. The Court has found that these were too "vague and general" and that the Commission was justified in determining that these should not be treated as proposed modifications.

Nevertheless, at the 11th hour, the Yukon Government sought to cast aside the Commission's plan, and substitute their own protected land almost wholly in protected. their discretion.

As the Judge said at para.

play an important part in land usurped the Commission's role in the planning process and introduced new substantive proposed modifications that were neither consulted on [at the appropriate stage nor put to the Commission for consideration." The Judge went on "the process

> Government has chosen, after seven years of collaboration, was a profound and marked departure from its previous approach."

> The Judge said at para. 221, these "statements of preference for more balance and access were too vague and general, and failed to give detail sufficient for the Commission to address

In the result, the balance had an opportunity when the struck by the Commission, after consultation with the First Nations and Yukoners, has been upheld. The Court has directed that the final consultation with First Nations and Yukoners which the Court has found was not fairly conducted by the Yukon Government - must be held again, but has also held that the Yukon Government does not have any authority at this final stage to derail the proceedings again.

The Umbrella Agreement provides for unique, community-based, collaborative land use planning process. The vindication of this process is a great victory for the First Nations, the environmental organizations, and all Yukoners. Land Use Planning process is temporarily suspended

Press release

WHITEHORSE (December 1, 2014) — The Government of Yukon, Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in and Vuntut Gwitchin Government have mutually agreed to suspend the Dawson Regional Land Use Planning process.

The three parties decided to take this step after the recent conclusion of the Peel Watershed land use planning court

As the courts are considering a case directly related to Yukon's regional land use planning process, all parties agree that it is critical to receive clarity before continuing with the planning process in the Dawson region.

The Dawson Regional Land Use Planning process operates in accordance with Chapter 11 of the Yukon First Nation Final Agreements, using the same provisions that governed the Peel Watershed land use planning process.

The parties will re-engage when there is final resolution in the Peel Watershed court case to determine how best to proceed with the Dawson regional planning process.

Senior representatives from all governments have met and are working to ensure the valuable work done to date by the Dawson Regional Land Use Planning Commission is preserved so that work can be resumed when all parties are confident in the process.

CKS would like to wish you a Happy Holiday Season.

This December we are asking people to help us out by donating their refundable recycling to our organization.

We will have a series of bins set up around town and will also be accepting donations at both the downtown and landfill depots. Your donations will help us to continue to serve the community better and continue to deal with all of the non-refundable recycling as well.

We will also be closing the depots between December 21st to the 28th we will be open at the Downtown depot on the 29th and 30th of December and closed again until the 3rd of January.

Morin named new RCMP detachment commander for Dawson

Press release

DAWSON - A Dawson City RCMP corporal has been promoted to sergeant and detachment commander.

Sgt. Dave Morin spent three years as second in command, and will take over from Sgt. Dave Wallace, who transferred to Whitehorse last month.

"My family and I have been blessed with great experiences and friends in each of the Yukon communities we've lived in, and that continues to be the case here in Dawson City," Morin said late last week in an RCMP news release.

"It's a great town, with fantastic people and a rich history. I truly appreciate the support I've received from the First Nation, the City of Dawson and all members of the community."

Morin joined the RCMP in 1996 and spent five years posted in Lac La Biche, Alta. He transferred to the Yukon in 2001 and has worked in Pelly Crossing, Haines Junction and Ross River.

Morin was selected for the role of detachment commander through a process that included input from the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in First Nation and the City of Dawson.

"The previous Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Chief and Council were active participants in choosing Dawson City's next RCMP detachment commander, and our newly elected council are pleased to endorse this selection," said Chief Roberta Joseph.

in our town, and we are excited such a respected member of the RCMP was promoted to this key community position.

"We have a positive relationship with the RCMP and believe Sgt. Morin's selection ensures an even stronger bond in the future."

Mayor Wayne Potoroka echoed James' statements:

"Dawson City has a special relationship with the RCMP, and Sgt. Morin is the perfect choice for leading our local detachment.

He and his family are already a special part of our town, which we believe will ensure a smooth transition for them and our community."

As one of its commitments under Sharing Common Ground: Review of Yukon's Police Force, the RCMP provides community leadership with an opportunity to participate in the selection of their local detachment commanders.

"The detachment commander plays a really key role in the community," said Insp. Ken "Sgt. Dave Morin is well known Foster, the district policing officer of the RCMP in the Yukon.

"Not only are they responsible for managing and leading the detachment, they are the main link to local leadership when it comes to identifying and addressing the needs and priorities of the community.

"The detachment commander is an ambassador of the RCMP to the community and a vital conduit for the community back to the Division leadership team."

Enjoying an evening in sweet land

Home Routes tours don't usually finish in Dawson, but Kristin Sweetland was so flexible in her scheduling (in spite of spraining her back) that she agreed to host a songwriters' circle in Dawson, go on to house concerts in Old Crow and Inuvik, and then perform one last time in Dawson on November 30, before hopping into her car and beginning the long drive back to Toronto.

Sweetland made her early success on the folkish side of the music business, but has since decided not to be pigeon holed, as evidenced by the three instruments on stands at the front of the living room as the audience arrives.

There's a gorgeous acoustic guitar on the left that she says cost more than she could really afford when she bought it, but she's never regretted the purchase. It's the one she uses for the folkier tunes and the instrumentals. The latter have a feel that is somewhere between finger-style and classical.

Then out comes the big electric and her sound moves into rock territory.

The little thing on the right is not a mandolin, she tells us. It's actually a pint sized twelve string electric guitar. Its pitch and register enable her to take on a third persona.

She likes story songs and has an interest in history. She writes songs inspired by historical events like military battles and Greek myths, as well as others about the end of the world and sailing ships. She sings in both official languages, plays the tiniest harmonica her audience has ever seen ("four holes and truth I call it," she says) and manages to hold a pipe in her mouth without dropping it or drooling too much all the way through an instrumental homage to Sherlock Holmes she calls "A Three Pipe Problem."

Her stage patter is a notch above the usual, turning each intro into something that is almost a little performance piece, something that entices her audience to pay attention.

She encourages us to do some simple singing along with her mid-way through the evening, insists that we do most of the singing for "Your are my sunshine" (because that tiny harmonica is in her mouth) and coaches us through a rousing rendition of "Goodnight Irene" to finish off the show.

She enjoyed her brief time in Dawson and even enjoyed her snowmobile ride up to the top of the Dome, through it did throw out her back again after it had almost got better. She said it was worth it.

Eleanor Millard needed hardly any introduction to the group of 12 who came out to hear her reading at the Dawson Community Library on November 15. All but three members of her audience have known her for years.

A long time Yukoner, she lived in Dawson for a number of years, serving as a social worker, building custodian, adult educator and MLA for the former riding of Ogilvie, which began in the town's North End and stretched all the way to Old Crow. She even served briefly as the Minister of Education in the days before party politics would have made that impossible.

Her stories about that part of her life were related in her second book, a memoir called Journeys Outside and In, and she began her reading with a bit of that, including some memories of flying in the DC3 that now serves as a weather vane outside the Transportation Museum.

She now lives near Carcross and works part time for Yukon Learn, which fits in nicely with the years she spent in Dawson running Project Northern Tutor.

Her first book, River Child, was a collection of connected short stories concerned with life among the First Nations people in Dawson, especially those who had the experience of being taken to residential schools. For this she drew upon her experiences as a social worker and adult educator in the Klondike.

Her most recent book, Summer Snow, is a novel focused on the issue of Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder. While it is informed by her experience of having adopted and raised a girl (now 47) who suffered from this condition, she maintains that it is not strictly autobiographical. It is set during the time when the authorities, either in government of education, did not want to acknowledge or deal with the problem, ostensibly because to do so would involve labeling the children so afflicted. Millard considers this to have been a serious mistake.

Conversation continued for some time after she finished her reading selections, with Millard telling stories about flying mishaps: the time she nearly set a plane on fire (in the days when smoking was still allowed; the time that adhesive tape failed as a duct tape substitute when patching a damaged wing; the time the pilot forgot to put the gas cap back on the tank. Then there was the time that she learned the other meaning of IFR, which usually stands for Instrument Flight Rules, but in the North can often mean I Follow Rivers.

It was a pleasant evening with lots of laughs.

Millard stayed another day to hawk her three books and visit during the Dawson Daycare Christmas Bazaar.

Gold returned to the Klondike in the form of junior boys volleyball medals Saturday.

The Robert Service School Knights defeated the Porter Creek Rams in three sets to earn a rare championship for Dawson City.

The deciding games of the Yukon volleyball championships were held Saturday at F.H. Collins Secondary School.

The Knights stormed out to an early lead in the first set, but went on to lose it 25-22 after the feisty Rams eventually evened things up at 22-22.

But backed by a rowdy crowd of Dawson City supporters, the Knights regrouped to win two straight sets by scores of 25-17 and 15-7.

Knights' powerhouse Zack Bartholomeus was named the tournament's most valuable player.

"It's really exciting," the Grade 10 student told the Star post-game. "We've been working hard all season. I'm really happy."

The Knights finished second to the F.H. Collins Warriors No. 1 team in the round-robin, but beat both Vanier Crusaders teams in the playoffs to earn a berth in the final.

Meanwhile, the Rams upset the first-place Warriors in their semifinal Friday night to gain a date with the Knights.

Bartholomeus said the small-town nature of Dawson City helped his team grow together over the years.

"We all know each other and work really well together as a team," the 15-year-old said. "We've been working as a team since Grade 7."

He expected a big party to be thrown upon the team's return to the Klondike.

"It will be awesome," he said.

This year's championship actually marked the third kick at the can for the Dawson squad, who bypassed the Grade 8 tripleball format to compete against older players in Grade 9 and 10.

The group won the Grade 8 championships in 2011 when they were all in Grade 7.

Rams coach Tara Wardle said she was happy for the Knights program.

"It's just fantastic," she said. "It's been a long time since the communities have come in and been able to field a team that's not only competitive, but can win this tournament.

"I have to give credit to the coach up in Dawson. They've been doing a phenomenal job with their program and it's starting to pay off."

Wardle said her team's bench was decimated by injuries and other issues prior to the weekend.

"We didn't win a game in the round robin," she added. "It took us a while to find our chemistry."

Porter Creek was represented in all four volleyball finals this year.

Alongside Bartholomeus, other members of the Knights included: Jacob Caley, Caleb Verdonk, John Kolpin, John Dagostin, Will Connellan and Connor Fellers. Kolpin and Dagostin served as co-captains for the young club.

"It's special," Knights coach Steve Laszlo said of the gold medal win. "They've been a special group since I've started with them in Grade 7.

"They've worked hard and it's really neat to see. They were a really determined bunch this year. They wanted it and I think it showed on the court.

"We've been to the dance but we haven't won in this division in a while," Laszlo added. "It's special to win."

Prior to the medal presentation, tournament official Peter Grundmanis told the crowd that the junior players were the first to play developmental triple-ball when it was first introduced in the territory three years ago.

"Look where it's got them," he said, noting that this group will form the backbone of the Yukon's next Canada Games squad.

The Warriors No. 1 team beat the Crusaders No. 1 team for bronze.

TWENTY YEARS AGO IN THE SUN

The Sun obtained funding in late 2009 from the City of Dawson, YTG's Heritage Branch and the Community Development Fund to conserve and archive early issues and make them available once again in the public domain. This is a great resource for students, writers and historians, and also for prospective tourists with an interest in Dawson City's life. Each month, we are re-printing our front pages from 20 years ago (seen above) as a souvenir of our lively history. If you want to see page 2 and beyond, check out our website. Past issues are available there for download. Go to http://klondikesun.com. More will be added periodically (heh) when we have time!

World Heritage Status wouldn't force out miners

By Jackie Olson, executive director, Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in

I write to clarify comments made by Wade Carrell in his letter dated Nov. 10 ("Sandy Silver and the Liberals are coming out") regarding the Tr'ondëk-Klondike UNESCO World Heritage bid.

It is absolutely untrue that UNESCO World Heritage status would "eliminate gold miners from the Klondike," as Mr. Carrell suggests.

There are no new rules or regulations imposed by this designation—it is commemorative only—and our gold mining heritage is one of the elements the Tr'ondëk-Klondike World Heritage Site would celebrate. In fact, our bid is strengthened by a healthy gold-mining industry.

We are very excited the greater Dawson City community is working on this bid.

Tourist operators, citizens, business people, community leaders, and representatives from the placer-mining community have come together to determine what is special about our area that needs to be committed for all time to human memory.

In that way, this project has already succeeded in uniting disparate groups to work towards a common goal. And when the time comes to formally submit our application for designation, we all go there together or don't go there at all. World heritage status is never imposed on a community.

Communication about the world heritage bid is an important part of this project, and we welcome anyone with questions about our work to contact us at 867-993-2429 or visit www.tkwhstatus.ca.

We have reached out to groups, individuals and organizations to share information about what to expect (and not expect) from a successful bid.

Mr. Carrell's comments are a reminder there is ever more work to do.

Editor's note: Carrell's letter in the Whitehorse Star followed the announcement (reported here Nov. 12) that the territorial government had confirmed project funding in the amount of $382,700 over the next three fiscal years. This allows the committee to access about twice that amount in funding over two years from CanNor, which had agreed to fund this project provided there was also funding from other sources.

Yukon First Nations are governments - Premier Pasloski

Press release

WHITEHORSE (December 4, 2014) —Yukon Premier Darrell Pasloski is asking Canada's Minister of Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Bernard Valcourt to correct the record about self-governing Yukon First Nations. The premier will raise this matter directly with Minister Valcourt.

"The Umbrella Final Agreement is a foundational piece of the governance structure of Yukon and clearly provides for the development of First Nation Self-Government Agreements," Pasloski said. "Since the signing of the Umbrella Final Agreement, 11 of 14 Yukon First Nations have signed such agreements and are now fully self-governing."

The federal Minister of Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development recently stated incorrectly that Yukon First Nations are not recognized by the Umbrella Final Agreement
(UFA) as governments.
However, Chapter 24 of the UFA clearly provides for First Nation self-government.

"Yukon First Nation final agreements make up just under half of Canada's modern land claim agreements, and Yukon First Nations are global leaders in the area of Aboriginal selfgovernment," Pasloski said. "This is something all Yukoners can be incredibly proud of."

Since the signing of land claims and self-government agreements, successive Yukon governments have worked with Yukon First Nations on a government-to-government basis.

"It is important that the federal Minister of Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development recognizes selfgoverning First Nations as an order of government," Pasloski added.

Yukon tourism leaders take home two Canadian Tourism Awards

Press release

WHITEHORSE (November 27, 2014) —Two of the four Yukon finalists for Canadian Tourism Awards are bringing home awards after last night's gala event in Ottawa.

The annual Tourism Industry Association of Canada's Tourism Awards recognize success, leadership and innovation in the Canadian tourism industry.
Yukon MP Ryan Leef and Senator Dan Lang helped present the awards to the Yukon winners.

The two Yukon winners are:

• The Dakhká Khwáan Dancers – The National Cultural Tourism Award presented by the Federal-Provincial-Territorial Culture & Heritage and Tourism Initiative recognizing a cultural organization that demonstrates a commitment to the development and promotion of authentic, innovative and enriched cultural tourism visitor experiences.

• The Pan-North Territorial Consortium

- The Fairmont Hotels & Resorts Marketing Campaign of the Year Award recognizing the organization that has devised and implemented an outstanding tourism marketing campaign or initiative.

The two other Yukon finalists were Holland

America Line in Dawson City and Jill Pangman and her company Sila Sojourns.

"Congratulations to the Dakhká Khwáan Dancers and the Pan-North Territorial Consortium for bringing home tourism awards," Minister of Tourism and Culture Mike Nixon said. "Each of the Yukon nominees makes an important contribution to Yukon's tourism sector and economy."

A total of 15 organizations and individuals from across Canada were recognized with tourism awards.
