Drama Of Yukon's Entry To World War One To Be Marked Aug. 4 In Dawson City

Press Release of the outbreak of war in 1914 happened 100 years to the day.

The public is invited to Dawson at 7 p.m. on Monday effort to focus on a lesser-known August 4, the 100th anniversary of the start of WW1. Event coordinator Max Fraser said partners in the occasion are the Yukon Historical and Museums Association, the Dawson Branch anniversaries upon us (2014of the Royal Canadian Legion 2018), a number of community and Parks Canada, Klondike National Historic Sites. The public is welcome; admission is bringing new light to this free.

The evening program includes a ceremony to mark the start of the Yukon's leading citizen at the war, followed by the story of how the news of war arrived in Dawson. Parks Canada staff regiment that was mobilized will perform a skit based on the memoir of Martha Black, wife of Commissioner George Black, as to fight with distinction in the told in her memoir My Seventy Years. Uffish Thoughts: Cellphone woes and bothersome billings

By Dan Davidson

"Maybe it's time for some journalistic exposé," said one of the annoyed business people at the monthly meeting of the Dawson City Chamber of Commerce, and all heads turned in my direction.

The subject that had dominated the discussion for the last twenty minutes had been the highly variable service that the town has been receiving from Bell Canada (cell phones) and NorthwesTel (regular phones and Internet) since the big switch to Bell Mobility that finally took place with the arrival of our April cellphone bills.

The discussion had been a litany of woes. Cell phone users that couldn't reach landlines and vice-versa. Companies with multiple cell phones that weren't able to talk to each other. Spotty connections and dropped conversations. Connections that sound like the speakers are under water and the signal is being bounced off the moon.

No one in that conversation had found any satisfaction out of talking to the help lines of either company, which may be located in Whitehorse, Ontario or the Philippines. Bell blames NorthwesTel. NorthwesTel blames Bell.

Billing was one of the issues.

I gave up this month and lems they were causing and month like I had been doing, signed on to be able to pay my (polite) suggestions as to how bill by credit card over the in- to fix them. ATTENTION RESIDENTS OF DAWSON CITY

This flyer is to inform you of a proposed reduction in service at the Dawson City Post Office. Canada Post plans to cut the hours of service to you, the public, by opening later and closing earlier each weekday. The proposed new hours of service will be 9:00 - 5:00 Monday through Friday and 11:30 - 2:30 Saturday.

This service reduction will decrease your access to pick up or mail parcels, buy or cash money orders, pick up call for items, such as registered letters, Xpresspost or purchase postal products, etc. Your community requires and deserves service equal to that of any other city or town in the country.

Canadian Postmasters and Assistants Association (CPAA) is the union which represents Canada Post employees in rural Canada.

CPAA is not in favour of a reduction in postal service to your community, but we need your support.

Canada Post has recently announced its plan to pursue the privatization of Postal Outlets. Corporate Post Offices staffed by CPAA members have a proven record of providing responsible, professional and consistent service. CPAA Post Offices are staffed by trained, competent and reliable employees. CPAA members have the ability to meet the needs of the communities we serve. We know and understand our communities and have earned the trust and respect of our neighbours.

We know that rural Canadians rely on their postal service. Should Rural Canadians be expected to tolerate a reduced level of Postal Service? We urge you to take up the cause and insist that the Federal Government halt the steady erosion of postal service in our Rural Communities. As a Federal Crown Corporation, Canada Post takes direction from our Federal Government. Let your MP, Ryan Leef, know that you are not in favour of a reduction in your postal service. We want to see that your community's postal service is not reduced. Please share your opinions with your MP, CPAA and Canada Post Customer Service 1-800-267-1177.

CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS: Dawson Daily News Print & Publishing Symposium Postcard Story Competition.

As part of the upcoming 3rd Edition of the Dawson Daily News Print & Publishing Symposium, Aug 15 – 17, The Dawson City Community Library and Klondike Institute of Art & Culture are accepting submissions to their Postcard Story Competition.

We're looking for the best story of up to 150 words in the English language on the theme of "My Inner Animal." It can be humorous, dramatic, poetic ... it's up to you and your creativity. Grab a postcard, write your 150-word submission (legibly, please), and send it to us.

Award: $150 and 100 printed postcard copies for the winning entry. The winning entry will also be published in the Klondike Sun. The three best entries selected by our jury will be presented aloud at a public event during the 14th Annual Yukon Riverside Arts Festival.

Eligibility: This competition is open to all Canadian citizens and landed immigrants. Story must be previously unpublished, fiction or nonfiction.

Deadline: All entries must be received by KIAC by 5 p.m. on August 15th. Please keep in mind that snail mail can take several days to reach Dawson City.

Back to nature: Stories from First Fish Youth Camp

Story and Photos By Hannah Eden

First Fish youth camp hosted by Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in First Nation took place last week at Moosehide village, Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in sacred land located 3 km down river of Dawson City. Despite the recent Chinook salmon crisis, the camp still went ahead with fish donated by members of the community.

In light in the recent fishing ban, youth attending the First Fish camp were unable to fish Chinook salmon for themselves, however this did not stop the education and fun at one of the most important learning camps for teaching Tr'ondëk traditional culture. After a call out to the community, frozen salmon was donated to the camp in order for the youth to learn for themselves how to prepare and smoke fish according to First Nation tradition.

The historic camp is a fiveday education on salmon processing, ceremonies and talks from elders about salmon cycles and their own stories of life on the Yukon river.

Despite this year's small number of ten youth, spirits were high as many were excited to be returning to a camp, which holds significant childhood memories.

Leilani Sharp-Chan, aged 14 years, who thinks of First Fish camp as a second home.

"I believe this is my fourth year," shares Sharp-Chan. "It's really fun for me to just come out here and be myself and connect with the land."

A tie to nature is what brings the youth back to the camp – a chance to sleep in the wooden cabins on the hills of Moosehide village and get away from the busy life down river in Dawson City.

"I love being out on the river and the boats," shares Olivia Holmes, aged 14 years. "It's a really great way to connect with the earth and Mother Nature. Sometimes you get all caught up in the Dawson busyness. It's nice to come out here and feel remote. And remind yourself of how it all started – how the grocery stores naturally get fish."

With no one casting nets for Chinook salmon into the waters of the Yukon river, the salmon processing workshop with elder Angie-Joseph-Rear was a new experience for some of the older youth who had previously caught and processed their own fish.

The donated king, Chinook and chum salmon were prepared by the children for smoking – some of the younger youth had never before prepared fish, a important tradition.

During the workshop, Joseph-Rear stressed the importance of refraining from fishing until escapement numbers for Chinook salmon have been met.

Youth and coordinators set up the original smokehouse ready for the dozens of salmon to hang for two weeks – soon to be used for feasts for the community. For those that are not of First Nation descent or from the Yukon area, to be a part of the First Fish youth camp was a chance to have an inside look into a community surrounded by so much history and culture.

"I was in Beaver Creek last year," shares Sara Folkins, Youth Program Coordinator for Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, originally from Halifax, Nova Scotia. "Half way through the summer, I wanted to see what Dawson had to offer. I fell in love with the place so I thought, why not come back!"

In the true spirit of the North, youth and coordinators from all parts of Canada came together to make this year's First Fish youth camp a success. Despite the sudden changes in fishing regulation, tradition was still kept intact.

For more on First Fish Youth camp, visit klondikesun.com for a brand new multimedia piece.

Donated salmon hangs from the beams of the traditional smokehouse in Moosehide village. The salmon will smoke for two weeks before feeding the community.

Como Mamas brought gospel to the Palace Grand

By Dan Davidson

For those who just can't wait for the Dawson City Music Festival to begin, the DCMF has developed a tradition of holding a pre-festival concert the night before the Main Stage Tent

This year the pre-festival attraction was the Como Mamas, a trio of a capella gospel singers from the small town of Como, Mississippi. Ester Mae Smith and the sisters Angela Taylor and Della Daniels have been singing since they were kids, mostly in church choirs.

That's their main interest and they are unabashedly forthright in putting some part of the Christian gospel in every song they perform. They generally make that clear by speaking the main message of each tune just before they launch into it.

One of the two sisters was missing in the lineup for their Dawson appearance at the Palace Grand, but the singer filling in did a fine job.

The lineup for the show was around the corner onto Third Avenue by just after 7. The seats would probably all have been full if people had not chosen to

Brandon Isaak was in Dawson to play two shows during the first week in July. The versatile and personable performer was live and solo on Canada Day as part of this season's Live at the Palace Grand series, and then again as part of his Silver Screen Scoundrels pairing with Keith Picot on July 4.

Isaak's solo set featured material from his first two solo albums, Bluesman's Plea (2012) and his latest "Here on Earth" (released in March), as well as a few cover tunes. The solo showcased the serious side of Brandon Isaak, which is not to say that he was at all glum or downhearted, just that he was less given to the whimsy that dominated the concert with Picot on the Friday.

Isaak is a fine guitarist and harmonica player and has a good line of stage patter, but the set-up for a song can make it quite a different experience. As a solo act he presented "Water Your Garden: from his first album, as a sort of homage to family life and his father's fondness for gardening. Three nights later, a different intro and a slightly different emphasis on the delivery turned it into a tune full of double entendres. It's not that they weren't there the first time round, but they were much more obvious the second time.

In between shows, Isaak and Picot were shooting some scenes around town as part of what Isaak described washed away during the times of three or four generations of my family going to residential school. Also, because of the gold rush, we lost a lot of our cultures and traditions."

As alcohol consumption is frowned upon in most First Nation communities, Morberg-Green asked the elders for permission, to use alcohol in her practices - vodka and brandy are key ingredients to some of her homemade treatments as the alcohol balanced out the potent herbs and flavours.

Using her knowledge of plant life and healing techniques through her winter studies in Victoria, British Columbia, Morberg-Green helps guests get in touch with their inner-selves by teaching a plethora of subjects from healthy medicine alternatives to speaking out positive thoughts.

"Listen to every word that you say or think. Be very aware," says Morberg-Green during one of her afternoon presentations.

"Often what we think is reflected in our words and your body listens to everything you say. If you say 'I'm tired – I'm always tired', your body is going to comply. Before you have an emotion, you first have to have a thought. You can't have an emotion without first thinking."

Positive thinking and banishing bad energy is what Morberg-Green believes keeps her so youthful - her appearance would not reveal her age nor the fact that she is a grandmother to a 6 year old child.

"So often when I have a bad thought attack and I smudge and I pray and if it's not going away, I ask 'What's this about?"" shares Morberg-Green as an intimate group of ten guests listen intently.

"We seem to really remember the not good things over the good things. You can train your mind to choose which thoughts you choose to entertain."

Dividing homemade high bush cranberry juice amongst the respectfully silent crowd, Morberg-Green explains how the Han people believed there was a universal power that ran through all living things. Those supernatural properties can be accessed through cleansing juices, oils and teas to relieve the body and mind of toxins and negative energy associated with daily life.

"In today's world, our bodies are in complete mass confusion with all the stimulation," explains Morberg-Green.

"We have unnatural sources of light that keep us up longer - we don't listen to when we have to go to sleep."

Morberg-Green ends her presentation on a positive note: a question hangs in the air - what do you want to focus your energy on?

This is the underlying theme to all of Morberg-Green's soothing words as she believes not only in the positive power of plants for the body, but in the importance of caring for your mind.

Organizers for Moosehide Gathering prepare to feed the masses

Story & Photos By Hannah Eden

Moosehide Gathering preparations have officially begun with the latest edition to the three day feast - a bull moose. The moose was shot and killed by Ryan Peterson, Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Fish and Wildlife Steward with the help of friend Bobby Blanchard, his daughter Mikaila and friend Kalilah Olson in the early hours of the morning on Thursday July 10th.

The 1250 pound bull male was shot shortly after 5 a.m. - a long four hours after the group departed along the dawnsoaked Dempster Highway to provide for the gathering.

Moosehide Gathering, a celebration of traditions hosted by Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in First Nation, is to be held on Thursday July 24 to Sunday July 27 at Moosehide Village, 3 km down river of Dawson City. The gathering is open to anyone who wants to experience traditional dance, song and workshops provided by Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in and surrounding nations.

With this in mind, organizers realized that food may be in short supply after a moose donated by the RCMP proved too small.

"We were at work and we needed a moose for Moosehide Gathering and since I am working for Ryan Peterson with Fish and Wildlife, we went and got a moose as it was our responsibility," says Mikaila Blanchard.

"We were driving everywhere up the Dempster to see if we could see a moose and we got to Two Moose Lake and there were four."

With an antler spread of nearly 60 inches, the moose is sure to feed the thousands that are likely to attend the gathering.

"Based on the last (gathering), 3000 people attended," says Tyla Crowe, Moosehide Gathering coordinator.

"We feed up to 1000 people a day. The people that are doing the dinner are going to do a head count in the lineup to figure out how many people are there."

For the two young hunters, Mikaila Blanchard and Kalilah Olson, the experience was forget - to transport the moose back to Dawson City was a job for experts in traditional First Nation hunting techniques.

As is tradition, the severed head must be facing away from the body while the rest of the moose is prepared for transportation. Once back in Dawson City, both girls tried their hand at traditional preparations by skinning the

"That was my first time skinning a moose head," says Blanchard. "I had never seen anyone do that before. We were just figuring it out as we went it worked!"

Both young women were not fazed by the situation and calmly took to completing the task ahead.

"You can't really say it's gross something they are not likely to because its disrespectful to the animals and then they are not going to want to be shot by you anymore," says Blanchard.

"Then you're not going to get a moose. You can't be cutting up the body and be saying 'ew' and 'gross' because it's disrespectful to the animal."

The generous free feast provided by Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in is not the only magical moment awaiting guests - hundreds of traditional dancers from Alaska and the Yukon will be performing: a real first hand taste of the spirit of the North.

"It's the only other festival in the Yukon where almost every First Nation dance troop will be here and perform," shares

"It's a huge insight into Aboriginal culture. Of all the ways you can experience the heart of the people, the best is through its music. A really important part of the gathering is all the indigenous groups that are coming from Alaska."

Celebrated every two years, Moosehide Gathering is not to be missed: culture and heritage is ready to be explored at Moosehide Village.

"They [Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in First Nation] hadn't had a big celebration in many generations and so it was the first," explains Crowe. "It was the start of taking their culture back."

Formed 11 years ago after a resurgence to regain culture that was at a loss, the gathering at Moosehide village is on sacred land, one which all visitors are expected to respect by adhering to the no drink or drugs policy.

"The Moosehide Gathering took place for the first time when the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in people were really trying to be focused on cultural revitalization," shares Crowe.

"It was around the time they signed their final agreement and they became a selfgoverning nation. And they had a really good focus on re-learning their traditional language- a lot of it had been

If you are feeling crafty, there is a plethora of workshops to choose from: bead work to drums, from fiddle music to heritage lessons. There is something for everyone at this year's Moosehide Gathering.

Fire Department Open House was for the locals

Story & Photos By Dan Davidson

While many of the summer events in Dawson are set up to draw in the tourist crowd, that's not always the case.

The Fire Dept. Open House on July 16 was put on for locals, said Fire Chief Jim Regimbal. It wasn't advertised in any of the usual places.

If visitors to town happened to find out about it and turned up for hamburgers, smokies, lemonade and coffee, that was fine with the fire fighters' association, but the main point was to provide an event for locals

Sparky the Fire Dog was on hand, "wearing the fur" (as Stephen King put it in Joyland) to please the kiddies. Children of all ages were invited to try their hand at knocking over a "flame" target with a pressure hose. Fire extinguishers were demonstrated, and kids got a chance to go for a ride in one of the fire trucks.

The Firefighters' Museum was open for tours, including a video slide show of some of the more recent actions by the department. The fire station itself was also open for tours.

There were balloons for the kids, a good many of which either popped or headed to the top of the Midnight Dome when they got away.

The event was well attended and, if smiles are any indication, much appreciated.

Power to the Peel at Dänojà Zho

Story & photos By Dan Davidson

Friday noon (July 11) wrapped up a work-week of noon-hour gatherings at the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre in support of the Peel Watershed court case.

"Step forward and join us for a week of sending positive vibes to the Peel Watershed Court Case," ran the posters at various sites around town.

Friday was a special edition of the gathering, as it was also part of the weekly Radio Zho broadcast over CFYT-fm. Folks gathered at the site and around their radios to hear hosts Trish Lindgren and Allison Anderson welcome fiddler Simon Crelli to the microphone and to tempt folks to come on down to Front St. for some bannock, tea and coffee as well as some traditional singing with a group from the Hän Singers.

Elder Clara van Bibber explained the event to the audience.

Most people, she said, would know about the court case over the Peel Watershed that week, sparked by the territorial government's decision to the reject the official commission's Final Recommended Plan and put forward its own plan, which basically reversed the commission's protected area recommendations.

"Some of our people went (to Whitehorse). In the court case, Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in was involved; Nacho Nyak Dun was involved. The Gwìch'in Tribal Council, which is made up of four communities in the the last day for the circle." Northwest Territories, was part of it. CPAWS and the Yukon Bolt and the DZ staff for setting Conservation Society were part of it also. We were in court with our lawyer, Thomas Berger.

'Many of our people from those communities and everywhere were involved in supporting this court case that was happening in Whitehorse. There were many of us that couldn't make it and so we wanted to do something in our communities."

"So we got together and we did prayer and did tobacco offerings every day this week and today is

Van Bibber thanked Glenda up the event, and Peter Menzies of CFYT for assisting with the broadcast.

The federal government's plans to change Dawson's flight service station to a Community Aerodrome Radio Service will downgrade systems and cause a transfer of employ-

Orest Peach is the regional director for the Labour Organization of the Canadian Association of Professional Radio Operators in Whitehorse. Peach said Transport Canada hasn't announced the specific date, but expects it to come early next year.

"We estimate the change to happen during January or February of 1995," said Peach. "We're working as a labour organization to maintain flight service stations. I'm not sure if we'll have any success, but we'll try and keep some personnel on during busy periods."

Richard McMaster, manager of Dawson's flight service station, said the change would mean transferring five employees to the Whitehorse airport and other western Canada airports.

"I don't know what the plan is because we haven't been informed," said McMaster, "but I'm not that concerned because I know I'll still have a job."

Changing Dawson's current station to to a CARS system is considered a down-grading of services. An by Dan Davidson information-recording machine would replace the flight service specialists currently working at the Dawson's station, limiting the services available for the local airport and pilots.

Flight planning would be done indirectly through Whitehorse, weather briefing would be elimiand rescue would be remote via 1993. Whitehorse.

said Peach. "It would cost about $300,000 to set-up the station. Except for the extra travel pay and isoreduce costs greatly."

Loki Gold on Schedule

Loki Gold will continue following an aggressive schedule for its Brewery Creek operation after conducting a feasibility study of the project.

Brewery Creek is on schedule to start up in August, 1995, though stripping of the site, geotechnical surveying, and road and bridge upgrading are expected to begin this

An initial environmental review is scheduled for mid-July. Loki Gold expects to meet or exceed all environmental and regulatory require-

The project is expected to create 80 new jobs.

Waterfront concert raises funds for local scholarship

The grey Dawson day lightened up and warmed up enough by 7 o'clock on July 15 to allow for a mostly dry piano recital at the Waterfront Gazebo.

Tiss Clark, who has been teaching music at the Robert Service School, Dawson Daycare and Tr'inke Zho Daycare, provided a little over an hour of Brahms, Debussy, Beethoven, Bach and other composers to a small audience gathered around the gazebo.

Page turner Simon Crelli battled the breezes that threatened to blow all the music away and passed the hat to collect money for the Reprise Music Scholarship Fund.

This fund was established through the Dawson City Arts Society a few years ago in memory of three of Dawson's finest musicians, Gord Polichek, Wendy Perry and Willie Gordon. The fund is used to advance music and music education in Dawson.

The sky, which had been threatening rain all day, finally fulfilled that promise during Clark's last two numbers, but there was enough room on the gazebo for her audience to get out of the rain and enjoy the last of the music.

Yukon Riverside, Arts Festival

The 14th Annual Yukon Riverside Arts Festival takes place Aug 14th - 17th, 2014, and aims to provide an accessible environment for community members and visitors to interact directly with artists and explore their own creativity. KIAC will welcome artists practicing traditional and non-traditional contemporary art from the Yukon and abroad, and present workshops, interactive projects, exhibitions, artist talks, live music, kids programming, and more throughout the community on Discovery Days weekend.

Artist Profile: Jordy Walker

Exploring the vast array of possibility within the realm of music and sound, Jordy Walker is an artist in many senses of the word. A composer, producer, recording engineer, sound artist, and multi-instrumentalist, Walker has been a fundamental component of the Yukon music scene for many years and has toured and performed in venues throughout the country. His work has been featured in documentaries and short films for CBC, NFB, The Discovery Channel, and HIFI, among others, as well as in theatre and contemporary dance productions across Canada.

While in Dawson, Walker will be presenting The Guitar Tree - an interactive sound art installation in which participants create an improvised piece using digital sound manipulation and kinetic force. The installation involves two participants at a time, suspended instruments, and the artist himself recording the impromptu sound session, so that it can be e-mailed to those that created it. With this piece, Walker plays with the idea of "controlled randomness" – that space of unknowing where intentionally created sound collides with uncontrollable variables. "It is the infinite nuance inherent to unstructured sound that interests me", says Walker. The Guitar Tree promises to be a captivating, thought-provoking installation that will leave participants and onlookers alike with an experience not soon forgotten.

Artist Profile: Mariana Silva and Juan Cruz Bracamante

Mandrágora circus started as a theatre company in 2002 in the Chubut Province of Patagonia, Argentina. Formed by Mariana Silva and Juan Cruz Bracamonte, who have been performing music, theatre, dance, and circus since 1998, the company premiered the play Mandrágora Circo in 2003. Since 2005, the duo has toured through sixteen countries in Central and South America, the U.S. and Canada, performing in Theatre Festivals and Fairs across the continent. Silva and Bracamonte have been described as mimes, musicians, actors, magicians, comedians, clowns, contortionists, and trapeze artists, among other titles, and have developed an enchanting play full of magic and wonder.

The performance is a wordless story weaved together through humour, love, and dialogue that are made apparent using music, circus skills, and the artists' bodies to convey meaning. Using props such as an umbrella, a violin bow, an accordion, a saw, and juggling clubs, the protagonists will take us on a heartfelt and poetic journey that is sure to inspire the imaginations of children and adults alike. The duo will be performing a free show at the Gazebo on Saturday, August 16th, as well as putting on a kids workshop (TBA). This pair is not to be missed!

THIS IS JUST MY OPINION

by Al Sider

We all live in Glass Houses

This topic will require you, the reader, to open your mind to the vast world of Imagination. I wonder what this world, or rather life on this world, might be like if every building on earth were made of glass. This is where your imagination can come into play. Every building on earth is made of glass, and there are no curtains, or any methods by which to conceal any thing occurring behind those walls. When every small thing that occurs can be scrutinized by every single person, and every person can be scrutinized by everyone else. What would life on our planet be like then? Immorality would be practically nonexistent, murders and rapes would be almost impossible to conceal.

How easy would it be then to commit adultery, to beat ones spouse or children? People would be afraid to do any immoral or illegal action. Thievery, murder, assaults, sexual deviance, all actions deemed "unacceptable" would be virtually nonexistent. Since every action one performed could be observed be every person in the community, the sheer fear of being discovered would prevent one from performing deviant behaviours.

Here is where imagination needs to be in focus once again. Imagine if you will, that there is indeed a real God, one who created the universe, as well as you and I. If in fact this God is real, then in reality, each individual on this planet lives inside a very real "Glass House". But these glass houses are very different from the ones described above. Our very bodies are the glass houses. Everything we say and do, in private, in thought, in public, and in hidden places is observed. Though obviously, these are not observed by everyone, but by the very One who may one day Judge each of us. Before Him, nothing is hidden, not even our deepest secret thoughts. But unlike the Glass Houses above, we are not afraid to act immorally, we lie, cheat, steal, rape, murder, commit sexual deviancy, and I often wonder the reason.

The reason has become quite clear to me, only recently. Our world is quickly turning further and further away from the idea or belief in God, especially a God who is watching your every action, attitude, and knows your most intimate and secret thoughts. The vast majority of atrocities are committed by individuals who do not believe in a God who watches them and who will one day punish them for their actions, but that is not the case for all persons who commit offences.

Sadly, many individuals commit these types of atrocities because of their belief in God. These people believe that they are the instruments of God's vengeance, and that their acts of immorality are condoned by God. Both Muslim terrorists and Christian extremists are examples of these. Then there are those who believe that God gives them ownership of their spouse and children, and this allows them to do as they please with them, no matter how immoral that might be. Let me make this very clear, God does not give permission to any believer to abuse his family. Yes, according to Biblical teachings, as well as teachings in the Qur'an, God does give "ownership" of the wife and children to the husband and fathers, but not in the sense that they are to be abused in any form.

So how does the husband and father "own" his wife and children according to the Bible and Qur'an? The husband is to love his wife as himself, Decisions are to be discussed but the final decision belongs to the husband. Sexually, the wife is not permitted to deny her husband, except by agreement and only for a short period of time. But likewise the husband is not permitted to deny his wife. The reason for this is to prevent either the husband or the wife from sexual immorality, cheating on each other. The Bible once taught death to the spouse who cheats, but it was altered in the New Testament, and the Christian is taught to forgive. How much could these be eliminated if we only realize that we do live in Glass Houses, each and every one of us. Our lives are 100% visible, not to each other, but to the God of the universe. Is it any wonder that Paul tells us, "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling." If we accept that we are being scrutinized in every facet of our lives, every though, action, attitude and behaviour is observed, would we not be afraid to think or behave in am immoral manner? It is in this portrayal that I suggest that we all, each of us individually, reside in Glass Houses. We are all being observed in our thoughts, behaviours and attitudes and there will be rewards and consequences to those whether we believe in God or not. The truth of the matter is simply this, "for those who do not believe no amount of proof will ever suffice, to those who do believe, no proof is necessary." Sorry, but I do not remember who stated these words (Ed note: Stuart Chase), but they are good words to

While we do not in reality live in "Glass Houses" our individual lives are abundantly crystal clear. We need to observe and recognize this reality, and perhaps then, each of us will become the potential people we were all meant to be, living in peace, harmony and love one with another, where hostility, anger, lust, and all forms of negativity no longer exist. As long as we think that we are not being observed, in every area of our lives, we will continue to live lives that are secret, hidden, dangerous, hostile, and immoral. What do YOU want to

As always, this is just my opinion.
