Legion & Firefighters

Press Release

Members of the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch #1, visited the fire hall on Wednesday, August 27, to thank the Dawson City Firefighters Association for their facelift of the community's cenotaph.

The renovations included new planter boxes and a layer of white-channel rock.

"The Legion is profoundly touched by the firefighters' efforts," said Legion President Diane Baumgartner. "They have done a beautiful job with our community's centrepiece for remembrance, and we are very grateful."

The firefighters' contributions were made all the more special by the fact they were unexpected. The upgrades surprised Legion members, with nearly a week passing before those responsible for the work were revealed.

"The Legion stands for decorum, remembrance and decency," said Baumgarter. "Clearly, we share those principles with the incredible men and women of the Dawson City Firefighters Association. We are truly thankful for what they've done."

OPINIONS

Uffish Thoughts: Sprucing up a town monument is a good deed, indeed.

By Dan Davidson

Until last week the question of who was responsible for sprucing up the cenotaph in Victory Gardens was a bit of a mystery. But spruced up it was. Fresh gravel had been laid all around the monument itself. Two raised flower boxes had been added between the three flagpoles. The evergreen tree that was looking a bit the worse for wear at the south end of the pad had had its damaged branches removed to the point where it looked a bit more of a match for its more robust cousin on the other side. The two park benches had been straightened up and all the weeds that had been growing through the old gravel were gone.

One of the Legion's leaders called to ask me to get a picture of the restored site. She said the Legion didn't know who had arranged to have the work done. They had thought it was the town's recreation department, which looks after our park spaces. But, no, the folks at the rec. thought the Legion had done the deed.

It turns out to have been the Fire Department that took it on. This was just one of the incidental things that got mentioned during the speeches at the 22nd Annual AYFC Fire Service Symposium and Trade Exhibition, which took place here from August 20 to 23. It was a welcome piece of community service for the monument and its surroundings, which had been getting to be a bit dilapidated and sometimes lack the care they deserve.

Kids of all ages like to climb on the two World War I German artillery pieces that flank the cenotaph, and sometimes, heavy as they are, they get pushed off their bases and one wheel may begin to sink into the ground. Moving them back is harder than moving them off. The flags, which fly all the time, can get to be a bit ravelled at the edges from flapping in the breezes.

The cenotaph and the guns were installed here after the First World War, one of 1300 such war memorials set up across the country to honour the war dead (the cenotaph) and remind everyone (the guns) that, as Pierre Berton put it in Marching as to War, "We won."

In the chapter called "The Monument" Berton describes the little spire as looking like an Egyptian obelisk in the center of Minto Park, which is where it would have been until the federal government built a cottage hospital behind it just over 40 years later.

Berton, who isn't always 100% accurate, locates the cenotaph and the guns as being just off Harper Street instead of off Church (which becomes Mission) Street, but the other details are good. He doesn't say just how the monument was made but goes into some detail about the guns.

"The effort and expense to bring these guns to Minto Park is mind-boggling. Pulled out of the mud of battle, they had to be trundled to the French coast, loaded aboard an ocean freighter, taken across the North Atlantic to a Canadian maritime port, hauled off that vessel, loaded onto a CPR flatcar, transported the entire breadth of the Dominion, unloaded again, hoisted aboard another sea-going freighter to sail up the West Coast to the long, tidal dock at Skagway, then placed on a narrow-gauge rail car to go up and over the mountain summit to the little railhead town of Whitehorse. and finally loaded onto a river barge, pushed downstream for four hundred miles by a sternwheeler, unloaded at Dawson and hauled along the gravel road by Dan Coat's livery wagon to their final resting place."

In his youth, as now, kids used them as gigantic toys, "clambering over them, playing at war, turning the little wheels that actually worked and caused the barrels to be raised and lowered, as we fought mock battles."

The little wheels don't move any more and it's probably safer that way. The guns are still impressive and the little monument area looks good when Mounties line up with Gertie's Girls for Canada Day and the Rangers lay the wreaths Department to thank for that.

Placer mining: a mainstay of Yukon's economy

As a Yukoner, or someone even remotely familiar with Yukon history, it's more than likely you already know that mining has played a significant role in the cultural and economic history of our territory.

But for some, that's where the knowledge ends.

The history of mining in the territory has its roots in the Klondike Gold Rush and the decades of placer mining that followed.

Placer mining is an industry founded on family-operated gold recovery in the creeks and valleys of the Yukon wilderness – a way of life that continues today for many placer miners.

How it can differ so greatly from the large-scale, global enterprises that we tend to associate with mining today is explained in its very name

A quick Internet search will tell you that the word placer derives from the Spanish placer, meaning shoal or alluvial/sand deposit.

An alluvial deposit (like the loose soil and sediments found in valley floors or deposits found in old river and stream beds) is an ideal place for materials like gold and other precious metals to be manually extracted and gathered from the earth.

Today, nearly all placer operations are small, owned and operated by families, with a few employees.

A working placer mine can involve the entire family, spanning generations, with some current Yukon operations dating as far back as the Klondike Gold Rush.

While it is an industry steeped in history, Yukon placer miners currently lead the world in safe and efficient gold recovery.

Our operators abide by regulations and legislation that ensure environmental stewardship, reclamation and site restoration.

The same tenacity that is required to work the goldfields, generation after generation, has led to finding better, more innovative ways of doing things.

Placer mining is a challenging business, yet it continues to thrive in our territory.

It has enjoyed growth over the last two years, which in turn positively affects local businesses and services directly and indirectly.

With 142 active placer operations in Yukon, total production in 2013 was 59,462 crude ounces, which equates to a value of US $63.2 million.

The hard work and perseverance of those involved in this industry are admirable. Success requires dedication, commitment, and a supportive community.

The Yukon government is proud to be a strong supporter of this sector.

I would like to highlight some of the initiatives we have undertaken over the past four years that demonstrate our commitment to the continued success of this community.

The Yukon Geological Survey has organized annual placer workshops to engage placer miners and better understand their needs, and is actively involved with the Dawson Regional Land Use Plan.

The information being shared will assist the Land Use Planning Commission with technical decisions related to future growth of the industry.

The Yukon Mineral Exploration Program (YMEP), administered through the Yukon Geological Survey, will award more than $350,000 to 13 placer-related exploration projects in 2014.

This investment will assist the industry in finding new resources so it can continue to be a sustainable economic contributor.

We also support the work of the Klondike Placer Miners' Association, a non-profit advocacy group that continues to advance the Yukon's placer mining industry on all fronts.

The association is very active in promoting sustainable placer mining and placer exploration in Yukon, and provides educational information to the public on modern, responsible placer mining and placer exploration.

Gold mining is part of our identity as Yukoners. In addition to the Klondike, other areas of Yukon, such as Mayo-McQuesten, Dawson Range, Livingstone Creek, Kluane and Whitehorse South, have historical and current placer gold mining activity.

On behalf of Yukon government, I would like to thank all those working the creeks for their continued contribution to Yukon's economy and its rich history and culture.

Placer mining's royalties have been miniscule

The "Placer mining: a mainstay of Yukon's economy" comment piece in the Aug. 15th Whitehorse Star omitted a few facts and figures.

The way in which the Yukon government makes money from the mining industry is through a royalty regime – payments to the Yukon government for the privilege of extracting minerals from the ground, based on the amount of mineral extracted.

One hundred years ago, the Yukon royalty on placer gold was set at 2.5 per cent of an ounce. An ounce of gold at the time was going for $15.

Today, this royalty is applied to the price of placer gold as it was a hundred years ago; that is $15 an ounce, not the approximately $1,300 an ounce it is currently.

In other words, the placer royalty never changes with the market price of gold, it is always 2.5 per cent of $15 an ounce irrespective of the actual current gold price.

This means that a placer operation today pays the same amount per ounce in royalties a placer operator paid a century ago: 37 1/2 cents an ounce.

In 2013, total placer production was 59,462 crude ounces, which equates to a value of US$63.2 million. Royalties paid to the Yukon was around $22,000.

The Yukon has given up $63.2 million worth of a non-renewable resource in exchange for about $22,000.

Placer mining has certainly contributed to the Yukon's rich history and culture.

However, the economic contribution through royalties to the Yukon's coffers over the past century has been miniscule.

When one factors in the environmental degradation and the financial assistance provided to placer operations by the government (such as the Yukon Mineral Exploration Program, which provided $350,000 in 2014 alone), it is clear that placer mining is a financial sinkhole for Yukon taxpayers.

Lewis Rifkind Mining Analyst Yukon Conservation Society Whitehorse

Hasty royalty boosts could kill placer mining

This is to my friend, Lewis Rifkind, regarding placer mining royalties (Star letters, Aug. 22).

I appreciate your letter regarding placer royalties and your belief that they should be raised; however, I do have a different perspective.

One hundred years ago, there was no corporate income tax, no personal income tax and no GST.

The world was a different place, and government relied on taxation in different forms.

I never thought I would be arguing in favour of our Income Tax Act. And yet, I must say that it does a good job of replacing the old royalty, which should really be phased out as a redundant evolutionary vestige.

I am sure that I and most other miners pay far more in corporate and personal income taxes than we would pay with an increased royalty on gold.

Taxation is practised by government to generate the most income possible without killing the economic engine that generates the tax.

Simply increasing the royalty on placer gold without studying the state of the industry would be short-sighted at best, and could kill or seriously disrupt an industry that currently produces solid tax revenues, both corporate and personal.

A direct hit to the placer industry of that nature would have serious ripple effects in the rest of the Yukon for everyone from employees of the industry, fuel suppliers, parts and maintenance suppliers as well as grocery stores, etc.

I believe our current tax regime is sufficient, and I don't think that just because once upon a time, we taxed people differently, we need to go back to the old ways.

In the final part of your letter, you refer to "environmental degradation" from placer mining.

I would argue that anything that placer mining does to the environment is temporary.

We use no chemicals. The landscape regrows very quickly and, in some areas, there is a net increase in biological diversity and habitat.

Your final conclusion that "placer mining is a financial sinkhole" is, I believe, a very mistaken view.

The taxes paid by placer mining corporations, by individual placer miners and their employees far outweigh the very small amount of money that is put back into the industry by government.

Let's all look at ourselves here in the Yukon and consider how much of our money comes from the federal government and how little actually comes from a local tax base.

I think it is important to consider the taxation of each industry very carefully before increasing the tax burden.

We need to grow our tax base here in the Yukan and to become mo

We need to grow our tax base here in the Yukon and to become more self-sufficient.

In order to do this, we need more industry, not less.

Discovery Days 2014 in Dawson City

Story & Photos By Dan Davidson

There were mammoths waiting at the Visitor Information Centre when the wail of the visiting piper alerted the crowd that the Discovery Days parade was about to begin at noon on August 16.

The morning had begun chilly and damp, but the sun dispersed the clouds about an hour before the parade and gave the town a glorious sunny Saturday for a change this summer.

As the piper and the members of the Yukon Order of Pioneers, along with the RCMP and pickup truck float from the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, marched past the crowd at the corner of King and Front streets, the prehistoric pachyderms slipped into the parade. As they moved out into the open, all the dogs on Front Street went nuts, to the delight of the watching crowd.

The piper hadn't set them off, but the sudden appearance of these ungainly creatures was too much for them.

The parade was the usual mix of fire trucks, colourful floats, a horde of decorated bicycles and various sorts of dignitaries. Mayor Wayne Potoroka and Deputy Chief Jay Farr drove Dawson's own Rendezvous Queen Liz and Miss Congeniality. The Best in Snow couple from Thaw di Graw, Louis Gerberding and Catherine Vulpes, rode high in the back of one of the fire trucks.

Premier Darrell Pasloski and his wife, Tammie, walked the parade, along with MP Ryan Leef.

Candy littered the streets as the parade passed by, and some of the drivers were a little worried that the dedicated candy collectors weren't watching the traffic quite carefully enough.

The parade wound down King Street, south on Front, up Princess and south again on Fifth Avenue to end at the Dawson City Museum, where there was much picture taking and a number of speeches before the parade and yard awards were handed out.

The crowd was actually a bit thin at the Museum, as the Riverside Arts Festival had a clown show scheduled to start right after the parade and the area about the Waterfront Gazebo was packed. Still, the line-up for smokies, desert and drinks didn't seem to be much shorter than usual.

City of Dawson Recreation Director Lana Welchman introduced the speakers for the formal portion of the events.

MP Ryan Leef was first to the microphone:

"What a wonderful parade this was this morning, It was great walking in with the Premier and the Mayor. It's great to see all the Yukon Order of Pioneers out here... Everybody is marking Discovery Days here the way it should be done. The discovery of gold in our territory isn't just important for Dawson City but for the entire Yukon so it's a great opportunity to reflect on our history today. It's an absolute honour to be here and join you in the celebrations."

He said he absolutely agreed with the parade watcher who had

Personal Firewood Permits

The Yukon Forest Management Branch would like to remind Yukoners that a Forest Resources Permit is required to cut firewood for personal use.

This permit is free and enables the cutting of 25 m³ (11 cords) or less of firewood for uses such as heating your home.

To receive a permit, apply at your local Compliance Monitoring & Inspections office. Permits are often issued over the counter at the time of application.

As part of your permit, you will receive a map indicating the permitted cutting area. It is your responsibility to ensure that you understand the conditions of your permit and are cutting only in the authorized area and during designated times if applicable.

Remember to always carry your permit with you when cutting and transporting wood. Harvesting trees without a permit or failure to comply with the conditions could result in a fine of $150.

For more information, contact your local Compliance Monitoring & Inspections office or read the personal firewood fact sheet online at called out "welcome to the center of the universe."

"It certainly is an honour and exciting this year to help celebrate Discovery Days," said Premier Pasloski. "It's humbling to be here with all the Yukon Order of Pioneers and what they have meant to this territory from the beginning. Discovery Days is really about this part of Yukon and what it has contributed to the entire history of our whole territory."

Pasloski thanked all the volunteers that were making the day happen and welcomed all those who were visitors to the territory on this day.

Mayor Wayne Potoroka had the longest speech, outlining some of the history of the Gold Rush, its seminal influence in ending the late 19th century's depression and, of course its role in the creation of the territory itself, which would otherwise have remained part of the NWT.

"If you live here you probably know this story," he began. "If you don't it's worth hearing."

The discovery of gold on what was then Rabbit Creek on August 16, 1898 was "the dime on which so many histories turned," Potoroka said.

The impact on North America itself is unquestionable and, while it as not the largest of what author George Fetherling has termed the Gold Crusades of the 19th century, it was, without a doubt, the best documented in words, in photographs and even in moving pictures.

As historian Ken Coates recently told a Dawson audience, Klondike has become the baseline against which other gold rushes are measured.

"It inspired artists from around the planet," Potoroka said, "and posed one more challenge for the First Nations people who has faced a host of them n the thousands and thousands of years they had occupied this land. It was an unprecedented collision of people and traditions.

"Today the Klondike is still known world wide for the gold rush that led so many people for a brief burst of time. We celebrate it, as Dawsonites, as the event that brought, and continues to bring, so many of us together in this incredible place. While Discovery Days is certainly a celebration of the initial gold discovery, and our rich, gold mining heritage, it is also a celebration of our diverse and welcoming Klondike culture that has taken root over the past 118 years and a reminder of the good things that can happen when we get together and get along."

Potoroka and Welchman handed out the various categories of parade awards and the mayor was joined by Suzanne Saito to announce the garden and property awards.

Following lunch the crowd dispersed, many heading to the waterfront park where the horticultural fair and Riverside Arts Festival were under way and would continue for another day.

Parks Canada tests the tourism waters

By Dan Davidson

As of Monday, September 1, Parks Canada begins the first week of its two week season extension, as promised back in March.

WEDNESDAY, September 3, 2014

In 2012, among the many other cuts to the Parks operations in the Yukon (curators, maintenance staff, closing major sites) the powers that be decided to standardize all Parks' seasons across the nation to have them run from the Victoria Day long weekend to the Labour Day long weekend as its core operating season.

After an evaluation of the 2013 season it was determined that there was probably a large enough clientele to warrant keeping the sites open on a reduced schedule for longer than the end of August and so the Klondike National Historic Site was authorized to attempt a pilot project, extending the season by two weeks.

This was great news for the rest of Dawson's tourism sector, which had made it clear that having Parks shut down early had had a decided dampening effect on the fall shoulder season. However, the results of this experiment will determine whether it happens again next year.

This extension is still a week shorter than Parks used to run here at its peak, but the federal authorities had been nibbling Goldbottom Mine Tours vis away at the season for a number of years. Goldbottom Mine Tours vis to Dredge No. 4 will continue and there will be four special

A reduced buffet of Parks offerings will be available for visitors until September 14. The menu for the first week includes town walking tours, the Robert Service Cabin morning talk, audio walking tours, the evening 'Strange Things done in the Midnight Sun" walking tour, the Harrington's Store photo exhibit and the Discovery Claim.

Goldbottom Mine Tours visits to Dredge No. 4 will continue and there will be four special events. "Life from Moccasin Square Gardens" the film of the recreation of the 1905 Stanley Cup Challenge by the Dawson City Nuggets, will be showing at the Palace Grand on two nights, Sept. 2 and 6. The Robert Service Hikes will continue on Sept. 4 and there will be a Tea Party and tour at the Commissioners' Residence on Sept. 5.

Last summer I was lucky enough to visit Dawson City and sent the attached submission to the Authors on Eight contest 2013. Even though I sent it twice I did not receive confirmation and in the end, after following your online editions all year, did not see it published in your paper. I was very disappointed as I thought my entry was good.

I know that this year's contest is now closed but I was wondering if you would publish my poem anyway. I just read it at a poetry event, Words & Music' in Westmount, Quebec giving a plug for Dawson City, Authors on Eighth and your newspaper.

I would really appreciate it if you would consider my request favourably.
Thanks,

Virginia Elliott, Westmount, Quebec

FINDING DAWSON'S LUCK

by Virginia Elliot

This place of gold from days of old Still teams with charm and lore They come from far by plane or car To try their luck once more This place of old from days of gold Still sees the crowds arrive They come for fun and endless sun And keep the town alive

The Chilkoot Pass, a writhing mass of men who thirst for gold

And those with luck drew from the muck a treasure to behold!

The craving lust to find the dust drove men to seek their dreams

To live like kings and buy great things from riches in the streams

Some found the gold as tales have told great fortunes came and went

But most went broke and all she wrote was counting what they spent.

To those come forth to seek the North they find there's even more

Than gold to seek beneath their feet from Klondike's glacial shore

The ones who come to stake a claim all want the very best Not from the hold of Yukon's gold but the Dawson Music Fest!

Today the lore of many more begins with choices made To kiss the toe at Sourdough or ride the Palace stage

The lucky ones are those who come and never find the money

But call this place of snow and ice a land of bread and honey

They find the love in stars above and beauty known so well

Within this home beneath the dome of the 60th parallel

This place of old from days of gold Still teams with charm and lore They come from far by plane or car To try their luck once more This place of gold from days of old Still sees the crowds arrive They come for fun and endless sun And keep the town alive

Writers compete from England to California at Authors on Eighth

"Ghost Stories" was the theme of this year's Authors on Eighth story contest and thirteen writers from as far away as Bristol, UK, and California joined a group from all over the Yukon in trying for the two first place prizes.

The entries were so good that the judges were forced to award two honourable mentions along with the winners.

In the prose category, Nolan Bohem of Whitehorse took the prize with "On Sleepless Nights" while former two time winner, David Thompson, got the mention for "He Lost His Mind But Not His Heart".

The afternoon's event on August 14 began at Jack London Square, where interpreter, Dawne Mitchell, presented the works of both Jack London and his greatest Klondike fan, the late Dick North, who founded the centre for the Klondike Visitors Association (KVA).

Her talk explained both the Klondike life of Jack London and the investigations undertaken by North to nail down and verify that story. This quest included finding London's mining claim, the cabin in which he lived and

Accident Victim meets rescuer at Gerties

By Dan Davidson

On August 17 Louise Pratte finally got to meet and thank the man she credits with saving her life. She met Holland-America coach driver, Jess Mosman, by accident at Diamond Tooth Gerties and recognized him as the face she had seen looking through the window of her semi-submerged car on July 28.

As she spoke to him he looked at her, recognized her and shouted "Louise!" There was a big hug and then the two compared notes on their versions of the events of July 28. Of course there was a photograph, snapped by her visiting friend, Louise Jarry.

Pratte, who lived in Dawson for a couple of years, but now lives with her companion, Alfred Berleth, at the Silver Trail Inn driving to Dawson for a doctor's appointment that day and hitting a series of frost heave bumps on the Klondike Highway between Stewart Crossing and Moose Creek Lodge.

"It wasn't that I was going fast, but I was too fast for those bumps," she said. "I slowed down too late."

It was on a corner and she managed to lock her steering while trying to slow down.

"I think my car jumped ... and I went in the other lane and there was a car coming. When I saw them I turned my wheels, and got back in my lane, but I turned 180 degrees, fell backwards and landed down in the ravine."

The car flew over the trees down the 40 foot embankment, bounced and rolled and landed upside down and backwards in the water filled slough.

"Because I landed backwards I didn't even get hurt by the seatbelt, because the fall pushed me back into the seat. It was perfect. The airbags didn't even go off and that was a good thing."

Disoriented, Pratte didn't even realize she was upside aown.

"My head was not even touching the roof, because I'm small, right?"

But the car quickly began to fill with water through the broken windows, clear at first and then muddy.

"I told myself, this is my last day today, really. But I couldn't accept that. I got my seatbelt off, but by then the water was pitch black and I still didn't realize I was upside down."

Trying to find a way out she made her way to the back of her little station wagon and found an air pocket.

Right away she heard voices outside the car and was flooded with relief that she was not alone, that someone was going to help her.

What had happened was that the car she had missed, which was driven by an elderly gentleman, had flagged down an approaching Holland-America motor coach and told them what just shaking," she said. "I heard a guy yelling 'Help! More help!' All my doors were locked but I managed to unlock them."

The leader outside was yelling for everyone to get a good grip and then the car lifted, the door opened and the first person she saw was Mosman.

"The water was so cold. I was

Climbing back up the bank through all the branches in her bare feet, shivering from the cold, was another ordeal, but then one of the tourists gave her his shoes to wear and it got

"I had bruises and scratches on my legs, but no head injuries, nothing like that. It was like I fell off my bike."

They wrapped her in a towel and a coat to warm her up and it was a while before her teeth stopped chattering enough to be able to talk.

People thought she was in shock but she thinks she was just so cold.

In all the fuss of people around her asking if she was okay she lost track of the driver. Fortunately, a smaller bus came along heading to Dawson and she rode with them to Moose Creek, where the operators looked after her. The H/A coach had to move on as soon as possible as it was already late, even though all the passengers wanted to follow her and make sure she was all right.

> She phoned her boyfriend, and the police, and the insurance company, and even called the hospital in Dawson to let them know she wouldn't be able to keep her appointment.

> She and Berleth had returned to the Silver Trail Inn when the tow truck arrived for the two hour extraction operation, but Moose Creek's Wayne Fraughton recoverea as much stuff as he could from the car.

"For sure I was very stiff the next day and for two days after. It was like I had done a marathon. And I could hear my pulse pounding in my ear for many days after."

Berleth went back to the ravine with a rake and while the water was clear, managed to recover more of her possessions, including her wallet. They also visited Dawson and searched the wrecked car to see what else they could find.

"I found pretty much everything I wanted to get, but my camera and binoculars were ruined."

A week later she kept her doctor's appointment in Dawson, driving herself in their other vehicle, a van.

"For sure I'm more nervous now, and when I see even a tiny ditch with water, I don't like to see that."

She and Mosman made numerous attempts to contact each other over the next several weeks, but their conflicting schedules made it hard to arrange.

"I really wanted to talk to him because I couldn't talk to anyone who had been in that ditch with me and I had so many questions.

"Friday night I was with my friend who is visiting the Yukon for the first time. We were both at the casino. I looked at her and I'm 'Look at this guy over there. He looks so much like the bus driver.' She said, 'That's not possible. He's way too young.'

"I just couldn't keep my eyes off of him. (I decided) I have to take a risk. So then I go to him and say, 'Excuse me, but you remind me of someone. Do you drive a bus?'

"He backed up and he looked at me all the way and he's like, 'Louise!' Then we chatted and he told me his story. He's 25 years old and this is his fourth summer here doing tours. Hearing his story, everyone is so impressed by the way he acted at the accident."

When the elderly other driver stopped the bus, Mosman, from his height in the coach, was able to see Pratte's vehicle in the had happened. Had the coach not been an hour late leaving Dawson on that particular day, Pratte would have succumbed to hypothermia.

As it was, the young man driving, Mosman, took two of the younger passengers down into the ravine and then called out for others among the mostly 'Are you alone?' and I said yes. He asked me a second time. They kind of pulled me out of the car. I lost my glasses and shoes in the accident. I could see that my legs were so red because the water was so cold.

WORLD HERITAGE PROJECT UPDate

by Paula Hassard

We're very excited to be bringing up a World Heritage expert who successfully managed the UNESCO nomination of Grand Pré, Nova Scotia. Christophe Rivet is helping us refine the Outstanding Universal Value of the heritage sites, cultural landscapes and river corridors in the proposed Tr'ondëk-Klondike World Heritage site. We also started a working group with Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in representatives and the mining industry to give input on the draft boundaries.

At the upcoming TH General Assembly, there will be World Heritage resolution put forward to proceed with a Tr'ondëk-Klondike nomination. Please plan to attend!

Did you know?

- Designation would celebrate the shared past and strength of Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in heritage, which continues today; Gold Rush/mining heritage, which continues today; and Dawson community history, which continues today.
- The continuation of these living traditions would be part of the Outstanding Universal Value of the proposed site.
- This would help fulfill the cultural and economic objectives of the TH Final
- Designation would provide jobs and private business opportunities for TH citizens.
- Designation would cause a modest increase of visitors at Forty Mile, Tr'ochëk, Tombstone and Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre, helping pay for new heritage programs, research and conservation.

- Protected areas would stay protected.
- TH would decide how many-and whenplaces are open to the public.
- Management would be formalized to ensure protection and respect for privacy/property.
- The community remains in control, not UNESCO.
- TH and placer miners will be involved in determining the details of the buffer zones and geographic boundaries.
- Planning and development would occur within existing land-use regulations.
- TH would continue in their leadership role on the project.
- A legal opinion will be obtained to confirm there would be no impact on TH rights, prior to designation.
- Designation would help sustain the local tourism industry and increase the well-being of TH and all Dawsonites.

If you have questions, I'd love to talk to you! Feel welcome to drop by to see me at Madame Tremblay's. Or visit our website: tkwhstatus.ca. Mähsi cho!

The Horticultural Exhibition Report

Submitted by Helen Dewell & Tarie Castellarin

Minnie Mouse cucumbers? Cantaloupe? Apple cucumbers? Asparagus peas? Four varieties of apples? The 2014 Horticultural Exhibition was the year of the exotic and unusual! Visitors to the tent were thrilled to see the unique and variety of contributions. Congratulations to the 2014 Grand Aggregate winner Louise Piche, who won 16 ribbons! Doug Fraser placed second in the aggregate category and Brenda Caley third.

Thank you once again to our generous market gardeners for donating the high quality produce for the silent auction: Karen Digby & Grant Dowdell, Jack & Lucy Vogt, Debbie Wickham, John & Sarah Lenart (money raised was donated to the Dawson Food Bank)

Wayne and Bev Fischer were the highest bidders and thankfully had a houseful of guests to help them out with all the vegetables (including a 15-pound cabbage).

There are many people behind the scenes who make this event possible:

*Amélie & Jennifer for the registration assistance

*The Dawson Museum for loaning us the displays showcasing the history of gardening in the Klondike complete with historical photos...perhaps to inspire us for next year?

* KPMA (Mel) for the tablecloths

*The tent crew; Doug Fraser, JT Taylor, Mark Castellarin, Nathan, Sara, & Rod Dewell, Karolina Pietzler, David Wenzel

* The judges: Vicki, Amélie, Shirley, Sharon, Ruth, Joyce, Lydia, Palma, Lenore, Rod, Gerry, Nathan & Spencer (taste testers)

* KVA for publishing the categories and profiling us in their Discovery Days brochure *KIAC for the big tent

The Horticultural Exhibition would not be possible without the financial support of the Yukon Order of Pioneers, Lodge #1.

We would like to challenge all Dawsonites to help us reach our goal of 100 participants in 2015...if everyone brought one item from their gardens we could easily surpass it!

A heartfelt thanks to all the participants who took the time to bring items to the Horticultural Exhibition; you make this event possible!

Beaver Creek RV Park and Hotel open for business

Story and Photos By Dan Davidson

Sitting in the office of the Beaver Creek RV Park, with Beat Ledergerber and his wife Jyl Wingert, it's easy to reflect on the many changes that have occurred in Beaver Creek since the three years that my wife and I spent here in the late 1970s. For one thing, we're sitting in what used to be the Canada Customs depot, which used to be located directly across the road from where it now sits. New comers to town had to clear Customs to get gas until the agents got to know what your car looked like.

The border station is now located just outside town on the way to Alaska, but the staff still live in town. There are more of them, and they have some impressive looking homes in a cul de sac located behind the ones they used to live in.

The biggest change in this village of around 100 people isn't the brand new $3.15 million fire and EMS station that is currently under construction after some difficulties with the original tendering.

No, the biggest change is that Holland/America, whose 174 room Westmark Inn complex came close to doubling the population of the town every summer for decades, is gone. The sleek motor coaches no longer travel the north Alaska Highway, and hotel operations have ended in both Beaver Creek and Tok, Alaska.

Beaver Creek is a little better off than Tok, though. The Tok Westmark is just collecting road dust at the junction. The Beaver Creek complex has been sold to Ledergerber and Wingert and they are slowly adjusting the place to a size they can use.

Beat Ledergerber, who arrived in Canada's Most Westerly Community in 1961, has run a sawmill and a garage in his time, and started doing work on the buildings that eventually became the Alas/ kon Border Lodge and then the Westmark Lodge back as far as when the original building was privately owned by Clyde and Helen Wann. His sawmill supplied much of the lumber that built the rest of the buildings in the compound. He was on-call for maintenance and other issues for years through a couple of different owners and was the full time property manager after 1982.

"'Try it for a summer,' they said to me. 'We'll pay you year 'round' and they made me a good deal," he recalls.

Jyl Wingert arrived in 2001 and held a variety of administrative positions in the hotel for a number of years, including front desk and controller. When she and Ledergerber got together the senior management put her in charge of the RV park portion of the operation and she ran that for the last eight years.

She says they got the complex's death sentence from the Princess Tours people running the hotel side of the operation on April 19, 2003. Both of them agree that they had seen it coming for a while. At its peak the lodge had employed over 80 people, housing them in a two story motel-like complex at the east end of the compound. In recent years the staff complement had declined to 45 or 50 and the budget for maintenance and upgrading had been thinner.

"We were open then," Beat recalls. "We were sitting in the main dining room and the guy (from Princess Tours) said "I guess you know now.' We said 'Know what?" and he said, 'We're gonna close the place down - here and Tok."

That meant everything, including the excellent "Rendezvous" road show in the dinner theatre roundhouse at the back of the compound.

"Nobody could believe it in the town here and along the highway," he said, recalling the shock of the announcement.

The company seemed to be undecided about what to do with the property and so Beat and Jyl put in a bid and were accepted. They actually would have preferred to buy just the RV park at the time, but the company wouldn't split up the property. They had a good combination of practical and administrative experience with the operation. It took some time to finalize the deal and it wasn't really all in place until June of this year, but the couple got the go ahead to begin operations in May, even before the final papers were signed.

The new owners knew they needed that early part of the season to have a good year.

"That's when the people come up to Alaska from the south," Beat said. "This is the natural first stop along the way."

That meant there was no hope of getting any advertising out for this year, but that was okay because there was some work to be done. The RV park was able to run smoothly as soon as the season opened, but there was work to be done at the rest of the compound. The entire facility had been plumbed to run in a circuit. In order to open just some parts of it Beat had to rework the water and sewer arrangements.

This summer the 65 room building Westmark had called the Bear's Den was partially open, with 32 rooms available for the travelling public. Over time the couple hope to attract enough customers to open the entire building and eventually the main lodge, though they aren't sure about reviving the restaurant.

"We knew our first year (without advance advertising) was going to be rough," Jyl said. "It's all been word of mouth, but it's been better than we expected. We're in good shape."

The RV park is the main moneymaker at the moment, offering some knick-knacks, gasoline and some supplies.

"The road actually has helped our business this year," she adds, "because they're tired after that they are just ready to stop at the first place they see, and that's us."

Two bus tours have stopped, both from companies that were accustomed to stopping there in the part. The African Children's Choir filled some rooms just a few days before this interview.

"We've had a lot of interest from ones that used to stay with us," Jyl said, "that find going from Whitehorse to Tok in one day is just too far for comfort."

"This is beautiful," Beat said. "Between Fairbanks and Whitehorse this is the middle and that's what they like."

They have their promotional material ready for next year and are optimistic about their future.

Climate change thriller turns up the Arctic heat

Arctic Drift By Clive and Dirk Cussler Berkley Books 593 pages $12.50

It's been a few years since I read one of Cussler's Dirk Pitt thrillers, so when this one turned up with a plot set on Canada's west and northern coasts, I decided to give it a try.

There have been some changes made. Dirk's married. His wife, Loreen, is a US Senator. His former boss is now the vice-president of the USA and Dirk's now the head of NUMA (National Underwater and Marine Agency). Dirk had children with another woman somewhere along the way and the young man is named after his father. This means that the younger man gets to be called Dirk throughout the book, while his father is called Pitt.

That's the only really confusing part of the story, other than that the whole thing has to be taking place in some other dimension that just happens to be pretty much identical with our planet, because the degree to which tensions heat up between Canada and the USA in this story is definitely out of this

It doesn't start there through. It starts with the Franklin Expedition back in 1848. On the two frozen in ships, one crew has gone mad for some reason. The remaining sane crew members flee the Erebus and make for the Terror and some degree of safety. Eventually, as we know, they all die on the ice, but the mystery of the madness remains unsolved for the next 160 years.

Later on, off the coast of British Columbia, near Kitimat, the crew of a pleasure cruiser is overtaken at sea by a ghastly white mist and die in agony in mere minutes.

Later Dirk and sister Summer find the boat and report the tragedy, leading them to explore more around the area of Terra Green's new carbon dioxide sequestration plant. Later they will find that all is not what it seems there.

In the Arctic Ocean, a Canadian Coast Guard ship is rammed by what seems to be a large freighter towing a barge. It doesn't sink, but the outrage appears to have been perpetrated by a ship flying American colours.

Off the coast of Vancouver Island a Canadian Senator stops to help a man who appears to have swamped his small boat and is in distress. But he's not, and he pulls her into the water and drowns her.

Still later, an Arctic science exploration crew living on the ice pack is rammed by another boat that appears to be an American military vessel. All but a handful of the scientists die as their floes break up. The survivors are picked up by the NUMA ship, the Narwhal.

Finally, in Washington, a scientist comes up with a process to create artificial photosynthesis, a process that will, by itself, cut down and eliminate much of the CO2 that is being pumped into the air and contributing to whatever natural processes are already triggering climate change. Her lab blows up and she is badly injured. This gets the elder Pitt involved in the search for the rare mineral she needs to make the process work. There might have been some on one of Franklin's ships.

Those are all the plot threads that you need to have to realize that this is a multilayered thriller with a lot of connections to some of our current problems. It's a bit of wishful thinking to propose that anyone could find what amounts to a kill-switch for climate change, but it's not hard to believe that some unscrupulous one per center wouldn't find a way to make money out of the problem with a murderous scam that really just makes it worse.

There's lots of action for the teams in this story. Young Dirk and Summer face danger off the west coast, while Pitt senior is nearly killed in an ambush in Northern Ontario. In a bit of metafiction, he is rescued by a gent named Clive Cussler who is touring in a nautically tricked out RV motorhome.

For the climax we move to the Arctic Ocean and some action at sea, under the sea. on Arctic islands and on the frozen hulk of the Erebus itself. If Mr. Cussler will just tell the Canadian government where he found it, we can stop looking for it. Remember, he did write the book Raise the Titanic some years before the actual wreck was found.

As I said at the beginning, a book that almost has the Canadian government declaring war on the USA has to be set on some other planet. There are a lot of coincidences in this story and I had to smile at some of the events, but it was a cracking good yarn and it moved right Cussler hasn't had any luck getting his books translated into movies (two turkeys so far), or I'd suggest this one.

"I love ball gowns. It's like dressing Cinderella."

Story & Photos By Dan Davidson

"I love ball gowns," says Debbie Winston. "It's like dressing Cinderella."

She's been doing it for years and says she really loves her

Enduring Elegance was the title of Winston's showcase display of her specially created ball gowns on August 14 and 15, as part of the general during celebrations the Discovery Days Events.

Winston, who returned to Dawson to make her home here in 2007, has been making costumes and gowns since the 1970s when she, along with former husband, Jim Murdoch, were part of the group that started the Frantic Follies in high society events. Whitehorse.

As she recalls it, the costumes were not quite ready on opening to sell her talents. She says she night, "so I decided to learn how tried relocating to the USA to to make them myself" for the workthere, but in the years since next time.

sewing Her previous experience was with beadwork, so there was a bit of a learning curve. She bought books, patterns and history books to begin with, picked other peoples' brains, and eventually started coming up with her own ideas.

As both a seamstress and a dancer in the early Follies she had some useful insights into how to make clothing that looked good and stayed fastened when you needed it to.

"I learned that performers do their best not only when they look smashing but also when the fit and comfort is right."

When the Whitehorse Follies got the contract to run the Gaslight Follies and Diamond Tooth Gerties shows in Dawson in 1976, she danced and did costume work here as well.

1980 she moved to Dawson and ran a shop out of Mme Tremblay's Store for five years, selling fabric as well as designing and creating custom gowns, many of which have been on display annually at the Commissioners' Ball and other this stuff) but then I have what I

Then the film industry beckoned and she headed south she'd come north after growing up in the Bay area she'd found it had changed – or she had.

"I'd become Canadianized," she said. So she moved to Vancouver. You've seen her work on reruns of the Stargate SG1 TV movies, movies like X-men 2, and a variety of other shows. She's got her own listing in the online IMDb website.

She wasn't associated with any particular group and moved around from project to project.

"In movies you might work six months straight," she said. "For TV shows or series you could work over the winter."

Her Dawson connections were still in place though, and she did gowns for a number of people while she lived in the south.

Visiting Dawson again in 2007 she realized this felt like home and that she was tired of the big city sturm und drang, so she bought a house and moved back six months later. The second floor addition to the house is one large room that is her office, workshop and storage area.

"It's expensive (to have all want at hand."

For this display of her talents she was able to borrow back gowns and apparel from nearly two dozen of her friends and customers, plus a few items she had in the closet at home, including the iconic rainbow skirted dancer's dress which is the one featured on all that Klondike Visitors Association advertising. There were 19 gowns altogether, six on the stage and the rest in the lobby.

She says she's always thinking up gown patterns and looking for excuses (like a commission)

More than just protectors of property, fire departments are an society and a thermometer for Following this, everyone community well being. For that contribution, I salute each and every fire fighter here tonight and those who can't be with us."

Dawson's Fire Chief, Jim Regimbal, and the department he leads came in for special praise from both community leaders.

Yukon Fire Marshal Dennis Barry commented on the fact that leadership had been a major theme in the welcome video.

"I think that we here as a group Association of Yukon Fire Chief. are speaking about leadership as well. It's something that we hear a lot about and talk a lot about ... but this is our week, when we look to each other, ask these important questions and learn from each other."

> He also paid tribute to retiring Whitehorse Fire Chief Sparks, joking that he would miss him Wayne especially because "he's the only

> Chief Steven Gamble, president of the Association of Canadian Fire Chiefs, thanked everyone for making it possible to be here. He said his wife had been determined to visit Dawson.

> "I want to spend time with you (all) and learn the issues that are important to Yukon and hopefully learn some stuff that I can take back to our department and to fire chiefs from across Canada."

AYFC president Jim Regimbal introduced the conference theme "The Challenge of Change" and explained the change in focus that has opened up the fire chiefs' gathering into a fire service symposium. The need for succession planning is clear as some heads get greyer and thinner and people begin to Regimbal noted that progress has been made in the matter of tax status for volunteers and that the association's lobbying efforts have moved the territorial government a step closer to implementing 911 service throughout the Yukon. He left it to Sparks to declare the conference open.

Regimbal led the dignitaries in a ceremony to honour members who have passed away, ringing the bell while the dignitaries placed empty helmets on the table. After this the members

The final formal exercise during the 22nd annual Association of Yukon Fire Chiefs' gathering was the distribution of awards for Long and Exemplary Service.

The Long Service Awards from the Yukon government were presented by Minister of Community Services Brad Cathers and retired Chief Clive Sparks and were for five years (Mike Sederington and Dennis Berry), 20 years (Kevin Lyslo and Charles McLaren) and 25 years (Ken Oppal and Kevin Taylor) of service.

AYFC president Jim Regimbal presented Clive Sparks with his award for 45 years of service. There was a standing ovation for the retiring Whitehorse Fire Chief.

The Exemplary Service Medals were presented by Commissioner Doug Phillips, with the assistance of Sparks and Regimbal. The ESM is a Governor General's medal given for 20 years of meritorious service. The awards went to Chief Charles McLaren of Golden Horn and Chief Bob Atkinson of Ibex Valley.

Sparks was presented with a special retirement award by Regimbal and Commissioner Doug Phillips. It was a fire fighter's axe embedded in the plaque with the wording "Presented to Clive Sparks in recognition of all that you have contributed to the Association of Yukon Fire Chiefs and Yukon's fire service."

Phillips and Sparks were school mates together many years ago and Phillips had a little prediction to make.

"We're gong to have a reunion at F.H. Collins next summer and I know that many of the folks that are gong to come to the reunion are going to reiterate what they said way back when we were in school. Just after we got out of school they said, 'How in the heck did a guy called Clive Sparks ever become a fireman?' and then they said, 'How did he become the fire

"Well, we all know why he became a fireman, and we all know why he became the fire chief. Forty-five years of service

Yukon Economic Developers Conference in Dawson City, September 10-12

WHITEHORSE (August 7, 2014) — The Council of Northern Economic Developers, a non-profit society focused on developing skills and experience of Yukoners involved in economic development, is hosting a conference in Dawson City this fall.

"Our goal is to facilitate the sharing of experiences amongst economic development practitioners of what works and does not work, and dialogue around what we are all currently doing for our communities. We are looking forward to participation by development officers in communities and from First Nations, Yukon and the federal government, as well as municipal representatives and consultants", said Conference Chairman Norman Eady. Eady is also a director of the Council of Northern Economic Developers (CNED).

The keynote speaker is Maury Forman, Senior Manager for the Washington State Department of Commerce. His focus is on creating healthy downtowns and a culture of entrepreneurship in rural communities. He is a popular speaker in Western Canada and the Western US.

This is the third conference/ workshop organized by CNED

www.ecdevnorth.org

with support from the Yukon Government and CanNor. "We are grateful for the support we've received from Economic Development and CanNor over the past three years. It is gratifying to know that they understand the need to invest in developing the knowledge and skills of local economic development practitioners", added Michael Pealow, founding member and current Acting President.

Other speakers are involved in supporting economic development in their communities and will include: Brad Stoneman (Teslin), Cory Bellmore (Carmacks), Larry Bagnell (Watson Lake), Philip Fitzgerald (Carcross/Tagish), Mark Wickham (Dawson City) and Tom Lie (Faro).

Workshops will include topics on community revitalization, hubs for collaboration and innovation incubators, and ecological principles and the modern economy, community revitalization, and Yukon reflections on creating business opportunities.

More information is available on the conference website http://www.cned2014conference.com/ and on CNED's own website http://ecdevnorth.

Canada's Parliament to host the 11th Conference of Parliamentarians of the Arctic Region in Whitehorse, Canada, September 9 to 11, 2014

Ottawa, August 20, 2014 - The Parliament of Canada, under the auspices of the Canada-Europe Parliamentary Association, will host the 11th Conference of Parliamentarians of the Arctic Region (CPAR) from September 9 to 11, 2014, in Whitehorse, Yukon (www.conferencesparl.ca/cpar11cpra).

The President of the Canada-Europe Parliamentary Association, David Tilson, M.P., and the Chair of the Standing Committee of Parliamentarians of the Arctic Region (SCPAR), Sara Olsvig, M.P. from Denmark, will preside over the meetings (www.arcticparl.org). As Co-Chairs of the Conference, Mr. Tilson and Ms. Olsvig will welcome 150 delegates representing Parliaments of the Arctic states (Canada, Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway, Russia, Sweden and U.S.A) and the European Parliament; indigenous peoples' organizations that have Permanent Participant status at the Arctic Council; and Parliaments of nations and organizations that have observer status at the Arctic Council.

The Parliament of Canada actively supports Arctic parliamentary cooperation and Arctic Council initiatives under Canada's Chairmanship of the Arctic Council. Leona Aglukkaq, Minister of the Environment, Minister of the Canadian Northern Economic Development Agency, Minister for the Arctic Council and Chair of the Arctic Council will deliver a keynote address at the Opening Session of the Conference on Tuesday, September 9, 2014. Delegates will also be welcomed at the Opening Session by the Premier of Yukon, Darrell Pasloski. Meetings will continue through September 11 with sessions on sustainable infrastructure development, governance models, enhancing northern economies and environmental challenges.

CPAR and SCPAR pursue initiatives to further Arctic cooperation and act as a parliamentary forum to discuss and advance action on issues relevant to the work of the Arctic Council. The main outcome of the 11th Conference will be a Conference Statement with recommendations to the Arctic Council and to the governments of the eight Arctic states and the institutions of the European Union, as well as to other international organizations. Between conferences, SCPAR, which has observer status at the Arctic Council, monitors progress in implementing the recommendations of the Conference Statement.

The Canadian delegation consists of Senators Percy Downe, Daniel Lang, Ghislain Maltais, Michel Rivard and Members of Parliament Dean Allison, Joyce Bateman, Dennis Bevington, Corneliu Chisu, Yvonne Jones, Ryan Leef, Beverley Shipley and David Tilson.
