New Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in council sworn in

The Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in (TH) held a community dinner on the evening of October 29 to celebrate the swearing in of the First Nation's newly elected chief and council.

Wayne Potoroka, TH Director of Communication, was emcee for the event, which took place in the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Community Hall.

Following the Opening Prayer, delivered by Doris Roberts, the assembly settled down to a hearty meal of chili, salad and dessert.

Following dinner, Ronald Johnson, chair of the Elders' Council, and chief-elect Robert Joseph, presented Lynn Rear, the only member of the outgoing council present, with best wishes and a gift of appreciation.

Joseph thanked everyone for coming to the dinner and ceremony and the cooks and organizers for setting it up.

"On behalf of our new council," she said, "I would like to express our appreciation and gratitude to the outgoing council for all their work for the past three years. We appreciate your contribution to Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in growth and governance and community development.

"Although sometimes we are only here for one term, we still make that contribution and we're always going to be remembered for whatever steps that we've taken ... and we'd really like to express our appreciation."

I'd like to congratulate the new chief and council," said Ronald Johnson. "I think they will do a good job over the next three years. Most of them have grown up before my eyes. I'd also like to congratulate the outgoing chief and council. They've been good to me and on behalf of the elders' council I'd like to congratulate them."

"I'd just like to say thank you for the gift," Rear said. "It was an awesome three years. I really enjoyed my term. What's going to be pretty awesome too, is sitting on the other side of the table when I get to ask questions of these guys."

Notary Public Shirley Peirson was called up to conduct the swearing in ceremony, beginning with Councillors Darren Bullen, Ryan Peterson, Simon Nagano and Selina Procee, and ending with the new Chief, Roberta Joseph.

Of the council members, only Peterson is a hold over from the last council, having been elected to fill a partial term after the death of Steve Taylor.

From the previous council, both Jay Farr and Clara Van Bibber had joined with former chief Darren Taylor in seeking the chief's position. Taylor and Joseph were tied after the initial voting was concluded and a re-count gave Joseph the Registration opens for 17th annual Yukon River Quest

"Race to the Midnight Sun" is world's longest annual canoe and kayak marathon

WHITEHORSE, YUKON (October 27, 2014) –

Registrations will be accepted starting November 1, 2014 for the 17th annual Yukon River

Quest which will be held June 24 to June 28, 2014.

The 715-kilometer (444-mile) wilderness adventure paddling race is held on the Yukon River from Whitehorse to Dawson City in Canada's Yukon Territory. Held during the last week of June, the YRQ is the world's longest annual canoe and kayak race. It is known as the "Race to the Midnight Sun," as paddlers race round-theclock under a sky that never gets dark. There are just two mandatory rest stops - totaling 10 hours – over the course of the entire event.

The Yukon River Quest last year was named one of the ten toughest races in the world by renowned adventure racer and "Boundless" TV star Simon Donato in an article for huffingtonpost. com: http://www. huffingtonpost.com/kensington explorersinresidence/toughestraces_b_4123737.html

Registration for the 2015 Yukon River Quest opened on November 1. Online entry forms are available via a link on the race website www. yukonriverguest.com under the Register tab. Entry fees remain $850 (CAD) for tandem canoes and kayaks, $475 for solo canoes and kayaks, and $250 per person for voyageur canoe teams of six or more paddlers.

Deadline for entries is May 15, 2015, but teams are encouraged to register early due to the worldwide popularity of the event. There is a limit of 100 canoe and kayak teams, which includes a limit of 30 solo teams.

OPINION

Uffish Thoughts: A Treck or Treat Twist

Our dog behaved extremely well this Hallowe'en. In earlier years we've had to banish her to the kitchen to keep her from running out to the front door to investigate each and every costumed arrival, barking madly as she came, scaring the living daylights out of the spooks and monsters.

I was prepared for that, with the doggie gate in place and ready to close, but it turned out not to be necessary. She barked and growled a little when the hordes first began to arrive, peeked out from behind the recliner, and went back to her kennel in the kitchen. The kids were disappointed. They wanted to say hello.

The hordes were late this year, with no footfalls on the front steps until nearly 6 o'clock and then it was half an hour after the first pair until there was a steady stream of them.

The next two hours saw the number rise to 63, which is about average for our house. I was glad of that, since I'm sure my wife would have been disappointed if there had been a big drop-off. Four less than last year is not significant.

She had to miss greeting the kids this year, as she had to be in Peterborough for some Anglican Church meetings. Since she has continued to be a substitute teacher in the nearly seven years since we hung up our day jobs, she still knows all the kids from K-6, where she is mostly on call, and they know

"Oh, is this Mrs. Davidson's house?" several said when I explained why it was just me on duty, and then ran out to tell their parents the great news, "This is where Mrs. Davidson lives!"

I only know the younger ones that are in her kids' choir and, after all this time, they're the only ones that know me. This year's senior class would have been in Grade 5 back in 2008. I picked them up in Grade 9 during most of my years at Robert Service School.

She mourned the last time she had to be away for the spooks' visitation, so this year I decided I would give her a treat, if the kids would cooperate.

As they arrived I explained to each group (monsters travel in groups for safety's sake) that she was away and why, and that I wanted to send her pictures of all our visitors that night, if that was okay with them.

In most cases I also yelled my plan down to the street, where parents (some in costume) were herding the kids on foot, in sleds and in fully loaded vehicles.

I'm happy to report that everyone agreed with my plan, and that several people told me it was a great idea.

In spite of Dawson getting an early permanent snowfall this year, the temperatures haven't been too low, Instead of having to plan costumes to fit over parkas, people have only had to deal with fall jackets or heavy sweaters. I got pictures of pirates, witches, zombies, serial killers, a railway engineer, movie villains, super heroes, a ninja, several fuzzy animals, a cowgirl, a headless man, a surgeon, a giant banana, a mime and four moustache girls.

The evening visitations ended, I downloaded the pix and sent thumbnails off to Ontario, where I'm told that quite a few of the representatives to the Primate's World Relief and Development Fund got to see them the next day during breaks in their deliberations.

Winter Driving has its dangers

The road between Dawson and Whitehorse is not at all bad for the season, but this sedan, on its roof off to the side of the Klondike Highway, about 50 km north of Carmacks, is a reminder that it can be slippery and that drivers need to exercise care and that the road can be dangerous.

We want to hear from you!

Pushing the Klondike toward world heritage status

By Sandy Silver, Klondike MLA

This past Wednesday (Nov. 5), the Yukon Legislative Assembly unanimously passed a motion I introduced supporting the designation of the Klondike as a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

The Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in First Nation is leading the way on working towards this designation. A diverse community-based advisory committee has been assembled for this project. It is reflective of the significant economic opportunity that a UNESCO designation would present at a local and territorial level.

A UNESCO World Heritage Site is defined as "places on Earth that are of outstanding universal value to humanity and as such, have been inscribed on the World Heritage List to be protected for future generations to appreciate and enjoy."

I think we can all agree the Klondike fits this description.

A UNESCO designation is a very rare opportunity, and even being considered is a great honour. The Klondike was placed on Canada's list of tentative sites in 2004, 150 were reviewed and whittled down to a mere 11.

Four of these have subsequently gained UNESCO status. A designation would put the Klondike amongst such iconic locations as the Pyramids of Egypt and the Grand Canyon.

Having the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in (TH) taking the lead on this project is a demonstration of just how significant this designation would be.

The support that TH has received comes from both our major private sector industry associations; the Klondike Placer Miners Association and the Klondike Visitors Association.

There is still work to be done, but I am pleased to see this project moving forward and thankful for the support of all parties in the legislature for the motion that was approved on Wednesday.

Ed Note: The letter appeared later the same week that the Yukon News ran a story with the headline "Klondike's UNESCO bid at risk by gov't dithering: First Nation" based on an interview with Jackie Olsen, TH's Executive Director. The Sun hopes that concern is now out of date.

The George Black sleeps for the winter

insane

By Catherine Millar, Whitehorse

The hills of the Yukon are rolling;

The beauty and calmness amaze.

We sat looking over the valley. We sat there for what seemed like days.

There wasn't a whole lot of talking.

I just couldn't think what to

The sunshine soaked into my shoulders.

Eventually we went on our

We climbed up a mountain to nowhere.

We sweated and toiled and swore.

It's a good thing I'd brought my nag Bessie,

Or I'd have just fainted dead and away

There was snow at the top of the mountain

And the chill air predicted much more.

So we set out to find us some shelter.

It was almost the end of the day.

We peered 'round the tall stands of spruce trees, Don't know exactly what for, And there in the dusk stood a

We couldn't have asked for much more.

The hinge creaked, the floor squeaked, the roof sighed. I turned 'round and -slam closed the door.

The windows like ragged bad black teeth.

I couldn't see nothing no more.

My candles were frozen and brittle.

My camp lights, from first to the fourth,

Refused to share light in the darkness;

Declined to provide me with warmth.

I shivered, I worried, I fretted. I brought Bessie in from the

She was warm and she wore a blanket,

At that moment worth much more than gold.

She stepped gracefully over the threshold.

She dipped her head under the I sharpened my axe and came frame.

Her back feet had barely touched floorboards; From that moment it all went

She snorted, her eyes rolled, she bellowed.

There was something I just couldn't see.

But Bessie knew someone was with us,

Someone other than just her and me.

I looked high, I peered low; saw nothing.

I crawled under the table in fear.

And Bessie kept flaring her

To tell me that someone was

A puff, and a wheeze, then a cackle -

All my candles now flared in the gloom.

A deep breath, a moan, then a

There was nothing but warmth in that room.

A movement, a flicker, then laughter;

A face pressed against one black pane.

A red nose, an eyebrow, a wrinkle,

And Bessie's quick snort once again.

"You're lost now, my friends," boomed an odd voice.

"You're here but you want to go

You just want this night to be over;

Perhaps never more want to

I am honoured to have you as guests here.

It is quiet and still, as you know.

I'd like you to stay for a while. It's warm in there, out of the

But that's out of the question, I fear.

I'm condemned to the cold and the bitterness.

I've been out here for over a vear.

A blizzard was coming last

And my woodpile was not very out here.

I had no idea I'd die.

The snow and the wind whirled around me. It buried me quickly, for sure. I froze right through into my centre.

I'm assured there's no medical cure.

I can't go inside or I'll melt now, And that is my ultimate doom. I am perpetually frozen, And cannot go into that room.

I've waited for someone to join

It's lonely out here, and it's cold.

I don't want to stay here alone

And slowly, so slowly, grow old.

Please sit back, relax; put your feet up.

I'll bring some more wood for the stove.

You may as well make yourself comfortable.

You'll never again need to rove."

A blink, and a nod, then a shadow;

The face was now gone from

I couldn't imagine the horror Of never leaving this cabin again.

A click, and a snap; then a bolt

The door was decidedly closed. I was solidly locked in from outside,

As my new friend had somewhat proposed.

I panicked, and Bessie now joined me.

We both had the same urgent need:

To get ourselves out of this prison,

And away from this ice-frozen fiend.

I rattled the door for no purpose;

It wouldn't budge even an inch. I looked 'round for some kind of weapon,

Anything that would do in a pinch.

Then Bessie began doing horse things. She snorted and whinnied and paced. Her mane was completely electric;

She had to get out of this place. My gold poke fell out of my

Spooky Times at the Palace

Story & Photos By Dan Davidson

Hallowe'en came a day early in Dawson this year with a special Haunted House event at the Palace Grand Theatre. With a spooky graveyard, several different levels of gruesome tales, ghosts, horror film monsters and lots of scream making surprises, the evening was quite a hit.

The foyer was packed as kids and their parents waited for their turn to tour all three levels of the building.

This year's horror fest was put on by Klondike National Historic Sites, the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Youth Group, the 2015 Grad Class (accepting donations towards their Graduation), the Dawson City Fire Department Association and the RCMP.

Manitoba Hal transforms the ukulele

Three songs into his first set of tunes, Manitoba Hal sits back and introduces himself. By then the audience in the Alchemy Café is well aware that they have never heard anyone play the ukulele quite like that.

They've already heard his blues guitar style, and on one song he has created four different voices for the instrument with his looping gear, becoming a one man band with bass, percussion, rhythm strum and live lead picking. The big man with the small double-necked instrument is amazing.

"My name is Manitoba Hal and I live in Nova Scotia," he says. "It's a geographical conundrum. Get used to it. I lived in Manitoba for 25 years. That's where I got my start, but four years ago I realized that I didn't have to live in a part of the country that was 40 below in the winter. I know you know what I'm talking about. So I packed up my kit and kaboddle and moved out to the edge of the country, to a very beautiful little town of 1800 people. There is where I spend my winters, because I spend the rest of my year in my car."

Hal Brolund travels extensively, working out of his 100 year old cottage in Shelburne, NS. He does a lot of ukulele festivals and other gigs, crossing the continent and playing internationally.

For this Yukon tour he's visited Whitehorse, Crag Lake, Marsh Lake, Atlin, Haines Junction, Mendenhall, Mary Lake, Mayo, Pelly Crossing and Dawson City.

His double necked uke (standard and tenor) is one he had specially made for him. He says it's because he was too lazy to carry two instruments, but there are definite musical advantages to his electrified version of the classic small string box.

With the looping gear he is able to lower the tone of the bass string on the tenor so that it actually sounds like a bass guitar when paired with the rest of the strings. Record that as a loop in the machine's memory, add a few other sounds – slapping the soundbox for percussion, strumming for more of the beat - and he ends up being a one man band. He can either accompany himself or use the system to perform instrumental tunes.

His press kit provides the reason why he switched from guitar to uke.

"I noticed that sonically it occupied this space that was in pitch above my voice. This gave my vocals a lot more room in the song without colliding with the notes of the accompaniment as they did when I played guitar.

"Also I noticed that people seemed amazed at the sounds I was producing with the ukulele. The last thing that clinched my decision to switch to uke full time was that for all the years and concerts I've given as a guitarist, people usually didn't tell me stories of their life when I play guitar. [However], people seemed compelled to communicate about their life when the uke is played. I like that."

While here he participated in a songwriters' circle in the afternoon prior to his evening concert.

This is the second house concert in Dawson that hasn't been in an actual house. One last year was in a workshop, and this one tried out the newest of the local cafes. The organizers keep experimenting with the concept. Everything seem to work just

No Caribou Hunting on South Dempster Hwy

Environment Yukon has ordered an emergency closure for caribou hunting in Game Management Subzones 2-16, 2-23, 2-27, 2-28 and 2-39, starting November 5. The affected area includes the Dempster Highway from kilometre 77 (North Fork Pass) to kilometre 195 (Ogilvie River Bridge).

This emergency closure applies to resident and non-resident hunters. Because the vast majority of the caribou in these sub-zones belong to the Hart River herd, harvesting rights under the Porcupine Caribou Management Agreement do not extend to these sub-zones at this time.

Help conserve the Hart River caribou herd.

The Ice is building faster this year

Patrons turn out in bad sweaters to support the Museum

Story & photos By Dan Davidson

Dawson City Museum Executive Director Laura Mann reports that the annual auction, held this year on November 1, was another success, raising just a tad under $13,000 for the organization's budget.

"It did go well - always does," she said, "People come prepared to have a good time and we're getting more and better ideas every year. While this is an important fundraiser for the Museum, it's also an opportunity, after the craziness of summer, to simply have a good time."

There's always a theme to the auction. This year it was "Ugly Sweaters", with both the auctioneer, Paul Robitaille, and two "Vannas", Debbie Winston and Amanda Freeman, showing the rest of the audience their bad choices. Ralph Nordling wore a sweater that he apparently judged to be so ugly that he never did get around to taking the store tags off it.

There were 64 items up for bidding, all donated by individuals and businesses from Dawson and Whitehorse. There were recreation passes from the City of Dawson, artwork and jewelry from local artists and artisans, gift packs from various stores, rooms and meals at Dawson's hotels, subscriptions and ad space at the local paper, a dinner cruise on next summer's Klondike Spirit schedule, a load of screened gravel, a helicopter tour and income tax assistance, just to name some of the lots.

There were goodies prepared by local chefs in the gift shop downstairs, and a couple of rounds of trivia for liven up the evening.

"Many use the auction as an opportunity to do a little early Christmas shopping," Mann said. "Others just love to watch the antics of their fellow bidders. Then, of course, there are those who love to bid their neighbours up. Sometimes they win; sometimes the bald headed guy ends up with the curling iron.

"Towards the end of the auction, a gift pack from Maximilian's came up featuring an adult onesie and several other items themed to winter. When Garry Gammie won the lot, I offered to pay should Garry model the onesie. While there wasn't enough time for an impromptu fashion show, 'pajama party' will be the theme of next year's auction."

Days of wine and roses

Submitted by KIAC

It's that time of year again when the Third Annual Wine Tasting Evening will be held in the KIAC ballroom on Friday, November 14 beginning at 7:30

The idea came to the board as a signature fundraiser for the organization as some board members had attended similar events outside of the Yukon. Gail Calder, Vice President of KIAC said "There are many people in town who have an appreciation for fine wines that they don't have to break the bank to buy; however, it is not easy to choose by looking at a label when you can't taste the product.

Gail's training began at the 41st and Cambie St. specialty liquor store in Vancouver in the eighties, then continued at the Dawson Liquor store for 12

The Whitehorse Rotary Club's annual fundraising wine festival was held in Whitehorse on October 30th when twenty-three Canadian wine distributors presented approximately 200 wines, ports and champagnes from all around the world to a sold out crowd at the High Country Inn. Their event enables Yukon Liquor Corporation representatives to get feedback from the attendees on what new wines they would like to see it is necessary for KIAC's taststocked in the Yukon.

KIAC's event, on a much smaller scale, though growing every year, has turned into a lovely social evening with the Bob Hilliard Jazz Trio providing background music. Those who are not wine drinkers can purchase a reduced price ticket for the music and appetizers and a separate cash bar will be avail-

Karen Dubois, Executive Director of KIAC, said they have been trying to find a date for the annual event acknowledging a larger fundraiser would be possible for KIAC during a busier

"It was fantastic. It's been a whole week of activities. The idea is that we're sharing knowledge, news and events, and just trying to get everyone in the same room at the same time, which is not easy.

"Not everyone could stay all week, but I put the count at between 40 and 50 people who attended parts of the week."

The event saw people from Dawson, Whitehorse, Mayo, Keno City, Old Crow, Teslin, Faro and Haines Junction in attendance.

The Museums' roundtable on Monday (Oct 20) was hosted by the Yukon Government Museums Unit.

"These were more sort of business discussions within the museums community," said Oakley.

On Tuesday and Wednesday the Canadian Conservation Institute presented a workshop on archival materials, including everything from paper to digital material.

Joe Boyle could be the Klondike's next big opportunity

Max Fraser is the first to admit that it was only relatively recently that he began to take a serious interest in the life of Joseph Whiteside Boyle, the man once known as the King of the Klondike; the man behind the legendary Klondike Nuggets' Stanley Cup Challenge; the man responsible for the original construction of Dredge No. 4 and the Bear Creek compound; and the man who financed a machine gun company to fight in Europe during World War I.

Fraser is working with the Yukon Historical and Museums Association (YHMA) to put together a conference on the subject of World War I and the North in the spring of 1916, and hopes that a celebration of the works of Joe Boyle will be part of that event.

In fact, Fraser, the former editor of the Whitehorse Star and long time researcher for the Yukon New Democratic Party, has turned to film making in recent years. His Max Fraser Video Productions has produced a number of films, including the well received Never Happen Here, about the September 11, 2001 incident when Korean Air Flight 085 was forced to land in Whitehorse.

He is presently engaged in a crowdfunding campaign to raise the money to complete his current project, Bond of Strangers, about a group of Canadians who undertook a 20-day journey through Sicily, 70 years after the 1st Canadian Division landed therein 1943.

His next project will be a biopic about Joe Boyle, who he feels is Dawson's most neglected historic figure. His own interest was triggered a couple of years ago in Banff, when he met a British sounding person from Toronto, who assumed that Fraser, as a Yukoner, would know all about Boyle. His interlocutor had grown up near Hampstead Heath, in England, where Boyle had been buried after he died in 1923 and where his body remained until it was repatriated to his hometown of Woodstock, Ontario, in 1983.

Fraser wants to make a feature film about Boyle's wartime exploits, including his romance with the Queen of Romania, which he has summed up on his website.

"Joe Boyle was Dawson's wealthiest citizen in 1914. He financed a machine gun regiment to go to war soon after war was declared in August, 1914. In return for his generosity, he was made an Honorary Lieutenant-Colonel in the Canadian Militia."

In his new book Canada and the Great Power Game, Gwynne Dyer recounts how Canada's military Commander in Chief, Sam Hughes, was in the habit of handing out this sort of commission to all sorts of folks whom he felt were deserving of the honour.

"Sporting an officer's uniform with Yukon gold buttons, Boyle went to London in 1916 to seek an assignment. He was sent to Russia to fix up the railway system, which led to his unplanned romance with Marie of Edinburgh, Queen of Romania. By the end of the war, Boyle was also running a spy network of more than 400 agents for the British Secret Service."

In Prisoner of the North, Pierre Berton lists the medals and citations given to Boyle for his wartime service by the British, French, Russians and Romanians. These included the Order of St. Anne and the Order of St. Vladimir by Russia, the Croix de Guerre by France, the Distinguished Service Order by Britain, and the Crown of Romania. the Star of Romania and the Grand Cross. It is likely that his most prized honour was his Romanian title, Duke of Jassey, conferred by Queen Marie.

Berton also asserts that, while Boyle never returned to the Yukon after 1916, he always wore his Klondike connection on his sleeve.

Fraser feels that during these WWI anniversary years Dawson would be missing a huge bet if it did not do something to commemorate the life and times of Joe Boyle, whose only monument in the Klondike is a plaque out beside Joe Boyle in uniform, taken from Prisoners of the North, credited to the Len Taylor Collection in the Woodstock Library.

Max Fraser wants to make the name of Joe Boyle a household word.

Dredge No. 4.

"Joe is Dawson's next big opportunity," he said to the group at the evening's lectures during the YHMA symposium in late October.

"He was one of those special people; a true leader, an honest dedicated man who succeeded in just about every thing he did."

Fraser suggests that there are a number of things that might be done to capitalize on the Boyle legend: a party, a statue, restoration of Boyle's house in Bear Creek, the naming of a street. Boyle's legacy, he suggests, could be a draw here long after the war anniversaries have come to an end

'PAW'etry: Do I go Home Today?

By Sandi Thompson

My family brought me home cradled in their arms. They cuddled me and smiled at me and said I was full of charm.

They played with me and laughed with me and showered me with toys.

I sure do love my family, especially the girls and boys.

The children loved to feed me, they gave me special treats. They even let me sleep with them all snuggled in the sheets.

I used to go for walks, often several times a day. They even fought to hold the leash, I'm very proud to say .These are the things I'll not forget - a cherished memory. I now live in the shelter – without my family.

They used to laugh and praise me when I played with that old shoe. But I didn't know the difference between the old ones and the new. The kids and I would grab a rag, for hours we would tug. So I thought I did the right thing when I chew the bedroom rug.

They said I was out of control, and would have to live outside. This I did not understand, although I tried and tried. The walks stopped, one by one; they said they hadn't time. I wish I could change things, I wish I knew my crime.

My life became so lonely, in the backyard, on a chain. I barked and barked all day long to keep from going insane. So they brought me to the shelter but were embarrassed to say why. They said I caused an allergy, and then they each kissed me goodbye.

If I'd only had some classes, as a little pup. I wouldn't have been so hard to handle when I was all grown up. "You only have one day left." I heard the worker say. Does that mean I have a second chance? Do I go home today?

Loki On Line in 1995

by Tim Gerberding

Loki Gold hopes to bring its proposed Brewery Creek Heap Leach Mine into production in the Fall of 1995, according to project manager Rupert Allan. Allan and Loki geologist Susan Craig spoke to a packed house at the YOOP Hall on October 12. This was the second in a series of public meetings Loki is hosting in order to provide information, answer questions, and allay concerns local residents may have regarding the mine. The next public meeting will be in January.

The method of gold extraction Loki plans to use - cyanide heap leach - is new to the Yukon. Consequently it has been greeted with suspicion by many Yukoners. But according to Allan, the heap leach process is less harmful to the environment than a conventional milling process and now accounts for 30% of all gold production in the United States.

The Brewery Creek ore contains microscopic particles of gold and lies close to the surface. It is highly weathered and oxidized. This makes it crumbly and permeable. It is contained in 8 shallow ore bodies in a 'trend' stretching 6 kilometers east to west. There isn't much overburden, and so won't

School Council Elated By

Announcement

by Dan Davidson

The Robert Service School Council is beaming as a result of the recent announcement from the Minister of Education, Willard Phelps, that a second school will be constructed in this community. While an opening date of 1997 is later than the council would have liked, late is better than never.

At the recent council meeting chairman Fletcher Hunston noted that this announcement came about one year after the cancellation of the previously committed school expansion program. He reminded council that the government had committed to make a decision on a second school or a more permanent expansion within a year from

The government, he said, had ept its commitment.

The tentative location for the proposed elementary school is on the lots currently occupied by the Goldrush Campground. Hunston said that not all the lots will be available at the same time, but that enough of them will have returned to the city's control with the expiration of the lease to allow the project to begin on time.

Hunston said he had not yet seen anything in terms of design plans, but members of the recreation community, who have been complaining about their declining access to the Robert Service School as it grows and gets busier, are already eyeing the potential recreation space hungrily.

Hunston said there is no connection in his mind between the new school and the need for expanded playground space at the existing school. School council is pushing to negotiate with the city council over the re-routing of Fourth Avenue to allow for a playing field expansion to the area behind the Eldorado Hotel. A meeting is already scheduled in November to discuss ways and means of making this a reality.

Mayor Art Webster has already declared himself in favour of this project, and enough of the city council is also in agreement to make it probable that it will

In the meantime, the modular classrooms needed to relieve the strain on the overcrowded original school, which now houses 20 to 30 percent more students than it was designed for, have been set up in the parking lot at the south end of the building and should be ready for occupancy just after the Remembrance Day weekend.

New Elementary School to be Built by 1997

Whitehorse Press Release - A new school is being planned for Dawson City. It is anticipated that new mining developments will swell the population of that community considerably in the coming years, and a new school with a capacity of 150 students would be constructed by the fall of 1997. The new school will be attended by primary students from the Dawson area (Grades K-3 or K-4). Until its completion, portables being put in place this fall will accommodate the overflow from the current school.

"It's unfortunate that the current Dawson school, completed in 1989 at a cost of over $10 million was inadequate in size almost from the day it opened," said Education Minister Willard Phelps, "The coming developments in the Klondike region, however, are exciting for all of us in the territory, and we are planning to meet their needs with this new school."

The Sun obtained funding in late 2009 from the City of Dawson, YTG's Heritage Branch and the Community Development Fund to conserve and archive early issues and make them available once again in the public domain. This is a great resource for students, writers and historians, and also for prospective tourists with an interest in Dawson City's life. Ferry season ends water, gasoline, wood, and sundries to exist cutoff from the town for an indeterminate number of days ... or weeks.

There's more ice in the river this year than there was last at this time, so perhaps the freeze-up will happen faster. West Dawson residents have to hope it will freeze in a convenient place for the beginnings of an ice bridge.

The traditional crossing is at the ferry landing, less than a kilometre in length. Last year's shore creeping route added up to about four kilometres by the time it finally froze enough for cars and trucks to traverse.

The ferry chugged along the west bank to its extraction point about 2:40, but it was some time before the cats, graders and cables were hooked up to the block and tackle arrangement required to power the herculean tug needed to get the boat out of the water and onto the rails leading to its winter cradle.

The first massive pull took only about a minute around 4:50 to accomplish that first step. Then the cables all had to be reset for the second pull. The cats held the boat in place on the down sloping rails while the pulleys were reset and the graders moved back into position for the final step.

This pull started well and then, to everyone's surprise, the cable on the north side of the operation broke under the strain and the block and tackle came bounding up the hill, bringing the operation to a halt until everything could be untangled, repaired and reset.

The final pull, with its fine adjustments to center the boat properly, and have it a good position for next May's relaunch, took about two minutes. The ferry was in place at about 5:20.

The slushy frazil ice pans currently jostling each other in the river will allow small boats to dodge around them and make crossings for a little while yet. It all depends on what happens with the temperatures, snowfall, and how quickly the little pans smash into and combine with each other and stick to the shoreline.

been placed under the CMH umbrella.

During the day there were a couple of opportunities for the delegates to share news from their areas as well as make a visit to the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre, where the Grade 9 students of the Robert Service School had prepared an exhibit of First Nations cultures across Canada as part of a unit they had been doing in Social Studies.

The rest of the afternoon was taken up with a workshop on program evaluation, presented by Jake Paleczny, executive director at the Yukon Wildlife Preserve.

In the evening there were two presentations open to the community at large.

Max Fraser spoke about Dawson's World War legacy and, in particular, the life of Klondike Joe Boyle, who he feels is one of the Klondike's most under appreciated characters.
Fraser is preparing a film about Boyle's life and hopes to have some of it ready to tie into a conference on WWI in the North planned to be held in Whitehorse and partly in Dawson in May 2016.

Anishinaabe display at Danoja Zho

In keeping with that presentation, Dr. Dean Oliver, co-author of The Oxford Companion to Canadian Military History presented a lecture entitled "Canada's Guns of August: a Centennial Echo," in which he examined the various theories that led to the launching of the Great War, and some of the demographic variables that determined the Canadian response.

DAWSON CITY - HEART OF THE KLONDIKE

The Phantom of Room 13D

In the style of Robert Service by Dan Dowhal, Dawson City

I could not foretell that my old hotel

Was haunted, for I was oft drunk,

Still strange things I found would sometimes abound In those rooms where I chose to bunk.

I don't yield to fright but one winter night

Still conjures up dread in my thoughts,

And that is the tale that here I'll unveil,

Though telling it twists me in knots.

Beneath a full moon, I left the saloon,

And trudged home towards my abode,

Then up tread-worn stairs in need of repairs

That creaked as I crept wobbly-toed.

When outside my room, all swaddled in gloom, Beheld I a strange, comely lass, Her skin oh so white, her pale lips clenched tight, And black eyes as glossy as glass.

Her face, though, was fair, beneath her black hair, Full-bosomed with slim waist was she,

Her red, low-cut dress, to me did suggest,

She came there professionally. So I tipped my cap, like a wellbred chap,

"Good evening," to her did pronounce,

"If thy love be sold, I'll buy some for gold,

For I've dug up many an ounce.

My chamber is nigh, so if you say aye,

I'll procure your prodigious charms.

'Twill be wealth well spent, and I'd be content

To die in your exquisite arms." A fey smile appeared that ran ear to ear,

Her answer seemed somehow deranged.

"On that last point, sir, I fully concur,

"I'm quite sure it can be arranged."

Then she with a roar pushed me through the door,
Before my eyes she was transformed. Large vampiric fangs within her mouth sprang, While flames from her eye sockets swarmed.

She set upon me with ferocity,
My body was ravaged and mussed, My senses went numb, I saw she'd become she'd become Some evil, undead succubus.

She told with a howl, how murder most foul, On this spot had caused her demise. But now, she did boast, returned as a ghost, She preyed on the men she despised.

Said she, "For your lust, I'll crush you to dust,
And damn you for eternity,
While you rue the day that you did survey,

The Phantom of Room 13D."

I struggled for words, a thought then occurred

To save me from her evil verve. "O Phantom!" I cried, "I do not deride,

The vengeance you justly deserve,

But pray your time bide, go hover outside,

Read closely the numbers you'll

You've made a mistake, the news I must break
That this is not Room 13D."

She paused in her wrath, while mulling the math, Then stepped through the wall for a peep, But I did not wait 'til she saw things straight For right out the window I leaped.

Downwards I fell, though not down to hell,

I plunged to the snowdrift outside,

Then jumped to my feet, and beat my retreat, Before that ghost found out I'd lied.

Since that dreadful night, I've always done right,

Avoided intemperance and vice, But if you check in, to that haunted inn,

Take heed that you'll pay a steep price.

My tale, I'll admit, may strain quite a bit

The bounds of your credulity, Discount if you choose, but whatever you do,

Stay away from Room 13D.
