A kid's-eye view of the Percy DeWolfe Race

Story by Breanna Brown

On Thursday, March 27 my Grade 1 class walked down to King Street to watch the start of the Percy DeWolfe Race! I saw dogs being funny and jumping up. They were excited to start the race. The dogs had little booties so that their paws don't get too cold. They were barking a lot.

There were lots of people cheering and being very loud. I felt crowded when lots of people were there and the race started. Some people were taking pictures and some were talking. I was cold the whole time even though the sun was out. My class was clapping and cheering so that someone will win the race. All the school kids were being loud. They were excited too!

My class wrote letters to Eagle School. The letters were in a bag

My class wrote letters to Eagle School. The letters were in a bag full of mail. I feel good about them getting my letter. It is fun to send letters by dogsled. It was really fun to watch! At the end of the race my friend and I pretended we were dogs and we were fighting.

The end.

Uffish Thoughts: How much are we affected changing our clocks?

By Dan Davidson

I spotted a new poster in the Post Office today. It was the first time I'd noticed it, though it was date stamped March 7, 11 days ago. It may have been that the mass of notices regarding our spring carnival had all disappeared by today and so that one stood out more.

CHALLENGE TIME CHANGE & WIN! It says in large letters at the top.

I'm not sure how serious it is, but it asks a sensible question as a subheading.

"In the Land of the Midnight Sun Is There a Need for Daylight Savings Time?"

That's not a bad question. It ignores the fact that the Yukon is pretty much always on some form of Daylight Savings Time, but most people aren't aware of that.

The Yukon Standard Time Zone included our territory and part of Alaska until 1975, when we decided (largely for business and administrative reasons) to give it up and switch the territory to Pacific Standard Time. This kept us in line with British Columbia and not quite so far away (in time) from Alberta, where we also do a lot of business.

Parts of Alaska still used our old time zone until 1983, when they changed the name to the Alaska Standard Time Zone.

What this means, of course, is that when we set our clocks ahead on March 9 we actually went to double daylight savings time. So if you really want to see the honest to goodness

Midnight Sun effect between June 20 and 22 (apparently it is the 21st this year) you really need to stay up until 2 a.m. to make up for the time dislocation.

The poster doesn't mention that.

What it does do is ask how the two time switches every year affect "your life, your day, your family and those around you, the town, the territory ..."

CBC online ran an item on this subject a couple of weeks back (they update it every year). We make the switch on Sunday morning at 2 a.m., ostensibly to avoid the inconveniences that would occur if we did it during the regular work week. In spite of that, those people who work a day shift on Sunday, or get up to go to church, do face a sleep deficit that day. It can last for a few days. When I was teaching, the day after the daylight switch usually featured a number of students who were late on Monday morning.

The CBC item credits (or perhaps that should read debits) Daylight Savings with an increase in heart attacks, vehicular and pedestrian accidents, extra trouble for insomniacs and, ironically, an economic cost of about $434 million annually, based on a US survey taken in 2010. I say "ironic" because this switch in the spring was supposed to be economically and personally beneficial.

Winston Churchill once said that it increased "the opportunities for the pursuit of health and happiness among Midnight Sun effect between the millions of people who live when the gathering darkness June 20 and 22 (apparently in this country". is accelerated by an hour. On

An added nuisance not mentioned on the poster is the need to reset every digital clock on every appliance in your house in addition to any normal clocks you may have. Computers and hand-held devices pretty much reset themselves, but I bet a lot of you forget to reset the date/time feature on your digital cameras and voice recorders.

The poster got a little silly when it was listing the negative impacts. It concludes the sentence I quoted above by asking about the effect on "plants and animals." Not too many of them are concerned with human made notions of time, so I think the answer there is obvious. Our dog simply follows the sunbeam on the kitchen floor and doesn't really care about when it gets there; it's just nice to have it back again.

What really confuses plant life in the Yukon is the sudden increase in the amount of daylight as contrasted with the actual temperatures of the air, ground and water. They've got one set of triggers telling them to wake up and start growing and three other sets saying no, not yet.

Personally I'm not much bothered by the time change in March. At the rate that our daily allotment of sunlight is increasing by that time, it's only about a week before it makes absolutely no difference to morning or evening.

It's more of a shock in October, when the gathering darkness is accelerated by an hour. On the other hand, an extra hour's sleep on a Sunday morning is not unwelcome then.

I doubt that any amount of protesting is likely to result in changes to the way we've been doing things since President Bush II succeeded in lengthening Daylight Savings Time in 2005. A return to the shorter number of weeks wouldn't really make much difference.

Anyone who is seriously bothered by the time shifts can always move to somewhere where they don't do it at all. Countries closer to the equator don't much bother with it, as it makes no discernible difference to them. Neither does most of Saskatchewan.

In Dawson, that hill has a lot more to do with the evening sunset than the time on the clock.

Dawson Volleyball Club serves up fundraising with flare

Dear Dawsonites:

I am writing to you on behalf of the newly formed Dawson Volleyball Club. Our small community has experienced a growing interest over the past year in this exciting sport, and our young athletes have the opportunity to compete in this year's Western Canadian Open.

Last year, for the first time ever, Dawson City's Grade 9 Boys decided to enter their volleyball team. They managed to raise over $15,000 to be able to train, travel and compete in the 2013 Western Canadian Open in Abbotsford, BC. They worked hard not only practicing their sport, but simultaneously taking on odd jobs as a team in the community, shoveling snow off roofs, driveways & walkways, stacking wood, babysitting, recycling, and seeking donations. They raised all the funds to pay for their registration, airfare, van rentals, fuel, hotel rooms and meals, all within two months!!!

This year's fundraising is well underway, and both teams have raised an average of 40% of their $15,000 goals. We realize that the increase in interest to attend the 2014 Western Open amongst the different age groups however is placing a toll on the community's ability to support both teams. The teams are diligently seeking out fundraising opportunities such as bake sales, grocery bagging, bottle drives, babysitting and other odd jobs such as stacking wood, clearing snow, and other labour to raise money. They are looking a little further this year to reach their mark.

The Under 14 Girls team is headed to compete in Abbotsford, BC, May 9th to May 11th. The Under 15 Boys team is hoping to repeat their wonderful experience in their age group's competition in Regina, Saskatchewan, May 17th to 19th, this time. We are all determined to raise our funds and attend this year's tournament, and are already excited with the idea of all attending the 2015 Western Open in Calgary, this time traveling together to one destination, supporting one another in one big city! First things first however...

We have been approaching individuals and companies for donations to help the Dawson Volleyball Club top up their fundraising goals. Be it a monetary donation, helping us with points (we have an Aeroplan account to which points can be donated. Account #566 469 425), or helping us with other reward options such as hotel rooms or fuel vouchers, all is helpful and will be greatly appreciated.

Another event meant to help out the two teams is the upcoming Gumboot Formal, held Friday, April 4th at the KIAC Ballroom. Tickets are on sale for $20 at Max's and include food and the Whitehorse sensation Ryan McNally & the Red Hot Ramblers! Dig out your best frock and dust off those rubber boots because we anticipate this to be this spring's best night out! Complimentary appetizers for all, full bar and a silent auction with a ton of great items are on the agenda. Shake off those winter blues, jump into spring and enjoy a night out with a great purpose!

To facilitate donations, we have several options to choose from. You can go to www.you-caring.com & look up "Dawson Volleyball" to donate online. You can send cheques made out to "Dawson Volleyball" to PO Box 1560, Dawson City, Yukon, Y0B 1G0. You can e-mail transfer your donation to jala-penomomma@hotmail.com or contact me, Heidi A.E. Bliedung, on my mobile at 867-993-3556 or at home at 867-993-6669 to arrange for odd jobs, recycling donations or any other help!

We appreciate you spreading the word about our ambitions and thank you in advance for your generosity. Thank you for the time you've taken to get to know our story.

Sincerely, Heidi A.E. Bliedung, President Dawson Volleyball Club

The Frozen Bun Run

Story by Jack Amos

The Frozen Bun Run was a fundraiser for sarcoma cancer research. People sponsored me to snowboard down the ski-hill in shorts and a T-shirt as many times as I could.

This was in support of a larger project by Kate Crocker, who is in Victoria. Kate organized a "Cutathon", which aimed to raise $4,000 by numerous people in her school being sponsored to cut off their hair - Kate and her sister, Tess, included.

I was inspired to support this project because Kate had a close family member who died of sarcoma a few weeks ago. Sarcoma is hugely under-funded and there is no cure for it.

So, on March 1 and 2 I did the fundraiser. On the first day I did four consecutive runs, and on the second day I did six consecutive runs. It was 20-below on the first day and 25-below on the second day, or so it felt!!!

What was helpful was the moral support that I got from some of the kids that were there. So, I would like to thank Logan Graff, Oliver Flagel, Rory Duncan, Austin Renaud and my sister, Jesse. Extra big thanks to Joey Lorenze for his help and support. Joey also raised money by skiing four runs in shorts and a T-shirt!

I would also like to make special notes of thanks to Ellen Sidney who collected $110 of sponsorship! Thank you, Ellen! And, to my grand-father, John Brown, who sponsored me $20 a run - hee, hee!

Overall, from the 63(!) people that sponsored me (mostly Dawson people), I raised $1,200! In the end, Kate Crocker's project raised over $14,000!!!

Thank you residents of Dawson, you make everything possible!

It's all in the grooming

A perfect skate ski trail.

Story & photos by Cathie Findlay-Brook

Discussion around winter trail grooming - how much to groom, what not to groom - often comes up between folks who are out enjoying the woods and the river during winter.

There's nothing quite like donning skis or snowshoes, plunging into soft powdery snow and 'making fresh tracks', tracks that will inevitably be followed by human, dog or other animal, or snow mobile, erasing our singular impression in the snow.

So why have trails at all? And why trackset? Trackset trails make the sport of cross country skiing accessible to more people; people of varying skills. Novice skiers and kids are less likely to be frustrated by skis sliding out from beneath them sideways, the tracks keeping their skis in line and allowing the skier to focus on developing the skills of agility, balance, coordination and speed.

The river trails groomed by the large groomer give us the reassurance that there is a safe path on the river for winter recreation. For the past few years the Klondike Active Transport and Trails Society (KATTS) has received funding to facilitate winter trail grooming projects. This year's funding came from Mountain Equipment Co-op's Access & Activity Grant Program.

KATTS' mandate is to promote healthy, safe and spiritually rewarding outdoor activities and showcase our regions rich cultural and natural resources.

Whether walking, snowshoeing, skiing, skijoring, dog mushing, skating, biking or snowmobiling it's the perfect time of year to enjoy our northern spring on the river trails. And the Moose Mountain Ski trails are still in good condition. Get out while you can! If you are interested in knowing more about what KATTS is doing check out our website or friend us on facebook.

Parks will extend its fall season by two weeks

Parks Canada is revisiting its decision to close down its Yukon sites the day after Labour Day, and will be extending its season in Dawson by an additional two weeks to the middle of September on a trial basis for the 2014 tourist season.

The announcement was made at the Dawson City Chamber of Commerce March meeting and confirmed the same day at that evening's annual general meeting of the Klondike Visitors Association.

At the KVA meeting Klondike National Historic Sites Superintendent David Rohatensky made the announcement.

"In 2012 the direction given to Parks Canada for 2013 was to operate from the Victoria Day long weekend to the Labour Day long weekend as our core operating season. Our year-end evaluation indicated that there was enough market demand that we should examine extending the post season in September slightly longer. So following this analysis Parks Canada has determined that there is a potential to increase the season up to essentially mid-September – the second Sunday after Labour Day.

"So in 2014, on a pilot basis, we will have a reduced offer, a fewer number of tours, but we will still have a visitor offering until that second Sunday."

That will be September 14 this year.

Rohatensky emphasized that Parks is considering this move as a pilot project and there is no guarantee that it will be extended beyond this trial.

"To do this on a pilot basis, we need to make sure that the market demand is there and that we are able to recover reasonable costs of that venture.

"We know that other businesses are looking at that shoulder season and we hope that this contributes to the critical mass to keep Dawson on the tourism radar for visitors at that time of the year."

The KVA membership burst into enthusiastic applause at the end of his announcement.

When the word came down from Ottawa nearly two years ago now that Parks operations would be standardized to a shorter season all across the country, there was nearly universal condemnation in the Yukon from the territorial political parties, municipal governments, the Tourism Industry Association and the business community at large. Member of Parliament Ryan Leef was pretty much the sole voice defending the move.

Much of the outrage focussed on the closure of two key sites, the SS Klondike in Whitehorse and Dredge No. 4 in Dawson. After a protracted delay, a proposal to allow these sites to be serviced by private enterprise was revealed to the public in the spring and operators were selected by bid to carry out daily tours.

In Dawson the two local operators (the third was based in Whitehorse) have indicated that the announcement came far too late in terms of promotional opportunities and their summer operations did not fulfill their expectations.

The number of operators has dropped to one this year and David Millar's Goldbottom Tours has a three year contract at the Dredge. Millar says that learning this in November was still too late for him to advertise it effectively for 2014, but he's looking ahead to 2015.

The fall tourism roundup held by the KVA revealed a widespread feeling among the business community here that the early closure of the Parks' attractions had put a serious damper on the September tourism business. While Parks does not offer the only attractions in town, it does have the biggest number of attractions.

Blue skies welcomed the Percy DeWolfe mushers

By Dan Davidson

By 9:45 Thursday evening the first three mushers and their teams in the Percy DeWolfe Memorial Mail Race had reached Eagle, Alaska. Crispin Studer arrived at 8:40; William Kleedehn at 8:45; and Gerry Willomitzer at 9:05.

Kleedehn was assessed a penalty for a rules infraction. He dropped a dog at Forty Mile and it was not tethered with the proper fastenings, so it chewed through them and got loose, according to Brent Macdonald at the Dawson checkpoint in the Visitor Information Centre.

The 13 mushers in the main Percy Race were a little late getting started on Thursday's fine Dawson City morning, as the city crews were still laying down the last of the fresh snow on King and Front Streets at very close to 10 a.m.

It was a fine morning in town, with bright blue skies and no wind.

The teams left to the sound of a cheering crowd, one at a time, at two-minute intervals, starting at shortly after 10, with the spectral departure of sled No. 1, the spirit of Percy himself.

The race began as a commemorative mail run in 1977, to honour the memory of the Iron Man Mail Carrier after whom it is named. DeWolfe carried the mail back and forth between the two towns in all kinds of weather from 1910 to 1949. The route used for the race is 338 km (210 miles) for the round trip.

Sled No. 2, Whitehorse musher Gerry Willomitzer, had the honour of carrying a bag of memorial mail to Eagle, handed off to him just before his departure by RCMP Staff Sgt. Dave Wallace and Postmaster Amanda Freeman.

In quick succession he was joined on the road to the dike and on to the Yukon River by Joanna Jagow (Fairbanks, Gustav Sakshaug Alaska), Norway), (Oslo, Brian Wilmshurst (Dawson City), Crispin Studer (Carcross), Colin Morrison (Carcross), Jason Biasetti (Dawson City), William Kleedehn (Carcross), Jean-Denis Britten (Dawson City), Meghan Luke (Two Rivers, Alaska), Jacob Heigers (Whitehorse), Amanda Gecas (Fairbanks), and Ed Hopkins

By 10:40 they were all under way and all had arrived in Forty Mile for their first rest stop by 12 minutes past four. When they arrived at Eagle there was a mandatory six-hour layover before they started back.

An hour earlier, at 3 p.m., the four entrants in the Percy Junior Race were gathered on the ice bridge on the big U shaped corner south of town. This year's ice bridge is about four times the length of the standard one, travelling nearly 2 km along the both east and west banks from the ferry landing before crossing the river. The starting line was on the crossing portion.

The four mushers in the half-distance junior race left one at a time, cheered on by several elementary school grades that had been skiing and sliding on the dike during PE at that time of the day. The junior race was tighter this year, with only an eight-hour layover at Forty Mile before starting the return trip. This change from the overnight camping trip of years past was at the request of the mushers, who wanted the event to be more like a full race.

The Percy Junior mushers are Nathaniel Hamlyn (Whitehorse), Rob Wilmshurst (Hastings, Ontario), Gaetan Pierrard and Melissa Schenke (both of Whitehorse).

The lone skijor entry this year was Raija Easterbrook (Athalmere, BC), who left about half an hour after the dog teams.

Technology has made the race more of a spectator sport in recent years and that continues this year. Instead of just watching starting and finishing lines for the main Percy race, you can see the progress of the teams on your computer, pad or other handheld device, anything that will surf the Internet

Living tracking for the full race is very easy to use. The spot tracking for the junior race produces a plethora of blips that are harder to translate. By 10:30 it was easy to see that all four-dog teams and the skijor team had made it to Forty Mile, but the checkpoint hadn't reported back to Dawson with actual times.

Crispen Studer was the first main race contestant back shortly before 2 o'clock on Friday, with all the racers back by 11 p.m. (while this issue was being laid out).

Berton House has musical visitors

Dawson's season Home Routes Concerts continued on March 13 with the duo of fiddler Rosalyn Dennett and banjo player Frank Evans. As a special treat for the regular house concert attendees, this evening event took place at Berton House, where it turns out that the combination of the television room and the living room made a large enough space to accommodate the nearly 20 roots music fans.

Dennett plays bluegrass fiddle on an 18th century violin that doesn't seem idiom. She experiments with a variety of tunings and sings as well as playing. She has played in the Yukon before as part of a band called Oh My Darling. Previously based in Winnipeg, she is now out of Toronto, which is where she ran into the Slocan Ramblers and Evans, who plays banjo in that group.

Evans will now be able to talk with his other band mates, Adrian Gross & Darryl Poulsen, who were the Dawson experience.

Evans specializes in clawhammer (or two finger) style banjo most of the time, but also uses to mind the more modern the Scruggs (or three finger style) method, and demonstrated both styles for the audience. His banjo was made especially for him about 11 years ago by a former player who turned to making the instruments after losing one of his arms.

> On instrumental tunes and in solos during the vocal numbers the pair seamlessly traded providing the melodies and rhythms.

While there were a few here last October, about original numbers in their two sets, most of their music was traditional Appalachian style bluegrass, albeit with a few hints of jazz along the

Frank Evans and Rosalyn Dennett played at Berton House in March.

Evans Dennett and travelled to the west coast by VIA Rail, playing for the passage along the way and were planning to return in the same manner after their three-week tour of the Yukon and some adjacent towns.

While in Dawson Dennett also provided a fiddle workshop to the growing old time fiddle group here in town and the pair played at the March coffee house.

A bilingual musical show celebrated Canada

Story & photos by Dan Davidson

"0 Canada Tour", The sponsored Canadian by Parents for French, made it to Robert Service School on March 11, after having debuted in the Yukon at lack Hulland Elementary in Whitehorse the day before.

The trio of Paul Cournoyer, Heather Bartlett and Peter Harrington worked with the Intensive French 5/6 class at the school early in the afternoon, preparing them to be part of the performance section of the day, which began shortly after 2 p.m.

"O Canada" is a multi-media tour through Canadian history that uses big screen slides, music and performance art to highlight themes such as Confederation, the Canadian Pacific Railroad, the EnglishFrench battle on the Plains of Abraham, the Louis Riel confrontations, the Migration West and Women's Suffrage, among other topics.

The students from the workshop session contributed a small speech en Français, and later the boys and girls in the rest of the audience were split into two teams for a quiz show event, some parts of which referenced the earlier material in the production.

This trio, with a slight change in line-up part way through, had been on the road in Western Canada since early January and would end their run on March 31. The Yukon was the only territory that the tour was booked for. The remaining dates were in BC and Alberta.

They concluded their Yukon tour with a concert at Vanier High School on March 13.

Luedecke and LePoidevin packed the ballroom

Story & photos by Dan Davidson

Neither Pat LePoidevin nor Chris "Old Man" Luedecke were strangers to Dawson when the arrived to play at the Oddfellows Hall on March 18. Both have graced Dawson stages at a number of venues over the years and both have a local fan base.

who LePoidevin, has played Bombay Peggy's several times, opened the show in the packed ballroom with songs that showcased his guitar playing, vocals and looping techniques. The latter skill enables the single performer to multiply his guitar into a small orchestra of strummed and fingered instruments, while his voice can harmonize with itself and become a virtual choir, all in a few minutes.

That said, the audience was probably most impressed that evening when he put down his guitar and took up the bagpipes for a couple of loud and rambunctious tunes that didn't need the sound system at all.

Earlier in the week LePoidevin had spent time with the Grade 9 class at the Robert Service School, teaching them looping techniques.

Old Man Luedecke's Dawson roots go back further, to when he lived here in the late 1990s. This is where he picked up his trademark banjo, began writing songs that he still sings (and a number of these were on the program), as well as meeting the woman who would become his wife. When he lived here he performed at the bars around town, especially at the Westminster's "Snake Pit", while supporting himself washing dishes at Klondike Kate's. In 2007, two records into his recording career, he returned to play at the Dawson City Music Festival.

That was not his first time on that stage, though the first time was a bit of a disaster, as he told the crowd. He had been scheduled to perform one song that first time, and the person who was to call him out from the wings to play. He recalled being devastated.

Still, he persevered with his music and a decade later was rewarded with a Juno Award for his album, Proof of Love.

The banjo is not the instrument you usually find hanging around the neck of a singer-songwriter. There emceeing the evening forgot was Pete Seeger, who filled up that genre all by himself, but the banjo is more likely to find itself in bluegrass group country, and that's not exactly where Luedecke fits musically, in spite of his claw hammer banjo style. His songs are more like folk tunes, with lots of bounce and rhythm, the latter accentuated by his use of a stomp box (or foot drum).

Old Man Luedecke started his career in Dawson in the late

Luedecke played selection of tunes from his latest album, Tender is the Night, but also responded to a number of requests from the audience, where a lot of people seemed to know his repertoire, and the requests included several tunes that were written in or had some connection to Dawson City.

LETTER

Road repairs are a subterfuge to assist a miner

Dear Editor:

This letter is to address the subterfuge created by the successful application by YTG to the City of Dawson for a Development Permit to move the Dome and Mary McLeod road this summer in aid of the Slinky Mine operation.

From the outside, if you're not aware of the layers of circumstances, the Yukon Government's proposal to relocate a section of the Dome Road and Mary McLeod Road seems like a sweet deal. The territorial government will, at its own expense, move a portion of the highways to make it safer for residents.

Closer inspection raises some serious concerns, certainly among the residents who attended the Special Council Meeting on the proposal on Thursday night.

Once the context of this sudden (and apparently time-sensitive) decision is considered, it's quite obvious that the Yukon Government is intent on paying to relocate a large section of the Dome Road and Mary McLeod Road and provide the engineered road required of Mr. Carey (owner of the Slinky Mine). Road relocation, at this and all other mines, is the sole responsibility of the mining operator and highlighted in its permits and approvals.

YTG is willing to spend potentially millions of dollars of tax payers' money to aid a failing placer miner that doesn't have the capacity, funds or will to carry the work out himself. Mr. Carey has had the opportunity to complete the work for a number of years, and despite record high gold prices hasn't fulfilled his mining plans. To discover that the Yukon Government is now willing to step in and do the work for him was received with disbelief by all residents who attended last night's Council meeting.

Certainly, YTG acknowledges that this application is part of a wider initiative to address some of the land use conflict issues in the area. It hasn't deemed to explain to us, or the City of Dawson, what those are other than the land may be made available in future for residential development. If this is an attempt at expediency, then it is expensive, time consuming and unnecessary in equal measure. The Slinky Mine mining approvals expire on 17th May 2015 and need not be renewed; potential millions saved and the community could move forward after years of being held at ransom.

This application is not just about a free road for Dawson, but if it were there are certainly other rights of ways in the community, and throughout the Yukon that are in greater need of repair than this one section of the Dome and Mary McLeod Road. Even if you accept that Dome Road urgently needs to be relocated in this manner, the proposals make little sense. An adjoining section of highway, one actually in need of repair, isn't even included in the proposals. The plans for the intersection of the Dome Road and Mary McLeod endanger public safety equally, if not more, than the current junction does. The 'safety' aspects are no more than afterthought to a proposal that focuses on allowing maximum access for mining.

This move is not only bitterly disappointing, but shows a lack of respect for residents of our community.

Residents who attended the meeting were unimpressed that no consultation or needs assessment had taken place. There are forty property owners on the Dome and plenty of Dawson residents who drive and walk the Dome daily. Not to mention the tourism use in summer. Surely there are people to consult.

Why should a considerable sum of our tax dollars be spent on doing work for an ailing placer miner who's done little to help resolve the issues we've been facing? Why is YTG trying to hoodwink residents by couching this proposal as a public safety matter, when the designs do little to achieve that?

It appeared that an important part of the story was not being shared at this meeting. Perhaps if YTG had been honest rather than make hints about its plans to undertake work on behalf of a private individual (for their personal benefit) the residents might have had less reason to be suspicious.

A definitive solution for this and other related issues needs to be found. The wider debate about mining in municipalities and the role and rights of municipal governments to make decisions will not be served by this turn of events. If YTG was willing to spend this amount of resources on actually trying to deal with the issues (instead of bailing out an inappropriate mining operation) we might actually get some long-term resolution.

It was disappointing and surprising to witness City Council approve this Development Permit. Residents who attended the meeting (Ed. Note: there were 8 citizens there, most with residences in the Dome area) will be submitting letters asking for the City to reconsider and rescind the Development Permit. The information is online and available at the city office. We encourage citizens to make their thoughts on this issue clear to the City within the next week and bring the issues up with MLA Sandy Silver.

Sincerely,

Glenda Bolt and Jim Taggart

The KVA had a stable year but ran slightly in the red

Story & photos by Dan Davidson

When David Rohatensky referred to the financial situation of the Klondike Visitors Association as "fragile but stable", the KVA's treasurer really wasn't saying anything that hasn't been true for years. While the organization's cash flow was still healthy at the end of the fiscal year, the amortization deduction now required of financial reports knocked the bottom line into the red by $32, 532.

As executive director Gary Parker noted in his report to the annual general meeting on March 12, "KVA has always been a non-profit organization". He provided a roller coaster graph on the organization's net revenues from 1978 to 2013, showing the m any ups and downs. 2012 showed a profit of $201,185, the strongest year in over a decade. 2013 did not do as well, but it was far from being the worst year on the chart.

Rohatensky provided context.

"The operating climate of the KVA remains relatively stable; the the challenges are similar, including rising costs, inflation. KVA is for the most part a relatively predictable and stable organization and what you'll notice as you go through the draft audit report is that it reflects that stability."

Parker's report indicated that the average bottom line for the organization over the past 36 years has been $33,213 in net revenue, while 14 of those years have ended in deficits.

Rohatensky noted that hovering just above and below the zero balance point was probably a good thing for the organization and added that there are times when major investments have to be made in the infrastructure in order to keep things going for the long term.

The KVA's cash cow is Diamond Tooth Gerties, the building which it rents from the City of Dawson for a nominal annual sum. In return it takes on all the costs of maintaining and upgrading the building and these are not cheap. Parker's report indicates that last year's major expenses included upgrading the public washrooms and purchasing new stage curtains, along with all the associated hardware.

He also noted that an immediate problem, which is going to require a significant monetary outlay, is "one time funding for the overall replacement of all slot machines and associated systems hardware and software to bring them up to industry standards."

This is not the first time provided this issue has been raised. Last year's report contained the warning that some of the slots in the building similar, were running the risk of inflation. becoming "unintentionally and unsustainably historic" and that situation has not improved and what since that report.

Working as part of the regional economic development plan led by the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, the KVA has developed a fresh marketing plan for the immediate future and will soon be launching its revamped website. The report from Marketing and Events Manager Paul Robitaille noted that the organization has been part of the Tr'ondëk/Klondike:

A World Heritage Site? process, has partnered with Air North and the Yukon Gold TV show in a contest, and created two other contests based on the Sourtoe Cocktail and the "I Love Dawson" concept.

In social media the KVA is active on Twitter, Facebook and YouTube and partnered with the Discovery Channel to place web cams around town and create a launch night event at the Odd Fellows' Hall on the Klondike mini-series website the night the series premiered.

The KVA runs the Jack London Interpretive Centre, partners with the Alaska Trailblazers to organize the Trek Over the Top, coordinates the Thaw di Gras spring carnival, and the Break-up Comedy Festival, assists the Commissioner's Office in putting on the Commissioner's Ball, helps with the Dust to Dawson Motorcycle Ride (Not a Rally), puts on the Yukon Goldpanning Championships and the Authors on Eighth literary contest and walking tour each August.

The organization assisted with planning the Discovery Days weekend, the Labour Day Slo-Pitch Tournament and the Great Klondike International Outhouse Race.

A partnership with CFYT-fm made the annual Talent Night possible at Gerties and the Nutcracker Ballet came to Dawson again due to a partnership with the Klondike Institute of Arts and Culture.

In addition the KVA's pilot project point of sales online registration has assisted both events and businesses in selling tickets and attracting visitors.

Elections took place after the reports and five candidates stood for the four rotating seats on the board. David Rohatensky, Peggy Amendola, Dianne Brooks and Diego Martin (the new guy) joined continuing board members Brian Stethem, Johnny Nunan, Evelyn Pollock and Mark Mather.

The AGM was held at Diamond Tooth Gerties.

A grandfather's bequest sends young man up a mountain

Between Heaven and Earth

By Eric Walters Orca Book Publishers 247 pages $10

Shared universe series are not a new thing. In some ways onemighteventracethemback to the Stratemeyer Syndicate books. This company created and produced a number of different series of books for teen readers (Nancy Drew, the Hardy Boys, Tom Swift, the Bobbsey Twins, the Rover Boys, and others). Using a technique that would be lifted whole by the pulp magazines later on (Doc Savage, the Shadow, the Spider, G8, etc) they created characters and basic plot lines and had the novels written under house names (Carolyn Keene, Franklin W. Dixon and others) by a changing stable of anonymous writers, one of whom was Canadian Les McFarlane.

Of course, comic book companies do this all the time, with creative teams trading off books after maybe a year or two, or even just a mini-series, Earlier in the game their efforts were largely unaccredited, but that changed in the 1960s and most artists and writers are quite well known by their readers.

More recently, fantasy and science fiction writer George R.R. Martin has played a leading role in the continuing adventures of the Wild Cards superhumans, one difference being that the contributors to the series write under their own names. Another being that they probably make a lot more for a story than the $125 the original Stratemeyer Syndicate writers made per book.

Between Heaven Earth is, for me, anyway, the opening entry in what Orca is calling Seven the Series. Seven grandsons are left a bequest by their dying grandfather, that being the opportunity to undertake an adventure that is somehow connected to something he did during his long life. He was all over the world, doing a great many things, but in his will he's tried to come up with a challenge that will fit the individual lads and also, he clearly hopes, further their development as young men.

The stories all take place within the same time frame within a relatively short period after the reading of the will. The young men range in age from 15 to 17, with most of them being 17. They are all Canadians except one, who is American. They have known each other all their lives, except for the one that no one knew about.

(named DJ for his grandfather, David McLean, so David Junior) is the eldest of the seven, and sort of the leader. He has always been good at anything he tries, whether academics or sports (though he favours the latter) and has always had a sense of being in charge and being the best. His grandfather has set him a task that will test both of those assumptions.

He is to go to Tanzania and attempt to climb Mount Kilimanjaro, a formidable task which requires him to take direction, learn humility and discover that perseverance and character have more to do with succeeding than he would ever have guessed.

Outfoxed and robbed by street kids (while he was trying to help them) within hours of his arrival in the country, he finds himself beholden to a girl three years his junior (Sarah, or Mambiri) and gains the anger of her father. Mr. Odogo, the leader of the climb, when honours his promise to insist that she become one of his porters on the climb. Little did he know this would break a taboo and give him not only youngest, also the but first female, porter on the mountain. Certain that he will outlast the elderly Doris, he learns that when it comes to coping with mountain sickness, age

fitness are just part of the story.

Walters, who has been writing young adult books since 1993, has 70 books to his credit at this point, and cam up with the basic idea for this series. He enticed John Wilson, Ted Staunton, and Richard Scrimger. Norah McClintock, Sigmund Broumer and Shane Peacock to join him in this adventure and Orca Books bought into it releasing all seven volumes as a matched set in 2012.

By doing this, he's avoided one of the problems that might have arisen if he had tried to write all seven books. Writers do tend to develop a "voice" over time and all seven books might have ended up sounding the same. With seven different writers handling the chores, there isn't much risk of that. I don't envy the work of the editor though. There is some communication among the grandsons (mostly by texting) to link the books together and some of the background for the Grandfather David would have had to have been harmonized. Keeping everyone in sync would have been a tough job.

You don't have to read these books in any particular order, although the one titled Last Message does suggest that you might want to save it till the end. I should mention that one of them is set on the Canol Road. This first one was good stuff. If I do get to the end, I'll let you know.

In the meantime, the series seems to have sold well and the publisher is planning to bring out another set of books by the same writers in the fall of this year.

Airport will see major traffic this summer as Holland-America passengers fly in with Air North

The March monthly meeting of the Dawson City Chamber of Commerce was all about the changes coming this summer to both Air North and the Westmark Hotel as a result of Holland-America's decision to stop busing its clients over the Top of the World and Alaska Highways in the coming season.

Ed Peart, Corporate Sales Representative for Air North, and Shenaya Lande-Greensides, Yukon Guest Services Manager for Holland America Line and Princess Cruises Alaska and the Yukon, were in attendance to discuss some of the changes.

While there will still be bus tours travelling between Whitehorse and Dawson, the majority of Holland-America's passengers will be arriving in Dawson by air this year, usually on the Boeing 737, flying out of Fairbanks, and continuing their journey by the same means.

This could mean nine additional 737 flights weekly in and out of Dawson. Should inclement weather soften the runway so that the larger plane cannot use it, that would mean even more flights with the smaller Hawker aircraft.

The plan is to use the jet on the Whitehorse-Dawson run whenever passenger loads justify it, Peart told the two dozen people at the meeting in the Downtown Hotel.

Peart noted that Air North has had to come to the tour company's rescue several times during recent summers, when road conditions, fires, washouts and mud slides have shut down either of the two highways, so the airline has proven its ability to handle the traffic.

The Holland-America flights are strictly a private charter operation, so locals should not expect to be able to buy tickets on these flights. The regularly scheduled service is the only option available to non Holland-America travellers.

The increased traffic here will mean that the Canadian Border Services Agency will have to enlarge its presence here. Just what will happen is not yet clear, but the vague description sounds like it will be more substantial than the on-board checks that used to be a feature of the Yukon Queen II experience and something more official than the skid shack that used to sit down by the Dawson docks will be added to the Customs office at the airport, which is clearly too small to deal with an entire planeload of foreign passengers at one time.

Pierre St. Germain, with the Yukon's Dept. of Tourism and Culture, indicated that a request for proposals has been posted to deal with the need.

Air North anticipates placing a couple of structures at the airport for storage. Peart suggested these would most likely be "C-can" type units. The airline will also need to place another fuel tank on site as well as arrangements for a three phase power supply.

Arrivals on these flights will not be using the terminal, but will be loaded onto Holland-America coaches for the ride into town. Peart and senior ramp lead Craig Spenser indicated that the highway out by the airport could expect to see increased traffic from buses and cube vans carrying luggage during both arrival and departure times.

"We do intend to have an increased staff presence in Dawson City," Peart said, indicating that part of the purpose of this trip was to begin recruiting additional ground staff for the airline. In addition, airplanes and flight crews will be overnighting here during the summer.

For Holland-America passengers there will be a big difference in their Dawson experience, as they will be in town during the hours they would previously have been spending on a motor coach. The difference in travel times basically gives visitors almost a whole extra day in Dawson.

There were some questions and concerns raised by local business people.

The Eldorado Hotel's Peter Jenkins wanted to know if there was any movement upgrading and/or replacement of the present airport, which he felt would soon prove inadequate to handle the increased traffic. There was some brief discussion of a study that was held here a couple of years ago, but which never did seem to produce a report that anyone could recall seeing.

"What's the long range plan?" he asked. "Is somebody lobbying the Yukon government?"

Lande-Greensides fielded some questions about customer interest so far.

"We are very happy ... sales are doing well . Local excursions are selling well and our numbers are up comparatively this year to last year. That's because our guests now have more time to spend in Dawson. Not only do they have more meals to eat within the community ... they also have more free time to spend in the community as well.

"We took two days of travelling, essentially, and turned it into a one hour flight. Guests don't want to spend as much time out and about when they've been on a coach for (a long time) so by eliminating this, not only are we giving them more time in Dawson, but they're going to be more apt to get out and do things if they haven't been spending all their day on a

Passengers will arrive here early in the afternoon most days and will not have to leave until later in the morning, making for a more leisurely experience.

This arrangement with Ai North is a one year contract, so the future depends on 2014 being a good year.

Pierre Germain, with Yukon Tourism, noted that this change in the travel program is significant.

"The Yukon government is very excited about this. Holland-America brings more visitors to the Yukon than any other tour company. This virtually results in every single passenger that they have in the Yukon coming to Dawson. It means a huge shift and we're really pleased to see them working together with Air North to expand jet service into Dawson. It's an exciting opportunity."

"If it works, you'll need a new airport," Jenkins added.

"KVA sees it, realistically, as a real game changer," said Gary Parker, CEO of the Klondike Visitors Association.

Rate relief subsidy will live on

Press release

The Yukon government will extend the Interim Electrical Rebate until March 31, 2015, pending legislative approval.

"We are pleased to extend this monthly rebate to electrical ratepayers," Energy, Mines and Resources Minister Scott Kent said Thursday.

"The proposed 2014/15 territorial budget outlines investments, like the interim electrical rebate, that will help ensure Yukoners can access clean, affordable, and reliable energy resources."

The rebate is applied automatically to all residential households as a subsidy deducted from electrical bills.

It provides residential electrical customers a maximum rebate of $26.62 a month or $319 a year for the first 1,000 kilowatt hours.

The Yukon's residential electricity bills are the lowest of the three northern territories and are competitive with other jurisdictions in Canada, the minister pointed out.

For instance, the Yukon's net monthly bills are lower than those in Grande Prairie, Alta., Regina and Toronto.

"To meet current and future electrical needs, the Yukon government promotes a range of initiatives outlined in its Energy Strategy for Yukon, including the Good Energy program, which strengthens efforts to reduce costs by increasing energy efficiency," said a statement released by the minister.

A two Martini evening at the library

Clem Martini is probably best known as a playwright. The Calgary based professor is the three time winner of the Alberta Writer's Guild Drama Prize, a Governor General Drama Nominee for his anthology A Three Martini Lunch, a National Playwriting Competition winner for The Life History of the African Elephant and is the past president of the Playwrights Guild of Canada. His text on playwriting, The Blunt Playwright, has enjoyed tremendous success at universities and colleges across the country.

On the other hand, it's harder to deal with plays at a public reading than it is to use other forms of writing, so Martini, the current writer in residence at involves acute paranoia, and Berton House, stuck with prose for his public reading at the Dawson Community Library in mid March.

That's fine. Martini has written an animal fantasy trilogy about the secret life of crows called Feather and Bone: the Crow Chronicles, and is currently working on both a novel and another young adult fantasy trilogy, as well as another textbook, this one on Greek and Roman comedies.

With his brother, Oliver, Martini produced a memoir called Bitter Medicine: A Graphic Memoir of Mental Illness. Two of his brothers have suffered from schizophrenia, and Bitter Medicine is the illustrated chronicle of Oliver's struggle. Martini read from portions of this moving story.

Oliver's form of the disease

the drugs that he has to take to control his mental processes triggered have physical symptoms that resemble Parkinson's Disease. With most chronic diseases of this type medications have a limited span of effective use before it is necessary to phase out one type and slowly try something else. In Oliver's case, the next batch of drugs contained something that caused him to develop diabetes as a side effect.

When it first hit him and Clem took him to the emergency ward, the combination of physical symptoms caused staff to think he was drunk and so he was not treated immediately. Then, once they got his symptoms under control they sent him home without realizing that there were some drugs he did need to be taking, so he had a serious attack of paranoia.

It was an intense reading that prompted lots of questions from the audience of about 18 people.

In the excerpt, the playwright is faced with the challenge of finding a new lead actor for his latest play after the death of his first choice. He and the producer find a broken down actor who used to have some show of talent and decide to risk their production on the chance that he can be rehabilitated. It was an amusing reading and lightened the tone of the evening after the first part.

Martini has been enjoying his time here. His wife and fellow author Cheryl Foggo visited with him during his first week here and he was later visited by another of his brothers during the recent Myth and Medium

Dear Hank,

A friend wants to know how to stop her boyfriend from snoring. Smothering is not an option. Any advice?

Meg

Dear Meg,

My psychic senses tell me that your friend's boyfriend's inner manatee is trying to escape. This event is like a freight train going full bore down a mountain – the beast will not abide! Excess body weight, especially around the neck, can contribute to snoring. Consider putting him on a very regimented and targeted neck weight-loss exercise program. Or sleeping pills. For you.

Dear Hank, Should I get a Hipster Beard Transplant? Diego

Dear Diego,

I can't go into details. At least not in public. It could be you are not ready for change. In the wee small hours of either Tuesday, Friday, or Sunday, your powerful connection with your inner all-knowing bear will be confronted with this life-changing decision, which could have potentially dire results. But you are strong! And the bear is unruly! But be warned – you are playing for keeps now.

xo Hank

Dear Hank

I have a sore neck and I have been terribly congested for more than a fortnight. There's a back story of course. There seems to be an inordinate amount of blood work going around. It goes without saying that I've been washing my hands every few minutes. My question is do you think I might have contracted meningitis?

Guillaume le Torontois

Dear Guillaume le Torontois,

Beautiful but complex, you are the Butterfly. You struggle with a tendency to flit from one thing to another. But regardless of the challenges, you find a way to emerge strong every time. You are persistent and optimistic. Despite being a delicate beast in the near-arctic climate. With regards to the meningitis - probably. Your photophobia and phonophobia combined with your OCD are clear indicators. I don't know about the rash though.
