Fire blamed on improper disposal of cigarettes

By Christopher Reynolds With photos and some input from Dan Davidson Whitehorse Star, May 7/14, used with permission.

A house fire that threatened the life of a young man in Dawson City on Tuesday morning, May 6, has drawn renewed attention to the lack of 911 services in the communities.

A passerby overheard a smoke alarm at a house on Seventh Avenue just north of Princess Street, around 6:30 a.m.

To assist a young man in his late 20s sleeping inside, he broke a window and helped him out of the home, part of a row of Yukon Housing Corp. units.

The man then ran to the neighbouring house, which was singed in the blaze, and yelled for the occupant to call 911, Dawson Fire Chief Jim Regimbal told the Star.

"So it still goes to show that 911 is definitely needed in the outlying communities," said Regimbal, a member of the Association of Yukon Fire Chiefs.

"This has been ongoing for quite some time, to no avail. It's disturbing that it's not in the communities, and it's something like this that hits home."

He noted that despite living in Dawson for more than 20 years, the rescuer still suggested dialling 911.

Nonetheless, Regimbal was impressed with how effectively the man, who wishes to remain unnamed, handled the situation.

"Watching how this was all orchestrated was just phenomenal," he said.

The young man spent some time in the Dawson Community Hospital.

Dawson RCMP said he was suffering from smoke inhalation.

The teen's mother, Gail Reid, had already left for work when the fire broke out, Regimbal said.

The diligent civilian also helped rescue a dog named Ranger and cat, who remains anonymous.

Regimbal estimated the house sustained $300,000 in damage to its roof and back.

Yukon Housing is looking at demolishing the building, he said.

He said the cause of the fire was "improper discarding of cigarettes into a combustible container — accidental for sure."

Meanwhile, Liberal Leader and Klondike MLA Sandy Silver says the territorial government has stalled for too long on bringing efficient emergency phone service beyond the Whitehorse area.

"This government has clearly made a determination that full 911 service is not a full priority for them in the Yukon," Silver said in an interview.

Earlier this year, the government tested an emergency response system — which the Department of Community Services has dubbed an "interim 911 system," or "911 autoselect" — that would run via landlines across the territory.

"Were it not for the fact that we'vebeeninformedbytheCRTC (Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission) that we need to go through a regulatory process before activating it, we would currently, right now, have 911 in place in all Yukon communities," Community Services Minister Brad Cathers said in the house on April 2.

But Silver highlighted what he saw as a misleading characterization in Cathers' use of "911," pointing to a letter to the government from the CRTC.

"The Yukon interim rural 911 emergency response access system service proposed in your letter does not meet basic 911 or enhanced 911 service definitions," the CRTC stated in the letter, dated March 24.

Silver elaborated in the house last month: "Why did the minister tell Yukoners that 911 has been tested in all of the communities when the CRTC had already told him the system he was testing did not even qualify as 911?"

The interim system would allow Yukoners outside 911 range — anywhere beyond the Whitehorse area — to dial 911 from a landline and choose from "autoselect options." Residents could dial 1 for police, 2 for fire and 3 for ambulance, connecting them with local responders.

"While that is not seen as an integrated 911 system, the intention of that was that it would immediately connect someone who didn't know the emergency service number to whatever service they're in need of," Cathers said in an interview today.

As it stands, people in emergency scenarios can

dial one of three seven-digit numbers to reach one of the three responders, but the local prefix numbers vary from town to town.

"In order for CRTC to consider something 911, there must be a verbal exchange of information," Silver insisted last month. "The system the minister did test in all Yukon communities does not include this essential exchange."

Before the interim system can be implemented, Northwestel Inc. will have to apply for approval from the CRTC.

Cathers said he has requested that the carrier go ahead with the tariff application.

He could not offer a timeline for what he perceives will be a phased approach to full 911 service across the territory.

"Anytime you're working with a lot of partners, there are logistical issues that need to be dealt with," he said, adding that Northwestel would have to make "systems upgrades."

As another potential obstacle,

Cathers gave the example of a 911 dispatcher in Whitehorse who "lacked familiarity with a place like Carmacks" trying to handle a caller's "reference to Teddy's Place or Mary's House.

"I think those difficulties are always solvable, but when that's a concern raised by the communities, it's important that we treat that seriously," he said.

"The bugs have to be worked out so that it doesn't become a well-intentioned system that has unanticipated flaws."

Silver, who has been calling for territory-wide 911 service for more than two years, was not impressed.

He called the interim solution "just another stall tactic by a government that's not prepared to put their money where their mouth is, and we almost lost a life because of it.

"If it wasn't for this Good Samaritan who was walking by, that kid, who's an ex-student of mine, wouldn't be with us right now," he said.

Uffish Thoughts: Are we in good hands with Ma Bell?

By Dan Davidson

The transition from Latitude Wireless to Bell Mobility isn't going quite as smoothly as was intended, as anyone who recently received his or her first Bell bill can attest.

First of all, the bills arrived here this week, in my mailbox on May 7. That's five days after the due date on the bill. It's about two weeks after we received double copies of the introductory package with its 66 point terms of service agreement. Nowhere in that package was there any mention of the billing feature that has prompted me to write this column.

We are well aware of our regular usage from month to month, so we were astounded to see a bill for $381.70, more than three times our average. Flipping through the wastefully printed four singlesided pages I found a three line entry that read, "transferred balance $262.00."

That had to mean that money we had owed to Latitude had been transferred to Bell for them to collect.

Now there could only be a transferred balance if we had still owed Latitude money after our final bill in April - and we didn't. I had the credit card report to prove it. So what was going on?

The friendly voice of the lady on the other end of the customer service phone number did not seem to have any idea what I was talking about and said I would have to talk to Latitude about the matter. Since Bell now owns Latitude, I had some difficulty with this response.

checked both my credit card spreadsheet and the bank's website. Yup, if you combined the last two bills, which I had already paid, you got the amount of the so-called "transferred balance".

Back to the phone line, where this time I got a cheerful male voice who sounded like he'd had a few of these calls already. By this time I was curious to find out where he was, and I guess I wasn't too surprised to learn it was a call center in Manila.

According to him, Bell was supposed have assumed the duty of collecting the fees for the last month of Latitude's existence. I pointed out that I was looking at two month's worth of extra bills. He didn't know anything about that, but assured me that NorthwesTel would be the one to refund the credit to my VISA card after I had paid Bell and let NWtel know what had happened.

So, in essence, it was up to the buyer to beware and assist the poor mega-corp in solving its problem. Not bloody likely.

Calling the number on my last Latitude bill had to lead me somewhere, and it did - to NorthwesTel's customer service person, a sympathetic woman who had also handled a number of these calls in recent days, but who was better equipped to deal with the problem than anyone else I had spoken to.

Yes, my account was up to date. Her records and mine were a perfect match.

Yes, Bell had wanted to collect for the last month's service, but where that hadn't happened, NWTel had already forwarded

I went to my computer and the money and Bell should have it. For some reason Bell seemed to be processing the transfers and bringing the accounts up to date rather slowly.

> No, there wasn't any reason why two months should have been affected.

> Yes, it wasn't reasonable that no one had ever bothered to contact the customer base about this payment plan.

Yes, there had been quite a few calls about this problem.

It seemed, she told me, that this was a case of the two companies not being on quite the same page as to what was supposed to have happened and what was actually happening.

"Not on the same page?" I shot back. "They're not even on the same continent."

So the warning is this: if your first cellular bill from Bell Mobility looks odd, it's probably because it is. Check your facts and pay what you actually owe. Wait for them to get it right. If they don't, complain loudly and be firm about it. If they continue to get it wrong, start looking for alternatives.

Ford has a better idea -At last,

Way back in the 1960s the Ford Motor Company used the slogan "Ford has a better Idea" to sell its vehicles. Toronto's erstwhile mayor, Rob Ford, used his eponymous connection to the popular brand to emblazon its logo on his own campaign and promotional materials until recently.

After the last year's continual barrage of bad-Ford (the mayor, that is) news and craziness, the automobile maker finally asked him to stop dong anything that might link their name to his. Small wonder.

There have been a lot of WTF (I'm using it to stand for What the Ford?) moments during the last year. There was the Ford/ crack video that never existed and then did exist. There was the spate of denials that sounded like Pierre Poilievre using the word "terrific" to describe the Fair Elections Act right up to the moment he had to admit that he actually did the deed while "in one of my drunken stupors".

There is the fact that this easily identifiable public figure can't seem to grasp that people are willing to tape his words and video his movements wherever he goes. He may have what the commentators refer to a base of voters, his socalled Ford Nation, but he also has a group of people who are apparently willing to record him in the midst of the most embarrassing and damning acts of self-disintegration and then try to sell that digital evidence to the highest bidder.

There is no place on earth that Rob Ford is safe from his own propensity for selfinflated pomposity. Likewise there is no place where he can safely go back on his promises to reform, to stop drinking, to never touch drugs again, or to monitor his mouth.

That's the mouth that tells Peter Mansbridge he's had a "come to Jesus" moment about his drinking, but then goes on to slag Toronto's Police Chief or one of his rivals in Toronto's mayoral race while in what would appear, in both cases, to have been another drunken

Whether it is in a café, a bar, his sister's basement, the front of a known drug house, running over people in Toronto's council chambers, or on the Jimmy Kimmel Show, Rob Ford has been the willing and insistent architect of his own public

Now, after months of denying that he has a substance abuse problem, he's off to rehab - though he's still not withdrawing from the race for the mayor's office. Whether this is a real attempt at self-reform or just an effort to salvage his public image remains to be seen. It is troubling that he has not withdrawn from the race completely.

It's a bit like the Minister for Democratic Reform continuing to call his legislation "terrific" after the thoroughly whipped Conservative Senate caused him to have to propose 45 amendments to his own bill, the same bill that he spent months saying was perfect just the way it originally read.

Oh well, at least we can hope at this point that Ford, Rob, not the company, really has had a better idea.

As for the Fair Elections Act, the jury is still out on that.

Re: Cut off at the Flood Wall

This letter is written to clear up a few discrepancies in Sebastian Jones's letter.

Sebastian Jones states the wall was partly in, but makes it sound like a small part, when in truth, one section was left.

He states the City workers agreed to call him, when in fact I witnessed the same employee, who loaned Sebastian his pickup to haul his frozen food, call Sebastian two times.

No one had any idea when Sebastian may return, one day or one week, so to plow the access road did not seem the problem it turned out to be.

Sebastian doesn't seem to understand that equipment is required to install the gate and some of the needed equipment and help were needed on other jobs except for that particular time planned for gate installation. So the following day extra help and one piece of equipment went and removed the gate and reinstalled it.

The gate can be difficult to install as usual.

As for holidays, we don't all get them off to go walking or are paid extra for them. City employees were on the street working already that day.

Dawson firefighters revisit the scene of Tuesday's fire

completely out.

It was mid-afternoon the day after the 7th Avenue fire in Dawson when Craig "Chedda" Dunham and a couple of visitors were sitting on his front walk, talking about the hullaballoo of the previous morning, when one of his visitors said. "Isn't that smoke?"

There had been a sort of heat haze coming off the building since the previous day's action, but this was actual smoke not a lot, but enough to worry Dunham, whose Yukon Housing unit had actually caught fire on its south side wooden siding the day before. He ran right in and called the fire department.

Fire chief Jim Regimbal had cruised by the house several times since the initial fire and hadn't seen any signs of trouble but a crew was there in short order and, after some investigation, did find an out of the way spot in the crawl space under the building that was smoldering.

"I kind of thought this might have happened yesterday," Regimbal said as they wrapped up operations several hours later. He'd been by to check for hot spots but had detected nothing.

"I think with the build-up of the wind today getting in underneath the crawl space, it reignited a bit. It was nice that the neighbour spotted it and called us in.

"We cut a few holes, put some foam on it. We've got fire practice tonight, so we'll come back and check on it again."

The original fire began from cigarette debris in the kitchen area of the house and witnesses described fire blasting out of the window on that north side.

Dunham's unit is less than 10 metres from the one that the Reid family was living in and the south side of his house was on fire when the trucks arrived on Tuesday.

'When we got here yesterday with my first line that came off (the truck) I didn't even worry about (the burning house)," Regimbal recalled on Wednesday, "we just aimed to get the one out on Chedda's so it wouldn't take hold. It was licking up the siding a bit and heading up, so we just Sometimes the fire isn't knocked it down and made sure everything was fine."

Kokopelle Farm adds to the Klondike's homegrown food supply

By Dan Davidson Photos supplied

When Otto Muehlbach and Conny Handwerk decided to put their personal garden onto more of business footing, they looked for a name that would represent the ideas of farming and fertility.

Otto says that with most businesses in this area using north related words, they thought they would do something different to establish a distinct brand.

Otto had spent some time in the southwestern United States and had become familiar with the mythic figure Kokopelle (also Kokopelli). This iconic humpbacked flute player is a fertility deity associated with both childbirth and agriculture, whose image in caves and pueblo dwellings dates back at least to the nearly legendary Anasazi people.

Otto and Conny live across from Dawson in Sunnydale, and began farming on a small scale about 4 years ago, gradually increasing the amount of land under cultivation until they had about two acres around their house.

"Sunnydale was old farmland," Otto said, "and we're just going back to that."

Last year was the first year that they began selling regularly at the Saturday Farmers' Market on Front Street, starting with potatoes and vegetables. Their produce was also a popular item at the Bonanza Market. Prior to that, cultivation had been something of a hobby, providing some food for their own table.

"Last year was really successful and so we decided that one of us goes in full time during the summer and makes this work," Otto said.

Otto got to run the field garden while Conny works the house, herb garden and their poultry (five hens and a rooster). It's a division of labour they find congenial.

They have experimented with grains, with mixed results. Two years ago they had a successful crop. Last year there was that surprise snowfall on May 18 and then, just as the crop was recovering, the birds arrived.

"Our field was clear of the snow and then the migration birds come in, in the thousands. They were all going to head north, but they make a stop over, they see the little tiny sprouts and they cleaned out the field in an afternoon."

He tried netting, scarecrows and even firing a shotgun into the air (not to kill) a few times, but the birds were so hungry they paid no attention.

"It was hopeless. The ground was brown from birds."

The potato harvest was a bumper crop, and they sold out in just a few weeks. Aside from that they grew herbs, kale, lettuce, cabbage, rhubarb and carrots.

For Otto, who has also worked as a mechanic at Arctic Inland, farming is a return to his boyhood in Germany and Holland.

"I know what I'm doing. The only thing is that Mother Nature is different up here."

Otto says the land is good, and his research into the history of the area has told him that farming was once a normal practice in the area where he and Conny live.

He has obtained permission from some of his neighbours to farm on their land and thinks he can increase his planted area to about ten acres. They would like to be able to farm enough land to set up a five-field crop rotation with a fallow field in the fifth year.

Otto says people should look for the little Kokopelle symbol in the future to know they are buying local crops.

And then the Yukon River flushed its ice

By Dan Davidson

Breakup was reportedly not terribly spectacular this year. Perhaps I did not miss much by being in Calgary (being snowed on) to attend a family wedding. Then again, there's this word from the deck of the Dänoja Zho Cultural Centre ...

"What a splendid afternoon. We were standing under the wire (cable) watching the ice not move ... then it did!

"This year, instead of just floating away, the tripod was ripped apart - board by board."

Now that sounds pretty unusual, and I'm sorry I missed it.

According to the CBC, the ice went out here at 1:19 p.m. on Friday, May 2, and Austin Gavin was the lucky winner of around $4,000.00

From Eagle, we had a report or caribou out on the ice, crossing the river. John Borg, who subscribes to the Sun's e-mail version, sent us a number of pictures.

HUMANE SOCIETY DAWSON UPDATE

with Katie Pearse, Humane Society Dawson

Storm

Storm is a male, husky, who is around five years old. He loves to be active and will chase any ball you throw for him. He's not too experienced in the tricks department, but with enough dedication, he'll be doing back flips in no time!

He enjoys a good petting session and your company. He's great for walks as long as it's a long leash and you have lots of treats to reward him with. He's actually very close to being able to walk off leash, just a little more training!

Storm is a very friendly, loving dog, who would be a great addition to any home.

Say "Aloha" to Dawson's new taco cart

Dawson City possesses a rare blend of old-time charm and contemporary conveniences that gives it a unique appeal. It seems fitting then that this beautiful little Klondike town will soon be graced by Aloha Tacos, a taco cart that Dawsonites Georgia Hammond, Allie Haydock and Blake Cameron can't wait to get rolling.

Slated to hit the streets of Dawson the Victoria Day long weekend in May, Aloha Tacos will be located on Second Avenue, on the west side of the street, across from Bonanza Market. During the day Aloha Tacos will have a rotating menu of tacos as well as homemade soups, salads and sides to make delicious, complete meals that accommodate vegetarian, vegan, gluten-free and dairy-free diets. At night Aloha Tacos will be offering hearty and hot burritos and satisfying nachos, offering a full stomach for a good price, perfect for the diner on the move. In addition to serving up daytime tacos and late night burritos. Aloha will also offer catering in the Dawson area for all event types, sizes, and budgets. Offering something for just about everyone, Aloha Tacos is bound to be one bumping little cart this summer.

The trio behind Aloha have known each other for years and have all cooked in various capacities in and around Dawson for years too. Georgia Hammond, a born-and-raised Dawsonite, learned many of her culinary skills on the fly, cooking at placer mines, exploration camps, chili cook-offs and dinner parties. Growing up in a food-centred household gave her a good foundation.

"I'd like to think I bring a good balance of my mom's professionalism and my dad's spontaneity to the table," Georgia explains.

Allie Haydock fell in love with cooking as a volunteer in Dawson. Allie expresses that "volunteering is such an important element of our community and as I settled in Dawson, cooking and baking for community events like Music Fest and KIAC Youth Art Enrichment was what I could offer as a volunteer."

After an eight-month stint at Toronto's George Brown College where she obtained her certificate in chef training, Allie was back in Dawson doing Sunday dinners at Bombay Peggy's and working at Zorro's Cantina in the rink alongside Georgia.

Working together at the rink cantina, Georgia and Allie realized they needed to create their own dream jobs and the idea for Aloha Tacos was born. They asked longtime friend and fellow chef Blake Cameron to join the team.

Blake received his Red Seal through his training and apprenticeship with Le Cordon Bleu Institute and brings his formal culinary skills and a strong kitchen background to the cart.

Georgia describes the diversity of the Aloha Tacos crew: "I think we have a really balanced set of skills. Blake has so much experience; Allie and I often find ourselves saying something like 'maybe we should just ask Blake,' because there are so many things that you just have to have done before.

"Allie brings sophistication to the mix; she's got an eye for style and food trends that my moose hunting in homemadeclothes background does not provide.

"Where Blake and Allie both have extensive technical skills and the knowledge to do things the right way, I think my experience in remote and limited kitchens has made me a good improviser and problem-solver."

Together they have the passion, energy, and know-how to dazzle Dawson and its many visitors with a taco experience they won't soon forget.

Aloha Tacos starts with a traditional concept and infuses diverse influences, creating Mexican-inspired offerings with contemporary interpretations, perfect for an eclectic town like Dawson. Georgia, Allie and Blake are all eager to offer Dawson diners another option, and with the bustling summer pace both day and night, a mobile venue seems a perfect fit, and one that allows the three young entrepreneurs to get into the business.

Allie explains the more feasible start-up costs allow specialty food vendors like Aloha Tacos to be "more able to take other risks with concepts and menu ideas," bringing people a gourmet eating experience that takes street food to a new level.

As Blake says, "Folks in Dawson know good food."

It takes skill and creativity to impress the local population and attract tourists and visitors, a challenge that Aloha Tacos is ready to accept.

Aloha Tacos is soon to be your friendly neighbourhood food cart and yet another reason to enjoy Dawson City in the summertime.

BC Miners work in a different world

by Josée Bonhomme

I spent the winter in a superhistoric mining area full of speculative (and drowned) ghost towns, where skiers disappear down the numerous open shafts high up on the lofty peaks of the Selkirks. It seemed natural that BC's modern mining regulations might be compared to the Yukon's antique Laws, just for fun.

Their Mineral Titles system is completely different, and totally internet-based since July 12^{th} , 2005. They use map staking or "selection", as opposed to planting your posts in person on the ground with a limited time to reach the Mining Recorder (on foot). A "cell" of a pre-determined location and size on the digital map (similar geographic information system as Yukon) can be chosen if it is open for staking (i.e. not in a Park). Claim areas change depending at what latitude a claim is located. Southern cells are roughly 21 hectares (ha), while northern cells, near Atlin for example, would be 16+ ha (convergence of meridians).

Depending on the open ground available, full-size hard rock and placer claim cover the same area. A partial claim can be no smaller than 1 ha and must be workable

The fees for acquiring a claim are based on the area of the claim, per hectare or 10,000 square metres.

Our claims in comparison are $500 \times 2,000$ feet for placer (92,903 m²) or just over 10 ha. Our quartz grants are 1,500 \times 1,500 feet (209,025 m²) or 20 ha, which is close to the BC dimensions.

The acquisition fees increased 200-400% depending on the type in August 2013. Many miners feel the new fees will put the little guy out of business. For a placer claim, the fee increased from $2 to $5/ha or from $40 to $100 for a 20 ha claim. To compensate, minimal registration fees were eliminated thanks to automation system. They have what can be called a total selfserve system. Here, it costs $10 to record a claim at the mining recorder's office, but you have to work to acquire the claim.

Acquisition of quartz or "mineral" claims increased in costs from $0.40/ha to $1.75/ha, so from $8 to $35. This may not seem significant, but for large blocks, added to all other increasing costs, this is having ripple effects. The shock period is over now. There is no moratorium of any mining in BC, as some Yukoners may have heard; it is quite the contrary, according to Prince George inspectors, who are quite busy.

For those with no computer experience, terminals in regional Service BC offices are available to prospectors and miners where they can get assistance to manage their mineral titles, file assessment reports, permit applications, etc. Many inspections offices have been closed throughout the province. The office for the Cariboo region is located in Prince George. There is no longer an office in Cranbrook for example. The Inspector retired and wasn't replaced... but that's BC.

They have specialized inspectors split between mine safety, permitting and mechanical. They are very knowledgeable within their own area of expertise. As soon as you use any kind of self-powered machinery, the mechanical branch inspectors must deal with your operation, even for a drill. The permitting inspectors review applications for exploration works, ensuring all needs are met or addressed. Health and safety inspectors work with joint H&S committees, in a holistic approach. It is easy to see the system is geared to big industry, but the placers are expected to be as safe and professional as big industry.

The exploration permits are relatively simple to obtain, while the formal mining permit applications are very arduous and complicated. They usually take six months to a year to reach approval. The formal permits are managed in Victoria, while exploration permits are handled at the regional level.

In BC, they consider health and safety and a healthy environment as related holistic concepts (yes, again). The section of the BC code addresses reclamation is called the Health, Safety and Reclamation Code for Mines in British Columbia (2008). You can refer to this section by visiting http:// www.empr.gov.bc.ca/MINING/ HEALTHANDSAFETY/Pages/ HSRC.aspx. This code was developed in collaboration with several representatives of industry and labour unions.

The exact wording in the code that decrees the need for permitting is as follows: "There must be filed with an inspector a plan outlining the details of the proposed work and a program for the conservation of cultural heritage resources and for the protection and reclamation of the land, watercourses and cultural heritage resources affected by the mine, including the information, particulars and maps established by the regulations or the code."

BC requires security in advance to cover reclamation costs, established by the chief inspector. A deposit applies, plus a yearly amount which also provides "for the protection of, and mitigation of damage to, watercourses and cultural heritage resources affected by the mine." There is leeway to extend a permit, amend same, or transfer the mining permit to another purchaser.

If a miner fails to perform required work, fails to remedy a failure, the mining operation may be ordered to stop. Part, or all, of the security bond may be used to defray the costs of the work required and the mine can be closed, or the permit cancelled. The chief inspector has jurisdiction over all matters. The minister has the powers of the chief inspector.

There is nothing similar to YESAB, but a committee is formed by the inspector for that mine, to review each permit prior to issuance. There is a big difference in the history of BC and Yukon First Nations. YESAB is a product of Land Claims negotiations. Applications for formal permits that must go through Victoria are subject to the Canadian Environmental Assessment Act, which is similar to the Yukon, which must follow the same federal laws. Both the Yukon Water Board and YESAB are partly established to work under the CEAA.

The code covers discrimination of employees, and health and safety issues (engineer reports required for serious accidents). Infractions under the act are punishable to a maximum of $100,000 or to not more than one year behind bars or both. Following a written notice from the inspector, on conviction, if the offensive acts continue, a maximum fine of $5,000, and minimum of $500 per day the offense continues, is also imputable.

Assessment work is treated differently in BC. The fees also increased in 2013, and if a pay in lieu of work (as it is called in the Yukon) option is used, which can also be done for placer, the rate is now double what real work would be worth. This is to discourage the legacy tying up of ground (from 1895 or older in the Caribou), and to force the industry to get on with its work, and abandon claims where there is no economic resource.

They use a "tier" system (escalating), again to encourage rapid development. For placer, yearly a miner must perform $20/ha worth of work per claim, as opposed to $10/ha pre-2013. Grouping and sharing the work over a larger area is part of the formula. There is only one tier for placer claims. So prior to 2013, $400 worth of work turned into $800 post-2013. Assessment for placer claims is $200/y in the Yukon.

Forhardrockormineral claims, years one and two require $5/

Break Up

P9

I'm back after a too-long hiatus. Last I wrote for the Klondike Sun I shared stories of our wedding, relationship challenges and mourning the deaths of loved ones. Today, I sit here on my couch, in Rock Creek, enjoying one of our last days before we sell this beautiful property. Break up on the Klondike occurred two days ago and I am thankful for no major flood this year.

I have been a stay-at-home Dad this year and loving it. I have a five-year-old boy named Kai and a three-year-old daughter named Zia Rose. They constantly teach me how to be a better person. They also keep me in the present moment and help me appreciate my surroundings. Here is a poem I wrote the day after break up:

Break Up

Seagull squawks Klondike ice let's go Free at last! Eagle slicing Twirling Thermal acrobats Free, Proud, Smiling for salmon. Children running Excited Curious River flows Mighty melting ice chunks Pointy icicle swords Beached pirate ship logs Captained by mythical brave souls Suddenly: A perfect splashy, muddy shore Boots jump in, mud pants useless. The Confluence Gallery and the ODD Gallery featured the work of the 15 students: Justice Colwell, Sally DeMerchant, Danielle Desrosiers, Chantal Fraser, Ashli Green, Lindsey Johnson, Lucy Koshan, Acasea Lane, Dana Levine, Mathias MacPhee, Amy McAllister, Samantha Medeiros, Sarah Miller, Bronwyn Mundell and Malanka Topper.

In addition to the celebration of the student achievements, Dawson's Joyce Caley was presented honorary diploma from Yukon College's Northern Studies.

With the completion of their foundational year, many of the students will transfer to a second year of studies at partnering institutions across the country.

Walking into the ODD Gallery between March 13 and April 12 was a lot like walking into a life size cartoon. There, in the center of the room, was the titular center of the exhibit, Mr. Fizz' Knocking Shop, inviting the viewer to step inside and look around, either before or after checking out the rest of the oversized drawings placed around the gallery.

Montreal based artist Adrian Norvid provided a copy of a book of his drawings. Nogoodniks, published by Drawn and Quarterly Press, which is described by the publisher as containing "a ragtag group of images that draw from popular brand slogans, tropes of 1970s counterculture, bad puns, and the sardonic wit" of the artist.

Norvid his says installation at the Gallery was intended to "create a drawn environment, a saturated visual space loaded with imagery and possessed of a sort of Rococo impulse that leans towards patterning, excess and distortion."

The room had become a life-sized version of the themes in the book.

Writes Norvid, preoccupied am non-sequiturs, with inappropriateness, cheek or truculence, shabbiness and disorder. In many ways I like to debase things, to embrace the rotten or tasteless and I am interested in genres when they are sullied and bastardized."

Treacle seems to be one of Mr. Fizz's chief commodities. The shop bottles of the stuff. Outside the shop one wall appears to have had a bottle thrown at it and the sticky looking mess has oozed down and onto the floor. There's an enormous treacle tart pinned to another wall.

"I am drawn to making stews of things" Norvid writes, obscure associative narrative conglomerations a-temporal discontinuous. In my works, Psychedelia, Victoriana or Hillbilly backwoods can run together. "

The fun extends to the exhibit's brochure, which contains yet more drawings of tickets, advertising slogans and a full page Treacle Making Oath.

It was a different sort of exhibit and one worth taking in for the fun of it.

Above: The shop itself - walk in and look around. Below: Treacle splash - mind your feet. Someone's made a mess

Diamond Tooth Gertie: From Dance Hall to Prayer Hall

By Michael and Kathy Gates © April 2014

Diamond Tooth Gertie's: Canada's first legalized gambling establishment; named in honour of the famous dance hall queen. With a sparkling diamond placed between her two front teeth, she mined the miners, who parted with their hardearned gold in exchange for her affections. That's the way she is portrayed.

Today, bedecked in fabulous eye-catching gowns, Miss Diamond Tooth Gertie entertains thousands of visitors in the non-profit gambling establishment in the heart of the Klondike.

But who exactly was Diamond Tooth Gertie? Was she the dance hall queen of legend?

Ella Lung Martinsen, in her classic narrative Trail to the North Star Gold describes her father's encounter with Klondike Kate Rockwell and Cad Wilson on the road to Hunker Creek the summer of 1899, where they were to perform with Diamond Tooth Gertie and the Oregon Mare. But Rockwell and Wilson never shared a stage together; Rockwell didn't even arrive in the Yukon until 1900 – a year after Wilson had left.

In Martinsen's account, Gertie says that Rockwell is "plumb crazy" to fall for a "patent leather kid" by the name of Alexander Pantages, who will love her and leave her. But that exchange could never have taken place in 1899 – before Rockwell even arrived in the Klondike. The entire encounter with the dance hall queens on the road to Hunker Creek is fictitious.

Diamond Tooth Gertie – the legend - like Klondike Kate, is a latter-day phenomenon, created years after the gold rush had long expired.

Gertie Lovejoy actually existed, but our search to find reference to her in the newspapers of the time does not substantiate the legend. The papers covered the theatre circuit in Dawson with great detail, yet her name is not found mentioned as a headline entertainer. She was not listed in any theatrical advertisements, or reviews of the stage attractions of the day that we could find.

We do know this much: The Klondike Nugget newspaper reported that she was seen entering the Phoenix dance hall on the evening of April 6, 1899, on the arm of US Consul James McCook. They shared a bottle of wine, after which McCook embarked on the most notorious binge of the early days. There is no further reference in this article to Gertie, who seems to have been ditched for another dance hall girl named Pearl Hall.

Gertie cropped up in January of 1900 when she lost $2,000 worth of personal belongings, barely escaping a fire in the Monte Carlo with her life. She was obviously doing well, but there is no explanation of precisely what she was doing.

She eventually married Charles W.C. Tabor, Dawson City's most prominent lawyer. Laura Berton, in her book, I Married the Klondike, describes her in later years, attending one of Martha Black's evening social functions, as: "...a demure little woman, quite pretty and very self-effacing. She had little to say, but when she did speak, the famous diamond could be seen glittering between the two front teeth."

The Blacks were always faithful to their political allies, and Charles Tabor shared Black's maritime origin, as well as his politics. Mrs. Black may also have enjoyed breaking social convention by inviting a former dance hall girl to one of her social functions.

Beyond that, it has been difficult to find hard facts.

However, in response to a casual question about Gertie posed by a staff member at the Yukon Archives, Kathy decided to investigate further. After searching through at least 5 huge collections of online digital newspapers, she located two very small clippings. The "Eureka" moment happened within a five-line clipping from an obscure newspaper article, dated 1915, referring to a visit by a Mrs. C.W.C. Tabor to her parents in Pepperell, Massachusetts. Kathy sent an inquiry to the Pepperell Public Library, and received a reply from Barbara Smith, a member of the local historical society, and volunteer at the library.

A self-confessed family Genealogist, Smith began digging into the community archives. She indicated that no one was aware that Pepperell had a famous connection to the Klondike Gold Rush. Thus began a chain of correspondence between them that has pieced together much new information about Diamond Tooth Gertie Lovejoy.

Gertie was in fact, Mary Isabel Lovejoy, second daughter of Daniel and Angela Lovejoy of Harbor Street in Pepperell, Massachusetts. She was one of 5 children. She was born on July 7th 1874. The Lovejoy ancestral Harbor Street home still stands today. Her father Daniel was a farmer and quite possibly was also a stone mason.

The "Lovejoy Genealogy" dates back to 1490, in England. It reveals that Mary Isobel appears to have married one Fred Ellis, February 2, 1896. (There is a question mark beside the marriage date.) In December of 1900, the Pepperell Advertiser reports that "Mrs. Hattie Burrille of New York City and Mrs. M. Isabel Ellis of Dawson City, Yukon are visiting their parents......"

We don't know whether Fred Ellis died, or if they divorced, but we know from the marriage certificate that Ms. Lovejoy was joined to Charles C.W. Tabor in holy matrimony in Portland, Oregon, November 7, 1901. The document lists her last name as Lovejoy, not Ellis, raising curious questions about the first marriage. The census of 1911 shows the Tabors residing on Queen Street in Dawson City.

It is interesting to note that Portland was founded by two men, one of whom was Asa Lovejoy, who was born one town over from Pepperell. There is also a Mount Tabor.

Charles William Clifton Tabor was the pre-eminent lawyer in Dawson City during the early years of the twentieth century. He was born in Fredericton, New Brunswick, on August 4th 1863. His father was captain in a British regiment stationed there. He arrived in the Klondike in 1898 as a solicitor for the Bank of North America. He immersed himself in the life of his chosen community and became President and was an avid curler of the Dawson Curling club; He was also a member of the Yukon Order of Pioneers, the Eagles and the Moose. He served as the representative : for North Dawson in the Yukon territorial council from 1912 to 1915. Tabor died in the fire of the Yukonia Hotel in February, 1917, while his wife was Outside. She was the sole beneficiary of his estate, which was valued at less than $15,000. In these documents, she is identified as Mae Isobel Tabor.

Tabor was honoured by flying the flags of Dawson City at half mast. A letter confirming his elevation to King's Counsel was received from Ottawa just days after his death.

In May of 1920, in East Oakland County, California, Isobel Tabor married Stephen C. Hart of San Francisco, whose occupation was hotel steward. The marriage certificate and announcement newspaper list Hart as being 35 years of age, and Isobel being 32. In truth, she was 11 years older than Hart. Isobel was married to Stephen until his death 35 years later.

Gertie/Isobel, joined The Mother Church of Christian Science in 1926, and became a Christian Science Practitioner in 1928. She remained so until she died in San Mateo, California, in 1957. Though it is often stated in print that she was 90 years of age, she was in fact 83 years old. And that seems to be the story of her life - often misrepresented, : often misquoted, definitely misunderstood mythologized.

What we know about the legendary Diamond Tooth Gertie Lovejoy is that she was in Dawson City during the gold rush and inspired the community to name Canada's first legalized Gambling Casino, after her memory. According to most reports she was wearing a diamond between her two front teeth during her Klondike stay.

What we don't really know about her is what she was really like, and what happened to her over the course of her life. The records suggest that once she married Tabor, she lived a rather conventional life, and after Tabor's death, she remained in the San Francisco area until she passed away 40 years later. She left no descendants as far as we know. More research may reveal other details of her life

Perhaps Kathy and her : fellow history hunter Barbara: are allowed on claims without Smith will succeed in finding : the permitting to allow this. Gertie's personal papers, or other evidence of how she lived her life. Perhaps we may even learn the fate of the diamondstudded smile that made her a EBecause we always wonder so legend of the Klondike.

TH sign protocol with SCAN

WHITEHORSE (May 9, 2014) - The Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Government and the Department of Justice's Safer Communities and Neighbourhoods (SCAN) unit have agreed to a communication protocol. This agreement will guide the implementation of the SCAN Act and the work of the unit in responding to complaints of illegal activity on Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Settlement Land.

"The Government of Yukon supports the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Chief and Council in their efforts to create safer communities by implementing SCAN on the First Nation's settlement lands," Minister of Justice Mike Nixon said. "All Yukoners have a right to feel secure in their neighbourhoods, and SCAN helps empower community members to achieve that."

SCAN and Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in are committed to building a respectful, cooperative working relationship and share a common interest in creating safer communities. The SCAN unit helps Yukoners deal with problem properties by investigating and, if necessary, shutting down properties that are regularly used for illegal activities.

"Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in seeks the peaceful use and enjoyment of property on settlement land by its citizens and is committed to reducing illegal activity and the harms which accompany it," Deputy Chief Jay Farr said.

Within the scope of its legislated authority, SCAN will support Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in with the recommended response and examine options available for resolution of the complaint.

Bagnell Seeks Federal Liberal Nomination

WHITEHORSE (May 7, 2014) - Larry Bagnell wants to represent the Yukon in Parliament after the next election.

"I've had a three-year break and I'm eager to get back to work on behalf of Yukoners," said Bagnell. "Hundreds of people have asked if I am running again and encouraged me to do so. The last election was, as everyone knows, a curiously close affair and I guess people want a rematch.

"I'm prepared to give them one. I am seeking the federal Liberal Party nomination for the Yukon."

In 2011, Bagnell lost the seat he'd held for 10 years by just 136

Since then, Yukoners have seen deep cuts in Parks Canada, Canadian Heritage, Revenue Canada, Environment Canada, aboriginal programs and tourism.

"These service cuts are affecting my friends, my neighbours and my former constituents across the territory," said Bagnell. "I know how important these services are to Yukoners and to our rural communities.

"People are starting to forget how important public service is." Being Yukon's Member of Parliament has provided me the opportunity to help a lot of Yukoners.

"I have been a career public servant for more than 22 years and I have learned how to help people navigate the complexities of the federal government.

"I love the Yukon and its people and we have unfinished business to attend to on Parliament Hill."

Of course operating costs are higher in the north, the distance is great, and so the two jurisdictions can't really be considered equal. Many are petrified (pun intended) of the changes in BC, and have already lost claims, and that's something to consider.

News & Happenings from the Community Library

In the Library this month

Current Berton House writer-in-residence Alan Cumyn will hold his reading at the Library on Monday, May 26 at 7 p.m. Admittance is free and refreshments will be served.

Alan, who comes to us from Ottawa, is the author of 12 wide-ranging, and often wildly different, novels. A two-time winner of the Ottawa Book Award, he has also had work shortlisted for the Governor General's Award, the Giller Prize, and the Trillium Award.

You can find books by Alan, as well as other great works from past residents, on the Library's special Berton House shelf.

If you're a non-Yukoner in Dawson working for the summer or just visiting you're always welcome at the Library.

And, did you know you're eligible for a temporary Library card? All you'll need is some official out-of-territory ID, plus a $10 deposit, which is refundable to you when you're leaving. Your temp card will entitle you to take out up to four books and/or DVDs.

The Library also has public computer terminals or, if you have your own laptop, tablet or smartphone, there's WiFi accessible in 30-minute blocks.

If you're a fan of the horror genre, the Library has a great selection of books for you. They're upstairs in the fiction section on special racks.

Our collection is growing all the time. Recent paperback acquisitions include Headhunter by Canadian Michael Slade (the pen name for an Alberta lawyer who specializes in criminal insanity), and Dark Magic, a supernatural thriller by Stephen Gresham.

If horror is not your thing, you'll find science fiction, fantasy and romance paperbacks, as well as classics and general fiction.

For more information about any of these contact the Library at 993-5571 or e-mail dclib@klondiker.com.

This murder was decades in the making

A Small Death In Lisbon

By Robert Wilson Harper/Collins 536 pages $17.95

This book was an object lesson about how the part of a story that annoys you the most can turn out to be essential to understanding the part that you like. There are two strands to this complex mystery, which was first published in 1999 and won the British Crime Writers' Golden Dagger Award for Best Crime Novel in that year.

It begins with the murder scene, a long paragraph which runs over a page and a half and is given to us from the point of view of the person being murdered. We don't know her age, her name or anything about her, including just when this is taking place, but it is clear that she is being killed.

When we turn the page again we are in February 1941 in Berlin, meeting Klaus Felsen for the first time. Felsen is of Swabian peasant stock, but he has improved himself in business and attracted the attention of the German SS, who need a shrewd man with a facility for languages to manage their secret trade in wolfram (tungsten) in Portugal.

Before they can trust him they must break him so that he knows to whom he must kowtow and what fate might await any failure.

Felsen is not a nice man when his story begins, and he doesn't get any better as his story arc continues over the next 50 years. His part of the book was the part that annoyed me, and yet it introduces a whole host of other characters and motives that are important to the fate of the young girl.

BOOKENDS by Dan Davidson

We are up to page 53 before we meet Inspector José Afonso Coelho. It is 199(something) Lisbon, and Zé, as he is better known, is having his beard shaved off, the penalty he has to pay for failing to lose the exact amount of weight that he has put on while grieving the death of his wife a year earlier. To encourage him (and perhaps save his life) his daughter has organized this as a charity event.

While Felsen's narrative is thankfully in the third person (I don't think I'd want to spend much time in his head) Coelho's is a first person account of his investigation into the murder we witnessed on pages 1 and 2. Coelho grew up during Portugal's fascist years, which were a remnant of the political turmoil of the period between the Spanish Civil War and the end of World War II. The remaining fascist dictatorship collapsed 1974 and repercussions are continuing to reverberate a quarter century later.

The two narratives overlap at that point, and during part of the Felsen narrative we see the young Coelho in one scene.

As he and young his partner, Carlos Pinto, work to uncover the identity of the murdered girl, they find she is the daughter of Dr. Oliveira, and that the Oliveira family is an extremely dysfunctional one. Caterina, daughter, the was a young woman with twisted sexual appetites but, oddly enough, that was not why she died.

There's quite a bit of sex in this book, but it's interesting how the tone and the sense of it varies between the two narratives. There is nothing nice about any of the liaisons in the Felsen narrative, no matter who is involved, what the characters think they are feeling, or what the outcomes are. Each coupling left me feeling soiled and anxious for it to be over as they were essentially selfish and grubby.

Coelho has been celibate since his wife's passing and is surprised and almost guilty when he finds himself attracted to Luísa Madrugada, a university teacher whose expertise is of some use to him in shedding light on the history that he keeps turning up as the investigation progresses. It is a mutual attraction and it leads to scenes that feel so much cleaner and correct than those in the other strand of the novel.

When Coelho's daughter, Olivia, hooks up with his partner, Carlos, that too, seems natural, though Coelho feels the odd sensations that any father feels on suddenly realizing that his daughter is a woman.

There are many twists and turns in both of the story arcs that make up the strands of this mystery. The detective story is actually more straightforward than the generation spanning Felsen story. For a long time it seems as if there cannot possibly be any link between these distinctly different tales, but eventually it does become clear that they are inextricably connected, and it all makes sense in the end.

It's easy to see why it won that award, and why the publisher felt the urge to put out a 10th anniversary edition.

Cross-Cultural advances in Klondike education

On March 31, the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in held a feast to remember the mixed heritage children who came to Dawson from various other communities to live at St. Paul's Hostel and attend Dawson Public School, the only public school in the territory they were allowed to attend between 1920 and 1952. While the stories from the hostel don't seem to be quite as bad as those emanating from actual residential schools, there was still a real mismatch between the children's home cultures and the culture of the educational institution.

With that in mind, it's something of a triumph that Robert Service School and the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in are currently at the forefront of efforts to achieve a balance and harmonize the cultures.

Ann Moore, the principal and RSS, and Ashley Doiron, the TH Education Manager, sat down recently to reflect on the changes and advances over the last decade.

In addition both women noted the amount of work being done in the school now by members and employees of the First Nation, with cultural inclusion being practiced in many areas.

Aquatic invasive species awareness campaign launched

WHITEHORSE (April 8, 2014) —The Government of Yukon is posting new signs to generate awareness about aquatic invasive species and to help safeguard Yukon's biodiversity.

"Invasive species are a challenge being faced by jurisdictions across North America," Minister Environment Currie Dixon said. "While we're fortunate that most Yukon water bodies are free from invasive species, everyone needs to do their part to stop aquatic invaders from entering the territory."

This spring the Department of Environment will begin posting signs with aquatic invasive species information at major boating and angling access points in Yukon. As prevention is the most cost-effective means of controlling invasive species, the signs encourage residents and visitors to take these precautions when moving between bodies of water:

- check and remove mud, weeds and aquatic life from motors, boats, trailers and gear before leaving the area;
- drain water from bilges, pumps, coolers and buckets before leaving the area;
- clean your boat and trailer by power washing and drying in the sun, and freeze smaller gear overnight;
- don't move water, fish or plants from one body of water to another; and
- report all sightings of possible aquatic invasive species to the Department of Environment at 1-800-661-0408 ext. 5721 or fisheries@ gov.yk.ca.

"Prevention detection can make a big difference in reducing the environmental, economic and social costs of aquatic invaders," Dixon added. "Anglers and boaters play an important role as stewards of Yukon's pristine lake and river systems."

Didymo algae, zebra mussels, New Zealand mud snails and waterweed are species that pose a high risk of introduction and spread in Yukon. In some parts of North America invasive species are responsible for habitat damage. loss of subsistence resources and economic loss.
