28th Gold Show basked in Klondike spring weather

Story & Photos by Dan Davidson

The 28th annual Dawson City International Gold Show managed to build on the success of last year's event. The number of exhibitor booths inside the Art and Margaret Fry Arena increased to 62, with a meeting tent at the rear and an exhibit for Yukon College's Welding Training course at the rear.

Inside was the usual assortment of government and industry representatives, real estate brokers, telecommunications specialists, refiners, fuel companies, etc.

There were booths from Yukon Heritage, and the Klondike/Tr'ondëk World Heritage project, as well as Klondike National Historic Sites, the three major mine exploration projects and a few smaller ones, as well as Air North.

Outside on 4th Avenue there was an assortment of heavy and other industrial and recreational equipment on display. It spilled into the parking lot beside the arena, where the usual assortment of bedding and hanging plants could be found waiting to turn Dawson into a summer floral display.

Down at the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Community Hall Golden Predator had two update sessions regarding progress at the Brewery Creek Mine site.

Presentations on Friday morning at the Palace Grand Theatre included speeches by Mayor Wayne Potoroka, Randy Clarkson (of the KPMA), Anne Lewis ("Yukon Women in Mining"), and Isaac Fage (of GroundTruth Exploration on the use of aerial drones for surveying).

Later that day the Klondike Placer Miners Association (KPMA) held its spring meeting.

On Saturday delegates heard from Premier Pasloski, Minister Scott Kent, Kaminak's Eira Thomas, MP Ryan Leef, Victoria Gold's John McConnell and Northern Vision Development's Richard Thompson.

ON Friday evening there was a special tribute event to honour the late Bill Bowie of Arctic Inland Resources, one of the founders of the Gold Show nearly three decades ago.

In her welcome Dawson Chamber of Commerce president Carla Mather noted, "The Gold Show brings together all the businesses that benefit from mining. Here we have a chance to make connections and find new ways of contributing to Yukon's economy."

It's still doing that, 28 years later.

All of the presentations at the PG were uniform in expressing their optimism about the continuing future of mining, especially gold mining, in the territory.

Paula Hassard and a number of volunteers explained the quest for World Heritage Status.

Parks Canada invited people to spin the wheel and answer a question.

Toys for the aspiring miner.

The Yukon Heritage Resources Unit made no bones about its interest in mining.

Yukon Gardens and Vogt Enterprises did a brisk, blooming business.

Uffish Thoughts: Klondike Highway upgrades are overdue

Story & Photos By Dan Davidson

When the Yukon's MP, Ryan Leef, decided he had to include a line about the "truck swallowing potholes" on the road to Dawson in his address at the Gold Show last weekend I knew it was time to tackle this subject again.

The highway north of Carmacks is, by my reckoning, in the worst shape I've seen it in since we moved here from Faro in 1985, and that's saying something, because at that time most of it was still gravel and they were just getting around to the first application of BST (or chip seal) surfacing.

It is so bad at the moment that it was the running (or perhaps driving) joke in just about every lengthy address by anyone who had driven the road to come to town for the Association of Yukon Communities' meetings two weekends back.

Even the Premier, when he got to the point where he was summing up forthcoming Yukon government projects, stopped after he said that Klondike Highway upgrades were due. He had to wait for the laughter to settle down.

"I might as well stop – I knew somebody was going to say something," he said before he continued.

When I drove to the city on April 23 I noted quite a few potholes and loosely patched areas on my way south, but I paid more attention to the other side of the road, because I knew I would be hauling our travel trailer home on May 5, and it looked very much to me as if the northbound lane was worse than the southbound.

There are patches where the BST seems to have simply worn away. There are potholes, some of them deep and sharp edged. Then there are frost heaves. These are deceptive and if you hit three of them in a row at speed number three will probably see you airborne for a few seconds.

I don't know if the situation could be improved by different repair methods, but I've had people who know more about this stuff than I do tell me that the cold patch repairs that you'll see the crews doing regularly aren't working well.

I'm told they basically shovel some compound into the potholes and trenches (yes, sometimes they run right across the road) and really don't do a great deal to tamp it down and level it with the existing road.

From what I can see, it appears that they ought to run some sort of roller over it to press it into place, but it doesn't appear that they do. The patching mixture looks loose in the affected areas, and often seems to mound up out of the pothole, inverting the problem.

Several people I have talked to about my observations have told me they see it that way too, and that it appears as if the Highways Dept. is counting on the traffic flow to push the stuff into the potholes.

I dare say it's not working.

Are the powers that be aware of the problem? Well, all the folks who have driven the road in the last two weeks certainly are, because they kept referring to it in their presentations.

Beyond that, the Roads section of the Yukon Chamber of Commerce's Transportation public briefing here back on April 4 of this year made no bones about the need to spend many millions to upgrade the road from Carmacks to the Klondike.

Not trusting to memory, I drove the road south as far as Tintina Trench rest stop today, having drafted most of this column yesterday. From Dawson to the Dempster Corner it's not too bad – some heaves and rough patches, but not constantly. From there to the rest stop there's a lot that needs doing and the seasoned Pelly residents who drove in to church at St. Paul's this morning described the road past there are dreadful.

The Klondike Highway has been restructured as far as Carmacks, the report said, but beyond that it is still BST and still at the point where it needs road haul restrictions in the spring to protect the surface. There's a lot of work that would need to be done to improve it.

The report suggested that it could cost up to $100 million to bring the Klondike Highway north of Carmacks up to the same standard as the roughly 180 km south to Whitehorse.

The report didn't hold out much hope that the current amount of traffic on the highway would justify that kind of expense.

So it's likely that we'll hear quite a few more jokes before any serious improvements are made.

These bump signs generally warn of frost heaves or places where the road has sunk down a bit. They're not rough, but they're bouncy.

There are a lot of these matched potholes on both sides, so you can't even dodge them.

We want to hear from you!

Meet Hannah Eden: Klondike Sun's summer student intern!

By Hannah Eden

After six airplane journeys, eight in-flight meals, twelve passport security checks and 6574 km crossed, I have finally arrived in Dawson City, Yukon. And what a wonderful place it is! I have dreamt of traveling to the Yukon since I was a young girl. My mother is Canadian and my father is British and having been raised "across the pond" in England, I have always dreamt of living near mountains and wildlife and experiencing Canadian culture.

Following this dream, I moved to Canada in April 2013 and have been living and working in Toronto. I started pursuing my goal of being a Photojournalist when I moved to Belleville, Ontario in September 2013 to start my two year Photojournalism diploma at Loyalist College. Walking through the "halls of the greats", I hoped to one day work anywhere where I could document people's lives. My greatest dream is probably the smallest to most people; to tell the whole truth about a person, to have a unique look into their lives is an honour and a privilege.

So began eight months of lectures about the history of photojournalism, learning how to use my camera and studying other people's work. Soon, I gained an interest in multimedia and started filming short news videos of various different events around Belleville. I rapidly grew to love the idea of visual storytelling more than I had originally anticipated and in January 2014, I made the decision to book my "golden" ticket to

P5

I had heard so much about the community in Dawson, its people and its landscape, and I made the decision to do documentary work. It wasn't until April 2014 when I heard that the Klondike Sun was opening their doors to a new summer intern, and within two days of landing on Dawson soil, here I am as The Klondike Sun's new friendly

Dawson City has always been a far away place that I imagined myself being a part of - a small community of friendly local faces - and now that I am here, I realize that this in indeed a very 'big' community of kind hearts and good fun. So at the grand old age of 20, I look forward to a summer of stories. Hello Dawson, thank you for having me stay!

AYC resolutions urge action on a number of territorial issues

Issues discussed and voted on at the Sunday morning AGM of the Association of Yukon Communities ran the gamut from highway brushing to government decentralization, banking, and provision of 911 service outside the capital city.

Brushing of the highway and powerline rights of way was the first issue of the morning, and dealt with both sightlines for safe driving and the prevention of power interruptions from falling trees.

The government and the power companies were urged to "coordinate their brushing activities to ensure better use of resources and adequate brushing to address safety and visibility concerns."

There was a lengthy discussion of a request that the government should communicate "regularly with communities on the needs and opportunities within each community to discuss positions that would be better suited to be delivered within these communities."

It was noted in the discussion that the natural tendency of bureaucracy to consolidate and control frequently gets in the way of its actual purpose, which is to provide service. The resolution was entitled Rural Employment Stability.

Some of the communities are not content with the cost of the health insurance plans offered to their employees and so AYC itself was instructed to "explore other options for group benefits, such as joining the Government of Yukon group benefits plan."

While happy to learn during the Minister's Round Table on Friday that expanded Beverage Container Regulations for recycling were in the works, the membership resolved to "engage with the Yukon Government, Yukon business community, and stakeholder groups to review and expand the range of materials under the Beverage Container Regulations in a timely fashion."

Solid Waste Disposal is a major issue for all the communities and some time was spenttweaking a resolution with the intent of adding oil and special waste related to hydrocarbon products to the list of Designated Materials.

Connected to this one was a resolution on Extended Producer Responsibility, which would move things towards more of a user-pay system for financing the disposal of such wastes. At this stage, the resolution calls for a collaborative process to draft, develop and implement such a scheme in a timely fashion."

The process whereby rural communities have their property assessments done is found to be confusing and inconsistent, and changes to the property tax roll have not shown any advantage for communities.

The resolution on this issue "strongly urges that the Minister of Community Services ensures good communication and cooperation between the Property and Assessment department with municipalities when dealing with properties in Municipal Boundaries and changes to the tax roll."

Delegates were in substantial agreement that the provision of essential services in the communities suffers from too high and too rapid a turnover of necessary personnel, especially at the RCMP detachments and nursing stations.

The resolution submitted by the Village of Carmacks, which recently waited two years for the local detachment to be brought up to full strength, was that "the Ministers responsible for ensuring Essential Services Staffing in the communities be aware of the problems that occur, including issues caused by turnover of staff, and as a result the Ministers work toward finding permanent solutions to address these staffing issues."

Community banking services in most of the rural communities are provided on a contract basis with the TD Bank. Lately the branches have been insisting that a person must have an account there in order to access services, and that signing authorities for a variety of organizations can only be arranged or altered by having all the signatories make the changes at the Whitehorse branch office. There have even been reports of branches refusing to accept cash payments for various utility bills.

The Community Banking resolution resolves that "the AYC requests that the Minister responsible for the community banking agreement works towards ensuring that the services agreed to within the contract are being fully met and are reasonable for all of rural Yukon."

Two requests from the Town of Watson Lake grew out of items in the Watson Lake Challenges Report and dealt with business opportunities that a town might want to consider.

The resolution regarding Municipal Exemptions to the Yukon Utilities Act might allow municipalities to take on some ventures in utility provision, such as hydro electricity or some other service.

Similarly the resolution on Municipal Franchise Agreements might allow a town to "enter into franchise agreements with private or public sectors" in order to generate revenue for the town.

Near the end of the day a resolution from the floor referred to the government's intention to introduce an interim 911 emergency number prior to moving towards full 911 service.

The interim system would allow Yukoners outside 911 range — anywhere beyond the Whitehorse area — to dial 911 from a landline and choose from "autoselect options." Residents could dial 1 for police, 2 for fire and 3 for ambulance, connecting them with local responders

There was much back and forth on this, concluding with the observation that while this is not yet the real thing, it is much closer to the 911 number that is in the heads of most Canadian citizens these days and much less confusing than the combination of 2222, 3333, 4444, and 5555 numbers that have to be combined with the local area 3 digit prefix before they will work.

The resolution read, "AYC supports YG's bid to enable Northwestel to provide an interim 911 system in Yukon communities, and notes the urgency of having a permanent 911 solution in place as soon as possible."

The final resolution of the day was moved and voted quickly and went back to the question of solid waste.

"That the AYC take the lead in solid waste issues by working with Community Services, and other communities in developing community specific plans."

Potoroka to lead AYC for the coming year

It wasn't a hard fought election, but Mayor Wayne Potoroka of Dawson beat Coun. John Streicker of Whitehorse for the presidency of the Association of Yukon Communities at the May 11. Potoroka has been acting in the position for some months due to the ill health of Elaine Wyatt of Carmacks. Both men gave short speeches indicating their enthusiasm for the organization and their respect for each other, but Potoroka did have the edge due to his time acting in the office.

Streicker could have challenged Coun. Gord Curran of Teslin for the post of 1st vice-president, but chose not to, saying he was content to continue serving from where he was for the time being.

There were two candidates for the 2^{nd} VP position and veteran executive member Coun. Betty Irwin of Whitehorse won over Coun. Tara Wheeler of Carmacks.

The final position is that of VP at Large, and it went uncontested to Coun. Diana Rogerson of Faro.

By Dan Davidson

Protests are not the normal sort of thing at meetings of the Association of Yukon Communities, but this year's gathering did see sporadic appearances by people protesting one of two issues related to resource extraction and land management.

Glenda Bolt and Jim Taggart could be seen protesting the Yukon government's decision to rebuild the Dome Road for what they see as being for the benefit of the owner of the Slinky Mine.

They were joined at various times by Wanda Roe and Suzanne Guimond, protesting the government's decision to write its own version of the Peel Watershed Management Plan.

Both protests gathered some interest from delegates at the meetings, but had little visible impact on the person they most wanted to reach, Premier Darryl Pasloski.

Bolt did manage to engage Pasloski briefly, but the canny Premier ducked into the doorway at the Palace Grand whenever there was a camera that might capture the exchange.

NDP Leader Liz Hanson, MLA Kevin Barr and Nacho Nyak Dun Chief Ed Champion did join the combined group for a photo opportunity.

Liz Hanson, Ed Champion and Kevin Barr, with Suzanne Guimond, Glenda Bolt and Jim Taggart.

Liberal Leader Silver said he came to AYC to listen

Not to be outdone by NDP Leader Liz Hanson, who had one of her colleagues with her, Liberal Leader Sandy Silver began his address to the Association of Yukon Communities convention by noting that he had brought his entire caucus to the meeting.

Of course, he is the only Liberal in the legislature, but the joke got a good laugh from the audience.

"To the mayors and to the councillors, thank you for agreeing to serve in the capacities that you do," he said. "We all know that you don't do it for the money. It's because of your concern for the well being of your communities and your desire to improve the towns that you live in.

"There is no government that is closer to the people than the municipalities. Constituents often approach me with municipal issues and I can't tell you how important it is to have a good rapport with different levels of government, I am so honoured to have a good rapport with Mayor Potoroka and his councillors, and keeping those lines of communication open allows both of us to do our jobs a lot more efficiently."

Silver noted that the limited tax bases of the towns and the city can make it difficult to fund all the essential services that need to be funded and that the support of the senior levels of government is crucial to the success of local governments.

He announced that he expects to be on the road quite a bit this summer.

"I bought a new camper and my goal this summer is to get out to the other communities as much as possible, and to meet with the municipalities and local leaders in those communities. ľm looking forward to that.

"As someone who has lived in rural Yukon for the last 15 years I can certainly identify with those of you who are living in the communities."

Solid Waste disposal and recycling is, he said, an issue that has emerged as a huge one in discussions he has had with community leaders. He pointed to the collaboration between the City of Dawson and the NGO Conservation Klondike Society as one model that has had some success - though far from complete - in dealing with some of the issues.

"One of the other issues which municipal governments continue to struggle with is that of mining claims and mining within municipal boundaries," Silver said. "The current approach of addressing the issue on a case by case situation leaves something to be desired in my view.

" M u n i c i p a l governments often end up in the middle of these situations without having the authority to get results the they want. The power to make decisions often lies with other governments, it is the municipal level which ends up being the ones held to account for the decisions."

This issue is of particular concern in Dawson due to the presence of the Slinky Mine near country residential lots on the Dome and Mary McLeod Roads. In fact, a small demonstration regarding the current plans for that mining claim was staged outside the Palace Grand that very day.

Sliver also brought up his continuing quest to bring 911 service to the entire territory, a topic accentuated by the failed attempts of residents to use that emergency number during a fire in Dawson on May 6.

"This issue wouldn't even be on the table if it wasn't for Fire Chief Jim Regimbal here in Dawson City. With the early morning fire here in Dawson this week ... the response was delayed due to the lack of 911.

"This is an issue for local people and visitors alike. Many visitors take it for granted that 911 is in place and only realize that it's not when it's too late."

He urged the delegates to make it clear to the government just how they would like to see this service rolled out.

Silver indicated workable solutions need to be found to the issue of how First Nations land within municipal boundaries can be leveraged so that needed housing can be constructed.

Silver closed by noting that there were many other issues that he might have raised, but that he was attending this meeting more to listen than to talk and he looked forward to hearing what things delegates might want to tell him.

Member of Parliament Ryan Leef is keen on mining innovations to balance conservation and extraction

Member of Parliament Ryan Leef, who spent his early boyhood growing up in Dawson City, was the last Yukon politician to step up to the podium at the recent Dawson City International Gold Show.

"Getting back to Dawson every year for me is a great experience," Leef said. "I grew up in this community, went to school here and the drive up to Dawson always gives me an opportunity, and I never miss, to reflect back on what brought everybody to Dawson in the first place.

"As you travel along the Yukon River you think of the hardships an the challenges and the effort people made to get here in 1898. It's a remarkable reflection.

"Yesterday's journey up here was maybe as challenging as the journey in 1898. There were a few truck swallowing potholes on the road this year, Hopefully we'll get those fixed up and you'll bring your equipment in well."

Reflecting on the history of placer mining, Leef said that the one thing that needed to be remembered "was the legacy that was left for us and the responsibility that was left for us by the people that forged their way into the Klondike. "When I say responsibility I think that we were tasked with the opportunity to do better ... and to do better as we heard from (various speakers) is to create higher yields but leave a smaller footprint, to have community engagement, the opportunity to provide benefits to the local region.

Leef said that 2012's Resource Revenue Sharing Agreement between Canada and the Yukon was an example of doing better. He also felt that the Impact Benefit Agreements that are being signed between mining companies and Yukon First Nations are another example.

"(These) are fantastic and the jobs and the opportunity that resource development brings are important for our region and important for the territory."

Leef noted that the federal government has supported the creation of the Centre for Northern Innovation in Mining at Yukon College, including the mobile welding classroom that has been in Dawson winter and spring. Leef noted that this facility and the mobile equipment training simulators have been effective in getting training opportunities out to the communities instead of everyone having to go to Whitehorse for training.

"In 2014, in this last budget, we were able to announce a student loan program for the Red Seal trades. That's an important step to finally signify that people in trades programs and those endeavors and those educational efforts are as important as pursuing and seeking out an academic educational degree.

"I think as we move forward in this territory and we provide Red Seal opportunities where we currently have capacity shortages that student loan program is going to be very helpful for Yukoners looking for particular opportunities in the resource extraction field."

On the other side of the development/protection equation, Leef cited that week's announcement by Prime Minister Harper of the National Conservation Plan.

"(This will) connect Canadians with restoration of land and water and make sure that Canadians are better connected with nature."

added Leef that the comments made by earlier speakers about new methods of exploration and extraction would better allow industry and government to deal with "resource extraction in more responsible manner, so we don't end up in an either/ discussion. Resource extraction and care and concern for our natural environment are not mutually exclusive.

"Canada," he said, speaking from his role on the Natural Resource Committee, "is leading now as a global innovator in technology and in expertise that we're able to export. So the technical knowledge, the innovation development, the skills and expertise in mining and working in some of the harshest climates on the planet certainly could create a leadership role for Canada, not just to benefit what we're able to do here on the local level, but utilizing our skills, knowledge and experience and export that to other markets in the world, that's a great opportunity for us."

He said he was impressed by the innovations that he saw while wandering the arena on the first day of the Gold Show.

Leef did not have a constituency booth or meeting time while attending the Gold Show.

Two Dawson film makers receive grants

WHITEHORSE (May 13, 2014) - Seven Yukon producers and directors are sharing $40,000 in financial assistance from the Yukon Filmmakers Fund.

"By helping Yukoners develop projects for broadcast or commercial release, the Filmmakers Fund encourages diversification of the Yukon economy via the territory's growing film industry," Minister of Economic Development Currie Dixon said.

Among the recipients is Nah Ho Productions, operated by Allan Code, which will produce Fortymile Comeback Trail. The film looks at the Fortymile caribou herd which, after a long period of decline, is recovering and returning to its former Yukon range.

"This is a good news story at a time when most environmental news is bad, and it shows that the environment can be restored, at least in part, by sustained efforts," Code said. "What makes this film so exciting is that it is one of the very first of its size made entirely in the Yukon, to air in the Yukon, and with Yukon resources."

Miss Sauer Productions producer/director Moira Sauer will shoot the final installment of the black-and-white silent series Northern Gothic: A Trilogy. A tale of a mermaid hunt in the frozen North, The Hunt is Sauer's most ambitious project to date, involving extensive puppetry, underwater shooting and more than 30 cast and crew.

"Yukon is stunning in how raw and untouched it is, and I hope that comes through in the film," Sauer said. "There's an element of the fantastical throughout the trilogy and The Hunt takes it further and into new challenges filming and working with materials underwater."

Dan Sokolowski will receive $3,260 for Post-production work on his film From EH to ZED.

Red Snapper Films Limited (Lulu Keating) will receive $8,000 for its Documentary production A Not so Typical Immigrant's Yukon Filmmakers Fund grants are awarded twice each year with application deadlines on June 1 and December 1.

Mother Nature lights up the Landfill

Summer workers are welcomed by Dawson's churches

Story & Photos by Dan Davidson

Fifty newcomers to town - summer workers, mostly, enjoyed a hot meal and a couple of community information talks at the Dawson Community Gospel Chapel for the third session of the month long Tuesday Transient Dinners.

That number was up from 36 the week before and a mere dozen during the first week in May. For those earlier weeks the ferry was not yet in the water, and that always seems to bring an increase in numbers.

The dinners are provided in rotation by the Gospel Chapel, St. Paul's Anglican Church and St. Mary's Catholic Church, with all the churches pitching in to provide the fourth meal.

Some people were returning summer workers - or summerdoughs - were a little confused this year since this dinner has usually been held at St. Mary's, but they reported that they spotted the sign on the door and figured out where to go.

Aside from the churches. the local grocery stores also pitch in to make sure that new employees, who may be short on cash after getting here, get at least one hot meal during their first weeks.

The philosophy behind the meals is a working out of Christ's command to look after the less environment dept. (on thank-yous and lots of fortunate and welcome strangers, but it also assumes that if an entire month has gone by and folks are still not able to fend for themselves, it might be time to move on.

Information sessions with the local hospital, the town's bylaw officer, the RCMP, the territorial

The evenings feature lots of warm smiles, grateful willing hands to help with the clean up when the meal's over.

Refreshed DawsonCity.ca launched to kickoff summer season

Press Release

The Klondike Visitors Association (KVA) has refreshed launched its dawsoncity.ca website, just in time for the summer tourism season.

In the words of KVA's Marketing and Events Committee Chair, Evelyn Pollock: "As the primary source of information for visitors, we need a website that is as vibrant, exciting, and welcoming as the Dawson City community itself."

The refreshed website contains a variety of userfriendly features and presents a bright and consistent 'look and feel' that aligns itself with KVA's marketing brand. It was built to encourage detailed itinerary planning and trip finalization, by including imagery-rich and engaging content to meet the interests and needs of our targeted visitors.

The website project was initiated in 2013, with the financial support of CANNOR and carried-out by KVA's marketing unit and the digital services team at Outside the

The list of new and attractive features includes a 'Sun Tracker' tool that measures the hours of daylight in the region and a 'My Favourites' section where visitors can compile a personal itinerary that they can then download and share on a variety of social media platforms.

KVA's Marketing As and Events Manager, Paul

Robitaille says: "The site also has an awesome interactive events calendar. Not only does the page show all the upcoming events, but the calendar entries are also actually created by the event organizers in order to provide the most up-to-date and accurate information. Planning a Dawson adventure just got easier and better!"

While big changes have already been made, KVA acknowledges that this is an ongoing project that will continue to evolve in order to ensure the content stays fresh and relevant.

For more information, please contact Paul Robitaille or Justine Hobbs at 867.993.5575 or kva@ dawson.net.

Many things tilt this teenager's world

Tilt

By Alan Cumyn Groundwood Books 271 pages $12.95

There comes a time in the life of a young person when the whole world seems to tilt. There may be many such times, in fact. For Stan Dart the first one was when his father, Ron, packed up and left with Kelly-Ann, abandoning Stan, Lily and their mother, Isabelle.

With Mom there has been a succession of failed relationships since then, and each of them has tilted Stan's world a little. The current one, with Gary, seems to be working out, and he's not at all sure how he feels about

It's been five years since he has had to worry about permanent other male presence, and he's kind of got used to picking up the pieces of their lives that his mom seems to drop from time to

Not that he doesn't love his mom. There's a rather sweet conversation that they have about halfway into the book and no son who didn't love his mother would have been able to stick around for the whole thing.

What's been rocking Stan's world the most lately is the new girl, Janine Igwash. She's constantly on his mind and when she asks him to go to a dance with her, he's totally flabbergasted. Even though his friends warn him the buzz is that she's "tilted" (read - into girls) he can't give up the idea of spending time with her.

It's a really awkward relationship, on both their parts. Stan's never been on a date, as such, and Janine has never actually been interested in a guy before, so they circle around each other quite uncertainly for much of the book, running towards and away from each other while they make up their minds.

In his less frantic moments, Stan is trying hard to make the school's basketball team, and the proper ways to make different types of basketball shots become metaphors for all kinds of other activity as the story moves along.

A final big tilt comes Stan's way when his birth father turns up with the half-brother he's produced with Kelly-Ann. We're not sure what's happened here. Did she kick him out or did he just leave her? Do the garbled words coming from Feldon, Stan's new half-brother, mean that Kelly-Ann is having an affair with someone else and that they've taken off to

by Dan Davidson

Montego Bay – or is all of this completely out to lunch?

What does Ron want? How does Stan feel about Feldon? How does Lilly feel about him? What scenes will develop when Gary and Ron are at the house at the same time?

As it turns out Gary seems to improve by comparison with Ron. In fact most of Stan's residual good feelings about Ron pretty much melt away the night he finds his dad preparing to take off again with Feldon in order to avoid getting caught there by Kelly-

Stan talks him out of taking Feldon and watches as Ron "shuffled his old gray self in to the back of (the taxi) and said something to the driver. Bus station? Train station? Somewhere on the edge of the highway? Stan didn't want to know."

That seems to be the point where he becomes determined not to be the man he has seen his father become, and so he is rather distressed when he and Janine give in to teenage desire while he feels they ought to be looking after Feldon (who has fallen asleep in the downstairs

When she says, "I'd love to see your room" it's pretty much all over for Stan, and the next few pages are likely to get this book some sort of age rating, even though it's all very poetic. Later, he's terrified that he's become a father, but it turns out she had this all pretty well planned for.

At its core, this is a book about relationships and desire. Some of the relationships work out and some don't. It appears that some of the characters learn important lessons - and that some just blunder on heedlessly.

There's lots of tension in this story and yet it's quite funny in a number of ways. We spend it inside Stan's head, and I'm not sure he's an entirely reliable narrator, but he means well and he wants to get things right, so we like him and we cheer for him.

The story has several happy endings, and I don't think I'm spoiling anything by telling you that, because they're not exactly what you may be thinking they are.

Alan Cumyn is the current writer-in-residence at Berton House and was one of the four mentor authors at April's Young Authors' Conference.

NDP Leader pitched for restoring referendum powers, less centralization and recognition of tourism

NDP Liz Hanson showed off her Dawson knowledge and connection by recalling that it was 35 years ago on May 9, 1979 that she, in her capacity as a fledgling social worker, was involved in reacting to the last Dawson Flood as par of the federal/territorial compensation team.

"It was a fascinating exercise," she told the delegates to the 39th AGM of the Association of Yukon Communities, "to see that the visionary leadership of municipal leaders or Dawson City and across this country and this territory were able to envision a territory that needed Dawson and the history of this city to be recognized into the future."

Hanson spoke in praise of the Municipal Act Review, which has been under way since 2012, but lamented that the provision for referenda (or Public Vote) on municipal issues has been placed in abeyance due to events in Whitehorse.

The 1998 act was, she said, groundbreaking legislation at the time. The Public Vote provision was used three times successfully, but on its fourth use in 2005 it was contested by the City of Whitehorse and has not been used since.

"This represents, to me, a failure of dialogue between public representatives and citizens. Once the appeal court (on the McLean Lake case) rendered the Public Vote provisions inoperative, the Yukon government did nothing to reinstate them. Since 2009 this ... has not been available to citizens."

Hanson believes that this provision, or some working alternative, would lend credibility to public governance and improve democracy. She hoped that something of this nature will be included in the Municipal Act Review report.

Municipalities, said Hanson, are the agencies that have had to deal with the ramifications of the Solid Waste Action Plan, and they need more territorial government support to do this. She feels the advisory committee should have been renewed.

Centralization of government services in Whitehorse has also been a theme of Hanson's NDP. She feels that while centralized operations may be cost effective, where the actual connection of the service to those receiving the service suffers.

"(This happens) when our sense of Yukon is too overwhelmingly Whitehorse centric."

As an example she brought up the recent move to create a 300 bed seniors' residence in the city, as opposed to having several regional sites closer to where some of the elders have a c t u a l l y lived.

Work needs to done, be she said, to ways find for municipalities, which seem to be delivering more and more of the front line services, to generate or acquire the revenue to fund these services.

While the Yukon NDP supports the mining sector of the economy, Hanson said, the territory needs to take a long, hard look at revising mining laws and regulations, so as to deal effectively with the issue of mining within municipal boundaries.

"The NDP understands that the sleeping giant of Yukon's economy is tourism," Hanson said as she came to her conclusion. "We believe that opportunities and benefits from Yukon's economy from tourism are only just now beginning to be understood."

Yukon Police Council and communities establish policing priorities

WHITEHORSE (May 12, 2014) —Minister of Justice Mike Nixon presented the Yukon policing priorities to the commanding officer of the Yukon RCMP earlier this year following extensive community consultation by the Yukon Police Council (YPC).

"The council plays a vital role in identifying policing priorities by holding meetings throughout the territory to listen to Yukoners," Nixon said. "National Police Week, May 11 to 17, is a good time to recognize the YPC and the cooperative relationship between communities and police."

The 2014-15 priorities are consistent with the previous year's and take into consideration public input and information on other trends in the policing environment:

- Focus on preventing and decreasing the victimization of children and youth.
- Continue to improve the response to sexualized assault and family violence.
- Identify and address, with the public and service providers, community safety issues.
- Build and foster constructive and respectful relationships with First Nations.
 - Improve the police response to vulnerable populations.

"The government is encouraged by Yukon RCMP's efforts to fulfill these priorities and we thank them for their dedication and continued service," Nixon added.

The YPC meets regularly with First Nations, service providers, community organizations and the public. The council's next community meeting is this month in Dawson City.

"We welcome the minister's policing priorities for Yukon and look forward to working together with government, community partners and citizens to create safer, stronger communities," Chief Superintendent Peter Clark, Commanding Officer of Yukon RCMP said. "In addition to responding to the priorities set by the Minister on behalf of Yukoners, each of our detachments also consults with First Nations and municipal leadership to address specific needs and concerns at the local level."

Off-roading in Sierra Leone

Story by Eldo Enns

"Not for the faint of heart," the ad in Cycle Canada should have read. Roads into West Africa's outback beckon only the adventure seekers, those denying that they actually have a death wish, and of course, those who love riding motorcycle. Now on my third trip of this nature, I have to confess that based on the two previous trips, I actually wrote a lawyerless but notarized will of sorts before heading out.

Any Dawsonites in Bonanza Market this autumn would have been exposed to the exuberant enthusiasm of owner Paul Derry. Two years earlier Paul, Ron McCready, and I had a similar trip in Guatemala. Since then Paul has become a CAUSE Canada advocate and his offroad riding has thriven. Enter also Dr. Jo, passionate recruiter full of hidden talents as an African off-roader. All this coupled with the influence from our esteemed friend Bill Bowie who taught us to live each day to the fullest. He provided the inspiration for some of us to entertain this crazy 8-day road trip near the equator at +38C in the shade.

Now you have the makings of a motorcycle fleet: Dr. Jo Devenish, Mechanic Boyd Gillis, Marine Engineer Martin Gehrig, Butcher Paul Derry, and Professor Eldo Enns. In Sierra Leone we were joined by Calgary lawyer, Derek Allchuch, Paul Carrick, Founder & Director of CAUSE Canada, and local CAUSE Canada esteemed guide. Oumar Kamara. Not since riding Harleys as teenagers had we felt this invincible.

wife Bev first initiated educational and community development projects in Sierra Leone 28 years ago. Since then the country has come through the "blood diamonds" era and a horrible civil war. Now the country is rebuilding. Corruption is still an issue, but Pablo Carrick continues to work diligently at ensuring the 90 local CAUSE Canada employees aren't pulled into this lifestyle. For Pablo, it's all about the people. For three decades he continues to champion the plight of the poor and the oppressed.

This road trip includes a lot of red dust, visiting CAUSE schools that have as many girls as boys, incredible beaches, 20-year old single malt Scotch from Gatwick Airport, sleeping in convents, sweating profusely under the African sun, meeting the friendly African people and children, hot peppers, and the best mangos in the world. It also doesn't take long to realize that we're in the developing world here in one of Africa's poorer countries, but it's a trip that will become a part of us.

Each of us bought a reliable Japanese motorcycle for $5,000. Motorcycles are the mainstay of Sierra Leone's transportation, especially in the rural areas. CAUSE Canada needs these bikes to do its community development work.

Motorcycles are far more agile than trucks and are able to navigate the very rough roads much better than four wheels. 90% of the shock is in the malleable human knee. How could even the best of 4-wheel drives possibly compete? Because we are donating these motorcycles to a Canadian community de-Paul (Pablo) Carrick and his velopment organization, we also receive a charitable receipt for the price of the bike. The perk, of course, is that we get to see the country with local guide Oumar. Perhaps inappropriately, I like to call these adventures "hedonistic philanthropy". Add a few good friends from Dawson and it doesn't get any better.

The beauty of this project is that you can see where your gift will go. My steed is going to Mabindi, a woman managing the microfinance program for women in Kamakwie. We visited several of these women in their modest businesses at the town markets. Based on Global Statistics, CAUSE Canada is wise to support these women. Women tend to invest their extra income in their family's education, health, and nutrition, thereby creating a better future for their community. The Clinton Global Initiative notes that although women perform 66% of the world's work and produce 50% of the food, they earn only 10% of the world's income and own 1% of the prop-

In Kabala we meet David Fafard, an idealistic young man fully engaged in the CAUSE vision despite the rampant corruption of which he speaks. Corruption, in the short term, only makes the poverty more severe. Bill Gates, who possibly has given more to Africa than any other charity (except perhaps Bob Geldof's Live Aid), continues to support the poor people of Africa. He argues that even though many people would like aid shut down for this reason, "four of the past seven governors of Illinois have gone to prison for corruption, and to my knowledge no one has demanded that Illinois schools be shut down or its highways closed." Despite people's complaints about too much money going to foreign aid, Gates purports that aid is a "fantastic investment" that saves and improves lives and lays the groundwork for longterm economic progress.

Often North Americans think their country gives high amounts of our money for aid, but in fact we give only 1%. Recently, Canada's government has cut that small amount by a further 1/3, which has certainly affected the work that CAUSE Canada is able to do in West Africa. Norway, the most generous country in the world, gives less than 3% in aid. (MEDA Marketplace, March 2014).

Nonetheless, African economies are growing, despite being some of the poorest in the world. The percentage of very poor people has dropped by more than half since 1990. The lifespan for women in the sub-Sahara has gone from 41 to 57 years. The percentage of children in schools has increased from 40% in 1970 to 75%. As Canadian riders in Africa, we are privileged to be a very small part of this change.

Sometimes the roads are paved and sometimes they are rough - very rough. If we're lucky the bridges on the roads contain potholes smaller than the size of our motorcycles. I'm following Jo on some backwoods trail through the Savannah and she is screaming down the road. I can tell she is no stranger to trail riding and fear is merely a medical condition that she learned at some university. It's all I can do to pound through the dips, crevices, and potholes to keep her in my sight. Way too much fun!

Earlier in the day we had visited a hospital in Kamakwie, built by a religious organization in the 70s. That's all this large area has for medical facilities and they desperately need a doctor -even one doctor. The nurses struggle to deal with the myriad malaria cases in their aging facility. It is obvious that Jo is torn about the condition of this health facility and grappling with what could be done to improve the plight of the thousands of people who come here.

Pablo is delighted to have Jo along to provide insight into the state of health in this province. He is equally keen on getting Boyd's feedback on the mechanical future of his fleet of four-wheel drives. Given Boyd's decades of experience as a mechanic, he is able to provide valuable advice to Pablo on how to utilize his fleet of vehicles to the fullest for the lowest possible price in the long term.

Each day typically ends with lukecold beer and freshly picked mangoes, both imperative to another day of life for the cold-climate Yukoners. Of course we end up with a few scuffs and bruises to remind us of the caliber of these back roads. But hopefully even more prevalent in our memory are those young children going to school and those animated women who because of CAUSE are able to sell their wares in the markets of Sierra Leone. Pablo has suggested that we check out more community development projects by motorcycling through the Honduran mountains in two years, from one coast to the other. We're thinking of it. Would you like to come along?

Partnerships are the way to succeed for the Yukon, says the Premier

At the urging of Mayor Wayne Potoroka, Premier Darryl Pasloski began his address to the Association of Yukon Communities by posting a photo and comment to his Facebook and Twitter accounts.

"Happy to be speaking tonight at the 39th annual Assn of #Yukon Communities AGM #ayc14."

The theme for this year's annual general meeting was "Creating Results" and the Premier used that idea as a springboard for his summary of government accomplishments, many of which, he said, were the result of partnerships between different levels of government.

He began with the Our Towns, Our Future review, which examined everything from municipal grant structures to the Municipal Act Review and the community sustainability study that was piloted in Faro over the last year.

"(It) continues to fuel some great innovative work and some great achievements," Pasloski said. "The truth is that we're not finished."

The new edition of the federal Build Canada program should bring $250 million to the Yukon over the next ten years, he said, while the continuing Gas Tax program should bring in at least $163 million in the same time frame.

The old agreement has financed dozens of projects, he

"Building Canada and the Gas Tax have provided over $310 million in projects across the territory and on many of these projects we've had the privilege of partnering with you, the municipalities.'

$400 thousand went to the agreement with Dawson for capital upgrades to the Quigley Landfill and to provide help with the disposal of special waste. $800 thousand went to the Whitehorse's composting facility. Other projects went ahead in Beaver Creek, Pelly Crossing and Haines Junction.

'You demonstrate what kind of value there are to these funds and what kind of value they are to your community and it's through your hard work that this money turns into invaluable infrastructure in all your communities."

Moving from his account of how federal funding has helped the territory, the premier continued with some highlights from the Yukon Party's recent budget announcements.

- New seniors' housing in Mayo and Whitehorse
- Upgrading Yukon Housing units territory wide
- The replacement of Dawson's McDonald Lodge seniors' home
- Directing the Yukon Development Corp. to identify new sources of hydroelectric

- Funds for development of lots in the Carcross-Tagish area
- A commitment to extend 4G wireless connectivity to all of the territory
- Moving ahead with a second fibre optic data link from the south to stabilize communications links between there and the Yukon
- Planning for improvements to the Klondike Highway and continuing attempts to get the American government to reinstate the funding of the decades old Shakwak Project
- Improvements to bridges and airports
- The mobile trades training trailers which have been offering welding training in Dawson over the winter, as part of the Centre for Northern Innovation in Mining.
- Working to provide building and industrial lots in many of the communities.
- Reorganizing the regulation and management of land issues to remove some of the frustration that individuals and towns have experienced by bringing all these functions under one department.

Continuing his partnership theme, the Premier broadened his address to include the private sector.

'As you can see, there are a lot of things going on and we are creating good results. Much has been accomplished, but as I said at the beginning, there is still a lot that we need to do and we will continue to do this together."

'We're here," he concluded, "because we want to support the excellent work you're doing on behalf of your municipalities and we're here because we know that working together will continue to create the best results for all Yukon communities."

Ken McKinnon tells some tales about the Palace Grand and the foundation of the AYC

Ken McKinnon was actually at the Association of Yukon Communities annual general meeting to talk about the Yukon Environmental and Socio-economic Assessment Board, but the veteran Yukon politician (MLA: 1961-64, 1967-70, 1975-78) and Commissioner (1986-1995) couldn't resist telling a few tales that didn't make it into either Linda Johnson's books about the Yukon Legislature or the Yukon Commissioner's Office.

"I thought when I was Commissioner that I would be appearing for the last time on the stage of the Palace Grand," he said, "so believe me, this is a real bonus in the twilight of my career.

"When I was on the territorial council I had worked in the summer as a student in Dawson City for two or three of the most pleasant summers I ever spent in my life.

"On the territorial council at that time we were talking about the 75th anniversary of the Gold Rush, and I was a strong supporter, along with Erik Nielsen, our Member of Parliament at the time, in getting money through the Dept. called Foxy for the signature opening of the Palace Grand.

"Well, the minister of DIAND at that time was a Salvation Army Minister by the name of Walter Dinsdale. And Lester Pearson (leader of the Liberal Opposition) was taking great delight in the House (of Commons) on a daily basis of rising and saying how can a minister of the Salvation Army be pouring more and more money into the house of ill repute known as the Palace Grand Theatre in Dawson

"So Walter was getting more and more embarrassed and ne was trying to work with Erik to launder the money that was necessary for the Festival through the territorial council - through us. So Erik came to the council and said 'I've got a proposition."

From family mine to family heirloom; Leslie Chapman creates timeless jewelry from Yukon Gold

Story & photos by Hannah Eden

The quaint wooden workshop on York and Third is the home of jeweler Leslie Chapman, who has lived in Dawson for nearly forty years. Her heart for people and love of beauty is what keeps her local business, Forty Mile Gold going from strength to strength.

"I came to Dawson in 1974, with my partner, mostly because we wanted to live in the wilderness," says Chapman.

"We ended up building a cabin near Fortymile River, which we later, from talking to oldtimers, discovered was a very good gold producing area and had actually been the sight of a gold rush that pre-dated the Klondike's."

After spending summers with her partner and two children mining for the 20 carat gold Chapman uses in her pieces, she opened her workshop in Dawson City in 1998 after becoming a self-taught jeweler.

Not only is Chapman's livelihood based in Dawson, but also her family. Her daughter Anna has stayed in the Yukon since their move to the north during her childhood. Chapman's family and work often go hand in hand and her granddaughter is a regular visitor to the workshop.

"My granddaughter Kate is 3 years old. She likes to come into the shop and try everything on. She's a great model!" Chapman says about her granddaughter.

"I have to put all the gold in the safe at night so she likes to help me pack it up and put it away."

Chapman's adventurous spirit fueled her original decision to move to the Yukon and throughout the years, it is that same spirit which helped in her pursuit of being an entrepreneur.

"We started off as a way of making a living to support ourselves and to be able to keep living at our home in the bush," Chapman says.

"Over about a 20-year period the price declined quite severely to the point where it was getting difficult to mine profitably. So, I read a lot of books and practically taught myself how to be a goldsmith. As soon as I started doing it, I realized it was a good fit for me!"

Chapman's studio is a beautiful array of precious stones entwined with glistening gold and necklaces hand-stamped in the shape of a caribou.

Leslie Chapman, owner of Forty Mile Gold, stands in her workshop located on York and Third. Leslie creates commissioned jewellery using the 20 carat gold mined from her property on Fortymile River.

However, it's not just a talent for crafting the pieces that makes Chapman such a fascinating artist – it is her understanding of the importance of the pieces she is commissioned to create.

"I'm hoping any jewelry I make is going to last past my lifetime," Chapman says.

"A lot of people like the idea of a ring being made personally. It's a lot more personal than purchasing something form a mainstream retail jewelry store that lots of other people are going to have the same ring."

Every detail of Chapman's work is crafted with care; from the early beginnings of mining with her family on their property, to the collection of diamonds from the Northwest Territories.

"I use diamonds from the Northwest Territories in my work because people like that combination of the northern diamonds and the northern gold."

The purity of her work sets Chapman apart from other jewelers.

"People know that I have control of the chain of custody right from the beginning so I know that our gold is mined in an extremely environmentally conscious way; sometimes we call it 'green' gold, not for the colour but because it's so environmentally friendly."

After finally finding the craft that she loves, Chapman hopes to continue to mine on her Fortymile River property, and also to keep creating timeless pieces for tourists and locals alike.

"It's quite fun! I think I'll probably keep making jewelry until I physically can't!"

Chapman's Forty Mile Gold workshop is definitely worth a visit this summer – whether you'd like to create personal memoir of the Yukon or just to see the process in her in-shop studio.

"There is no end to it,' Chapman says, "There are always new things to learn and that's part of what makes it interesting. And fun!"

Pieces such as these (above and right) can be found in Chapman's workshop. Chapman uses precious stones from Mexico and diamonds from NWT.

Dawson RCMP Serve as well as protect on BBQ day

A Police lineup would not normally be a fun-filled event, but the annual BBQ Lunch at the Dawson Detachment is always well attended and seems to have been blessed with decent weather for years on end. The Mounties grilled hamburgers and smokies instead of suspects and served lunch to a capacity crowd on May 14 this year.

Clara's Big Ride aims to counter the stigma of mental illness

Story & Photos by Dan Davidson

Clara's Big Ride arrived in Dawson a bit later than she had intended on Sunday but as Clara Hughes noted when she spoke to the high school classes at the Robert Service School on Monday morning, riding a bicycle in the snow doesn't allow you to go very fast.

"I've never ridden a bike as slowly as I have had to on parts of this trip," she said with a big laugh.

The Ride has "working together to create a stigma-free Canada" as its slogan.

The six time Canadian Olympic speed skating and cycling medalist – one of the few people to win medals in both winter and summer games – is on tour for Bell Let's Talk. It's a 110 day national bicycle tour through every province and territory, which began in Toronto on March 14, 2014, and will conclude in Ottawa on July 1, 2014, at the end of a 12,000 km trek.

In Dawson after 60 days on the road the tour had completed about 5100 km at the end of the $37 \frac{1}{2}$ hour actual riding time from Inuvik.

The purpose of the ride is to open up a national conversation in 95 communities about the realities of mental health problems and to help end the stigma around mental illness.

Not every part of the trip is on the road. Hughes, her two cycling companions and the support and film crew, have flown from place to place across the North where there are no connecting roads and, following their tough slog down the Dempster Highway, they flew on to Whitehorse after their Dawson events.

Arriving in Dawson much later than she had planned, Hughes was too late for the BBQ and welcome party at the Front Street Waterfront Park, and apologized several times for having missed the festivities.

At RSS the main focus of the morning's discussion was on the subject of depression. Hughes likes to draw in some local examples and there were two local people who were willing to talk about their struggles.

Katrina Diles, who works at the Dawson Women's Shelter, spoke of how losing two of the important men in her life, her father and her husband, had affected her and led her into depression and anxiety. Both deaths were attributed to depression.

"The friends and family who were there for me and have supported me throughout the last four years have been a tremendous help in my grieving process," she said. "I owe them all so much for their

Diles emphasized that both positive and negative feelings are normal parts of the human condition.

The second local to speak was Sally Leles, an arts student and yoga teacher. Leles began suffering from depression in Gr. 4, but was not properly diagnosed and prescribed medication until she was 16.

"You just assume what you're feeling is normal, and you don't know any other different way. I don't remember before that, happiness, so I just went through my life that way."

There wasn't a lot of help for her growing up in Fort St. James, and she found it embarrassing to admit that she had to go to counseling or therapy when it was available.

Hughes said that she, too, suffered from depression. In spite of her Olympic successes and her athletic prowess, she fell prey to what some call the Black Dog. The tendency towards bipolar syndrome and addiction runs in her family and regardless of the success she achieved and admiration of the nation and the world, these external accolades were not enough to chase the Black Dog away.

"Depression is a form of mental illness, is a sickness, that I manage and I cope and I live with. You can still do things in life. It's like someone living with diabetes or someone who has gone through a serious illness like cancer.

"Life goes on," Hughes said,
"but the only way it can go on is if you have help or if you have some form of treatment, whatever that is. That can be,
for somebody, getting out and exercising. For another person it can be medication. For another person it's counseling.
For another person it's something totally different.

"This (tour) is really all about just trying to show that mental illness is not a choice; it's not something that you will upon yourself, that you just get better from. It is a sickness, and riding the Dempster Highway was like movement as meditation, but at the same time that's pushing things to an extreme.

"I don't really recommend doing something like that in five days...

"I feel like so much of what we do in our world today is that everything's fast, everything is immediate. Everything is just the here and the now and just making this happen - and I feel like everything is so fast that sometimes we just have to slow it down

"Being on the Dempster we had so many nights where we could just slow it down, sit around the campfire and just listen to the fire."

Clara poses on the Blue Bike, a promotional device that is not the one she's riding on the road.

For Hughes, testing her body with exercise is part of the treatment, which is part of the reason for this tour.

way and just the sense of being connected to the world in a very personal way.

"It's just an amazing place and we are coming out of this amazing place with so much energy, and just feeling (great), after so many days on the road and on this ride, with so many different experiences."

that everyone realizes that you have a role to play and you can actually play a part in erasing this stigma and normalizing the conversation when it comes was also an anniversary of sorts. She and her husband, Peter, chose to come North when they finally had time for a honeymoon in the midst of her busy athletic career, and 12 years ago they rode the Dempster during the summer.

Hughes was rapturous about the ride, including the open spaces, the mountains, the animals they saw along the Hughes says she has found the problem of mental illness and the problem of the stigma associated with it in every place that she has visited so far.

"It is different in different places across Canada, but I can tell you that there is a stigma – in some places it's stronger than others. I think it's fundamentally important to mental illness.

"This affects every single person. One in five Canadians (so that could be) someone that you know and care about. So it's time we stopped pretending that this doesn't exist."

After the high school session Hughes and company met with the elementary classes as well.

"But a couple of members ... decided they didn't want to launder the money from federal government to Dawson ... Well, George Shaw was the member for the Dawson district at that time and he was just hurt more than any other time I saw him that some of his colleagues weren't prepared to continue the Dawson City Festival. And it came down that I was the turning vote on the council to pass the money through to continue the festival. So I do have some bona fides for speaking at the Palace Grand Theatre."

McKinnon went on to say that he felt it was time at his age to tell the truth about some of the things that happened during his four terms on the territorial council.

He was also in on the founding of the Association of Yukon Communities 39 years ago when he was serving as the territorial Minister of Community Affairs, as the Dept of Community Services was known in those days.

"Andre Carrel was the city manager of Dawson City," he said. "Those of you who know Andre know that he's very smart, he's very determined

"He said, 'No Ken, really, it's a benefit to you because we have these solutions to these problems that you have coming from one body. We'd be speaking with one voice.'

McKinnon lifted up a small Johnnie Walker Red Label carton full of miniature bottles.

"Inside it was a (collection) of miniatures." He held them up one by one.

THIS IS JUST MY OPINION

by Al Sider

And what of our beloved pets?

Dawson City: a wonderful community wherein to live, visit, shop, hike and die. There is much for all residents and visitors to do here. We have a wonderful array of shops and restaurants, places to work and live.

Dawson is also home to countless dogs, cats, and pets of all shapes and sizes. But sadly our pets do not share the same privileges as their human owners. This difference is really only distinguished upon death.

Why must I be so morbid, or write about such a morbid topic? I do so because I feel it is important enough to address. My eldest dog is now 16 years old, and as I observe her aging gracefully, I am reminded that, like you and me, death will one day claim her. My concern is that there is no legal location where I would be permitted to bury her when that day arrives. Yes, I could take her corpse to Whitehorse, and have her cremated, or I could do as some others do, and that is to take her into the woods somewhere, and bury her illegally. For some, myself included, neither of these options is viable.

When a human dies, they can be interred in a cemetery of their choosing, most choose a local final home. The same cannot be accomplished for our beloved pets. For many pet owners, their pets are deemed to be members of the family, some hold esteem equal to human children. When a human passes, they are interred into the ground (yes some are cremated) and their family and friends have a common location where they might visit with their loved ones. We do not have the same consideration when it comes to our beloved pets.

I, hereby, offer a proposal to the City of Dawson. I propose that the City of Dawson designate a parcel of land, quite possibly the land area north of the city, and north of the current Dog Park, as the "Dawson Pet Cemetery".

City employees would not be required to maintain the cemetery, nor to dig or fill the graves. These duties can be accomplished by the various "pet owners". They can also maintain the grounds-keeping. In doing this, and setting aside a plot of land for the burial of our beloved pets, we might have a pleasant area wherein we could visit our lost friends, and have peace of mind, knowing that they are safely interred. Individual pet owners may, if they so choose, make and install personalized grave markers.

All members of our families need to be ensured of a final resting place and just because some family members are not of the human type does not mean that they deserve less. I therefore call to all Dawsonites, and especially to those who have beloved pets, to approach our City Council and request a Pet Cemetery be designated within the city limits. I, for one, would like to have a place where I could legally inter my pets when the time comes, and have the opportunity to visit with them, time and time again. Let us all have a place to rest eternally.

But as always... this is just my opinion.
