Revisiting the Berger Inquiry 35 years later

Story & Photos By Dan Davidson

At a time when the Yukon Environmental and Socioeconomic Assessment Act is about to be amended in order to "contribute to the efficient and predictable environmental assessment process in Yukon through the introduction of legislated time limits and clarity around project assessments... (which) ... will promote investor confidence and foster economic opportunities and growth while promoting sound environmental stewardship" it is hard to recall a time, just 35 years ago, when a thorough and painstaking process like the Berger Inquiry could actually manage to delay a pipeline project.

Perhaps that's why it's a good time now to take a look back at Berger's inquiry, the event that, until recently, provided the model for how such socioeconomic and environmental reviews were to be done.

Drew Ann Wake was a CBC reporter in the Northwest Territories from 1975-1977, which meant that she covered the wanderings of the Berger throughout Inquiry NWT. Wake is the curator of Inquiry, the travelling exhibit of photographs, scrapbooks and documents, created at the University of British Columbia, that has been making its way around the NWT, parts of BC and recently, parts of the Yukon, over the last 18 months.

The exhibit visited Dawson City on May 22 and 23, and set up in the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Community Hall. The travelling exhibit doesn't include everything that has been assembled. Much more of the material, including documents, photos and videos, as well as lesson plans for using the material in classroom settings, can be found at http://wiki. ubc.ca/Documentation:Berger_Inquiry_Installation.

The exhibit includes current photographs of people who were involved with the original inquiry, people who were in their 20s when the event was taking place, as well as period photographs, scrapbooks and documents.

The scrapbooks contain interview transcripts with lawyers, officials and community people who testified or participated in the inquiry. These enable students who visit the exhibit to role play the different presentations made 35 years ago, using some of the words that were used at the time.

Wake says her overwhelming impression at the time of the event – and it hasn't changed over the years – is that the people on the land weren't totally opposed to pipeline projects; they simply didn't feel they were ready for them. As land claims wrapped up in various areas, and economic development corporations were created, attitudes changed, and by 1999 it was the aboriginal population that led the next attempt to promote the project.

The Dawson exhibit captured a lot of local interest, but Wake said there were also people who came from Old Crow, Fort McPherson and other Dempster communities.

"This exhibit has been to the University of Ottawa, to the University of Toronto – it's toured the country," Wake said. "We're booked for another year after this. The next major tour is to the Maritime Provinces."

There were about 20 people at the exhibit on the evening of the 22nd and quite a few more than that wandered in and out during the second day.

"We gave people the scrapbooks and asked them to look at comparisons between the situation 35 years ago and things that would be applicable now."

Now, of course, Thomas Berger is active another case, hired by several Yukon First Nations to represent them in the current struggle over the land management proposals related to the Peel Watershed Area.

History may not repeat itself exactly, but the resemblance is often uncanny.

Uffish Thoughts: How NOT to win friends and influence people

By Dan Davidson

A couple of weeks ago now I heard Tod Maffin speak about the perils of misusing digital media. What he said applied directly to Facebook and Twitter, but it can apply equally to regular emails and snail mail correspondence.

Sometime on May 13 our Member of Parliament, Ryan Leef, was misquoted in Hansard, the official written record of speeches in the House of Commons. Hansard does not do verbatim transcriptions of the speeches, but tends to tidy them up a bit, dropping out repetitions and uhms and ahhs. In this case a word was added - probably because the transcriber didn't quite have the sense of the sentence.

So Leef's comment that Larry Bagnell had lost 1500 votes from one election to the next read that he, Leef, had defeated Bagnell by 1500 something like 132 votes – a razor thin margin.

There is a Facebook group called "Monitoring Ryan Leef", made up of people who do not like his performance. They accessed the Hansard speech and were incensed by it. Jon Wilkie of Dawson wrote a letter to all the territorial papers questioning Leef's account for the error, which seemed at the time to be a bald faced lie.

After Wilkie's letter went out, and before he could have known otherwise, Leef stood the next day and corrected the record, making it clear what he had meant to say.

In the meantime both Whitehorse papers had verified Wilkie's letter by looking at Hansard and had run the letter in their pages, not knowing of the correction.

Somewhere in there, the Facebook page did note that the original Hansard entry contained a mistake. They may not like him, but they are

Some of this I know about because Mr. Leef struck up a very concerned and cordial email conversation with me, as the editor of the Klondike Sun, which has also received Wilkie's letter. It was as a result of this polite votes in 2011. Not so. It was correspondence that I went to Hansard and watched the video versions of the two speeches, confirming that he was correct on the issue.

> I have a two week timeline in which to make decisions, unlike the Star or the News, so it was clear to me that Sun would not be running the

he had been having with Mr. Leef on the same days that Leef was being polite to me.

I was already aware of Leef's initial demand for an apology and retraction, and had advised him to go easy on Wilkie. After all, the original letter was based on Hansard, and was accurate as to the facts known on the day he wrote it. His personal comments may have been a bit rough, but you have to be prepared for that kind of thing if you enter public life - or write a column like this one, for that matter.

He definitely ignored my advice and dropped any effort to deal with the issue on a rational footing.

His May 21 note to Wilkie, of which I will quote only the first bit, began this way: "Haha....great source...a left wing face book page. Way to go man....Oh, my god...too funny.." and it pretty much went downhill from there.

Besides the jeering, juvenile, bullying tone there are several problems here. the biggest one being that Wilkie's original source, regardless of how he got to it, was Hansard. Further, the tone of the entire rant can't possibly do anything to repair the situation. Further still, of course Mr. Wilkie will forward

Math skills and taking him to me the email exchanges that this to all his close associates and to the Facebook group.

> This is exactly the opposite of the tactics Tod Maffin gave to the delegates at the Association of Yukon Communities' meeting in May (see p. 9 for details). His advice was to be human in your interactions; seek a win/ win outcome; avoid a public squabble; repair the harm, if at all possible; and try to make friends somehow.

What Mr. Leef did instead led inevitably to a second open letter from Jon Wilkie, which he has given me permission to quote here as an example of such tactics do not work at all.

"Mr. Ryan Leef:

"On May 21 you sent me an email telling me because I am a member of a facebook group called 'Monitoring Ryan Leef' that I belong to a 'little pack of haters'.

"So do you hold this attitude towards all Yukoners who dare not support you, or just the ones who have the balls to publicly criticize you?

"And unlike the facebook page that I mistakenly missquoted you from, this 'little pack of haters' quote came directly from you.

"After reading your email I have come to the opinion that your career as a politician will be about as successful as your career as a UFC fighter.

"Short lived, easily defeated and very quickly forgotten."

Keep the Conversation Going

Dear Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the people of Dawson City for making Clara Hughes feel so welcome when she and the Clara's Big Ride team visited your community. Northwestel was honoured to be involved in hosting such a great Canadian in the North and the events your community organized were unique, memorable and special for Clara.

If you didn't see her while she was in town, six time Olympian Clara Hughes travelled to the Yukon to share her story and message about mental health. She asked us to join together to end the stigma that surrounds mental illness and to help raise awareness about mental health issues.

Now that Clara's ride has moved to other parts of Canada, we want to remind you that the mental health conversation continues. Northwestel knows how important it is to recognize mental health issues in our communities and to support those struggling with mental illness. That is why we have launched a new pillar of our community investment giving program dedicated to mental health organizations and programs.

As a northern company, we want our community investment contributions to make a difference in the lives of the people that live here. We joined the Clara's Big Ride team to make sure Clara Hughes' message reached as many people in the north as possible. We will continue sharing this message through our actions and through our community investment program.

Thank you again for sharing in Clara's message and for being part of this event. In particular, we thank Karolina Rietzler and Antoinette Dunmore for coordinating such great events. Though Clara didn't arrive in time to attend the public BBQ we heard it was still an enjoyable evening.

Keep talking about mental health and continue to follow Clara's journey by visiting the website: www.clarasbigride.bell.ca.

The Comedy was not in good taste

Dear Editor:

Re: The Break-up Comedy Festival Performance - May 17, 2014

It looked like a great evening out, surely a way to top off my visit to Dawson, having arrived with a senior group from Whitehorse. The comedy show generously sponsored by Lotteries Yukon, organized by and with proceeds to go to the Dawson City Museum and in a beautiful theatre operated by Parks Canada, must be general entertainment. Wrong! After sitting stunnd for 40 minutes of non-stop high volume smut, I staggered out to the lobby, to get my $30 back. The unsympathetic ticket person was dumbfounded that I as not deliriously pleased with the show. I felt like an innocent that was led to the guillotine.

I am one of the few people that attended the original Dawson City Festival in 1962. The show was called "Foxy", a quality performance starring the hilarious Bert Lahr (known as the Cowardly Lion in the original movie The Wizard of Oz). It was the launching show for the newly rebuilt Palace Grand, with original sets, costumes and music.

Dawson was then just emerging from a long decline, with unpainted, boarded up crooked buildings and masses of parts of old machinery everywhere. Parks Canada was just getting started on the long process of restoration. The Discovery Day parade that year featured the last few of the old Stampeders, proudly wearing their YOOP sashes.

Over the years the shows were usually music hall variety entertainment, with stars like Gillian Campbell, great comics and ragtime piano players. They were always fun, and something a family could attend. Then, for some reason the shows at the Palace Grand were discontinued (Ed. note - sheer economics), even though bus loads of tourists steadily arrive each summer, filling up the hotels, and would love to attend a variety show in this beautiful theatre. (Ed. note - when they still could have, for a few years after 9/11, they did not, and that caused the shut down). Why is this incredible asset to Dawson being wasted on second-rate comedians? Maybe Lotteries Yukon could sponsor a decent summer long attraction instead of this, something that would complement the Gold Rush Era?

It seems like Dawson is trying to be trendy and crude, and i ashamed to be old and authentic. Yukon born Pierre Berton, who did so much in the 50s to popularize the Klondike Gold Rush, with his great books and personality, was the main force that laid the foundation for Dawson's new glory. He deserves credit for this and I am sure, as one of Canada's great talents, would be outspoken about what the Dawson Museum is up to. The museum is housed in the former Government building where his dad worked for years as the Mining Recorder.

Say, anyone, how do I get my $30 back?

Pat Ellis, Whitehorse

In response, this correspondence from the Dawson City Museum: The Dawson City Museum has been in touch with Mrs. Ellis and has apologized for any offence that was taken and appreciates any and all feedback to ensure the future success of this event.

Yukon RCMP receive training in First Nations history and culture

WHITEHORSE—A two-day course in First Nations history and culture for RCMP members is one of the key steps taken by the Yukon government in fulfilling the territory's policing priorities.

"The goal of this training is to ensure RCMP members acquire a deep understanding of the unique history and culture of First Nations in Yukon," Minister of Justice Mike Nixon said. "The course is already building constructive and respectful relationships between our police service and First Nations leadership, communities and citizens."

Training in First Nations history and culture for RCMP members was one of the recommendations of the Sharing Common Ground report on policing. In 2013 Minister Nixon set the year's policing priorities to include implementation of this training. The course is delivered by the Northern Institute of Social Justice at Yukon College

"I truly believe it is through education and the sharing of our world views and realities that we will strengthen our relationships," Yukon College director of First Nations Initiatives Tosh Southwick said. "This training is integral to removing some common misconceptions so we can work together to improve our territory".

The course has provided an inter-professional learning opportunity for other Government of Yukon employees including Alcohol and Drug Services staff. This course is also mandatory basic training for correctional officers at Whitehorse Correctional Centre. Over the next two years all corrections staff will take the course as part of professional development.

"Collaboration was the key to developing this program," executive director of the Northern Institute of Social Justice Joanne Lewis said. "The idea evolved through discussions with the RCMP and Alcohol and Drug Services, who saw that training together would bring in more perspectives and strengthen their partnership. Development was led by the First Nations Initiatives department at the college working with First Nations and the cultural competencies provided through the Council of Yukon First Nations."

To date 49 RCMP members from across the territory have completed the course and the RCMP continues to take advantage of any new course offerings that come available. A training session for RCMP members is currently taking place during National Police Week, May 11-17.

"We have received excellent feedback on this course from the employees," said Chief Superintendent Peter Clark, Commanding Officer of the RCMP in Yukon. "The content has been of great interest, and the presentation and discussion have been engaging and useful. This program helps new and seasoned officers understand the diverse cultures of Yukon First Nations, and appreciate the strength that traditional knowledge and culture bring to our communities."

Dawson shakes off winter cobwebs for Health and Fitness Week

The Dawson community has rallied together for Health and Fitness Week in celebration of National Health and Fitness Day on Saturday June 7th. Organized by the Dawson City Recreation Department, activities throughout the city include; nutrition workshops, free swims, outdoor Zumba classes, yoga and fitness boot camps.

First of its kind in Dawson, Shelley Brown, Recreational Programmer for Dawson City believes that this week is a great way for Dawson to gather the community in celebration of the start of summer.

"It will hopefully get some new people to come out, join in, have fun and enjoy being fit, " Brown says about Fitness Week. "Get outside and just do something! Its a great week."

Although organized by the Recreation Department, various groups from in and around Dawson have donated their time to help make this week possible.

"We also asked Run Dawson if they would like to do a Fun Run on Saturday," explains Brown. "It's going to be an 1980's theme called 'Lets Get Physical!' There will also be a fund-raising walk for diabetes on Sunday to raise money for diabetes - all as part of the Fitness Week."

Not only are there activities to choose from during the day, there are also evening workshops throughout the week, which leaves no one 'in the dark' about the fitness celebration throughout the city.

"We brought up a sports therapist from Whitehorse her name is Shelley Gellatly," says Brown. "She did a running injury workshop, prevention concussion management and then a 'Movement Matters' workshop which is for people with chronic diseases. These wouldn't usually be available in Dawson, you'd have to go to Vancouver to take these courses."

Not only is Fitness and Health week an excuse to get out and enjoy the city, but it is a chance to get a taste of classes that are on offer all year round

"I think it really showcases what is available in Dawson for fitness classes," boasts Brown.

"We are so lucky to have so many people who are certified and qualified to teach these courses."

Participants enjoy a Zumba class by the water front as part of Dawson City's Fitness and Health week.

However, its not just the diverse events that have the community talking. Prizes are on offer for those who attend various activities including a one-year pass to the fitness centre and an assessment with a personal trainer.

"That's the incentive to get the people of Dawson to come out at lunch time!" explains Brown.

Although a cold start to the summer season has influenced turn out throughout the week, organizers hope that fun and exciting events will not keep away participants. And it's not just an exclusive week for those active souls in our community - from 'tiny tots' to mature seniors; Fitness and Health week caters for all ages and abilities.

"One parent has been bringing their children to every single lunch hour event!" explains Brown. "Her children are from teenagers to about five or six years old. So, it incorporates the whole family!"

Whether you are involved in Health and Fitness week, or are hiding indoors, adjusting to the daylight after a winter in the dark - the Recreational Department is ready to help fill your craving for the active.

Girl Guides from 20 to 80 celebrated a centennial in Dawson City

By Dan Davidson

It's been 100 years since Harriet Edna Osborn started the first Girl Guides group in the Yukon and since that happened in Dawson City in 1914, the Yukon Guides organization decided that there needed to be a Dawson event to celebrate the fact.

They had hoped to have 100 delegates to mark the event, but in the end there were 42, spanning several generations from women in their early 20s to the oldest, an 82 year old Lena Emma Tzya, who had travelled to Queen Elizabeth's coronation in 1953 when she was a Guide.

The group began arriving in Dawson on Friday, May 23, and after their registration were off for a Guiding Display and Scavenger Hunt at the Dawson City Museum.

Dancing Moose Gifts held a reception on Front Street early that evening.

Saturday was a big day, with a Walk on the 9th Avenue Trail, more events at the Museum, Parks Canada's Strange Things Done Tour and a production of the Greatest Klondiker at the Palace Grand Theatre.

There was a banquet that evening at the Odd Fellows Hall, with a dinner cooked by the Dawson Firefighters and a presentation by former Dawson Girls Guide and former Commissioner Geraldine Van Bibber.

Sunday morning was free, but a sizable number of the delegates came to church at St. Paul's before heading over to the Commissioner's Residence for a group photo and a tour before hitting the road for Whitehorse.

Sarah Usher, one of the organizers, said that Parks and the Museum bent over backwards to make the event a success for the group.

"We had a great weekend, touring Dawson, going on hikes. We've just had the best hospitality ever from this community and everybody appreciated it. It's been a fantastic weekend getting together with old friends and meeting new and celebrating 100 years of Guiding in the Yukon."

All of the women had been Guides in the Yukon. Some came back for this event from as far away as Arkansas, and Kansas.

"I was a Guide in Dawson City," said Van Bibber, " and I had to honour of being invited to be the guest speaker for the anniversary, and it was my pleasure to come and say a few words at the dinner."

The only complaints heard from any of the participants had to do with the condition of the Klondike Highway. Several people insisted that their reaction to that had to be mentioned in any article about this event.

Field set for 16th annual Yukon River Quest

By YRQ MEDIA

The race roster is set for the 16th annual Yukon River Quest, which will begin on Wednesday, June 25 in Whitehorse, Yukon Territory, Canada. This year's field will feature 66 teams with 153 paddlers from all over the world. It is the largest international field in the race's history.

Thirteen countries are represented: Austria, Australia, Belgium, Canada, France, French Polynesia, Germany, Great Britain, Guatemala, Japan, the Netherlands, Norway, Switzerland, and the United States.

The number of teams is one shy of last year's count at this time, though 62 actually started the race and 49 finished in 2013.

Except for two mandatory rest stops totaling 10 hours, paddlers race non-stop over approximately 715 kilometers (444 miles) to Dawson City. Held annually in the north during the last week of June (around the summer solstice), it is a true "Race to the Midnight Sun" where many of the world's best paddlers gather.

Following the race is a lot of fun, whether you are watching from alongside the river or sitting at home. All teams are required to have activated SPOT devices, which will greatly aid those following the race on their computers or mobile devices. Just follow the Results link at www.yukonriverquest.com and also watch for updates and photos on the race's Facebook page. You can even replay the race when it's all over.

The total possible 2014 race purse will be about $22,500 (CAD) based on a final registration of 66 teams as of May 15. There are overall cash prizes for each class – tandem canoe, tandem kayak, solos, and voyageur canoes – as well as prizes for the top three in each division. There also are cash prizes for the top all-Yukon canoe and kayak teams, and the top First Nations team. Several special awards are also donated by Yukon and Alaska sponsors. But most of the paddlers are just aiming to get to Dawson and be awarded a coveted YRQ Finisher Pin.

Who to Watch on the River

There are very few returning champions in this year's race, which means most classes are up for grabs. This is another year where any number of different craft could emerge as the overall winner. Here's a breakdown by class:

• Solo canoe (C1): 5 teams

- The favorites have to be two Ontario paddlers: Gaetan Plourde, the record holder in this class, and last year's C1 winner, Jeff Brainard. But Robert LaFontaine from Manitoba has been in a lot of races and could be a threat.

• Solo kayak (K1): 15 teams (12 men, 3 women)- On the men's side, watch our for The Black Sheep, Darran Williams, from the United Kingdom, who improved his time by several hours last year, and Slackjack, David Williams, of South Carolina, who has experience in several races in the Lower 48. And then there's race ironman Heinz Rodinger of Austria; even at 73, the former Olympian is always a threat. On the women's side, watch out for Team Buzz, Therese Powell, an Australian with lots of racing experience, Kelley Watson of Washington state, and Yukon Girl on Top Denise Norman.

• Tandem canoe (C2): 24 teams (11 men's teams, 3 women's, 10 mixed) - The largest class in the race is the most diverse and appears to be wide open. The women's race could be the most interesting with a pair of experienced Yukon teams, 50/50 (Noreen Schaefer and Shelley Gellatly) and No Turning Back (Pat McKenna and Elizabeth Bosely, going up against Yu-kon Du-et, a young team from Alberta. The mixed team of Av It from the United Kingdom is back for another go at the YRQ and has race experience in the UK. The Waterloo, Ontario men's team Zen Force 1 with Graham Roe and Christoph Kesting raced the tough Muskoka River 100 last year, and watch out for the father-son team Puha no Huahine (Phillipe and Nicholas Esteva) from French Polynesia, and the brothers Vogelsmeier on the Missouri team Show Me Drifters.

• Tandem kayak (K2): 14 teams (9 men's teams, 2 women's, 3 mixed) - The K2 class features a couple of strong teams from the UK, Two Numbnuts Shaun Thrower and Steve King, and

Buff Canyon with Tom Hughes and Peter Liggins. Also watch out for the Guatemalan team Generacion A. Alvaro and Alejandro Aguirre. In mixed kayak is the father-daughter Barefoot Paddlers team with former YRQ president Carl Rumscheidt and Mary Obstfeld. Sausalito Sisters a California-Yukon team of experienced racers Priscilla McKenney and Ali Morham looks tough in women's K2.

• Voyageur canoe (VC): 8 teams (2 women's, and 6 mixed teams). With no open class men's team in the hunt this year, the women will lead the way, whether in a mixed boat or an all-female canoe. In women's, Paddlers Abreast and Team Whoa will continue their friendly rivalry in the YRQ. On the mixed side, some race veterans are at the helm of a few teams. Yukoners Jim and Pam Boyd will lead Team Ts'alvit (Otter) with other experienced racers; HA55 will have iron woman Ingrid Wilcox of Whitehorse aboard; and The Skagnicent Six will be led by long-time race media guy Jeff Brady and a mostly Skagway, Alaska crew with guest paddler Nadia White, the great granddaughter of gold rush journalist Stroller White who is retracing the route of her great grandmother Josie. Two teams from the Netherlands and Team Sunrise from Japan round out the crew boats.

The Start & Race Route

The race organization invites spectators to gather in Rotary Peace Park and along the waterfront on the morning of Wednesday, June 25 to witness the spectacular start and cheer this outstanding international field. The racers line up for introductions at 11:30 a.m. with the historic SS Klondike looming in the background. Then the horn blows at 12 noon and the participants run a short distance to their boats. Watching all the colorful boats leaving Whitehorse is truly one of the most spectacular sights in the north. Then it's a long paddle on Lake Laberge, through the waning light of the midnight sun on the Thirtymile heritage section, and then on to Carmacks and the first rest stop of 7 hours on Thursday. After some sleep, they head down Five Finger Rapid, past historic Fort Selkirk, and on to the final rest stop at Kirkman Creek for 3 hours. That gives them energy for the last 100 miles to Dawson City. Teams will finish sometime between the afternoon of Friday, June 27 and Saturday, June 28 just before midnight, the official finish time for the race. An awards banquet will be held at Robert Service School on June 29.

Volunteers, More Sponsors Welcome

Like many great Yukon events, the River Quest could not happen without a tremendous volunteer effort from those in our river communities. Volunteers are needed to help in Whitehorse, Carmacks, and Dawson and a few remote checkpoints along the river. There are still spots available, so if you are interested in volunteering, please call the race office at 867-333-5628 or email yrqvolunteers@gmail.com. Check the Volunteer tab on the website to see where you could help.

Complete team bios and a race schedule are online www.vukonriverguest. com and will appear in a special Whitehorse Star race supplement on June 23.

The race is organized by the Yukon River Marathon Paddling Association, based in Whitehorse. Major logolevel sponsors on board for 2014 include the Whitehorse Star, Kanoe People, Air North, yukoninfo.com, Northland Beverages-Aquafina, of Whitehorse, Up North Adventures, Driving Force, Superior Roofing and Renovation, and Gold Trail Jewellers.

Many small businesses also support the race by sponsoring bibs worn by paddlers. A complete sponsor list appears on the race website along with a link to a sponsor package.

Wild winds stirred up another landfill fire

By Dan Davidson Photos by the Fire Dept.

May provided great example of why keeping the tower on the Fire Dome has been a great decision. It was the spotter on the tower who saw the fire that had started out at the Quigley Landfill that Sunday afternoon, and who called it in to the Dawson Fire Department at around 2:35.

Fire chief Jim Regimbal said the spotter was crucial to the operation for the smoke at the fire was so intense that firefighters on the ground were not able to see when embers from the main fire next to the burn barrel drifted over and ignited the domestic garbage pile a couple of hundred metres from where they were fighting the original fire.

"Once again we needed to use the loader on the site to shift some of the material out of the way," he said.

"We were there for five hours just because of the amount of debris that was burning. We had to knock it down and rip it all apart."

While much of the burning done at the dump takes place in the large metal burn barrel sometimes, in the right weather, loose material in the pit behind the barrel may be actually started one tire on burned.

In this case such a burn had taken place several days earlier, but it appears that not all the embers were out. May 25 happened to feature another large wind gust that lasted for several hours, and Regimbal believes it was that which stirred up whatever embers there may have been and started the fire.

"The wind picked things up and flung them around and fire."

Tires don't ignite that easily, he said, but once they do they're very hard to extinguish. This one was on its own.

The department had some extra hands for this fire. There was driving course for fire fighters taking place in Dawson that weekend. Two firefighters from Whitehorse teaching the emergency vehicle operators' course and another from Carmacks was taking it.

Klondike Valley detachment responded to the fire and Gammie Trucking arrived on with 10,000 gallon water truck, just in case.

There is a large tanker filled with water on the site, but the pump that would be used to get the water to the tanks on the trucks has gone missing Regimbal said.

"It worked out well," Regimbal said. "The guy at the lookout tower seeing both of them, both fire departments, extra fighters and Wildland Fire - everyone responded. It couldn't have gone any smoother, but it took time. You had to dig it apart, put water on it, dig it apart, put water on it again."

Using Social Media is about building and maintaining relationships

Social media are simply a fact of the new reality of politics, but there's no point in using them if you use them badly. Their very strength in building relationships can backfire on you if you are not careful when you use them.

This was the core of the message that Tod Maffin brought to the annual general meeting of the Association of Yukon Communities.

"Social media are changing the way that ... you do business," he told the group."

He noted that a lot of municipalities were establishing web forums as a way of getting citizen comments.

"You not only have to be listening," he said, "you have to be seen to be listening, and that is a difficult stretch for a lot of organizations."

One way to do this is to adopt a sort of blank slate approach to forums and allow people to enter whatever interests them instead of focussing on issues the forum owner thinks matter.

VanCity did this and it led to the VanCity BikeShare program.

The BC Liberal Party did this and it apparently turned a losing campaign into a winning one for Premier Christy Clark.

Calgary Mayor Naheed Nenshi is touted as being a master at using social media in his campaigns and in his running of the city. One thing he clearly does right, unlike some other politicians, is that he writes his own tweets and Facebook comments.

Agree with him or not, said Maffin, federal cabinet minster Tony Clement is another person who generally uses social media well and in an authentic, personal way.

Three key points that need to be present in order to build online relationships are authenticity, opinion seeking and humanity, Maffin said. If you do these correctly, you can establish a presence that people will want to seek out, engage citizens in public debate and generate ideas that will lead to actions.

Just having a website, Facebook page or Twitter presence does not mean that anyone is looking at it. That will not happen, Maffin said, unless what you are doing and posting causes your citizens to engage with you.

Press releases on your website just won't do that job, he said.

"Forgive me, but there is nothing less social, less human, less friendly and less digestible than a public sector news release."

So he advises to make your postings as social, human, and digestible as possible.

All of that said, there will be times when you will make mistakes. Maffin illustrated his point with a personal anecdote from that very morning. He had made a disparaging remark on Twitter about a newspaper front page in Vancouver, forgetting for the moment that the company that owns that paper is one of his firm's clients on another matter. As a result he'd been spending the early part of the day engaged in rebuilding a relationship.

Some years ago, while he was still with CBC, he wrote a blog post unrelated to his work there about how to fool an airline into upgrading your seat assignment. Much to his surprise (showing a certain degree of naiveté there) but he was younger then) he collected a fair number of negative comments about the post, his morality and whether this was proper conduct for a CBC employee.

The worst thing you can do in a situation like that, he said, is to engage in what some refer to as flame war. It will simply escalate the problem. Instead, you have to employ what he calls the SWARM technique.

- SPEAK like a human being. Acknowledge the problem.
- WIN/WIN Propose a realistic solution to the problem.
- AVOID a public battle. Take the discussion out of social media and go to personal message or email. Do not counterattack.

"If you send a nasty message back, trust me the person on the receiving end is going to do something with it," Maffin

- REPAIR the harm or correct any inaccuracies that may have crept into the discussion.
- MAKE friends somehow.
 Have the conversation continue on a more positive note.

"Responding well when something happens to you is critically important," he said in conclusion.

Policing is bigger than law enforcement

Chief Superintendent Peter Clark, Commanding Officer of the RCMP's M Division, held out hope that the troubles that have been facing the national organization have passed or are being dealt with through new legislation that will be replacing what he called the "old and outdated" operational rules of the force.

"You will be hearing about Bill C-42, the 'RCMP Accountability Act', "he said. "This is a wonderful piece of legislation. It is a powerful, positive change, not only for those of us trying to administer the RCMP, but also for the Canadian public."

Clark was speaking to the annual general meeting of the Association of Yukon Communities in early May in Dawson City.

"This legislation cements and codifies some of the oversight and improves structures that we in the RCMP have been asking for and we have heard the citizens asking for," he said.

"It's going to take the authority to deal with employee conduct out of national headquarters in Ottawa and put it back on my desk. So although I ... firmly believe that the RCMP members serving your communities ... have integrity, character ... strong values and ethics and are highly trained and dedicated men and women, $the fact is they're \, human \, beings,$ human beings make mistakes, and the organization needs the ability to correct their mistakes should that happen."

The new legislation will, he continued, allow such problems to be dealt with in a timely manner at the local level.

The RCMP continue to recruit actively he said, indicating that this includes all types of people, not just those who are bilingual, First Nations or visible minorities.

"We do seek those kinds of candidates because we want to have a mosaic in the service that represents Canadians, but we also have many, many opportunities, not only for those that wear firearms and red coats ... but many opportunities for employment, everything from technical computer work ... and also analysis, clerical functions and at our dispatch center."

Some priorities for the Division, which have come from the territorial Justice Minister as well as the communities, include concerns about domestic violence, sexual assault, child abuse, cyber crime and Internet luring. Specialized units have been deployed on short notice for these types of cases.

Many Yukon communities have two or three person detachments, but the division sends out extra staff for such events as the Haines Road Relay, the Dawson City Music Festival and Discovery Days and events in Watson Lake.

"We want to get the earliest possible notice we can from those of you who are planning special events," he said. "Alert your detachment commander so that we can collectively, as a division, be assured that you've got sufficient resources deployed to your community for those extraordinary busy times."

Clark shared with the group his personal mantra, his list of primary concerns that he has given to detachment commanders.

There should be regular contact between members of the force and local governments.

They should be proactive in dealing with the community and not sitting in the office waiting for the telephone to ring.

They should be active community members contributing to the life of the community and helping to build capacity in a number of areas, as well as helping to set priorities with the local governments.

There should be no surprises for local governments in the form of press releases in matters of public safety or local issues. They will have been contacted already.

The Yukon government has a share in the process of picking detachment commanders. Local governments should also.

Local priorities should be developed in tandem with local governments.

Clark is aware of the towns' issues with the turnover and replacement of members, an item that was on the AYC agenda.

He said his policy was to leave members and their families in place as long as possible. There were issues related to training, career advancement and balance of skills in a detachment that needed to be considered. He would support longer stays wherever possible.

"A community can always invite a member to stay," he said.

Yukon postings are highly sought after, he added.

"We have some demanding expectations of those who are moving to our communities. The screening and selection has been stepped up over the

Amy Soloway sparkles again in another season as Gertie

Story & Photos By Hannah Eden

Walking into Diamond Tooth Gerties is like a time warp back to the 1890s. Black Jack dealers and female waitresses dressed in typical Gold Rush attire, adorn the floor.

The venue hums with the sound of the roulette wheel and the quick 'flick' of cards hitting the soft, green, gambling tables.

As the clock turns to 8:30 p.m. however, the hum is not from the thrill of the game, but the anticipation of the show. Now in her sixth season of playing Gertie, Amy Soloway is backstage getting ready for another year of performing at one of the liveliest venues in town - Diamond Tooth Gerties.

Supported by a professional and hard working team, the vivacious Gertie is one of Dawson's most sought after attractions. However, it is the singer's love of her job and the city that keeps the character of Gertie alive.

"You walk down these streets and it really is like 1898 - so when the customers walk in, my responsibility is to make them feel a little transported," explains Soloway.

"In order for them to believe it, I have to believe it. So, I can't be disconnected."

Singing has always been an element in Soloway's life and as a child her love of music only fuelled her passion to follow her dreams of becoming a professional signer.

"I have always remembered singing. And I remember singing in my father's workshop and I didn't know that I was strengthening my instrument," says Soloway.

"I just had shows in my head. I'd get mad at friends if they'd call me; they knew it was my 'singing time'!"

But performing throughout the summer in diamondstudded period costumes is not the show that Soloway had in mind.

"I met a musician by the name of Konrad Pluta and I got a phone call about Dawson City. I didn't know much about it; you don't really know it until you're here. So he explained the gig to me - they were looking for a new Gertie after four years."

Taking a chance on this mysterious "Dawson City", Soloway moved into town and began developing her own version of the infamous Gertie - a role she has grown attached

"My take on Gertie is very much formed now. It's not necessarily the right take," admits Soloway. "Who knows what the right take is, because she's passed on many years ago. My take is, she's a little more forceful. I call her, lovingly, the 'mean Gertie'. I feel like she may have been like that."

However, the responsibility of playing a role so important to the community was ever present upon Soloway's arrival.

"I'm pleased that I didn't know how important Gertie was to Dawson City, to tourists. I remember driving down Fifth Avenue, looking at the Westmark buildings and seeing 'Gerties Wing' and thinking 'She's a thing here!""

Despite huge responsibility, Soloway's interaction with the audience, her personality and her voice is what keeps Diamond Tooth Gerties on top of the list for a entertainment-filled night.

Open seven nights a week throughout the summer season, the production team at Diamond Tooth Gerties perform a staggering three shows a night, each with a different twist. The team, made up of professional dancers, lighting and stage managers, back stage helpers and a phenomenal band are clearly dedicated to achieving their common goal - to entertain anyone that walks through the front door. "I do believe that's how we get good at things - is that we really like doing them," says Soloway. "We're very different animals, dancers and singers, yet we're very similar. They're fantastic

Amy Soloway has been playing the role of Gertie for six summers. Working five nights a week, Soloway performs three shows an evening with the help of dancers, musicians and a

Amy Soloway gets ready for her opening show as Gertie at Diamond Tooth Gerties Gambling Hall. This is Soloway's sixth season playing the role of Gertie.

It's the spell of the Yukon that keeps Soloway returning to the stage for vet another season of toe-tapping entertainment.

"The openness of Dawson if you're lonely, you can walk down any street and someone will say hello to you," says Soloway of her love of Dawson. "When I'm away from it, I miss the welcoming. People tend to be interested in you. It's a land of extremes. Its incredibly friendly."

Holland/America and Air North deliver a new way to get to the Klondike

Story & Photos By Dan Davidson

Holland/America travellers began arriving in Dawson by air towards the end of May. While the first few groups were ferried from Fairbanks to the Klondike in Air North's Hawker, the last week of the month saw them arriving in the 737 for the first time.

Holland/America flights are charter only, thus regulations for cross border travel. This does mean that you have to be part of a package tour to board the plane. If you just want to fly out of Dawson, you have to take the regular scheduled

To accommodate the new traffic, the Canada Border Services Agency had to create a new station at the Dawson Airport. Previously, Customs circumventing some of the checks have been handled out of a single room in the cramped airport building. The new structure was erected earlier in May.

> Passengers leave the plane and enter the new building immediately, after which they are loaded onto Holland/American buses and transported to the Westmark hotel in town.

This summer's switch to air rather than coach travel for Holland/America has been described as game changing by both Yukon Tourism officials and the Klondike Visitors Association. Speculation is that a successful season will lead to increased pressure to pave the runaway in Dawson.

Dawson's gain is Beaver Creek's loss, as the change to air traffic has resulted in the closure of the excellent facilities and long-running Highway Roadshow in that small community.

last few years, but we still get people who want to come here. It is because of places like this and communities like yours that welcome those members and their families.

"I've done that job. I still do that job. It's a tough job. But when you feel the support and you are acknowledged by your communities, then we have lineups of people that want to come.

"Kudos to you," he concluded, "for what you're doing to support policing in your community. Thank you for seeing policing as being bigger than law enforcement, but a community responsibility that we all have a role to play in, and for being so supportive of our membership over the last few years.

North Words celebrates its fifth year of scribbling

There are certain things that one can expect at the North Words Writers' Symposium in Skagway, now celebrating its fifth year as an event. One is that it will begin with a social gathering at the Red Onion Saloon, which will include a buffet meal and a tour of the third floor brothel area, replete with suggestive comments and double entendres.

It will also begin with a patented Buckwheat Donahue howl, since it was the windy town's tourism director who came up with this idea, talking it over with Haines's resident theoretician Dan Henry during the formers celebrated walk from Florida to Skagway back in 2005. The town of Skagway jumped on board to finance the idea, along with Jeff Brady, the publisher of the Skagway News; the White Pass and Yukon Route (which provides a train ride as part of the fun) and various other publishers and shops in southeast Alaska.

This is very much a southeast Alaska event. During the first one in 2010 I was the only Yukoner, only Canadian, in fact, to attend, and there haven't been that many of us since. This year History Hunter Michael

Gates, who has previously sat in on parts of a couple of the events, was tapped to join the faculty of panel members, a first for a Yukon writer.

The four days are structured around panel forums led by, but not restricted to, comments by the three or four writers leading that particular panel. Participants get to ask questions, make comments and provide insights of their own.

The overall theme for this year's event was "Exploring the Frontiers of Language." To focus discussions, Henry and Brady concocted a series of sometimes whimsical forum topics, including Breathing Life into Landscape: The Hot Pulse of Indifferent Earth; The Winning Memoir: Me, Thee, and Our Moment of Truth; My Dog Spot: Making the Ordinary Compelling; Edible Poetry:

Diet for Small Moment; Reality basted: Writing readable history that sticks the facts; Toot Your Horn: Being Heard in the Traffic Jam.

The forums were a mixture of full group sessions, held at the iconic Arctic Brotherhood Hall, or split sessions, with the other site being the octagonal sanctuary of Skagway's First Presbyterian Church.

Along with discussions, there were readings, and this is another feature that marks this event as a symposium. You would expect to hear readings from the assembled faculty, and we did so at National Park Service auditorium, kitty corner from the AB Hall. North Words also features reading by the participants. In past years I've read poetry and essays. This year it was material from this column and my "Klondike Korner" column. Others read short stories, extracts from novels-in-progress and poems. There was even a bit of singing.

Panelists this year included (aside from our own History Hunter), Dan Henry, John Straley (the Cecil Younger mysteries), Lael Morgan (Good Time Girls), Marcel Jolley (The Following Sea – a mystery), Katrina Pearson (owner - Taku Graphics), Deb Vanasse (currently working on a biography of Kate Carmack), Heather Lende (Haines essay and obituary writer), Nick Jans (journalist), Nora Marks Dauenhauer (poet and translator and Alaska's State Writer Laureate 2012-14) and Richard Dauenhauer (poet, essayist and author).

Harbour

Meet Harbor! He is a seven-month old, male, mixed breed dog.

He is adorable, and has the sweetest face you will ever see. This playful pup is good natured and friendly.

It is obvious he has not had much training yet, but he is eager to please and smart... he can sit, come to his name when called, and is great to walk off leash!

Harbor is a high energy dog, who likes to go for long walks and play, which makes him the perfect companion for your active lifestyle. Once he has burned off a bit of energy, he loves to cuddle up to you and receive attention. Harbor will make a great best friend, so do not miss the chance to meet him today!

readings were Nora and Richard Dauenhauer's collaborative work on translations from Tlingit to English and Jans' emotional reading of his just released memoir A Wolf Called Romeo.

I will note that my comments on Canadian politics and the Discovery Channel's Klondike mini-series (which mangled Skagway's history as well as Dawson's) were received with much chuckling and laughter.

Faculty members gave consultations with individuals during the days. There were early morning (pre-breakfast) sessions at the Skagway Library and late evening informal discussions at the Skagway Inn.

Since the beginning of the symposium, and inspired somewhat by Dawson's Berton House Writers' Retreat, Jeff Brady has been developing a writers and artists retreat on his family's property in Dyea, and part of the last four year's events has been a cookout at the compound, which has grown from several dilapidated log shacks and a dream to three fine new, or restored, cabins and a functioning bathhouse. Brady hasn't quite worked out the details for offering residencies at Alderworks Alaska, but it's coming soon.

The train excursion on Friday took the group about 6 miles up the line to the Denver Glacier Trail, where some held a discussion/writing session around a campfire, some hiked to the glacier view, and some hiked part of that trail while finding things to write about.

The symposium concluded with a banquet at Poppies/ Jewel Gardens, where keynote speaker Simon Winchester (The Professor and the Madman. A Crack in the Edge of the World and The Men Who United the States, among other books) gave a fascinating talk about his progress from a career as a lackluster geologist, to journalist and non-fiction author. Winchester served with distinction on several of the form panels and was a delightful addition to the symposium.

"You don't find ideas; ideas find you," says Dan Dowhal

When former Berton House writer-in-residence Dowhal gave a public reading of his work in progress towards the end of March, it had been just about two years since the last time he read at the Dawson Community Library.

In between than and now he had fallen in love with Dawson City, begun dating a wellknown lady musher and Parks Canada guide, bought a house and moved to Dawson and taken up a part time job at the library to add some structure to his writer's life.

Dowhal still consults for some of the clients from The Learning Edge IT/media company that he and his brothers ran on Toronto, but much of the time he's nursing that "inner Canadian" that he said he found here back in 2012 during his residency, working on his third novel and finding a great deal of enjoyment out of life in Dawson and his part time library job.

"Having moved up here," he told his audience of friends. "I've had a chance for a lot of firsts that the Yukon has afforded me. Among them are the first bear I saw in the wild; the first dog mush I ever took; the first organized men's hockey league I've ever played in; minus 45 weather – that was a first, coming from Ontario. Another first I had was that I'd never seen the Northern Lights before. I think when I was a kid I recall a distant glow on the horizon, but not really a proper

To begin his reading, Dowhal turned on his iPad and flipped to a blog post, called "Pole Dancer" that he wrote back in 2012, about that first sighting.

The novel he is working on has the working title "Bury Your Horses". The protagonist is pro hockey player, an enforcer type who is on the run from his past after having killed another player in a game. He thinks it was an accident, but he's a man with a temper, and he's not sure about that.

Dowhal reflected on the ageold question, "where do the ideas come from?" SF writer Harlan Ellison used to say he subscribed to an idea service in Poughkeepsie. Jack London sometimes bought basic plots and then fleshed them out.

"With this book there wasn't a single moment. It's more like, that along the line, the stars kind of aligned and ideas started to form a whole. There are a lot of different elements."

The story is set along the border between New Mexico and Mexico, where Dowhal has taken trips. Part of it is because he loves hockey and was previously a producer from some of the exhibits at the Hockey Hall of Fame. It was while working on that that he learned how popular hockey was in the southwestern USA. Researching the area soon brought up the background of the drug wars that dominate that part of Mexico. A combination of all these things mixed together gave him the basic idea for the novel.

In the first segment he read to the crowd the protagonist has an unfortunate encounter on the road with a tortoise while barreling along at close to 200 mph.

In the second the hapless hockey player ends up spending the night in the tool room at a rattlesnake farm (this came from a newspaper clipping he had saved some 15 years ago), with appropriate creepy feelings while he reflects on the twists and turns of his career that has brought him to this misbegotten place.

"When I came here." Dowhal said, "I had this big city bias, I

Canadä

But Dawson's not like any small town that I've encountered before and I think that is because most of the people who come to Dawson chose to come here and live in a small town. A lot of people are dying to get to Dawson while a lot of people in other small towns are dying to get out of them."

As a writer, Dowhal says he finds that he is like a filter for things going on around him. The idea of the Yukon's Colourful 5% has crept into the development of the characters in this book. Events and stories that he has encountered are having their influence as well.

"It's funny though because when you get in that writer's frame of mind, you don't find ideas, but ideas find you.

"For me, one of the best things that's happened is coming to work here in the library. Here in the library you're surrounded by books and surrounded by readers."

He said it's a bit like the reality physical behind hypermedia and online links. In the library, in conversations with others, one idea sparks another and "the next thing you know you're checking it out in this place that is a reference center."

He hopes to finish the first draft of the book this year.

FAMILY TIME

with Tim Taylor

The Library

P13

One of our favorite weekly routines is to go to the library. Whether it is the dead of winter or the warmest of days, the library is one of our favorite places in town. A few days ago, the kids and I were there, perusing books. Kai hiding and wandering up and down the stairs, while Zia was pulling out books. I am always apprehensive that my children are too loud, running where they are not supposed to, but after a few minutes of entering the library, they settle down allowing their imaginations to take centre stage.

I am so thrilled to see their love affair blossom with reading and curiosity about the world. Whenever I tell them that we are going to the library they are excited and eager to take out new books or DVD's. For a stay at home Dad, it's the greatest activity to expose my kids to the written word. I find it so fascinating to observe them, sitting down on the carpet and flipping through pages of several books. I am even able to take a few minutes to read my own books, allowing some breathing room, to be quiet and have a little down time. Here is a poem for our amazing Community

It was a prestigious list, and Mayor Peter Jenkins noted in his greeting to the Commissioner that, for a man in his apolitical position, he certainly knew how "to make a community viable, and he does assemble a very capable representation of individuals to accompany him. We're very pleased that he has brought with him today the director general of Indian and Northern Affairs, who will be funding the next projects...the next governor of the state of Alaska who will probably help us build the highway across the Top... and of course the general who is going to have the Canadian Armed Forces build us a bridge across the Yukon...

Dust off the running shoes - Klondike Road Relay is on the horizon

Story by Hannah Eden Student Intern

Preparation for the 2014 Klondike Road Relay is in full swing as various runners from around Dawson and Whitehorse don their running shoes for this year's big race. The Klondike Road Relay continues over 24 hours - starting on Friday 5th September in Skagway, Alaska and ending in Whitehorse, Yukon, after runners follow the race trail throughout the night

Beautiful scenery, team effort and a love of the sport are what keep competitors coming back each year and Kevin Patterson, events coordinator at Sports Yukon believes that this year will be better than ever.

"It's a community event," Patterson explains. "This is the 32nd Road Relay - people keep coming back year after year."

This 172 km relay is broken into 10 legs, making that team effort all the more special as teams of 10 each compete in their individual chosen leg.

Mindy Potoroka of Dawson City is competing in her third race this year after a phenomenal experience over the last two years of long distance running.

"Someone asked me if I wanted to be on one of the teams and I didn't even know anything about it!" explains Potoroka. "I've always been sporty. I've always kept fit so I thought;

why not try some running? And it gave me a good motivation because the race is in September. I kind of said 'Yes' without even thinking!"

Like Potoroka, most of the registration statistics are keen returning runners.

"We have a lot of the same racers that come back year after year and support us so we are very grateful for that." Says Patterson.

However, it's not just the support of the runners that is important to the Road Relay but also the selfless help of volunteers across Alaska and the Yukon. Volunteers positions include: RV drivers, support people and even family members who just want to cheer on their local teams.

"Last year we had over 200 volunteers. We had over 10 or more volunteers at each check point," says Patterson

Those volunteers are always being honored and through a fund raiser, this year volunteers will have the chance to win a trip for two to Vancouver, courtesy of Air North.

Although the perks of volunteering are an added bonus, the real reason for such strong involvement is the thrill of the race for volunteers and runners alike.

Artist Profile: Alex Cuba

Representing a modern homage to Cuban music through his rich, soulful music, Alex Cuba uses his roots in Artemesia (the city west of Havana where he grew up) as a starting-point for a sonic voyage that defies traditional categorizations. Alex Cuba pleasantly prises with innovative, passionate, and catchy tracks that evoke the rhythmic, hip-shaking spirit of his homeland with a pop hook that sets him apart. Cuba has been in Canada for 15 years now, and his transformation is evident in the emergence of English-language songs in his repertoire, along with the intercultural dialogue in the compositions and arrangements. Relocation to British Columbia has provided Alex opportunities to experiment and expand his musical concepts, and during his time in Canada this Spanish-language vanguard has earned Juno Awards for Best World Music Album in 2006 and 2007, a 2011 BMI Latin Award for his collaboration with Nelly Furtado, and Latin Grammy awards in 2010 and 2013.

With fans across Canada as well as all over the U.S., Japan, and the Netherlands, Alex Cuba is truly an International artist. Known for his intimate and expressive live performances, Alex Cuba owns the stage with a show that transcends language barriers to deliver emotion and experience in melody, rhythm, and vocal presence. Creative, diverse, and talented, Cuba's music offers a rich and distinctive interpretation of Latin music that continues to evolve. Cuba challenges expectations and carves a new path- a rebel with a cause.

Artist Profile: Les Sœurs Boulay

Les sœurs Boulay (The Boulay Sisters) are a Québécoise folk duo hailing from the Gaspé currently based out of Montréal, Quebec. Stéphanie and Mélanie Boulay were raised spending lots of time outdoors, and steeped in the creativity, whimsy, and music they carry forward today. Their harmonic and dreamy ballads combine ukelele and guitar to frame their ethereal voices. With an old-world charm and a youthful energy, les sœurs Boulay carry on a strong foundation of Québécois folk music, earning comparisons to the 1970s sister act Kate and Anna McGarrigle. Infectiously appealing pop hooks give the Boulay girls a modern edge, and a style all their own.

Formed in 2011 after a few years of wandering, performing as background singers or solo artists, when the two sisters, by chance and for fun, decided to become a duet. From that moment, everything happened very quickly: from producing their first EP (produced by Éric Goulet and released in February 2012) to winning the Francouvertes's first prize; singing at the Francopholies de Montréal and at the FME; stopping at small venues in the Gaspé, Charlevoix, Côte-Nord, and Îles-de-la-Madeleine. They performed at Loto-Québec's Entrées en scène, and they won the New Artist with the Most Potential award at the GAMIQ. The sisters released their full-length debut album, Le poids des confettis, on Grosse Boîte in early 2013. Their song "Mappemonde" was a shortlisted nominee for the 2013 SOCAN Songwriting Prize, and the album was a longlisted nominee for the 2013 Polaris Music Prize. With critical accolades and a growing fan-base amongst Francophones and Anglophones alike, the young Boulay sisters are making serious strides in Canadian music. Conjuring images of idyllic countryside landscapes and reminiscent of old yellowed love letters left unsent, les sœurs Boulay will be right at home in the timehonoured romance of Dawson City. Sway along with them at this year's DCMF.
