Toxic chemicals, not effluent, caused the latest regulatory test failures

If the December 8 backup and spill of effluent from the Wastewater Treatment Plant in Dawson City was not enough bad news from that troubled facility, Dawson's council package from two nights later had potentially worse news from the test results for the month of November.

"We had, for the first time in recorded history, an LC 50 toxicity bioassay failure at the wastewater plant in November," said Mayor Wayne Potoroka. "That happened twice this year."

"This is really disconcerting."
Despite the court's assertion some years ago that "dilution is not a solution" for dealing with Dawson's wastewater, it has remained true over the last several decades that the town had tended to have most of its regulatory test failures during the summer, when the population more than doubles, the number of operating hotel rooms more than doubles and thousands of RV travellers are also releasing sewage into the system.

That is also the time of year when the town's bleeders are shut off, meaning that the fluids are in their least diluted state. Dawson does not turn its bleeders on purposely to dilute its sewage, but does so because the experimental system that was gifted to the town by the territorial government in the late 1970s and early 1980s requires a constant flow of water in order to keep the water from freezing solid.

By October and until nearly the end of May, Dawsonites on the piped water system need to keep their bleeders running to prevent freeze-ups. That this action dilutes the town's effluent to the point where primary sewage treatment (screening) was sufficient to meet water license requirements much of the winter was an unplanned bonus.

Superintendent of Public Works Norm Carlson summed it up in his report.

"The November 12, 2014 bioassay toxicity test failed with all of the 10 fish used in the test dying. This has never happened before in Dawson during November, even in our old screening plant, when our sewage is so dilute."

In this test, 10 fish are placed in a tank of water drawn from the discharge end of Dawson's system. If they survive, the water passes the test.

The really startling thing about this failure, according to Carlson, is that it wasn't the water that killed the fish.

"The reason this plant was constructed," Carlson wrote, "was because we were charged under the Fisheries Act for failing the LC 50 toxicity bioassay, the same test failed on November 12, 2014. This previous failure resulted in a court order to build this plant.

"During the last 2 months," he reported, "Corix has been conducting chemical trials at the plant trying to lower the TSS (total suspended solids), which has been an issue since day 1 of operation. The chemicals used can be toxic to fish and aquatic habitats at 10 to 100 mg/ litre and apparently they were dosing at 18.5 mg/ litre during the time the test was taken.

"I was not aware that the chemicals that were used could be toxic at certain doses. Once this was discovered, we started investigating.

"We are fortunate as it was a City of Dawson initiative to take this toxicity test. I want to commend the Public Works crew for their diligence. Had the City not taken this test, it is possible that the potential toxicity of the chemical doses used would not have been discovered.

"This has been reported to Yukon Environment, Water Resources. I am hoping that this failure is taken seriously and that a full investigation takes place to determine what happened."

"It's been two years and three months with the operating plant," Potoroka said, "and we're failing the very tests that resulted in the court order in the first place.

"I've shared Norm's report with my counterparts in Whitehorse. It is very, very disconcerting to see the introduction of chemical trials in the facility. It's further disconcerting that these things have been classified in the past as 'tweaks', as in they're trying to tweak the operation to see if we can't make this thing work a little bit better.

"This is a failure of the LC 50 test. This is the gold standard. That's not a tweak; that is trying to figure out if you can do something to see if you can make it work at all. And to have it fail twice is really, really worrisome.

"I really appreciate Norm's candor when it comes to this report and I'm really looking forward to hearing from out friends in the Yukon government as to how this particular issue is going to be addressed."

Uffish Thoughts: Do we still want to be a Petro State?

Story by Dan Davidson

As the value of the loonie and the price of a barrel of oil sink ever lower, one has to wonder if our current government has not made a tremendous error in putting most of our fiscal eggs in that one basket.

During the span of the Harper regime we have witnessed the death by 1,000 cuts of much of our legislation designed to protect lakes and rivers, the demonizing of any organization (they're all radicals) that might protest or challenge the government's agenda, and the use of the Canada Revenue Agency to bully a host of nonprofits whose goals are not aligned with the government's Environmental legislation has been changed to streamline the processes, a Newspeak wording (read your George Orwell) that really means "getting to 'yes' faster". This has happened not only on the federal level, but is currently happening to our own Yukon Environmental and Socioeconomic Assessment Board.

The Yukon Party's legal embarrassment over the Peel Watershed came about as a result of two successive party hierarchies trying to use the same conning tactics that the Harper government is so fond of.

In the case of the federal Conservatives, the game is played by the American inspired use of omnibus budget bills. Since they are budget bills, that means all Conservatives must vote in favour of them, so caused in their ridings.

One BCConservative apparently did read his copy of one such bill a year or so ago and was recorded saying things contrary to the party line in a public meeting. Shortly after his remarks were made public he was whipped back into line and forced to publically recant his words.

Much of the jiggery-pokery that has been going on between the lines has been about throwing careful science and data gathering under the wheels of the omnibuses so that ideological positions taken by the government will not have to stand the test of evidence based criticism.

We are told that we need pipelines. We need them to ship our oil/tar sands product to the United States, where we will be selling it at a price lower than what it is currently costing us to get it out of the ground. Does the USA need it any way? Thanks to fracking, our neighbour to the south is well on its way to surpassing the Middle East as the world's largest oil producer.

While it might make sense to pump the stuff to BC or the Maritimes, if we were going to use it here, so that we didn't have to import what we need, that's not the plan. In either scenario, the plan if to export it out of the country.

Spill report urges new force main and additional emergency equipment

The safety cone on the ground beside the old sewage screening plant marks the area above where the valve malfunction led to the effluent spill.

The complete set of answers to what caused the sewage overflow in Dawson on December 8 may be some time in coming. As Dawson's Superintendent of Public Works, Norm Carlson, put it in a report to the Yukon Water Board,

"It appears that a valve on the force main failed outside of the old Sewage Screening Plant building, allowing the force main wastewater discharge flow to pressurize the existing piping entering the building, where it froze and damaged piping, causing the entire old Sewage Screening Plant to fill up with treated wastewater and flow out the doors. This will be investigated further, but unfortunately the buried force main outside the plant is over 5 metres deep and covered in buried high voltage wires. This excavation will take time."

The excavation will have to be done by hand when the ground is thawed enough to do it.

In the meantime, temporary remedial measures have been taken, as described in the report contained in the December 23. 2014 council package."

"We installed a bleeder line off of the closed force main valve below in the old Sewage Screening Plant and are bleeding this terminal end into the new WWTP," Carlson wrote. "This bleeder line will act as freeze protection. Also we to the old Sewage Screening Plant and will install heaters and lights inside to prevent any further freezing from occurring in the building and sump, which in turn could freeze the buried force main outside the building."

Carlson emphasized the temporary nature of the repairs to date, which will only be complete, in his opinion and that of Dawson CAO Jeff Renaud, when a new force main has been constructed.

"This new force main would run in a completely different route," he wrote. "Once this new force main is constructed, the old Sewage Screening Plant should be decommissioned. These permanent solutions are contingent on obtaining capital funding, which is not in place."

Carlson has spent a decade advocating the replacement of the force main, which contains the same thin pipe from the original territorial government storm drains on Turner and York project that installed Dawson's Streets. system. That pipe, installed and been replaced nearly everywhere else in town, at a cost of some $5 million spent by 1990s.

Dawson tried to persuade the territory to replace the force main as part of the construction project that produced the new wastewater treatment plant, but the senior levels of government did not see the need.

are installing temporary power that the project has been proposed and turned down several times as part of the various federal infrastructure funding plans. The town is currently engaged in dealing with deficiencies in its water supply system, as identified in a study, including three new wells that have been drilled and will come into service this summer.

Renaud says the latest submission will roll the force main into the water project as an important part of it. The need to shut down one of Dawson's current wells during the spill should, Renaud feels, be enough to make the case that the two parts of the system are equally worthy of funding, under the larger umbrella heading of Protection of our Potable Water

Dawson Chamber sees a changing of the guard

Story & photos by Dan Davidson

The late October annual general meeting of the Dawson City Chamber of Commerce was marked by a real changing of the guard, with a number of departures and replacements taking place.

Former chair Karla Mather had departed some months earlier, moving first to Whitehorse and then to Kelowna, and handing her duties on to board member Lue Maxwell. Maxwell was not present for the AGM, being on vacation. Mather attended by telephone.

Also absent from the meeting was stalwart office manager Diego Martin, who had resigned and moved on from Dawson earlier in the fall, leaving volunteers to keep things running at the office until interim manager Beth Muller was hired some weeks after the AGM.

That being the case, this was probably not the best occasion for representatives from the Yukon Chamber to present their joint membership proposal to the 20 or so people at the noon hour meeting. Not that the proposal is without merit, but long time chamber members such as Helen Bowie seemed to feel that the local group needed to work on its own reorganization before worrying about increased affiliation at the territorial level.

The bulk of Mather's oral report dealt with the organization of the group's annual Gold Show in May, which was another success. She highlighted the need to recruit next year's gold show committee early and urged that the group return to hiring an additional staffer to assist during the weeks prior to the show.

Maxwell noted that there are many smaller businesses, home and cabin businesses that are not involved with the chamber and hoped that the group may be able to reach out to them in the future, offering them some services and broadening the base of the chamber's reach.

Business awards this year featured specially designed and printed T-shirts prepared by Gehrig's 9th Avenue Printing.

The New Business of the year was the Alchemy Café, operated by Florian Boulais and Sophia.

Elections for the board were not a simple matter this year, but after some discussion and arm twisting, the following were selected: Dick Van Nostrand as Chair, Mark Mather as Vice-Chair, Lue Maxwell as Past-Chair and Secretary, Margaret Kormendy as Treasurer and Dawn Kisoun as Director.

The chamber meets monthly in the Downtown Hotel's conference room, at noon on the second Wednesday.

Music Festival moves to Fourth Weekend in July this year

Story by Dan Davidson

"I know our numbers were down and our money is not where we would like it to be, but I think we had a wonderful music fest this year," said outgoing chair John Watt at the Dawson City Music Festival's annual general meeting in November.

"We were what we wanted to be. We just need to get a few more people up here to enjoy it now. That is the goal we're going to move forward with, with a very new board.

That is one of our problems, I think, that we are a very new board, except for a couple of people, and one of them will be stepping down tonight. We're going to have to go forward with a new board, but it will be fun."

Both Watt and producer Jenna Roebuck pointed out that the festival in Atlin, which moved it dates to just a week before the DCMF, posed a challenge in terms of numbers, as well as a scheduling and transportation challenge for the hired tech

In response to that, this year's Dawson City Music Festival will be moving from its traditional third weekend in July to the fourth weekend, beginning on July 24 this coming summer.

Roebuck hopes this will enable the festival to share some performer bookings with Yellowknife's Folk on the Rocks, which has been on the same weekend as DCMF for years.

Watt was very pleased with Crocus Bluff Ball Park, and thanked the City of Dawson for having made that possible. Long time festival goers will recall that this was a location used for the same purpose back in the days before the ballpark was developed and all that was there was a flattened tailings pile. The camping worked out well and there were no problems on site.

It was particularly important this year as the Midnight closed in 2014 meant there were festivals and it seems to fit. 45 fewer rooms to be booked in the town.

DCMF organizers candidly admit that they don't miss some of the people who used to come to Dawson from other communities for festival weekend - not to attend the music events, but essentially to party, drink, roam the streets and indulge in a "what happens in Dawson stays in Dawson" sort of weekend.

"Big, fat party animals really the last minute addition of an weren't our target demographoverflow camping setup at the ic," Roebuck said, adding that the festival really appreciated the way the RCMP has stepped up its presence and helped, just by being visible, to keep things

Roebuck, who has been involved in the DCMF for a decade now, five years before taking over the producer's chair for the last five festivals, spoke of the "tremendous vibe" at this year's event. She wasn't quite happy with the jargon, but says this is a Sun Hotel's decision to remain phrase often used at other such during the festival than it was when she first arrived here and that's more in line with the decision the DCMF decided to take DCMF sponsors a number of several years back.

There were 25 artists/groups here in 2014, including everything from "crazy rock bands ... to jazz and blues bands."

Allowing beer to be consumed in the main stage tent was a big change for 2014. It produced no problems and seemed to be appreciated by the crowds. It did mean that festival capacity had Mic/Coffee House and is hosting to be limited to 1000, but that a weekly vocal workshop/choir was pretty much what happened in sales any way.

Organizationally, Roebuck will now be the executive director, and a second year round staff person is going to be hired to assist with administration. She is so in favour of this "additional brain in that dark little office" that she has opted to cut back her own hours slightly to this year's meeting. make it affordable, Watt said.

Community support for the Morin family has been quick and will be huge

Dawson City residents from all parts of the community are pulling together to lend support to the Morin family following the sudden diagnosis of their son, 10 year old Eric, with Stage 4B Hodgkins Lymphoma.

Immediately after the diagnosis Eric was admitted to the Children's' Hospital in Vancouver, where he has already begun the first sessions of a 42 day treatment regime. This process will take perhaps three or four months during which time the family intends to always have one parent and where possible, one of his five sisters, with him.

Travel from Dawson to Vancouver is expensive and the community has begun to organize a number of events to assist in helping to cover some of those costs. The January 3 Coffee House at the Odd Fellows Hall raised $910 in support of the family.

Dave Morin, after already spending several years in Dawson, was recently promoted to sergeant and appointed head of the Dawson City Detachment. This was a move that was greeted enthusiastically by all segments of the community. Morin has already served in several other rural postings, including Haines Junction and Faro/ Ross River.

The money was deposited in a CIBC account called the Morin Fund Eric, which is being administered Dick Van Nostrand on their behalf. The local bank account number to donate to this fund is #6354386. To deposit outside the Dawson Branch, it is transit #00480.

Other communities have become involved. Heather Granthan and Andrea Ross Kiehlbauch from Faro established an online fund raising site through www.youcaring.com (Arms Around the Morin Family) with a goal of raising $30,000. As of Tuesday night with only 19 hours left on the site's two day timeline, donations from the territory and across the country (the Morins are from the Maritimes) had totaled $37,125. Over 362 people from all over the Yukon, across the nation and as far away as Florida and Africa made donations to this site.

Meetings held in both Dawson and Haines Junction on Tuesday evening, January 6, to coordinate events within their communities, with the two groups texting back and forth during the meeting.

In Dawson, an every-other-day meal service was organized by Betty Davidson and Stephanie Cleland late last week, with the first meals being delivered on Sunday. Cleland set up internet tracking of the volunteers using a web forum called Mealtrain.com and all the available dates for January, February and March have already been filled. Cleland says people are still calling and advises that some of the folks who have signed up for more that one day might want to let a day or two go so that others who want to can assist.

annoyed with her when they found all three months filled up so quickly. People can keep leaving their information with her so that the service can be extended to April if it needs to be later on.

Mealtrain also allows the scheduling of such services as laundry, cleaning or childcare, by Cleland wants to consult with Natasha Morin before adding any extra items to the data base.

An organizing meeting was held at the Downtown Hotel on Tuesday evening with a dozen people present to share ideas and avoid overlapping events. Saskia Robbins had begun to organize a silent auction and music night at the Odd Fellows Hall. Angie Joseph-Rear brought word that the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in were planning a community dinner for the same night and now the two events have been combined into one, scheduled to occur at the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Community Hall on January 31, with Sue Herrmann of Dawson City Hardware, providing the fixings for a spaghetti dinner.

A committee has been struck to organize the various parts of this event.

Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Community Awards highlight the season

Story & photos by Dan Davidson

Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Christmas celebrations included the anplanning a volleyball marathon i nual presentation of community as a fund raiser and Eric's Grade : awards, presided over by Chief Roberta Joseph.

> The Volunteer of the Year nominees were Jen Titus, Shirley Pierson, Paul Isaac, Allison Kormendy and Simon Nagano. Honourable mention: Victor Henry.

The Volunteer of the Year: Karen Farr.

"The 2014 Volunteer of the Year is always volunteering - often without being asked," Joseph

"This person never says no and is always willing and able at a moment's notice to help an Elder, or at an event. We know her most for her help at the thrift Store, where she is a great help and a smiling face."

"Special Notice went to the Dawson Rangers, for their volunteer efforts at the First Hunt and our culture camps," Joseph

"The Rangers always make themselves available to work with our kids. They are an important part of our community and play a huge role in reaching our kids."

Simon Nagano collected the plaque on behalf of the Rangers.

"Choosing the Elder of the Year is always difficult," Joseph said, "because the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in are blessed with incredible Elders that are willing to share their time and teachings with our government and at our cultural programming."

Nominations included Barry Lindgren, Chlora Mason, Chuck Barber, Julia Morberg, Ronald Johnson, Doris Roberts, Edward Roberts, Jim Bob Titus and Marion Roberts.

Honourable mentions: Percy Henry and Victor Henry.

The award went to Peggy Kormendy, as "her life-long experience on the land serves us well on the Dawson Renewable Resources Council and she reminds us each day that humour is important and laughter is the best medicine."

"The youth are our future," Joseph said, "but many of the young people nominated for this year's Youth of the Year Awards are waiting around. They're contributing to their community now."

Nominees were Tyler Rear, R.J. Otterholm, Jadaka Nagano, Liberty Anderson, Allison Anderson, Sam Taylor, Charles Dickson-Blanchard and Marshall Ionas.

Honourable Mention was given to Jennifer Mierau, who already "sits on numerous TH committees and is well on her way to being a long-time active member in the TH community."

The award went to Kalilah Olson, a "leader in waiting ... who is involved in our culture camps and TH programs" and who shot her first caribou at this year's First Hunt.

The First Nation has many first rate employees; some are TH citizens, some are not. Nominated were Austen Gaven, Jackie Olson, Amanda Moffat, Erika Scheffen, Kevin McLeod, Chris Clarke, Ashley Doiron, Ricky Mawunganidze, Julie Milnes, Jen Laliberte and Jody Beaumont.

Honourable Mention went to Carmen Harris and Deena Titus.

The award was presented to Dalores Roberts, a "big hearted housing warrior."

TH Citizen of the Year is an award given to one whose "extra efforts display the very best of this First Nation."

Everyone was welcome at the TH Christmas Community Dinner

December 20 was the date for the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in's Community Dinner, held this year in he Robert Service School gymnasium as the numbers in attendance have outgrown the space available at the Tr'ondëk Hwech'in Community Hall.

The buffet style food service filled most of the hall and had plenty of offerings of main for even late arrivals and those who decided on seconds.

"It's great to see you all here this evening," said Chief Roberta Joseph. "Christmas is a wonderful time of year that bonds our town like no other town. Getting together and sharing the warmth of the season is really important at this time

"Most of all I'd like to thank each and everv one of you for coming out and sharing our evening with us. We are honoured to share this time with you. I hope you all have a Merry Christmas, a Happy New Year and a wonderful evening."

The evening concluded with presentation of TH community awards, a jigging demonstration by the youngsters and a visit from Santa Claus.

The many voices of Tara Beagan

What do you do if you're an actor and a playwright and you're faced with doing a public reading when, to tell the truth, you're just a wee bit shy when it comes to talking about yourself?

If you're Tara Beagan, and you've spent the fall and early winter enjoying Dawson City from the comfort of Berton House, you chose to perform a series of monologues and dialogues from your plays and hide yourself behind your characters and your work for about an hour.

Not that the shyness shows and, in talking about the source material for the plays, she did end up talking a bit about herself, so the trick seemed to have been to ease herself into it and speak from a position of security to the dozen people in the Dawson Community Library in early December.

On paper, Beagan describes herself as "a proud halfbreed of Ntlaka'pamux (Interior Salish) and Irish Canadian heritage" She is both an actor and a playwright and has been nominated for the Dora Award on six occasions, winning it once. She has written for the stage, as well as for film and radio and has also been nominated for her acting.

On this evening, she was Jim, the Spanish Civil War veteran, Molly, the abducted young woman; a First Nation homeless person talking to one-half of a gav couple; three voices in a 17th century horror story; and Roberta, who speaks up at an AA in-residence at the National Arts meeting. She's gives them both voices and a degree of physicality, with a hint of a set projected on the whiteboard behind her.

Her audience is entertained and intrigued, and Tara is loose enough after nearly an hour to talk a but as herself for nearly 20

She came to Berton House with a project in mind.

"And you know, I haven't touched it. I started looking into it and it led me down a whole different path." That one's going to take her to Lethbridge to read some material about some dodgy deaths in custody that took place there some time ago.

Other things have come to

"I've been braining on a play for a while but I haven't done much about it. Now I just did an outline, which I very rarely do. Then, five days ago it just started coming out. It's a lot about finding the characters for me and one I understand their voices, they can do their thing."

Initially she thought she want ed to be an actor, and she certainly has the skill for that, but one goal she worked to achieve she gravitated towards writing and she says it was great. plays because "an actor seems like a job, (but) when I moved to Toronto there were so many actors. In order to perform you need an outlet so the other way to do that is by writing."

Beagan completed nearly three years of service as Artistic Director at Native Earth Performing Arts in December 2013. She has been playwrightCentre, NEPA and Cahoots. Her plays, of which there are 20 so far, have been produced by Un-Spun Theatre, NEPA, Factory Story by Dan Davidson Theatre, Urban Curvz, Crate Productions, KICK Theatre. Caravan Farm, Wrecking Ball, Praxis Theatre, mysterious entity, Theatrefront, Theatre North West, Western Canada Theatre, Gateway, Saskatchewan Native Theatre, and Persephone.

Asked about her goals and ambitions, she had a number of things to say.

At some point she'd like to find out if she has a novel in her.

"It's sort of like you haven't really grown up as a writer until you write a novel. "

As for growing as a writer: "I'm partly there already. I've already made a policy where I no longer work with assholes -so it's pretty awesome."

A lot of the time now, she's working in her own company, Article 11, with her "company and life partner", Andy Moro, who was able to spend part of the residency with her.

In the Library this month

We're pleased to welcome new Berton House Writer-in-Residence, Nicole Dixon. She will be in Dawson until the end

Nicole published her first collection of stories, High-Water Mark, in 2012. The book was short-listed for an Atlantic Book Award, a ForeWord Magazine Book of the Year and a CBC Bookie Award. She is currently at work on a series of stories about modern-day Cape Breton Island, where she lives.

"Tis the season" (for many Dawsonites to head south for some respite from winter). To help with your escape to sunnier climes, we've put together a special travel display.

Whether your preference is the Caribbean, Central and South America, Polynesia, Southern Europe, or even Asia, we have first-rate travel guides, including a suitcase full from the Lonely Planet series, to help you plan and budget your vacation.

We've also put together a special Valentine's display for kids. Admittedly, the big event itself is still a month away, but, hey, surely love deserves more than just a single day.

The New Year has seen a number of acquisitions come our way. Among the stack of new novels we've received are a halfdozen from Sylvia Day alone.

Dozens of movie DVDs have also arrived, mixing TV series, great classics and modern blockbusters. Among new nonfiction books of note are a pair of offerings from TV celebs: Decisions by Jim Treliving of Dragon's Den fame, and The Tattoo Chronicles by Kat Von D, star of L.A. Ink.

For something less surreal, we have biographies by a pair of remarkable young women: I Am Malala, by Novel-prize-winner Malala Yousafzai, and The Girl With No Name, by Marina Chapman, the true story of a girl who lived with monkeys.

> For more information about any of these please contact the Library at 993-5571 or e-mail dclib@klondiker.com

Short comedy films brightened up the longest night

For the shortest evening (or longest night?) of 2014, the Klondike Institute of Art and Culture offered a short evening of short films.

The Dawson program consisted of the Comedy collection from The Shortest Day event put together by the National Film Board of Canada, SODEC and Telefilm Canada.

Across the country, this event took place between December 19 and 21, but in Dawson it was the latter date.

This was a free event for all ages, thought there weren't many younger faces among the 20 or so people who turned out for the 2 hours.

The Fulda Follies came early this year

While this year's Fulda Challenge was the 14th annual event, Holger Bergold recalls a 15th, which was the trial run the year before. With minor changes in route and list of events, the German tire company has been pleased to continue this media sports event ever since.

Usually though, it's been held in mid-winter and at much colder temperatures than the teams faced this year.

Sitting in one of the rented Equinox SUVs parked to block Princess Street on the evening of November 19, Bergold lights a cigar and explains that the change was to put the marketing videos that are created from the events more in line with when European customers normally think about putting on snow tires.

"This was the latest that we could do it for winter tire sales, and the earliest (in my opinion) for the weather."

He's thinking it might not have been the best choice in terms of drama and settings.

'We miss the ice. We miss the real cold temperatures. We don't get to go on the rivers and lakes. That makes all the difference."

The teams normally do something out on the Yukon River ice bridge in Dawson, but the ice had only stopped moving a day or two before they arrived, so that was out.

When they went to do the snowshoe race on the Moose Mountain ski hill, there really wasn't enough snow, so they ran the trails leading from the television and cell towers up to the Dome instead.

There had to be little through the five days of the stars and some gifted amateurs. Challenge.

They began in Whitehorse on November 15, with three events, including a biathlon on Grey Mountain and a Blind Drive at Sundog. The next day saw them in Carcross doing a Skidoo Parcours and later something called fuel-break-capability at the airport there.

On the way north to the Klondike on November 17 they stopped at the Braeburn Airstrip to play car-broom-ball. Overnighting in Dawson, they headed to the Arctic Circle and a marathon run.

They got back to Dawson the next day in time to get their snowshoe event completed and by 5 o'clock they had two blocks of 3rd Avenue cordoned off for their reverse obstacle course run, which got progressively more difficult to perform as the daylight disappeared during the two hour it took to do the ten

Of course, it's all a little less extreme this year than it usually is. Covering this spectacle I've had the plastic gears inside one of my cameras shatter at -45 while watching Fulda folks change a tire as one of the events.

"To be honest, "Bergold says with a chuckle, "it's much nicer to work in a decent temperature at -5. Especially the camera men are happy. At -40 with photographic equipment you really go to the limits of the equipment. They break and the LCD monitors don't show anymore – they simply give up."

That's not a problem for them this vear.

games this time; none from Canada or the territory. They're from Germany, Switzerland, and Austria. As usually there are adjustments to events all some media celebrities, sports the event.

There are ten media people covering the event for the European and sports press.

"Dawson City is always a draw," Bergold says. "People like to come here, to step back in history. It's very special.

"They also like the Dempster Highway. Yesterday it was so spectacular. It's one of those dream roads that draws as well in summer as in winter.

"A lot of German speaking Europeans just love being here, taking a motorhome, and going up on all these dream roads. They come over and there is no traffic on the roads, basically, certainly compared to what they are used to in Europe. In Germany alone we are 83 million people and if you go on a highway you're in a traffic jam. If you have a traffic jam here it's a grizzly or a moose.

"It's the wide open space that you have up here and that's what really draws tourists as well as companies like Fulda, because they not only show how their tires work and how the cars work, they put, as well, adventure around their, in the end, boring material."

Tires, he says, are not intrinsically exciting. Bringing them to the Yukon lets some of the local glamour rub off on

The territorial government was, as usual, pleased to see Fulda arrive.

"As always, we are very happy to welcome the Fulda Challenge to Yukon," Minister Mike Nixon said in an earlier press release.

The Boat Parade lighted the streets once more

Fitting in with the towns' decision to light up the streets this year, boat enthusiasts staged their annual boat parade on the evening of December 20, crusing road the town with their festively decorated craft. The parade might catch a few more spectators if it didn't always seemed to be timed to coincide with the Trondek Hwechin Christmas Community Dinner, which was scheduled for the same evening.

Even at a balmy -13 to -15 it's hard to get unblurred pictures of the moving parade in the pitch darkness on the next to shortest day of the year. Fortunately the floats (can we call decorated boats float?) are frequently parked somewhere where people can get a glimpse of them later and often remains parked and lit outside the owners' homes for part of the fortnight.

Government Tables $489 Million Capital and O & M Budget

YTG Press Release

WHITEHORSE-The Government of Yukon has tabled a $489 million 1995-96 Capital and Operation and Maintenance budget in the Legislature this afternoon. It is a balanced budget for the 1995-96 fiscal year. There are no tax increases.

Minister of Finance John Ostashek said, "We take particular pride in presenting our third balanced budget to this House. We intend to carry on with this tradition of responsible fiscal management.'

Of the sixteen government departments or agencies, nine of them have had no increase or a reduction in their operation and maintenance expenditures from the previous year and four of them have only a 1% increase.

"Overall, there has been virtually no increase in operation and maintenance expenditures. Clearly we have brought the operation and maintenance expenditures of government under control and the discretionary portion of our capital budget has increased to $65.6 million. It must be remembered that it its the capital budget which directly creates private sector jobs and which will put many Yukoners to work in the 1995-96 fiscal year," said Ostashek.

The budget address noted that the operating expenditures in the areas of Education, Justice and Health and Social Services have been relatively constant or have experienced a slight increase over the past three years, despite being a period of fiscal restraint. This year's operation and maintenance budget includes a 2% increase for Education and a 1% increase for Justice compared to last year. The budget for Health and Social Services had no percentage change.

Council Reacts to Territorial Budget

by Dan Davidson

Dawson's city council is quite unimpressed with the amount of money coming to the Klondike in the recent territorial budget.

Councillor Glen Everitt is supremely tired of reading in budget summaries that the town is getting money for its sewer and water system. The reason that is happening, he says, is that the system was installed wrong in the first place, which means that this is repair money and not really the capital investment that it is always touted to be. Once you've removed $1.9 million from the capital expenses in Dawson, Everitt says the Klondike is really getting very lit-

He also questioned the $300,000. allocated for design on the new Dawson School.

"In a meeting we had he (Government Leader Ostashek) told us they have a design they were going to start using from now on and that the community could only talk facade. Now he put in...$300,000. for the design of the ... school."

Other councillors complained about the sums that are being spent on the Top of the World Highway and the Dempster Highway. They were not averse to the money being spent there, but did not like seeing it lumped under the Dawson slice of the pie in the budget break

There were also concerns about the fact that a number of smaller communities had money allocated for the creation of sewage lagoons, while Dawson isn't receiving anything to move the town beyond primary sewage treatment.

"I believe," Everitt said, "that our MLA needs to be brought in.

We're being neglected on capital infrastructure and dollars coming into our community from YTG, and have been for awhile."

Councillor Denny Kobayasiii noted that Dawson hasn't been quick to put other projects forward. Both the sewer and water reconstruction and the new school were, he felt, issues that had been strongly represented here and

The Sun obtained funding in late 2009 from the City of Dawson, YTG's Heritage Branch and the Community Development Fund to conserve and archive early issues and make them available once again in the public domain. This is a great resource for students, writers and historians, and also for prospective tourists with an interest in Dawson City's life. #### A successful fundraiser!

The Humane Society Dawson would like to say "THANK YOU" to Tony and the Drunken Goat Taverna team.

With their help, we were able to raise over $3,500 at the 2nd Annual Fundraiser for the Dogs!

This was our most successful fundraiser to date, and we could not have done it without Tony and the Goat. Thank you!

I'm kidding John Firth when I tell him that I'm getting my exercise in December by lifting and reading his new book, but he agrees with me immediately. It does, in fact, weigh in at about 2 ½ pounds on my bathroom scale. It's what we call a coffee table book, and if you put legs under it, it could serve as an end table. It's not the sort of volume that you hold in front of you in the air while reading it. A tabletop, or at least a lap, is required. When it comes to sheer heft, it's not light reading.

I recall sitting down with John to discuss what little I know about Klondike sports in Riverwest Café on Front Street about a year and a half ago, wondering just how he would tackle this rather massive subject, and feeling a little odd to be on the other side of an interview. He had, of course, previously written a couple of interesting books about the Yukon Quest (Yukon Challenge) and the Yukon River Quest (River Time), as well as a book about Ramish Ferris' quest to help wipe out polio (Better than a Cure) and the story of the Jamaican Doglsed Team (One Mush) but those were books about individuals or about a single sport. I reasoned that this was a vastly different project, requiring a different approach.

It also required a lot of interviews and research. Firth says he has been collecting stories, interviews and material for some three decades. In his introduction he credits Kathy Jones-Gates, my former co-editor at the Klondike Sun, with doing a lot of research as well.

The book is structured like an encyclopedia, with 97 entries, beginning with "Aboriginal Sport" and running through the alphabet to" Yukon Sport and Recreation". Rather than being a general history of Yukon sports, it's like 97 little histories, some of which overlap a bit. Each one offers up some of the bald facts of the activity, but many also contain little anecdotes, snippets from interviews and extracts from newspaper articles that were written at the time.

Most of them come with pictures but some, like the one pager on arm wrestling, are just text. The very next entry, "Athletics", runs to seven pages and has seven photographs, one of which is in colour. The book doesn't shy away from using colour, but a good number of the photos would have been taken back when colour pictures were less common, or when news photographers only used black and white film in the days before digital cameras, so the majority of them are black and white shots.

This is not a book to be read from beginning to end. It's a browser, with items selected according to the reader's interests. I can easily confess to not having read it all, and to bouncing back and forth as things I have some connection with caught my eye. Certainly I read the items that had anything to do with Dawson, and that's a lot, because so many things start here.

Faro had an entry as well. Reading the memories of the late Tim Twardochleb not long after his passing was a bit of a wrench. I taught with Wes Sullivan in Faro, and one of my classrooms was not far away from where those weights were hitting the plywood in the hallway after school while I was marking papers during the early days of weightlifting in the Yukon.

Except for the mention of the first seasonal pool in Beaver Creek (they have a much better one now), all the entries mentioning our first Yukon home came from either before or after our three years there.

I should confess that I'm quoted three times in the book. The first one is about the revival of the Highland Games here in 2012 (not 2013, as I have since pointed out to John). The second one is how the popularity of slowpitch among high school students in the 1990s was one factor used to determine when the school year in Dawson City should begin and end. The third citation is in regards to the Percy DeWolfe Memorial Mail Race, which I have been writing about annually since 1986.

I enjoyed my time with this book and, coming from someone whose most regular approach to sport is just walking, that's a glowing recommendation.
