Ode to Northern Women

By Jonathan Ostrander

I'd often thought to pen a rhyme or even write some prose, about the "Women of the North".

So here my story goes.

My first thought was of Martha Black or even Diamond Lil, or maybe write of Klondike Kate as others surely will.

But let me tell you here and now why Women of the North are different from most other girls that dare to venture forth.

The Klondike rush spawned many girls that soon surpassed their prime, their stories lasted through the years, they've stood the test of time.

The North is but a natural forge that crafts the finest steel: but ere it can produce a blade, the alloy must be real.

And only those with iron wills successfully survive, the North will not allow the weak to flower and to thrive.

The Women of the North today still have that iron core that served their sisters very well so many years before.
So what then makes these woman strong?

It's not their race or creed; the North cares not from whence you came, it cares how true your seed.

The woman that do make the North their chosen place to dwell will have that iron core inside, the forge will temper well.

Whether Gwitchin, or cheechako, southerner, or Swede, the North will help prepare them for the strengths that they will need.

So is it any wonder that so many Northern girls have changed the course of history whilst wearing lace and curls?

We've honoured them in story books
and idolized in song;
the only things they may need now, are Northern Boys as strong.

Flu clinics opened across Yukon on October 26

WHITEHORSE (October 23, 2015) —Premier Darrell Pasloski announced today that public flu clinics will open across the territory on October 26. The premier was among the first in Yukon to receive this year's vaccine.

"I encourage everyone to get their flu shot," Pasloski said. "I have already been immunized, as I don't want to risk getting sick, especially with the house sitting. I know all Yukoners have busy lives, and if we can avoid getting the flu, we can look forward to a more enjoyable and productive fall and winter."

Every year, Yukoners are hospitalized because of influenza, with some ending up in intensive care. It is especially important that the very young, the elderly, people with chronic conditions, and those who work in health care get immunized, along with those who live or interact with them.

Yukon's Chief Medical Officer of Health, Dr. Brendan Hanley, emphasizes the value of getting immunized against the flu even when the vaccine is not a 100 per cent match for the current strains.

"For a few minutes of your time, for free, you can get a vaccine that will cut your chances of getting influenza at least in half, protect those people at risk of complications from getting influenza, and help limit the circulation of influenza in the community," said Hanley. "That's a pretty good deal."

For the second year in a row, licensed practical nurses (LPNs) have been immunizing their peers in health facilities, resulting in an increase in health professionals obtaining their flu shots. This year, for the first time, LPNs are also immunizing residents in continuing care facilities, freeing up the public health

Premier opens fall sitting with motion on Truth and Reconciliation Commission

WHITEHORSE (October 22, 2015) —Yukon Premier Darrell Pasloski opened the Yukon Legislative Assembly today by tabling a government motion calling for a joint meeting of First Nation leaders and Cabinet ministers to review Yukon's response to the report of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC).

When the TRC report was issued earlier this year, Premier Pasloski immediately directed Deputy Ministers to review the report and draft a plan for Yukon's response. The Premier asked that they consider work already being undertaken, as well as areas where more work is required.

"My priority is to share this information with Yukon First Nation leadership and Yukon government Cabinet ministers as soon as possible, so that we may work together, government to government, to determine next steps," said Pasloski. "Working respectfully with our First Nation partners is a priority for us. By sharing ideas and collaborating in good faith, we can explore potential solutions that could be taken by all parties to promote the wellbeing of Yukon First Nations and all Aboriginal Canadians."

Pasloski's motion also noted that the report from deputy ministers would be used as part of an engagement with Yukon communities as next steps are considered. The Premier's words were echoed by a private member's motion from MLA for Vuntut Gwitchin Darius Elias.

"As the Premier has stated. everyone has a responsibility to become familiar with the TRC report and to work toward reconciliation," said Elias. "I am confident that by working together we can find ways to support the healing process and build a strong healthy future for all Yukoners."

Yukon leads the country in some areas identified by the TRC report, including the negotiation of modernday treaties, development of curricula that address residential schools, and support for First Nations' involvement in the child welfare system.

OPINION

Uffish Thoughts: When it seems that individuals do matter

In her latest book, History's People: Personalities and the Past, historian Margaret MacMillan make the point that people matter, that certain individuals have a lot to do with shaping the times in which they live.

In the 19th century this used to be known as the Great Man Theory. Summarized briefly, this says that history can be largely explained by the impact of so-called "great men" on the events in which they are involved.

It will not surprise you to learn that this theory has largely fallen out of favour, replaced by the idea that such individuals are merely the product of the time and place in which they are reared and, if it were not them, it would be someone else.

Also, of course, this is the 21st century and limiting this discussion simply to men is no longer an acceptable proposition.

Still, it would appear that individuals do matter in the greater scheme of things, and nothing could really have made that more clear than the outcome of our recent federal election.

The fate of the New Democratic Party, reduced in numbers and sent back to third party status in the House of Commons, must, at least in part, be attributed to the fact that Thomas Mulcair was not Jack Layton.

The Orange Wave of the last election had a lot to do with Layton's own version of the "sunny ways" approach that Justin Trudeau used so well in this campaign. Layton's farewell letter, reproduced on the official NDP website closes with the words, "My friends, love is better than anger. Hope is better than fear. Optimism is better than despair. So let us be loving, hopeful and optimistic. And we'll change the world."

For many, Layton, who had seemed to be bouncing back from his bout with cancer, was a hopeful figure, waving that cane about as if he didn't actually need it, and beaming at everyone he met. Hence the Orange Wave.

Thomas Mulcair, stunningly effective when in prosecutorial mode in the House of Commons, nailing the government nearly every time he stood up in Question Period, just didn't inspire the same hope and optimism on the campaign trail. It seemed that he smiled when he thought he should, rather than actually being happy about anything.

When examining the recent defeat of the Conservative Party of Canada (CPC), it was clear even before the end of the protracted election campaign period that the leader himself, Stephen Harper, had become a liability to the party's hopes of forming even a minority government, let alone a majority.

Nothing could have made that any clearer than the Globe and Mail newspaper's half-hearted endorsement of the party on the week before the voting day: "The Tories Deserve Another Mandate – Stephen Harper Doesn't."

The National Post refused to allow it's chief editorial editor, Andrew Coyne, to publish his own opinion about who deserved to win the hearts of the electorate after the paper's management had decided for the CPC. Coyne, an old style conservative, later revealed that he planned to vote NDP in his riding, largely because of his distaste for Mr. Harper.

Coyne resigned as lead editor over the interference, but will continue to submit his column.

However, the Post did not prevent its original founder and former owner, the very conservative Conrad Black, from submitting a column headlined "Stephen Harper did many great things for this country, but he hung on to power a little too long."

Talk about damning with faint praise. Mind you, Black savaged all the other leaders, as he always dismembers nearly everyone who isn't Conrad Black, but the message was clear. In his mind the CPC could have won the race with a different front man.

Indeed, political obituaries for the Prime Minister began to appear about the same time as his campaign turned into a mobile game show format, with the PM totaling how much the Liberals under Justin Trudeau would cost taxpayers while a CPC follower dropped play money on a fancy table, accompanied by a "cha-ching!" sound effect.

Then the campaign, which criticized the Liberal's policy on legalizing marijuana, trotted out the Ford bothers, Doug and Rob, both of whom have associations with all sorts of drugs.

In his post election analysis, MacLean's columnist Paul Wells, who once wrote a mildly critical book about the PM, commented that the public had to wonder what was going on. Justin Trudeau was supposed to be the one we weren't supposed to take seriously, but "Justin Trudeau isn't the one campaigning with props, sound effects and 330 pounds of entropy in a track suit."

In the end, there seems to be nearly universal agreement that the ABC (Anybody But Conservative) slogan originally pitched by former Newfoundland Premier Danny Williams had a lot to do with what happened on October 19. Then too, there are no doubt thousands of STOP signs across the nation that were rebranded "STOP Harper" just as there were signs like that in both Dawson and Whitehorse.

When that sort of thing becomes popular graffiti, it is very clear that one person (and man in this case) can indeed make a difference.

This rebranded sign appeared at the corner of Harper and Front Streets a year or so before the election. There were several in Whitehorse as well to Mike McDougal of the Klondike Placer Miners Association for the donation of a laptop computer to assist with our in-house financial

Premier has barged ahead and mixed up a mess

During a phone conversation this week, prime minister-elect Justin Trudeau confirmed the Yukon Party's divisive S-6 clauses would be repealed and First Nation consultation would be respected (Star, Oct. 28).

This is good news for the Yukon.

The controversial four clauses championed by the premier have forced a legal showdown with local First Nation governments.

This has done significant damage to the Yukon economy, eroding certainty and making our resource-rich territory a poor place for companies to invest.

It has certainly worsened the territory's recession, which is now entering its third year.

Within a week of taking office, Trudeau has confirmed Ottawa's desire to work with First Nation governments to build the local economy.

This aligns with the discussions I've had with aboriginal leaders throughout the Yukon.

They consider responsible, community-based resource development essential for the economic health of First Nations and the territory.

S-6 is currently federal law, and it will take some time for the four sections to be repealed.

Until then, the territory lies in development limbo – the Yukon government has no legal obligation to consult with First Nations on certain projects, but it has been told that obligation will be restored.

This is the scenario I have been warning the premier about for two years.

His decision to barge ahead without First Nation support has brought us to this very messy and completely unnecessary point in time.

We have asked the Yukon Party to do the right thing and restore full consultation with any First Nation affected by projects that surface before the offending clauses in the outgoing Conservative government's law are fully repealed.

While Premier Darrell Pasloski has not endorsed that approach, I will continue to work with Ottawa and push to ensure proper consultation with First Nations occurs.

Working together is the best way to build the territory's resource sector.

In fact, it is the only way.

Dawson Council Almost Entirely Sworn in

Story & Photos By Dan Davidson

Four of Dawson's five council members were sworn in at a special meeting in chambers on October 20. Mayor Wayne Potoroka, and councillors Kyla MacArthur, Jay Farr and Bill Kendrick all stood before the town's new chief administrative officer, André Larabie and, one by one, affirmed:

"1. That I am a Canadian citizen:

"2. That I am not in any way disqualified from holding the office of (Mayor or Councillor)

"3. That I have not, nor will I have while holding office, any interest, directly or indirectly, in any contract or services connected with the said municipality, except such as I may lawfully have under the provisions of the Municipal Act;

"4. That I have not, by myself or any other person, knowingly employed any bribery, corruption or intimidation to gain my election;

"5. That I will not, without due authority in that behalf, disclose or make known any matter that comes to my knowledge by reason of my office; and

"6. That I will faithfully perform the duties of my office, and will not allow any private interest to influence my conduct in public matters."

Following which, each member swore to "be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth the Second, her heirs and successors according to law."

There were about 25 citizens in the gallery to witness the event (which is about 25 times more than usually attend council meetings) as well a video broadcast to Dawson City TV's channel 12.

Stephen Johnson, still undergoing physiotherapy for his injured back in Vancouver, could not be sworn in as he was not physically present, but he did attend the event by speakerphone. He will be sworn in on October 27, at the next council meeting.

"I expect you all to come back," Potoroka joked. "They are all just as exciting as it was tonight.

"Thank you all for coming tonight. I'd like to recognize my new council colleagues, who look a lot like my old council colleagues."

Farr is the only new face on the council.

"It is a distinct honor not only to be here tonight, but also to be the mayor of Dawson

Sworn in – Jay Farr, Bill Kendrick, Stephen Johnson (the phone) Wayne Potoroka and Kyla MacArthur.

City once again. It has been a very long several weeks of electioneering. People campaigned on past performance and future plans and the electorate came out en masse and delivered a solid message, 'We want change.'

"Of course, none of that applies to the municipal election CAO A that just occurred. I'm talking about the federal election. This municipal election did seem to get rolled over a little bit by the surge of federal election optimism that engulfed the nation. But while the country decided that a new direction was important, I'm happy to say that this was not the case in Dawson.

"Some times being acclaimed can be a mixed blessing, but we came really close to not having an election at all, and I want to thank Driss (Adrao) for ... letting his name stand for election. It really did help inspire a little bit of interest in the municipal election.

"What I've been hearing from people is that we're on the right track and that people are happy with the direction the town is going. That doesn't make us complacent; instead it really does inspire us to work harder for our community and put even more effort into making Dawson City the best place in the world to live."

Councillors MacArthur and Kendrick each spoke briefly, thanking the public for having faith in them, promising to be open to comments and available when people need them.

Johnson, though not yet sworn in, pledged the same over the phone.

The unusually brief council meeting concluded with snacks, munchies and general discussion at the back of the room.

Dawson City resident shoots grizzly bear

By Whitehorse Star on October 29, 2015 (no byline given) With additions by Dan Davidson

A Dawson City resident had to shoot a grizzly bear early Monday morning (October 26) after it broke into a shed twice and behaved aggressively.

As it happened, both conservation officers were out of town when the problem arose. One, Kirby Meister, in Whitehorse, and the other, Shawn Hughes, was up the Dempster Highway in the Fort McPherson area. The office normally has three staff, but has been short handed since Torrie Hunter retired some weeks ago.

That left receptionist Cara MacAdam to arrange for a volunteer deputy conservation office to set bear traps.

Hughes, speaking to the Klondike Sun, said that it later was clear that the bear pushed its way into the first trap, which it turned out was too small for it. That meant that it was able to get the bait, keep the door open and escape without being caught. A second larger trap was tried, but the bear, apparently having learned something from the first experience, shut the trap and walked away.

Eventually it would spring three traps, snatching the bait from all of them without triggering the mechanism which is not unusual for larger bears, Meister said.

"It's very unusual in Dawson City, right in the town limits, we almost never have bears," Meister, a said in an interview with the Whitehorse Star on October 28.

Hughes added that most of the brownish bears seen in the area are just brown coloured black bears.

The bear first arrived in Dawson last Friday (Oct. 23), Meister said, and residents recognizing the tracks in the snow phoned him immediately. Hughes recalled that there had been reports of a grizzly moving in this general direction earlier on.

Word of the bear in the vicinity of Pierre Berton Crescent first circulated widely on October 24 in a series of Facebook posts from Janice Rose, who reported the grizzly roaring at her family while they were out on a Saturday morning

Photos: Bear print by Janice Rose Other pix by Kirby Meister

"This is the most frightened I've been in my entire life," she posted.

Last Saturday night, the bear broke into a shed at a residence in the Dome subdivision, finding scraps left over from a butchered moose. The bear dragged some of it into the bush, feeding on it.

Hughes said that bear tracks could be seen roaming up and down several driveways. Rose reported that the animal seemed to be haunting their house.

Early Monday morning, the bear returned to same shedwhich had been fixed. Not finding any meat, the animal approached the house.

It wouldn't leave despite attempts by the resident to scare it, Meister said.

Ultimately, the resident, who Hughes said was house sitting for actual owner, had to shoot the bear.

"The resident did everything right," said Meister.

After examination, conservation officers determined the grizzly, a 400-pound male, was quite old and had almost no fat.

"At this time (of the year), we expect a lot of fat reserve," he explained.

The bear had also hurt itself. Officers discovered a shoulder injury that was infected.

"It was quite a deep gash right in the muscle," said Meister.

In Hughes' opinion the animal was in desperate straits and probably would not have survived the winter.

The bear was also staying in the bushes around homes, and acted aggressively anytime he was approached.

"All those things combined, it likely meant we would have destroyed the bear anyway."

awson City will be ready for 9-1-1

Dawson has a confusing history when it comes to street addresses and locations. After several attempts to establish just exactly where everyone lives, it seemed that most people had given it up for a lost cause. The most recent attempt was about 15 years ago, and though some progress was made, a great deal remained to be done.

This situation was judged to be unsatisfactory by Fire Chief Jim Regimbal when he arrived here a decade ago, and he's been nibbling away at it ever since.

"In an emergency, we can't help you if we can't find you," he reminded the crowd of 30 or so citizens at the October 22 launch of the new Municipal Civic Addressing System, a project which has now given set in 2012, the government finally addresses to 1053 properties in the Dawson area.

Regimbal says there are 787 addresses in the historic townsite itself and another 266 in the Klondike Valley, including the properties in the Dome subdivisions. Previously the valley folk had no civic addresses at all, while 244 in the town had no address showing and 65 had incorrect addresses.

This does mean that 39% of the properties in the historic townsite don't show the correct street address, even though the designations and the numbers have been available for many years. The percentage of unaddressed places rises to 53% if you include the valley locations.

Regimbal thinks that there just wasn't enough of an incentive in the past to get people to pick up the numbers (which the town actually had on hand to give out) and post them.

"Here is the good news. Now we have no choice."

He explained that he, in his capacity as fire chief and president of the Association of Yukon Fire Chiefs, has been pushing the territorial government to extend 9-1-1 Emergency service outside of Whitehorse since 2012. After promising an interim solution committed to a full extension of the service by July 2016.

For that service to work, every house needs to have a number.

"With 9-1-1 comes a centralized dispatch PSAP (Public Safety Answering Point) and with a centralized dispatch, proper addressing is required so that the can send the appropriate emergency services to the correct location. Civic addressing will save lives."

Perhaps it will save property as well. Dawson's Minto Park Concession Building fire took longer to be responded to because local residents didn't know who to call. A residential fire on Pierre Berton Drive on the Dome had the some problem.

Currently rural residents face having to call a variety of numbers, depending on the service required: 5555 (RCMP); 4444 (nursing station); 3333 (ambulance) or 2222 (fire). 9-1-1 consolidates all of this and makes it easier and faster.

On display for viewing at the fire hall were two large maps prepared by Across the River Consulting and Mammoth Mapping. One showed each and every property and number in the historic townsite and the other showed the valley and Dome road properties within the town boundaries.

There is work yet to be done, but Bear Creek, Rock Creek, Henderson's Corner, West Dawson and Sunnydale fall under territorial jurisdiction and the necessary work will have to be done at that level.

Mayor Wayne Potoroka and Councillors Farr, Kendrick and MacArthur were also in attendance at the event, along with CAO André Larabie.

"I want to extend my thanks to Fire Chief Jim," the Mayor said, "as well as the Fire Fighters Association and the crew at Across the River Consulting."

Mark Wickham's crew had already done a similar task for the Mount Lorne hamlet outside for Whitehorse, so they were very familiar with what needed to be done.

"It's never easy to tell people that their address is gong to change. I know we've tried to do this in the past in Dawson and there hasn't been good uptake. It's really nice to see that this is actually moving forward."

Four of the five members of council are among those who are getting new addresses as part of this process, but they are all willing.

Potoroka reminded everyone that 9-1-1 and good addressing not only protects the person and family who has it, but enables them to better be able to assist a neighbour who might be in need. He encouraged everyone to talk to their neighbours and emphasize the importance of this move for

"Likely if they are in distress, they're not going to be the ones who are calling it in. It'll be the neighbours. I do not want o be in the situation, personally, where I'm trying to explain to somebody in Whitehorse where my neighbour lives that I found in distress on their kitchen floor."

CAO Larabie read congratulations to the town from MLA Sandy Silver, who had to be in Whitehorse for the opening of the Legislature.

Larabie added that he appreciates the welcome he has had in the short time he's been in the community and congratulated Regimbal and Bylaw Officer Liz Grenon on a job well done.

Dawson Legion presents First Poppies to two councils

This year, prior to Remembrance Day, the Dawson Legion is inaugurating what it hopes will become an annual event for this time of the year: the presentation of First Poppies to the First Nation and municipal leaders in the community.

Ranger Sgt. John
"Mitch" Mitchell and Legion member Diane Baumgartner were on hand for presentations
in the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Lands Branch conference room in the afternoon and at a town council meeting in the evening on October 27.

Mitchel's speech follows: Thank you for the privilege of meeting with us today.

On behalf of the Dawson Royal Canadian Branch No. 1, I have the honor today of starting the 2015 Poppy campaign with the presentation of the First Poppy.

This year marks the Royal Canadian Legion's 90th year of service to Canada's veterans. We take comfort in the fact that the Legion's mission to perpetuate Remembrance on November 11th has never wavered.

Remembrance Day is the Day the Legion and a grateful nation remembers all of Canada's fallen in ALL Wars, peace support operations and training exercises at home and abroad. We do so because the fallen or injured of yester-year are just as relevant and significant as the losses of today and both have made us into the Canada we know and enjoy today.

Canada' military forces have served with meaningful distinction as far back as the War of 1812 although it is the Second World War that most of us today relate to when we think of Remembrance

During WWII more than 1,000,000 Canadians served in the military and some 42,000 were killed.

In the process Canada's service men and women garnered many other military awards and decorations as well as our gratitude.

As we are proudly aware, members of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, both men and women, did their part in the regular forces overseas in Europe and as Rangers in the traditional territory.

Since then Canada has engaged in numerous Peace support operations around the world and in the war on terror in Afghanistan.

In all, more than 110,000 Canadians have selflessly paid the ultimate sacrifice in the service of our country and ALL are just as worthy of our gratitude.

But Remembrance Day is more than just a debt to Canada's Fallen Heroes. It is also a duty to the living!

The number of our Fallen Heroes is relatively easy to count, the same may not be said about the number of Canadian Veterans that have come back broken either physically, mentally or both during these same conflicts.

The Legion takes considerable pride in the fact that our more than 1,400 branches across the country have traditionally reached out to help our communities and our service members.

Whether World War
Two, Korea, the many peace support operations or the recent war in Afghanistan, Canada's military survivors may take comfort in our efforts to Remember and not to fear that their sacrifices will have been in vain.

For these reasons, Remembrance, as symbolized by the Poppy, remains our eternal answer to that fear. Not only do more than 18 million Canadians show their support for our Veterans to see by wearing the Poppy but through the generosity of Canadians we are able to give back to Veterans in need who may not have the financial ability to maintain a minimum quality of life.

By wearing the Poppy, our Veterans will see that their efforts and sacrifices are not in vain. In other words, they will know that "We Will Remember Them!"

At the TH ceremony, poppies were presented to Chief Roberta Joseph and Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Councillor Selina Procee.

At town council poppies and Remembrance bracelets were given to CAO Andre Larabie, councillors Stephen Johnson and Kyla MacArthur, Mayor Wayne Potoroka, councillors Bill Kendrick and Jay Farr.

Taco Tuesdays Wrap at Bombay Peggy's

There's always a bit of shock in the autumn when the number of Dawson eateries shrinks by more than half in the space of a few weeks. This fall the seasonal transition back to fewer choices was eased by a bit of fresh thinking.

Since September, Aloha Tacos has been bringing their range of savory meats, hearty beans, crisp veggies and homemade pickles to Bombay Peggy's on Tuesday nights. It's a welcome addition to any pub chat, and if you walk into Peggy's while they're serving, you may find it hard to resist the delicious aromas.

Aloha Tacos is a familiar name to most Dawsonites. Their bright orange food truck sits cheerily across from Bonanza Market during the summer. In those warmer months, Allie Haydock, Blake Cameron and Georgia Hammond cook quick, mouthwatering lunches for passersby. The corner the taco-makers commandeers in Peggy's on Tuesday nights is, in fact, not much smaller than their mobile kitchen.

Two of this summer's favourites were the pulled pork taco and the elk sausage and morel mushrooms taco. One ingredient that gets used more for Taco Tuesdays is fresh avocado, because it won't turn brown during the brief twohour service period. Diners choose between a flour or corn taco, and the soft-shell snack is prepped with care right in front of you. A range of hot sauces, including their homemade Red Sauce, can take things up to any heat level you want.

Yukon

It's been a slow but steady growth for the Hammond and Haydock part of the partnership. The two first worked together on catering gigs for local events like Dawson City Music Festival and Dawson City International Short Film Festival. They learned about and liked each other's skills and tastes.

In 2012, Hammond won the contract for selling food out of the recreation centre. She hired Haydock to assist. By the middle of that season running the canteen, they realized their working styles blended perfectly.

"We're both really bossy," Haydock jokes. "You'd almost expect with our personalities that we'd butt heads all the time, but with this work we have mutual respect for each other. So if we're disagreeing on something, we're really just finding the common ground."

The dream of opening the taco stand grew as they found a food truck, began menu planning, and then added another collaborator: local bartender and Red Seal chef Blake Cameron. "We had been working with Blake on some catering before we started the tacos," Hammond explains, "so it was natural to bring him on. He's a really talented cook."

Winter 2013 would have been a good time to be part of the trio's social circles. Recipes had to be tested; menu combos had to be trialled. Many evenings were devoted to refining which flavours would be the best sellers, and many friends became taste-testers. "The taco recipes had pretty even input from all of us," Hammond recalls. "We might have stronger opinions about one specific thing, and certain types of cooking might fall more to one person than the other, but overall it balances out really well. And the odd time somebody's childhood recipe shows up or their mom's recipe, which is a really fun thing."

Catering is the main income source for the taco team's parent company, Aloha Catering and Events. One highlight of summer 2015 was the Yukon Culinary Festival in July. The team created Sourdough and Smoked Char Blinis and Quail Eggs on Beet Chips, and both dishes were snapped up.

Events with higher budgets offer the team chance to work with a wider variety of ingredients, especially local ones. It was their first time using quail eggs, for example. "We were able to use both quail eggs and duck eggs that were raised locally [by Megan Waterman] this summer,"

Haydock says. "We would love it if down the road we could offer only happy, healthy, locally grown meat, but we're not there yet. But I think there's a bit of a local food explosion here."

Hammond and Haydock will run the canteen again this winter, and will be creating a steady stream of ready-made frozen meals to take home. In the background, the business is changing shape: it will have a new name by December, and Cameron has moved on to other projects.

You'll still be able to fill up on tacos at the arena; the canteen reopens on November 9. In fact, you won't have to go tacofree at all this winter, as the last date for Taco Tuesday at Bombay Peggy's is November 10, from 5 to 7 p.m.

Time to Prepare for a divided Dawson

The George Black ferry will cease operations for the season a day early this year,

The Department of Highways announced the schedule in a posted notice.

"Highways and Public Works has formally given notice that the final sailing of the George Black ferry for 2015 will be on the end of the day, Wednesday, October 28, at 11 PM."

What's unusual for this decision is that it's not the arrival of ice that's causing it. Instead it's the lack of water.

"The water level is dropping and specific conditions are required for the safe extraction of the ferry," said the departmental notice from Deputy Minister Mike Johnson.

"Safety is our top priority. We need to ensure that our employees and equipment are able to remove the ferry safely and that we don't put members of the community at risk. The only way to ensure this is to remove the ferry while the weather permits, the water level is high enough and before the ice begins to accumulate on the river. "

Last year this time ice had indeed begun to flow past the town, though it did all vanish right after they pulled the George Black.

This year there has been no sign of ice so far and water levels are so low that the loaders were out extending the dirt access ramps along the shore so the ferry could dock properly to load and unload vehicles.

Last year the ferry came out on the 29th and it was November 17th before the ice floes in the river finally stopped moving.

Until there is ice in the river lots of people will make the crossing in their own boats, but that does become too dangerous after a while.

Ferry season comes to an end

Story & Photos By Dan Davidson

An unexpected heavy fall of snow slowed things down somewhat on Thursday (Oct. 29) but the Dept. of Highways crew had the George Black ferry moved over to its winter extraction ramp, out of the water and nestled in its winter cradle by about 2:30 that afternoon.

This year's operation was a bit more security conscious than normal, with Front Street actually closed off from York Street to the ferry landing at the north end of Front. Metal fencing was also in place along most of that stretch to keep people away from the action.

On this day last year the cable pulling the boat on its north side broke under the strain of the operation during the beginning of the second of the two pulls it takes to get the boat up to the cradle.

There have to be two pulls with the graders and loaders because there isn't enough street left between the ferry cradle and the ferry landing to do the job in one go. After the first pull gets the boat to the bottom of its ramp and out of the water, a pair of loaders hold it in place while the block and tackle apparatus are reset and the graders move back to their starting points before taking up the strain again.

There's a lot of pressure on the cables at that point, and one of them snapped like an elastic, bringing the block and tackle bouncing up the slope to the top of the dyke, much to everyone's surprise.

This year, therefore, the crew wasn't taking any chances with anyone possibly being in the way in case something like that happened again.

The George Black settled into its winter berth on Thursday.

The re-launch in May is considerably less problematic, being basically a question carefully pushing the boat down the ramp into the river. It's a popular event that usually draws a fair sized audience.

Dempster Highway Snowmobile Use Advisory

You can now use your snowmobile along the Dempster Highway corridor from kilometre 195.2 to the Yukon-NWT border.

If weather conditions change, snowmobile closures may come into effect to protect the fragile ground cover from damage.

Use common sense to determine if you should travel across a landscape that might not be properly protected by snow cover. Hunters cannot harass or chase animals while on snowmobiles.

New Yukon tourism commercials unveiled

WHITEHORSE (October 22, 2015) —The Department of Tourism and Culture unveiled five new television commercials in Whitehorse on Wednesday night at a screening for the cast, crew and stakeholders involved in their development. Tourism industry members will see the commercials Thursday at the Tourism Industry Association of Yukon's fall round-up event; Yukoners will also have an opportunity to view them during community tours this November.

"This initiative is as much an investment in Yukon people as it is in tourism marketing," Minister of Tourism and Culture Elaine Taylor said. "In addition to significantly raising awareness of Yukon as a travel destination, Yukon Now is continuing to foster and leverage our incredibly skilled and creative local talent."

The Yukon Now 2015/16 winter marketing campaign launched on October 12 with the re-broadcast of Yukon's first winter television commercial. Over the coming year, it and the five new commercials will air on national television, targeting potential visitors from across Canada.

More than 160 Yukoners played a role in the development of the commercials. About 75 per cent of the project's budget was spent in-territory on wages, equipment rental, accommodation and other expenses.

"These are very exciting times for Yukon tourism," Yukon Chamber of Commerce chair Rich Thompson said. "The commercials have potential for tremendous impact and benefit to Yukon businesses and to the Yukon economy as a whole."

The commercials showcase the territory's heritage and culture, wilderness, wildlife, and iconic drives, and highlight Yukon as both a winter and summer destination.

"The Tourism Industry
Association of Yukon is thrilled about these new summer and winter television commercials," past chair Neil Hartling said.
"The investment in marketing Yukon right across the country, and specifically to Canada's gateway cities, will go a long way in raising awareness and attracting even more visitors to the territory."

Yukon's first winter

Glenda Bolt, Charlene Alexander, Peter Turner, Marilyn Jensen, Neil Hartling, Doris McLean, Minister Taylor, Jill Pangman, Blake Rogers and Brian Stethem at the screening on Wednesday.

commercial was originally broadcast in February 2015. It aired more than 500 times on 24 different network and specialty channels, to a potential audience of more than 33 million adults.

The Yukon Now marketing program is funded jointly by the Government of Yukon and the Canadian Northern Economic Development Agency (CanNor). Each government invested an additional $1.8 million over two years to Yukon's tourism marketing budget, representing the single largest tourism marketing initiative in Yukon's history.

Library Movies: Sneakers

Sneakers

Action/Comedy, with Robert Redford, Dan Aykroyd, Ben Kingsley, River Phoenix, Sidney Potier 2 hours 8 minutes

Another gem! I'd avoided watching this one as the name "Sneakers" sounded like something sports related, which is not exactly in my field of interest. However, it turns out that "sneakers" are computer hackers that break into company computer systems. So, a spy movie! Which is great, as I used to be a spy, so I find spy movies fun.

It has an all star cast, but, the talent doesn't make this a superlative movie, although it is very well done indeed. It is basically an action movie centring around a group of misfit characters who all have a "past." They work for a company who are hired to break into computer systems to test the security levels of that company. This is, of course, legal, however, they go about things on the edge of legality. But, not enough to put them ever the edge. Quite.

They are approached by some agents from the National Security Agency (NSA). The movie takes a realistic view of this agency, noting that they are not the CIA, nor the FBI, and are not legally allowed to spy on citizens of the United States. This is, in fact, the law, and the movie does show the roles of each agency very accurately. However, the movie loses it a bit when the NSA ask the heroes to do something illegal, as they cannot do it themselves. It makes for a good movie, but, would not happen in real life. Of course, the incentive is to remove the main hero's criminal past for which he has been running, and hiding for years. The NSA agents know who the main hero really is, and promise to make his past "go away." Something the real NSA can't do, but, this is a movie after all!

And, it turns out that the NSA "agents" are actually not NSA at all, and are, in fact, bad guys needing the expertise of the hero group. They have to get a box that can decode almost any code that the USA uses. The movie used some input from real mathematicians to create this scenario, which provides additional realism to the story. Of course the box gets moved to a very high security building, and our heroes have to pool their respective areas of expertise to break in to the building. At this point, the movie is a true spy story, with high tech gadgets, and a certain amount of realism. E.g., there is no laser beam security in a room that can be easily defeated as in most every other movie, but, a heat, and motion sensor much the like of which actually exists. So, heat the room to body temperature, and move VERY slowly!

The movie does have many comedic moments. One of the crew is blind, and uses his other senses to really good effect. However, he is the only one outside in the van, so, he must drive to the building to rescue the others. How does a blind man drive? Very badly it seems! But, the others guide him, and he gets there in the end - more of less.

Of course, the real NSA eventually becomes involved, and the bad guys don't get away. But, the story is well done, and the action, suspense, and humour are nicely balanced.

IMDB gives this 7.1, and I give it 4 stars out of 5.

FRIDAY THE 13th .... CHANGE YOUR LUCK!

The 4th Annual Wine Tasting event will be held in the KIAC ballroom on Friday, November 13th beginning at 7:00 pm (doors open @ 6:30). This year's theme is good luck!

As an annual fundraiser, this event has become popular with locals and licensees. Gail Calder, Vice President of KIAC said "There are many people in town who have an appreciation for fine wines, however, it is not easy to choose one by looking at a label when you can't taste the product. " The wines chosen for this year's event have a score of 87 to 95 and will sell in the price range from $13 to $22 at KIAC's fundraiser follows the Whitehorse Rotary Club's annual wine festival that was held in October. This year 22 Canadian Distributors sampled over 200 wines from Canada and around the world. The event enables Yukon Liquor Corporation representatives to get feedback from the attendees on what new wines they would like to see stocked in the Yukon. Dawson locals also get the chance to try some of these wines before they hit the shelves.

KIAC's event in 2015 will feature 6 red wines and 5 white wines. There will be a Moscato wine, featured as a dessert wine. KIAC's event is a lovely social evening with the Bob Hilliard Jazz Trio providing background music. If you or your partner is not a wine connoisseur we will again offer a food and entertainment only ticket for the evening. ($25 for members or $30 for nonmembers.) A cash bar will be available with alternate drink offerings.

Food pairings for the wines will be prepared by some of Dawson's finest chefs. Tickets are now on sale at KIAC and Maximilian's at $60 for five wine and food pairings. ($ 55 for members) Additional tastings & pairings are priced at $ 5 each.

The evening is rounded out with a door prize and a friendly game of wine & luck trivia so everyone has the chance to take home a prize.

Don't be disappointed; get your tickets early as the evening is sure to be a sell-out. Please note, if you wish to take advantage of the member's discounted tickets, they must be purchased at KIAC.

Child care subsidies will increase

WHITEHORSE (October 26, 2015) —The Government of Yukon is enhancing the Child Care Subsidy Program to help families with the cost of licensed child care, Health and Social Services Minister Mike Nixon announced today.

"The Yukon government continues to make significant investments to support Yukon families," Nixon said. "Increased subsidies will help support quality child care and relieve some of the financial burden on parents and guardians."

The Yukon Child Care Subsidy is awarded based on family income, family size and geography. The changes mean that eligible families will receive more support and more families will receive full or partial subsidies.

"The updated regulations and increased subsidies will help meet the needs of families who are especially affected by the rising cost of living." Yukon Child Care Board chair

Kathy Hanifan said. "These changes will increase support, in particular to low-income families."

Adjustments were last made to the subsidy program in 2007. The revised subsidy takes effect on December 1.

LOWER TAXES for yukoners

The Yukon government has created new, lower tax rates for all existing tax brackets, effective January 1, 2015. These improvements put more money into Yukoners' pockets, and help stimulate the local economy.

Under the new tax rates, a couple earning $50,000 each annually will save over $400 as a family on their tax bill.

A new tax bracket has been created for incomes over $500,000, ensuring all incomes in Yukon are taxed fairly.

Recent amendments to the Income Tax Act will provide more than $5 million in savings in 2015 for Yukon taxpayers, helping make Yukon the best place to live, work, play and raise a family.

History Hunter: A Dawson girl in the war zone

By Michael Gates

Originally in The Yukon News Friday September 25, 2015

Zowitza, or Zoe, Nicholas was raised in Dawson City but went to Seattle the year before the First World War began. She trained to be a nurse and served in a hospital camp in France, where she was known as the "Angel of Ward 7."

It is well known that Martha Black took an active role in the Yukon's overseas wartime activities. She helped attend to the wounded, sick and homesick Yukon boys. She spoke widely about the Yukon and was even made a fellow of the Royal Geographical Society.

What is less well known is that there were other Yukon women who entered the war - as nurses. One was Mrs. L.G. Bennet, whose husband, a Dawson City lawyer, had enlisted as an officer November 28, 1916. A few months later, in the spring of 1917, she was selling their Seventh Avenue Dawson home, hoping to close the deal by the break-up of the Yukon River. She then planned to go overseas as a nurse.

Marie Louise Thompson, daughter of Dr. W.E. Thompson of Dawson City, signed on as an officer in the nursing corps in London, England on July 17, 1916. She had already been in charge of an American Ambulance hospital ward in France since 1916. She had served in France and Flanders since the outbreak of the war, and in October 1918, was preparing to ship out to Siberia.

The third was Zowitza Nicholas, daughter of John and Jennie Nicholas, of Dawson. John, a barber, came to the Klondike during the gold rush, and operated a barber business at 108 Queen Street until his death December 23, 1917. These facts I was able to uncover from material I found while doing research on World War I. Zowitza, or Zoe, attended school in Dawson and moved to Seattle in 1913 to study nursing when her parents divorced. In 1918, America was fully engaged in the war; Zoe volunteered to go to France as part of a nursing unit out of Seattle.

At the beginning of August, she had just left Fort Riley army base in North Central Kansas and wrote her mother from New York City. She described the roll-call, constant drilling (just like the soldiers), plus getting her passport and other paperwork in order. Three nights a week, they studied French. She was fitted for her uniform: a dark blue Norfolk suit, blue sailor hat, brown gloves and shoes, which, she was told, had to be worn continually. She looked very elegant in the photo taken of her wearing this uniform.

In her spare time, her passion for travel is revealed. "New York," she wrote, "is just one of the realizations of my dreams...There are many of our girls who could have come and didn't. They don't know what they are missing." She saw everything she could and still it was not enough: riding the subway, visiting Grant's Tomb, visiting the New Jersey coast, Edgar Allen Poe's cottage and Central Park. Next on her list were the Brooklyn Bridge and Coney Island. It was, she said, an education she couldn't get in school.

She soaked up the atmosphere and her enthusiasm is evident in every word: "New York is a city of such life, and activity, of business; of Italians, Jews, French; of aggressiveness, of boldness, of good will, good cheer; with all and every form of human emotions; peoples, dress, and anything you can ever conceive; all can be found here in this little spot. It's wonderful."

Zoe was shipped overseas and stationed at Base 50 Red Cross Hospital at Mesves, France. It was one of more than 100 established by the United States Army to tend the wounded. After the Armistice, she was granted leave and travelled widely through occupied Germany, Belgium and France, a trip she described in another lengthy letter to her mother. She travelled from Nantes to Paris, then Metz, Koblenz, Cologne and Brussels, visiting cathedrals, art galleries and museums. She travelled to Nice with another nurse, where they spent several days enjoying the warm Mediterranean climate, even taking an excursion to Italy by car. She visited ancient Roman ruins and even careened along the hairpin turns of a coastal highway in an automobile, clinging to the road high up on the side of the cliffs overlooking the Mediterranean.

But it is the description of her journey from Brussels to Paris by train that stirred my emotions. The 10-hour journey took her through the battlefields of France and Belgium. There, she saw the barren wasteland that had been created by war. She saw countless bridges destroyed by the conflict; she witnessed overturned locomotives in the ditches beside the railroad tracks. She saw the wire entanglements, mowed down trees, and the shell holes, big and small. She saw trenches, trenches and more trenches. Small white wooden crosses populated the landscape, some single, others clustered together. One had a helmet hanging from it.

"It is hard to believe that the mass of stone was once a town or a house or that people ever lived there and worked," she wrote: "there are rods of twisted iron... and then there is the inevitable pile of stone. Stone and red bricks; perhaps a piece of wall standing, perhaps not, and more piles of stone. Town after town is like this no people there - not a sign of

"At one place I saw a man with a long stick or rake - I don't know which - digging and pushing and scraping aside a mass of stone. I wonder if he was intending to build himself a home, or if he was only looking for riches that were once his treasures."

In her letters, she didn't describe the horrors she saw in her hospital. Sixty years later though, she remembered her work. Many soldiers died of influenza in the closing weeks of the war. "The room was so full of coffins that we had to step over them," she recalled. "I could never get over the terrible things that happened to those poor boys." She was remembered as the "Angel of Ward 7" by William Roper, one of the soldiers she nursed back to health the winter of 1918. Sixty five years later, he tracked her down in suburban Los Angeles, to say thank you. She was married twice and continued to nurse until 1979. She was 88 years old at the time, and she lived to be 90. Working in the wards during the war couldn't have been a pleasant experience, but her travel while overseas could well have been one of the highlights of her life.
