Dawson Summer Camp a Success

Submitted by Marie-Eve Owen

On the evening of August 6th, Dawson’s families gathered in the TH hall to watch some budding stars shake their thing and create some magic. The summer camp at the Little Blue Early Learning Centre (aka Little Blue Daycare) put on their end of the season show. Not only was it expertly put together by the enthusiastic staff, it was a blast of musical and creative energy from our young performers.

Parents were thrilled with the quality of staff this season and the extraordinary programming at summer camp. It is important to remember that summer camp was almost cancelled this year and may be cancelled next year if issues aren’t resolved. The lack of safe, affordable and available venues for youth programming as well as a lack of communication and coordination amongst territorial and municipal officials caused such chaos this season that the Little Blue Early Care Centre considered no longer offering this seasonal programming. It would be devastating to have to see this exceptional youth opportunity disappear next summer if such issues are not resolved.

The perfect solution would be to build a new facility for youth and intergenerational programming in Dawson City. The Little Blue Early Care Centre has a plan to build such a facility, but is being held back by the city’s zoning of the lot in question. This is an important roadblock in the responsible development of public assets for community use and deserves to be brought to the community’s attention.

If youth programming affects you or someone you know, please contact your municipal officials to press them for a commitment to partially re zone block 20 beside the Anglican church to an institutional zone so the new facility can start being built. The plans are drawn and the financials are in the works, all the Little Blue Learning Centre needs is a commitment from the city to start the ball rolling.

The amazing talents and energies of our youth need to be showcased and encouraged in a safe, designated location so that events such as the season finale of summer camp can be assured year after year. A special thanks to Catherine Lamarche and her stellar staff, Olivia, Hannah and Maggie for their dedication and continuous motivation, and to our sponsors, the General Store, TH, and Pan Of Gold.

Dawson Welcomes Culinary Adventurers

Story & Photos
By Dan Davidson

The two days of the Dawson portion of the Yukon Culinary Arts Festival 2015 wrapped up with a dinner at the Commissioner's Residence on Saturday Night (August 1).

Dawson chefs Georgia Hammond and Blake Cameron (Aloha Food and Events) were joined by visiting chefs from Whitehorse, Skagway, Australia, and Vancouver in preparing dishes made from local ingredients for the approximately 50 diners and the $75 a sitting dinner.

Hammond and Cameron served up Smoked Char on Sourdough blinis, with local radish and dill for openers, and followed that up with Quail Egg, Char Roe and pickled local beet canapé.

Desmond served a Tom Kha soup.

Pateman offered Caribou Tenderloin (field flavours) and Irving prepared Alaska Halibut with morels, smoked mash and wild horseradish.

Genest, otherwise known as the Boreal Gourmet, finished off the meal with a Chocolate Hazelnut Torte, with raspberry sauce & creme fraiche.

By Saturday night, the visitors had spent part of Friday at the Dawson City Golf Course (formerly the Top of the World), golfing, visiting the Klondike River Distillery, sampling the Sour Toe Cocktail at the Downtown Hotel and attending a cocktail reception at the Palace Grand Theatre.

Dinner that night was at various establishments around the town, with an optional nightcap at the Westminster.

Saturday had provided an opportunity to get a look at the local produce available at the roadside Farmer's Market during the late morning and early afternoon, before making their way to the dinner.

Parks Canada made the Residence available for the evening and volunteers recruited by the Klondike Institute of Art and Culture acted as wait staff.

The event, which is sponsored by Air North and the Tourism Association of the Yukon, is in its third year, as was noted by TIAY executive director Blake Rogers during his welcome to the group.

In addition to the two lead sponsors, the festival is partnered by Yukon Brewing, the Yukon Government, Parks Canada, Northern Vision Development, Rivendell Farm, Yukon College, The Boreal Gourmet, Holland America Line, Driving Force, the Klondike Visitors Association, KIAC, Antoinette's, the Fireweed Community Market, the Dawson City Golf Club, What's Up Yukon, The Claim, Aloha Food and Events, Alpine Bakery, Klondike Rib and Salmon, Klondike River Distillery, Bean North, G-P Distributing, In., Growing Forward 2 and the Yukon Chamber of Commerce.

Guests were given a tour of the Residence in between course of the meal.

OPINION

Editorial Matters: Let's Keep the Sun Shining

By Dan Davidson

The Klondike Sun wasn't started up to make anyone a lot of money but, until this year, it's managed to skate close to the line between being in the red and being in the black. It's managed to generate enough income from a combination of advertising, newsstand sales and subscriptions to have an annual cash flow sufficient to cover the cost of producing the paper.

Yes, there are costs. There's rent, utilities, part-time staff, bookkeeping, postage, replacement of aging equipment and software, supplies. None of that comes for free. What is donated is the material that goes into the paper, the time it takes to distribute the papers to the stores and the time needed to get the subscriptions to the Post Office.

Somehow, over the last year or so, the balance between being successful and not being successful at this balancing act has shifted and we found ourselves running deeper in debt.

During the last fortnight this became critical and, taking advice from a number of people who have done this before, I inaugurated a GoFundMe crowd funding campaign to ease some – but not all – of the immediate financial burden. In this, I had the support of our small governing board.

The response was most gratifying. Ninety-one people contributed $5575 in one week to the online campaign. Another eleven people chose to avoid the online campaign and contributed $700 in cheques and in cash.

I want to share some of the comments that came with the online donations. Most will be anonymous, though some are obvious.

- Can't imagine the Klondike without it.

- Moving to Dawson in October and I signed up for a subscription a couple weeks ago so that I can get to know the community before I get there. I look forward to receiving my first and subsequent copies. Thank you for providing a valuable service to a great community.

- Thank you so much for featuring our animal shelter's articles over the past few years. We appreciate your support and wish you all the best!

- Over the years the Klondike Sun has reported on the comings and goings at the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre. We appreciate how you share our story and our success with your readership. Please accept our donation with our gratitude!

- Much too valuable and eclectic a publication to let disappear. What would the Yukon be without it?

- Thanks to all the Klondike Sun volunteers over the years. (Note: that's a large number of people that would fill a whole newspaper page in small print.)

- Good luck - I don't want to live in a world where I can't read my Klondike Sun!

- The JJJ, Klondike Spirit and Tombstone Outfitters love The Klondike Sun! It would be a sad day to not have our local newspaper. Keep it going.

- MEADIA solutions supports the Klondike Sun.

- Let's keep it going.

- Sending the good luck vibes. :)

- Hope you can keep going.

Has always been great to receive copies of the Klondike Sun from our Dawson Family, over many years.

- All the best with this, Dan.

- Good luck with this Dan. I'll also subscribe for a year to help you out.

- Didn't know that I could get a PDF subscription. Love you guys. You are the best and a valuable necessity to Dawson.

- Love the idea of PDF subscriptions! Good luck Dan and the rest of the board. :)

Now, I wish I could say that all is well and that there are no hurdles yet to jump, but that would be lying, and I try very hard not to mislead people.

The immediate hurdle is staffing. As we began to prepare the issue you are reading, it was clear that our part-time office manager, Alyssa, who has a daytime commitment to the Yukon Gold television crew, was not going to be able to give us much time in the immediate future. We have been trying unsuccessfully to fill her position since June, and while we expect a solution to have emerged by the time you are reading this, it's a bit too late to have it coincide with the next problem.

I'm going on vacation. I have several octogenarian relatives and a number of new grand-nephews and nieces that I need to visit. While most of my absences from town in recent years have involved a couple of weeks and often only one production cycle, this one is a month long and involves two. Dumping production responsibilities on a new hire three or four days before I leave town is not a recipe for success.

We had already considered taking a short break – one month, or two issues – to reorganize, get our office up to date with invoicing and pay off as many bills as we can. The online fund raising will pay off the back bill owed to the printer, but the bill for July's three issues, which we received just this week, will eat up much of the remaining funds from that effort.

Concerned citizens and some people who used to be citizens have suggested a number of steps we might take to achieve financial stability. I will be having discussions with some of them this week and we will be working on these possibilities over the next month.

If any of you reading this want to participate in the discussion, or have suggestions to make, or want to become more deeply involved, this has never been a closed shop. Our names are all listed below this article and we'd be happy to hear from you. I will be available via the Sun's email or at uffish20@hotmail.com.

I'll be back the week of September 14th and we will be preparing to put out a new issue for September 23.

Comment: The Senate: love it or hate it, why we need it

By Hon. Ione J. Christensen, C.M.
Former Senator of the Yukon

The Senate was first created by our Founding Fathers in 1867 (after fierce debate) to protect the public from the "Tyranny of an Elected House."

Under both monarchies and elected governments, Europe had seen democratic rights abused.

A second house in a parliamentary system would thwart that. Such a house would have veto powers, which have seldom been used, and a duty to shine a light on any new legislation and study such legislation from a non-partisan point of view.

The Senate was to review bills for content and how they complied with other laws and the Constitution. With expert witnesses, the Senate would evaluate the legislation and address any problems.

The Senate could defeat legislation but the practice has been to return it to the House of Commons for further review and changes. The House of Commons will change or modify the legislation, sending it back to the Senate, which would then pass it.

The Senate was to be the corporate memory of Parliament. Through its committees, the Senate was to take the time to do in-depth studies on subjects of importance to Canada. Such committees would travel, talking to ordinary Canadians.

The House of Commons would not have the time to do lengthy studies and could use the Senate reports when building new legislation.

The Senate can create legislation, through private members' bills, but such legislation must go to the House of Commons for final approval.

Governments will, on occasion, use the Senate as a convenient way to pass a private member's bill. Bill S-6 is a case in point.

In the Senate, there is not a long list of private member's bills waiting to be selected. A government with a majority can fast-track a bill in this manner.

Finally and most importantly, the Senate is there to represent and protect regions and minorities, both of which can be under-represented in the House of Commons through our electoral system.

There has always been an uneasy truce between the House of Commons and the Senate. Not being elected, MPs feel senators do not have the moral authority to pass judgment on legislation which they, through the electoral process, have an inherent right to bring into law. (That's even though the government in power, at any one time, will be very lucky to have the support of 40 per cent of the population.)

But I am getting ahead of myself. Let us look at the three options which have been argued since the Senate was first created: (1) An elected Senate; (2) Abolish the Senate; (3) Reform the Senate.

(1) An elected Senate (needs a Constitution change):

At first glance, a good idea. Why should they not be accountable to the public through the electoral system? If they do not do a good job, they are not elected the next time round!

Ha; yes; the next time. This implies we have a fully-elected Senate and there would be elections every so many years, in regions, not ridings, and this will provide the accountability.

However, it places a senator in the same position as an MP, always looking at the next election and how he or she can be re-elected and not always making the tough, but right, decisions. It takes away the very valuable sober second thought that an unelected Senate can bring.

Question: who pays for the elections and who runs them? Do they run under a party banner? No; we want them independent from government.

Will they run as independents? That would mean only the very rich could afford to run.

Will they not be entitled to the same pay as an MP? They will need regional offices with staff and a larger staff in their Ottawa offices.

For those who feel the Senate is far too expensive an institution, the new version would increase the costs considerably

On a more serious note, if we go the elected route, we are changing how we are governed. Should we also elect our prime minister?

Are we not just adding 105 new MPs but dividing them up into two houses? Our neighbours have something like this; it does force consensus and gives balance to regional representation. The question is: do we want to copy the U.S. form of government?

OK; maybe we should just solve the problem by abolishing the Senate and get them out of our hair, giving free rein to the elected House.

(2) Abolish the Senate (needs a Constitutional change):

Remember why we have a Senate in the first place: to protect the people from the "Tyranny of the Elected House."

And who is leading the charge for abolishing the Senate? The elected House and the leadership of the government.

As I said earlier, the House and Senate have an uneasy relationship. The House does not like to be held accountable by the Senate, and a working Senate would do just that. In a working Senate, Bill C-51 would have seen a number of recommendations for changes.

But sadly, the Senate is not now working as it should. A portion of the Senate is free range, and the majority has been appointed by the present government.

Many are new, do not understand the value of the Senate, and feel they owe their allegiance to the government which appointed them.

Others see it as a privileged appointment, and that they are free to do as they wish.

The present government has had more than its share of problems with appointments. It is no more or less experienced in evaluating candidates than other governments before it, which leaves one to speculate as to the cause of the abysmal track record.

Could it be to highlight this archaic appendage and provide an excuse to abolish it?

But hey, if something breaks, do you throw it out? No; you fix it, which leads us to Senate reform.

(3) Reform the Senate:

There are many small reforms which could enhance the effectiveness and transparency of the Senate and several larger ones which would need constitutional changes.

Let us not throw the baby out with the bath water. Let's fix it!

The Senate and the House, for that matter, are not well understood by the general public.

What did you learn in school about our parliamentary system? Unless you were a political science major in university, the average Canadian is informed by what he or she sees in question period, or hears from elected politicians.

That's not an objective picture of what is really involved in the day-to-day management of our affairs nor how government is run.

Changes are never easy. The Liberal senators have been freed from their party in the house, but this will only work if both parties do the same.

The leader in the Senate has traditionally been appointed by the prime minister and sits as a cabinet minister with the government of the day.

The Speaker is appointed by the prime minister. Ministers give their bills, which have cleared the House, to one of their members in the Senate to take through the chamber to final reading and Royal Assent.

Until both parties are playing by the same rules, the Senate will not work. So we need reform and the four areas for reform are:

i. All senators are released from party affiliation or none of them are. (The party leader can do this.)

ii. How appointments are made. (The prime minister can do this.)

iii. The term of office for each senator. (This can be a condition of the appointment.)

iv. Review of Senate seats for each region. (This would need a constitutional change.)

Details:

i. The Senate will not work unless all senators are freed by their party or none of them are free. There must be a leader in the Senate; now they are appointed by the prime minister, but in a freed Senate, they would elect their own.

The Speaker is appointed by the prime minister; in a freed Senate, they would elect their own.

Bills coming from the House are now given to a Senate member of the same party as government. In a freed Senate, bills could go to the committee most appropriate to deal with the subject and either the chair of that committee or a member appointed by that chair would take the bill through the Senate.

With these changes, the Senate would remain, as it is now, doing the analytical, non-partisan review of legislation and would continue with the very excellent committee work and reports. However, there are other changes which should be addressed.

ii. How appointments are made: To make the process more transparent, the prime minister could effect this change by having an all-party committee of the House of Commons to set up an appointments board which would recommend appointees to the prime minister when a vacancy occurred.

Two additional members could be appointed each time by the provincial government in the region of the vacancy.

Nominations could come from any source in that region; the nominator and nominee must be from that region and the nomination must be fully documented.

Now we must realize every nominee will have political affiliations; if they are interested in being in the Senate, they will be a political watcher at the very least.

However, it is their community background, field of expertise and knowledge of their region which will be considered in the nomination process.

iii. The term of office for each senator: this is an important one, and could be part of the condition of appointment; you want good people with strong backgrounds in their fields. If they are going to move to the Senate, they would not be able to go back to their old job but would most likely be of an age when they would like to retire.

Today, a senator is appointed to the age of 75. Keeping in mind the value of the corporate memory, a 12-year, non-renewable appointment would seem to be the most beneficial, both for the candidate and the Senate.

It gives good continuity, keeps the corporate memory and captures candidates who are at the peak of their careers and are of most value. Anything less is not long enough, and anything longer is too long.

iv. Review of Senate seats for each region. This is long overdue, but would require a constitutional change and would be difficult to do at this time.

Yes, the Senate is a valuable part of our parliamentary system; it is what keeps our democracy strong, and we need it to hold the elected House accountable.

We are well-served by it, but, as with most institutions, it needs reforms from time to time.

Many reforms can be done without constitutional changes, and the Senate should set up a committee to look at the options and have discussions with the House of Commons to bring about such changes.

Both Houses would be well-served; there should be more transparency, and such change could make that happen.

Harmonicas tune up at Tombstone

~ Celebrating nature through the eyes of the artist ~

by Cathie Findlay-Brook

Park visitors and campers were in for a surprise last weekend when they were invited into the world of the harmonica. An Artist Talk and performance Saturday evening drew an audience of 35 where George McConkey explained the different musical influences in his playing interspersed with demos on the different techniques used to fully explore a musical genre.

14 harmonica students ranging from 8 to 70 years old spent the next day with George, dissolving some of the mysteries and frustrations of this tiny instrument, the weekend ending with a grand finale performance by all. Participants came from Dawson and Pelly Crossing and as far away as Quebec, Belgium and Germany.

Programs like this are made possible by the Yukon Arts fund and collaboration between interpretive staff at Yukon Parks and Friends of Dempster Country Society.

Why celebrate the arts at Tombstone? To increase appreciation and understanding of Tombstone Territorial Park and Dempster Country through the eyes of the artist. From traditional beading workshops, birch bark basket making and dance to painting, sculpture and music – by engaging in the arts in a wilderness setting we tune in to nature on another and often deeper level.

The latest addition is an Artist in Residency program launched this year where park visitors of all ages and artistic inclinations are invited to drop-ins, demos and workshops – an exploration of art and nature in the mountains.

The Senate: love it or hate it - continued from p. 5

An interesting aside to ponder: what would happen to any legislation drafted by the NDP, should it form government?

Until it was able to make changes to the Senate, and that would take time, all its bills would be required to go through that Senate.

Conversely, if the Liberals were to form government, it is most unlikely the Conservatives would free their majority Senate members.

If the Conservatives continue to hold office and do not fill vacancies it will reach a point where, by law, they must make appointments.

This will all lead to very interesting times ahead. Stay tuned.

For those wishing a more fulsome review of the Senate, I would recommend reading:

Drama at the Dredge Ponds

By Chris Healey

Over 200 people attended Dawson City's third annual League of Lady Wrestlers event on Saturday, August 1st. Billed as a "Grudge Match in Guggieville", contestants squared off in a riotously fun atmosphere over the course of six scheduled matches.

A mix of returning and new characters helped create compelling theatre to the enthusiastic and equally as colourful audience. Gathered around a wooden ring in a stone field, fans jeered and cheered wrestlers such as "The Lunch Lady", "Yuk of the Yukon" and "Bruisy Suzy".

Announcer Johnny Fairbanks explained many of the plot twists and turns during an evening that eventually resulted in a battle royale and utter pandemonium.

"We crack each other up. We're always trying to make our characters more entertaining and with more intricate props, details and thematic moves," says event co-organizer Andrea Pelletier, "Yasmine (Renaud) and I think of Dawson City and the Yukon in general as attractive to strong women. Like the Girls Rock Camp and the Burlesque event, the Dawson City League of Lady Wrestlers is a collective of rad women. It's no mistake we have these sorts of activities out here highlighting and showcasing women."

"Arraghagk!" comments Pelletier's alter-ego character Shreeka. When asked for her perspective, wrestler Punkasso adds "Get outta my face!"

Punkasso tries her luck hitchhiking away from The Gold Nugget.

37th DCMF Goers Dance the Nights Away

by Dan Davidson

Sunday's massive thunderstorm may have cracked the whip over Dawson City and flooded the infield at the Minto Park ball diamond where the concession stands were set up, but it did not appear to dampen the enthusiasm of Dawson City Music Festival goers, who continued to pack the main stage tent (after having packed the Palace Grand Theatre) until the weekend came to a close at midnight.

Chants of "One More Song!" after the finale number (this year it was "Papa's Got a Brand New Bag", led by the Renaldo Domino Experience) have become an automatic reflex over the years. Everyone knows that the neighbours need to get some sleep so they can go to work on Monday morning, but they call out any way.

Producer Emily Farrell took to the stage briefly to wish everyone a polite but firm good night, after which the lights went out, the sound system shut down and the television and radio broadcast vanished from the airwaves.

It actually was a bit dark at that point, which shows how much of a difference having the festival a week later in July did make. On the whole, however, two days out of the three offered gorgeous sunshine and more than enough light. The only outdoor event that had to be relocated was the Sunday afternoon Gazebo concert.

The weekend began at the Gazebo on Friday afternoon with a fine set of performances under a brilliant sun by Sarah McDougall, Alpha Yaya Diallo and James Hill.

As has become traditional here, the first evening's main stage tent concert featured the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Singers as the first act, followed by a variety of performance styles that ran from Elisapie's rock; to the Slocan Ramblers bluegrass; Lisa LeBlanc's folk-trash; PS I Love You's sonic assault; Corb Lund and the Hurtin' Albertans country touch; and The Pack A.D.'s pop punk garage rock.

On Saturday the festival was all over town, with mini-concerts and workshops at Main Stage (Kids Fest in the morning), the Palace Grand, the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre, the Gazebo and St. Paul's Anglican Church. Dawson has a lot of performance spaces if it chooses to use them all.

Workshops over the two days included We Can Do it – Ladies who Rock; Songs I wish I Wrote; Freshly Picked; Uke can Do it; Folk Noire Folklore; Permission to Freak

Out; Sunday Morning Coming Down (which always seems to take place in the afternoon); the Experimental Experience; and the ever infamous POTLUCK, in which musicians are mashed together in new configurations and told to come up with something. The results are always amusing and sometimes mind-expanding.

Of special interest on Saturday afternoon was the one hour devoted to hearing and seeing the results of the Girls' Rock Camp, which had been in preparation for the previous week. Brand new bands Fire & Ice, Scream, the Never Let It Go's, and the Deadly Ghosts showed how they had gone from nothing to stage ready in just under a week.

On Saturday evening Alpha Yaya Diallo proved that it was possible to pack the tent at 7:30 and get people dancing early in the evening. It stayed packed and the crowd kept dancing as some of the musicians from Friday night were joined by Declan O'Donovan, Sarah McDougall, Ryan McNally, and the Renaldo Domino Experience. As a rule, the headlining groups get two cracks at main stage over the three nights. Meanwhile, shorter, somewhat quieter concerts were going on at St. Paul's and the Palace Grand.

Sunday night's concert is two hours shorter than the others, and all the bands had already played, but there were surprises. Elisapie had rocked out earlier, but her opening set this night was nearly acoustic. The next three bands underlined the power duo theme that had been hiding in the mix previously. Soda Pony, PS I Love You and The Pack A.D. all feature two person acts - one a drummer, the other on guitar (and maybe keyboards as well). They coax (or perhaps bludgeon) very different sounds out of that similar configuration. The Renaldo Domino Experience closed off the evening with their Chicago funk sounds and led the finale.

The 37th edition of the festival proved once again that there was something for nearly every musical taste in the mix, and that the decision to reduce the size of the weekend does not seem to have diminished the overall enthusiasm of those who attend.

Relocating the beer garden to higher ground continues to have been a good decision. The northwest corner of the Main Stage tent was a little squishy underfoot after Sunday's downpour, but kids enjoyed splashing in the puddles. The supervised overflow camping at the Crocus Bluff ball park continues to work well.

Dawson Rocks 2015

by Josée Bonhomme

This year, the Dawson Rocks event took place on Thursday, August 6th at the historic Oddfellows' Hall. A visit to placer operations in the Klondike followed on Friday, August 7th. The format differed somewhat from last year, under the Yukon Geological Survey's purview. It was explained that the first of two events has returned to a geologists' and prospectors' rendez-vous, with a technical emphasis rather than attracting investment.

Another event for investors is planned for the week of August 10-14, with Yukon-wide property tours and exhibits which will be held at the same venue on the 12th. That part is being organized by the Yukon Mining Alliance, in conjunction with Yukon Economic Development.

About 50 people attended the geology talks, which were very interesting if one understands the specialized language and acronyms. This was a preamble to the core exhibits on show for the afternoon, mostly drilled cores and lots of maps to interpret the slow and tedious job of prospecting.

Shawn Ryan made a good point with his laborious task of developing valuable prospecting techniques that are environmentally friendly. He's worked with Ground Truth Exploration on several prototypes for drilling and soil sampling. They use drones for detailed imagery, to add soil sample information which may have been collected by a helicopter with a special grabber tool slung under the "big bird". They are now able to show their distant clients what they need to know with daily reports from the field. He also explained how they've managed to bring exploration costs down significantly. Costs can be high in remote regions where often helicopters are the only practical access.

The food was plentiful, catered by Bonanza Market for the Ice-breaker. That was splendid.

The conclusion is that the Yukon is still under-explored, its geology being very complicated. The Friday field trip to various local mining operations was booked solid; there is a lot of interest in our surficial deposits. It finally came out in the technical talks that surface deposits can point to hard rock sources of minerals, if one understands a lot of things.

It takes decades, even centuries, for people to understand why gold or other minerals found their place under the sun. The progress being made by the Yukon Geological Survey in mapping recent discoveries and the bedrock is very advanced on a world scale. Someday, they will find the heart(s) that poured out all its (their) gold to make the Yukon so attractive. Not to mention silver, copper, molybdenum, tungsten, lead and zinc deposits.

The mission continues to keep looking, researching, using old reports, going back where they may have missed something, and finding better ways that are benign for the environment. Like Sean said, sometimes tricks used by old dogs might be the best to teach modern puppies forgotten techniques.

Shawn referred to Dutch Van Tassel's methods of soil drilling which inspired him to replicate the work using small drills that serve well to find surface anomalies, helping to refine targets for deeper, more expensive drilling. Dutch discovered the Minto copper deposit and the Husky silver mine in Elsa. Those would be good footsteps to follow indeed.

A Home Grown Backyard Circus Entertains the Neighbourhood

Story & Photo
By Dan Davidson

Aerial arts came to Grant Street in Dawson on Sunday, August 2, as the Amos family and some friends put on a Backyard Circus, to the delight of about 50 people who came to sit on benches, munch popcorn and marvel at what some people will do just for fun.

“In the winter we met a couple of SOVA students,” said Bridget Amos. “One has an aerial rope and she said she would teach Jack and Jessie some aerial rope. One had a hoop and she said she would teach Jessie some hoop.”

The problem was that there was no place in town prepared to let them set up the equipment to get high enough off the ground to practice some of the stunts. While some of the hoop maneuvers didn’t necessarily need height to learn, the rope was a different matter.

They ended up learning the basics at the Alchemy Café during the winter.

Come spring, Jonathon Dowdell constructed an aerial rig in their yard.

“With that, people who want to, or already know how to, do circus arts, come here and they use the aerial rig.”

It’s been in the yard since June and the Amos children have honing their skills since the end of that month. They were certainly a key part of the backyard circus, with Jesse striking poses on the hoop and Jack scrambling up and down the rope as if he was walking on the ground.

The rig is constructed of logs, which Bridget felt would be “more in keeping with Dawson” and it may serve another purpose in the fall.

“We’ll be able to hang our moose from it,” she said.

Aside from the Amoses, there were other performers.

Blair Douglas acted as a clownish ringmaster.

Carly Woolner showed off her skills on the hoop.

Marie Noël, a silks performer from Quebec, added her professional touch to a routine on the aerial silks.

Marie-Claude Dufresne provided the recorded music, while guitar accompaniment came from William, whose last name was not mentioned.

For the finale, all the

The finale featured Graham Sherwood, Jack Amos on the rope, Marie Noël on the silks, and Carly Woolner and Jesse Amos on the hoop.

performance paraphernalia were reattached to the rig and, juggling, rope, silk and hoop performers all ascended to show off their skills one more time.

It was a delightful way to spend an hour on a sunny Klondike evening.

LIBRARY MOVIE REVIEWS

with Chris Collins

All the Pretty Horses

116 minutes

Matt Damon, Henry Thomas, Penelope Cruz

When is a Western not a Western? This movie was set in Texas, and Mexico, thus in the West, but, in 1949. So, while there were cowboys, on horses, there were also trucks, trains, and a lack of shoot-outs.

The story begins after a death, and the much beloved ranch is to be sold by the star’s mother, as she is not interested in it. This does not go down well with her son, so, he hightails it on horseback to Mexico, accompanied by his best friend. We are never told why.

In Mexico, they do stuff. And, that basically is the plot of the movie. It is more like reading the diary of a boring person than watching an interesting movie. It does have some top actors, but, where is the story? Matt Damon and Penelope Cruz are each other’s love interest, which could have led to some interesting ideas. For example, the two men have found work on a large ranch in Mexico. Of course, Cruz plays the beautiful daughter of the boss, and, she has a severe mother, who will not allow her the freedom to date the ranch hands. Which is of course exactly what happens! So, the makings of a great love story, except that it doesn’t go anywhere. Mom finds out, of course, and the Damon character gets into trouble, of course, and Cruz is sent away, of course, but, that’s about it. Their story ends about there, with only one additional meeting, but, no marriage, nor anything else interesting.

Damon, and Thomas end up in a Mexican jail. It is not made clear exactly how this happens. Damon has to fight to defend himself, and despite killing his attacker, he gets no difficulties for this. Like most things in this movie, it just sort of happens. Another day, another diary entry.

As the two friends are about to cross in to Mexico, they meet a teen who seems to be on the run with a particularly fine horse. Again, this could lead to all sorts of interesting situations, and, a few things do happen with him. For example, rescuing his horse after it is taken from him by some Mexican farmers who seem to be on the shady side of the law. As the young man also seems to be, this is sort of a bad on bad situation, although we are expected to cheer for the young man. But, his story simply ends, without having solved anything. Another day, another diary entry.

The cinematography is good, with lots of wide open spaces. While we don’t know why the pair go to Mexico, we see Mexico in a fairly good light, including the biggest ranches, educated people, and lots of hard work, and attitude not found in many Westerns. Mexicans can be good guys, and bad guys, just like in real life. But, this, the great scenery, and good actors do not save this movie. Without a captivating story, it lacks any point for watching it, let alone being entertained.

IMDB gives it 5.8, and I give it 2 stars out of 5. Not a bad movie, but, not a good one either.

We’ve received a cornucopia of new material at the Library over the past month, including genre fiction, literary works, DVDs, and How-To books.

For those taking road trips this summer, why not have a look at our recent acquisitions of books on CD? Several patrons have informed us that the average audio book fits neatly into a drive to Whitehorse. New titles include works by Tami Hoag, Greg Iles, Marcus Sakey, John Lescroat, Thomas Perry, Phillip Margolin, Liza Marklund, and Robert Stone. Library patrons can also download audio books from the Yukon Public Libraries website – although, if you haven’t already, you’ll need to come into the Library to get a PIN set up in order to access the site.

Science Fiction fans can also check out our acquisition of two classics of the genre. These are Philip K. Dick’s Do Androids Dream of Electric Sheep (the story the movie Bladerunner was based on) as well as Dragonflight by Anne McCaffrey (the first book in her legendary Dragonriders of Pern series).

More than $1.4 million in sport and recreation funding announced

WHITEHORSE (August 6, 2015) —Yukon's sport and recreation community will benefit from more than $1.4 million in funding this year, provided through partnerships between the Government of Yukon, the Yukon Lottery Commission and Sport Canada.

"I am pleased to announce this continued funding, which offers vital support to Yukon's many sport and recreation organizations, athletes, coaches, and officials," Minister of Community Services Currie Dixon said. "This supports sport and recreation programs for Yukoners of all ages and helps build healthier, more active communities."

Through this contribution, 26 sport organizations across the territory will receive funding via the Yukon Sport 4 Life program, while 29 sport organizations and six recreational groups will receive funding from the Yukon Recreation Advisory Committee (YRAC). Additionally, the Elite Athlete Program will invest in seven Yukon athletes who have been identified by Sport Canada as having the greatest potential to achieve top results at Olympic/Paralympic Games and World Championships.

"With the generous support of YRAC, Yukon government's Sport and Recreation branch, and other organizations, we are able to support local community leaders and develop programs and services that empower Yukon's people and communities to adopt active, healthy lifestyles through recreation and parks," Recreation and Parks Association of the Yukon executive director Anne Morgan said.

The funding will help sport organizations prepare for the 2015 Western Canada Summer Games and 2016 Arctic Winter Games. Additionally, it will help the Yukon Scout Council attend the World Scout Jamboree in Japan and support the Yukon Aboriginal Sport Circle's community archery programs.

Young Girls Rock Out on the DCMF Stage

By Dan Davidson

One of the delightful surprises at the Dawson City Music Festival was the Saturday afternoon performance of the five bands from the Girls Rock Camp, which had been taking place in town on the six days prior to the beginning of the festival.

DCMF's Devon Berquist organized and led the drive to hold the camp, which was then taken over by the Dawson City Recreation Department's Lana Welshman (also of the local band Whoa Bear) as the days for the festival drew near.

Berquist said that Welshman and local performer Drea Nasager (The Naysayers) have been working towards doing this for some time. There is a successful Girls Rock band program that they borrowed the format from, and Monica Lettner, from Girls Rock Camp Alaska, was on site to assist.

As was explained to the audience on Saturday, none of the girls (ages 8 to 16) had ever played the instrument they performed on before the program began. If they already had some familiarity with an instrument they were moved to a different one.

Four bands were formed and paired with mentors: Sarah MacDougall – Whitehorse, Sarah Ayton – Montreal, Marita Michaelis – Vancouver, Caitlin Gallipe – Vancouver (Slam Dunk). Some of these were also performers at this year's DCMF.

"They each taught one instrument and also coached one band," Berquist explained.

There were also workshops on radio presence, performing and makeup. She singled out Peter Menzies for being an "incredible" helper.

Berquist said that the music industry in general tends to be intimidating for most females and this program provides a safe place for them to experiment, an activity which, she says, tends to be more introspective than when boys get together.

The girls weren't sure at the beginning.

"Oh yeah. They were sitting there with their arms crossed, saying 'I hate this. This is the worst camp ever.' But by the end of the day they didn't want to leave."

Similarly, the guitar was the first instrument of choice for most of them, but after some instruction on the drums, the bass or the keyboards, they were happy just to play those.

At first very few of them wanted to sing, but by the end everyone wanted to sing.

"By the end of the camp they were all on stage, just totally, totally confident."

The bands named themselves - Fire & Ice, Scream, The Never Let It Go's, and the Deadly Ghosts – and wrote their own basic songs for the mini-concert.

Berquist says the plan is to have some winter programming going on as well, and she's really curious to find out what can be accomplished in more than six days.

Waterreus Takes the Hill Again

Story & Photos
By Dan Davidson

Stephen Waterreus led the pack of runners in the Annual Midnight Dome Race, taking first place overall and in his Masters Male category with a time of 43:31.

He was followed by Jeff Irwin, another Masters runner from Orillia, Ontario (38:46), and then by 14 year old Jack Amos of Dawson (39:29).

Catherine Lamarche of Dawson was the fastest female runner, with a time of 43:31.

But Waterreus wasn't actually the first person to climb that final slope to the finish line. That was Masters Female Jane Vincent of Whitehorse with a time of 1:00:27. Walkers start half an hour ahead of the runners, and several of them were in ahead of everyone else, including 14 year old Teresa Procee of Dawson who was the second walker to arrive just over five minutes behind Vincent.

The two groups set off from just in front of the Palace Grand Theatre on a fine Saturday morning, with the runners heading up King Street at about 10 o'clock. The good weather, with a slight breeze to keep the bugs away, continued all the way up the hill to the Dome itself, where it was sunny and warm enough that people staffing the finish line found they were shedding some layers.

Altogether there were 56 runner and 12 walkers this year.

Race organizers at Run Dawson and the Recreation

Dept. want to thank Air North, the Canadian Rangers and Junior Rangers, and all of our volunteers.

Trash Talk: News from the Garbage Man

By Tim Taylor

I am back again to talk to you about garbage and recycling. In my last article I explained different components of Dawson's Waste Management program. This trash talk will focus on an injury I incurred on the job and informing you on comments people gave me about my last article.

Once again, it has been an interesting week in the garbage world. I tore a muscle in my right arm lifting a garbage barrel last Sunday! So, I have been off for a week, although, it was not a bad tear so I should be back in the garbage truck for next week. The accident occurred on Sunday, which is my busiest day. If I don't collect 4 garbage truck loads to the dump, the rest of my week is so overloaded it causes delays on my pick up routes. So when I hurt myself, my boss was away and no one was able to pick up garbage for Sunday and Monday. My apologies for anyone frustrated with garbage pick up happening late or on another day.

Many people have commented on my article and it has all been very positive and appreciated. One comment heard several times, is how difficult it is for residents, who don't have enough space on their property, to set up recycling. One solution is to put their recyclables in one big container and let the recycling centre deal with sorting everything. This is how it is done in Whitehorse and most towns and cities across Canada. We have a long way to go before there is city-wide recycling pick-up, but it is definitely on its way.

Another comment from residences is how individual garbage pick-up will not always happen at the exact time they are used to. If a resident puts out their garbage at 11am on Monday because that is the time I am usually there, I cannot always make that time. Some people complain about this and tell me that animals get in their bins too often if I am not there at the usual time. Also when Otto Blattler was in charge, he was like clockwork for garbage pick up. It is not so easy as it was in Otto's era. The reason being there are more residents and more businesses in Dawson City than there used to be. The garbage truck constantly needs mechanical repairs and regular maintenance. The dump is much farther than it used to and the weather can play a huge factor.

Now if everyone recycled, we would not have such a problem with animals eating the garbage. Compost would be deposited in the three compost bins around town, recycling would be regularly picked up or brought to the recycling depot. It all goes back to taking more responsibility for how much garbage you throw out. For example, at our house we are a family of four and because we recycle, we have one bag of garbage every two weeks!

In the next Klondike Sun, I will focus on cardboard and why it is important to recycle it. Until then, enjoy the great weather and whenever you see me and you have a question, just hail me down. I will certainly stop and give you a good ole trash talk! You can always send me an email too.

Yukon Riverside Art Festival Celebrates its 15th Year

By Deirdre Mulcahy

It's that time of year. The artists are coming and they're flocking to our riverbank, August 13-16. This year's Yukon Riverside Arts Festival begins Thursday, August 13, with the opening of the KIAC members' exhibit, held at SOVA at 5:30 p.m., followed by a talk at 7 p.m., in the KIAC ballroom, featuring the Natural & Manufactured artists, Colin Lyons and Kevin Murphy. At 8:30 pm the Gallery Hop begins, opening up the city to the work of local artists and businesses. Then at 11 p.m. all are invited to Bombay Peggy's to celebrate the end of the hop and the start of the festival.

This festival began over a decade ago, as a way to showcase the work of artists and to give festival participants insight into the unique process involved in creating work across mediums. At the Artists Demonstration tent, people can see artists at work and, for a small fee to cover the cost of mediums, are able to interact with the artists to create their own pieces of art. This year's demo tent will be at the Riverside Park on Front St (between the Artist Market and the Gazebo) Saturday Aug 15, 1-5p.m. & Sunday Aug 16 12-4 p.m. For kids, the demo tent will host a Prehistoric Puppet making workshop Friday, August 14 from 1-3pm, and on Saturday, August 15 at 10:30 am the children will meet at the tent to prepare their procession in the 12 pm parade.

This festival is the kind of event that infuses color in an already energetic Discovery Days celebration. There will be an Art Auction & Performance event Saturday night at KIAC, the 4th edition of the Dawson Daily News Print & Publishing Symposium Saturday & Sunday 1-6 pm, many gallery openings, lectures, music events and a bustling Art Market all-weekend long. If that weren't enough, you will also notice a new addition to the Dome: a Plexiglas machine that takes trailing relics and restores them to their rust-free state. N & M artist, Colin Lyons, will be found living in this structure all week long with bus tours, by Husky Bus, visiting the installation

Thursday & Friday at 8:30 pm and 9:30 pm, and 2 pm on both Saturday and Sunday.

The festival, now entering its 15th year, is one to be remembered by both locals and weekend visitors. For up-to-date information about the festival visit <http://www.kiac.ca/artsfestival/> or drop by the Artist Market or Visitors Information Center on the festival weekend to pick up a festival program.
