City of Dawson and Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in will work together in emergencies

The City of Dawson and Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in have entered into a Mutual Municipal Civil Emergency Plan Agreement.

The official signing of the agreement, by Deputy Chief Simon Nagano and Mayor Wayne Potoroka, took place on Tuesday, March 31st during a joint training session that was held in the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Lands room, where members of the City and First Nation were taking Incident Command System training.

Dawson's Fire Chief, Jim Regimbal said, "Both parties have entered into an agreement to collectively use the Municipal Civil Emergency Plan in the case of an emergency. By working off the same plan as opposed to two separate ones, we will be able to provide the best protection to our citizens in an expedient manner.

"This agreement has been in the works for close to a year and is the first of its kind in the Yukon, and in Canada, as far as I am aware," Regimbal said. "I would like to thank Chief and Council and Mayor and Council for approving this

Mayor Potoroka said it was an honour to sign with Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Deputy Chief Simon Nagano the Mutual Municipal Civil Emergency Plan Agreement on behalf of their respective Councils. Both Councils passed the agreement by unanimous resolution at their respective meetings about a month ago, but only had the chance to sign the document the next month, during, appropriately enough, joint Incident Command Training.

"The responsibilities of municipal and First Nations governments don't usually overlap," Potoroka continued, "but we do share one common concern: ensuring everyone's safety in an emergency. This agreement establishes our shared commitment to working together under the Municipal Civil Emergency Plan during a crisis situation and helping each other in such an event, including the coordination of equipment and personnel. More than anything, it gets us at one table, side by side to protect the health and welfare of all.

"Thanks to everyone who

Silver receives unanimous support for mental health strategy resolution

WHITEHORSE (April 30, 2015) - Liberal Leader Sandy Silver received unanimous support for his motion urging the government to fulfill its commitment to a Yukon mental health strategy.

"I brought forward the motion yesterday, because know how important ^a mental health issues are to Yukoners," said Sandy Silver. "In my speech I highlighted the many issues that Yukoners have been bringing forward to me, and what our health care professionals are facing in the house, but the real Bibber's book I was born under members' motions do not in rural Yukon. I know there are many more issues that I wasn't able to touch on, but I know a strategy would be able to properly identify these and ensure that adequate resources are allocated."

Silver also noted that strategy should have implications across many departments and not just focus in on Health and Social Services.

"I am happy that the motion received unanimous support government to adopt JJ van also demonstrates private

Uffish Thoughts: Reflections on an Unbalanced Budget

By Dan Davidson

There's something awfully odd about the so-called balanced budget that Finance Minister Joe Oliver presented us with last week. Odd enough that I'm surprised there hasn't been seismic activity recorded near the grave of his predecessor, Jim Flaherty.

The most obvious difference, one which the federal spin doctors would like us all to forget, is that St. Jim (whose memorial will be a new building) had begun to have very public second thoughts about the Conservative Party of Canada's plan for income splitting before he resigned from office and left politics.

Both opposition parties have been able to run with his comments, during which it was widely reported that he said, ""It benefits some parts of the Canadian population a lot and other parts of the Canadian population virtually not at all."

I'm a disinterested observer on this one. My wife and I have had very similar incomes, both while working and since retiring from teaching, so we're in the "virtually not at all" group.

Other things bother me more. A couple of weeks back I noted that I saw a lot of virtue in having contingency funds, money set aside for those rainy days when you might need to run out and buy an umbrella.

Smart governments have contingency funds, as do businesses and individuals who can afford them. When we suddenly had to replace the fuel tank at our home a year or so back, we dipped into some of the funds we've squirreled away to cover some of those substantial costs. But if we had to do the same thing just to cover the monthly fuel bill, I wouldn't be able to say much for our ability to manage our cash flow.

Mr. Oliver, and certainly his boss, Mr. Harper, took $2 billion out of the federal contingency fund. Not to build a replacement coast guard vessel. Not to beef up the procedures for dealing with oil spills off the west coast. Not to finance an inquiry into the matter of missing and murdered women - aboriginal and non-aboriginal for that matter, if you care to look up the RCMP report on the situation.

No, Mr. Oliver and Mr. Harper dipped into the contingency fund in order to do the equivalent of paying the rent and putting gas in the car. This is a gaffe on par with this party's decision to chop another percentage point off the GST just before the financial crash on 2008, the one they didn't see coming the same way they didn't see the oil boom going bust last fall.

That, in case you've forgotten, is the reason we got an April budget this year, postponed from the more normal February or March dates, postponed in a bit of a panic when $1 billion in projected Oil/Tar Sands revenue suddenly vanished.

News reports since the budget was released indicate that the government made up some of that shortfall by dipping into the Employment Insurance Fund surplus to the tune of $1.8 billion. The previous Parliamentary Budget Officer complained about this habit of padding the budget with EI funds as recently as 2013, complaining that the CPC has been making a habit of it since taking power.

To be perfectly fair, the Liberals raided the same pot of surplus EI dollars back in the 1990s at least once. At the time the opposition parties thought it was a dirty trick to play on the nation's workers. It still is.

That fund, a good portion of which comes from workers and the rest from their employers, is dedicated to a specific purpose, shouldn't even be running a surplus, and has no business at all being added to the government's general revenue to be used for other things.

If there's really a need to find some extra money let's do it by drastically reducing the $263 million that it cost the government last year to pay the 3,325 communications advisors (read "spin doctors") who have been told to make it their business that nobody who works for the government in any capacity talks to anyone - especially the media – about anything without going through them first.

As Gregory Thomas, the Federal Director of the Canadian Taxpayers' Federation, an organization that you would think would be pleased with the current government, has recently written: "Canadians are seeing a quarter-billion dollars of their money used against them: not to provide them with information, but rather to delay, conceal and spin the information to enhance the image of the party in power. Examples of the federal government's penchant for secrecy have since crossed the border into farce."

It's an election year, folks. It's only going to get more farcical as we get farther along the path to October.

Tourism matters in Yukon

Along with industry partners and representatives from around the territory and beyond, I was pleased to attend the very successful Tourism Industry Association of the Yukon 2015 spring conference in Dawson City. The agenda covered topics including everything from cultural tourism, wildlife viewing and culinary experiences, to online marketing and unleashing Yukon's full potential.

The Yukon government works in partnership with the private and public sectors and non-government organizations to continue to grow Yukon's tourism sector. This industry accounts for $250 million in gross revenue for business in the territory while more than four per cent of Yukon's GDP is generated by the tourism in-

We recognize the importance of this industry to Yukon's economy, and we are increasing our investment to reflect that. This year's tourism budget will see an increase of $2 million, primarily in support of the Yukon Now marketing initiative, Yukon's largest ever investment in the Canadian market.

Television advertising is a major component of Yukon Now, and it is already delivering some positive results. A commercial launched earlier this year has been seen by an estimated 30 million viewers across Canada, in addition to more than 65,000 views on YouTube. In the first month after the commercial was launched, there were more than 22,000 visits to the Travel Yukon website—almost double the website traffic from the previous February.

Yukon's new television commercials mark a significant milestone in the ongoing evolution of tourism marketing in the territory. This particular marketing effort is helping us maximize opportunities for increased visitation and revenues for Yukon tourism business-

As was shared at the recent conference in Dawson, some local tourism operators have already reported an increase in bookings, with some clients crediting the new Yukon commercial for their decision to visit the territory.

The Digital Storytelling Project has a similar purpose – to raise : the Klondike, mining remains awareness of Yukon as a year-round travel destination by using social media such as Facebook, YouTube, Tumblr and Twitter to reach target audiences. The project has called on Yukon content creators to submit their ideas for a series of videos that showcase Yukon as a great place to visit. A number of Yukon videographers were selected and they each produced a series of three webisodes showcasing our territory from a Yukoner's perspective and promoting it as a travel destination. These projects, along with the commercials, are targeted toward the Canadian tourism market, which has seen a steady increase in Yukon in recent years.

Tourism contributes significantly not only to Yukon's economy but to the overall well-being and quality of life for Yukoners. I would like to recognise the incredible work by our industry partners and various government departments, much of it done behind the scenes. By working together, we are achieving positive results and contributing to Yukon's success as the best place to visit, work, live and raise a family.

Elaine Taylor Minister of Tourism and Culture

Cultural Tourism highlighted at TIAY Spring Conference

By Dan Davidson

The Friday morning session of the 2015 Spring Conference of the Tourism Industry Association of the Yukon (TIAY) began with a full load of political speech making to the 95 delegates before getting down to business.

First at the microphone was Chief Roberta Joseph of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in (TH).

"It's always a pleasure to welcome friends to the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in's traditional territory. The tourism industry Association of the Yukon has been a great friend to our First Nation over the past several years. We appreciated your support during the Peel Watershed land-use process and appreciated it when you spoke up for our right to participate in the management of public resources.

"On behalf of my counsel and TH citizens I'd like to thank you very much for your support. This particular issue shows how sometimes our values are very much aligned. Protecting the environment protects our culture, and protecting the environment gives your visitors a chance to get to enjoy such an incredible part of the Yukon and an incredible part of the world.

"For the Yukon, and especially a major industry, but we see tourism employing Yukoners and our citizens for many years to come. For a time, First Nation participation in the tourism industry solely meant hiring our citizens in our culture centers, but through our (economic development arms) we are expanding our reach and becoming a major contributor to the tourism industry.

"Our Dänojà Zho cultural center remains a fantastic attraction for visitors, and allows us to tell our own story, But we have started investing in hotels related to business locally as well as in Whitehorse."

Chief Joseph said the First Nations investments in the Yukon now amount to some $500 million and show just how much First Nations are stepping up and becoming involved in the Yukon's economy.

"It's a record and something that benefits everyone and this makes us happy," she said.

Joseph said the increasing participation of First Nations in territorial affairs was bound to run into a few stumbling blocks around along the way, and she hoped the TIAY would continue to lend its support in the years to come.

She closed her comments by wishing the organization a good conference and hoping that their coming season would be one of the best yet.

Elaine Taylor, Minister of Culture and Tourism was next to speak.

Taylor told the audience that she had had an affection for Dawson City ever since she first visited here when she was six years old.

"Some of the compelling things have stuck with me. It's the pioneer spirit and the resilience of our communities that make us strong as a territory. Whether it's the wooden boardwalks or the Discovery Day parade or, in fact, the individuals in costumes, those are the things that stick with me, and with our family. and certainly resonate with visitors time and time again.

"That's what we're really here to talk about - bringing those two sectors (tourism and culture) together and developing cultural tourism to take advantage of just that how it can really work towards strengthening the destination's competitiveness as well. It's an important discussion that's taking place around the territory as we speak."

Taylor talked of the need to leverage the history, the culture, and the natural assets of the region to strengthen the industry and economy.

Taylor said that one of the important developments in the territory just now is the application for World Heritage Status through UNESCO, for the Klondike region, intended to highlight both the Gold Rush and the first nations history of the area. She said the government is pleased to work towards the designation under the name Tr'ondëk/Klondike, along with the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in and the advisory committee, which is made up of members from a number of local organizations, including the Chamber of Commerce, the Klondike Placer Miners Association, the Klondike Visitors Association, the City of Dawson, concerned citizens and representatives from several territorial government departments.

"(The government), has made a commitment of over $382,000 over the next three years to support this process," Taylor said. "I want to congratulate the advisory committee and the really incredible work under way by the advisory committee and stakeholders, as they continue those very important discussions here."

Then she had an announcement about a long discussed new facility in the Klondike.

"Building on the strength of the area here, we're also really pleased to see a new palaeontology facility get underway here in Dawson. In fact we've identified - I think it's around $775,000 – in the budget that we just tabled ... in support of the planning and design and construction of the facility going ahead in the city of Dawson, or in the Klondike region."

The possibility of such a facility has been talked about for sometime and Taylor says said that the government wants to take advantage of the many fossils that are found in the Klondike region.

"This facility is going to enhance our ability to care for and to manage our heritage resources, but most importantly, to make the story of the Klondike's which fossil wealth accessible to Yukoners and visitors alike."

Even before this, two individuals have been hired to work with the mining community in the region, beginning this summer.

Taylor noted that Parks Canada has extended its season here this year and announced the Parks is also extending it season in Haines Junction. The territory's visitor information centers have also had their seasons extended by an additional month.

Story & photo submitted by the family

Percy enlisted in Vancouver, BC on the 4th of March 1943. Service Records indicate his occupation at the time as a placer minor on Dredge #11 in Dawson City, Yukon. At the time, Percy wanted to be a rear gunner in the Air Force or a paratrooper, but was turned down. He ended up in the Infantry. After advanced training in Vernon, Percy went to Calgary and Halifax before being ferried to Aldershot, England. In Aldershot Percy had a choice of which regiment to join. He chose the Calgary Highlanders because his good friend John McKenzie was a Highlander. Percy stayed with the Calgary Highlanders to the end.

Percy embarked on the 5th of July 1944 to Caen, France. Their operation was to follow the 3rd Division, This was the among the first combat units to engage in offensive ground combat operations in Europe during WWII. They were assigned to take Calais and got within 5 km when the enemy started firing mortars. They were exploding in the air. Percy caught shrapnel in the eye and all over his body. ceived a life long back injury when he entered a barn in Holland that had enemy hiding in a loft haystack. They opened fire and set off grenades causing the building to collapse on Percy. A few comrades did not survive.

The day before the enemy surrendered, Percy was told the next day he was going into the battle that would be the fight of their lives. At midnight that day, the Germans surrendered. The war was over.

Percy then became a peacekeeper until he demobilized. He left Europe for Canada on the Queen Elizabeth on a rough journey, eventually returning to Vancouver where he was discharged on the 10th of January 1946. In Vancouver, Percy was given work choices by Veterans Affairs. He chose plumbing and began working in Vancouver, Kemano and Kitimat before moving to Whitehorse, Yukon in 1954. Percy retired to Qualicum Beach in 1976 and this November will celebrate his 100th birthday.

In 1995 Percy returned to Holland for the 50th anniversary of their liberation. He was billetted by a lovely family, the Wagenaar's. Every day there were special events for all the veterans. The Canadians were treated like royalty.

Although Percy does not like to talk about the war, it is still a vivid memory in his mind.

The French Knight of the Legion of honour medal is one of the highest decorations that France can award and two members of the Qualicum Beach Legion Branch 76 were recipients April 19. Arthur Bridge and Percy C. DeWolfe were presented the prestigious medal by Jean-Christophe Fleury the Consul General of France who came to Qualicum Beach to personally honour the pair for their participation in D-Day operations in France. Fleury told the crowd on hand for the honours and awards ceremony that the medal is the equivalent to the Order of Canada. It was created by Napoleon in 1802 to recognize extraordinary civil achievement in peace time or extraordinary military bravery and service in times of war. He said to the best of their knowledge, there are roughly 2000 Canadian D-Day veterans still living in Canada and what happened on Sunday is part of truly unprecedented two-year process marking the 70th anniversary of the D-Day landings. He said French President Francois Hollande signed all the decrees to have the Legion of Honour awarded to 600 D-Day veterans. "We're not out of the woods yet," says Dawson's fire chief

(April 30) Fire Chief Jim Regimbal says the spring break up situation around Dawson is going the way it should. On the Klondike River, the ice is gone under the Ogilvie Bridge and water is flowing towards the Yukon River, but has no place to go because that river still has lots of solid ice.

"There are some ice jams, probably about five of them, between the Dempster Corner and the Yukon River, but the water is low, And a lot of the ice is just sitting on gravel bars. It certainly wouldn't be accurate to say that the Klondike River is running free."

Regimbal said he was moved to comment on CBC radio this morning after receiving reports that postings on YouTube were saying that the Klondike River was free of ice. While he doesn't want to alarm people, he doesn't want to leave the impression that the possibility of flooding is over for this year.

"I'm optimistically positive, but we're not out of the woods yet."

In Dawson, the flood barrier has already been inserted in the open place in the dike that leads down to where the docks will be installed later in the season.

Klondike authorities have taken the possibility of flood seriously this year and conducted an emergency preparedness tabletop exercise in advance of the melt season.

"I brought in Michael Swainson and I said 'Let's do an emergency exercise about the flood before flood season arrives.' So we really have been proactive this year and I think it's worked out well."

Tourism Industry focuses on Storytelling In Dawson

Story & Photos By Dan Davidson

With a conference theme of Storytelling, it was no surprise when the spring conference of the Tourism Industry Association of the Yukon devoted a lot of its twoday (April 17and 18) schedule to telling stories about the industry or discussing how to tell the stories that would lead to industry success.

Two sessions on April 16 focussed on wildlife viewing and how to make it work financially.

A noon hour tour of the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre highlighted some of the ways the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in is using to tell and sell its stories.

John Gunter, of Frontiers North Adventures, gave an illustrated talk on that company's nature viewing activities, with a particular focus on the Tundra Buggy Lodge operation that views polar bears out of Churchill.

The successful advertising programs out of Newfoundland and Labrador had been mentioned earlier in the conference. Dale Jarvis, that province's Intangible Heritage Development Officer, presented more on this topic in a lecture entitled "Once Upon a Journey: Folklore, Tourism and Selling Our Stories". Aside from advising others on how to make use of the province's wealth of stories and local colour, Jarvis is himself the owner of a business that offers tours in Saint John's (about ghost stories) and a number of other communities (topics varying with the local lore).

The afternoon concluded with a presentation by comedian Ron James. While most of his set was in basic stand-up format, James was somewhat restrained by working from a lectern rather than his more usual "pacing the stage" physical presence and did work in some philosophical observations about the importance of storytelling.

James favours an edgy sort of humour, often directing digs at the very government types who might be footing the bill, offering to turn up on the lines if there happened to be any Peel demonstrations during the summer. In commenting on all the court cases between various First Nations and different levels of government over environmental issues, he said he found it ironic that the

That was followed by a talk from Inga Petri, the Principal of Strategic Moves, entitled "Cultural Tourism: Unleashing Yukon's Potential".

Yukon's policing priorities set for 2015/16

WHITEHORSE (April 30, 2015) —Minister of Justice Brad Cathers communicated Yukon's policing priorities for 2015/16 in a letter to Chief Superintendent Peter Clark. Yukon RCMP Commanding Officer.

"The Yukon RCMP has made improvements in training and orientation for its members serving in Yukon communities," Cathers said. "We are confident the RCMP will continue to build on this success and further improve public safety through these priorities."

The 2015/16 policing priorities are to:

• Enhance prevention, investigation and enforcement activities related to violence against women.

- Connect with and support children and youth, including those at risk.
- · Reduce drug trafficking through prevention, enforcement and education.
- Foster strong relationships with communities and First Nations.
- Contribute to and improve responses to vulnerable populations.
- Improve traffic safety and compliance with safe driving measures.

"I am pleased to see that Yukon's priorities maintain a focus on these important aspects of community safety for 2015," Commanding Officer of the RCMP in Yukon, Chief Superintendent Peter Clark said. "We will continue to engage with our territorial and First Nations government and community partners to build and enhance our working relationships and advance the work we have been doing together to keep our communities safe."

Yukon's policing priorities are set each year by the Minister of Justice, who draws on recommendations from the Yukon Police Council, as well as information and analysis provided by the Department of Justice.

Dawson City Goes Punk

by Devon Berquist

P8

Over three weeks in April, a handful of Dawson residents took to their cabins, garages, studios, and sheds for one reason. Punk Rock. Starting from little or no experience with their chosen instrument (electric or bass guitar, drums, or vocals), they formed punk bands, made up band names, and even had a band practice or two. This crash course into punk rock was the precursor to a fundraiser for DCMF's upcoming Yukon Girls Rock Camp.

On the evening of Friday April 17th, the YOOP Hall was filled with the gritty shredding vocals and catchy drumbeats of brand-new bands such as Negative Nancy & The Lazy Susans, Grimer, Glitoris, and Slack Jaw (to name a few). The all-ages nature of the show attracted many teens and kids who don't often get a chance to "rock out" or practice their head-banging skills to live music. A highlight of the evening was the much-anticipated opening performance of 3-year-old Abel Shatilla: rumors about his ukulele song "Punk Rock Doughnut" spread like wildfire around town but unfortunately Abel was struck by sudden stage fright and decided not to perform to the cheering crowd.

A total of 7 full bands showcased original tunes, many of which included angsty lyrics and theatrical personas crafted through glitter, face paint, wigs, costumes, and other thrift store finds.

Much like the "Girls Rock Camp" model used elsewhere in Canada, the point of the fundraiser was to give a musical opportunity to local residents who may not otherwise get a chance to learn how to play an instrument and perform in a fun, supportive, and nonjudgmental environment.

For several of the participants, it was their first time being part of a band. It is likely that some of the bands will continue practicing and it might even become a regular event. The "band lottery" nature of the event brings people together who might not otherwise collaborate.

"Being in a band for the first time was exhilarating and empowering. Everyone is listening to you" says Kim Edgar (of the band Glitoris), "It also served to remind me that playing music in front of people doesn't have to be a big deal or a big production, it can be as complex or as simple as you want it to be".

Through a by-donation entry fee, a merch table with assorted pins and t-shirts, a photo booth with onsite printing thanks to Peabody's Photo Parlour, a keg of Chilkoot beer, and tasty corndogs, DCMF raised over $1200 for the upcoming all girls youth rock & roll camp and is very grateful for the support and generosity of the community.

Between April 8 and 21, Kim June Johnson took the last of the Home Routes House Concert series through the Yukon and NWT, arriving in Dawson for a 2 day stay that saw her spending some time at the Robert Service School as well as performing at a house concert.

Johnson was touring material from her latest CD, "Canvas and Clay," accompanying herself on guitar, banjo. ukulele and harmonica. The CD, with a roster of fine session musicians, including DCMF alumnus Daniel Lapp, was bit on the jazzy/pop side of production, and Johnson had scaled back to folkier arrangements for her live solo performance.

The two listening experiences are somewhat different, but equally enjoyable.

Johnson says she got the folk music bug at a young age, listening to her dad playing the guitar and playing his John Denver records.

"I would lay on the shag carpet and put my head in front of the speaker and just listen. I've always been interested in the way that stories change us. Not necessarily just true songs, but the way you can hear a story, and not even know the whole story, or the whole song, but just one line can sometimes just pierce you can change even the course of your day."

Johnson's songs tell stories: about the junk found on an old back street; about the changing of the seasons; about heartbreak; about a love story that doesn't end well.

The title tune from 'Canvas and Clay", which earned her "Vocalist of the Year" at the 2015 Vancouver Island Music Awards, is a meditation on how lives are shaped by experience. It draws on the idea that a painter may make changes as the work proceeds ("we're canvas on a painter's stand"), or that a potter may have to start over several times before throwing the perfect pot (we're clay in a potter's hand").

Though Johnson lives on Hornby Island, she has recently been spending time studying poetry at the University of British Columbia. That being so, she spent part of the evening reciting some of the poetry she had written as a result of that course.

Ironically, a writer who uses rhyme and rhythm regularly to compose song lyrics says she found she had trouble writing older style poetry that required use of the same skills.

Whether the words were spoken or sung, Johnson put of a good show for the last one of the year.

Charles Dagostin is revelling in his first major hockey championship with the Kimberley Dynamiters.

The 20-vear-old Dawson City native and his teammates won the Kootenay International Junior Hockey League (KIJHL) title in six games over the Kamloops Storm.

The Dynamiters clinched the championship with a 5-1 win Mar. 29.

"This was my first-ever league championship, so it was a pretty exciting moment for me," Dagostin told the Star. "It was a surreal feeling.

"We had a really good year. We started off by going 6-0 in the first month, then hit a rough spot where we were a little over .500.

"Then we came back and didn't lose a game in regulation in 2015. Everyone really came together in the second part of the year and the playoffs."

Dagostin, a second-year defenceman, recorded two assists in 18 playoff games after a notching three assists in 45 regular season games.

He was a big-body presence on the back end, killing penalties in a leadership role.

The Dynamiters knocked off the Creston Valley Thundercats, Ferne Ghostriders, Beaver Valseries before meeting the Storm in the final.

The title win earned the Dynamiters a berth in the Cyclone Taylor Cup, where they finished second in the provincial Junior B championship, losing the final 6-5 to the Campbell River Storm.

The Yukoner said it was his team's heart that led to their success.

That was a defining factor for us," he said. "Everyone was sacrificing and making plays that needed to be made. There wasn't anyone pulling the rope in the opposite direction."

The eldest son of Ray Dagostin and Marjorie Logue will return to the Klondike this summer.

Dagostin wasn't the only Yukon hockey player vying for a league title this season.

Brett Roulston's Nanaimo Clippers came agonizingly close to a Junior A crown, dropping the final series of the British Columbia Hockey League to the Fred Page Cup-winning Penticton Vees in six games.

The Vees eliminated the Clippers with a 3-2 overtime win Apr. 17. Roulston scored the goal to force overtime.

Look for the Love!

The pussy willows are starting to have a hint of green in them. This means that very soon, buds will form and then leaves will be burst forth. Lately I've seen and heard seagulls, geese, ducks and swans. When the seagulls return it means that the ice will break on the river within a short time. Spring is truly a time of year that I feel alive--actually, each distinct season helps me to wake up and be fully alive! Think about the last time you truly

What were you doing? Who were you with? Chances are, you were doing something you're passionate about, or you were spending time with someone you love: a favourite relative...a close friend...a lover...

Now think about the last time you felt you were "having the life drained out" of you. You were probably stuck in a boring job, dealing with a difficult person, or far away from your loved

We all have perfectly natural occurrences of loneliness, boredom or frustration, but there are always ways to engage love, and bring more LIFE into your life. You can create something new & exciting, go for a walk in the forest or by a river, visit a park or museum to witness beauty, strike up a conversation with a stranger, or think of something you are grateful for.

When you seek out experiences of love, you are filling yourself with vital energy...you're filling yourself with LIFE. As the old saying goes, "Everyone eventually dies, but not everyone really

Susan Musgrave, touring the territory on behalf of Yukon Public Libraries during the Yukon Writers' Festival, recalled her last trip to the territory, back in 1988, when the federal government was still sponsoring National Book Week. Among the places she visited on that tour was Mayo, and she was inspired to write an essay about the visit by the slogan on a T-shirt she saw there.

"Here Today, gone to Mayo" was the slogan and it became the title.

"When you write about something it really pins down the memory so that you remember it forever, and that's the great thing about writing," she told her audience of 21 in the Dawson Community Library.

Of course, reality may also be altered in the writing, so Sam and Andy's restaurant became Sam and Ellas (say it fast) in the story and there's a reference to a psychiatric institute that still doesn't exist.

"I'm not sure I didn't make some of this up," she confessed. "I used to take my daughters to my readings and they'd sit there going 'that's a lie, that's a lie', so I stopped taking them.

"You know, once you write something, it becomes the truth."

She recalls sitting at a book signing at Books on Main and selling everything (Sourdough Starter, an Ulu knife, and books by Pierre Berton) but her own books.

That whole story, and others, can be found in a book called Great Musgrave.

Her second reading of the evening is the title piece from the collection titles You're in Canada Now ... (expletive deleted). The title is what the Mountie said to the drug smuggler on the beach when he protested that his American civil rights were being violated by the police dog. The full title can only be found inside the book.

Musgrave also entertained with commentary about her life. How does someone who has been married three times and divorced twice end up as a marriage commissioner? Why is her most successful marriage the one where her partner, former bank robber Stephen Reid, has spent most of the marriage in jail?

She spoke movingly about one of her daughters who, after an early adulthood spent on the street struggling with addiction, something she shares with her father, has straightened out her life and is now at university.

She shared a number of shorter works, including a series of poems based on abstract notions that she has been writing as a challenge with fellow poet Lorna Crozier.

The evening ended with a long Q&A session, with Musgrave asking a lot of the questions.

"There are places where I feel at home right away," she said, "and this in one of them."

Now, she said, all she has to do is figure out how to have someone manage her Haida Gwaii guest house for three months some year so she can apply to be a writer-inresidence at Berton House.

LIBRARY MOVIE REVIEWS

with Chris Collins

Monte Walsh

188m

Starring Tom Selleck, Isabella Rosselini, Keith Carradine

As I live in Henderson Corner, I am without television service, so, I often get DVD's from the library. From time to time, I find unsung gems from amongst their collection, and I thought it would be good to share my findings with others.

Monte Walsh was one of those gems. I normally do not like Westerns, and this was a Western. I picked it as I have seen almost everything else. But, what a surprise! No cavalry, no Indian fights, no man to man gunfights at noon despite the picture on the front cover. This was mostly a story about a cowboy named Monte Walsh. And, that is the story, his being a cowboy. While the movie does feature some of the conventions of Westerns, for instance the dawn of newer technologies, it really dwells on the life of the simple cowpuncher. The rotten pay, the long hours, the impossible weather, the temporary nature of the jobs, and all of that.

The movie came out in 2003, and Selleck turned 58 in that year. So, he is older, but, "still looks good in the saddle," a theme often heard in the movie. And, he does. This was an active role for him, but, he was still an active man, and his age certainly did not slow him down at all. In fact, age is even part of the story – when the ranch manager has to lay people off, he lets the youngest go. An even older cowboy "rides fence," being responsible for mending fences, which is seen as a low job for the cowboys and suitable for a man who is past active cowboying. Even Selleck's love interest, played by the Italian-American actress Isabella Rosselini, is 51 in the movie, but, still looking very nice indeed.

It is a sweet story. With some action, humour, and sadness all mixed in to create an entertaining watch. Yes, it does have some of the usual conventions, like a motor vehicle in the year 1900, and the accountant, who takes over many of the ranches for the big company in the East. But, it also has a feel of realism as well. Especially for many of us who live in the Klondike' we will be able to identify with the way the cowboys live in the movie.

I am not sure where it was filmed, but, it looks a lot like the foothills of Alberta. Flat prairie, coolies, and mountains all feature in the film. The cinematography is particularly good, with the wide open spaces well presented. The towns in the film are very realistic; a handful of buildings at most.

Of course, there is a gunfight! It is a Western, after all. But, we get the full back story of why the fight happened. And, it was with rifles, rather than pistols – a touch of realism. Here, the good guy has to fight a long time colleague, and friend. Such is life!

It is rated 7.2 by IMDB, and I give it 4 stars out of 5.

The Mystery of the Man Who (Maybe) Fell in the River

RCMP News Release (May 5, 1995) - At approximately 8:20 p.m. on May 4, 1995, our Detachment was notified that an unknown male had fallen in the Klondike River and a second male, Ralph Blanchard, who attempted to rescue the first person, had been injured.

This incident occurred at the mouth of the Klondike River where it meets the Yukon River. At this time of year, the Klondike River is extremely fast flowing and the Yukon River still has ice flowing from spring break up of other rivers.

Immediate patrols were made with the RCMP jet boat and a helicopter on the Klondike River and the Yukon River as well as the shores of the Yukon River, however, nothing was located.

The injuries that Blanchard rewere not life threatening and he was treated at Father Judge Memorial Hospital and released.

What has been determined thus far is that three men, Ralph Blanchard, Steve McKenna, and an unknown male person were consuming alcohol along the banks of the Klondike River when this unknown male suddenly jumped in the river.

Blanchard attempted to rescue this person by jumping in the water but was forced to abandon his efforts for his own safety as the current was too strong in the river. Searchers continued to search the rivers by boat and air until approximately 10:30 p.m., when the search was called off for the night. A search of the river continued in the morning.

The second person who had been at the river bank, Steve McKenna, still has not been located. McKenna is described as 33 years old, 6 feet tall, 175 lbs, brown hair and wears prescription glasses. RCMP in Dawson are still searching for Steve McKenna as he has not been seen since this incident occurred. If anyone knows of the whereabouts of Mr. McKenna, Dawson City Detachment still has not been able to identify who this unknown male person is that apparently fell in the Klondike River Please contact the Dawson City RCMP as soon as possible.

The Sun obtained funding in late 2009 from the City of Dawson, YTG's Heritage Branch and the Community Development Fund to conserve and archive early issues and make them available once again in the public domain. This is a great resource for students, writers and historians, and also for prospective tourists with an interest in Dawson City's life. Each month, we are re-printing our front pages from 20 years ago (seen above) as a souvenir of our lively history. If you want to see page 2 and beyond, check out our website. Past issues are available there for download. Go to http://klondikesun.com. More will be added periodically (heh) when we have time!

DAWSON CITY MUSIC FESTIVAL

Colin Stetson

Genre: Out Of This World (Avant-Guard Saxophone Rock) Performance Date: Thursday July 23rd 2015 a the Palace Grand

Theatre

As usual, the Dawson City Music Festival will be kicked off with an intimate and awesome performance in the historic Palace Grand Theatre. The muchanticipated "Thursday Kick-offs" are part of DCMF's year-round Concert Series.

DCMF Executive Director Jenna Roebuck says "the tradition of the Thursday night concert evolved out of the Festival's desire to give back to the community and the people of Dawson, many of whom contribute countless volunteer hours over the Festival weekend and miss out on a lot of programming.

Colin Stetson is an artist we have been pursuing for a long time and it is such a thrill to finally be able to see him and his epic live show in Dawson, especially in such an acoustically exquisite space as the Palace Grand. "

On July 23rd, the Palace will be filled with the enrapturing sounds of a saxophone, accented with the techniques of percussive valve and clickwork, circular breathing, and multi-phonics, mixed with loop pedals and contact microphones, making for a viscerally captivating and stimulating one-of-a-kind performance.

"The multiphonics emerging simultaneously from this one-man-band are extraordinary. For starters, rhythmic tiptapping on the foghorn's valves generates a percussive backbone. Sandpaper bass lines and metallic melodies blossom through overblows and cheek-huffpuffing. Finally, on top of everything else, Stetson also sings directly into the reed." – The Quietus Colin Stetson was born and raised in Michigan, USA but after spending a decade honing his talents as a horn

"Stetson demolishes clichés to unleash fresh, unexpected energies. It's like being inside an enormous brass tunnel full of windy byways and slamming valves, at once exhilarating and frightening." - Pitchtork

Stetson could technically be classified as an experimental jazz or indie rock musician, but has developed his own style so much that there really is no similar comparison. He has almost completely exceeded the boundaries of existing genres and has left a huge dedicated fan base in his wake.

Colin is currently touring across Europe but will be returning briefly to Canada in June before departing on another USA tour. He is in high demand as a solo performer but spends the rest of his time as a touring member of The Arcade Fire, as well as working with Tom Waits, Feist, and Bon Iver, to name a few.

Colin Stetson will be performing at the historic Palace Grand Theatre at 7:30 PM on Thursday, July 23rd, 2015. This show will likely sell out, but advance tickets can be purchased online at www.dcmf.com.

CHIEF ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICER

Who we are

Dawson City, Yukon, is home of the Klondike Gold Rush and the heart of Tr'ondek Hwech'in Traditional Territory; we're proud of our mining heritage and First Nations roots that run millennia deep. We're a thriving cultural community—with a post-secondary arts school, several world-renowned festivals, and burgeoning TV and film industry—that borders an outdoor playground sprawling hundreds of kilometres in either direction

Mining, tourism, culture, and our people are the foundation on which our town stands, and we respect personal freedoms and diversity of all definitions. We're a welcoming town and a great place to make a life and raise a family

Through solid planning and focused effort, our town has tackled municipal challenges, developed our municipal infrastructure, and grown our community. We're looking for the right person to lead us in the next steps of advancing our town

You are a strong leader with a background in municipal administration. You have the academic and experiential backgrounds that will help you manage the overall operation of the municipality, including financial and human resources, strategic planning, project management, and policy and bylaw development. You can establish clear goals for senior staff and help them work towards meeting

As Mayor and Council's only employee, you appreciate and understand governance practices and procedural rules. Under Council's strategic direction, you will develop and implement policies and programs that meet the needs of residents, including public works, protective services, recreation, community and economic development, and a municipally operated cable television system.

You are confident in leading a team of 25 employees to meet the goals of the municipality and expectations of municipal service You possess excellent interpersonal and communication skills, and are comfortable working with the public in a high-profile position

If this position interests you, please submit your resume and covering letter clearly demonstrating the qualifications outlined below, as selection for further consideration will be based solely on the information you provide

- A post-secondary degree in Public or Business Administration;
- Five years senior management experience overseeing a department or organization; Developing and implementing policies and programs, including bylaw enforcement;
- Experience in managing, building, leading, and motivating a team in a unionized environment;
- An understanding of the principles of project management and business plan development; Experience managing financial resources, including development of operating and capital budgets;
- Experience working with First Nations Governments
- Experience working with the public, boards, and elected officials
- Ability to interpret and apply Federal, Provincial/Territorial and Municipal statutes, regulations, and programs
- Discretion, tact, compassion, and good judgment Excellent communication skills, both oral and written

Applicants able to demonstrate an equivalent combination nt resume (with three references) and covering letter must be received at the City of Dawson Administration Building by 4:00 pm on May 13, 2015. Applications to this position may be submitted by mail, email, or fax to the following:

of education and experience may be considered

CAO Selection Committee

PO Box 308 Dawson City, Yukon Y0B 1G0 Attn: Heather Favron, Executive Assistant Fax: (867) 993-7434
