Honourable Mentions in the Dawson Daily News Postcard Story Competition, as part of the Print and Publishing Symposium.

Honourable Mention

Gone Wild

by Chris Scott

The girl kicked her boyfriend and he swung but missed 'cause he was drunk. Then she pulled bear spray, and the yellow spray hit him, and it was pandemonium in the bar. Patrons ran choking, and someone dove under the pool table, and the bartender cried, and the girl ran off fast on sexy legs through the pearly grey twilight of a Dawson summer night at 1 a.m.

We learned later that she stole her boyfriend's outboard and slept at Fortymile, and the next day she thumbed to Alaska, and there was a rumour she shacked up with a trapper there. She sent her best friend a postcard, and sewed moccasins, and dropped out of college. She was a sweet girl from a good Montreal family, but later when her parents came looking, we had to tell them that she'd gone wild!

Honourable Mention

Gone Wild

by Dawne Mitchell

She knows she won't get up again as she crumples slowly to the prairie. Down on one knee, her good hip, shoulders touch then crush the wild, sweet sage.

She breathes in.

Watch out for the cactus. She remembers as a child the sharp spine as she ran barefoot through the pasture.

Thousands of geese circle above honking, hovering like a thick shroud before touching down on the field of stubble.

The meadowlark sings out its long song like a clear solo flute. Harvest machines rumble in the distance. The warm air is heavy with ripe, musky grain dust.

Foxtail tickles her bare arm.

Her hand touches the tufts of woolly prairie grass.

The earth holds her.

The sky surrounds.

Honourable Mention — Children's Category

Cat Nip

by Ivan Treleaven (age 12)

Hello, I'm Kitty. I'm a small cat and don't like being small or being named Kitty (even though I'm a full-grown cat!) but my owners do. They always tell me what to do and I'm sick of it!

It's Sunday and my owners are out at their bowling game but before they left they watered all their plants but they didn't let me out to pee and I really had to go. So, I peed in my owners' new plant but it tipped over and it broke. When my owners saw it, they weren't happy. They threw me out!

So I started plotting my revenge. "I know ... I will sneak in and pee in all their plants." So I did. They fainted when they saw it. Victory was mine.

Potoroka to continue as Dawson’s mayor

Story & Photo
By Dan Davidson

Wayne Potoroka will remain the mayor of Dawson for the next three year term. Potoroka was unopposed in his re-election bid and so is acclaimed to the position. Returning officer Bonnie Barber reported this news shortly after 12:30 on Thursday.

Not taking anything for granted, Potoroka mounted a detailed campaign last week, preparing three ads for the Klondike Sun newspaper, as well as posting these ads online.

In a press release announcing his candidacy he said,

“I’m proud of the direction this town is heading and what’s been achieved these past three years, but there is more work to be done.”

As well as being Dawson’s Mayor, Potoroka is a Communications and Policy Director for the Tr’ondëk Hwëch’in; freelance writer and editor; husband; and father of two children, aged five and seven.

He is also President of the Association of Yukon Communities and the Yukon’s representative on the Federation of Canadian Municipalities Board of Directors.

“Local government is a rewarding way of building one’s community,” said Potoroka. “Decisions made on Council affect everyone, and there is no better feeling than improving the lives of your neighbours.”

Aside from Potoroka, three of Dawson’s current councillors, Kyla McArthur, Bill Kendrick and Stephen Johnson, are running for re-election. They confirmed this after the September 22 council meeting.

Darren Taylor is not running for another term.

McArthur works as the administrative officer at the Yukon School of Visual Arts. She has served one full term on council.

Kendrick owns and operates

Dawson council deliberating at the September 22 meeting. L-R: Wayne Potoroka, Kyla McArthur, Bill Kendrick. Stephen Johnson was on the phone from Vancouver where he is receiving rehab after a bad landing while paragliding in the spring.

Sol-Terra Energy, and works part time as Special Projects Coordinator in the Natural Resources branch of the Tr’ondëk Hwëch’in government. He has served one and half terms on council and is the current Deputy Mayor.

Johnson is a retired mining engineer who has served two terms on council.

New to the race are two aspirants: Jay Farr and Driss

Adrao.

Farr has been on the Tr’ondëk Hwëch’in council several times and served as Deputy Chief on the last TH council.

Adrao is on the custodial staff at the Robert Service School.

Minto Park Concession Stand replacement plans move ahead

By Dan Davidson

While the concession stand and washroom building at Minto Park was well past its “best before” date and planning had already begun to replace the structure, the fire which destroyed the building during Labour Day weekend came as a complete surprise to everyone.

Asked what stage replacement of the building was at during the September 22 council meeting, Mayor Wayne Potoroka was quick to respond.

“It’s definitely a priority now,” he said.

“The work that was started on planning what the next building will look like definitely has leapt up the priority list. It would be difficult to do a summer in Dawson without that building there: DCMF, the ball park ball tournaments and all the rest of it. So it is way up on the priority list right now.”

Just days before the fire council had been discussing the results of an evaluation committee’s recommendations for tendering the planning for a new building. This tender proposal was on the agenda again on September 22, and the contract for the creation of a plan was awarded to Across the River Consulting.

This part of the project is worth $20,000 plus GST.

“I have to say that it’s almost fortuitous,” Potoroka said, “that the work that had been planned by this council had already started to determine what the guts of that new building would look like.”

“We should confirm with folks,” added Councillor Bill Kendrick, “that there will be a public process so that people can submit their ideas.”

The intention is to have a replacement in place by the time its needed next summer.

Uffish Thoughts: Tangled Webs of Hair and Duffy

By Dan Davidson

"Oh what a tangled web we weave
When first we practice to deceive."<sup>TM</sup>
- Sir Walter Scott (Marmion, 1808)

This is 2015. Didn't anyone learn any of the lessons from the second term of Richard Nixon's presidency? A little closer to the present, didn't anyone take notes during the fuss over Bill Clinton's affair with Monica Lewinsky?

Nixon's second term, which had its high points in terms of international relations, was brought to a premature end, just short of him being impeached. The cover-up was worse than the offence.

Clinton's infidelity was a moral failing, but it was his stonewalling attempts to cover it all up that led to unsuccessful impeachment proceedings.

While the best lesson one could take from these two events is that the two men should not have been engaged in such behavior in the first place, the secondary lesson, the one which recent events in Canada have shown has not been learned, is that when you mess up badly enough, don't try to hide it.

Mid August's revelations at the Mike Duffy trial have shown us that members of the Prime Minister's Office (PMO) were heavily involved in an attempt to whitewash the Senatorial misdeeds of Mr. Duffy, who is being tried on 31 counts of fraud and related issues.

The PMO's former chief of staff, Nigel Wright, the man who gave Duffy the $90 thousand he needed to pay back what he owed, has stated clearly that he wasn't at all sure Duffy actually owed the money. It was clear, however, that this wasn't so much about Duffy's debts as it was about not having them stain the branding of the Conservative Party of Canada.

To achieve that desired end, it was acceptable to lie, manipulate the media, influence outside auditors, force Duffy to take the money and keep his mouth shut.

It all fell apart, and the man with the money was astute enough to predict to all those names on his email list, that this affair was "going to end badly".

It did and still is, but Prime Minister Harper continues to insist that he knew nothing about it all until the press sprang it on him.

Just over a week before the event which triggered this column while I was in Stratford, the National Post ran a hilarious column by Andrew Coyne, its senior editorial guy, in which he satirically suggested that we should have some sympathy for the Prime Minister. It must, he said, with his tongue firmly in his cheek, be a terrible thing to learn that all your closest aides and associates have been lying to you.

Just over a week later, Margaret Atwood, who had a different point of view about all this, had a column in that same paper, in which she tackled the CPC's apparent fascination with Justin Trudeau's hair, riffing off the attack ads that always end with two tag lines: "Just not ready." "Nice hair, though."

The first line plays on Trudeau's first name, of course, while the second trivializes him as a person.

Atwood dared to suggest that a party whose leader travels with a full time personal stylist (who used to be paid for out of the public purse) ought not to appear to be obsessed with another leader's hair. What's next? she asked. Attack ads about Tom Mulcair's beard?

Towards the end of the piece she slipped in some comments about Mr. Harper's shifting reactions to the Wright payments to Duffy, which ranged from (and I'm not quoting the exact words) "unfortunate and so I accepted his resignation reluctantly" through two permutations before winding up as the current talking point that maintains Wright was wrong from the start and was fired as soon as his boss found out about it.

Atwood's column, like Coyne's before it, spread very quickly through the online community – until suddenly it vanished and the links took you to the dreaded "HTTP 404" message which always tells you that a link is dead.

It turns out that the Post had pulled the column under pressure from its management, attempting to spin the story of the removal to say that it hadn't been fact checked. What – not when they'd had it for nine days and it had been approved by its editorial team? Then, after the #hairgate Twittersphere went nuts and Atwood herself complained, the Post put it back, minus a few sentences at the end.

Fat chance that would work these days. Lots of people had already copied the entire text and passed it around, and Walrus magazine put the original on its website inside of 36 hours.

See, Sir Walter Scott was right. Weaving tangled webs of deception is a bad business, often worse than the original offence.

MacArthur seeks another term on council

Hi Dawson! I'm Kyla MacArthur, and I am seeking re-election in the upcoming municipal election.

It seems like just yesterday I was asking you to use one of your votes to elect me to city council. I asked you then to trust me to do my best; to allow me to learn and grow and work for the whole community; and to expect me to serve with an open door and common sense. I can say with all honesty that one of the proudest moments of my life came the night you did just that. The fact that many of you put your trust in me to represent you and make sound decisions for the whole community – well, I have carried that with me into every meeting, discussion, event or outing I have participated in.

The past three years have flown by. Dawson still faces some big challenges for the years to come, but much work has been done to address some important issues. I feel fortunate to have been part of a team that has finally found a way forward for the Rec Centre, that has made steps towards addressing the issue of much-needed housing and lot development, and that has made communication and consultation a priority.

Many things have changed in the city in the last three years, but the values I hold have not. As councillor, I have strived to be approachable, reasonable and committed to being as informed as possible. I have made the best decisions I could, based on good information, research and consultation. I have done a lot of listening, a lot of asking questions, and have always stayed open minded.

So, why am I running again? I am committed to this community. I live here, I care about this place, and I want to continue to share your voice for the future of our home. Despite a lot of head-way in many areas important to the all of us, there is still work to be done – and I am ready to keep working on these issues and projects.

As our town is constantly changing, we need to embrace the future and move forward with continued thoughtfulness, consideration, and consultation. We need to work from where we are, and learn from the past, but also be open to new approaches and opinions as Dawson grows and develops. I have asked you for feedback and I have heard you. You have shared with me your ideas, opinions, criticisms, and even reassurances. You may not agree with all of my opinions, beliefs, or decisions, but you can be assured that any decision I make will be based on as much information and consultation as possible, and that ultimately, I will continue to represent you the best I can. I am a hard worker, and my door is always open. If you have any questions or concerns, email me! kylaforcouncil@gmail.com

On October 15th, please vote for me – Kyla MacArthur – I am ready to keep working for you.

Klondike Tourism Roundup reveals a positive 2015 season

By Dan Davidson

As the official tourism season wound to a close and the final days of Parks Canada's extended shoulder season approached, Dawson's tourism operators – those who hadn't left town already – gathered in the Downtown Hotel's conference room for the annual Klondike Tourism Roundup.

Some years this has been a somewhat depressing event, but this year even some of the more cautious voices were upbeat and positive.

Moderator Gary Parker, executive director of the Klondike Visitors Association (KVA), kept the meeting moving and brought it in at just about the two hours promised on the agenda.

The KVA's Paul Robitaille outlined the agency's marketing plan, which has been refocused on people who might not be coming here anyway via tours and caravans. Robitaille and Katie Pearse described the target audience as "nearby and non-tour" and indicated that the KVA is trying to get a better idea of who that audience is and why they choose to come here.

Mayor Wayne Potoroka reported that the town is working on its Downtown Revitalization Program, with a particular focus on keeping the place attractive. Boardwalks are a priority, but the town is innovating by creating a public washroom next to the Old CIBC Building on Front Street. That historic building is also being cleared of all hazardous materials so that the next step – deciding how to improve it and find a use for it – can be begun.

A World Heritage Status nomination, currently being helmed by the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, is also high on the town's agenda. Molly Shore reported on that project on behalf of the local advisory committee.

The community residential and commercial building sign project has completed the phase of assigning numbers and it will be ready to link to the 911 Emergency telephone service when the territorial government is ready to roll that out.

Of the recent destruction by fire of the Minto Park concession stand, the Mayor indicated that a new structure should be in place by the time it is needed next summer.

Potoroka was the first to mention a push for paving the runway at the Dawson Airport, and was joined on that topic by Air North's Ed Peart. The airline is encouraging all concerned to engage in a lobbying campaign. Summer flights of Holland-America visitors are planned again for a third summer next year, and the runway upgrade is vital. YTG's Erin Deacon (with Economic Development) indicated that an airport paving consultation will soon be under way.

Parks Canada's David Rohatensky reported a substantial percentage increase in visitation to Klondike National Historic Sites' programs. This was 17% in KNHS stats, which don't always translate well for comparison to other numbers. The extended season proved itself last year and that promise is continuing to be fulfilled this year.

He added that KNHS's involvement for such activities as film industry support, commercial shots and familiarization tours has been strong this year.

Speaking for YTG Tourism, Pierre Germain called this season a good one, with strong American and overseas visitation. The Yukon Now program now has six completed commercials that can be run at various lengths, and the Dawson area is featured in five of them. There are two winter and four summer features. They will be showcased at an open house in Whitehorse late in October and he expects to tour them through the rural communities after that.

Karen Dubois, executive director of the Dawson City Arts Society, spoke of how many of the programs offered by the Klondike Institute of Art and Culture (KIAC) have spun off into tourism

Jay Farr: A Dawsonite for all Dawsonites

Hello my name is Jay Farr and I'm vying to be one your councillors for the City of Dawson Elections this October, I'm a Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in FN member and I was also involved in the FN's politics with a seat on the C&C as a councillor from 2011-2014. FN politics is a whole lot different than the municipality's politics that I'm running for, but I'm eager to learn different aspects on how the City of Dawson functions everyday.

I was very active in sports when I grew up here, so I'd like the to see the City of Dawson be more involved in our future citizens' healthy living, I'm a big advocate of youth programs because I'd hate to see our youth travel out of town for training in various sports, or citizens leaving town for good because our facilities don't help to train or keep them active over the winter months.

I'd like to see better facilities for our youth today and for our future citizens tomorrow.

Vote for Jay Farr for a seat on the City of Dawson Mayor & Council as a Councillor.

product. The latest to head in that direction is the Print and Publishing Symposium, which looks to be forming its own board to continue into its fifth year. Another spin-off organization in the Friends of the Palace Grand, which grew out of a two year pilot project of productions in that building. The hope for next summer, after Parks completes the renovations that limited the use of the building this year, is to create a sort of Klondike Home Companion variety show.

At the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre, Glenda Bolt reported that her numbers were up, thanks to cooperation from the Visitor Information Centre (VIC), KNHS and the Westmark Hotel.

The Eldorado Hotel's Karen Jenkins reported a "very, very good year". Occupancy rates were up, she said, but costs have risen as well, so revenue was down a bit.

At the Dawson City River Hostel, across the Yukon River, Dieter Reinmuth reported a lot of one-night stays, and that his mainly European clientele did not seem to be interested in history, culture or mining. They seemed to be here for the land and did not need to sample much of the other products the town has to offer.

David Millar, more jovial than usual, said his Goldbottom

Mining Tours operation (including the tours of Dredge No. 4) had had what he felt was one of his best seasons ever, and that his customers were clearly very interested in the history and the mining. A lot of this he attributed to the two reality television shows that deal with the subject.

General Store owners Mark and June Mathers said they had had "an unbelievable year" with business up 18 to 22 percent. They also mentioned revenue generated by the television shows.

There were numerous comments related to the difficulty in getting a good statistical take on how visitation stacked up across the town's offerings. At the Dawson City Museum, acting director Alex Somerville reported on a very positive season but wondered how to make one solid report from his stats and those at Parks, the VIC and other sources.

This is a challenge that has been mentioned in the past, and it does not appear that there has been much progress in finding a solution.

Communication among the various tourism partners seems to be the key element. As Gary Parker put it in his closing remarks, "We don't always have to agree with each other, but we do need to keep talking."

Dawson City Youth Travel to Alberta for the Westerns

Submitted by Irwin Gaw

Five Dawson City youth attended the 2015 Western Canada Summer Games held in Fort McMurray this past August. The athletes represented the Yukon in soccer, volleyball and athletics. Approximately 2,400 participants take part every four years, from the four western provinces and three territories. It is tough for the Yukon teams to compete with the provinces but the games against the Territories are the matches where the Yukon teams hope to score a win. Zackery Bartholomeus, Dawson's men's volleyball representative, helped lead his team with his strong defensive play for an early victory in the round robin round over the NWT and then a straight-set 3 game victory over the NWT team in the territorial showdown. Sam Crocker and Ethan Gaw, playing on the men's U16 and Sarah Nyland for the women's U16 soccer teams both finished with 2-0 victories over the NWT. Crocker and Gaw both playing defence helped keep the NWT team off the score board in the men's division. Nyland playing striker for the women's squad netted the Yukon team's first goal of the tournament in the final match against their territorial rival. Jack Amos was our athletics representative participating and posting the best Yukon times in the 3000 and 5000 meter finals. Amos finished 9th in the 5000 meter and 12th out of 15 in the 3000 meter race. It is great to see our local athletes joining in to represent the Yukon. Their contribution is making our Yukon teams stronger and more competitive at the national level.

The Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in celebrate the first harvest at their new Teaching Farm

Story & Photos
By Dan Davidson

The Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in met on September 17 to celebrate the first harvest from their newly established farm.

Just about a year ago, the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in and Yukon College began a partnership to develop a Teaching and Working Farm at the site known as Strachan's Farm. Located 15 km outside of Dawson, quite near the airport, the parcel of land is part of the First Nation's traditional territory and part of its land selection under its final land claim agreement.

Emceeding the celebration, Dexter MacRae, TH's Director of Human Resources and Community Training, introduced elder Angie Joseph-Rear to provide the opening prayer and the Hän Singers to set the celebratory mood with three songs.

Chief Roberta Joseph spoke of the First Nation's long desire to develop this farm.

"Agricultural development on TH land has been a dream of our nation for many years," she said. "Citizens have let us know that they wanted a chance to engage in the agricultural economy while growing fresh, healthy produce for our people.

"The farm is helping us achieve those goals."

Joseph gave thanks to Yukon College for the partnership, the Yukon government for interest and funding, and to the successful local farmers who have not hesitated to offer support and guidance.

MacRae indicated that the farm, with only about one tenth of a hectare under cultivation, had produced more than 1,100 kilograms of such crops as potatoes, carrots, beets and onions during this growing season. Most of the produce has been harvested and distributed to TH citizens earlier in the month.

The farm was managed and cared for over the summer by a group of young people who had little previous experience with the work. They lived at the site and learned on the job. Led by Adam Farr, they included Joshua Moses, Nick Rear, Harley Moses, Eddy Gerberding, Jennifer Titus and Nancy-Jane Taylor. They were singled out for special thanks by MacRae later in the evening.

The growing season has been winding down in Dawson for several weeks, and the last of the Saturday Farmers' Markets in the open-air stalls next to the shelter in the Waterfront Park was held just this last weekend (Sept. 19).

Joseph noted that projects like this one aid in providing food security for the North in the face of the increasing effects of climate change. She said that the project is intended to expand in the years to come, going beyond vegetables to other types of food.

"As much as we'll be growing food," she said, "we'll be growing our community and our nations as well."

MacRae indicated the possibility of livestock a few years down the road.

Dr. Christopher Hawkins, Yukon College's Vice President of Research and Community Engagement, was on hand to say a few words.

"When Dexter approached the college about a year and a half ago with the dream, as I view it, we knew that we really wanted to be involved with it," he said.

"It's come together much faster than I thought it would and that's terrific. I want to congratulate all the folks who did work out here, and the steering committee and the advice that did come from local folks as well as the agriculture department. It truly has been a team effort.

"On behalf of the college, I'd like to present Chief Joseph with this ceremonial shovel."

The evening concluded with a feast. Some of the food stuff came from the ground, but the big attraction was the roast moose haunch which provided some very succulent meat and gravy.

Happily enough, it had rained earlier in the evening and that seemed to keep the bugs down

Music was provided by local musicians Peter Menzies, Jimmy Roberts, Marion Dale and Halin DeRepentigny.

Dawson will soon have new wells running

By Dan Davidson

The greensward along Front Street south of the Commissioner's residence has been cluttered with construction equipment most of the summer as the town continued with the completion of its four new production wells.

The project's conclusion has been stalled due to some of the wrong electrical components having been shipped to the site and delays involved in getting the proper equipment. Public Works Superintendent Norm Carlson advised council on Sept. 22 that the project is back on track though it is behind schedule.

He forecasts a completion date in this coming November.

This project grew out of a study by Stantec Consulting that was commissioned in 2012 to evaluate the state of Dawson's water supply system.

The final report by the engineering firm of Morrison Hershfield concluded that the three existing wells needed to be replaced for the following reasons:

- The motors in the wells were constantly failing due to original construction that did not allow for adequate cooling, therefor the system was unreliable and very expensive to operate.
- The existing wells did not meet current Canadian well drilling guidelines and so the town was

- ## New wells running soon - continued from p. 8
- ordered to upgrade them by Environmental Health.

  - Further, the town was mandated by Environmental Health to install water treatment as the existing wells were designated as GUDI (groundwater under the direct influence of surface water).

The four new wells have been drilled with an eye to correcting the manganese issues that stemmed from the old PW1 and the fecal coliform issues that plagued PW3.

The new wells are "sixteen inches in diameter" replacing the three "ten inch diameter wells". "The larger size will allow for adequate motor cooling. Four wells were chosen to give us enough redundancy and to provide adequate water to allow for increased Dawson population anticipated in the future."

The water treatment system has not been constructed at this time and the new pumps "will be configured to allow adequate pumping pressures and flows" when that should take place.

As one of Dawson's three old wells has been shut down due to coliform contamination (which contributed to a boil water order for a period last year) Carlson noted that "it is imperative that we get these new wells up and running ASAP."

Dawson REM creates a sense of community

Story & Photos
By Dan Davidson

The Art and Margaret Fry Arena was a busy place during the four days of the Fall 2015 Rural Experiential Model Sessions. Here is where the 95 students and their supervising teachers and REM mentors met for all their meals. The rec centre kitchen was the place where the Culinary Arts crew prepared most of those meals (except for breakfasts) and the snacks that were provided throughout the day.

Georgia Hammond, herself a graduate of Robert Service School, and the owner of Aloha Food and Events, is very familiar with the industrial style kitchen, from which her company offers a snack bar service throughout the winter. She's in charge of this workshop.

"It's gong really great," she said on the third day. "We've got four kids from Haines Junctions, Faro, and Dawson and they're doing really well. They're actually very, very helpful. They've been feeding everybody about five meals a day."

She wishes that rural students had had opportunities like this one when she was in school at RSS.

Michael Richie from Haines Junction, and Jeffrey Joseph Gabat from Faro, agree with her assessment. They both said they were enjoying the break from regular classwork, but they were having to work hard during the week and learning all sorts of neat stuff. Neither of them had much background in cooking, but at the finale, a days after this interview, they made the audience at the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre drool over the very tasty looking pie they had created.

Across town at the Klondike Institute of Art and Culture, located in the restored Odd Fellows Hall, Tony Ciprani, of the Head to Toe Salon in Whitehorse, was giving instruction in haircutting and styling to a group of girls, one of whom was Dawson's Lauren Jenkins.

"REM is about expanding your horizons and finding new opportunities," she said.

Meeting new students from other communities is another kind of expansion.

"I've met a lot even just in the course I'm taking."

Liz Woods, in charge of Rural Alternative Learning at the Department of Education, was on familiar ground during the REM, having taught high school science courses at RSS for a number of years before her current job. She was the on-site organizer for this year's event.

Liz Woods, Rural Alternative Learning Consultant

Organization for the fall event, the third time it has been held in Dawson, began right after the May REM in Watson Lake.

"Out budget for two REMs is roughly $70,000," she said, "and this one will come in just under

The Hair and esthetics group showing off their final products.

$30,000 thanks to the many in-kind contributions, community spirit, session leaders who are being sponsored by their own work places."

Regional Superintendent Bill Bennett, newly appointed to this post a few months ago, attended the first REM three years ago while he was in charge of the Alternative Learning Centre in Whitehorse. Bennett grew up in Mayo and has spent a lot of time in rural Yukon.

"Being in this position gives me an amazing opportunity just

Culinary Arts in the Rec. centre kitchen to look at the whole program, how the students were engaged, how everybody was just very, very happy.

"The REM has become a community in itself, not only within the kids but in the staff. They've used the opportunity to use it as professional development, to look at each others' strengths, I think it's just a win-win situation for all the communities that take part and for the students and the staff.

"The community of Dawson does an amazing job. It's an excellent partnership with everybody: the City of Dawson, Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, the school, the staff in the school, all the outliers in the community, the cooks and everything. It's just been great.

"The opening feast was amazing held by the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, and the ending feast will be at the TH Hall as well."

Bennett says the program is budgeted again for the spring session

An offbeat evening of vocal and piano stylings

Story & Photo
By Dan Davidson

Thursday night is not a usual concert night in Dawson City, so perhaps this goes to explain the relatively small turnout of about 17 folk at the vocal and piano classical concert presented by Sarah Jo Kirsch & Madeline Hildebrand on September 17.

Then again, maybe a classical vocal/piano concert might have sounded like it would be stuffy and boring.

Well, it wasn't. Part of this was because Kirsch, who hosts a classical music radio show in Winnipeg, injected a lot of cleverly phrased information in between each set of tunes, mixing entertainment with infotainment.

The duo offered a little something for everyone, beginning with more melodic works by Benjamin Britten and Claude Debussy, and then concluding these two sets with a warning.

"So that's it for the pretty music," Kirsch said.

There followed several sets of more modern material, almost all – but not quite – by composers who are still living. The duo favours contemporary classical fare, and presents it well.

As much of the lyric content was not in English, it helped a great deal that both of them were very dynamic performers, Kirsch, in particular, using body language and facial expressions to make it pretty clear what it was she was singing about each case.

One set of material had, as lyrics, the text from a series of SPAM emails, including bank solicitations, get rich schemes and ads for male enhancement drugs. That last item left the singer somewhat winded.

The final cycle of songs, by Canadian composer Peter Tiefenbach, verged on the slapstick.

The four songs, Hildebrandt explained, were about things that the composer found in his cupboards. This was one set of songs that actually had props so the audience would know what was going on.

In all, it was a delightful evening; something a little out of the ordinary round of entertainment, but very much worth it.

This performance in the Odd Fellows Hall was part of a cooperative venture with Whitehorse Concerts.

Celtic tunes made for a mellow evening

By Dan Davidson

A capacity audience crowded into Pete Menzies' living room for the beginning of the fifth season of Dawson's House Routes House Concert series on September 26. Menzies calculates this was the thirty-fourth concert since Dawson tied into the program.

Dawson is part of the Aurora Trail circuit this year, which includes concerts from Atlin through several gigs in Whitehorse, then on to Haines Junction, Faro, Mayo, Old Crow and Inuvik. For the performers it's a 10 to 14 day marathon once you include the travel.

Nuala Kennedy and Eamon O'Leary both hail from Ireland; he from Dublin and she from Dundalk. Their schedules show them spending a fair amount of time in North America in recent years, and the CD they put out with Alt band mate John Doyle was actually recorded in North Carolina.

Kennedy and O'Leary record together, as solo performers, and with other musicians as inspiration strikes them. The combination on this tour has Kennedy playing a variety of whistles and flutes, while O'Leary holds forth on guitar and bouzouki (which he describes as being an outsize mandolin).

Both are also fine vocalists and share duties on lead and harmony quite seamlessly.

Their repertoire leaned somewhat on the material they had recorded with Doyle on the Alt album, as that was the only material they had with them to sell, but they sampled some material from their other musical lives as well. They focus primarily on adapting traditional tunes, both instrumental and lyrical, to a somewhat more modern interpretation, but they do write material of their own, remaining faithful to the sound and the themes of the tunes that inspired them to become performers when they were young.

A month ago they were performing in County Mayo, Ireland, and the day before Dawson they were in Mayo, Yukon. From there they were off to Old Crow and then their touring schedule shows them spending the next two months on the American east coast before winding up at the Austin Celtic Festival in Texas.

Hope for the future of the Dawson Recycling Program

At the Recycling Depot in Dawson City staff and caring citizenry are working hard to try and tackle the three R's: Reduce, Reuse and Recycle. The depot is run by the Conservation Klondike Society (CKS). The society hopes to expand its services from just recycling to reusing and then also reducing.

"We would like to turn what we have here into a resource for the community," said Katie English, the CKS Coordinator.

And they mean it; their first step has been to install an industrial glass crusher, which is used to re-purpose glass bottles and jars into a local source of aggregate. As a material, glass aggregate is durable, strong, easy to place, and easy to compact.

According to the book Best Practices in Glass Recycling, "The material can be used for construction applications including general back-fill, roadways, utility back-fill, and a drainage medium..."

The program is not yet supplying aggregate to the Dawson community.

"We are working on it. It might take a year but I am pretty persistent about it," Derrick Hastings the Societies President said.

It is widely believed that the energy savings from recycling far outweigh the energy used. This has resulted in major savings for far north communities such as Dawson City, and if the Conservation Klondike Society is able to expand the number of community-enriching uses for locally available recycling the energy savings will be notable.

According to the National Wildlife Federation (NWF), "it takes 95% less energy to recycle aluminum, and 40% less energy to recycle Glass than it does to make new aluminum or glass them from a raw materials."

"Aluminum will always be a challenges [for us] because we do have hundreds and thousands of cans. However, currently we are sending huge bags of mostly air to Whitehorse. If we build a facility that is modernized we can compress [aluminum-cans] down to blocks," Derrick Hastings said. He believes that if they are able to get an industrial can-compacter they will reduce the size of their aluminum-can shipments saving money and energy.

"We need compactors, balers and whatever else we can afford," he added.

Another major issue the CKS Recycling Depot deals with on a daily basis comes from people dropping off moldy, wet or soiled paper.

"Mold from wet paper can destroy an entire recycled paper shipment ... damp paper is the worst," said Depot Attendant, Beth Paul.

According to Hastings, "clear plastic containers are the most energy valuable and if you put your energy into washing them it makes sense in terms of energy savings. Anything that comes in dirty here generally goes into the garbage here ... we do not have a place to wash [recycling]."

"We are not a drop facility. We are getting more and more bags of unsorted recycling," said Naomi Gladish.

Beth Paul emphasized that, "We would like to thank all of the community members who sort their recycling before dropping it off. It helps us out a lot and we deeply appreciate it."

According to Katie English the new Recycling facility will be called the Dawson City Waste Diversion Facility. Adding that, "with the new facility we are hoping to get a curb side pick up program started for Dawson."

CKS also does affordable commercial paper pickup services. Participants pay $10 per paper pick-up, $20 for paper and recycling which can happen on a weekly, bi-weekly, or monthly basis, depending on the need.

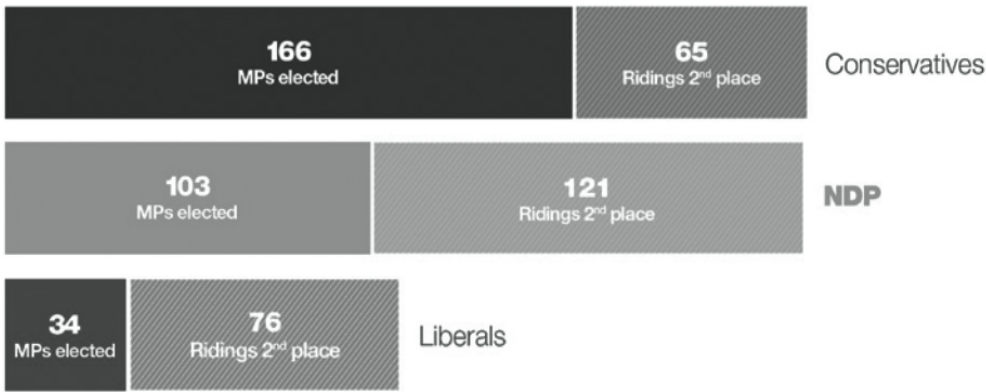

If you're interested in having paper collected from your business or organization, contact Conservation Klondike at 993-6666 or cksadmin@gmail.com.

Bill Kendrick seeks re-election to the City Council team

Hello Dawson – My name is Bill Kendrick and I am seeking re-election to Dawson City Council on October 15th.

Dawson City Council is a team made up of 5 people, one mayor and four councilors. We share information and ideas with each other, before we make what we all hope will be the best decision possible.

Being part of a great team does not always mean agreeing with others or being silent. I am an effective voice on Council, one who is not afraid to speak up, ask tough questions or suggest new (or old) ideas to help us make better informed decisions for our town.

I first arrived in Dawson in 1992 and the people, place, and potential continue to inspire me. I have worked in diverse fields including the construction trades and film and video industry, and am currently employed at Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in. I also have a small business in renewable energy and plumbing. I bring a varied and knowledgeable background to the Council position. This past Council has made some real progress on many goals, including increasing building lot availability and making critical investment decisions in recreational facilities and municipal infrastructure. We have been instrumental in initiating the rejuvenation of the old bank on Front Street. We are implementing a development incentive policy that will financially assist businesses and residents to build additional housing, including secondary suites.

There are still challenges and much to do, but there is ingenuity in Dawson City and we will get it done! I would like to continue being part of this as a member of the Council team.

I'm a supporter of enhancing our recreation facilities and promoting healthy activities for our children, youth, adults and seniors.

I support a fair tax and service fee structure for residents and businesses. As we support our City's infrastructure and programs, we have to be fiscally responsible to our City, its residents and its businesses.

At the City we need to improve our transparency and accountability. One aspect of this is to improve our communications. We still need to upgrade the audio and video broadcasts of Council meetings, for example, and air them on the local radio station. Regular open format council meetings for the public are also of benefit and we need to have more of them.

There are so many things to talk about, too many for this short newspaper piece, so call me or stop me on the street, or in a grocery store, to discuss any of your Dawson issues or ideas. I can be reached at 6367 or by email at bill.kendrick@cityofdawson.ca.

I am ready to work with a newly elected Council team and the City's very recently hired Chief Administrative Officer to support and enhance our unique and prosperous community. Vote Bill Kendrick on October 15th.

LARRY BAGNELL, LIBERAL CANDIDATE FOR YUKON

I AM RUNNING BECAUSE I WANT TO HELP YUKONERS. I SPENT 10 YEARS WORKING FOR YUKONERS IN PARLIAMENT. IT WAS VERY IMPORTANT AND REWARDING WORK AND, WITH MY EXPERIENCE, I HAVE MORE TO OFFER THE TERRITORY. HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE FROM ALL YUKON COMMUNITIES HAVE ASKED ME IF I WOULD BE WILLING TO RUN AGAIN AND THIS SUPPORT MEANS A LOT TO ME. - LARRY BAGNELL

Contemplating the Future of the Klondike Sun

Some folks wonder why the Klondike Sun is published by the Literary Society of the Klondike. It's simple really. The territorial office where societies are registered refused to allow us to be the Klondike Sun Newspaper Society. There were too many groups that started with Klondike already, we were told back in 1989.

Ah well, we don't just publish news after all. We publish poetry, short stories and material used to promote a number of local organizations in the community: the Library, Humane Society, and other groups that have things they need to say.

Is that the sort of thing we should continue to do in the future? Who should be doing it? Who wants to? These are questions we'd like to discuss for about an hour on
