Women of the High North

By Jonathan Ostrander

twice as hard as a man"
Is my grievously tardy
admission
"They work double the odds on the very same plan
But receive only half recognition"

"A woman must work

Oh the men of the high north will boast of their guile
Telling tale after tale of their glory
While the gals of the north will sit, listen, and smile
For they know the rest of the story.

So Carmack found gold, or so we are told His name is on Discovery's stake But would you be surprised were it to unfold That the actual founder was Kate?

Then there's old Ethel
Berry and Madame
Tremblay
Not just married to
Clarence and Jack
They climbed the damn
chilkoot, worked claims night and day
All while making a home of a shack

Belinda Mulrooney, now there was a lass! The great Grand Forks entrepreneuse She staked her own claims and was Dawson's top brass Without any help from monsieurs

And of course, the renowned first lady of North
She drew Yukon's political map

And of course the poor ladies of paradise path Molly Fewclothes, and Ethel The Moose They climbed the same trails, and though their passions were fast Their methods were more effective than sluice

The girls of the dance halls were tougher than most
On their feet swinging all night, till late
And so few are remembered, but the one we all know
Is the Queen of the Yukon, Klondike Kate

And then there's the stalwarts who came on their own Nellie Cashman, prospector renowned From the Cassiar gold rush to the streets of Tombstone She knew Dawson was her kind of town.

Apologies to Jon, who found his name atop the wrong poem last issue. He was the winner.

And how did we hear of these stark pioneers? I suppose I should probably mention... She hiked up the trail, (and her skirt, to her knees)
And to wrote with the pen name Faith Fenton.

So sing to the praise of the Boreal Belles, Though their legacy is sometimes passed over They put up with the guff, and the cold, and the smells And many went through it all sober!

The northland takes grit, and they're chalked full of it

There's nary a fight they would forfeit
And even we men of the north will admit
We'd never dare work in a corset.

The Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs and the International Association of Fire Fighters launch mental wellness initiative

(October 13, 2015) - That firefighting is a physically demanding occupation is widely accepted, but greater attention to the mental and emotional stresses of the role is needed. Research shows that a single incident can lead to posttraumatic injury. In Canada between 10 and 35 per cent of first responders will develop Post Traumatic Stress Disorder

Studies completed in the 1990's have demonstrated that occupational stress outcomes for firefighters include high levels of alcoholism and substance abuse, a suicide rate that is 30% higher and marital problems that are 50% higher than that of comparison groups. According to the Tema Conter Memorial Trust, 44 first responders and military members died by suicide in the past year.

Part of the problem is the nature of mental illness. More than half of the people with mental health problems won't seek treatment. Among firefighters the main barriers to using mental health services is the stigma of mental illness, the fear it will have a negative impact on careers, and lack of knowledge on how to access existing services.

On September 24, 2015, the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs (CAFC) and the International Association of Fire Fighters (IAFF) convened the inaugural meeting of the Firefighter Mental Wellness Advisory Group to discuss the need for an alignment initiative to address the mental health of Canadian firefighters. In attendance were representatives of the CAFC Board of Directors and National Advisory Council, the IAFF, the Council of Canadian Fire Marshals and Fire Commissioners (CCFMFC), and the Mental Health Commission of Canada (MHCC).

"CAFC recognizes that fire personnel are our greatest assets and, as such, we need to devote time and resources to addressing their mental wellness needs. Leading research in this area is one of our Association's top policy priorities," said CAFC President Chief Paul Boissonneault.

In this meeting, the participants expressed their strong commitment to working collaboratively and to sharing resources to build the Mental Wellness Roadmap initiative. With strong stakeholder partnerships, as CAFC president Boissonneault explained, "this initiative will identify the tools required to support the fire service in the recognition, intervention, prevention, and treatment of mental health issues facing firefighters in

"Post-traumatic stress has taken a large toll on the men and women of the fire service across North America. It's time to bring PTSD out of the shadows of our profession and into a new era of awareness, acceptance and treatment. Any initiative that accomplishes these goals is one that will save lives and has the full support of the IAFF," said IAFF General President Harold Schaitberger

The expected outcome of this initiative is a well-mapped action plan that will identify: (a) the gap in firefighter focused mental health research; (b) potential content of a national firefighter mental wellness educational campaign; (c) training programs in existence and gaps; and (d) provincial and territorial mental health and work compensation policies.

The CAFC and the IAFF strongly believe that working together on a sustained longterm mental wellness strategy will lead to the:

- Improvement of the capacity of the fire service and health professionals to quantify the prevalence and type of mental health issues affecting the fire service and properly guide education, diagnosis and treatment efforts.
- Improvement of firefighters' mental health resilience and literacy.
- Development of skills and knowledge that help firefighters better manage potential or developing mental health problems in themselves or a colleague.

- Reduction of treatment barriers.
- The standard provision of mental health services for firefighters and work compensation policies across the country.

Dawson City Youth Attend the Nationals

Five Dawson City youth participated in the Canadian Soccer Nationals this past October, playing against Club Teams representing the Provinces and Territories.

Kacie Hastings, Aliyah Nyland and Austin Franks, recently returned home from the U14 Nationals held in St. John's, Newfoundland while Sarah Nyland and Teresa Procee competed in Surrey, BC in the U16 age category.

When asked about their experiences:

Kacie Hastings said If you never take a shot, you'll never get a goal and looks forward to her next high level soccer opportunity, trying out for Arctic Winter Games being held in Greenland this coming

Sarah Nyland said her best game was the second match after she had a chance to get used to the weather, the team and the pace of play.

Teresa Procee said, "I was playing in an older age group and found the tournament very dramatic. It was a good experience and I look forward to playing again."

Austin Franks said, "Our best game was against Alberta, we had a good game against them.

We lost 4-0 but we were tied after the first half and then we got a little tired on the second half. We did awesome in all of our games and we are younger than the other teams. We know what we are going again next year so I think we are going to have more experience and we will win more games.

Aliya Nyland said. "t was a lot of fun and I would do it again because you don't get to compete at a high level like that very often."

Uffish Thoughts: The case of the invisible parking ticket

By Dan Davidson

Our recent foray into the wilds of downtown Toronto has left us with a bit of a puzzle to solve.

It began on our last night there when our daughter and her "possilg" (person of the opposite sex sharing living quarters; coined by Judy Blume, I think) decided that we should all go out to a Thai restaurant on Wellington Street, which was not too difficult a drive from our hotel on Bond.

Parking in Toronto can be a trial, so I was delighted to find a spot between two vehicles on the side of the one-way street across from the restaurant. There were easily six or seven other cars parked there as well, and our rented Jetta was easy to parallel park. We parked at about 7:15, found the very crowded and noisy restaurant, and had a fine meal.

Coming out a couple of hours later, we all got in the car and drove, with the windshield wipers flapping in the rain, to the other side of town where the youngsters have their flat. We parked in one of the spots just off the back half-lane that they would be using if they had a car, and were there perhaps 45 minutes to an hour.

Coming out we found a bright yellow parking ticket under the driver's side windshield wiper. In some detail a M. Brabant described our rental unit and the place where we (and all those other cars) had parked, and made it known that our Code 5 violation was parking on a signed highway during prohibited (daytime) hours.

I would dispute the notion that 7:39 p.m. (when the ticket was printed) actually qualifies as daytime in Toronto on September 11, but there's probably a bylaw that specifies 8 p.m. or some such, so let that go. I did look for "no parking" signs when we first arrived, but perhaps I just missed them in the twilight hour.

No other cars had parking tickets when we exited the restaurant. They are practically fluorescent and would have been glaringly obvious, even in the dark. I know this because the one left with us was.

The greater mystery is how the ticket finally ended up where it did.

It was not there in front of me as I drove across the city to Adelaide Street in the rain, and it would have blown away or have been dislodged by the motion of the wipers if it had been.

It was barely damp when I plucked it from its resting place, so it had not felt the full force of the weather.

How did it get there? Did some hyper vigilant meter-person follow us across the city in order to deposit the ticket?

Were we tracked by CCTV and then someone was dispatched to tag us once we came to a stop?

Is it a real ticket? I did once have a fake one left on a rental car in Vancouver one night, and it took a while to track down what had happened. But then, the information on it is good, so it's probably real enough.

Then there's the question of how we pay it. I'm willing enough, but we boarded a flight to Calgary the next morning - a Saturday - spent the weekend in that city and then flew back to the Yukon on Monday. The drive back home ate up most of Tuesday and the ticket just turned up again during the hiatus between coming home, getting busy, and slowly unpacking the luggage.

Should I drop a cheque, along with a copy of this column, in the mail? Did Avis pay it already and will they bill us for the inconvenience? Customer Support was not in service when I tried to phone this evening, so I'll try again in the morning.

But even after I sort out that part of the problem, I'll be left wondering how the ticket ever got to where I found it that night.

(Note - I managed to reach Avis several days later and arranged to pay the ticket to the City of Toronto.)

More thanks are due to Jayce Murtagh, who made a 6 hour round trip to the mine site to retrieve the machine for us.

Yukon Legislative Assembly supports Yukon's participation in a Family Gathering and a Yukon Regional Roundtable on Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women

WHITEHORSE (October 29, 2015) — The Yukon Legislative Assembly agreed to support the Whitehorse Aboriginal Women's Circle in hosting a Yukon family gathering, which will include family members of missing and murdered indigenous women and girls to be held in Whitehorse on December 12, 2015.

The motion, brought forward by Watson Lake MLA, Patti McLeod, spoke to the need for family members to have a safe space to share their stories of loss and to work together to make recommendations to prevent such loss in the future.

"The family gathering will bring families together in a positive, safe and supportive environment so that they can share their experiences and find a collective voice to address the issue of missing and murdered indigenous women in Yukon. It is the right thing to do," said Ms. McLeod.

Members of the Assembly also supported Yukon's participation in a regional roundtable for missing and murdered indigenous women and girls to be held in February 2016.

The Roundtable will include family members of missing and murdered indigenous women and girls, elders and youth, government leaders, Yukon aboriginal women's organizations, Council of Yukon First Nations, Assembly of First Nations, the Association of Yukon Communities and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Elaine Taylor, Minister Responsible for the Women's Directorate, was pleased that the Assembly was able to stand together in support of the family gathering and regional roundtable.

"It is my sincere hope that the family gathering and the regional roundtable will enable us to work collaboratively with all governments to build on what is working to end violence against Indigenous women; and to boldly address the challenging barriers that stand in our way," said Minister Taylor.

Say Hello to our new CAO

Welcome to André Larabie, Dawson City's new Chief Administrative Officer. André is originally from Ottawa and has served most recently as CAO in Dryden, Ontario. Before that, he was the Senior Administrative Officer in Sanikiluag, Nunavut, and Kugaaruk, Nunavut.

Prior to his municipal career, Andre was also an adult educator instructor, at The Arctic College in Igloolik, a life and business coach, and a clerk in the Canadian Armed Forces. It is in the latter position that Mr. Larabie first visited Dawson City, way back in the 1970s.

Beyond his administrative talents, André is fluent in both of Canada's official languages and childhood friend of Calgary Flames coach Bob Hartley. (He has the latter on speed dial in his cellphone.)

Please give André a hearty Dawson hello if you see him on the street or feel free to visit him at the town office or give him a call.

Roache's Corner by Mike Roache

PJs in the Museum

Story by Palma Berger and Meg Walker Photos by Lisa Bigras

The dress theme for this year's Dawson City Museum Auction was a Pajama Party, and people really responded. So we saw visitors in satin nighties, cotton nighties neck to toe with a flounce on the bottom, and bathrobes. Red one-pieces long johns were very popular. Gary Gammie's red one-piece had a bear behind. Please note the spelling – that's "bear" and not "bare" - the black silhouette of a bear was stitched on the flap at the back of his one piece. Others even brought their nighttime cuddly toys. The ladies were not bashful about sporting whatever hair-saving apparel they wore at night. About half of the crowd dressed for the theme.

Paul Robitaille, also sporting a red one piece, was the auctioneer. He kept the bidding going in a lively fashion, pitting one bidder against another. It was a daunting task at times as there were 55 paddles among the guests and many people would shout out their own offer instead of waiting for Robitaille.

Some bidders, we felt, must have had inside information. Why else would an employee of Bonanza Market keep upping her bid on Bonanza Market's "Mystery Box"? However she was finally outbid.

Items on the block included three Jim Robb prints, original paintings by others, photographs, tools, jewellery, cookware, a helicopter ride and some highly sought after elegant wooden furniture. Many businesses around town, and a few from Whitehorse, donated vouchers. Both Grenon Enterprises and Gammie Trucking had donated vouchers for a load of screened gravel, which led to some entertainment. Gary Gammie started off the bid for Grenon's screened gravel with a $25 offer. This brought so many groans and laughter from the audience that he finally upped it to $135. It went for a much higher price in the final bid from the audience.

During the break, the crowd of 70-odd people devoured delicious savories and sweets created by Sylvia Burkhard, Laurel Betts and their team of 15 excellent volunteer cooks. After the break, door prize winners were announced with Jim Regimbal and Sue Parsons each declared in the group of winners. Guess there will be no arguing in that family. Acting Executive Director Alex Somerville then quizzed the audience with a quick general knowledge trivia game. Questions included "Who was the first female Senator?" "Which was Dr. Seuss' best selling book?" The question "what do the letters PSSO stand for?" was answered by a woman. Guess there were not any male knitters in the audience that night.

The reward for guessing the right answer was to have a miniature bottle of alcohol tossed to you by Angharad Wenz, the Museum's Project Curator who acted as Alex's assistant. The speed of her initial shots may have scared those they were aimed at, but she handled the crowd's goodnatured teasing and her tossing accuracy did improve.

Since the auction took place in the Museum's courtroom, Somerville included a question about the architect of the Territorial Administration Building that houses the Museum. "What was the name of architect Thomas Fuller's father?" Several wits in the audience responded "Dad!" But they didn't receive the prize.

Then Robitaille took the podium again. The second half of the evening saw the bidding continue for the rest of the items, along with the announcement of the successful bidders on the items on the silent auction. Laurel Betts and Debbie Wintson, the "two Vannas," cheerfully accommodated the demands of the crowd who wanted up-close views of items like the silver and mammoth ivory pendant donated by Sharon Edmunds.

Everyone left with smiles and good feelings after a most enjoyable evening. It was a profitable party too: while the auction had a goal of raising $10,000 if possible, the generosity of Dawson bidders surpassed that goal and brought in $12,565.

WHITEHORSE (November 4, and visiting more than 2015) —Minister of Education 60 institutions and Doug Graham announced today that Yukon University will be the new name of Yukon guide the planning and College when it officially becomes a university—a process that is currently underway.

"The eventual transition from Yukon College to Yukon University is another step in the evolution of postsecondary education in the territory," Minister Graham said. "The ability to grant made-in-Yukon degrees, beginning with the proposed bachelor of policy studies in Indigenous governance, is an exciting new phase in the life of the college and in the lives of Yukoners."

At the request of the Government of Yukon, Yukon College Board of Governors and staff members spent 18 months researching organizations around the world to help inform and development work now in progress. The new name was selected following a recommendation from the Board of Governors and staff as part of their work.

"There are many steps in the transition process," Yukon College Board chair Paul Flaherty said. "This is it clear to the public that the transition is underway. Both Yukon College and the Yukon government are actively working to prepare."

Launching Yukon College's first degree program in 2017 and membership in Universities Canada are critical steps in the transition from college to university. To help prepare its Universities Canada application, Yukon College is preparing for a site visit from the organization in 2016/17 to obtain membership.

"There is a lot of work happening to support the evolution of the college. Having a name for the future institution will help Yukon College staff with planning for and developing the next iteration of post-secondary education in the territory," Yukon College president more of a signal step to make Karen Barnes said. "With the process already underway, we will communicate further details over the next couple of years regarding the vision of Yukon University. "

The Alchemy Feast, and Those Who Feasted

On October 25 the Alchemy Café closed its doors for the winter. On October 28 it opened them up again and had its busiest night ever.

No, it was not an unusually short winter. Instead, Sofia Ashenhurst and Florian Boulais hosted a free community feast at their Alchemy Café and invited all their closest friends: which quite literally meant the whole City of Dawson.

Your Klondike Sun reporter (me) was at the feast, with his press badge. Sadly, the badge proved of little use, especially when it came to navigating the crowd that was 80-100 strong. Despite how often or vigorously he waved it at people, or how close to their noses it was, the badge would not or could not transport him to the front of the buffet line. Thankfully there was a mountain of food, so your reporter was able to sample only, you must understand, so he could file an informed report - moose (donated for the feast), chickens from Bear Creek, local cabbage, beets, kale, potatoes and yams (about half of all that was donated too), and slices from five different cakes. Everything was delightful.

But here's the kicker, folks: there were more startling things seen that night than just the laying out of food and the gorging. And I'm not talking about that crucial Survivor episode.

The vibe at the Alchemy was tremendously positive and cheerful. If I was a more idealistic man, I might even say that this massive Dawson crowd was having wholesome fun. What was it like? Think about a place you went to on a Saturday in Whitehorse. Now think the opposite of that.

Behind the food was a chalkboard: "What could matter more than being surrounded by a community of people with whom we share the dream of working towards a healthier and more harmonious life?"

A few days after the event, I met with Sofia and Florian to get their opinion on how things went down.

They called the feast a "complete success."

"I was surprised at first," Sofia said. "I didn't think there'd be enough people for all the food. But then Alana [Taylor, one of Alchemy's chefs, who Sofia spoke of glowingly] said she thought a lot of people would come. And then I started freaking out that we wouldn't have enough."

"One of my favorite things is to get together with people and eat food," continued Sofia. "And the feast felt like a community gathering. To me, it felt like being at somebody's house."

Florian agreed, and said, "I have been meaning to do something like that for a long time, but last year [Alchemy's first year] was just too crazy."

Florian and Sofia told me that when they first started, they used to work 7am-2am, and often 90h in one week. Now that they better know what they're doing, they're more efficient.

I asked Sofia why they had wanted to host the feast in the first place.

"We wanted to show appreciation. Locals come here. Some come every day. Those people are the ones who give us inspiration and hope that the business can survive."

"But we were also hoping that a free feast would attract people who wouldn't usually come here, allow them to be part of the environment. That's one of the reasons why we told everyone there'd be meat at the feast. [When open as a business, Alchemy is vegetarian.]"

At this point, Florian joined in: "Looking after each other is what we do here in Dawson," he said. "We want to affect people's lives in a healthy way. It affects people when they eat and put good things in their body. The food was almost all local, it had no trans fat, no white sugar, and wasn't served on a white bread roll. Local food is a pleasure to eat, and it makes sense too."

I thought that this answer by Florian, focusing on health, gave me an "in" to ask about the distinct lack of alcohol that I had noted at the feast. I've never seen so many Dawsonites in one place at night time, without even one beer among them. And no one was unconscious under a table. It was like the town had persuaded itself to "take the pledge.'

"The feast was an opportunity to see that even though there might be no alcohol, people can still be comfortable enjoying each other's company," Sofia said. "It showed that it's possible to relate and talk with people, enjoy space, without a drink in your hand."

And as for plans for the future? Sofia and Florian are travelling to France and Australia this winter, to visit each other's parents. They'll be back in March.

I know – March seems like a long time. But really it's not. Half the town might still be full by then.

North Yukon First Nations Oppose Fracking

(November 3, 2015) The Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in, Vuntut Gwitch'in First Nation, and the First Nation of Na-cho Nyäk Dun are uniting in their opposition of hydraulic fracturing within their traditional territories.

The decision to stand together on the issue was made recently at the first meeting held under the new intergovernmental accord between the three North Yukon First Nations governments.

"There are too many questions about fracking for us to support it," said Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Chief Roberta Joseph. "Until such time as fracking is proven environmentally sustainable, our citizens believe it should not be employed in our region or the Yukon."

Hydraulic fracturing is a method of extracting natural-gas deposits that involves injecting chemicals, water and sand at high pressures into the ground. Concerns over the environmental risks of this process are widespread throughout the territory.

"The Government needs to understand we have taken a clear position on our opposition to the use of hydraulic fracturing," said First Nation of Na-cho Nyäk Dun Chief Simon Mervyn. "Our citizens passed a General Assembly resolution banning hydraulic fracturing in our Traditional Territory and yet Yukon Government continues to proceed in allowing this extractive process to enter the Yukon."

The North Yukon contains significant reserves of natural gas, and the North Yukon First Nations are taking this stand to ensure their expectations are understood.

"Like the other North Yukon First Nations, the Vuntut Gwitch'in General Assembly passed a resolution in 2013 that mandates my leadership to proceed cautiously when it comes to industrial development on our traditional territory," said Vuntut Gwitch'in First Nation Chief Roger Kyikavichik. "We do not support hydraulic fracturing extraction methodology for North Yukon until it can be proven safe. Our goal is to see this policy direction take affect for all Yukon."

Cross Country Skiing – a way to Embrace Winter

by Cathie Findlay-Brook Klondike Active Transport and Trails Society

Sliding through soft, powdery snow, schussing downhill, enjoying the fresh air and then relaxing in the afterglow around a fire with a hot chocolate. This could be you! If you haven't already discovered the ski trails KATTS invites you to get out on the Moose Mountain Cross Country Ski Trails. The new warming hut provided through an Access and Activity Grant with MEC is there for all to use!

KATTS, Klondike Active
Transport and Trails Society, promotes active living outside all year long. The past few years board members have been focusing on cross country skiing with the improvement of Moose Mountain Cross Country
Ski Trails and working with the Sled Dawgs to put winter trails on the river.

One of the beauties of cross country skiing is the full-body workout provided by using arms, legs and core to glide the most efficiently across snow. And here's an added bonus. Without even realizing it you are strengthening and stretching at the same time making cross-country skiing uniquely effective in both increasing cardiovascular health and protecting muscle, bone and joints from injury.

Cross country skiing is a great way to get out with the whole family or with friends. A way to beat the winter blues that tend to settle in around this time of year, Green Exercise, or exercise in the presence of nature, has an incredible healing power. According to the Mayo Clinic 'Even on cold or cloudy days, outdoor light can help' as spending time outdoors can counter SAD or Seasonal Affective Disorder.

5 year old Maya gets encouragement from her dad Shawn Hughes on Moose Mtn. Cross Country Ski Trails.

KATTS is partnering with the City of Dawson Recreation Department and Cross Country Yukon to bring a series of workshops to Dawson around Cross Country Skiing from Nov 20th to 22nd. Participants will learn the tricks of properly grooming and track setting trails, as well as tips on further developing the sort of cross country skiiing in Dawson.

So, get out your gear and hit the ski trails. For more information, or to get involved with KATTS, www.katts.ca.

Youth Art Enrichment celebrates 15 years

Story & Photos By Dan Davidson

Youth Art Enrichment marked its 15th year during the week of November 4 to 7. This four-day series of intensive workshops for high school students, ages 14 and up, is a program organized by the Klondike Institute of Art and Culture.

As Dawson City Arts Society president Peter Menzies reminded the students during the closing banquet on Saturday evening, this is one of three major programs sponsored under the KIAC umbrella. The other two – the Dawson International Short Film Festival and the Yukon Riverside Arts Festival – are aimed at the adult population.

"We wanted to have an event of equal value for young people," he told the group.
"You're part of something very special and important to our community."

Program coordinator Ange Bonnici says that this year's group is quite a bit smaller than in previous years, down to 22 students from last year's 36. Participating schools included Robert Service, Porter Creek and the Independent Learning Centre, as well as a number of students who chose to come independently (with parental supervision) after their school decided not to participate this year.

There was a competing arts/drama event going on in Watson Lake and the last month and a half has been travel heavy for many schools, what with the week long Rural Experiential Model held here as well as the Dawson Invitational Volleyball Tournament. There's a bit of competition for time and travel funding.

While some years have seen four or five workshops, this year's offering was trimmed down to three:

• Exploring Colour in Paint and Paper was mentored by Suzanne Paleczny in the Odd Fellow's ballroom.

"I had the most focussed, diligent, hard working, quiet group of students that I have ever taught, anywhere," Paleczny told the group at the closing banquet on Saturday evening. "Their concentration really paid off as you will see tonight."

• Fundamentals of Drawing with Meshell Melvin made use of the work-space in the Confluence Gallery at the Yukon School of Visual Arts.

Peter Menzies addresses the students during the closing banquet at the TH Community Hall.

"I would say the same," said Melvin, "though we weren't always so quiet and the nature of what we were doing meant they had to listen to me talk a lot. Thank you for being a willing and courageous group. Drawing can be seen as a harder thing; a lot of people have fear ... are afraid they can't do it. I didn't find that I had even one student who hesitated.

"I was trying to count how many drawings we made – maybe 100."

• Beading Basics with Dolores Scheffen was held in the well-lit Gathering Room at the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre.

After breakfast, the working days started at 9 a.m. and, with a 45 minute lunch break, ran until 4 o'clock each day, with a variety of activities planned for each evening.

Students were booked to attend, and perhaps perform, at KIAC's monthly open mic/coffee house on Saturday evening. In addition, the walls in the ballroom were papered with the results of two of the workshops, while there was a display cabinet with the beading samples.

Just prior to attending the coffee house, students had the opportunity to tour the outdoor art installation "The Deep Dark", set up on the dyke and the frozen waterfront by KIAC's current Artists in Residence, Caitlind Brown and Wayne Garret.

"Today... we come to remember those who served our country in time of need"

It would be a rare Remembrance Day that would not see the Robert Service School gym packed with citizens filling all the chairs and lining the walls for this community celebration. This year was no exception.

Ranger Chris Collin marched the Colour Party of flag bearing RCMP up to the cross and Ranger Sgt. John Mitchell deployed the cenotaph guard of Rangers and Junior Rangers.

Michael Davidson led in the singing of "O Canada" and Legion Member Myrna Butterworth played a recording of the "Last Post" to signal the beginning of the traditional two minutes silence at the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month.

This was followed by a recording of "Reveille" and Butterworth's reading of the "Act of Remembrance", which is the fourth verse of the poem "For the Fallen", written by Laurence Binyon.

A Hän language translation was presented by Angie Joseph-Rear, after which Betty Davidson recited "In Flanders Fields", John McRae's iconic poem.

Councillor Kyla McArthur read Prime Minister Justin Trudeau's message to the nation, including a tribute to the Canadian forces.

"Our Canadian Armed Forces have earned tremendous respect for their remarkable contributions to promoting international peace and security. From coast to coast to coast, we pay special tribute to those who have given their lives in service. We also honour those Canadians who have worked to prevent the tragedies of war in international peacekeeping operations around the globe."

It concluded with a commitment, ""We have an obligation to our country's women and men in uniform, our veterans, and their families. As a government, we will honour this social covenant with the respect and gratitude it deserves."

Guest speaker for the day was Dawson's new Chief Administrative Officer, André Larabie, who once served in the armed forces as a clerk. There is a tradition of military service in his family, though none of his immediate relatives have actually had to fight in any battles.

"Today... we come together to remember, to remember those who served our country in time of need. More than one and a half million Canadians, soldiers, sailors, aircrews and merchant seamen, have served. We stop to think about their families, our families, and the brave (ones) who have served overseas to protect us.

"Jose Narosky said, 'In war there are no unwounded soldiers.' We wear Remembrance Day Poppies on our lapels. Let us unite against war and bring the world closer with peace and harmony."

He offered a quotation from former Prime Minister Pierre Elliot Trudeau, spoken when announcing his resignation from office in 1984: "Our hopes are high. Our faith in the people is great. Our courage is strong. And our dreams for this beautiful country will never die."

In conclusion, he read the poem "Remembrance", written by Helen Gardner and posted on the Remembrance Day in Canada website.

The ceremony continued with the laying of the wreaths and crosses at the cenotaph cross, conducted by the Junior Rangers and the Participants who sponsored the wreaths.

After the ceremony at the school, the Rangers and Junior Rangers gathered to lay wreaths outdoors at the cenotaph in Victory Gardens beside the Old Territorial Administration Building.

The reception for the day's events was held at the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre on Front Street. Those present were treated to a 46 minute film, "John McRae's War – In Flanders Fields", on the life of Lieutenant Colonel McRae and the genesis of the poem that has come to define this day and the imagery of the poppy.

Another banner year for the 2015 Horticultural Exhibition thanks to all our participants and helpers! We had everything from a 17-pound kohlrabi to tiny, tiny peanuts. Local gardeners wowed the visitors and inspired locals with the variety of produce that can thrive in the Dawson area.

Preservation of this annual historic event is crucial to the future generations of gardeners in the Klondike. It's a volunteer event and would not take place without the support of the following people and organizations:

*Lodge #1 YOOP for their sponsorship (banners, ribbons, advertising)

*KIAC for the loan of the tent

*Alex and the Dawson City Museum for the historical gardening photo displays *Volunteers for set up and take down of tents & tables

*The enthusiasm & support from the gang at the VIC *KPMA for their tablecloths

We would also like to thank Otto & Connie Mulbach of Kokopelli Farms for their generous support and donations each year to our event.

If everyone brings at least one item next year, we will have a bountiful event!
We look forward to your participation in 2016!

Podcast #2: Interview with Artist Joseph Tisiga

By Chris Healey

This is the second of The Klondike Sun's new podcast feature, featuring an interview with Whitehorse based Artist Joseph Tisiga.

Tisiga was in Dawson City recently having been invited to participate in Yukon SOVA's Indexes of the Land, Aboriginal Artists Lecture-Workshop

Largely a self-taught artist, Tisiga works primarily with watercolour paintings, photography and site-specific installations and performances. He is represented by Diaz Contemporary in Toronto.

Tisiga is an articulate and curious person, seemingly thriving on work that challenges various historical themes and cultural expectations. His work is difficult to label and in turn he is respectful of the difficulty of labelling the world around us and our place in it.

Having visited and worked here previously, his affection for Dawson City is palpable. A sense of the historical significance of the Klondike and of the receptiveness of this community reinforces Tisiga's artistic fascination with themes of space and identity.

Playful but serious. Surreal but socially critical. An artist who produces paintings but

She married Jim Bierlmeier in 1965 and moved to Dawson Creek, BC, Swift River, YT and then on to Dawson City in 1966 in the dead of winter. The pipes in the house froze and they lived without running water until spring.

She started out leading walking tours around town and eventually was in charge of visitor services overseeing 7 different visitor sites in Dawson. She was very active in the Softball Association, Klondike Visitors Association, Recreation Department and was part of the Jubilee Committee which organized the first Percy De Wolfe Race, Outhouse Race and Drama Festival.

She left Dawson and moved to Whitehorse in 1990 and worked for Tourism and Culture department until 2013. She became Manager of Visitor Services and Senior Marketing Office in charge of visitor reception centres and attended trade shows all over the USA and Canada. In 2014 she was awarded the Yukon Tourism Award of Excellence. In addition to traveling extensively through the Yukon on the highways she had also explored many of the rugged hiking trails and paddled the rivers. She loved to ski and snowmobile through the back country and was extremely fond of camping and fishing in the Yukon and off the coast of

As a Mom she could not have been more proud of her two sons or more supportive of their endeavours. She knew that they would always apply the standard of excellence and pride that they had been taught at home. She was also an amazing grandmother to her 5

What Does it Mean to be C-O-N-F-I-D-E-N-T?

Confidence comes from feelings of well-being, acceptance of your body and mind and belief in your own ability, skills and experience. People who are confident share these important characteristics:

C- CAPABLE

Confident people are capable. They know they are good enough, competent, and can handle life's situations.

Admitting you are capable also means knowing that if you cannot handle a situation completely on your own, you can find out where to get the necessary help, information, or skill.

Knowing you are your greatest resource protects you from stress. Believing you are capable means that whatever the task, you will handle it. By believing in yourself, you can face life with complete assurance.

Confident people own their opinions, emotions, feelings, words, and even choiceof dessert.

> You're you, you want what you want, and you do what you do. No apologies. No explanation.

N – NURTURE THEMSELVES

Confident people believe in their value and worth. They feel they are worth the time, money and energy required to nurture and support themselves in their fulfillment and growth.

This could be things like taking a class to learn something new, taking time out to exercise, having quiet time to reenergize and rejuvenate, or pampering themselves with a massage or manicure.

F- FULLY PRESENT

Confident people engage in the present moment when they are with others. They are not concerned about how they look, sound, feel or smell.

Constantly thinking about what you feel or look like takes you out of the moment. Practice not thinking about the past or the future. Concentrate on what's in front of you -- there's probably something exciting about it.

I- INTEGRITY

Confident people are true to themselves. They honour who they really are and will do things that honor their true selves, despite what others may say or think. When people are true to themselves they feel more comfortable, and that produces

D- DROP THE LOAD

Confident people take deliberate steps to get help from others. They ask for help when they need it and share work loads with others.

They are comfortable in knowing that it's okay to say "no" to others so they can say "yes" to themselves.

E-ENDURE

Confident people don't give up. They take risks, know they will make mistakes, and that sometimes they will fail.

Everyone makes mistakes and fails. If you don't, you're not trying hard enough. Don't think of these as mistakes and failures as negatives, but rather as learning opportunities. Because confident people remember that beneath their failures, mistakes and missteps, they are capable.

N – NOT ARROGANT

Confident people are not arrogant. Arrogance is detrimental to interpersonal relationships. For people who are confident it's not about getting the praise, attention, or being better than Confident people lift others up. They give others credit for their work, encourage progress, and offer compliments and sincere praise. T- TAKE ACTION

Confident people take action. We all want to do or try certain things but fear we may fail. These feeling are normal. The difference is that a confident person will act on their ambitions and desires and will not let the fear of failure stop them.

The more we take action, the more our confidence grows. We try something and are successful, and the next time around it feels easier to do it again.

If you were 10% more confident today, what would you do, be or say differently?

To your success ...

time. Her courage and strength during the last few months was an inspiration. She has left us too soon and will be sadly missed.

Ostashek visits Dawson

BY TIMOTHY SAWA Sun Staff

Barely five minutes into the questions, it came.

"When're you building the bridge?"

And so began half an hour of Dawson bridge talk at the annual visit of Government leader John Ostashek.

Accompanying him at the Dawson installment of this year's Yukon community tour — dubbed "Listening to You" - were Community and Transportation Minister Bill Brewster and Klondike MLA David Millar.

Although the bridge seems to be at the top of the Dawson capital wish list, Brewster was quick to remind the 30 residents who showed up for the meeting that it's not the only item

He then proceeded to list nine Dawson capital projects either on the go or on the discussion table.

Among them were the new elementary school, already in the planning stages, expected to cost $4.5 million; a sewage treatment plant to be cost-shared by the territorial government and the town at $5.8 million; $1.5 million in centennial projects and a possible new airport to cost between $2 and $10 million.

"If I had enough to do all that I could build a lot of roads and bridges," he added.

Dawson Fire Chief Pat Cayen, however, was persistent in his questioning. "I agree we're asking for a lot but I don't think we're asking for any more than our share," he said.

"I don't think the Klondike riding could be anymore clear to you about the need or desire for a bridge and I think it's going to be the first question come the next election. And 'some day' won't be the answer people will look for."

What Cayen and the others

But neither Brewster nor Ostashek dared to offer that. They insisted it was far too soon to be throwing around dates. "And any party that offers you a date does so at their own peril," added Ostashek.

The feasibility study that Ostashek promised would be completed last winter, when he visited Dawson last July, was finished only last month. And still they need more information, they said.

A definite price has yet to be pinned down and the appropriate environmental departments haven't given the proposed designs

The government is also considering having the bridge built privately with tolls to cover the cost.

"We aren't against a bridge across the Yukon river at Dawson and we will continue to work for it," insisted Ostashek.

And in the end, the politicians admitted the Yukon Territorial Government just doesn't have the money right now. "If I had the $20 million you'd get your bridge," said Brewster.

Also discussed at the meeting were the absence of territorial legislation governing animals and trappers' concerns.

The question period was preceded by a 30 minute presentation by the Government Leader on the financial state of the territory.

The talk, complete with charts and handouts, was intended to justify government budget cuts that have resulted in a $35 million sur-

"We've received a lot of criticism from the cuts we've made." Ostashek said. "But to this day I can stand here and tell you that we made the right decisions."

Dawson for unity

PRESS RELEASE

Dawson City

Dawson City residents signed a Unity Message on October 27 as part of the National Unity Cam-

Over 300 students and teachers at Robert Service School participated in a morning TV. show viewing and discussion. Consensus is that Quebec should stay in Canada. One teacher said that if we can take time out of school to watch a man on the moon or a hockey player win the Canada Russian series, we can take time to be a part of the future of the country!

Exactly 126 residents signed the community message which was faxed to the Yukon delegation in Montreal. The goal was 100 signatures above the effort at the school.

The Sun obtained funding in late 2009 from the City of Dawson, YTG's Heritage Branch and the Community Development Fund to conserve and archive early issues and make them available once again in the public domain. This is a great resource for students, writers and historians, and also for prospective tourists with an interest in Dawson City's life. Each month, we are re-printing our front pages from 20 years ago (seen above) as a souvenir of our lively history. If you want to see page 2 and beyond, check out our website. Past issues are available there for download. Go to http://klondikesun.com. More will be added periodically (heh) when we have time!

A blues man came to town

Peter Menzies' house was packed almost to SRO capacity for the October 25 Home Routes Concert with blues man Terry Gillespie.

Gillespie and his wife,
Kathy, had travelled west on an extended tour, Living about halfway between Ottawa and Montreal they ended up crossing the country by playing for their passage on VIA Rail from Toronto to Vancouver Island.

Gillespie's 40 year career in music started out in symphonies, jazz bands and jazz groups. Blues bands happened next. Born in Canada, he grew up partly here, and in Britain, finishing the process in Michigan before relocating to Canada in the late 60s, where he ended up performing with reggae bands.

By that time he had been able to meet a lot of the blues players who were his early heroes, and had played with the likes of Howlin' Wolf, Buddy Guy and John Lee Hooker as a young man.

So while he styles himself a blues man when he's playing as a solo act, there are a lot of other influences that creep into the music. Without a doubt the sound of the evening was also influenced by the uniquely styled metal body triple resonator acoustic guitar with which he was travelling on this tour.

He told his audience that working as a solo act was a relatively new thing for him, and a glance at his website does show a preference for working with various bands (his and others) as well as trios. The site profiles about eight musicians, on drums, keyboards, sax and guitars, that are often on stage with him.

"I play blues based music," he said. "For me there's one common thread that holds this all together. The radio play people, they have genres, but I think we can get rid of genres tonight.

"I'm just gonna pull out some music from all over the place," he said, and, working without an actual written set list on the floor in front of him, he proceeded to do just that

Most of the songs during the evening had a bit of a story to go with them, maybe about how the original singer had done it or how it came to be. There might have been more stories, but Kathy kept signaling Terry to talk less and play more, so he did.

This was the second of this season's house concerts and there will be another four by the time the season ends in mid-April. Gillespie hit several Yukon towns and hamlets on this tour, being particularly blown away by
