Diversity was a Canada Day Theme

Story and Photos By Dan Davidson

Canada Day in Dawson was blessed with sunshine, in spite of an early morning rain that left the streets muddy, and a halo of circling clouds that brought a series of intermittent sun showers at various times during the day.

Early risers enjoyed a pancake breakfast put on by St. Paul's Anglican Church (though held at St. Mary's Catholic Church), starting at 8:30, and ending just before the parade elements began to assemble at the Recreation Centre at 10:30.

The parade, led by the RCMP, was ready to head west on King Street shortly after 11 a.m. The were lots of decorated bicycles, marchers from the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in (TH), Parks Canada and the Dawson City Museum, as well as two musical floats and several more complex entities, including one from the Klondike Visitors Association.

There were also a number of decorated four wheelers, and the usual fire trucks and EMS vehicles. Lots of candy was tossed at the crowds along the streets for the kids to scramble after.

The route took the parade along Front Street to Princess and east to Fifth Avenue where it proceeded to Victory Gardens and the Old Territorial Administration Building (Dawson City Museum).

From there it was a matter of a few minutes to assemble the line-up of Mounties and Gertie's Girls at the cenotaph for the singing of "O Canada" (still with the old words for this year), and lots of photo snapping.

Speeches were made at a the entrance to the Museum.

TH Councillor Darren
Bullen welcomed the crowd on behalf of the First Nation, reminding them that accepting newcomers to the area is part of TH tradition.

"It's something we're pleased to see right across the country. As Canadians, we should be proud of our cultural diversity and take strength from our open minded-ness and our tolerance. These practices make Canada great and make this day special and important."

"Canada Day is always special to me," said Mayor Wayne Potoroka, "and an annual reminder of how much our small, northern community has influenced the face of our country. Canada was barely out of its childhood and into its teens when the Gold Rush occurred and splashed this place upon the front page of every newspaper on the planet.

"I'm really proud to say that I live in a town that has played such a prominent role in our nation's story and still finds a way to lead the nation. But mostly of all, I'm proud to live in a country that values diversity, tolerance and personal freedoms and I'm honoured to be a member of a community where those primary Canadian principles are daily on display."

"Each day seems to bring a new report about indignities and atrocities and violence, and it's hard not to be affected by the pain suffered by so many people around the world. This year, especially, I'm feeling incredibly fortunate to be living where I do, and I know others here feel the same. So let's let this Canada Day be a reminder that the world needs more of what makes us Canadians and recommit ourselves to sharing the best of us with others."

Sandy Silver, the Klondike's Member of the Legislative Assembly and Leader of the territorial Liberal Party, spoke

"On July first every year, Canadians from coast to coast to coast come together to celebrate Canada Day, and to commemorate Canada's history, and to acknowledge the cultural diversity of the people that live in these unique and extraordinary places. On Canada Day, in particular, we want to join with all Yukoners in welcoming many individuals who have become citizens today, and also those citizens who have decided to use the Yukon as their home. We are so pleased to share in this beautiful territory with you as neighbours and as friends.

"I believe that a constituency that is comprised of people from a variety of backgrounds enriches the lives of every single person who calls this place home."

At the Museum site, the day continued with a free BBQ, live muses and kids games.

Around town there were tours of the S.S. Keno, swimming at the pool next to the Museum, another free cake later on at the Visitor Information Centre on Front Street, free bannock and a Shadow Puppet Show at the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre, live music at the Front Street gazebo, and a fund raising BBQ for this summer's Moosehide Gathering, also held at the Waterfront Park on Front Street.

Story and photos by Josée Bonhomme

The 2016 edition of the Yukon River Quest, involving over 500 people was pulled off without a hitch for the 17th, actually 18th, time in a row. The non-motorized river craft event has grown so much in popularity that 93 floating apparatuses from kayaks to canoes to paddleboards were used to get from the new capital to the former capital this year.

In 1998, the race started with about 50 entries, in twoperson canoes, and they started from Dyea, Alaska.

Then in 1999, when the race adopted the current format from Whitehorse to Dawson, 16 two-person canoe teams started the race. The record time for the course was established in 2008 by the Kissienew team made up of Martin Bernardin, Tony Bond, David Dahl, Denis Fosseneuve, Tim Hodgson and Paul Pageau. The 39:32:43 (HH:MM:SS) record still stands, accomplished in a sleek, serious 6-person canoe. All were very strong paddlers functioning as a coordinated machine with a big heart. And they had lots of training behind them.

In the days of the Hudson Bay Co. traders, the Voyageurs paddled 90 strokes per minute going upstream. If that's possible, that's what the Kissienew crew would have been doing, but going downstream. Probably an unfair advantage. I say we reverse the race and separate the tough from the timid in a few years, or offer a return trip for no entry fees. It would let the volunteers extend their jobs, why not? Their employers (hidden sponsors) do seem okay with all the vacation time they need to take.

This annual international paddling celebration is hosted by the Yukon River Marathon Paddlers Association (YRMPA). They certainly accomplished their mission this year: "To challenge paddlers in a world class wilderness event – a race to the midnight sun – the Yukon River Quest."

The stand-up paddleboarders (SUP) did well in their experimental trials, with astonishing finishing times. The fastest "walker on water," Bart de Zwart of Haiku, Hawaii, glided into a winning time for that category of 54:41:14. These SUP riders are elite athletes establishing a new sport that keeps your entire body very strong, with an enhanced sense of balance. Only two paddleboarders did not finish; they withdrew at Little Salmon.

To watch the finishing paddlers is always inspiring. They don't have much trouble getting out of their boats, their minds are clear, their sense of humour ready to meet the ravenous crowd. My reporting of the race this year, at the end of the 715 km course along Canada's fifth largest river (flow rate), focuses on the synergy between organizers and racers.

The shore crew got a standing ovation at the final banquet and awards presentation ceremony on Sunday, July 3rd. The applause was deafening, with screams of encouragement and appreciation. I witnessed several tasks handled by the 250+ estimated volunteers to pull off such an event. The number of race volunteers was estimated to match the number of racers by the organizers.

Timers take precedence all along the course. This demands undivided attention. Errors in timing, as in ski or horse races for example, can cause losses for a team, and many complaints. There were no protests filed in this race at all. Everything ran smoothly as a result of dedicated and experienced volunteers.

Peter Coates, officially the SPOT coordinator this year (good title I would say, smashing!), but really the electronic brain behind the whole timing system, managed to hook up tracker technology, internet mapping, and instant results plus legible labeling both at the checkpoints AND all over the internet. Peter paddled the race with his son in 2001 finishing in 8th place, is the past-President for 2005, and served as Race Marshall in 2007. Pete now works for Make IT, a programming and IT firm in Whitehorse. Talent well used.

Shore crews attend to everything from helping racers disembark, undress, and haul out boats, to re-hydration and emergency nutrition (the reward). At the terminus of the race, each racer is scrutinized on a departure and arrival checklist form, signed by the racer, that all his/her safety gear is still with the boat and that they are all-in. It gives a chance for the volunteer to check the mental and physical state of the racer at both the beginning and end of the race, a most important step. The racers I saw were healthy and happy, full of negative ions that keep your spirits up on water.

In Dawson, the crew of volunteers were motivated and recruited by Kathy Webster, in her 19th year of service. Leslie Piercy is in the photo with John Evans of Springfield, Oregon, hamming it up over "the divorce papers." Piercy carefully ran through the whole list, item by item, looking directly at her charge in the eyes several times. She was paying attention to the physical and mental condition of the victorious, finishing paddler in a K-1 river ship. A very nice craft, all Kevlar, lots of storage space. The helpers were surprised at how light it was to haul out of the water.

To run an event like this takes year-round work, a marathon in itself. Val Ross, Secretary-Treasurer for the YRMPA and Pete Coates, the "I.T. guy," agreed simultaneously: "Sponsorship is hard to get and hard work. We do this all year long, planning, organizing, getting the sponsorships, it's huge...."

Indeed, when one scans the sponsorship list, the major sponsors, the bib sponsors, and others which may not be known, as personal supporters of some teams, it is staggering. So the organizers are doing a great job there, along with all the sponsors, big or small. Thank you all.

And now, to leave room for photos, I must say "Look for Part Two of this story in the July 27 edition of the Klondike Sun."

Uffish Thoughts: Taking out some frustration on an internet scammer

By Dan Davidson

Internet service to Dawson City was out for a good portion of Friday, June 24. I'm not just sure when it died, but the last email I received that morning was time stamped 8:51 and there were no more until the middle of the afternoon.

I was busy doing things that did not involve being connected and so did not notice the loss of service until my wife cried plaintively from her study on the other side of the house. Since that's where the modem and router are located I went and did the usual reboot things that sometimes have to be done when NorthwesTel kicks us out of the system.

She had already tried those, but I needed to see it for myself. The non-response sent me to the next step in the process, which is to phone the help-line number and see if there's a known problem.

Connecting with this service often means that I have to short-circuit the helpful voice on the other end by explaining that I have already done all the applicable things on pages 34 though 38 of the phone book.

In this case, however, a recorded message informed me that service to Dawson had been disrupted and it was being worked on. No explanation as to why, so I was little frustrated at the Post Office a bit later when people asked me ('cause reporters are 'sposed to know stuff) if I'd heard what the problem was, and whether it might have something to do with the installation of the fibreoptic cable that travellers have reported seeing under way along the highway.

I also learned that all the stores in town had no access to their credit/debit card machines, reminding me once again that the banks ought to be supplying those old manual devices along with a supply of credit card slips as a back-up system in areas where service disruptions happen from time to time.

I was told that the bank was frantically trying to cope with all the people who suddenly needed cash and, of course, the ATMs around town weren't working either.

I had been going to trek over to Yukon Energy and pay my power bill, but that would have to wait for later. In the meantime I was able to check by newly arrived VISA bill against my spreadsheet entries and get ready to make a payment once I could get online again.

My larger problem was the Klondike Sun. I check the online mail in the mornings, selecting and editing anything that I think we might want to use in the paper, formatting it, and sending the altered documents to the paper via e-mail.

This wouldn't be a major issue except that last weekend was a layout weekend for our biweekly local paper, and typically some advertisements and a number of the items that have been written and photographed by other people will arrive on this deadline day, ready for us to begin placing as the day progresses.

I had a few of my own items to deliver, but I could always put them on a memory stick and deliver them by sneaker-net, so that wasn't a huge problem.

Shortly after noon I got one of those annoying "this is about your computer" calls, in which a heavily accented East Indian voice tried to persuade me that there was a problem with my Windows computer and that he was looking at it right now and could help me fix it.

When I answered the phone, there had been the usual several second delay which always tells you that a computer has autodialed your number and that it has taken a few seconds for the human attached to it to realize that they've got a hit.

Remember that the town was still blacked out at that point in the day, causing me to wonder if this fellow knew that and was piggy-backing on the service disruption, but then the claim that he could see my computer was a non-starter.

Besides, my working machine is a MacBook Pro, a legacy of my years working in the school system where Apple products were the standard fare (except in the admin offices, which often led to problems around report card time, but don't get me started on the operating system prejudices of Yukon Education's IT people).

Sometimes I play cat and mouse with these people and pretend to take them seriously. The transcriptions of these recorded conversations have made a number of good columns in this space over the years.

On Friday however, I was simply annoyed. The phone company had already made my day more complicated than it needed to be and someone needed to pay for that.

"Oh, give it up," I snapped at my caller. "You're a fraud. You know it and I know it. You don't even know that I don't use Windows, and you don't know that the service is down in the whole town. Do not call back."

And I hung up. It didn't solve a thing, but it felt good.

This was written in frustration after forced delays putting our last issue together. Wouldn't you just know that it would happen again for several hours just two weeks later, in time to make us nervous laying out this one. At least this time it was the entire Yukon.

LETTER

Iim Babinsack

1505 Union Church Road McConnellsburg, PA 17233

Monday, June 27, 2016

Mr. Mayor,

On Wednesday, June 15, 2016, my wife, sister-in-law and brother-in-law and myself were returning from a riverboat ride and walking along the boardwalk right before the Downtown Hotel. I was walking on the extreme outside of the walkway when a woman, walking on the extreme inside of the boardwalk stepped on a totally loose plank. The plank under her foot went down enough to raise the end on the outside and trip me.

Boardwalk spill prompts infrastructure complaint

I went down very hard when I could not get my feet under me. I landed on my left elbow which caused my left shoulder to dislocate. One of the local tour guides was kind enough to call an ambulance and continued to stay with us. When the ambulance crew arrived they had difficulty getting a BP reading because my pressure was bottoming out. They bound my arm and took me to the local hospital. Dr. Glazier and his staff were wonderful. After X-rays, I was sedated and the shoulder was put back in place. Since I am from the United States, I had to pay the $2000 bill. Upon returning home, my medical problems continue. Orthopedic doctor appointment, xrays, an MRI for possible rotator cuff damage. But none of this is my point in contacting you.

If this had happened to me in the U.S., I would have had a dozen lawyers outside waiting for me. They would have smelled blood because your city was definitely negligent. But this is not my nature. I was told of the numerous complaints and letters to the editor expressing the dangers when walking on the boardwalk. It is unfathomable how a city government that exists and depends on tourist monies could ignore these dangers.

While in Dawson City and prior to my fall, we met a wonderful older couple from San Diego. The gentleman had been to Dawson City 17 times in his life. He was well into his seventies and we observed him and his wife, later in the day walking hand in hand in the park. Now I will be 67 years old next month. I am 6' tall and weigh 233 pounds. I try to walk 10,000 steps each day and consider myself to be in half-way decent shape. But what if what happened to me, instead happened to this gentleman? Would he have left the hospital the same night? How many broken bones would he have suffered? What would be the time frame for his recuperation?

So I have a few additional questions for you - what are you going to do about this danger? What will it take for you to finally accept responsibility for the care and protection of your guests? Will it take a law suit that could drain your coffers? Will it take a death to make you do the right thing? Please don't wait for either of those to happen. With the amount of tourists that flow through your city each day, you can surely afford to hire some contractors to repair the boardwalk and make it safe for everyone. I realize the historical people want the boardwalk to represent the late 1800s. But given a choice between authenticity and safety, I'm betting a majority of the tourists would pick safety above everything else.

I will probably never return to the Yukon. So I will not know if you have put the safety of your guests at the top of your list. Whether you do or not will be on your conscience and that of your council.

Ed Note: We've corresponded with Jim. The rotator cuff injury was confirmed when he got home. along with some other injuries to tendons and his bicep muscle. He had surgery to correct these problems last week and will be wearing a sling for the rest of July and part of August. In spite of all this he reports that he enjoyed his trip (the pun was his, not mine), is fascinated by the Yukon's land and history and has no plans to sue anyone, though he would like to assault the posterior of whoever was responsible for not nailing down that board.

Berton House Project heads to Stratford

Dear Friends in Dawson City: a startling encounter with

I trust this finds all of you well and enjoying Canada Day and the summer.

When I was at the Berton House in 2013, I read you the outline of a story about a polar bear. It was going to be an opera, but it is now a huge play, and the Stratford Festival is giving it a world premiere in their 2017 season.

From the Stratford Festival press release:

"The Festival has commissioned Colleen Murphy to write The Breathing Hole, an epic allegory to mark Canada's Sesquicentennial, to be directed by Reneltta Arluk.

"This 500- year saga follows a polar bear from its birth in an Inuit community at the time of First Contact, through a startling encounter with the Franklin Expedition, to a profoundly moving conclusion: a meeting with a 21st century cruise ship navigating the Northwest Passage in a world now ravaged by climate change.

"This is one of the most ambitious and unique pieces of writing I have seen in years," says Mr. Anthony Cimolino, the festival's Artistic Director.

"Each of the three acts breathtakingly captures a snapshot of this country's development. We are very fortunate to have an extraordinarily gifted leader for this project, director Reneltta Arluk."

All the best,

Colleen Murphy

New Land Titles Act regulations are first of their kind in Canada

Press Release

WHITEHORSE (July 5, 2016)
—The Government of Yukon has proclaimed the Land Titles Act, 2015 and enacted its accompanying regulations, an unprecedented milestone for the territory and the country.

"The Yukon government is pleased to be leading the country with these groundbreaking legislative changes," Premier Darrell Pasloski said. "We are delivering on our promise to establish a framework to protect the integrity of the land titles system, secure interests of property owners, and provide new economic development options. With the instrumental support of Kwanlin Dün First Nation, we have introduced a new mechanism for registering Settlement Land while safeguarding Aboriginal rights and title. This will create new residential and commercial development opportunities."

Four new regulations under the act establish: rules for registering First Nation Settlement Land in the Land Titles Office; requirements for plans of survey and other plans; general administration and operations provisions; and also set transaction fees.

"First Nation governments have long contemplated the need for some form of land registry to unlock the potential of its settlement lands for the benefit of citizens and economic development. Our citizens have been clear, never is KDFN to give up Aboriginal rights and title to our Settlement Land," Kwanlin Dün Chief Doris Bill said. "Kwanlin Dün is pleased to have reached this landmark regulation with Yukon and to have paved the way for all Yukon First Nations with self-government agreements to apply to register lands or leases with the Land Titles Office, if they wish to do so."

New provisions enable the Land Titles Office to keep pace with the volume and complexity of modern land dealings in Yukon and provide more accessible land titles information.

"We've maintained the high standards of Yukon's land titles system while establishing new processes that align with the demands of today's land transactions," Minister of Justice Brad Cathers said. "This is the result of years of work led by the Department of Justice and valuable involvement by key stakeholders."

Improving Yukon's land titles system is the objective of the multi-phase Land Titles Modernization Project. Current project priorities include preparing the Land Titles Office to transition to an electronic registration and records system and developing regulations to accompany the new Condominium Act, 2015.

Bookends: Examining an Arctic Under the Threat of Extreme Climate Change

By Dan Davidson

Future Arctic:
Field Notes from a World on the Edge
By Edward Struzik
Island Press
199 pages
$27.00

In a year where Fort McMurray has been largely burned to the ground and temperature records are dropping like flies around the world, taking a closer look at this book seems appropriate, especially with the way it opens.

"The beginning of what many people thought was the end of the world began on June 2, 1950, when a small wildfire ignited in the boreal forest in northern British Columbia near the Yukon Border and the Chinchaga River."

As it grew, the smoke became so dense and so widespread that people across the northern hemisphere, still jittery about warnings of atomic Armageddon, believed that the end had come and that bombs had been dropped.

In the end, the fire burned for 222 days and destroyed 3.5 million acres of forest. At the time it was an anomaly, but since then there have been sire seasons in Alaska, the Yukon and NWT to rival it in 2004, 2007 and 2014.

Struzik's book is about climate change; about seawater intrusions from storms that have flooded arctic freshwater river deltas and have changed the local ecologies; about diminishing ice floes that threaten the existence of the polar bear; about fires that release tones of carbon dioxide into the air, along its deadlier cousin, carbon monoxide; about lakes that are no longer being replenished by annual precipitation or by rapidly retreating glaciers.

These changes are, he maintains, circumpolar in scope and accelerating faster than earlier projections held to be the case.

Chapter 1: "Eight-foot long beavers, scimitar cats, and woolly mammoths: What the Past tells Us About the Future Arctic" is a reminder that change is a constant, and that the world has not always been the way that humanity has experienced it for the last multiple millennia.

"If the past tells us anything about the future Arctic, it's that climate change happens often, and when it does, it happens relatively quickly and sometimes catastrophically for mammals that lived there.

"With the climate warming up the polar world faster that any other place on Earth, the Arctic is, in some ways, both an accident waiting to happen and an opportunity to be seized."

If chapter one was an overview of the book's message, the remaining 10 chapters focus sharply on specific issues outlined at the start. "Oil and Ice" makes no bones about the effects of oil exploration, pipelines, spills and ancillary issues.

The next three chapters enlarge on the effect of changing conditions in the Arctic Ocean, sharply increasing storm seasons, warmer water, changes in the species of fish and mammals that can thrive in these altered conditions. Of special interest are the sections on the polar bear/grizzly bear hybrids that are being found in increasing numbers, and the arrival of Pacific species of fish in areas where they had not been seen traditionally.

Chapter six zeroes in on the polar bear, the stresses the changing landscaper is forcing on them, and how it brings them into increasing conflict with humans. There is some space spent on how the community of Churchill has tried to find solutions that do not involve simply killing the bears, how they have tried to turn a liability into an asset.

Chapter seven moves to the caribou and also spends some time on the reintroduction of wood bison into areas where they once roamed in numbers. Some of this is because efforts have been made to save caribou populations in some areas and the two projects are comparable. Protection of calving grounds has been an essential part of caribou protection projects.

Chapter eight is called Paradise Lost and it relates to the vast numbers of birds of many species, which have traditionally found the Arctic a perfect place to bring their young into the world. Increasing rain, all by itself, seems to be endangering the lives of the hatchlings of several species, However, the decline in the numbers of harp seals, the basic food of the polar bears, has these predators going after birds' eggs. Then there are the mosquitoes, which are hatching earlier than they used to due to warmer temperatures, and are putting a serious stress on the birds, not to mention the other inhabitants of the region.

Chapter nine comes back to the problem of Arctic oil and mineral exploration, focusing on the history of industrial accidents and oil spills that industry really hasn't been able to deal with very well and outlining how totally unprepared we would be if something like the Gulf oil spill were to occur in the Arctic Ocean. With the resources fairly readily available in the Gulf, the clean up remains problematic. There is nothing like those resources to deal with a similar problem made worse by subzero temperatures

Chapter ten outlines the case for the nations to come up with an Arctic treaty to anticipate some of these problems and try to prevent them before they become real. The chapter concludes with a chilling scenario in which a accident occurs and everything goes wrong, as a result of which, "the Exxon Valdez is no longer the worst oil spill for have occurred in the Arctic.

The final chapter concludes that there needs to be another effort along the lines of the International Polar Year project of 2007-2009 that would bring together the thinking of scientists from variety of nations to chew on these problems. At that time 62 nations devoted "hundreds of millions of dollars to send thousands of scientists to the polar regions to examine a wide range of physical, biological and social research topics."

One would hope that, now that Canadian scientists are once again allowed to participate in such events without being under the watchful eye of government appointed communications specialists (a practice which smacked far too much of the political commissars that used to trail behind all Soviet officials) progress might be made once again.

Mom was born and raised in Alberta. As a young woman, she took teacher training. In the early 1950s, the call went out that teachers were needed in a certain "far-away" place called Dawson City. Mom's grandfather had read her some of Robert Service's poems when she was a child. She was northward bound

In Dawson, Mom met and married Dad, Hank DuBois.
Marvin and Karen soon entered the picture. Dad drove truck and worked on the cat trains.
Mom was home with us. In 1959 we bought the Downtown Hotel, which thrust us into a very different way of life. In 1963 Carmen arrived. And in 1969 we purchased the N.C. store.

Our home was a busy place, from morning to night. There were always new ideas and new projects; people were constantly coming and going. Our home was a happy place. Everyone was busy, but we were all together.

Then in 1977, without any warning, Dad passed away. The family pulled together. We all did our best to keep things going as we sold off our interests in Dawson. Mom moved to Vancouver with Marvin and Carmen. She lived there for a number of years until the birth of her first grandchildren, Nick and Amy, in 1985 and 1987. At that point Mom decided to move back to Dawson.

It wasn't like Mom to be idle. In no time she had her own bookkeeping business going, and she soon began laying plans to build her house on Eighth Avenue.

Mom lived in a world of good books and good music. It was always this way, even when we were small children and the family library consisted of a pile of books and five or six LPs. She had her own ideas about things and went her own way. She and Dad built their own world, and that's where she lived. And that's where we grew up. The family was always of paramount importance to Mom. She liked us to be home—home and busy. She encouraged us to be open to reason, to think for ourselves, to be independent.

If we were learning, if we were pressing ahead with whatever we were doing, Mom was happy. And when the time came, she showed the same keen interest in the lives of her grandchildren.

In addition to her husband Hank, Mom was predeceased by her parents Steve and Mildred Nichol, her brother Marvin Nichol (Carmen), and her sisters Peggy Eccleston (Don) and Joan Bilton (John). She will be greatly missed by her children Marvin (Ike), Karen (Eldo) and Carmen (Irwin), and her grandchildren Nick, Amy, Rachelle, David, Ethan and Emily.

We would like to thank Dr. Parsons and Dr. Sherrard for their exceptional care of Mom during her brief illness. And our heartfelt thanks to the nurses Erika, Jill, Janice and Sol, to Michael Perry and the ambulance crew, and to the staff of the Dawson Hospital.

History Hunter: William Ogilvie chronicled the time before the gold rush

By Michael Gates, Yukon News, Friday June 24, 2016 Used with the Author's Permission

In 1887, three small groups of men set out for the Yukon. The first representatives sent by the Canadian government, they helped define what the Yukon was to become.

One of these groups, led by William Ogilvie, DLS, a government surveyor, travelled down the Yukon River to the vicinity of the 141st meridian to define Canada's western boundary with Alaska. Ogilvie helped establish the Yukon's place in Confederation.

The Yukon that Ogilvie was sent to consisted of an indigenous population of a few thousand people in a land twice the size of Great Britain. There were also a couple of hundred prospectors and traders who were mostly American.

Because of this growing population of newcomers, the Canadian government felt obliged to stake out its turf, defined on its western perimeter by an imaginary line that Britain and Russia had agreed to in 1825. It was Ogilvie's job to find that line and mark it on the landscape.

Like all the gold seekers' slowly trickling into the Yukon in 1887, Ogilvie also trekked over the Chilkoot Pass, but with a crew of six men and six tons of supplies to carry them through the year ahead.

He hired Chilkoot Tlingit packers to handle the physically demanding job of hauling the freight over the craggy coastal mountains to the headwaters of the Yukon, while he extended his survey step by step over his route. Among the packers he hired were two who were later to feature prominently in the Klondike Gold Rush: Skookum

Jim Mason, and George W. Carmack.

Travelling down the Yukon River, he encountered many prospectors along the bars and banks. These men were not thrilled to see government officials arrive at this frontier. Ogilvie, however, established excellent rapport with these highly independent individuals and eventually won their respect.

By the beginning of September, Ogilvie arrived at the newly born community of Forty Mile, where Jack McQuesten and Arthur Harper had established their trading post. A few days later, he reached the area believed to be the point where the international boundary crossed the Yukon River.

Ogilvie's party established a camp where they would spend the winter, while he sought out the ideal site for the instrument readings he would require to firmly establish the line that defined two nations.

During his stay in the Yukon, he came in contact with the miners who, though viewing this government interloper with suspicion, asked him many questions about the laws pertaining to mining. Ogilvie took what he learned about mining with him on the long trip back to Ottawa. There, he was able to influence the development of the mining regulations that applied when the Klondike was discovered.

Ogilvie returned to the Yukon in 1895 to extend his survey line south of the Yukon River and confirm the location of newly discovered gold creeks in the Sixtymile area as being in Canada. He also surveyed the site of the mining camp of Forty Mile.

He chronicled the eccentricities of the miners who occupied this remote land before the gold rush, feature prominently in the Klondike Gold Rush: Skookum under the gold rush, relating their improvised system of justice, in the form of the miners' committee. He recounted some of the outrageous stories they fabricated, while passing the long winter hours in their log cabins.

Ogilvie remained in the Yukon in 1896 and was fortunate to witness the events surrounding the discovery of gold in the Klondike. Where he had previously reported the potential of the region, he could now state: "I am pleased to inform you that a most important discovery of gold has been made on a creek called Bonanza ... The indications are that it is very rich, indeed the richest yet found ...".

Ogilvie was also able to interview the trio of men who staked the first claims on what became known as Bonanza Creek and rendered the most accurate account of the details surrounding the discovery.

Ogilvie kept busy, first surveying the town site at the confluence of the Klondike and Yukon Rivers, then clearing up the awful mess and confusion of the claims hurriedly staked by the first prospectors on Bonanza Creek.

He discovered a tiny fraction of open ground on Bonanza Creek between two claims that had been over-staked by the owners. Instead of taking it for himself, he gave his chainman, Dick Lowe, the opportunity. This small parcel of land made Lowe one of the richest men in town. But the incorruptible Ogilvie, despite many opportunities, never tried to feather his own nest. It speaks well of his integrity that the miners turned to him to resolve the confusion and that they respected his decisions regarding the placing of the claims.

Ogilvie left the Yukon in the fall of 1897 and during the winter of 1898 he published "The Klondike Official Guide." It became one of the few accurate sources of information available to those stampeding to the Klondike in the early days of the event. His book, "Early Days on the Yukon," published in 1913, is one of the most colourful and detailed accounts of life in the Yukon before and during the early days of the Klondike gold rush.

A year later, he returned to the Yukon, this time as the second commissioner of the newly established territory. He replaced James Walsh, whose indifference to his job led to much corruption and controversy.

Ogilvie was the right man for the job. He was in the Yukon before the stampede, and understood the mood and sentiments of those who were there. He organized the services essential to the proper administration of the territory and of Dawson City: the police system, a fire department, a board of health, proper streets, schools and a drainage system for the marshy ground back of the shore. He established the provisions for the care of the indigent sick, and working with his council, passed laws appropriate to the territory.

Ogilvie understood the nature of the gold rush town, and supported the wide-open conditions. He shared in common with a later commissioner, George Black, a personal experience in and knowledge of the Yukon that made him well suited for the job

On Discovery Day, Aug. 16, 1975, a plaque commissioned by the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada was unveiled in the park beside the Commissioner's Residence in Dawson City, declaring his work in the Yukon to be of national significance.

Van Bibber praised as the Yukon's latest Order of Canada member

Press Release

WHITEHORSE (June 30, 2016)
— Premier Darrell Pasloski issued the following statement today:

"On behalf of all Yukoners, I would like to congratulate Geraldine Van Bibber on her appointment today as a member of the Order of Canada, one of our country's highest civilian honours. I couldn't think of anyone who is more deserving.

"Geraldine is being recognized for her commitment to Yukon as its 15th commissioner, and for her role in the development of the territory's tourism industry.

"Born and raised in Dawson, Geraldine served as Commissioner of Yukon from 2005 to 2010 and was instrumental in founding the Yukon First Nation Culture & Tourism Association.

"She is also the current chancellor of Yukon College, is Dame of the Order of St. John, and has served as a director of many important organizations here in Yukon.

"This year's recipients will be invited by the Governor General to accept their insignia at a ceremony later this year at Rideau Hall in Ottawa."

Robitaille regains crown in Yukon Gold Panning Championships

Story and Photos By Dan Davidson

P8

The Yukon Gold Panning Championships event is a classic example of how volunteers make things work in Dawson. Several dozen people came together to set up the venue for the contest time the events, judge the results and make the afternoon of July 2 a success. They have managed this rain or shine, and the light shower in the middle of the afternoon was merely a relief from the sunshine beating down through the cloud encircled hole that seemed to be favoring downtown Dawson.

For those looking for lunch there was General Refining Co.'s

BBQ, which raised finds for the Little Blue Daycare.

For those who had never panned and might want to try the Cheechako or youth categories there were practice panning tubs.

For those who wondered how it us to be done, there was a rocker-box demonstration by the Dawson City Museum.

For those caught up by the thought of gold, there was Technic Inc.'s gold pouring exhibition, which took place in three stages during the run of the afternoon.

For those who needed a break from sitting in the stands or lining the fences, there were the Farmers' Market and the Artists'

Market just north of the panning venue.

For some added excitement, there were at least two paragliders who floated to easy landings after floating over the heads of the spectators.

The rules for panning are not complicated. All the dirt pails for a particular heat have been salted with the same number of gold flakes, and the trick is to find them all in a fixed time, with a three minute penalty for each one you miss.

The method, as demonstrated by the Klondike Visitors
Association's Paul Robitaille, who would go on to win the Yukon Open contest later on, is simple: fill the pan from you bucket of dirt, shake the gold to the bottom, rinse, wash, repeat as needed until you see some colours, and then get those flakes into a small glass vial and raise your pan in the air to signify that you are done.

The Sourdough Open was for those over 60. Eight participants vied to find nine flakes. Morris George found 9 8 minutes and 27 seconds, taking first place and winning a $50 gift certificate from Eldorado Hotel. Dianne Schroeder found 7 in 11:04 and Art Sailer found 7 in 12:48.

The Cheechako Open was open to newcomers from anywhere. There were ten flakes, Forty people tried their skill, so there had to be two heats. Amanda Diakiw found 9 in 16:18. Walter Enthammer found 9 in 17:21 Marion Hewitt found 7 in 19:32. The top here were presented with ribbons and gold pans.

There are many types of competition pans used on the world circuit, but the Klondike Classic contest the use of classic Gold Rush era pans. Eleven contestants searched for 8 flakes. Justin Miller. 7 found in 6:48 and won a portable sluice box for his prize. Art Sailer found 7 found in 11:14 and Henry Reinink found 7 found in 13:53.

There were two Youth categories. Twenty-four signed up for the Under 11 group and only three for the Youth 12-15 category, so there were enough tubs to run both groups at once. Both groups had to find 11 flakes.

In the younger group Harley Zapone found 11 in 7:20; Shai Wykes found 11 in 7:48; Carter Zapone found 9 in 12:55.

In the older group, Marika Ford located 10 in 14:49; Noah Robbins found 7 in 16:22; and Alex Hutchinson found 6 in 27:11.

The major contest of the day was the Yukon Open, the winner of which received $2000 and the right to attend the World Championships, to be held this year in Eldorado, California. The six contestants were searching for 7 flakes, but no one found them all. Paul Robitaille, who has won this contest twice before, found 6 flakes in 5:18, Taking into account the 3 minute penalty, that means he actually took just 2:18 to pan his entire bucket. Justin Miller found 4 in 11:30, while Willie Olson found 5 in 12:54.

For Shauntay Grant, nature stimulates the creative process

"I think of the river," Shauntay Grant said, when asked to reflect on her stay at Berton House, which ended the last week of June.

"I walked the river a lot. It was a really good creative space. For me writing happens ... it starts with walking and talking. I sort of like to hear how the words feel when I throw them out loud before I put them on the page. So the river walk was like a blank canvas and it was just a great place to lose myself for a while, especially in those early stages when I was just beginning a piece or a section of the work that I was developing."

The river walk in question is the pedestrian walk along the dyke beside the waterfront. There are two walks, actually, and she liked them both.

"I love that there's the upper walk, but also the lower path, 'cause sometimes, especially now, with all the tourists coming in, the upper walk can get a bit loud and boisterous, so it was nice to have the option to take the lower road."

The scrub willows along the lower path were almost wiped out by a high water freshet back around 2006, but they have rebounded and the lower path is nearly shrouded from the upper in many places this year.

"I feel like I'm in the forest when really the street is just a few steps away."

Berton House seems to have a common effect on most of its resident writers. Grant found her time productive, but full of surprises.

"I set out with the intention of finishing a project – and that didn't happen – but I definitely got my feet we with the project that I wanted to do. But there were other things I didn't expect to write.

"That was kind of nice, too, to come with a game plan, but then be open to whatever stories settled in your lap."

The project in mind is a middle grade poetry/novel told in the voice of a ten-year-old boy, and rooted the North Preston area she knows so well.

"He's exploring the superstitions, all the stories and things that come out in the area."

It is still in the early stages: some narratives, some outlines, some snatches of poetry. She said it was a bit like a jig saw puzzle and all the pieces would have to be fitted together. She's satisfied that she made progress with it.

One of the children's books she read at a municipal council meeting was about visiting her grandmother's farm, some distance from Halifax. It was a poem that became a book sort of by accident, but this project is more deliberate.

"My writing process always starts in nature, she told the audience at her reading back in late May, so this is a perfect place for me to write. It starts as a meditative process, just sitting looking at the sky. As soon as I drove in, I felt that.

"The first thing I noticed here was the mountains," she said on the day she was leaving. "I think what we call mountains in Nova Scotia are really just hills.

"It's very green here. I love nature, and growing up in Nova Scotia, the natural environment is very important to me as a person, but also as a writer. It was very nice to not be plopped into the middle of a bustling city to write. It was very peaceful around the house. There wasn't a lot of noise at all."

She returned to Halifax where she is a teacher at Dalhousie University. Last year was her first full year at that and she taught poetry. This year it will be creative writing and coordinating a writing program. Coming to Dawson for nearly three months was a great treat to have at the end of an academic year.

Junior Canadian Rangers hone skills in Whitehorse

More than 275 Junior Canadian Rangers (JCRs) from 35 communities across the three territories and Atlin, B.C. gathered for seven days of dynamic training and challenging activities at the Enhanced Training Session (ETS) - Advance and Basic courses offered by the First Canadian Ranger Patrol Group (1 CRPG) in Whitehorse, YT from June 16 - 23, 2016.

The youth came for specialized training concentrated on the JCRs three circles of learning which are traditional, life and Ranger skills. All activities focused on outdoor on-the-land training that included white water rafting, repelling, rock climbing, air rifle shooting, biathlon trapping, woodsmanship, canoeing, swift water rescue, traditional activities and more.

The emphasis of the ETS was to provide JCRs with the chance to interact and experience cultural differences while building self-esteem and selfconfidence through practical performance of skill activities in a safe and fun environment. All JCRs were exposed to opportunities that are not normally accessible in isolated or remote communities.

The vision of the Junior Canadian Ranger program is to strengthen remote and isolated Canadian communities through a responsible and practical youth program that embraces culture and tradition, promotes healthy living, positive self-image, and reflects the proud military legacy of the Canadian Rangers.

Captain James Longaphie, Officer in Charge, JCR ETS, summed up the central objective.

"The main goal was to develop friendships, have fun and make the JCRs believe they can do anything if they put their minds to it." We challenged them with first-hand exciting skills to show that there are no limitations and anything is achievable because they're such fantastic youth."

Month of July News

Hi Klondike,

The teacher continues to learn.

Reflecting on my own coaching message, Time to Focus has opened my eyes. Very wide.

Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in and Yukon College have partnered in an ingenious Teaching and Working Farm Project program for food sustainability in the north.

This program is more than turning the soil and growing food, this embraces traditions and cultures and research and sustainability. Dirty hands have never been more appreciated!

I am not a farmer. Involved in teaching the employment/ life skills component for this program, I'm learning what farming is - and why it is important to the body and the spirit.

When I take time to focus I see crops of potatoes, carrots, beets, onions, lettuce and edible flowers.

When I take time to listen I hear, "Nän käk nizhì' tr'ënohshe gha ëtr'ëhoh'ay - On the land we learn to grow our food."

When I take time to to reflect,

I can say I am a planter. I plant seeds. Learning seeds that help grow farmers.

When I take time to smell the dirt, I smile. Smells like possibilities.

Mo's Message: Time to focus/eliminate interruptions

Would you describe yourself as a multi-tasker who can't resist the lure of cellphone messages, Twitter feeds or Facebook posts?

Clifford Nass, a Stanford sociologist who conducted some of the first tests on multitasking has published evidence that we're not just suckers for that new text message, or addicted to it; it's actually robbing us of brain power, too.

The good news? It is possible to train yourself to avoid distractions.

When you find your focus drifting, keep in mind these simple tips to help you feel sharper, more productive and more efficient:

- 1. One thing at a time! You miss important details when you try to process multiple things at the same time.
- 2. Organize. Focus on simplicity. Actionable items - ask yourself if it is a YES or a NO and then do, delegate or delete.
- 3. Create a calendar system. Appointments, "today" items and reminders. Review daily.
- 4. Make lists. Keep them handy. Prioritize action items. Review weekly.
- 5. Clearing clutter works wonders on your cerebral chaos. Pay attention to "stuff" cluttering desks, drawers, cabinets, files, floors, walls and

Reaction to Fire Marshall's Criticisms of DCFD

Council Disturbed by Apparent Attack on Dawson Fire Department

The City of Dawson Council is releasing this statement in response to the leaked Dawson City Fire and Life Safety Inspection report authored by the Yukon Fire Marshall's Office (FMO) and subsequent media attention.

The City of Dawson is addressing the issues raised in the June 17, 2016 report from the FMO.

Most importantly, new Self-Contained Breathing Apparatus (SCBA) was ordered several weeks ago, a purchase already anticipated in the Fire Department's ten-year capital plan. Until the new equipment's arrival, the firefighters, who always understood the limitations of their packs. were following the advice of

New award will recognize Yukoners' achievements

Press Release

WHITEHORSE—The Government of Yukon is establishing a new award to recognize Yukoners' achievements. The Order of Yukon will be presented annually by the Commissioner of Yukon to honour Yukon residents' significant accomplishments, dedication to the community and remarkable service.

"Having an Order of Yukon gives us a new way to publicly commend Yukoners who make an exceptional contribution to the wellbeing of society," Premier Darrell Pasloski said.

The Order of Yukon will be in place in time for Canada's 150th anniversary celebrations next year and up to three awards will be presented each year.

"Formally establishing an Order of Yukon will create an award that is equal to the highest honour in each of the other territories and provinces," Pasloski added. "We think this is something that Yukoners deserve."

the FMO and only planning to use the equipment during interior operations after the incident commander has made a "calculated risk analysis" of the situation. Thankfully, that has not been necessary to date. (We understand that four of the "failed" packs recently passed testing by an independent, qualified third party something that raises questions about testing protocol applied in this situation.)

Regarding the FMO's suggestion that record keeping improve, we agree and had already made it a priority in the DCFD strategic plan approved last December. It should be noted, however, that the FMO official might have had more success in locating reports if the Fire Chief or a senior member of the fire department had been present during the walkthrough.

What is distressing about this event is that someone in a position of trust leaked the FMO's letter to the media and before the City of Dawson had the chance to digest the information and respond. This leak did nothing to improve the safety of our residents and may have been used to cast the DCFD in a negative light.

The DCFD has been safely operating for over one hundred years, and we believe that, contrary to the implications of the FMO report, (they) are competent professionals who operate with the utmost regard for safety. They are community leaders and the people our children look up to. We are proud of each and every one of them; they are owed a debt of thanks for protecting our town. This leak of information might have sought to discredit the DCFD, but it has only served to remind us of how thankful and fortunate we are for their service.

Firefighters Association Protests Validity of Inspection Report

On June 24, 2016 the Yukon News released a story with the heading, "Dawson City Firefighters Lives Put at Risk: Fire Marshall's Office.

The Dawson City Firefighters Association questions the validity of the review conducted by the Fire Marshall's Office (FMO) and does not believe that our safety or the community's is at risk.

Of the approximately 12 SCBA (self-contained breathing apparatus) units tested by the FMO, they all failed. We have since then sent four of these units to be tested by a qualified and certified testing facility and they were found to be in total operating condition. We now have two reports that differ. We are currently sending other SCBA's for more testing.

We have communicated to Mayor and Council our concerns over how a review (audit) could be conducted without the participation of the Fire Chief or senior DCFD members. We believe there are obvious gaps and inaccuracies in the FMO's report. We will be seeking out answers to our questions as to the way this review (audit) was done.

We feel that this audit was poorly done and that answers relative to inspections and record keeping could have been easily answered if the audit were done with the Chief or senior members present.

We also would like to add that we act in a safe and professional manner in the jobs we do. This audit does not reflect the true operations of our Fire Department as it states in the report.

"Spirit of Dawson" Hoping for Some Dawson Spirit

Press Release

Dawson City's community radio station is holding its annual RadioThon fundraiser on Thursday, July 14, from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. The fifth edition of this yearly event will take place at the CFYT studio on Queen Street, and will feature music, food, and merchandise, plus a draw for a sightseeing flight for 3 people, donated by station sponsor Great River Air.

Local residents and tourists are invited to drop by the studio to offer financial support – or just encouragement. Great River

Air is also issuing a challenge to the businesses of Dawson to contribute $100 towards the fundraiser, and will be reaching out to them directly during the RadioThon.

"One of the great things about the event is that it allows us to open our doors and meet our listening public face to face. Of course, we're looking for support, especially for all the great new things we're doing, but it's also a lot of fun," says Peter Menzies, treasurer of the CFYT Board.

Funds raised during the RadioThon will not only go towards the station's operation, but also will help the station modernize and continue new initiatives in the works this summer. A studio renovation, including new furniture and an upgraded broadcast console, was completed, and a summer Radio School is training volunteers for podcasting and remote broadcasting.

CFYT was also very excited to broadcast and record a local production called Klondike Cabin Companion on June 24 and 25, and is striving to deliver more radio drama.

CFYT 106.9 FM, "The Spirit of Dawson," is a non-profit community organization run by the Dawson City Community Radio Society, a volunteer board of seven members, 30 plus volunteer DJs, and countless other volunteers and supporters. Although they receive funding from the Yukon Territorial Government, Yukon Lotteries, the City of Dawson, and the Klondike Visitors Association to help maintain their equipment and operations, the radio station relies on fundraising throughout the year for financial support. The annual RadioThon is the flagship event.

Two vehicle Accident near Bonanza Road intersection

by Cpl. Jeff Myke, Operations NCO Dawson City RCMP

On June 26th, 2016 at 10:40hrs, Dawson City RCMP members along with EMS responded to a two vehicle collision at kilometre 715 of the Klondike Hwy near Bonanza Road.

A four door 1998 Pontiac Bonneville collided with the rear of a dump truck as both vehicles were travelling west bound towards Dawson City.

The lone occupant and driver of the Pontiac was transported to Dawson City Community Hospital for treatment of some minor injuries.

The driver of the dump truck

,which belongs to Sihdu Trucking, did not sustain any injuries.

Damage to the dump truck was minimal with the motor vehicle sustaining significant damage.

Driver inattentiveness is believed to have been a factor. Charges pursuant to the Yukon Motor Vehicle Act are pending.

Josée Bonhomme was thrilled to be on the spot to capture the RCMP and Dawson Firefighters working in harmony to clean up a mess on the highway.

Road Safety

We all have a responsibility to obey the rules of the road to ensure that road use is safe for pedestrians, cyclists and motorists.

As a pedestrian, walk against traffic along the roadside and look both ways to ensure that it is safe before crossing the roadway.

As a cyclist, wear a cycling helmet and ride on the right with the direction of traffic. As a motorcyclist, wear safety helmets and obey the speed limits.

All drivers should be prepared for, and yield to, vulnerable road users even if they do not have the right of way. Be alert for young children playing on streets and senior citizens crossing at intersections. Do not drink and drive, obey traffic signals and signs, and heed workers in temporary work zones.

We at Victoria Gold encourage you to 'think safety' and always be vigilant at roadways by never assuming that vehicles will yield, even if you have the right of way.

Victoria Gold Corp. plans to construct, operate, and close the Eagle Gold Project located northeast of Mayo, in the Dublin Gulch claims region. The Company understands that health and safety is an essential part of our success and is committed to protecting the health and safety of all our workers.

TWENTY YEARS AGO IN THE SUN

Canada Day Events in Dawson

hile the Canada Day Parade may have taken less than ten minutes to pass the old CIBC building on Front Street, no one could say that the crowd along the route was less than along the route was less than enthusiastic.

Constable Cory Hoehn, mounted on Justin, led off a full contingent of the local RCMP, followed by the Dawson Volunteer Fire Department, along with Diamond Tooth Gertie and her

The route from the Visitor Reception Centre, up Front Street, along Harper and Fifth to the Victory Gardens was lined with locals and visitors on a sporadically sunny morning.

At the gardens, the formal ceremony continued with the singing of "O Canada", raising the flags and speeches from a number of community leaders.

Mayor Art Webster made a pitch for an increased feeling of national pride, on this day at least, including a warning about the consequences of reducing the effectiveness of Klondike National Historic history.

MLA David Millar assured the crowd that it was bound to be a fairly fine day, since he, as a placer miner, was really hoping for rain.

Tr'ondek Hwech'in councillor, Jason Barber, extended greetings to everyone on behalf of the Dawson First Nation.

Wendy Burns, on behalf of the Yukon Anniversaries Commission, struck an upbeat note: 'Today is the day to remind us that we are Canadians and we're proud of it. And this year, 1996, to be a Canadian in the Klondike is a very special time of year."

Special events included Steve Kurth's paraglide from the Dome to Minto Park, carrying a Canadian flag, and a fly-by of Airspray Limited's WW II vintage water bombers, the Douglas A26 Invaders. Birddog 7, the lead plane, flew low enough over the town to make the crowd gasp. The others were a bit higher. Also present was a biplane visitor stopping over on his way to Anchorage.

Joe Henry, 97 years old this summer, was presented with a special Seniors' Award. MC Peter Menzies explained that the award was "to honour Joe and all the elders and seniors who have basically made this country what it is.

To everyone's surprise, Joe decided to speak to the crowd, and told a bit of the story of what happened 75 years ago when he got married to Annie. The day continued with a Teddy

Bear Parade and activities for the young folks on the front lawn of the museum, the Yukon Gold Panning Championships, a swimming pool party and a evening dance at the Bonanza

veritt is Liberal Pick len Everitt was unopposed in his bid for the Liberal nomination in Klondike riding in mid-June. The nomination meeting in the curling club lounge was attended by 23 people, and Everitt got enthusiastic support from the group.

Party leader Ken Taylor spoke briefly to the group, sharing his vision of assembling a team that could represent " a whole variety of interests in the territory. Put that kind of a team together and make sure that decisions are made in the territory that reflect the values that most of us have most of the time."

According to Taylor the last two governments have been products of the politics of polarization, elements of the extreme left and right that have striven mightily to put their own agendas in place and undo anything left over from the other party's agenda.

"I believe," he said, "that a lot of people get left out of that kind of a process."

He cited as an example of this the Taga Ku controversy. blaming the NDP government for making quiet deals with the First Nations groups on the one hand, and the Yukon Party government for scuttling the entire deal on the other.

The end result of all the accusations and court between the Yukon government maneuverings came to a head last week, producing a settlement which could amount to $8 million, which will have to come out of the pockets of Yukoners somehow.

Taylor said the total coast was greater than that. A $40 million project was lost, with all the construction and spinoffs that it would have entailed. He believes that some of the NorthwesTel jobs that have migrated elsewhere over the last three years would have stayed in the Yukon if the company had been locked into a lease in the Taga Ku complex. He further indicated that a great deal more progress could have been made in relations and first nations groups if there had not been such ill will generated by the death of Taga

Aside from all of that, however, Taylor said that the recent conclusion of the controversy is not the "win, win, win" situation which it has been proclaimed to be by government leader John Ostashek.

The worst thing is that this decision "is the kind of thing that makes people so distrustful of politicians."

"I think we can do it better," he said.

The "post- Land Claims society" into which he sees the territory moving will need "a group of people with commitment, and with vision to turn these historic agreements into a working arrangement with all Yukoners."

This will take people who are dedicated to "building bridges, not burning them", and Taylor hailed his new candidate, Glenn Everitt, as a man who could help to do just that.

Everitt, currently in his second term as a Dawson City town councillor, has been building towards this move since he first became involved in local politics some 6 years ago. Speculation has been heavy since the early spring that he would be the Liberal pick for this region.

The Sun obtained funding in late 2009 from the City of Dawson, YTG's Heritage Branch and the Community Development Fund to conserve and archive early issues and make them available once again in the public domain. This is a great resource for students, writers and historians, and also for prospective tourists with an interest in Dawson City's life. Each month, we are re-printing our front pages from 20 years ago as a souvenir of our lively history. If you want to see page 2 and beyond, check out our website. Past issues are available there for download. Go to http://klondikesun.com. More will be added periodically when we have time!

In 1996, we became a bi-weekly. Should 20 Years Ago be a feature of every issue of the Sun from now on? Let us know.

Things you've all wanted to know about the Amelia Lupine

The Amelia Lupine was hauled out on July 1, ahead of the Quest paddlers arriving in Dawson's waters. The work was accomplished with only three well coordinated workers. The critical barge for miners and residents along the Yukon River hauls equipment, food, and fuel along the Yukon's first Highway. Its cargo capacity, with fuel tanks in the hull, is 45 tonnes, with a breadth of 6.09 m by 27.43 m long. It is powered by two Caterpillar 3406, six-cylinder diesel engines, and is propelled by water jet. Its draft is about one metre to navigate the changing and shallow river channel. The barge passed its 21st annual Transport Canada inspection by with no trouble.
