Salt Baby investigates the question of Identity

Falen Johnson's thoughtful play, "Salt Baby", raised a lot of important questions on the evening of September 24.

The main plot thread in the 95 minute production was the eponymous central character's (Dakota Hebert) search for her identity, a search which trips up her own personal development and scuppers her relationship with Philip (Nathan Howe).

The problem is that although Salt Baby (if she has another name I didn't catch it) is a full-blood aboriginal person from two different bloodlines, with a status card (do they really have expiry dates?) and everything, she doesn't fit the physical stereotype. She looks white.

Much of the play is about her search to resolve this ambiguity, some of which is autobiographical from the life of playwright Falen Johnson, as well as, according to various reviews and interviews, also reflected in the lives of Hebert and other actors who have been chosen to play this role.

Philip tries hard, but his own family is a bigoted mess and eventually his inability to understand just why her First Nations identity is so important to Salt Baby combines with her obsessive searching to put a wedge between them and drive them apart.

She tries everything she can think of, some of it with humorous results. She consults with members of her family to try and find out at what point the DNA that obviously blossomed in her might have entered the racial mix.

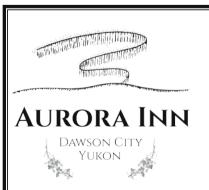

No one seems to know, though the ghostly presence of her grandfather (Colin Dingwall), who wanders in and out of the scenes dressed as a cowboy, offering sage advice and sometimes ironic commentary, suggests that it must be so.

Other advice comes from her father, Al (Marcel Petit), who seems quite sure about who he is, and loves her enough to finally agree, albeit reluctantly, to participating in a DNA test so she can be settled in her heart and mind. The audience is left with the feeling that the results might ruffle his equanimity, but in the end it doesn't matter, since she decides not to pursue the testing.

The play was well acted by all concerned. Dingwall had to play several different characters, male and female, and some of these were clearly caricatures, but half of them were supposed to be comical, so the imposture was appropriate to the story.

The set – a back wall on which various items were hung to change the scenes, as well as four very useful boxes – was minimal but served the purpose, and the actors being their own stage hands served to mark the changing scenes.

"Salt Baby" was staged at the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre's theatre on a night when it had to compete with two other major events in town, but this sensitive and funny play drew a decent audience in spite of that handicap, and was available to play to a large group of students from many other communities later in the week during the Rural Experiential Model, so it had a good run in Dawson.

From the formal opening on Monday, September 19, to the finale on the afternoon of Friday, September 23, the fourth Rural Experiential Model (REM) week in Dawson City was a busy time for the 105 students and teachers who travelled to Dawson from every rural school that has a high school (grades 10 to 12).

This year the schools attending were Watson Lake, Carmacks, Haines Junction, Faro, Ross River, Pelly Crossing and Mayo. Attendees were encouraged to "Find Your Passion" ('Nk'e Näwdä-a) during the week.

As pointed out by REM Coordinator Liz Woods at the opening ceremonies, held in the Dänojà Zho Cultural Centre, the REM is a Yukon Education initiative designed to address challenges in providing equity for Fine Arts and Applied Skills education to students in rural Yukon. Students can gain two Applied Skills or Fine Arts High School credits by attending all 28 hours of the workshops in which they are enrolled, along with an additional 15 hours of evening enrichment activities.

It makes for a long and very intense school week, but students speaking at the finale exercises on Friday were heard to say that this was the most fun they've had so far this year. Students who have attended REMs since grade 10 say that this is something they look forward to each year.

Speaking at the opening ceremonies, Area Three Superintendent Bill Bennett reminded the students, "We only do this for rural Yukon. That's a good thing. Have a safe, wonderful week."

REM has become a permanent curriculum option under Yukon Education, he said.

"REM is the envy of many school districts in Canada. They've contacted the Department of Education and they're looking at the REM model for other places: Northern Saskatchewan, the NWT and Nunavut. They're asking us for our resources. We've spearheaded it here."

Students were also greeted by Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Chief Roberta Joseph and Dawson's Mayor Wayne Potoroka.

The ten week-long workshops were as follows:

Apple Academy, led by Mike Snider and Nikki Krocker, introduced the participants to a whole range of activities they could engage in using a combination of iBook laptops, iPhones and iPads. Full participation in this workshop gained the students Apple Vanguard certification in addition to the Applied Skills High School Credits.

Culinary Arts, was taught in the Art and Margaret Fry Recreation Centre kitchen by local chefs, Allie Haddock and Georgia Hammond. Students not only learned how to run a commercial kitchen, but planned and provided the meals for the participants during the week.

Dance and Drama, was taught by the team of Dale Cooper and Grant Hartwick. Base in the Robert Service School Ancillary Room, students worked towards the creation of a play, based on the Doctor Seuss book, The Lorax, for presentation during the finale.

Games On, 2017! with Gael Marchand, Colin Hickman, Steve Laszlo, Jeremy McCulloch and Tara Wardle, took place in a number of different venues and worked on a variety of sports related training exercises, culminating in the presentation of a new game as part of the closing exercises.

Hair and Esthetics, taught by Tony Ciprani, was one of the larger workshops, conducted at Yukon College's flexible presentation space. Aside from their work on the mannequins and each other, this team assisted with the hair and makeup for the Dance/ Drama finale.

Introduction to Trapping, led by Ryan Sealy and George Bahm, took the students out on the land and introduced them to trap setting and various types of furs. They showed off their new skills at the finale. They shared some of the outdoor experiences with the next group.

On the Land, with Melissa Hawkins and Nick Vinneau, gathered at RSS's Outdoor Classroom, but went from there to many different places in the traditional territory of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in First Nation by rock climbing, walking, hiking, canoeing, and rafting the Klondike River. Their final display was a slide show of their excursions.

REM Makerspace met with Mitch Bruce in the RSS Art Room and made programmed robot cars, created computer assisted designs and printed them on one of the four 3-D printers in the Down in the RSS shop, a ninth group was working with Gerry Quarton and Vernon Asp in the Longboard Design Factory, making both snowboards and skateboards, which were decorated with First Nations' designs.

Assisting several of the other groups with their presentations and making sure the finale event ran smoothly were the members of Peter Menzies' Tech Crew, who spent the week finding out what they needed to do and figuring out how to do it. The generally very smoothly run three-hour finale, including a musical play, a game in the gym and eight other presentations proved that they learned their jobs well.

Daytime workshops were not the only events during the week.

Tuesday night had 12 planned activities, including archery, arctic sports, beading, fiddle music and dance, First Nations art and hand games, and traditional food and plant uses.

Wednesday evening had brain teaser games, applied skills with the Fire Department and EMS Paramedics, story telling at the Commissioner's residence, several Fine Arts and Trades options and three Physical Activity Wellness groups.

Thursday night featured a "Mocktail Hour" at St. Mary's Catholic Church and a performance for the students of the play "Salt Baby".

On Friday evening there was a Dance and Board Games Night in the Ancillary and Music rooms at the school.

On Saturday the buses were on the road for home by 10:30 in the morning.

Uffish Thoughts: Why it's Okay that the Fry Arena Upgrade Budget is Being Increased

The September 20 Committee of the Whole (COW) meeting of Dawson's council featured an item that may be puzzling to many people. In the original budget for the coming year, $1,500,000 was earmarked for work on the Art and Margaret Fry Recreation Centre (AMFRC). This was to finance an upgrade that would include the installation of a system to provide the arena with artificial ice and thus extend the arena season by a considerable amount at either

Folks in Whitehorse, where hockey practices have already begun, may find it strange to read those words, but a lack of an artificial ice surface has been a source of constant frustration at the arena since it opened its

As it turned out, the planned upgrades are going to cost more than the budgeted amount, and so there was a need to increase the line amount for that project to $2.377.000.00.

Where would the additional $877,000.00 come from?

Back in 2009 the City of Dawson entered into a contribution agreement with YTG for $4 million, that money to be used to maintain the safety and sustainability of the arena "to ensure a safe and fully functional Recreation Centre."

Now, there is certainly a case to be made for saying that the arena has never been fully functional since it was built, as the second floor over the administration section has never been completed. Indeed, the weight room, treadmills and the main offices of the Rec. Staff have been relocated to the Waterfront Building, four blocks west of the arena, in order to improve the access to those facilities.

It has been argued in the past, and still is in some quarters, that spending any money on the AMFRC is throwing good money after bad and that a new facility is needed.

Two councils back there was a strenuous attempt to divert this money into the planning of such a building. Prior to the last territorial election there was even a ground-breaking ceremony in the tailings area on the southeast side of the Dome Road, across from the Crocus Bluff ballpark and the soccer pitch, along with a promise from the government to start work on such a building.

The diversion failed to meet the test of the memorandum. and there was no movement on the new rec centre. The last two councils have been trying to get the best deal they can out of the remaining money, which basically translates into doing whatever it is possible to do with the AMFRC, because it's what we have, and it's all we are likely to have in the immediate future.

The remaining available funds can't be spent on anything else, other than repairs, upgrades and building safety. Oh - and the contribution agreement expires this coming spring. So it is important to get the best results out of the money that remains. This amount happens to be $2.377.000.00.

The second attempt to redirect funding succeeded after several years of engineering studies and measurements proved, as Mayor Wayne Potoroka put it on Sept. 20, that "Chicken Little was wrong and the roof wasn't going to fall down, and paying people ... $50,000 a year to go and take shots ... to watch pilings deflect" back and forth wasn't a good use of the money. Then the directive by the oversight committee (which includes municipal and territorial people) was expanded to allow for improvements to the functionality of the building.

That was permitted, and that is what the present council has been doing since then.

"So," Potoroka continued, "we've got a chiller unit now and we'll have a little longer ice season."

The entire amount may not be needed in this season, but it just might be come December, so it was thought best to make the request to the senior level of government to make sure the money was available, since the territorial budget did not make that obvious.

Outgoing CAO André Larabie informed council that such assurances have been made, both orally and in writing, and so the proposed increase in the budget line, which will be formally accepted at the next regular council meeting (as distinct from a COW meeting) is quite proper and is simply what he called an "in and out" matter as far as the town's finances are concerned.

There were no serious complaints about the 2016 season at the KVA's September's Tourism roundup, an annual event held by the Klondike Visitors Association each year as the season draws to a close.

Within a week after this meeting, of course, the joint Canada/USA Little Gold Customs Station on the Top of the World Highway would be closed; the Westmark Hotel and the Gold Rush Campground had shut down the week before, but these are normal season end occurrences.

The Brooks, who run Gold Rush, have let it be known that they had an excellent season, and of the 34 people around the conference table at the Downtown Hotel on September 23, there was no one who disagreed with that assessment.

KVA Exec. Dir. Jackie Olsen welcomed everyone to the meeting at noon and set the tone by saying that the summer had been a good one. KVA Chair Mark Mather commented on the fabulous turnout at the meeting and echoed the positive opening statement.

KVA Marketing Manager Paul Robitaille outlined the marketing organization's operations and provided statistics to show that the attendance at Gerties, while down slightly from last year, was still over 29,000, and the Jack London Museum had its second best year. Visitation to the KVA's website doesn't necessarily translate to actual visits, but was over 135,000 again.

The organization is looking at revising its Dawson Regional Marketing Plan and continues to be a key organizer in a large number of event weekends during the spring and summer season.

Mayor Wayne Potoroka outlined some of the town's initiatives, including the new public washrooms on Front Street, the new garbage cans in the downtown core, the new small park in front of Diamond
Tooth Gerties, repair of a number of boardwalks around town (an annual budget expense line), work done on the new Trails Plan for the area, the four nicely landscaped new water wells along Front Street, continued support for the move to have the Klondike achieve UNESCO World Heritage Status, and slow but steady progress being made on the rehabilitation of the Old CIBC Building on Front Street.

David Rohatensky, the Superintendent of the Klondike National Historic Site, echoed that same support for World Heritage Status, and outlined a number of things that Parks Canada has been attempting to do to enliven the offering to tourists.

"We don't do the marketing," he noted, "but we do try to provide product."

He indicated that Park's stats for the summer were good, though a new method of tabulating them makes it hard to do comparisons with previous years. KNHS has allowed visitors to see some of the "behind the scenes" activities this summer. partnered with the Friends of the Klondike Corridor to raise the profile of the Bear Creek Compound, would like to be able to open Bear Creek for a day or two a week next summer, and is working on plans to implement the federal government's announcement of free parks' entry during Canada 150 celebrations.

Jonathan Parker, the Acting Director of Tourism for YTG, reiterated the caution that measurement is a tricky business. His department's stats are showing only a one percent increase in visitors this year, and he said that "doesn't seem real" based on the reports he's been getting of activity from all the Visitor Information Centres (VICs) and businesses he's heard from around the territory.

As if in confirmation of that, Carrie Docken, the Regional Superintendent for Yukon Parks, reported that visitation at the Tombstone Interpretive Centre was up between five and seven percent, while the use at the campground there was up by a third and the back-country camping areas were overloaded with 2400 visitors.

Dieter Reinmuth, who operates the Dawson City River Hostel across the Yukon River, has a somewhat different clientele than other campsites in town, and stressed that, while Klondike history may be an attraction to some, his experience is that more people are coming for an experience on the land in some way.

Paul Wettstein, of the Aurora Inn, agreed to the extent that more land based experiences need to be made available for longer stretches of time. That the City of Dawson boundaries do not include the Midnight Dome, and city ploughing stops at the end of its Dome subdivisions, means that people who might want to take in that view, or see the Northern Lights from the Dome, can't get there once the road is closed shortly after the first serious winter snows.

Ploughing would be the responsibility of the Highways Department, which didn't have anyone at this meeting.

There was also some enthusiastic discussion about the need for more public washrooms, most likely in the form of outhouses, that should be located near the top of the Dome, and again near the ferry landing.

In the latter case, if you have a two hour or more wait for the ferry, and you're not driving or towing an RV with built-in facilities, it can be a long wait, and it's a fairly long walk back to the VIC or the Waterfront Park, to use the facilities located there.

The roundtable contributions at the end of the more formal presentations added good bits of information to the discussion, and were generally as positive as the rest of the meeting, which wrapped up after two hours, had been.

Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Teaching Farm celebrates first cohort graduation

The motto of the Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in Teaching & Working Farm is, in the Han language, "Nän käk nishi tr'ënòshe gha hëtr'ohoh'ay" (On the land we learn to grow our food). The farm's second season featured its first fill cohort of 20 students, 18 of whom were successful in completing the summer long course of work and study.

Graduation was one of the features of the second Harvest Ceremony held on September 16 at the farm, which is located 15 kilometres from Dawson, just south of the Dawson City Airport, at the site formerly known as Strachan's Farm. The parcel of land is part of the First Nation's traditional territory and part of its land selection under its final land claim agreement.

TH citizens and other Dawsonites gathered well ahead of the early evening event and passed the time before the formalities with a rousing game of Indian Bingo.

Chief Roberta Joseph addressed the crowd.

"Agricultural development on TH land has been a dream of out nation for years. Our elders have always advised us that food security and an agricultural economy were important to the health of our nation and the greater Klondike community. The farm is helping us to achieve those goals, and it's very rewarding to share in the success of this project. We are very thankful for everyone who has been an integral part of another great year."

The farm is a joint project of the First Nation and Yukon College.

She offered thanks to the Yukon First Nations Training Policy Committee and others who provided funding for this year's program, which is massively larger in scope than last year's operation. She thanked Yukon College for its participation and support in this and other projects.

"Together we look forward to branching the farm into a research and year round production and a Yukon built greenhouse, which is expected on site next spring."

She was full of praise for Randy Lewis, the farm school coordinator, who had previously worked with TH citizens in the reclamation training sponsored by Kaminak Mining (now Gold Corp.) over the last several years.

She thanked the instructors, elders, local farming experts and life skills coordinators in the program for working so well with their students.

"All your contributions have not gone unnoticed. Many of us have seem positive changes in many of the students, and it's appreciated by our families and our community."

Several Robert Service School students were freed up to participate in the summer and fall programs at the farm school, for which Principal Hilary Skilnyk was thanked.

"Thanks also to Dexter MacRae, TH's Director of Human Resources, Education and Training Dept., for helping to make this dream a big reality for us.

"Lastly, the biggest thanks is owed to the students, who made all of us proud over the course of the season. Thank you for your perseverance and energy. This program is succeeding because of each one of you and we hope that you return next year."

Following an opening prayer, given by elder Ronald Johnson, the formalities began.

Sandy Silver, MLA for Klondike, took to the podium to snap a photo of the large crowd for his Facebook page and praise the type of a programming being pioneered at this site.

"This is a great place to learn," he said, perhaps especially for the type of student who didn't get much out of the regular school system. Silver came to Dawson to teach at RSS prior to entering politics, so he is familiar with the sort of thing he referred to.

Moving on, the Han Singers took to the stage to welcome everyone, then emcee Dexter MacRae presided over the presentation of graduation certificates and special backpacks to all the students and participants, including, indeed the official farm dog. Not all of the students were able to attend this event, due to other commitments.

as an educator, to see so many amazing students."

MacRae noted that the program here was also indebted to the Yukon Research Centre, and the Cold Climate Innovations Centre.

"We're really proud of what the TH farm school has accomplished this year. It wasn't without a lot of effort. We planned for 12 students and ended up with 20. We had 16 post-secondary age students and secondary school students.

"The students were engaged in everything, from farming and homesteading, planting the smallest of seeds, building the facilities that needed to be able to live in and learn and be successful in this environment. That means all the tent structures you see beside you (residential wall tents); the 40 by 40 marquee (used as a classroom); renovating the old concession and turning it into a cookhouse; all the plantings that happened in the field. They learned the importance of teamwork as well and the value of working together ... learning to be tolerant and accepting of others' challenges."

Successful students this year were: Paul Blanchard, Michelle Charlie, Tyrell Hearty, Phillip Johnson, Harley Moses, Josh Moses, Nick Rear, Ellen Sidney, Tanner Sidney, Herman Taylor, Mercedes Taylor, Trae Taylor, Jennifer Titus, George McLeod, Zarah Sidney, Dillan Taylor, Eddy Gerberding, Tiffany Taylor.

The students ranged in age from high school to middle age. Most were TH citizens, but there was one each from the Nacho Nyak Dun, Kwanlin Dün and Kaska first nations, as well as one non-native student.

The formalities came to a close with the presentation of the amusing trophies presented to the teams that had participated in the fun and games that had taken place earlier in the day.

Following the ceremonies, there was a feast, with food grown on the farm as well as game donated for the event. Music was provided by a quartet of local musicians.

Projects to prevent and address violence against Indigenous women awarded funding

WHITEHORSE—More than $300,000 in funding has been awarded to eight projects that help prevent violence against Indigenous women and girls. The funding comes from the Prevention of Violence Against Aboriginal Women Fund and the Aboriginal Women's Initiative Fund.

"Addressing violence against women requires the collective efforts of governments, organizations and individuals," Minister responsible for the Women's Directorate Elaine Taylor said. "The recipients of this funding play a crucial role in creating safety and wellness in our communities through the development of positive social responses."

The Yukon Aboriginal Women's Council, Whitehorse Aboriginal Women's Circle and the Liard Aboriginal Women's Society are receiving $50,000 each for projects including the Gathering of Family Members of Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls, the Sharing our Stories project, and the Community Violence Prevention project.

"Whitehorse Aboriginal Women's Circle truly appreciates the funding support from the Prevention of Violence Against Aboriginal Women program and the Aboriginal Women's Initiatives program," Whitehorse Aboriginal Women's Circle director Adeline Webber said. "These programs have helped us to achieve our goals and priorities."

The Aboriginal Women's Initiative Fund provided $150,000 to three Aboriginal women's organizations to develop projects that respond to recommendations made at the Yukon Regional Roundtable and the second Yukon Aboriginal Women's Summit.

"Our projects have been highly successful and the work could not have been done without the support of these programs. In particular, Leading the Way Mentorship and Suicide Prevention under the Aboriginal Women's Initiative program and two recent Prevention of Violence Against Aboriginal Women projects address residential school issues," Whitehorse Aboriginal Women's Circle director Krista Reid added. "We produced a book with photographs and stories, and planned a reunion for former students, their families, the church, and friends, which took place August 5 to 7 at Helen's Fish Camp."

"The healing camp and similar projects are an important part of healing and empowering our women, and in turn their families," Champagne and Aishihik First Nations Chief Steve Smith said. "The time spent on the land practicing dän k'e (our ways) is a source of strength for our people and is critical to the wellness of our community as a whole."

Caldwell reflected on the environment in her first book

Claire Caldwell, the 76th Berton House writer-in residence, presented her work and some of her reflections on Dawson to an audience of 18 people at the Dawson City Community Library on September 19. This public reading, and another in Whitehorse, are the only actual requirements that the residency imposes upon the visiting writers, though many participate in the community in other ways.

"It's been great to be here and to get to know the town and the Yukon," she said, "to feel so welcomed and to have everyone so willing to share of themselves and of this place where they're from."

Caldwell is a poet and editor who lives in Toronto, where her day job is as an editor for part of the Harlequin Romance line.

She holds an M.F.A. in Creative Writing from the University of Guelph and her work has appeared in many magazines and journals, including This Magazine, Maisonneuve and Prism International. In addition she helps to run SmallPrintTO's Rhyme Stew, a rap-poetry workshop for kids.

Her reading began with a couple of poems from her 2014 collection, Invasive Species, a book in which the calamities of climate change and the dangers of the natural world are chronicled side by side with the intimacies of daily life.

In "See Also: Arctic Shrinkage" six couplets trace a voyage of exploration from north to south and east to west while events occur in other places around the world. The title poem questions just who might be called the invasive species, even as wild animals return to the city suburbs and urban cores.

While in Dawson, she has become fascinated by the ravens and the river. Two poems written here attempt to capture the sounds of both.

From "Sounds a Raven Makes": "Smoker's laugh, bed springs / stone skipped across the river / Raven imitated by kids flapping parka sleeves on skating rink / Raven imitated by a miner who's not seen people in days / rusty bike chain, 3 A.M. phone call / snow melting off roof / raven imitated by raven / coin dropped in a tip jar / dog locked in a truck "

Caldwell also sampled some of the material that she has been writing to make up her second book, and concluded the reading with a suite of five poems, from Invasive Species, called "Grizzly Woman". These are about Amie Huguenard, the partner of Timothy Treadwell, the bear enthusiast and central character in the documentary film "Grizzly Man". Both were killed by bears in 2003, but little is known about her compared to the amount of attention that has been paid to

During the Q&A session Caldwell's audience asked her about her writing process, what influence being here may eventually have on her writing, how she balances her work for Harlequin with her personal creativity, what books inspire her and how she finds time to write.

She keeps notes, makes journal entries, lets things simmer for a while before writing about them, does much of her first draft work on paper before transferring it to a computer.

It was a lively evening enjoyed

She will be reading at the Whitehorse Public Library on September 29, the evening of the day she leaves Dawson. She will share the bill with Whitehorse non-fiction writer, Eva Holland.

The Library is pleased to welcome new Berton House Writer-in-Residence, Debra Komar. Debra has worked as a forensic anthropologist in the US, UK, and Canada for over twenty years. She has investigated humanrights violations, resulting in violent deaths, for the United Nations and Physicians for Human Rights, testified as an expert witness in The Hague and across North America, and authored the authoritative Forensic Anthropology: Contemporary Theory and Practice for Oxford University Press. Debra will be at Berton House from October to December, and will be working on her fifth work of historical nonfiction using modern forensic science to reexamine a criminal trial in 1920s Yukon. Robert Service School students will reap the benefits of Debra's expertise, as she has agreed to be a guest speaker to a couple of the classes.

Librarian Dan is back from a recent book-buying spree in Whitehorse, so look for some great new titles on the New Arrivals shelves. Non-fiction acquisitions include several books about Northern living. Among them: The Trapper's Bible, Camping in the Old Style, How to Play in the Woods, Casting Quiet Waters: Reflections on Life and Fishing, The Complete Guide to Hunting, Butchering, and Cooking Wild Game, Fish This!: An Alaskan Story, My Tiny Alaskan Oven: Simple Scrumptious Recipes for Busy People, Hunting Caribou: Subsistence Hunting Along the Northern Edge of the Boreal Forest, and The Northern Lights: Celestial Performances of the Aurora Borealis.

Starting to plan for freeze-up? Just a reminder that our West Dawson and Sunnydale patrons can arrange for prolonged loans for their library materials. Just inquire at the counter and we can extend the due date. Might be a great chance to get through some of those series you've been contemplating.

Pictures Don't Lie Debuts in Dawson

By Dan Davidson

Members of the Van Bibber family, along with many Dawsonites, were treated to the premier screening of Red Snapper Films' 20 minute documentary on the life and legacy of J.J. Van Bibber on the evening of September 17.

Entitled "Pictures Don't Lie", the film was created using the vast number of photographs in the Van Bibber collection, as well as the many hours of audio recordings (mostly voiced by an actor) recorded during J.J.'s later years to the continuing work of the J.J Van Bibber Legacy Fund, which has already donated money to a number of worthy causes, such as the North Klondike Highway Music Society. Three members of that group provided fiddle music during the reception portion of the evening.

Admission was by donation

Peter Menzies, the group's leader, recalled receiving $5,000 from the family just three years ago, enabling the group to purchase fiddles for young students, and offer them lessons.

"We now have a fiddle group in town with eight young people. and three tutors," Menzies said. "We play every coffee house, every square dance, every Moosehide Gathering. We're learning old time fiddle tunes and directly supporting fiddle in Ross River, Teslin, and indirectly in Haines Junction."

The young students spent the summer busking on the streets of Dawson to raise money to go to a square dance in Old Crow, and help start a club there.

Clara ("Sis") Van Bibber spoke lovingly of her dad and introduced some of the grandchildren, great grand children and the first great great grand child in the growing clan.

"Dad worked hard over many years to have his stories written down to be shared with others. He left us in January, 2012, and he has kept us all very busy since."

The first fruit of that work was the 2012 publication of I Was Born Under a Spruce Tree, which is now being used in First Nations' curriculum in grades 6 and 10 at the Robert Service School.

"Dad has left us all a wonderful legacy of this book.

"There is now a second piece of his legacy, this film, called "Pictures Don't Lie". A third piece will be a photo exhibit, so we've got two down – the book and the film." She thanked Allie Winton for the many hours she worked with J.J., and both Lulu Keating and Dan Sokolowski for their work on the film.

"We are so honoured to share this with you this evening."

The film was delightful for its many photos and J.J.'s candid, and often amusing, commentary on the images.

Donations to the fund will be used to establish a scholarship under the umbrella of the Yukon Foundation, and to begin to raise funds for a second printing of the book.

Professor speaks of Unexpected Dangers of Unconventional gas and oil exploration

By Dan Davidson

Dr. Avner Vengosh, a professor of Earth and Ocean Sciences at North Carolina university, paid a virtual visit to the Dänojà

Zho Cultural Centre on the evening of September 15 to advise a small audience of some potential dangers of hydraulic fracturing (commonly called "fracking") that aren't' getting as much attention as the professor thinks they should.

Vengosh was actually speaking to a much larger audience in Whitehorse, but an internet link broadcast his presentation, both the audio and the graphic content, to audiences in Dawson City and Mayo.

The presentation was sponsored by the group, Yukoners Concerned About Oil and Gas Exploration/Development whose spokesman, Don Roberts, made no bones about the group's absolute opposition to the practice in introducing Dr. Vengosh.

His lecture was titled "The Environmental Effects of Unconventional Oil and Gas Development and Hydraulic Fracturing". His data was drawn from collaborative research undertaken by scientists working from Duke, Ohio State, U. of Rochester, and Yale.

It is generally known that fracking has breathed new life into the petroleum industry in North America, where conventional means of extracting oil from the earth have faced declining results for a number of years. Injecting large quantities of water and a variety of chemicals deep into the planet is known to free up deposits of oil and gas, in particular, that are embedded in the shale.

Much concern has been expressed about the nature of the chemicals used in the process, generally kept secret by the companies, and about the amount of fresh water being forever contaminated by its use in these operations.

Vengosh says that it might be more important to be concerned about other substances that were locked underground until freed by the fracking process. Along with the industrial chemicals that mix with the groundwater and come up with the "return flow" are naturally occurring radioactive materials, halides (chloride, bromide and iodide) and inorganic contaminants such as ammonium, barium and strontium.

It is not known just what impact these additional chemicals will have on the water table, thought there are many reports of wells near fracking operations being affected by stray gas contamination from the process.

Dr. Vengosh is of the opinion that we don't know enough about the side effects of the process to do it safely, and fears that, given the vast number of shale gas wells being drilled, 7000 in Pennsylvania alone, many more in other states, and potential for the practice stretching up through Canada's western provinces into the Yukon, a great amount of damage may be done before the data is conclusive enough to cause the industry to exercise caution.

When I explore my <fill in the blank> I fear less.

Almost everyday, we encounter something that unnerves us—something that makes our heart race, our palms sweat and our breath catch. Fear/pain/anger/shock/surprise/change.

Being "fearless" is not about being brave. It's about being bold enough to face what you fear.

Pushed out of your comfort zone can make you feel powerless.

My foot pain was my wake up call to ask for help.

When I considered what I had (immobility) and what I wanted (freedom) and what I needed (answers) and what I got (support), dodging the pain wasn't getting me anywhere.

We grow when we are stretched. Yeah, sometimes it hurts like hell but when the pain is gone, the passion returns and it feels so <rewarding/exciting/pleasant>!

So go ahead, scare yourself. Face something that makes your knees wobble and your heart race.

And get scared again. Before long, you'll fear less...fear-lessly.

Yukon College contributes $38.4 million to Yukon's GDP

PRESS RELEASE

WHITEHORSE—Yukon College released a socio-economic profile today which determines that the College represents an estimated $38.4 million impact to Yukon's Gross Domestic Product (GDP) and is a leader in northern issues.

The profile states that with $22.8 million in 2014-15 core funding, the College generated a further $23 million in third party funded programs, projects and contracts for a total of $46 million in revenues. $43.8 million of this was spent on personnel and the purchase of goods and services, generating a further estimated $18.4 million in indirect and induced economic activity. This represents a total estimated Yukon College-related economic output of $62.2 million. The total employment impact of Yukon College is 542 full-time equivalent (FTE) jobs..The profile found that in 2014-15 the College had 1,211 students enrolled in credit programming, Two-thirds of these aspired to a bachelor's degree or higher credential. 537 credit students were enrolled in degree, post-graduate and university transfer programs. Another 350 students were enrolled in trades, career and technical programs.

As well, 311 credit students were enrolled in the School of Academic and Skill Development, indicating that providing access to college prep and upgrading courses remains an important part of the College's role across all 13 campuses.

The profile authors also facilitated discussions around the College's evolution into Yukon University. They found that Yukon residents would like to hear more about the proposed vision for the university.

Residents stressed the importance of maintaining trades and upgrading programming as well as the delivery of programming through campuses in the communities.

"The feedback presented in the profile does not come as a surprise. The concerns raised are understandable given that many of us imagine a more traditional university model. However, Yukon University, like new universities in BC and Alberta, will offer trades, upgrading and college programming alongside new degree programs. Our task now is to communicate this vision to Yukoners—we want the same thing and that is good news overall," said Moodie.

"Gold Nougie" Dougie Smith and Beverly Smith pose with Paul Robitaille from Klondike Visitors Association and Jim Robb's re-framed piece.

Employees at Klondike Visitors Association were surprised to find out that a Jim Robb original hung on their wall. Early in summer, a call from Doug Smith (aka "Gold Nougie" Dougie), revealed to them that a painting of the Palace Grand Theatre (the only one Jim Robb has done), which staff believed was a print, was hanging on their walls. Smith, along with his partner Beverly, are both collectors and friends of Jim Robb; as well as avid historians with a keen interest in Arizona Charlie and the Palace Grand Theatre. The Smiths were assisting Jim Robb in a hunt for the original Palace Grand piece, which Robb wished to make prints and shirts of. "Jim Robb is a Yukon Icon and just a great resource for our Territory" – says Doug, "we just love sharing his work". The painting, it was revealed, was painted for the 100th anniversary of the Palace Grand Theatre in 1999. At that time, Klondike Visitors Association was involved in producing shows at the venue, notably with the Gaslight Follies. Following a quick trip up the highway, the Smiths visited the staff at KVA to see the piece, after which it was agreed that they could bring the piece to Whitehorse to have it scanned to make prints; to show it to Robb; and to re-frame it. A month or so later, Doug and Beverley returned with the original in hand, but which now was framed in a flat-front style frame, and featured a new signature and commemoration from Jim Robb- "To commemorate 100 years of the Palace Grand Theatre, which was originally built from two wrecked steamboats". The Smiths, who winter in Arizona, are also keen historians interested in Arizona Charlie. As this is the case, they attached a photo of Charlie to the re-dressed painting. They also wanted to acknowledge Peter Jenkins, who, in his role as mayor in the early 2000's, visited the grave of Arizona Charlie to mark his role in the Klondike. During their visit, the Smiths also donated files from their research into Arizona Charlie, which KVA passed on to the Dawson City

Klondike Visitors Association wishes to thank Doug and Beverley for their generous gift as well as acknowledge their efforts related to preserving the name of iconic Klondike personalities.

Apartment Project breaks ground

When you use this shovel for a ground breaking ceremony, you really mean business.

Story and photos By Dan Davidson

The ground breaking ceremony on September 19, for the newly announced eight unit apartment building being built by the Klondike Development Organization at the corner of Sixth Avenue and King Street in Dawson involved something a bit more impressive than the traditional ceremonial shovel.

Following introductory comments by KDO chair Brian Stethem and Mayor Wayne Potoroka, a John Deere 240D LC shovel from Gammie Contracting dug into the earth at the edge of the Triple J Motel lot and scooped out several large buckets of earth.

The KDO is non-profit development group which is comprised of membership from the City of Dawson (CoD), Dawson City Chamber of Commerce, Klondike Visitors Association (KVA), Dawson City Arts Society (DCAS) and Chief Isaac Incorporated.

It has undertaken a number of needs studies since its inception and one of the needs it identified was for more housing options in plans for a variety of housing projects, including an earlier proposal for tiny homes, but the current apartment complex is the one which has obtained federal and territorial funding in the amount of $900,000.00 to help pay for the construction.

Land was purchased from the Triple J Motel, which has sold off some of its individual cabins and relocated several others on what remains of its property to create the size of lot needed for the project. The land was then re-zoned by the town.

The new building, which is intended to begin construction very soon, and be ready for occupancy by next summer, will have six one-bedroom units, and two two-bedroom units. These will be offered at market rent, with the tenants responsible for utilities. This is not low cost housing, but it's a starter option where very little exists now.

"This is pretty exciting for the KDO," said Stethem, "to actually start digging the hole. It's been five or six years in planning. In the end it took a lot of manoeuvring."

He thanked the staff of Across the River Consulting for doing a lot of the planning spadework and all the KDO member organizations for their support.

"We owe a big thank you to Yukon Housing for helping us out to make this thing go through. It's been a long crawl, but we're here. As I said on the radio the other day, it's not a solution, but it's the beginning of a solution. Maybe we'll get some people off couches."

"I don't have much to say," said Mayor Wayne Potoroka. "I want to thank the KDO for their innovation and creativity in actually getting a solution, or a part of a solution, to this problem that we have here in town, which is a big lack of housing. Of course, Andre has done a lot of work for the town as the CAO. It was the very complicated puzzle putting all the pieces together, with all the documents that needed to be signed off and put in front of council for a vote.

"It's nice that we actually have a home grown solution to this problem. Sometimes we wait for Whitehorse to arrive with the magic bucket (of money) and it never comes. Sometimes you've got to grab that opportunity when it presents itself, and that's what this is. So thanks to everyone who played a role in getting us here."

Karen Dubois (DCAS), Stephen Johnson (CoD), Jackie Olsen (KVA), Andre Larabie (Dawson CAO), Greg Dumka (Dawson Historic Advisory Committee), Brian Stethem (KDO) and Mayor Wayne Potoroka.

Hello Dawson!! My article has been on a bit of a hiatus over the latter part of the summer, but I'm back in action now that we are into the fall, the kids are back into school and things have settled a bit in town.

Our Run Dawson Youth Run club is also back in action with run club every Thursday at 3:30 at the school. All kids over the age of 10 are welcome to join us - you don't need to have any fancy running gear or pro running skills - that's what Cst Boehmer is there for! For those that are interested in attending, but are unsure of what happens during our run group, we always start with a warm-up, go out for a planned run and then return for a stretch and cool down. We are always happy to accommodate all levels of runners and walkers and we never leave anyone behind. The best part is that all you need to bring with you is a good attitude and some team spirit!

We recently had a small group of young'uns from the Tr'ondek Hwech'in Head Start program into our Detachment for a little visit. Cst Robson provided them with a tour of the detachment and the Police vehicles, showed them the Police radio system and how dispatchers communicate with Police, and he staged a mock mischief investigation. You can imagine their surprise when these sharp little thinkers pointed out how the suspect, who left his wallet at the scene of the mischief, looked strikingly similar to Cst Robson!! I am told by Cst Robson that it was a fantastic day.

I'm also told that Cst
Nakonechny recently made an appearance at the Robert
Service School for some reading time with the Kindergarten, Grades 1 and 3 classes. Cst Nakonechny is a big fan of reading, so I'm sure the kids will see more of him in the coming days.

While on the topic of our Dawson littles, I will take this opportunity to remind all our drivers about speed limits and school buses! Don't forget that the school zone speed limit is 25 km/hr. Since I'm feeling generous, I'll give you a break on the 25 km/hr speed zone on Saturdays, Sundays and any school holidays!

Please also remember that you are required to stop for the school bus when the lights are alternately flashing. It does not matter which direction you are travelling, you are required to stop until those lights stop flashing. The safety of the children in our community is paramount, but as a secondary deterrent, the Motor Vehicle Act fine for passing a school bus while it is stopped to load or unload passengers is a whopping $230! Christmas is coming folks- don't spend those hardearned pennies unnecessarily on driving fines!

Speaking of road safety, Operation Impact will be taking place on the roads throughout Canada during the Thanksgiving weekend from October 7 to 10, 2016. Are you aware that the four main causes of death and injury on Canadian roadways are impaired driving, seatbelt use (or lack of), speed and distracted driving? The goal of Canada's Road Safety Strategy 2020 is to make Canada's roads the safest in the world, and in an effort to contribute to this initiative, our Detachment will be conducting road checks and driving enforcement action will be increased over this weekend, when there will be many individuals and families travelling on the roads. Our goal is to encourage safe driving practices that will ultimately minimize tragedies that can occur on the roadways.

Well, that's it for this time Dawson!! I will see you out on the road over the Operation Impact weekend, and I hope that all I will be doing is wishing you a happy thanksgiving!!

Until next time, take care of yourself and others!

Just a week later the surplus cabins were all removed and the excavation and backfill work on the foundation was well under way. There is a second shovel down in that hole.

2016 Horticultural Show Candids

A big thanks to everyone from the veggies that run the show!

Cold & Flu Season

The most effective thing that you can do to protect yourself from getting sick is to

Washing your hands will also help prevent the spread of infectious deseases to others.

Even if your hands appear to be clean, they may carry micro-organisms (germs) that are picked up from shared objects like doorknobs, handrails, keyboards, and other equipment at home and the workplace.

Wash your hands with warm water and soap for at least 20 seconds (the time it takes to sing Happy Birthday). Be sure to lather the front and backs of your hands, between your fingers and under your nails. Dry your hands with a paper towel or a clean towel, then use the paper towel to turn off the tap.

We at Victoria Gold encourage you to 'think safety' and use a tissue or raise your arm to your face when you cough or sneeze to avoid spreading germs to your hands and to others so that we may all remain healthy and enjoy a cold-free season.

"THE ELECTION IS OVER...BRING ON THE BYELECTION!"

Vol. 8 No. 11 Friday. October 4. 1996

BY DAN DAVIDSON

Sun Staff

Since the message of the Christian church in general, and the Anglican Church in particular, is one of renewal, it seems fitting that the Parish of Saint Paul's has managed to generate a bit of renewal of its own.

The service of General Thanksgiving to celebrate the end of the summer's long renovation project was held on Sunday evening, September 22. About 93 people came out to see the refurbished interior of the church, to view the new walls, the restored stain glass windows and the refinished interior woodwork. While there is still some work to do on the exterior of the building, the inside looks as good as new.

The service followed the pattern of the Prayer of General Thanksgiving from the Book of Common Prayer, a prayer written by the Bishop of Norwich for the 1662 revision of the

As Reverend Don Sax explained to the assembly, "It has been regarded ever since as the epitome of what the Anglican faith tends to stand for, and that is, a stance of gratitude for all of life."

As the service progressed, the Reverend Don Sax and Deacon Lee Sax led the congregation in the assembling of a memorial book which commemorated the work and some of the history that accompanied it. The first item was a set of vestry minutes from 1989, in which the group, most of whom are still in Dawson, noted the completion of the foundation project and began to discuss what steps to take next.

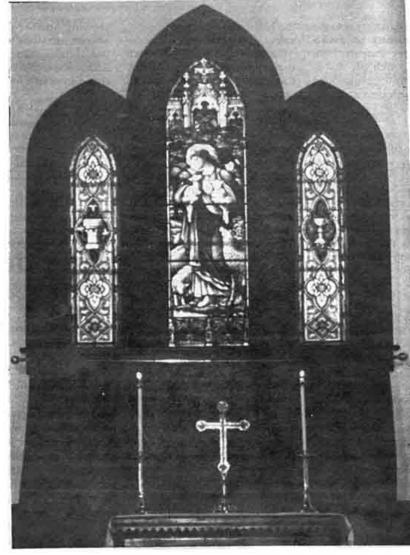

"When Lee and I came here from Old Crow," said Sax, "we were just passing through, and that's still the case. When the vestry and the congregation were faced with the rather awesome decision...to go ahead with this building...It's a pretty momentous step. The amount of money involved is. approximately quarter of a million dollars. It's a lot easier to decide to do nothing than it is to do something. So I want to honour the congregation. As I said the night that they made motion to proceed, you guys got a lot of nerve."

The second section of the book was to honour the contractors who did the structural work, primarily Han Housing Ltd. the Log Cabin Gift Shop, Caspar Painting and Springbank Electric; the suppliers, Beaver Lumber, Arctic Inland

Resources, the Monte Carlo Ltd., and Kluane Freight Lines, Frontier

Freightlines, Woodward Industries and Griffith's Heating. Read into the record for the book by church warden Ken Smith were the names of the actual crafts persons who made the event happen.

"I think their excellence...will always be remembered their craftsmanship,"Smith said. There was a round of applause.

"It was a pleasure working with them. They all not only fulfilled their contracts but much more," said Don Sax, a former engineer who entered the ministry after his previous

"I have an inclin-

ation to think to myself that as the churches go, so goes Dawson," Sax said. "Churches, whether you attend them or not, tend to be symbols of the community, and when the churches are falling down, it doesn't say very much for the community."

These days, more than in the past, the churches and congregations of Dawson tend to cooperate and respect each others' efforts, and Sax said he felt that, as well as the facelifts that three of the four buildings have had this summer, boded well for the Many donors made possible the work that led to this evening's celebration. Lay minister Shirley Pennell read the list of donors to the structural work, which included the Anglican Foundation, the Diocese of Yukon and the Council of the North, the Heritage Branch of the Department of Tourism and the Vancouver Foundation. In addition there were many private donations and contributions from numerous individuals, families and organizations from across the country. Of this year's total budget of $120,000, all but $18,000 has been covered in this way.

Private and group donations also went into the restoration of the 17 stained glass windows which line the walls and grace the chancel of the building. The work was done locally by Sally Pederson and Betty Wells at a cost of $2,000 per window.

A major portion of the service was given to the reinstallation of the regimental flags which had hung in the chancel for many decades. In determining where to put them it was discovered that they had never been hung properly in the first place.

And the winner Peter Jenkins has come to an end with Peter Jenkins, previously the mayor of Dawson for 14 years, advancing to the territorial level of government as our new MLA, carrying the seat for the Yukon Party in spite of its generally poor showing

A hard fought election campaign on the territorial level. As we go to press on Monday night, the results show Jenkins winning handily over Tim Gerberding (NDP), Glen Everitt (Lib.) and John Cramp (Ind.).

Jenkins took three of the four polls in the community, as well as the ad-

Jenkins took 702 of the 1191 votes cast. Gerberding was second with 372, Everitt had 96 and Cramp 21. There were 5 rejected ballots, though there must have been over 100 registered voters who did not vote.

Authors on 8th: A Family of Snowmen

By Sienne Secord

Many people have recollections of the war -be it theirs, or someone else's passed down. They remember bombs and radio broadcasts, family coming home and some not; or even just the faint smell of blood. They think they know without asking, but maybe they would find out something more if they asked that little boy, or the one whose brother left, or me. The one who was six years old when her life fell apart. My memories are through that little girl's eyes and heart.

Small things, like the smell of dust in a neglected home, or the loneliness that my mother and I both felt. Oh, the sound of her crying through my thin bedroom walls...

Life was initially pretty normal for me. As a young girl, I couldn't wait to start helping my mother with the house - cooking especially. My favourite recipe was her chocolate chip cookies, that we only got for special occasions as chocolate was expensive. She assured me every single time I asked that she would teach me the recipe as soon as I was old enough. She never told me exactly when that would be.

For the time being, my father taught me games that he had played when he was little. Like putting a large button on a string so that when you spun the string and pulled it tight, the big button would spin and spin so fast it was just a blur that made you dizzy. I would play with that for hours on end, which meant I broke so many I couldn't count. Some were made with blue wool and some with yellow or pink. But it was always a smooth metal button the size of the inside of my palm. That's one of my favourite memories with my father: him teaching me games and things to keep me busy.

My big brother, Sam, was close to his "coming of age" birthday, is what my dad called it. I didn't understand what that meant, but I knew there was more talk of work, responsibility, and absence. Dad had started taking Sam with him when he left. I didn't know what they were doing. Mom said they were getting ready for Sam to start doing whatever Dad does. Working. Sam was gone more and more often with my father. Even I could tell that my brother really looked up to him. He was almost a clone, except he had our momma's looks. The innocent eyes and warm smile paired with auburn hair. He was as handsome as momma was pretty.

I was really close to Samuel. If something was wrong, he was always the first there to comfort me. I don't understand how some siblings have problems and fights. He had always been my best friend.

One early morning I woke to knocking. It took me a few minutes to realize what was going on. The knocks were on the front door and they were urgent and quick, sharp. I heard mama's padded footsteps as she went to see what the fuss was. At the click of the latch opening, the silence evaporated and voices exploded. They were muffled and I only caught pieces of everyone's words tumbling over one another.

- "...outbreak...'
- "...war..."
- "...recruiting boys..."
- "...war..."
- "...radio broadcast..."
- "...war...'

War, war, war. I heard it so many times I couldn't count. The click of shoes on the floor overrode my mother's slippers. Still disoriented, I sat up in bed and placed my feet on the cold floor. In the dark I looked for my robe and found it, after stumbling several times, on the opposite side of the room. I was blinded by a burst of light when I opened my door. That kind of light isn't meant for this early in the morning. Then I heard static and was confused. That sound comes from... the radio? Why was the radio on?

Finally I rounded the corner and there was my mother and all my close neighbours. They were still in their nightclothes just like my mother and I, except they were wearing shoes. Everyone was crowded around the little machine with an antenna on top. A static overthrown voice was hard to make out and everyone was whispering. I heard some of the same words from before like "recruiting", "war", and "outbreak". But there were some new ones that fit together.

"...Has started a war...recruiting young, able-bodied boys...required to come to..." The group that huddled around the disembodied voice were listening intently and staring at nothing. My mind was racing. What was able-bodied? My father is a boy... He's young. Isn't he? What were they talking about?

Eventually mom turned off the radio. There was a lot of whispering and hand gestures, confused looks. A lot of "What does this mean?" But no one knew. Now I think it would have been almost painful to know then and have time to think about it and overthink it. But at the moment I desperately wanted to know what was going on.

My mother's eyes shifted to mine and she seemed to be seeing me for the first time. Her eyebrows arched and if you just saw her eyes, you might think she was surprised. But the way her lip was stuck out and her mouth was quivering, I could tell she was on the verge of breaking down. She's very good at keeping her composure when she needs to, though. She ushered everyone out the door and leaned against it as it closed. As she looked at me, still clutching my robe around myself, a small smile appeared on her lips. Her eyes brightened a little and crinkled at the edges.

I, however, was going to explode if I didn't get answers soon. But she looked so content to just stare at the tiny girl in front of her all wrapped up with curiosity.

"Lily, we should have pancakes, don't you think?" Now this trampled every other thought and question I had. Maybe that was the point. I hadn't had pancakes since Sam's last birthday. That's all he asked for; pancakes on the morning of his

"Oh, momma can I help please? Please, mommy?" She smiled and nodded, Yes. I was gone like a bolt of lightning to the kitchen so by the time mom got there I had gotten out almost all the supplies I remembered. Mama grabbed a few new things and got me to pour everything in the bowl. This was my favourite part.

After that, a series of things happened so fast I can barely remember each detail. I was just a frail little girl in the eye of a hurricane. First, my dad came home early that day (which never happened) with Samuel in tow. He had an announcement. Momma made me leave the room for this part. As much as I tried, I couldn't hear what they were saying, but mom was crying softly when I got in there. I hugged her tight and felt her heart beating fast against my head.

Next, Daddy stopped going to work. But he might as well have not been home because all he did was listen to the radio broadcasts and read some kind of list. He also had a big army printed book. Sometimes I would try to crawl up on his lap, but he would just say, "Not now, Sweetie," or, "I'm busy, maybe later." It went on for a while. A few weeks maybe of being told to leave the room and being refused by my

One night while lying in bed, I heard my parents talking. Mother sounded upset.

"I think we should tell Lillian. Sam's been shut up in his room for days, weeks now. He doesn't want you to go." Go?! Where?

Daddy's deep voice was easier to hear, "I know, Mary, but it's not like he can come with me. It's dangerous out there, especially for such a young boy. He's just gonna have to put up with it." Why is it dangerous? Where is my daddy going? More questions added to my already long list. A list that included Sam. Mom. Dad, and some about what was going to happen to me.

Soon enough I got some answers. The next day, when I woke up, my dad was sitting at the kitchen table with a big bag beside him that looked like it was packed so tight I'm surprised the seams held together. It was an opportunity to ask some long overdue questions.

"Daddy," I whispered, and my eyes filled with tears before I even knew the answer, "Where are you

The eyes of the big, burly, dark man standing before me were glistening. This threw me off guard. I had never in my life seen my father cry. He was an enormous and strong man. He and I were built the same with broad shoulders and strong muscles without any extra work. Plus, I thought, Daddies aren't supposed to cry. "Daddy please, what's wrong?'

"I have to go, pumpkin." "Where?"

He smiled a little, "Away, Lilly." He stood up and gently walked the few feet to me so he could pick me up. I squeezed him so hard he must have been suffocating. But he didn't protest. Just clutched me tighter to him. After what felt like seconds and not nearly long enough, he put me down on the cold floor. I hadn't realized Mama had come in, but they hugged just as tight as we had. I wasn't done and I jumped right back in and grasped at them both, trying to stretch my small arms around the two of them. Hands gripped under my arms and I felt Sam lift me up to his hip and hold us all close.

I didn't want it to end, but Daddy cleared his throat, "I have to go now or I'll miss my train. Sam? Take care of them for me." Samuel nodded. With his head down, my dad picked up his bag and was gone out the door.

As he passed by the window, I could see his shoulders shaking. "Is he okay, momma?" She didn't answer and I didn't ask again.

For days after that, the radio almost never turned off. Mommy said that if I ever heard Daddy's name from the man talking, that that wasn't a good thing and it meant Dad wasn't coming home. I guessed he had to stay there to take care of people if he couldn't come home. I wished he'd come home.

Two weeks after father left, Sam was acting different. I mean, he had been since he found out Pa was leaving, but this wasn't the same. He came out of his room and said, "We haven't spent much time together 'just because' since Father left. Maybe we could play cards or something?"

Mom raised her eyebrows but got out the cards. She had made them about a year ago when I saw that a few older boys-friends of Sam'shad a set and I begged her for a stack for us. We played Go Fish since it was the only game I knew.

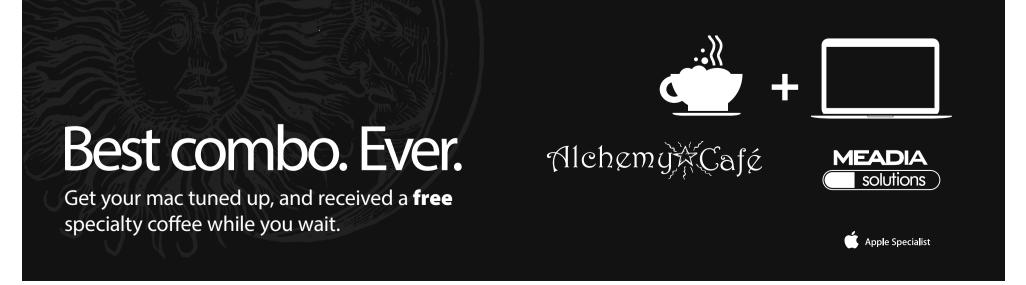

"Do you have a 6?" "GO FISH!"

I loved that game so much. Sam thought it was hilarious how enthusiastic I was.

I went to bed content and feeling connected back into my family. That feeling was gone soon enough though because I awoke to my momma screaming, "SAM! SAM, ARE YOU HOME? SAM, WHERE ARE

I scrambled out of bed to see what in the world was going on. I walked through the house trying to find momma but she had stopped shouting. I finally found her in Sam's room clutching a ripped piece of paper with crude handwriting. I couldn't read very well but I didn't need to, "He's gone," Mom was whispering, "He's gone off to join his father. He's... Gone." She started reading the note aloud.

Momma and Lilly,

I'm so very sorry. I couldn't stay home and do nothing while Father is fighting for our country. I can pass for old enough if I lie. They won't question it. I need to help. Lillian, I don't expect you to understand but take care of Momma for me, all right? I love you both.

Sam

I barely heard the last few words because Momma was sobbing and shaking so hard the paper sounded like it was caught in a windstorm. I crawled up next to her and placed my head on her shoulder as she rocked us both back and forth and back. Finally she spoke, "Lilly, you don't have to stay with me in here. You can go play if you like." She tried to put on a brave face. I tilted my head up at her, "I'm supposed to take of you remember? And that's exactly what I'm gonna do for as long as you need me." But we were cut short by a knock on the door. "I'll get it!" I jumped up and ran to the front door.

On the other side was a woman who looked slightly important. "Uh, is your mother home?" I was quite offended by this and told her so,

"Excuse me, Miss, I am perfectly capable of answering the door. She's busy." I planted my hands on my hips and stood up tall and defiant.

"Well then ok, all children are being asked to come help make bandages and supplies to help with the war. Tonight at 5 everyone is gathering at town hall. Dinner will be served as well."

"OK, thank you, Miss. I'll talk to my momma. Have a wonderful day!" And I shut the door. When I turned around, Mom was peeking around the corner of the hallway. "How'd I do?" I wanted to know.

"You did wonderfully, Sweetie." I'll tell you I was very proud of myself in that moment.

That night we went to Town Hall, but I think Mom was just looking forward to free dinner. Laid out on the tables were huge sheets of cloth and used clothing along with a few pairs of scissors. I followed the other children's lead and started cutting them into different sized strips. They weren't pretty but they would work I guess.

Dinner was plain, classic meat and potatoes with green salad. After eating, we went home to an empty house. Momma went straight to bed. In my own room I could hear her crying. It was hard to think of the time when she didn't cry every night. It seemed like years ago, but it was mere months. I missed those days when my biggest worry was if my wool broke on my favourite toy. Now I wondered if Daddy would make it home to make me a new one. What colour would the next one be? A nice green or red, maybe? Christmas was in a few months. That would be perfect.

The morning it snowed was the happiest I'd felt in a long while. I ran out into the falling snow with my tongue out and my arms bare. Momma scolded me from the front door and stood there with my coat hanging off a finger while I walked to her, goose bumps popping up all over. I shrugged it on and found mittens in the pocket.

Rolling snow into balls, I made a small family of snowmen lined up from biggest to smallest. Each had one article of clothing. The biggest had one of my Daddy's old pipes stuck in it;, the second had momma's scarf, a purple wool piece. One of Sam's coats was draped around the third. It looked like a trench coat hecause the snowman was so small The fourth had an old, weathered pink toque on it. This one was mine. Looking at my work, I thought that these snowmen would take care of me until Sam and Father got back.
