Gold

By Sue Taylor

Gold! Was the cry that was heard 'round the earth;

To Gold they stampeded for all they were worth.

Some came with shovels to dig for that gold,

While others felt lucky, their goods would be sold.

For where in the world, before or since,

Has there been such a riot of pauper to prince.

They packed up silk dresses and waterproof mittens,

Printing presses, a litter of kittens,

A grinding stone to sharpen their tools.

(at an ounce a piece he was nobody's fool).

Could you build a boat? Neither could they;

But a skill like that would pay your way.

A square inch of land, or a cloud full of rain,

Anything goes for monetary gain.

Some men had big plans, some women did too.

Some just did what they had to do...

There's strange things done in the midnight sun, And mining the miners was half the fun.

Northern Contradiction

By Ryleigh Grant-Turner

She's a walking contradiction
A Northern reflection
She's as bitter sweet as the North itself
She is unique but her traits are many and seen in all
She's the independent bear
Yet the wolf that works in a team
She gives life but will take it to protect
She knows what's best but is learning all the time
Sewing the smallest bead and cutting down the biggest tree
Respected yet feared

Her voice is harsh when she's angry and gentle when she sings

Respectful but knows when to throw down

She could make the greatest difference but shares the center stars

She could make the greatest difference but shares the center stage

Soft yet strong

She has the patience to grow a flawless garden yet the endurance to trap, hunt and snare

Pretty yet rough

Her glare could make a grown man faint and her smile could revive him

She is the Northern contradiction.

Dawson Streetlights Switched to LED

During the last fortnight, Yukon Energy has been busy changing Dawson's streetlights to Light Emitting Diode (LED) lights. This is the first step in a series of replacements that will take place in all the communities where the public utility offers service. A company press release indicates this will be happening in Mayo, Faro, Champagne and Mendenhall.

"Switching to LED streetlights will mean lower power bills for those rural communities we serve and is a better choice for the environment," Yukon Energy President Andrew Hall

"Energy efficiency and conservation are key pillars in Yukon Energy's operation. A megawatt saved through initiatives like this is a megawatt we don't have to build."

Yukon Energy has run LED streetlight pilot projects over the last five years in Dawson City and Mendenhall, in partnership with the Yukon government's Energy Solution Centre (for Dawson) and ATCO Electric Yukon (for Mendenhall). The research shows that LEDs work well in the territory's cold climate and that they use about half as much electricity as the traditional high pressure sodium (HPS) streetlights. This means municipalities will see reduced power bills by about $29 a year per light.

Dawson has approximately 170 residential streetlights, giving the town an annual savings of nearly $5,000. The Dawson project should see a reduction of around 32 megawatt hours per year, which is equivalent to the amount of power used in one year by three average Yukon homes.

LED streetlights now cost less than traditional streetlights ($184 per LED light compared to $240 per traditional HPS light). They are also expected to last much longer: 25 years as opposed to four years for HPS bulbs.

"As an emissions-cutting and money saving technology, LED street lighting is a no-brainer," Dawson City's Protective Services Manager Jim Regimbal said. He has been working with Yukon Energy in moving this project forward.

"Switching to LEDs is not only beneficial in terms of savings and emissions, the light quality improvements result in better visibility and reductions in road accidents. Energy savings and a safer community - now that's a win all around," Regimbal

Feedback from residents in Dawson and Mendenhall indicates most people like the quality of the LED light. LED lights also produce much lower LED installation outside Diamond Tooth Gerties. levels of light pollution.

The cost of switching out the Dawson streetlights will be about $50,000, paid for by Yukon Energy, which is part of what made the project very appealing to Dawson.

"With the energy and maintenance savings, the project is a very cost effective way of meeting the territory's energy needs," says the company press release, "particularly during the dark winters when demand on the grid is at its highest."

Quite likely the only unhappy locals will be the ravens, who are in the habit of perching on the sensors on top of streetlights in order to turn them on and warm up their feet. Regimbal says the LED lights put out very little in the way of heat when compared to the old HPS lights.

Arts Fund supports new creative work

WHITEHORSE (January 21, 2016) —Ten organizations across the territory have been awarded a total of $134,285 from the Arts Fund's September intake to support the creation of new artistic projects and workshops.

"Yukon has an exceptional community of creative talent. These imaginative and innovative projects provide great benefits and enjoyment to a wide cross-section of people in the territory," Minister of Tourism and Culture Elaine Taylor said. "The Yukon government recognizes the importance of the arts and is very pleased to provide support through the Arts Fund."

The Larrikin Entertainment Ensemble, a group of Yukon theatre professionals, received $10,000. The group will stage its first production, a dark comedy titled Often I Find That I am Naked by Australian playwright Fiona Sprott.

"Larrikin Entertainment Ensemble is thrilled to have our skills as theatre artists endorsed and supported by the Arts Fund," Larrikin Entertainment Ensemble artistic executive producer Katherine McCallum said. "We are excited to be presenting our inaugural production in January and would not have been able to do this without the assistance of the Arts Fund and the Yukon theatre-loving community. Thank you!"

The Art for Teslin project received $1,085 to bring two Minister Taylor with Brave New Works co-artistic directors Mellisa Murray and Zoe Verhees.

Yukon artists to Teslin to hold workshops. Claudia MacPhee held a silk scarf-dyeing workshop and Peter Mather delivered a photography class.

"The Arts Fund has enabled Teslin to bring interesting programs from two very talented Yukon artists to our small, rural community this vear. It has been thrilling to be able to offer these programs to our citizens," Village of Teslin recreation programmer Nadine Peters said. "The Arts Fund enthusiastically supported these ideas from start to finish and our community is very grateful for the opportunities the fund has provided to us. It is really exciting to see great arts projects like these being supported in the communities."

The Arts Fund supports group projects that advance arts development in Yukon. Arts collectives, organizations, industry associations and other groups may apply.

There are four application intakes each year in March, June, September and December. The most recent intake was December 15, 2015, and the recipients will be announced by March 2016.

Klondike recipients of grant funds are as follows:

· Friends of the Palace Grand Society - A Klondike Home Companion - $30,000

• Yukon School of Visual Arts

- Yukon College Indexes of the Land: Aboriginal Artists Lecture-Workshop series -
- · North Klondyke Highway Music Society - 2015-16 Klondyke Music School Program

Uffish Thoughts: Some Reservations about Yukon University

Recently I was asked to be part of a panel of Dawson citizens asked to give their opinions as to the economic benefits that accrue to our community from the existence of the local campus of Yukon College, and to offer their thoughts on the decision to take the college to the next stage and become a university.

While the group around the table were pretty much universally in favour of the college and felt that it offered tangible benefits to the community at large, there wasn't much support for the recently announced upgrade.

Dawson is in kind of a unique position to consider the college/university question. The building which houses the college campus here is joined at the hip, so to speak, with the one that houses the Yukon School of Visual Arts (YSOVA). The two institutions appear to service quite different clientele.

The Yukon College campus in Dawson offers course material that is directed at locals for the most part. The most recent list of offerings includes Standard First Aid, Introductory Spanish, courses in using tablets and smartphones, project planning, Wilderness First Aid, conflict management, and mental health first aid. Regular offerings of office management and accounting, as well as an assortment of office style computer applications have been noted in the past.

Much of this material is practical and trades related as contrasted with academic offerings. There was a concern expressed that a more university focussed orientation at the main Whitehorse campus would siphon off resources needed to have these practical programs continue.

It was noted that the requirement for a minimum number of students for certain courses was not a practical number at the rural campuses.

Much more discussion time was devoted to the manner in which YSOVA, which is already the first year of a Fine Arts Diploma Program (in cooperation with several other arts colleges across the country), has been hobbled in its growth towards becoming a full two-year program and more by the simple fact that there is no student housing available in the town.

Enrolment at YSOVA, which falls under the umbrella of Yukon College, has stalled at under 20 students for its first year fine arts program due to this lack. Thirty or more from all across the country make an initial application to attend here, but the number drops off rapidly when they find out that the next step in their application will involve finding their own accommodation for the duration of the program.

Several possible solutions to the issue have been floated during the last eight years, but

This building houses both the Yukon School of Visual Arts and the Dawson Campus of Yukon College.

little support for the need to none have come to fruition. The latest has been a proposal to convert the existing Macdonald Lodge Seniors Residence into student housing once the new seniors' facility on Church Street opens later in the spring, but so far this has not met with a positive response.

Unlike the local college campus, YSOVA's student base is composed mostly people from outside Dawson, including elsewhere in the Yukon and right across the nation. Increasing the student population in the community can't help but bring economic and social benefits to the town, benefits that it was felt would be more significant than university status.

Locally, frustration over the inability of the larger Yukon College and the government of the Yukon to address the issues hampering YSOVA's growth left most members of the panel skeptical about the urgency or the ability of the Whitehorse campus to make that jump to university status.

The existence of the larger campus in the capital city was thought to be a good thing, and several people around the table had either taken courses there themselves, or had had children enrolled there. But there was have Yukon College rebranded as the University of the Yukon.

Of course, given the government's absolute aversion for the use of the definite article in front of the territory's name, it would never be called that.

LETTER

Thank you to Many Special People

I want to say thank you so much to all of you who helped me to safety on November 30th. To the RCMP, who responded so quickly and who stayed with it—thank you for all you did that night to make sure I was found.

To the Rangers, who were incredibly professional and compassionate—thank you for not giving up, for reassuring me, for keeping me warm and for getting me safely out to the ambulance.

To the ambulance attendants and first aid people—thanks for being there on a night when I really needed your help.

Thank you to Gerry Grenon, to the Fire Department, to the hospital staff, to the skiers who initially looked for me and to all who had a part in saving my life, including my partner Tom and my friend Kathryn. I am still here because of all of you.

It will take time, but I am healing and am expected to fully recover. I feel incredibly lucky to have had so much help, so many visitors, so many calls and such amazing support.

Thank you Dawson!

Liberal Candidates Announce Their Ridings At Annual Meeting

Whitehorse (January 18, 2016) - High profile Liberal candidates announced their ridings at the 2016 Annual General Meeting at the MacBride Museum on Saturday. January 16...

Citing his long ties to the riding, John Streiker announced he would seek the nomination in Mount Lorne-Southern Lakes.

Rod Taylor will seek the nomination in Porter Creek Centre.

With three generations of her family choosing to live downtown, Tamara Goeppel will seek the nomination in her Whitehorse Centre neighbourhood.

Ramish Ferris will seek the nomination in his neighbourhood, Whitehorse West

"The Yukon public wants open, transparent, respectful and competent government, they want politicians who represent their interests," said Liberal Leader Sandy Silver before about 100 people at Saturday morning's event.

"The Federal Liberals, under Justin Trudeau and Larry Bagnell, are proof of the power of positive politics and much attention is now on our Territorial Liberal team to continue that approach.

"People want the Yukon government to foster new relationships with First Nation governments, with municipalities, with the federal government. As you can see, we have leaders who are prepared to bring about this real change that people are demanding."

Liberals also elected the executive that will lead them into this year's election. Devin Bailey is president, Marius Curteanu is vice-president, Treasurer is Dr. Greg Finnegan and Andrea Cook is the secretary.

"As you can see, people are excited and rallying to the Yukon Liberal Party," said Bailey. "Our election readiness team is in full swing and nomination meetings will begin to be held in February.

"We are prepared to form the next Yukon government."

Rotary Music Festival to Add Dance in 2016

Whitehorse, January 15, 2016

- The Rotary Music Festival
(RMF) will again be including a dance component in the annual Festival, to be held in Whitehorse from April 13 to 23, on a trial basis. Rod Hill, RMF Committee Chair, indicated

"In 2014 a group of dance teachers approached the Committee with a proposal to expand the Festival to add dance. Last year we responded by providing an opportunity for local dancers to be included. However the numbers of dancers entering was not as high as we had anticipated, so it wasn't entirely clear if this was a success." Said Frank Curlew, this year's President of the Rotary Club of Whitehorse.

"I think we will need another year before a decision is made on whether or not we will include dance on a permanent basis".

Since the first edition of the Festival that began with vocal work over a 2-day period in 1969 to having many musical disciplines such as piano, flute, voice, guitar, violin, fiddle, harp, percussion, choirs, bands and ensembles spread over 8 days, the Festival has proven to be invaluable for thousands of music students and groups in the Yukon. This learning opportunity will now be extended to dancers of all ages thanks to the vision of committed dance and music teachers. The encouragement and advice provided by visiting independent adjudicators is often helpful for advancing the careers of young performers.

"For many years, I have wanted a dance festival at 'home' in the Yukon because the cost of taking dancers to festivals outside Yukon is exceedingly high" said Andrea Simpson-Fowler, owner and artistic director of Leaping Feats Creative Danceworks. The Rotary Music Festival is a well-established organization and their philosophy of encouraging a non-competitive festival is what attracted me to ask them to add dance to their festival".

Full information including the Regulations and Syllabus and how to enter online is provided on the Festival web site at www.rmfestival.ca. The deadline for all entries is February 8.

2016 Rotary Music Festival

April 13 to 23, 2016

at the Yukon Arts Centre and Riverdale Baptist Church

The online registration is now open for the 2016 Rotary Music Festival. People are invited to go to www.rmfestival.ca to register and read the Regulations and Syllabus document.

Deadline for entries is February 8th, 2016.

For more information contact the coordinator at: (867) 332-3378 or rmfestival@yahoo.ca

Also, the Rotary Music Festival has a contest inviting Yukon residents age 5 to 18 to create an artwork to adorn the Festival Program Cover.

The Rules and Guidelines for the contest can be found online as well, at www.rmfestival.ca.

The new deadline to submit an artwork is February 1, 2016.

Commercial Funspiel was a lot of fun

By Paul Robitaille and Laurie Sokolowski

The Dawson Curling Club hosted its annual Commercial Bonspiel Jan 15-16th. Sixteen teams participated in this Everyone won at least 1 game and no team won all three of their games.

It was a bonspiel filled with a spirit of fun and friendly rivalries. As this is a funspiel, there is no overall winner, event, representing local businesses and non-profit groups. Each team played three, six end games. however, many laughs, and much banter was seen prior, during and following games in the club's busy lounge, where participants and patrons discussed the shots they could've made and those that they would make in their next games. Heinz Naef and Rod Dewell were particularly vocal about the merits of their teams (Arctic Inland and Property Management).

The crowd cheered on many close games; often being decided by the last rock. Saturday morning, approximately 75 people took part in the club's pancake breakfast and "pig shoot". Myrta Kaetlin and Stephanie Williams were the stars of the morning, both taking home hams for their skilled curling shots.

I'd just like to give a big shout out and thank you for all the volunteers from pancake cookers, icemakers, pebblers bartenders, scheduling, etc. for another big success." said Laurie Sokolowski,

The Dawson City Curling

Club wishes to thank all the volunteers, patrons and participants that made this entire weekend a success. The club is open weekly, Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, for league play; and Wednesday for drop-in. All curlers are invited to sign up for the 117th International Bonspiel, February 5-7. Interested persons can contact the club via curldawson@gmail.com or 993-6262. Sign-up deadline for this event is February 3.

Note: Rarely do we get a case where two people file stories on the same event. We encourage more people to cover their club's activities in these pages. In this case, I combined the two slightly different articles into one piece.

New Minto Park Concession Building Plans on Display

By Dan Davidson

When the Minto Park
Concession Building burned down during the night of September 5, the City of Dawson was not caught entirely flatfooted. The aging structure had been slated for replacement and the first council table discussion aimed at letting the tender for the design of its successor had been held the previous week.

The $20,000 contract went to Across the River Consulting in association with Trina Buhler was let just a few days after the fire. The money for the contract had been set aside in the budget the previous spring.

Early in January the recreation department, having already discussed the available plans with various user groups, initiated public consultations on the design. This included an online survey document that contained exterior elevation drawings and schematics on the interior layout.

The same designs were on display at a drop-in public meeting held on January 6 from 5 to 7 p.m.

The new building will be similar in footprint and location to the old one, with a couple of major visible differences.

The modern building code restricts having buildings located directly under power lines now, so the building has moved farther away from the road.

The three public washrooms will be in a separate structure separated from the kitchen and general use areas by a breezeway pedestrian lane. There will also be a small washroom in the programming space, along with storage closets with shelves and a janitorial/utilities room.

Washroom doors will be located on the road side of the building for women/men. A family/barrier free washroom will be accessed on the south side of the building. These washrooms will be conveniently handy to the tennis court, skate park and the nearby playground park just behind the swimming pool.

According to the survey materials, "the footprint of the new building is very similar to that of the old Minto Building. This permits better inclusion of the road side (7th Avenue) of the building into the park, enhanced by deck walkways and fencing for additional safety and demarcation of the roadway."

This building will meet up to date building code requirements and will be insulated and usable during winter months.

During the consultation Rec. Director Marta Salassie and Across the River's Evelyn Pollock were available to answer questions, solicit comments and point out features of the project on the large screen display. This featured both static and moving images.

Pollack indicated that most of the comments from the 20 or so people who dropped in during the early evening were positive, though some concerns were expressed about the amount of storage of space for various activities.

* From the Outfield – The view from the outfield Drawings by Trina Buhler

The facility has seen use by many activities during the years, including baseball and softball, kids' camps, and the Dawson City Music Festival.

Funding for this project is not finalized, according to Salassie, but will include the insurance claim pay-out, as well as a likely infusion of Gas Tax infrastructure money.

Dawson loses power for second time in three days

Dawson experienced a 20 minute loss of power on Monday night, January 18, which led to the diesel generators at the Yukon Energy Corporation's 5th Avenue station being activated for a short time.

by Dan Davidson

"Our staff have concluded that it was heavy snow/frost on the line that caused last night's power outage in Dawson City," said YEC's Manager of Communications, Janet Patterson.

"Power went out at 9:40 and was restored about 20 minutes

This was the second blackout in town in the last week, the most recent having been a 10 minute outage on January 15 when a contractor at the Aishihik plant tripped the system. At that time the diesels were not needed.

Engineers agree that the Dawson Rec Centre is fixable

The Art and Margaret Fry Recreation Centre has been the subject of much controversy in Dawson since before it was ever completed. Even scaled down from the original plans (there was to have been a multipurpose gym at the north end of the building) and never actually finished (the second floor over the administration end was only roughed in) the building ran over budget and led to the town's near bankruptcy and the imposition of trusteeship rule when the council was removed from office.

After the restoration of the council, the territorial government conceded that a couple of administrations were at least partly to blame for what happened (or didn't happen) with the facility and set aside $4 million to rectify some of the problems and maintain the building in a safe and usable condition.

The town is now under the administration of the fourth council since those decisions were made and the building is entering a new phase, somewhat delayed by an abortive focus on scrapping the place and building a new, stripped down version at another site.

That diversion has now ended, and the current council position is that the Fry Centre should be made to work properly.

Problems with the building first emerged in the curling rink, where it was eventually discovered that the roof system had not been installed properly and was failing under the snow load build up.

When the permafrost under the building failed to freeze back after the construction, it seemed a foregone conclusion in many minds that the building was doomed.

Groundwater flows off the hill to the east of the building have plagued the structure since the beginning, as they did the Centennial Arena which stood in approximately the same spot before it was taken down in the late 1990s and its structural steel framework used as the basis for the current arena.

Runoffs from the hill routinely flow under buildings from 8th Avenue on down to the Rec. Centre site between 4th and 5th Avenues, leaving standing puddles in the lanes and sometimes eroding the culverts and washing out portions of the streets.

A joint municipal/territorial oversight committee that controls the established fund has commissioned an ongoing series of surveys and engineering studies over the years.

Just about a year ago, it was determined that two thirds of the building was in sound shape, shifting slightly with the seasons in a way that is quite common here.

The curling rink was then thought to be a liability and discussions included the options of removing it and constructing a new rink on the north side of the lot, where the ground is more stable.

That idea has now been dismissed after further studies have shown that the curling rink structure is as secure as the rest of the building.

Claudia Heath returned to this project as manager last February, after a number of years away from it during the replacement phrase of the public debate, and reported to a group of nearly two dozen concerned citizens on the latest findings at a meeting in council chambers on January 13.

"Where we're at right now is that we can actually present to the City of Dawson an option to fix the facility in its location with minimal risk," Heath told the meeting.

"The superstructure (of the building) has been surveyed multiple times every year. It hasn't moved substantially, so it's sound.

What has moved – mostly washed away by the ground water, or thawed – is the permafrost layer. So the base for establishing new floor pads for the curling rink, mechanical room and the arena needs to be established in the gravels below that level. This is where the structural steel framing the building is anchored, and this framework has remained firm over the years.

A year ago the curling rink end of the Art and Margaret Fry (at the right) seemed doomed, but now it is part of a revised repair plan.

The recommendation from the engineers is to tie suspended floor slabs onto a series of support piles. Two different types are under consideration: rock socket piles and helical piles. The latter type are getting the strongest recommendation, as being the easiest to install in the available space and the best option for using the same type of system across the entire structure.

A proposal is being developed to deal with the problems related to the curling rink's roof, finish the second floor rooms (including access by proper stairs and an elevator) and install the concrete slab floor sections.

The $1.8 million left in the fund is not enough money to do the complete job, so at some point applications will need to go forward for assistance. The total project might cost as much as 4 to 6 million dollars, but this is still considerably less than the more than $30 million that was pledged for the construction of an alternative bare bones facility on another site prior to the last territorial election.

Readers may recall a staged groundbreaking ceremony related to that pledge, held at the tailings piles across the Dome Road from the Crocus Bluff ball park.

Heath anticipates having the details of the project proposal ready for broad public release and discussion some time in April or May.

Chief Isaac Group Plans Apartment Building

There being general agreement that there is a shortage of available private market rental space in Dawson, it comes as no surprise that town council looked with favour on the initial presentation of a Chief Isaac Group proposal for a 14 unit apartment building in the downtown core on Queen St.

The new building would replace the dilapidated Cassiar Building, which Chief Isaac purchased from Parks Canada a few years ago. In its time it has been a Parks staff house, as well as Parks office space. The building was originally relocated to Dawson from Clinton Creek around 1976, according to a photo database at the Dawson City Museum.

The Cassiar building is a two story structure and would be replaced by one that is mostly three stories, except at the street entrance, where it would be two, so as not to alter the streetscape view of the historic BNA Bank.

In his presentation to council Jack Kobayashi, architect on the project, noted that the projecting balcony off the second floor, mimicking a similar construction on the bank, would encroach over the boardwalk.

The ground floor concept shows a live/work office just off the street, with two studio apartments, a one bedroom and a two bedroom behind that. The second floor would be a similar pattern except that the front end would be a second two bedroom unit. The third floor features a shared balcony above the second floor with, once again, two studios, a one bedroom and two bedroom apartment. Except for the street level front unit, residents would enter via a side door and internal stairwell accessed in the setback between the bank and the new building.

In addition to overhanging the boardwalk, the new apartment would not be able to provide parking for all the residents. The laneway west of the building is wider than the norm in town, but has to be kept clear enough for emergency vehicles and the waste collection truck. It appears that there might be some room there, but not for 14 vehicles.

Speaking for Chief Isaac, CEO Lynn Hutton indicated that the new building would not turn a profit for its first decade.

"It's not about that for us;

The Cassiar Building on Queen Street may soon be replaced by a new apartment building.

it's about providing housing in town," she said.

This also isn't about providing housing for Tr'ondëk Hwëch'in citizens. The First Nation has a housing department of its own and extensive holdings around the town.

Hutton said this building will be open to anyone in need, as well as providing some housing for staff at the Downtown Hotel, which Chief Isaac owns in partnership with Northern Vision Development.

"We're always really glad when people show an interest in developing in our town," said Mayor Wayne Potoroka, "especially when it's something that would take care of what is a big and ever growing problem."

Other discussion involved the foundation plans and what types of territorial and federal subsidy plans that this project might qualify for, as well as the possibility of reduced taxes during that first decade.

This was just the first, almost informal, look at a proposal that still needs to follow formal regulatory procedures, so there will be more details to follow as it develops.

Five tips for stress-free tax filing

Everyone knows they have to file taxes, but knowing where to start can be tough. Here are five tips for a stress-free filing.

1. Keep yourself organized. Staying organized should be a year-round activity. If you are just starting now, begin by gathering income slips, receipts and government correspondence.

2. Tally up your 2015 income. Did you cash in your RRSP? Sell an investment property? Rent out your apartment? Use your car for a ride-sharing service? Know your income so you know what needs to be declared and whether or not any tax has been withheld.

3. Research applicable deductions. Did you donate to charity? Take care of a loved one? Use public transit? Questions like these can help determine what you can claim.

4. Use a reputable tax-filing service. Companies like H&R Block can provide guidance, ensure you are filing properly and help maximize your refund.

5. Don't wait to file. Filing ahead of May 2nd allows you to take your time and make sure all information is accurate. Scrambling to file means you might miss out on credits that would help maximize your refund.

The Future of Weather, a Jaundiced Forecast

by Jonathan Pollard

"The trouble with weather forecasting is that it's right too often for us to ignore it and wrong too often for us to rely

- Patrick Young, American author

Folks, a 'cold front' isn't just a between-the-sheets phenomenon, and thermocline isn't just another fun word to spell with Alphagetti. And even the TV 'Jeopardy' geniuses would be wise to steer well clear of the Adiabatic Process category. But overly academic as they may seem, these brain teasers actually do serve a purpose. Pig-Latin as it is for the majority, for meteorologists, mastering this jargon is par for the course. And just as many of those in the medical profession are prone to weaving seven-syllable words into conversation, so too are forecasters likely to do the same with their unworldly lingo. To them, a 'hook echo' isn't the name of an obscure board game. It's ... what else? ... a radar reflectivity pattern observed in a thunder clapper.

And that, in a nutshell, is a large part why professional weather forecasters hang in such rarefied air, revered and idolized by the masses. They actually know what this stuff means. This is their calculus. These prognostications are waited on with bated breath, their slick wizardry becomes unquestioned. Our leisure lives are crammed around their fancy maps and sophisticated computerized Doppler weather radar models. Umbrellas are lugged around on clear days on orders from these luminaries that leaking clouds were spotted some fifty miles northeast ten minutes earlier. And we believe them wholeheartedly. Why shouldn't we? They're well-respected weather peeps.

There's just one thing, though, that doesn't sit well with this environmental science. And vou have to look real close to notice. But it's there. In front of our noses but behind our backs, it's there. The soothing voices of these sharply-attired, quickwitted, hand-a-waving prophets aside, there is something fundamentally flawed about this hypnotic profession.

The 6-7 day forecast.

Funny thing is, we – the ever-gullible junkies we are actually demand to keep the drip flowing on this insidious meteorological racket. Our picnics hinge in the balance, as do landscaping chores and a veritable host of other alfresco dalliances. Information, please. Give us our meds!

It's a subtle taunt, dangling just so at the windup of every carefully choreographed segment.

The next five days or so will bring showers and lower temps, but the weekend looks beautiful. I repeat: Beaut-i-ful!

Maybe ... maybe not. It's a well-known secret that these extended outlooks are laden with variables. Sure, computer models do provide the oomph for future predictions. But is this conjectural evidence, significant in its power to make or break backyard barbeque plans before they even get off the ground, compelling enough to make public?

Granted, fire whirls are serious business for anyone who studies them for a living, but for everyone else, just a plain old accurate short-term forecast usually suffices. Tonight, tomorrow. The next day. Three days max. Anything beyond that is a calculated guess. Not quite a par-five from the truth, but still, murky enough to omit from the equation.

The problem is, people have short memories. Four days from now, the two- to threeday forecast would be more or less accurate. But, add in those four days, and the extended forecast would be, for the sixth and seventh days, a virtual direction, or wither out entirely. But we wouldn't notice. Instead, we'd notice that the short-term outlook would be accurate. And why wouldn't it? It usually is. It's less variable. Weather forecasters, those who had raised their hands in science class, come to realize this fault and learn to exploit it through the camouflage of "fifty percent chance of showers late Tuesday afternoon" or "a groundhog somewhere saw his shadow today, so I see a 58% probability for a blizzard late next week." Well, of course.

It's a practice investors refer to as hedging their bets. Technically, they're never wrong.

If news reporters were allowed

Etch-a-Sketch. Winds may shift the same professional latitude, many would be cited for contempt. Imagine a six o'clock news anchor working herself into a lather, "Well, Charles, the suspect sure as heck looks guilty. Look at him, I mean, look at that smirk. Betcha didn't know, my ex-husband wore that same look of indignation that night he staggered home late reeking of (explicit) Sophia Loren. Yeah, Chucky, the guy's guilty, all right. Guilty as sin."

Imagine.

Circumstantial evidence devoid of the graphical pageantry of an extended forecast. Perhaps Harris K. Telemacher, Steve Martins' zany weather character in L.A. Story, summed up his role best; "It's sunny out right now, back to you."

Library Videos: Killer Elite

Killer Elite

Action, Crime, Thriller Starring: Jason Statham, Clive Owen, Robert De Niro

I have admitted in previous columns that I enjoy "chick flicks." Well, I turns out that I like the "manly" movies too! Killer Elite is certainly one of these. Car chases, things blowing up, men fighting – this movie has all of these, and more.

The idea of the story is about a group of men with Special Forces experience who have been hired previously to do difficult jobs, normally involving the death of others. Our hero, "Danny," played by Jason Statham, has retired from this sort of work, and is busy rebuilding an old farmhouse in a remote part of Australia. However, an old friend of his is being held by an Arab Sheik in order to prompt Danny to take on one more job. Danny reluctantly agrees, and flies to Oman to meet the Sheik.

It turns out that the Sheik's sons have all been killed but one. They were killed by members of the British SAS, and now the Sheik wants all these men killed, as he knows who they all are. He wants the deaths to look like accidents so that no-one can come back on him. Thus, he can return to his tribe with his one remaining son, with his head held high, as he will be avenged for the deaths of his sons. Danny agrees to do this, and assembles a small team of people who he has worked with before. Danny does this to save his friend, but, the others are inspired by the £6 million that the Sheik is offering.

While this is an interesting idea for a story, it is actually based in reality. The story behind the movie actually happened, which adds a sense of realism that is not usually found in this sort of movie. Of course, parts are entirely made up! These guys are experts in killing, using weapons, and hand to hand fighting. When the hero fights the anti-hero, an ex-SAS man played by Clive Owen, the fights last entirely too long, with what surely would have caused broken bones having no effect, and so on. Movie fights are not real fights! Of course, what would an action movie be without any action? But, knowing that the underlying story actually did happen made the movie far more interesting to watch.

Of course, the SAS guys are tough, and well known for this. And, having to make their deaths look like accidents means that our heroes have to be very imaginative in their approaches to what is essentially murder. This is especially true as the Owen character is part of a shadowy group that looks after ex-SAS soldiers, and who for reasons of their own, act outside the law. So, the good guys, who are bad, are going after bad guys, who are good, but, protected by other bad guys who appear good. Confused yet? In one scene, there is a three-way fight between our hero, the anti-hero, and another man, all opposed to each other. So, sorting out the morality of this movie, and who is actually good, or bad, takes a bit of doing. Or, we can just ignore the who is good, or bad issue, and settle down to watch a good action movie unfold.

Of course, there is a love interest, in a woman that Danny knew when he was very young, and who lives near the old farmhouse that Danny is trying to rebuild. We see the human side of a professional killer in his interactions with her. However, even with this bit of romance, this is definitively not a "rom-com." It is the sort of movie a man could watch with his buddies, and enjoy the experience. I'm not suggesting that the ladies should be in the kitchen preparing snacks, of course, but, while you are there, IMDB gives the movie 6.5, and I give it 4 stars out of 5. And, yes, women will like it too!

Unique television partnership for Tourism Yukon project

WHITEHORSE (January 19, 2016) —Tourism Yukon's award-winning digital storytelling project has secured a unique partnership with a national television broadcaster to air Yukon productions from the project on specialty Canadian networks.

"This media promotion will create an even greater awareness of Yukon in southern Canada," Minister of Tourism and Culture Elaine Taylor said. "Through this partnership, the producers of these short films will receive national exposure for their work and the recognition they deserve from their peers and the film industry as a whole."

The video episodes are airing on the Travel and Escape, Cottage Life, RadX, Aux, and Love Nature networks. During the broadcast, Canadian viewers are encouraged to visit Travel Yukon's YouTube channel to watch complete versions of all the episodes. As well, five feature articles profiling Yukon will be posted on cottagelife.com and lovenature.com.

The digital storytelling project invited local filmmakers to create videos that showcase Yukon as a unique destination. The innovative project received an Explore Canada Award of Excellence from Destination Canada in September 2015.

Whitehorse-based company, White Hole Productions created the episodes about supernatural experiences in Yukon.

"The digital storytelling project was an excellent initiative from the onset, providing great exposure to the work of Yukon film producers on the web and social media. Now the project has gone this extra step," Yukon Paranormal producer Neil Macdonald said. "Yukon films will be blasted out across TV channels, providing tremendous opportunities for amplifying our audiences and showcasing our producers."

The digital storytelling project is one part of the Yukon Now marketing program announced last year. The program aims to raise awareness of Yukon as a year-round travel destination and is funded jointly by the Government of Yukon and the Government of Canada.

Writers' Trust Announces Future Berton House Residents

January 19, 2016 – Toronto – The Writers' Trust of Canada is announcing the 2016–17 slate of writers to attend the Berton House Writers' Retreat, Canada's most sought-after residency program. Each writer will travel to Dawson City, Yukon, to live and work for three months in the childhood home of noted Canadian author Pierre Berton. Past writersin-residence include Charlotte Gray, Lawrence Hill, and Kim

"A residency at Pierre Berton's childhood home in the idyllic Dawson City offers a unique opportunity for Canadian writers to immerse themselves in their work, in Canadian literary history, and in the Yukon's vibrant arts community," said Mary Osborne, executive director of the Writers' Trust. "The Writers' Trust is proud to offer authors this once-in-a-lifetime experience."

The writers selected are: Claire Caldwell (July to September 2016)

Toronto-based poet Caldwell cites her early childhood spent in the Yukon as the source of her first inspiration to write. She will be working on her second full-length poetry manuscript, picking up themes of the natural world that she explored in her debut collection, Invasive Species.

Debra Komar (October to December 2016)

PEI writer Komar, a former forensic scientist and professor, writes historical nonfiction using modern forensic science to re-examine historic Canadian crimes. The author of four previous books, she will be working on a fifth, exploring a criminal trial in 1920s Yukon. Stacey Matson (January to March 2017)

Matson is a Vancouver-based writer of novels for younger readers, including Scenes from the Epic Life of a Total Genius. She is working on a new series of YA novels about the capers of a group of pre-teen girls locked in an aquarium overnight.

Drew Hayden Taylor (April to June 2017)

Playwright, fiction writer, and journalist Taylor, from Curve Lake, Ontario, is the author of numerous works including the novel Motorcycles and Sweetgrass and the play God and the Indian. He is working on a new play that he describes as a "comedic murder mystery from the perspective of a Native woman."

The current writer in residence is Shelagh Plunkett, a Montreal-based author currently at work on a nonfiction manuscript entitled Caught by All That's Come Before. In April 2016, a former Poet Laureate of Halifax, Shauntay Grant, begins her residency.

About the Selection Process

The program received 73 applications from writers across the country. The selection committee was composed of two past writers-in-residence, nonfiction writer Chris Turner and playwright Colleen Murphy, and Dan Davidson, editor of The Klondike Sun.

About the Berton House Writers' Retreat

Created in 1996, Berton House provides a three-month residency for writers in Pierre Berton's childhood home in Dawson City. In addition to time to focus on their writing, residents receive a monthly honorarium, perform public readings, and are encouraged to become involved with the community. Professional Canadian writers who have published at least one book and are established in any creative literary discipline are eligible. The program is administered and funded by the Writers' Trust of Canada. Support is provided by the Canada Council for the Arts, Dawson City Community Library, Klondike Visitors Association, and Whitehorse Public Library. Travel assistance is provided by Aeroplan through their Beyond Miles program. For further information visit bertonhouse.

About the Writers' Trust of Canada

The Writers' Trust of Canada is a charitable organization that seeks to advance, nurture, and celebrate Canadian writers and writing through a portfolio of programs, including literary awards, financial grants, scholarships, and a writers' retreat. Writers' Trust programming is designed to champion excellence in Canadian writing, to improve the status of writers, and to create connections between writers and readers. Canada's writers receive more financial support from the Writers' Trust than from any other nongovernmental organization or foundation in the country. For further information visit writerstrust.com.

An Evening with Douglas Gibson and His Writers

By Dan Davidson

To hear Douglas Gibson tell it, an early infatuation with the writing of Stephen Leacock had a great deal to do with the Kilmarnock, Scotland, lad's decision to emigrate to Canada, which he did by the roundabout route of attending Yale first. Signing on as a junior editor at Doubleday Canada, one of his first jobs was the editing of a biography of Leacock.

Stories About Storytellers: An Evening with Doug Gibson and Many Famous Canadian

Authors, continued in much the same vein, with Gibson, framed by an oversized projected caricature of the subject, explaining his or her place in the pantheon of Canadian Literature and humanizing the icons with an anecdote that also illuminated his relationship with them.

Gibson's own career path moved from Doubleday to Macmillan of Canada, where he began as editorial director and ultimately rose to the rank of publisher. Later he moved to the same position at McClelland & Stewart, and finally became president of that company, while establishing his own imprint there, Douglas Gibson Books.

On his retirement from active publishing, he penned Stories About Storytellers: Publishing Alice Munro, Robertson Davies, Alistair MacLeod, Pierre Trudeau, and Others, in 2011, developed a one-man show (with the IT assistance of his wife, Jane) which has toured the country and ultimately led to another book, Across Canada by Story.

It was a 90 minute presentation based on the first book which Gibson presented to an audience of some 20 literary enthusiasts in the ballroom at the Odd Fellows Hall on the evening of January 20.

Along with those writers already mentioned, he offered reminiscences of Terry Fallis, Harold Horwood, Brian Mulroney, Paul Martin, Hugh McLennan, Morley Callaghan, Jack Hodgins, W.O. Mitchell and Barry Broadfoot, all of whom he had edited and nurtured in his time.

Particularly amusing were his tales of having to deal with difficulties: telling Bill Mitchell that the final chapter of his book was no good and would have to be rewritten; being grilled by Trudeau when the first draft of his memoir turned out to be terrible he had to be persuaded to restructure it; having to bully Alistair MacLeod into finally turning over the manuscript of his single novel after months of delays.

Of Alice Munro, he said that persuading her to eschew novels and stick to writing short stories was probably the one thing in his life that would guarantee his entry into Heaven.

One author with whom he had worked with, but didn't say much about, was Pierre Berton, but he did tour Berton House while he was in town and spoke of the residency program with great enthusiasm before launching into his talk.

"It's an example of a program that works in every possible way," he said. "It's great for Dawson, that you get interesting people like Shelagh (Plunkett, the latest writer in residence) adding to the liveliness of your community, and they get imbued by Dawson and they go and spread the word."

He moved on to Whitehorse, where his presentation was to be based on Across Canada by Story.

The Origin of the Klondike Painters Group

By Palma Berger

This group had its roots in a painting group for seniors about 10 years ago. Retirees Joyce Caley and myself signed up for a programme called 'Arts for Employment', purely for the enjoyment of it. We both never intended ever again to seek employment.

But when the course ended we both said how much we enjoyed it and a pity it had to end.

KIAC became aware of Federal monies that would be available to start up an activity for Seniors . An activity that had a good chance to keep on going. So KIAC got the money for supplies, and with me as a teacher, we began the Seniors Painting Class. It proved to be most enjoyable. Not only for the painting, but the seniors had so many stories to tell from their different life experiences. The men as well as the women had so many stories and experiences. One should have had someone to record them.

At the end of the year we had an art show. People were both surprised and delighted at the paintings produced. Some asked 'Why only for seniors? What about the not so seniors group? So we agreed to continue the classes for whoever and with me as teacher. We progressed well , but after a time they became confidant enough to want to experiment and try things for themselves, and wanted only a bit of advice, encouragement, and guidance. Which the whole class gave willingly.

We became a group of painters helping and advising each other. So it has continued that on every Saturday afternoon at 1:00 p.m. We painters gather at the back room of KIAC to paint and share our enthusiasm. Anybody may drop in. We close for the summer, and for periods when KIAC needs its room back.

A couple of years ago we had an exhibition, and one suggested we should give our group its own identity, so we now have the title of the "Klondike Painters Group".

Community meeting to tackle youth issue

BY DAN DAVIDSON

This Friday evening could see the beginning of what Justice of the Peace Darryl Williams hopes will be a new era of community responsibility in the administration of justice in Dawson. A community circle meeting will be held from 7 to 9 PM at the Youth Centre to deal with issues emerging YOUTH AT RISK / Tonight's public meeting at the youth centre will see seven teens caught with alcohol answering for their actions.

from what Williams terms the illegal occupancy of the centre by a group of seven youth and one adult supervisor.

The teens were found there by city employee Pat Cayen on the evening of December 23, after the building had been closed for the night. They were in possession of a quantity of hard liquor which had been purchased by the young man who was also the supervisor. He has since been charged with providing liquor to minors, but the seven teens have not yet faced charges.

This doesn't mean they have been left alone. Williams says they will be front and centre at the Friday night meeting, requiring them to explain themselves to the community and to face punishment which will include 25 hours of community service to atone for their deed.

"It's one step to a solution to some of the problems in town, says Williams. "We're going to go to zero tolerance on a lot of the problems in town with adults and with youth. We're going to go to circle sentencing and this is just a

The Sun obtained funding in late 2009 from the City of Dawson, YTG's Heritage Branch and the Community Development Fund to conserve and archive early issues and make them available once again in the public domain. This is a great resource for students, writers and historians, and also for prospective tourists with an interest in Dawson City's life. Each month, we are re-printing our front pages from 20 years ago as a souvenir of our lively history. If you want to see page 2 and beyond, check out our website. Past issues are available there for download. Go to http://klondikesun.com. More will be added periodically (heh) when we have time! In 1996, we became a bi-weekly. Alumnus blazing own Yukon Trail

Posted on Tuesday, Jan 5, 2016 on the uOttawa website and blog Photos from Husky Bus Facebook page By Brandon Gillet

When he went to the Yukon as part of a uOttawa glaciology course, alumnus Jesse Cooke's career took a detour.

Cooke (BA [Environmental Studies] '06, BEd, '07) fell in love with the Great White North but not with its sparse transport links. People often hitchhiked in sub-zero temperatures to get from A to B.

"My first time up to Dawson City in 2006 it took over 12 hours of hitchhiking for a six-hour ride," said Cooke. "That trip gave me lots of time to think about a bus!"

So Cooke started a chartered transportation company, Husky Bus, running vans between Whitehorse and Dawson City. That was four years ago. Last month, Cooke and Husky Bus won the Parks Canada Youth Tourism Entrepreneur Award at the 2015 Canadian Tourism Awards.

"It's exciting because the Yukon is a small place and now we have national recognition," said Cooke. Originally, Cooke funded his transportation service with his personal savings and a bank loan. The company has since branched out to become more of a tourism company, offering guided expeditions to renowned areas along the Klondike Trail, hiking and bike rentals. Husky Bus also provides accommodation scheduling, making it a hub for tourism in Whitehorse.

"At first we were just a scheduled van service running two times a week," said Cooke. "Now we have four buses and eight employees. We've become the go-to transportation service, in the Yukon anyway."

While Cooke has taken on more of an administrative role with the company, he prefers to be out in the field.

"I'm best at being on the road with the customers," said Cooke. "I really have to tip my hat to my employees, though. They do a great job and are very knowledgeable."

Cooke plans to keep up the momentum by re-branding the company as the Klondike Experience this spring, further expanding its scope as the premier adventure company on the Klondike Trail.

It was AGM time in Dawson

Volunteer community organizations need to meet from time to time if they are to continue functioning. Since most of them are registered as non-profit groups with the territory's Corporate Affairs Dept. that means they need to at least have an annual general meeting. While many of these, like the one for the Klondike Sun (registered as the Literary Society of the Klondike), are triggered by the time of year when the group actually launched, others have adjusted their anniversary dates so that their fiscal year coincides with the calendar year.

That has meant that there have been a lot of AGMs in late 2015. Here are a few of them.

Due to the near financial meltdown chronicled here a few issues ago, the newspaper had a very late, severely overdue (over two months late) AGM, but I'm happy to say that it was preceded by a community consultation that was well attended and led up to a revitalized board membership the very next week in late October. It now has an eight member board, more than half of whom are new blood, and a healthy roster of volunteers.

Community radio here, CFYT-fm, is also run by volunteers and sixteen of them turned out to a meeting in late November. CFYT broadcasts local shows from Thursday to Sunday each week and rebroadcasts Whitehorse's CKRW when they are off the air. They assist the town's cable TV network in broadcasting live video of town council and committee of the whole meetings most Tuesday evenings and do a number of live remotes from various events around town during the year. They had the luxury of a part time station manager for a couple of years, but the national funding for that has expired. Their biggest hurdle this coming year, aside from the ever-present need to fund raise, will be the application to renew their Canadian Radio and Television Commission broadcast licence.

The Dawson City Music Festival is well into its third decade and had a healthy turnout of 23 members (out of over 50) for its AGM in early December. While it continues to sell out its passes each year, costs have continued to climb while revenues have remained about the same, so the festival has been operating at a deficit for a couple of years now and is looking for ways to increase revenue.

Any AGM where you have to bring in more tables is a good one. The Chamber of Commerce leaders were very happy.

It faces some challenges in programming spaces for next summer. The Minto Park concession stand burned down on Labour Day weekend, and the replacement will likely not be in place by late July when the festival occurs. In addition, the Palace Grand Theatre will be out of service due to renovations all next summer and this will cut back on performance spaces.

The new board has these challenges to face, but they are determined to be creative in solving them.

The Dawson City Chamber of Commerce met in early December and had an excellent turnout of 25 members for a noon hour AGM. There are actually 70 member businesses and organizations at the present time. Plans for events related to its annual big event, the Gold Show, have also been impacted by the Palace Grand's shutdown, an the chamber will also have to be creative in finding spaces for its workshop and lecture sessions, as well as its celebratory banquet. The chamber has a new manager and a renewed board of directors, so its future looks quite positive.

Bookends: This story breaks some mystery rules

By Dan Davidson

The Man in the Oueue By Josephine Tey Kindle edition 99 cents 218 pages in print editions

Much of Josephine Tey's output has been out of print for some time, even though her penultimate Alan Grant mystery, The Daughter of Time, has been hailed in Britain as the greatest mystery novel of all time.

The Man in the Queue was the first of the Alan Grant mysteries, published in 1929. It does feel its years, but it wears them well. The oddest thing about the narrative has to be the occasional times when the omniscient narrator breaks what the theatre would call the fourth wall, and addresses the audience directly, using the first person "I" to comment on some aspect of her detective's manner.

The story begins with a man in a London theatre line-up (the queue of the title) waiting to see what will be one of the final presentations of a musical, "Didn't you Know?". It's a tight lineup and there's some shoving. A woman turns to complaint to the fellow behind her, who's bumped her several times, and he falls down with a knife in his back. He's been dead for a while; the line has been both holding him up and moving him forward,

No one seems to have seen the thing happen. There are practically zero clues. Since it's an impossible case, it gets handed to Alan Grant, who apparently already has a rep for tough cases, as well as one for being a generally sharp looking fellow.

Working on very little evidence, Grant manages to identify the dead man and track down where he lived. While this is happening a letter turns up at the station containing funds to deal with the man's burial. Tracking down some other money does eventually lead to a suspect, and to a manhunt which runs through the streets of London and finally out into the countryside.

Grant captures his suspect and hauls him back to London, where he goes on trial. All the evidence that exists seems to point in his direction and yet Grant is stuck with the uncomfortable feeling that the fellow's story was, in fact, the truth, and that the wrong man might be headed for the drop. He pursues the case in spite of the fact that his superiors are quite happy with the outcome as it stands.

Along the way he uncovers and solves a number of tangentially related mysteries and becomes convinced that the dead man, who had a gun in his pocket, had actually come to the theatre to kill the lead actress, Ray Marcable (yes, it's a stage name, and it is exactly that blatant a selfadvertisement), with whom he was obsessed. It seems that whoever killed him saved her life, but that still doesn't undo the sentence facing his captive.

So the arrival and confession of the actual killer comes as a bit of a relief, but I do admit that it breaks most of the rules of the standard agreement between mystery writer and mystery reader.

Good book, though. Happy that e-books have made the series available.
